In the course of the argument, it was also asserted that even if the 5th Respondent renounced his rights and interests in the holding, the 6th Respondent, who is the son of the 5th Respondent, is not bound by such renunciation. This is covered under the last element of section 115 of the Evidence Ordinance mentioned above, i.e. the question must arise in the suit or proceeding between the same persons or their representatives (privies). In elaborating the last element, Coomaraswamy at page 192 states, "this means that estoppels are usually binding upon parties and their privies." It is further stated that privies can be privies in blood such as heirs, privies by estate such as lessees and assignees, and privies in law such as executors and administrators.

According to Spencer Bower and Turner (op. cit.) at page 116 "representee" is not limited to parties directly involved but includes any party to whose notice the representation should reach as per the intention of the "representor"; this intention may be inferred if the representor had knowledge that such representation would reach the third party in the ordinary course of business.

The 5th Respondent made the representation directly to Wickramasekara Bandara. Yet it is reasonable to assume that the act of renouncing interest in the holding is one which would reach the other heirs in the line of succession within his family.

After the renunciation of the right to succession by the 5th Respondent in favour of Wickramasekara Bandara and after the death of Wickramasekara Bandara, the Petitioner had a legitimate expectation that she should succeed to the holding according to Rule 1 of the Third Schedule.

If the 5th Respondent failed/showed unwillingness/renounced his right to succeed, the 6th Respondent being the son of the 5th Respondent cannot claim right to succeed in terms of Rule 1 of the Third Schedule of the Land Development Ordinance since inter alia (a) the chain of succession had been severed, and (b) by operation of the doctrine of estoppel.

The 6th Respondent who is the son of the 5th Respondent is bound by the representation made by his father.

Conclusion

For the aforesaid reasons, I answer both questions of law in the affirmative and set aside the judgment of the Court of Appeal.

I quash P10, P11 and P12 by writ of certiorari. The subsequent documents prepared based on them and mentioned in the petition have no force or avail in law.

As the 5th Respondent renounced his right to succession, after the death of Wickramasekara Bandara, the Petitioner being the eldest daughter and third child of Podi Bandara, shall succeed to the holding by operation of Rule 1 of the Third Schedule of the Land Development Ordinance.

The appeal is accordingly allowed but without costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Buwaneka Aluwihare, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Mahapatabendige Edmund Piyasena,
No. 11, Old Waidya Road,
Dehiwala. (Deceased)

Chula Subadra Dissanayake Mahawela,
also known as Chula Piyasena,
No. 11, Old Waidya Road,
Dehiwala.
Plaintiff

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL/170/2011
SC LA NO: SC/SPL/LA/100/2011
CA APPEAL NO: CA/543/95 (F)
DC MT. LAVINIA NO: 2379/T

Vs.

R.M. Seelawathie Menike Piyasena,
No. 44, Waidya Road, Dehiwala.
Intervenient Petitioner

AND BETWEEN

Chula Subadra Dissanayake Mahawela,
also known as Chula Piyasena,
No. 11, Old Waidya Road,
Dehiwala.
Petitioner-Appellant

Vs.

R.M. Seelawathie Menike Piyasena,
No. 44, Waidya Road, Dehiwala.
Intervenient Petitioner-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

R.M. Seelawathie Menike Piyasena,
No. 44, Waidya Road,
Dehiwala.
Intervenient Petitioner-Respondent-Petitioner-Appellant

Vs.

Chula Subadra Dissanayake Mahawela,
also known as Chula Piyasena,
No. 11, Old Waidya Road,
Dehiwala.
Petitioner-Appellant-Respondent-Respondent

Before: Murdu N.B. Fernando, P.C., J.
Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J

Counsel: J.A.J. Udawatta with Kawshalya Molligida and Anuradha N. Ponnamperuma for the Intervenient Petitioner-Respondent-Appellant.

Faisz Musthapha, P.C., with Faisza Markar for the Petitioner-Appellant-Respondent.

Argued on: 03.11.2021

Written submissions:

by the Intervenient Petitioner-Respondent-Appellant on 05.12.2011 and 22.11.2021.

by the Petitioner-Appellant-Respondent on 29.02.2012 and 07.12.2021.

Decided on: 26.07.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

Introduction

The Respondent instituted proceedings in the District Court of Mount Lavinia seeking to prove and to have the probate issued in her name as the executrix of the last will of her late husband. The Appellant who is the wife of the younger brother of the deceased testator intervened in the proceedings after the order nisi was published in the newspapers. After inquiry, the District Court held that the last will was not an act and deed of the deceased as there are suspicious circumstances attached to the will and dismissed the Respondent's application. On appeal, the Court of Appeal reversed the judgment of the District Court and held that the District Court had erroneously rejected the evidence led on behalf of the Respondent and ruled that the last will is proved. Learned counsel for the Appellant submits that the principal issue for adjudication before this Court is whether the Court of Appeal erred in law and fact in overturning the judgment of the District Court and holding that the last will is the act and deed of the deceased testator.

Burden of proof of a last will

It is well-settled law that the party propounding the last will must satisfy the conscience of the Court that the instrument so propounded is the last will of a free and capable testator of sound disposition of mind. If there are circumstances which excite the suspicion of the Court, the burden is on the party propounding the will to remove all such suspicion and doubt. If the propounder of the will fails to do so, the Court shall hold against the will and dismiss the application without further ado.

Speaking on the rules of law according to which last will cases are to be decided, in the seminal case of Barry v. Butlin [1838] II Moore 480 at 482-483, Baron Parke, delivering the opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, articulates:

> The rules of law according to which cases of this nature are to be decided, do not admit of any dispute, so far as they are necessary to the determination of the present Appeal: and they have been acquiesced in on both sides. These rules are two; the first that the onus probandi lies in every case upon the party propounding a will; and he must satisfy the conscience of the Court that the instrument so propounded is the last will of a free and capable testator.
>
> The second is, that if a party writes or prepares a will, under which he takes a benefit, that is a circumstance that ought generally to excite the suspicion of the Court, and calls upon it to be vigilant and jealous in examining the evidence in support of the instrument, in favour of which it ought not to pronounce unless the suspicion is removed, and it is judicially satisfied that the paper propounded does express the true will of the deceased.

These dicta of Baron Parke are consistently adopted and applied as good law for nearly two centuries. Vide The Alim Will Case (1919) 20 NLR 481, Pieris v. Wilbert (1956) 59 NLR 245, Sithamparanathan v. Mathuranayagam (1970) 73 NLR 53, Ratnayake v. Chandratillake [1987] 2 Sri LR 299.

What can be regarded as suspicious circumstances in a last will case? Suspicious circumstances will necessarily vary from case to case. As stated in Barry v. Butlin (supra), for instance, if the beneficiary of a will has actively participated in the execution of the will, it is a circumstance that ought generally to excite the suspicion of the Court. In such an instance the will can be attacked on undue influence. Vide Arulampikai v. Thambu (1944) 45 NLR 457.

In Sellammah v. Sellamuttu (1957) 59 NLR 376 certain obvious alterations were noticeable in a will in regard to the name of one of the devisees. The alterations were not attested or authenticated by the signatures of the notary or the testator and the witnesses in terms of either section 30(21) of the Notaries Ordinance or section 7 of the Prevention of Frauds Ordinance. When application for probate of the will was made, obtaining an affidavit from the attesting notary and witnesses proved to be quite difficult. In such circumstances, the Supreme Court held that the will should not have been admitted to probate. Sinnetamby J. at page 381-382 stated that "it was incumbent on the propounders in the first instance to remove the suspicions created by alterations, the knowledge of which must necessarily be imputed to them. Having regard to the far-reaching effects of the alterations it was their duty if the alterations were made before due execution to have led some independent evidence to establish that the deceased during his lifetime confirmed the dispositions made in the will. This was necessary to meet the charge that the testator did not know and approve of the contents of the will."

In Meenadchipillai v. Karthigesu (1957) 61 NLR 320, the following circumstances were held to be suspicious, where it was shown that the testator died within seven hours after the execution of the will in a hospital: (a) the testator was severely ill at the time of execution that he was unable to speak or to hold a pen to sign; (b) the notary did not take the precaution of consulting a doctor at the time he took instructions from the testator or at the time of executing the will; (c) the notary was a close relative of the petitioner who was the widow of the testator and the primary beneficiary of the will; (d) the witnesses to the will were not of independent character.

However, this initial burden cast upon the propounder of the will is not as heavy as proof beyond reasonable doubt. It would be unrealistic to expect proof of a will with mathematical precision when the actual author of the will (testator) is not among the living. The question the Court has to grapple with in last will cases is to understand what the deceased intended to do, or, in some instances such as the instant one, whether the deceased intended anything because the appellant alleges that the will was prepared after the death of the testator. The standard of proof is, like in any other civil case, on a balance of probabilities.

When suspicion is attached to the will, what the Court is actually expected to do is to adopt the criterion proposed by Baron Parke in Barry v. Butlin in the case of undue influence, i.e. "to be vigilant and jealous in examining the evidence in support of the instrument, in favour of which it ought not to pronounce unless the suspicion is removed and it is judicially satisfied that the paper propounded does express the true will of the deceased." Vide The Alim Will Case (supra) at 494.

If the propounder of the will successfully discharges the aforesaid initial burden, the burden then shifts to the opposing party to prove fraud, conspiracy, coercion, undue influence or any other ground they rely upon to invalidate the will.

In another landmark case on the subject, namely, Tyrrell v. Painton [1894] P.D. 151, Lindley L.J. stated at 157 that the rule laid down in Barry v. Butlin and similar other cases such as Fulton v. Andrew Law Rep.

7 H.L. 448 and Brown v. Fisher 63 L.T. 465 which places the onus probandi upon the party propounding the will to satisfy the conscience of the Court that the instrument so propounded is the will of a free and capable testator should not be limited to cases where the beneficiary was actively participated in the preparation of the last will, but should also be extended to "all cases in which circumstances exist which excite the suspicion of the Court; and whatever such circumstances exist, and whatever their nature may be, it is for those who propound the will to remove such suspicion, and to prove affirmatively that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the document, and it is only where this is done that the onus is thrown on those who oppose the will to prove fraud or undue influence, or whatever else they rely on to displace the case made for proving the will."

This was reiterated by Davey L.J. at 159-160 when he stated:

> There rests upon that will a suspicion which must be removed before you come to the plea of fraud. It must not be supposed that the principle Barry v. Butlin is confined to cases where the person who prepares the will is the person who takes the benefit under it – that is one state of things which raises a suspicion; but the principle is, that whatever a will is prepared under circumstances which raise a well-grounded suspicion that it does not express the mind of the testator, the Court ought not to pronounce in favour of it unless that suspicion is removed.

Lindley L.J. was quoted with approval by Sansoni J. in Meenadchipillai v. Karthigesu (supra) at 322 and Davey L.J. was quoted with approval by Bertram C.J. in The Alim Will Case at 494.

When the burden shifts to the opposing party too, the required standard of proof is not stringent. For instance, if the ground of attack is fraud, the fraud need not be proved by the opposing party beyond reasonable doubt.

The Court need not disregard the evidence that casts suspicion on the will on the basis that, even if it suggests fraud, it does not warrant a definite finding of fraud. In The Alim Will Case at pages 493-494, Bertram C.J. explained the law as follows:

> It has been established by a long series of decisions, the most important of which are Barry v. Butlin (1838) 2 Moore P.C. 480, Baker v. Batt (1838) 2 Moore P.C. 317, Fulton v. Andrew L.R. 7 H.L. 448, Tyrrell v. Painton (1894) P.D. 151 (see also Orion v. Smith (1873) L.R. 3 P.& D. 23, Dufaur v. Croft 3 Moore P.C. 136, Wilson Basil (1903) P. 329 and Sukhir v. Kadar Nath I.L.R All. 405), that wherever a will is prepared and executed under circumstances which arouse the suspicion of the Court, it ought not to pronounce in favour of it unless the party propounding it adduces evidence which would remove such suspicion, and satisfies the Court that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the instrument. It is now settled that this principle is not limited to cases in which the will is propounded by a person who takes a special benefit under it, and himself procured or conducted its execution. It may very well be that a refusal to grant probate in such a case may involve an imputation of fraud upon the party propounding the will. This is no objection to the operations of that principle. (See Baker v. Batt (supra).) The Court is not necessarily bound to give a decision upon the truth or falsehood of the conflicting evidence adduced before it upon the question of fraud. What it has to ask itself is whether in all the circumstances of the case it will give credit to the subscribing witnesses, or the other witnesses adduced to prove the execution.

> Nor is it an objection to the operation of this principle that the evidence which casts suspicion on the will, though it suggests fraud, is not of such a nature as to justify the Court in a finding of fraud. (See Tyrrell v. Painton.) The principle does not mean that in cases where a suspicion attaches to a will a special measure of proof or a particular species of proof is required. (See Barry v. Butlin (supra).) It means that in such cases the Court must be "vigilant and jealous in examining the evidence in support of the instrument, in favour of which it ought not to pronounce unless the suspicion is removed, and it is judicially satisfied that the paper propounded does express the true will of the deceased."

In Samarakone v. The Public Trustee (1960) 65 NLR 100 at 115, Weerasuriya J. stated:

> As held by Lindley, L.J., in Tyrell v. Painton (1894) P. 151, where there are features which excite suspicion in regard to a will, whatever their nature may be, it is for those who propound it to remove such suspicion. Suspicious features may be a ground for refusing probate even where the evidence which casts suspicion on the will, though it suggests fraud, is not of such a nature as to justify the Court in arriving at a definite finding of fraud. It has also been stated that the conscience of the Court must be satisfied in respect of such matters. These principles have been applied in several local cases, such as The Alim Will Case (supra), John Pieris et al. v. Wilbert (1956) 59 N.L.R. 245 and Meenadchipillai v. Karthigesu (1957) 61 N.L.R. 320.

However, in Barry v. Butlin at page 491 it was remarked that "The undue influence, and the importunity which, if they are to defeat a will, must be of the nature of fraud or duress, exercised on a mind in a state of debility". On the facts and circumstances of that case, it was held that those were only "insinuated but not proved". In Pieris v. Pieris (1906) 9 NLR 14 at 23-24 Wood Renton J. (later C.J.) by citing Boyse v. Rossborough (1856) 6 H.L.C. 2 remarked that "Undue influence is not to be presumed; the party alleging it must prove the fact.…In order to be "undue" the influence must amount to coercion or fraud".

At this point, a word of caution may be necessary. Specific grounds of challenge, such as fraud, conspiracy, coercion, undue influence should not be considered as distinct and separate grounds that must be proved by the opposing party alone after closing the propounder's case. If the opposing party alleges, for instance, fraud or undue influence, it has a direct bearing on the initial burden of the propounder. The propounder must first prove that the will was duly executed in terms of law and it is the act and deed of a free and capable testator who not only was aware of but also approved of the contents of it.

As pointed out by Viscount Dunedin in Robins v. National Trust Company (1927) A.C. 515 at 519 "In ordinary cases if there is no suggestion to the contrary any man who is shown to have executed a will in ordinary form will be presumed to have testamentary capacity, but the moment the capacity is called in question then at once the onus lies on those propounding the will to affirm positively the testamentary capacity." The proof of due execution, testamentary capacity of the testator etc. are upon the propounder of the will.

Before the question of fraud, undue influence etc. can arise, any suspicion arising from the circumstances under which the will was executed has to be dealt with and removed. In the course of establishing his case, the propounder needs to address the allegations of his opponent and remove all suspicion attached to the will before the burden is shifted to the opposing party. It would be naive on the part of the propounder if he leaves such allegations untouched on the basis that it is solely up to those who oppose the will to establish them.

This was explained by Bertram C.J. in Andrado v. Silva (1920) 22 NLR 4 at 6-7 in the following manner:

> I do not mean to say that the principle that it is the duty of the propounders to remove suspicions does not apply to undue influence. I think it does so apply in exactly the same manner as it applies to fraud. But it is necessary that the Court should ask itself, what are the nature of the suspicions which are said to be excited. The only material suspicions are suspicions which affect issues the proof of which is on the propounders. It lies upon the propounders to prove (1) the fact of execution, (2) the mental competency of the testator, (3) his knowledge and approval of the contents of the will. If the circumstances are such that a suspicion arises affecting one of these matters, it is for the propounders to remove it. The Court is required under these circumstances to watch the evidence tendered with special vigilance, and not to declare that the onus of proof is discharged unless the suspicion is removed. The suspicion may point to fraud. The onus of fraud is ordinarily on those who allege it. But in the case of a will there may be a suspicion of fraud affecting either the fact of execution, or the mental condition of the testator at the moment of execution, or his knowledge and approval of the document or part of the document. In such a case it is for the propounders to remove the suspicion, and if this is not done the will must be rejected, even though the suspicious circumstances do not amount to a prima facie case of fraud, and even though it cannot be said, on a review of the evidence on both sides, that fraud has been established. Undue influence, as it seems to me, is on the same footing as fraud, and I observe that in Tyrrell v. Painton (1894) P. D.

> 151 Davey L.J. speaks of them together:- "If the circumstances are such that a suspicion arises that the apparent approval by the testator is not a real approval, that his act was not the expression of his own free will, but of a will coerced or dominated by another, then I take it that it is for the propounders to remove the suspicion, and that if they fail to do so their whole case fails, even though the suspicious circumstances do not constitute a prima facie case of undue influence, and even though, on a review of the evidence on both sides, it cannot be said that undue influence has been positively established." I take this to be the meaning of Wood-Renton J. in his observations in the case of Pieris v. Pieris (1907) 9 N.L.R., on page 23.

However, mere ipse dixit from the opposing party should not be regarded as suspicious circumstances. Not every circumstance can be considered suspicious; a circumstance warrants suspicion when it deviates from the norm. The suspicion must be real, reasonable and well-founded, and not based on conjecture, surmise and innuendo. In Tyrrell v. Painton at 159, Davey, L.J. observed "the principle is, that whatever a will is prepared under circumstances which raise a well-grounded suspicion that it does not express the mind of the testator, the Court ought not to pronounce in favour of it unless that suspicion is removed." In Andrado v. Silva, Bertram C.J. at 6 observed "The only material suspicions are suspicions which affect issues the proof of which is on the propounders." The circumstances should indeed arouse the Court's suspicion peculiar to the case the Court is called upon to decide.

In the ultimate analysis, in last will cases, no rigid rules can be laid down in respect of burden of proof or appreciation of evidence. The matter rests fairly and squarely on the facts and circumstances of each individual case.

The decision on the will is essentially a question of fact

Whether there are in fact suspicious circumstances surrounding the will and if so whether such suspicious circumstances have been removed to the satisfaction of the Court is a question of fact best left to the trial Judge. In Sithamparanathan v. Mathuranayagam (1970) 73 NLR 53 at 61, Lord Hodson stated:

> The law as laid down in the older cases to which a reference has been made was reiterated in the judgment delivered by Lord Du Parcq in the Privy Council in Harmes and Another v. Hinkson 62 T.L.R. 445 at 446 in these words "Whether or not the evidence is such as to satisfy the conscience of the tribunal must always be, in the end, a question of fact."

Learned Counsel for the Appellant strenuously submits that the Court of Appeal should not have reversed the District Judge's findings of fact which he arrived at after seeing and hearing the witnesses.

As Chief Justice G.P.S. de Silva stated in Alwis v. Fernando [1993] 1 Sri LR 119 at 122, "It is well established that findings of primary facts by a trial judge who hears and sees witnesses are not to be lightly disturbed on appeal." This widely recognized general rule is largely predicated on the premise that the trial Judge is at a distinctly advantageous position of hearing and seeing witnesses giving evidence in the witness box. This priceless opportunity, which is denied to a judge sitting in appeal, enables the trial Judge to accurately determine which party is speaking the truth.

Fradd v. Brown & Co. Ltd (1918) 20 NLR 282 is a case where the Privy Council quashed the judgment of the Court of Appeal and restored the judgment of the trial Court because the whole case depended upon the veracity and trustworthiness of the witnesses who gave evidence at the trial. Earl Loreburn stated at 282-283:

> Accordingly, in those circumstances, immense importance attaches, not only to the demeanour of the witnesses, but also in the course of the trial and the general impression left on the mind of the Judge present, who saw and noted everything that took place in regard to what was said by one or other witness. It is rare that a decision of a Judge so express, so explicit, upon a point of fact purely, is overruled by a Court of Appeal, because Courts of Appeal recognize the priceless advantage which a Judge of first instance has in matters of that kind, as contrasted with any Judge of a Court of Appeal, who can only learn from paper or from narrative of those who were present. It is very rare that, in questions of veracity so direct and so specific as these, a Court of Appeal will overrule a Judge of first instance.

In Munasinghe v. Vidanage (1966) 69 NLR 97 on behalf of the Privy Council, Lord Pearson quoted with approval the following part of the speech of Viscount Simon in Watt or Thomas v. Thomas (1947) AC 484 at 486:

> If there is no evidence to support a particular conclusion (and this is really a question of law), the appellate court will not hesitate so to decide. But if the evidence as a whole can reasonably be regarded as justifying the conclusion arrived at the trial, and especially if that conclusion has been arrived at on conflicting testimony by a tribunal which saw and heard the witnesses, the appellate court will bear in mind that it has not enjoyed this opportunity and that the view of the trial judge as to where credibility lies is entitled to great weight. This is not to say that the judge of first instance can be treated as infallible in determining which side is telling the truth or is refraining > from exaggeration. Like other tribunals, he may go wrong on a question of fact, but it is a cogent circumstance that a judge of first instance, when estimating the value of verbal testimony, has the advantage (which is denied to courts of appeal) of having the witnesses before him and observing the manner in which their evidence is given.

In Munasinghe's case the Privy Council stated that the Supreme Court should not have reversed the findings of the trial Judge who heard and saw the witnesses giving evidence because it was a case of complicated facts and there was a good deal to be said on each side and the findings of the trial Judge were not unreasonable. The Privy Council restored the judgment of the trial Court.

Chief Justice Samarakoon in Undugoda Jinawansa Thero v. Yatawara Piyaratna Thero [1982] 1 Sri LR 273 at 281 acknowledged the importance of this well-established principle when he stated:

> The District Judge had the priceless advantage of seeing and hearing these witnesses and of watching their demeanour. After careful analysis and cogent reasoning he has rejected their evidence. I can see no justification for holding that he was wrong.

Having quoted all these judgments, I must say that the accepted principle that the findings of fact of the trial Judge should not be lightly disturbed cannot be considered an absolute rule of law. If the findings of fact of the trial Judge are not upon or not only upon the credibility or demeanour and deportment of the witnesses, but upon or also upon analysis of the evidence, and the appellate Court is fully convinced that the trial Judge has manifestly failed to analyze the evidence in the proper perspective, there is no impediment for the appellate Court to give effect to its own conviction and reverse the findings of fact of the trial Judge.

It is important to understand that failure to analyze or evaluate the evidence in the proper perspective is not necessarily a question of fact but rather a question of law. (Collettes Ltd. v. Bank of Ceylon [1982] 2 Sri LR 514) This includes rejecting relevant evidence, accepting irrelevant evidence, clam and dispassionate appreciation of evidence.

After reviving a number of local and foreign authorities, in De Silva v. Seneviratne [1981] 2 Sri LR 7 at 17, Ranasinghe J. (later C.J.) held:

> On an examination of the principles laid down by the authorities referred to above, it seems to me: that, where the trial judge's findings on questions of fact are based upon the credibility of witnesses, on the footing of the trial judge's perception of such evidence, then such findings are entitled to great weight and the utmost consideration, and will be reversed only if it appears to the appellate Court that the trial judge has failed to make full use of the "priceless advantage" given to him of seeing and listening to the witnesses giving viva voce evidence, and the appellate Court is convinced by the plainest consideration that it would be justified in doing so: that, where the findings of fact are based upon the trial judge's evaluation of facts, the appellate Court is then in as good a position as the trial judge to evaluate such facts, and no sanctity attaches to such findings of fact of the trial judge: that, if on either of these grounds, it appears to the appellate Court that such findings of fact should be reversed, then the appellate Court "ought not to shrink from that task".

In Collettes Limited v. Bank of Ceylon [1984] 2 Sri LR 253 at 264-265 Sharvananda J. (later C.J.) held:

> Thus this court undoubtedly has the jurisdiction to revise the concurrent findings of fact reached by the lower court in appropriate > cases. However, ordinarily it will not interfere with findings of fact based upon relevant evidence except in special circumstances, such as, for instance, where the judgment of the lower court shows that the relevant evidence bearing on a fact has not been considered or irrelevant matters have been given undue importance or that the conclusion rests mainly on erroneous considerations or is not supported by sufficient evidence. When the judgment of the lower court exhibits such shortcomings, this court not only may but is under a duty to examine the supporting evidence and reverse the findings.

Vide also Anulawathie v. Gunapala [1998] 1 Sri LR 63, De Silva v. De Croos [2002] 2 Sri LR 409.

On the facts and circumstances of this case which I have discussed below, I take the view that no special sanctity can be attached to the findings of fact arrived at by the trial Judge as he has manifestly failed to properly analyze the evidence and unnecessarily taken irrelevant matters into consideration in the assessment of evidence. This has unfortunately led him to come to an erroneous conclusion at the end.

Suspicious circumstances

Let me now consider the circumstances that the learned District Judge deemed suspicious to hold that the last will is not the act and deed of the deceased. The District Judge accepted the version of the Appellant that the will was prepared after the death of the deceased and is therefore a forgery.

The main ground upon which the will is attacked appears to be that it is an irrational will in that the exclusion of the three children of the Appellant as beneficiaries is highly suspicious. In my view, this is an unreasonable suggestion. The Respondent is the wife (widow) of the testator. They had no children. They had been living in harmony as husband and wife throughout their married life. The Respondent was unemployed. The deceased had been employed in the tourism industry but towards the latter part he had been living a retirement life. The testator did not have too many properties. The testator possessed a modest estate. The sole immovable property owned by the testator comprised the land and the house in which they resided together throughout their married life. In addition, he had a paltry sum of Rs. 6,835 in his Bank Account and some shares in the Associated Motorways company. Is it an irrational act to bequeath this modest property solely to his wife with whom he found solace in life? Is this conduct inherently improbable? This a rational and natural will rather than an irrational and unnatural one. The argument of the Appellant that since the deceased did not have children and he had an affection towards the three children of his brother (who predeceased the testator), it is unlikely that he would have excluded them (who would have become entitled to half of the property had he died without a last will) is based on imagination, illusion and wishful thinking.

Even if the deceased had children but bequeathed all the above properties to his wife, the Court cannot look at it with suspicion. It should be understood that a person takes the decision to execute a will to deviate from the legal rules of succession. Hence, uneven distribution or denial of any legacy to some heirs should not make otherwise genuine will an ingenuine one. In adjudicating a last will case, it should not be the task of the Court to see equitable and fair distribution of property among the heirs of the deceased. The duty of the Court is to give effect to the wish of the testator. There is no requirement in law that the rationality of the will shall be established by the propounder of the will. However I must add that if there are other suspicious circumstances surrounding the will, the Court may take the irrationality of the will also into account in deciding whether the will truly represents the act and deed of a free and capable testator.

The learned District Judge in his judgment states that the following items are suspicious.

The deceased was in good health when he is alleged to have executed the last will about two months before his untimely death at the age of 59. The Appellant states that this is highly unnatural, i.e. a healthy man executing a last will. The vanity of this argument is demonstrable by the fact that this healthy man died of a heart attack nearly two months after the alleged execution of the will.

The learned District Judge states that if the last will had indeed been executed, it would be expected for the wife to be informed immediately. However, according to the Respondent wife, the deceased husband informed her about it during their journey by train to attend a wedding in Kandy. The Respondent stated in her testimony that she did not further inquire into the matter as the deceased had already told her that the property would be written to her. She discovered the last will in the almirah approximately one week after the death. There is no cause for panic or curiosity when the husband states that he executed a last will. The wife is aware of the husband's wealth. At the risk of repetition, the husband virtually had only the matrimonial home and the appurtenant land. What is there to share with others?

The Respondent in her evidence tried to show that the two families, i.e the Respondent's family and the Appellant's family (although lived adjoining to each other on the same land which the two brothers inherited from their parents) did not have a close association maybe to convince that there was no reason to give anything to the children of the brother. That is the layman's way of thinking. The Appellant gave evidence to the contrary, which the District Judge believed. On that basis, the District Judge treated the Respondent as an untrustworthy witness and rejected her entire evidence. Rejection of her evidence in toto on that basis is unreasonable. Even if there was a cordial relationship between the two families and the deceased was fond of his brother's three children, one cannot assume that he should give a portion of the matrimonial house or a portion of his paltry savings to the brother's three children.

The Appellant further argues that the Respondent did not obtain an opinion from the Examiner of Questioned Documents (EQD). On the application of the Appellant a commission was issued to the EQD but the EQD indicated that he was unable to give an opinion due to the insufficiency of specimens for the comparison of the signatures. The Appellant has not pursued the matter thereafter.

Taking into account all the facts and circumstances of this case I do not think that these are circumstances seriously arouse the suspicion of the Court as to the genuineness of the will.

Proof of a last will: statutory provisions

Wills Ordinance, No. 21 of 1844, as amended, makes provisions with respect to testamentary dispositions of property. Section 2 thereof (after the amendment by Act No. 29 of 2022) admits in no uncertain terms the legal capacity of the testator to execute wills as he pleases even to the exclusion of natural heirs without assigning any reasons whatsoever.

> 2(1). It shall be lawful for any person who has reached the age of eighteen years and residing within or outside Sri Lanka to execute a will bequeathing and disposing any movable and immovable property and all and every estate, right, share or interest in any property which belong to him at the time of death and which, if not so devised, bequeathed or disposed would devolve upon his heirs of such person not legally incapacitated from taking the same as he shall seem fit.

(2) Every testator shall have full power to make such testamentary disposition as he shall feel disposed, and in the exercise of such right to exclude any child, parent, relative, or descendant, or to disinherit or omit to mention any such person, without assigning any reason for such exclusion, disinheritance, or omission, any law, usage, or custom now or herefore in force in Sri Lanka to the contrary notwithstanding.

The due execution of the will is regulated by section 4 of the Prevention of Frauds Ordinance, No. 7 of 1840, as amended by Act No. 30 of 2022.

4(1) No will, testament, or codicil containing any devise of land or other immovable property, or any bequest of movable property, or for any other purpose whatsoever, shall be valid unless it shall be in writing and executed subject to the provisions specified in subsection (2);

(2) The testator shall -

(a) sign; and

(b) affix his left or right thumb impression,

at the foot or end of the will, testament or codicil referred to in subsection (1), before a notary public and two witnesses who shall be present at the same time:

Provided however, in the event the thumb impression of the testator cannot be obtained due to any reason, he shall affix any other finger impression or the toe impression, as the case may be.

Section 31 of the Notaries Ordinance, No. 1 of 1907, as amended, lays down the rules to be observed by notaries but provides in section 33 that no instrument shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only of the failure of a notary to observe any provision of any rule set out in section 31 in respect of any matter of form.

Section 68 of the Evidence Ordinance regulates the proof of a will. This section reads as follows:

> If a document is required by law to be attested, it shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the court and capable of giving evidence.

In this case, the notary and both attesting witnesses gave evidence. This is indeed rare.

The notary had known the deceased for about 20 years. The District Judge however rejected the evidence of the notary completely on the basis that he failed to produce the paper on which he had noted down the instructions given by the deceased prior to the execution of the last will. As previously mentioned, the estate of the deceased is not characterized by intricate complexities. The failure to produce the paper on which he wrote down instructions cannot be fatal to reject the evidence of the notary completely. It cannot be seriously considered a suspicious circumstance.

In the written submissions filed on behalf of the Appellant it is stated that the notary has not produced the monthly list. No question had been asked from the notary on the monthly list.

The Appellant claims that it is unnatural for the notary to send a message to the Respondent to "look for the will" upon hearing the death of testator. Considering the fact that the notary and the testator knew each other for a long time, I do not see any unnatural conduct on the part of the notary in it.

The notary in his evidence has stated that the testator unsuccessfully attempted to sell the house and thereafter wanted to gift the house to his wife. However, since he had financial constraints in covering the stamp fees for such a transaction, he opted to write a last will. The Appellant says this is irrational. I cannot agree.

When making a declaration by Court that a will is proved, minor lapses need not be taken very seriously. In Ranasinghe v. Somalin [2000] 2 Sri LR 225 at 233, Udalagama J. stated:

> Even the notary's admission that the attestation was in error and the fact that she was unable to produce the relevant instruction book would not cast a doubt on the capacity of the testator or that there was undue influence or that the execution of P1 was fraudulent. The most the said infirmities would point to is a lapse in the formalities to be observed in the execution of a last will. As stated in the course of the judgment in Corea's case (supra) court would always be anxious to give effect to the wishes of the testator. Court could not allow a matter of form to stand in its way, subject however to the condition that essential elements of execution had been fulfilled. However if there is affirmative evidence to show that there was no due execution Court would no doubt hold against the will even though the will was the act and deed of a free and capable testator.

Given the other circumstances of the case, contradictions regarding the place of execution and attestation of the will were considered "minor discrepancies" in Wijewardena v. Soysa [2002] 1 Sri LR 50. Vide also Wijewardena v. Ellawala [1991] 2 Sri LR 14.

The District Judge rejected the evidence of the first attesting witness of the will, namely Farook, on the sole basis that he could not identify the signature of the deceased although he had stated that he knew the deceased for about 20 years. The District Judge considers this as a suspicious circumstance. According to the evidence of this witness, which I read, he has never stated that he could not identify the signature of the deceased on the will. What he has stated is that the deceased signed the will in front of him and thereafter he signed it, and that was the first occasion on which he saw the deceased signing a document. His evidence was that he had been meeting the deceased during their regular encounters, particularly at the club where they met in the evenings. There was no opportunity for the witness to see him signing documents. It cannot be regarded as a suspicious circumstance.

The second attesting witness is Rita. She was a clerk of the notary. Her evidence was that she knew Farook since he used to come to the notary's office in relation to some other Court cases. The notary is also an Attorney-at-Law. She also says that the deceased testator also came on some occasions to meet the notary to the office. The day on which the last will was signed she was asked by the testator to sign the will as an attesting witness which she agreed with the consent of the notary. This is not an unusual practice or illegal practice. This happens in notarial practice. The District Judge disbelieved the witness because she was a clerk of the notary. This is unacceptable.

I accept that when there are suspicious circumstances, the mere proof of compliance with the statutory requirements itself is not sufficient to prove a will.

Sir John Woodroffe and Amir Ali's Law of Evidence, Volume 3 (Edited by M.L. Singhal, 15th Edition, 1991) states at page 603 that:

> under ordinary circumstances, the competency of a testator will be presumed, if nothing appears to rebut the ordinary presumption; ordinarily, therefore, proof of execution of the will is enough. But where the mental capacity of the testator is challenged by evidence which shows that it is (to say the least) very doubtful whether his state of mind was such that he could have duly executed the will, as he is alleged to have done, the Court ought to find whether upon the evidence the testator was of sound disposing mind and did know and approve of the contents of the will.

This requirement is not confined to the testamentary capacity only. It is applicable in all instances where there is suspicion surrounding the will.

However, in this case there are no suspicious circumstances to hold against the will.

The failure to name the Appellant as a party to the main case

Let me now turn to the additional points the Appellant relies on before this Court to say that the last will is suspicious.

The main additional ground is that the Respondent filed the application seeking probate in the District Court without making any intestate heirs parties to the application. The Respondent filed the action on the basis that the Respondent is the sole heir of the deceased and that to her knowledge no one would object to her being granted probate. This is not a suspicious circumstance. This is not against the law either.

At the time the application was made to the District Court (i.e. on 28.03.1990) there was no express provision in the Civil Procedure Code to make intestate heirs as parties to the application.

However, section 524(1) of the Civil Procedure Code required inter alia to name "the heirs of the deceased to the best of the petitioner's knowledge" in the body of the application.

Section 525(1) at that time provided that "If the petitioner has no reason to suppose that his application will be opposed by any person, he shall file with his petition an affidavit to that effect and may omit to name any person in his petition as Respondent."

The said requirement in section 524(1) was taken away by the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, No. 14 of 1993.

Section 525(1) was also repealed and reintroduced as section 524(5) by the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, No. 14 of 1993.

Section 524(5) was repealed, and section 524(1)(bb) which requires the petitioner to name in the body of the petition "the heirs of the deceased to the best of the petitioner's knowledge" was re-introduced by the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, No. 38 of 1998.

Even as the law stands today, in the case of proving a last will, the law does not require the petitioner to name the heirs of the deceased as Respondents to the application.

The failure to name the heirs in the body of the application also will not make the application bad in law per se. Compliance with all the provisions of section 524(1)(a)-(d) is not mandatory but directory. If it is mandatory, for instance, failure to mention one property of the deceased or one heir of the deceased would render the entire proceedings void ab initio. The section requires the heirs of the deceased to be stated in the petition "to the best of the petitioner's knowledge". The language itself gives the indication that it is not mandatory. If the petitioner is a stranger to the family and has no personal knowledge of the heirs of the deceased, for instance, he will not be able to list out the names of the heirs of the deceased. Hence as was held in Biyanwila v. Amarasekere (1965) 67 NLR 488 and Pieris v. Wijeratne [2000] 2 Sri LR 145, the provisions of section 524(1)(a)-(d) are directory. However, willful suppression of material particulars will not be tolerated by Court. It is in this context that Sirimane J. in the Biyanwila case stated at 494 "I am of the view that the provisions of this section [524] are only directory, and that a failure to strictly comply with those provisions, does not render the proceedings void ab initio. They are, however, voidable, and in an appropriate case a party may ask the court for relief under section 839 of the Civil Procedure Code." Referring to the failure to name heirs as parties to the application for probate, in the Supreme Court case of Actalina Fonseka v. Dharshani Fonseka [1989] 2 Sri LR 95 at 99, Kulatunga J. stated "However, such failure is a relevant fact in determining whether probate had been obtained by fraud."

These observations have no practical relevance to the instant appeal. In the instant case, upon order nisi being published in the newspapers, the Appellant intervened in the action and contested the Respondent's case.

Conclusion

In the circumstances of this case, there is hardly anything significant to cast any suspicion on the will. There are no legitimate doubts. The circumstances suggested as being suspicious are all capable of natural explanation. The due execution of the will had been proved by the evidence of the notary who drew it and the two attesting witnesses who signed it. The Appellant objected to the will on the sole basis that the will is a forgery. This was never established by the Appellant when the initial burden was discharged by the Respondent.

I answer the question of law whether the Court of Appeal erred in law and fact in overturning the judgment of the District Court and holding that the last will is the act and deed of the deceased testator in the negative and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Murdu N.B. Fernando, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

M.M.M. Ashar,
No. 49/1A,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Plaintiff

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL/171/2019
SC LA NO: SC/HCCA/LA/59/2018
HCCA MT. LAVINIA NO: WP/HCCA/MT. LAV/88/14/F
DC MT. LAVINIA NO: 2379/07/L

Vs.

T.H. Kareem,
No. 49/1B,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Defendant

AND BETWEEN

T.H. Kareem,
No. 49/1B,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Defendant-Appellant

Vs.

M.M.M. Ashar,
No. 49/1A,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Plaintiff-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

M.M.M. Ashar,
No. 49/1A,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant

Vs.

T.H. Kareem,
No. 49/1B,
Kawdana Road,
Dehiwala.
Defendant-Appellant-Respondent

Before: P. Padman Surasena, J.
A.L. Shiran Gooneratne, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

Counsel: Lasitha Kanuwanaarachchi with Darshani Gampalage and Nipunika Rajakaruna for the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant.

H. Withanachchi with Shantha Karunadhara for the Defendant-Appellant-Respondent.

Argued on: 10.11.2022

Written submissions:

by the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant on 01.06.2020.
by the Defendant-Appellant-Respondent on 23.04.2021.

Decided on: 22.05.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

Introduction

As crystalised in the issues, the plaintiff filed this action in the District Court of Mount Lavinia seeking a declaration of title to, ejectment of the defendant from, the land described in the second schedule to the plaint (which is part of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint), and damages. The defendant claimed prescriptive title to the land described in the second schedule to the plaint. After trial, the District Court entered judgment for the plaintiff. On appeal, the High Court of Civil Appeal of Mount Lavinia set aside the judgment of the District Court purely on the basis that the plaintiff did not prove title to the entirety of the land but only to 11/12 shares of the land. This appeal by the plaintiff is against the judgment of the High Court.

This Court has granted leave to appeal to the plaintiff on the following two questions of law:

(a) Did the High Court fail to consider that the defendant having entered the premises as a licensee of the plaintiff's predecessor in title cannot deny the ownership of the plaintiff?

(b) Did the High Court err in law by failing to consider that the defendant being a trespasser could be ejected even by a co-owner?

Thereafter, the defendant has framed the following two questions of law:

(a) Is the plaintiff entitled to seek ejectment of the defendant from the land described in the second schedule to the plaint without establishing that the land described in the second schedule to the plaint is part of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint?
(b) If the plaintiff failed to establish it, has the plaintiff's action been correctly dismissed by the High Court?

The District Court arrived at the finding that the defendant came into occupation of the house standing on the land in suit as a licensee of the father of Sithi Nazmy, namely Anzar, and continued in that capacity under Sithi Nazmy as well. It is from Sithi Nazmy the plaintiff purchased the land by the deed marked at the trial P3. The defendant in several places in his evidence admitted that he came into occupation of the house standing on the land described in the second schedule to the plaint at the invitation of Anzar, until Anzar repaid the money owed to him, and thereafter he has continued to occupy the house until now. The defendant has come into occupation of the house in 1978. The District Court dismissed the defendant's claim of prescriptive title to the property. The High Court did not state that the finding of the District Court that the defendant did not succeed in his claim of prescriptive title was erroneous. The High Court did not interfere with that finding at all.

The defendant cannot dispute the title of the plaintiff to the land

A defendant who enters into a land in a subordinate character such as a tenant, lessee or licensee of the plaintiff is estopped from disputing the title of the plaintiff to the land. Section 116 of the Evidence Ordinance enacts:

> No tenant of immovable property, or person claiming through such tenant, shall during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immovable property; and no person who came upon any immovable property by the licence of the person in possession thereof shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such licence was given.

One of the reasons for this fetter is that a person need not necessarily be the owner of the subject matter to enter into such agreements with another. Despite want of ownership, such agreements create valid legal relationships such as landlord and tenant, lessor and lessee, licensor and licensee between them although they are not binding on the real owner. Vide Imbuldeniya v. De Silva [1987] 1 Sri LR 367, Gunasekera v. Jinadasa [1996] 2 Sri LR 115 at 120, Pinona v. Dewanarayana [2004] 2 Sri LR 11.

In Ruberu v. Wijesooriya [1998] 1 Sri LR 58 at 60, Gunawardana J. held:

> Whether it is a licensee or a lessee, the question of title is foreign to a suit in ejectment against either. The licensee (the defendant-respondent) obtaining possession is deemed to obtain it upon the terms that he will not dispute the title of him, i.e. the plaintiff-appellant without whose permission, he (the defendant-respondent) would not have got it. The effect of the operation of section 116 of the Evidence Ordinance is that if a licensee desires to challenge the title under which he is in occupation he must, first, quit the land. The fact that the licensee or the lessee obtained possession from the plaintiff-appellant is perforce an admission of the fact that the title resides in the plaintiff. No question of title can possibly arise on the pleadings > in this case, because, as the defendant-respondent has stated in his answer that he is a lessee under the plaintiff-appellant, he is estopped from denying the title of the plaintiff-appellant. It is an inflexible rule of law that no lessee or licensee will ever be permitted either to question the title of the person who gave him the lease or the licence or the permission to occupy or possess the land or to set up want of title in that person, i.e. of the person who gave the licence or the lease. That being so, it is superfluous, in this action, framed as it is on the basis that the defendant-respondent is a licensee, to seek a declaration of title.

As was held by the Supreme Court in Reginald Fernando v. Pubilinahamy [2005] 1 Sri LR 31:

> Where the plaintiff (licensor) established that the defendant was a licensee, the plaintiff is entitled to take steps for ejectment of the defendant whether or not the plaintiff was the owner of the land.

Vide also Gunasinghe v. Samarasundara [2004] 3 Sri LR 28, Dharmasiri v. Wickrematunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218.

In a declaration of title action which is not a rei vindicatio proper and which is filed against a defendant such as a licensee or a tenant to recover possession, the plaintiff need not prove title to the land against the defendant. In such actions, the title is presumed to be with the plaintiff. Put differently, the defendant in such actions cannot frustrate the plaintiff's action on the basis that the plaintiff is not the owner of the property.

The present action is not a rei vindicatio action proper but a declaration of title action. Hence, the High Court is clearly wrong to have set aside the judgment of the District Court on the basis that the plaintiff does not have title to the entirety of the land but only to 11/12 shares of the land.

Once the Court decides that the defendant is a licensee of the plaintiff, and his prescriptive title is unsustainable, whether the plaintiff is the owner of the entire land or part of it or has no title at all is irrelevant.

Can a defendant who enters into a land in a subordinate character claim title to the land?

According to the Roman Dutch Law principles, a defendant who enters into a land in a subordinate character such as a lessee, licensee, tenant, mortgagee etc. cannot claim title to the land; if he wants to do so, he must first quit the land and then fight for his rights.

Voet 19.2.32 (Voet's commentary on the Pandects as translated by Percival Gane, Butterworth & Co. (Africa) Ltd 1956, Vol. 3, at page 447) states:

> Lessee cannot dispute lessor's title, tho' third party can. Nor can the setting up of an exception of ownership by the lessee stay this restoration of the property leased, even though perhaps the proof of ownership would be easy for the lessee. He ought in every event to give back the possession first, and then litigate about the proprietorship.

Maasdorp's Institutes of South African Law, Vol. III, 8th Edition (1970), p. 185 states:

> A lessee, as already stated, is not entitled to dispute his landlord's title, and consequently he cannot refuse to give up possession of the property at the termination of his lease on the ground that he is himself the rightful owner of it. His duty in such a case is first to restore the property to the lessor and then to bring an action for a declaration of rights.

In Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR 169 at 173 Gratiaen J. stated:

> The scope of an action by a lessor against an overholding lessee for restoration and ejectment, however, is different. Privity of contract (whether it be by original agreement or by attornment) is the foundation of the right to relief and issues as to title are irrelevant to the proceedings. Indeed, a lessee who has entered into occupation is precluded from disputing his lessor's title until he has first restored the property in fulfilment of his contractual obligation. "The lessee (conductor) cannot plead the exceptio dominii, although he may be able easily to prove his own ownership, but he must by all means first surrender his possession and then litigate as to proprietorship…" Voet 19.2.32.

In Alvar Pillai v. Karuppan (1899) 4 NLR 321, the plaintiff sued the defendant to recover possession of the entire land on the basis that the term of lease had expired. The defendant refused to give up possession of the whole land on the basis that he was the tenant under the plaintiff only for a half of the said land. He set up a title under another person to the other half. Although the defendant was placed in possession by the plaintiff on the whole land, the District Judge entered judgment for the plaintiff only for his half share. On appeal, Bonser C.J. at page 322 stated:

> Now, it appears that the plaintiff can only prove title to a half of the land. It is not necessary for the purposes of this case to state the devolution of the title, for even though the ownership of one-half of this land were in the defendant himself, it would seem that by our law, having been let into possession of the whole by the plaintiff, it is not open to him to refuse to give up possession to his lessor at the expiration of his lease. He must first give up possession, and then it > will be open to him to litigate about the ownership (see Voet XIX. 2. 32).

In Mary Beatrice v. Seneviratne [1997] 1 Sri LR 197 the Court took the same view.

In the Supreme Court case of Wimala Perera v. Kalyani Sriyalatha [2011] 1 Sri LR 182 it was held:

> A lessee is not entitled to dispute his landlord's title by refusing to give up possession of the property at the termination of his lease on the ground that he acquired certain rights to the property subsequent to him becoming the lessee and during the period of tenancy. He must first give up possession and then litigate about the ownership he alleges.

However, if an action is filed for ejectment against such defendant who originally entered into possession in a subordinate character claims prescriptive title to the property (which is an overly onerous task) by stating that he changed the character of possession from subordinate to adverse by explicit overt act (as the starting point of adverse possession) and continued such adverse possession for over 10 years as required by section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance, the rigidity of the said principle can be relaxed. In such a situation, the defendant cannot be directed to first surrender his possession in order for him to establish his prescriptive title.

Professor G.L. Peiris in his book Law of Property in Sri Lanka, Vol. I, 2nd Edition (1983), p.112, citing inter alia Angohamy v. Appoo (Morgan's Digest 281), Government Agent, Western Province v. Perera (1908) 11 NLR 337, Alwis v. Perera (1919) 21 NLR 321 states: "The principle that an occupation which began in a dependent or subordinate capacity can be converted into "adverse possession" by an overt act or a series of acts indicative of a challenge to the owner's title, is clearly deducible from the decided cases."

The presumption is that a person who commences his possession in a subordinate character continues such possession in that character. In order to show change of the character of possession, cogent and affirmative evidence is required.

In Ran Naide v. Punchi Banda (1930) 31 NLR 478, Jayawardene A.J. observed:

> Where a person who has obtained possession of a land of another in a subordinate character, as for example as a tenant or mortgagee, seeks to utilize that possession as the foundation of a title by prescription, he must show that by some overt act known to the person under whom he possesses he has got rid of that subordinate possession and commenced to use and occupy the property ut dominus (Government Agent v. Ismail Lebbe (1908) 2 Weer. 29). It is for him to show that his quasi-fiduciary position was changed by some overt act of possession. This view was adopted by the Privy Council in Naguda Marikar v. Mohamadu (1903) 7 N.L.R. 91) and also by the Supreme Court in Orloff v. Grebe (1907) 10 N.L.R. 183).

In Seeman v. David [2000] 3 Sri LR 23 at 26, Weerasuriya J. stated:

> It is well settled law that a person who entered property in a subordinate character cannot claim prescriptive rights till he changes his character by an overt act. He is not entitled to do so by forming a secret intention unaccompanied by an act of ouster. The proof of adverse possession is a condition precedent to the claim for prescriptive rights.

Vide also Thillekeratne v. Bastian (1918) 21 NLR 12 at 19 and Mitrapala v. Tikonis Singho [2005] 1 Sri LR 206 at 211-212.

In the case of De Soysa v. Fonseka (1957) 58 NLR 501 at 502, Basnayake C.J. held:

> There is no evidence that the user which commenced with the leave and licence of the owner of No. 18 was at any time converted to an adverse user. When a user commences with leave and licence the presumption is that its continuance rests on the permission originally granted. Clear and unmistakable evidence of the commencement of an adverse user thereafter for the prescribed period is necessary to entitle the claimant to a decree in his favour. There is no such evidence in the instant case.

In the Privy Council case of Siyaneris v. Jayasinghe Udenis de Silva (1951) 52 NLR page 289, it was held:

> If a person goes into possession of land as an agent for another, prescription does not begin to run until he has made it manifest that he is holding adversely to his principal.

In Naguda Marikar v. Mohammadu (1898) 7 NLR 91, the Privy Council held that in the absence of any evidence to show that the plaintiff had got rid of his character of agent, he was not entitled to the benefit of section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance.

In the case of Navaratne v. Jayatunge (1943) 44 NLR 517, Howard C.J. remarked:

> The defendant entered into possession of the lands in dispute with the consent and the permission of the owner. Being a licensee, she cannot get rid of this character unless she does some overt act showing an intention to possess adversely.

In a more recent of Ameen and Another v. Ammavasi Ramu (SC/APPEAL/232/2017, SC Minutes of 22.01.2019), one of the questions to be decided was whether the defendant who was a licensee was entitled to put forward a plea of prescription. De Abrew A.C.J. (with M.N.B. Fernando J. and Amarasekera J. agreeing) stated:

> When a person starts possessing an immovable property with leave and licence of the owner, the presumption is that he continues to possess the immovable property on the permission originally granted and such a person or his agents or heirs cannot claim prescriptive title against the owner or his heirs on the basis of the period he possessed the property.

The defendant is a trespasser

Admittedly, the plaintiff in the instant action, having 11/12 shares in the land, is a co-owner of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint, whereas the defendant, having failed his prescriptive claim to a portion of the land, has no rights in the land. The defendant is a trespasser.

A co-owner can sue a trespasser

A co-owner can sue a trespasser to have his title to the undivided share declared and for ejectment of the trespasser from the whole land.

In the leading case of Hevawitarane v. Dangan Rubber Co. Ltd. (1913) 17 NLR 49 at 53 Wood Renton A.C.J. declared:

> Any co-owner, or party claiming under such a co-owner, is entitled to eject a trespasser from the whole of the common property. (Unus Lebbe v. Zayee (1893) 3 SCR 56, Greta v. Fernando (1905) 4 Bal. 100) Moreover, prima facie evidence of title is all that is required in such an action.

It may be noted that, when it comes to a trespasser, Wood Renton A.C.J. remarked that "prima facie evidence of title is all that is required in such an action." In the same case, Pereira J. stated at page 55:

> As regards the rights of owners of undivided shares of land to sue trespassers, I have always understood the law, both before and after the coming into operation of the Civil Procedure Code, to be that the owner of an undivided share of land might sue a trespasser to have his title to the undivided share declared and for ejectment of the trespasser from the whole land, the reason for this latter right being that the owner of the undivided share has an interest in every part and portion of the entire land (see section 12, Civil Procedure Code; Unus Lebbe v. Zayee (1893) 3 SCR 56; Greta v. Fernando (1905) 4 Bal. 100; Arnolisa v. Dissan 4 NLR 163).

In Hariette v. Pathmasiri [1996] 1 Sri LR 358 at 362 and Attanayake v. Ramyawathie [2003] 1 Sri LR 401 at 403 the Supreme Court quoted the said principle of law with approval. This was reiterated in several decisions including Rosalin Hami v. Hewage Hami and Others (SC/APPEAL/15/2008, SC Minutes of 03.12.2010) and Punchiappuhamy v. Dingiribanda (SC/APPEAL/4/2010, SC Minutes of 02.11.2015).

The greater includes the less

In the impugned judgment of the High Court, the High Court refers to Hevawitarane v. Dangan Rubber Co. Ltd. (supra) to reiterate the well-settled law that a co-owner can sue a trespasser to have his title to the undivided share declared and for ejectment of the trespasser from the whole land but refuses to apply this principle in this action stating that the plaintiff filed the action seeking a declaration of title to the entire land. This is a wrong approach.

Firstly, a careful reading of the prayer to the plaint will reveal that the plaintiff filed this action seeking a declaration of the plaintiff's title to the land and not seeking a declaration of title to the entire land. ("පහත 02 වන උපලේඛනයේ විස්තර වන ඉඩම සහ දේපළ තුළ පැමිනිලිකරුගේ අයිතිය ප්‍රකාශ කරන ලෙසත්")

Secondly, even if the plaintiff sought a declaration of title to the entire land, if the Court finds that the plaintiff is not entitled to the entire land but only to a portion of it, the Court need not dismiss the plaintiff's action in toto.

It is a recognised principle that when a plaintiff has asked for a greater relief than he is entitled to, it should not prevent him from getting the lesser relief which he is actually entitled to. Non debet cui plus licet quod minus est non licere, also known as, Cui licet quod majus non debet quod minus est non licere: the greater includes the less. This is a well-established principle in law and also in consonance with common sense. Vide King v. Kalu Banda (1912) 15 NLR 422 at 427, Rodrigo v. Abdul Rahman (1935) 37 NLR 298 at 299, Police Sergeant, Hambantota v. Simon Silva (1939) 40 NLR 534 at 538, Ibealebbe v. The Queen (1963) 65 NLR 433 at 435, Abeynayake v. Lt. Gen. Rohan Daluwatte and Others [1998] 2 Sri LR 47 at 55, Bulankulama and Others v. Secretary, Ministry of Industrial Development and Others [2000] 3 Sri LR 243 at 260-261, Attanayake v. Ramyawathie [2003] 1 Sri LR 401 at 409.

In rei vindicatio actions, defendants tend to rely on Hariette v. Pathmasiri (supra) to argue that when a plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action seeks a declaration of title to the entire land, his action must fail if he fails to prove that he is the sole owner of the entire land. This is a misinterpretation of the judgment. In Hariette's case the Supreme Court at pages 362-363 held as follows:

However, it has to be borne in mind that our law recognizes the right of a co-owner to sue a trespasser to have his title to an undivided share declared and for ejectment of the trespasser from the whole land. In the case of Hevawitarana v. Dangan Rubber Co. Ltd 17 NLR 44 at 55, Pereira, J. stated as follows:-

"I have always understood the law, both before and after the coming into operation of the Civil Procedure Code, to be that the owner of an undivided share of land might sue a trespasser to have his title to the undivided share declared and for ejectment of the trespasser from the whole land, the reason for this latter right being that the owner of the undivided share has an interest in every part and portion of the entire land".

In this case the Plaintiff is not seeking a declaration of title to her undivided share in the land described in schedule 1 and for the ejectment of the Defendant from that land. She has pleaded that she possessed the land described in schedule 2 for and in lieu of her undivided share and seeks the ejectment of the Defendant from that land. Therefore the case for the Plaintiff cannot stop at adducing evidence of paper title to an undivided share. It was her burden to adduce evidence of exclusive possession and the acquisition of prescriptive title by ouster in respect of the smaller land described in schedule 2.

Since the prescriptive title to schedule 2 has not been proved by the plaintiff, the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the Court of Appeal and dismissed the appeal.

If I may repeat for emphasis, in Hariette's case the plaintiff sought to eject the defendant from the portion of land described in the second schedule to the plaint (which was part of the larger land described in the first schedule to the plaint) on the basis that she possessed the portion of the land described in the second schedule to the plaint in lieu of her undivided shares described in the first schedule to the plaint. The Supreme Court held that the plaintiff failed to establish that she acquired prescriptive title to that portion of land by ouster and therefore the plaintiff's action cannot succeed.

Hariette's case was followed by the Supreme Court in Attanayake v. Ramyawathie [2003] 1 Sri LR 401 where facts were similar. The Supreme Court at page 403 summarised the issue in that case in the following manner:

> It was agreed by both counsel at the hearing, that the only issue that has to be gone into is whether a co-owner of a land who sues a trespasser for a declaration of title and ejectment is entitled to maintain the action if he instituted action as the sole owner of the premises.

This question was answered emphatically in the affirmative. Bandaranayake J. (later C.J.) stated at page 409:

> I am of the firm view that, if an appellant had asked for a greater relief than he is entitled to, the mere claim for a greater share in the land should not prevent him, having a judgment in his favour for a lesser share in the land. A claim for a greater relief than entitled to should not prevent an appellant from getting a lesser relief. However, it is necessary that the appellant adduces evidence of ownership for the portion of land he is claiming for a declaration of title. It is amply clear that the appellant in the instant case has not been able to adduce such evidence.
>
> In such circumstances the question raised by the counsel for the appellant is answered in the following terms. A co-owner of a land who > sues a trespasser for a declaration of title and ejectment is entitled to maintain the action even if he instituted the action as the sole owner of the land and premises. The fact that an appellant has asked for greater relief than he is entitled to, should not prevent him from getting the lesser relief which he is entitled to.

However, as in Attanayake's case, the Supreme Court was not inclined to grant relief to the plaintiff-appellant because the plaintiff failed to prove that he was entitled to the land described in schedule B to the plaint. The reason was that the plaintiff sought a declaration of title and ejectment of the defendant from the land described in schedule B to the plaint.

> The facts in the present case are very much similar to that of Harriette's case. As referred to earlier in the instant case the appellant (the original plaintiff) had instituted action in the District Court for a declaration of title and for ejectment from the land morefully described in the Schedule B to the plaint of the respondent therefrom. [page 406] However, it is necessary that the appellant adduces evidence of ownership for the portion of land he is claiming for a declaration of title. It is amply clear that the appellant in the instant case has not been able to adduce such evidence. [page 409]

These two judgments (Hariette v. Pathmasiri and Attanayake v. Ramyawathie) unequivocally admit that a co-owner is entitled to:

(a) file an action seeking a declaration to his undivided rights of the land and ejectment of a trespasser from the whole land; and

(b) successfully sue a trespasser for a declaration of title and ejectment notwithstanding that he instituted the action as the sole owner of the premises. This latter entitlement is based on the common-sense principle that the greater includes the less.

If a co-owner of a land as the plaintiff can successfully sue a trespasser for ejectment from the whole land notwithstanding that he initially instituted the action as the sole owner of the land based on the common-sense principle that the greater includes the less, the plaintiff's action in my view cannot and should not be dismissed if he seeks to eject a trespasser from an identified portion of the whole land on the basis that he filed the action as the sole owner of the identified portion of the land but he is in fact a co-owner of that identified portion of the land. In such an event, the Court can declare that the plaintiff is a co-owner of the whole land or of that identified portion of the land and eject the trespasser on that basis.

Why reluctant to apply "the greater includes the less"?

Two main reasons why some judges and lawyers think that the general principle "the greater includes the less" is inapplicable in rei vindicatio actions seem to be:

(a) No Court can grant relief to a party what has not been prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings. In other words, the Court can grant reliefs only in the manner prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings (plaint/answer/replication etc) – neither more nor less.
(b) In a rei vindicatio action, the plaintiff must prove title of the property strictly in the exact manner pleaded in the plaint.

Can the Court grant relief not prayed for in the pleadings?

The popular view that no Court can grant relief what has not been prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings (Surangi v. Rodrigo [2003] 3 Sri LR 35, Sopi Nona v. Karunadasa [2005] 3 Sri LR 237) is not an absolute rule of law.

Even if a particular relief has not been prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings, if it has been raised as an issue that has been accepted by Court, the Court cannot refuse to grant the relief on the basis that it has not been prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings.

A case is not tried on the pleadings or on the reliefs as prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings but on issues raised and accepted by Court on which the right decision of the case appears to Court to depend. Once issues are raised and accepted by Court the pleadings (which include reliefs prayed) have no place; they recede to the background. Hence, what has been prayed for in the prayer to the pleadings is not decisive. Vide Hanaffi v. Nallamma [1998] 1 Sri LR 73 at 77, Dharmasiri v. Wickrematunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218, Gunasinghe v. Samarasundara [2004] 3 Sri LR 28, Kulatunga v. Ranaweera [2005] 2 Sri LR 197, Peiris v. Siripala [2009] 1 Sri LR 75 at 78.

In Begum Sabiha Sultan v. Nawab Mohd. Mansur Ali Khan & Ors (Appeal Civil 1921 of 2007 decided on 12.04.2007), the Supreme Court of India stated:

> There is no doubt that at the stage of consideration of the return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code, what is to be looked into is the plaint and the averments therein. At the same time, it is also necessary to read the plaint in a meaningful manner to find out the real intention behind the suit. In Messrs Moolji Jaitha & Co. Vs. The Khandesh Spinning & Weaving Mills Co. Ltd. [A.I.R. 1950 Federal Court 83], the Federal Court observed that: "The nature of the suit and its purpose have to be determined by reading the plaint as a whole."
>
> It was further observed:

"The inclusion or absence of a prayer is not decisive of the true nature of the suit, nor is the order in which the prayers are arrayed in the plaint. The substance or object of the suit has to be gathered from the averments made in the plaint and on which the reliefs asked in the prayers are based."

It was further observed:

"It must be borne in mind that the function of a pleading is only to state material facts and it is for the court to determine the legal result of those facts and to mould the relief in accordance with that result."

This position was reiterated by this Court in T. Arivandandam Vs. T.V. Satyapal & Anr. (1978) 1 S.C.R. 742 by stating that what was called for was a meaningful – not formal – reading of the plaint and any illusion created by clever drafting of the plaint should be buried then and there.

In the Supreme Court case of Actalina Fonseka v. Dharshani Fonseka [1989] 2 Sri LR 95 at 100, Kulatunga J. observed: "The law does not require that the plaint should make out a prima facie case which is what the defendants-appellants appear to insist on, nor are the plaintiffs required to state their evidence by which the claim would be proved."

In Jane Nona v. Padmakumara [2003] 2 Sri LR 118 the question was whether the Court can grant relief for ejectment when there was no such specific relief prayed for in the prayer to the plaint. The Court answered this in the affirmative on the basis that when the plaintiff averred in the body of the plaint that a cause of action has accrued to him to obtain an order of peaceful possession of the land and damages, and prayed that he be granted damages until possession is restored to him, it is implicit that the plaintiff seeks ejectment as well.

In Weerasinghe v. Heling and Others (SC/APPEAL/91/2013, SC Minutes of 26.02.2020) the question was whether the plaintiff could seek ejectment of the defendants from the land in suit without a specific prayer for declaration of title. This Court answered it in the affirmative. De Abrew J. citing with approval Jayasinghe v. Tikiri Banda [1988] 2 CALR 24, Dharmasiri v. Wickramatunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218 and Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR 169 held "in an action for ejectment of the defendant from the property in dispute, once the plaintiff's title to the property is proved, he (the plaintiff) is entitled to ask for ejectment of the defendant from the property even though there is no prayer in the plaint for a declaration of title."

In Jayasinghe v. Tikiri Banda [1988] 2 CALR 24 Viknaraja J. held "where title to the property has been proved, as in this case the fact that one had failed to ask for a declaration of title to the property will not prevent one from claiming the relief of ejectment."

What is important is whether the relief has been sought in the pleadings and not whether the relief has been sought in the prayer to the pleadings.

In Dharmasiri v. Wickramatunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218 the plaintiff sought ejectment of the defendant but there was no prayer for a declaration of title. However the Court held that the absence of a specific prayer for a declaration of title causes no prejudice if the title is pleaded in the body of the plaint and issues are framed and accepted by Court on the title so pleaded.

In Charlot Nona v. Kuruppu (SC/APPEAL/54/2011, SC Minutes of 17.06.2015), the High Court had dismissed the application for leave to appeal on the basis that in the prayer to the petition there was no such relief sought. On appeal, the Supreme Court set aside the judgment of the High Court holding that the absence of a specific prayer for leave to appeal cannot be considered as a ground for dismissal of an application for leave to appeal when such petition contains a statement in the body of the petition moving the Court to grant leave to appeal.

This position can also be defended from a different point of view. Maasdorp's Institutes of South African Law, Vol II, 8th Edition (1960), p. 27) states the rights of an owner are "comprised under three heads, namely, (1) the right of possession and the right to recover possession; (2) the right of use and enjoyment; and (3) the right of disposition". He goes on to say that "these three factors are all essential to the idea of ownership but need not all be present in an equal degree at one and the same time".

As stated in K.J. Aiyar's Judicial Dictionary, 11th Edition (1995), page 833, it is not possible to give a comprehensive definition to the rights of ownership. Traditionally, those rights include:

> Jus utendi – the right to use of the thing
> Jus possidendi – the right to possess a thing
> Jus abutendi – the right to consume or destroy a thing
> Jus despondendi vei transferendi – the right to dispose of a thing or to transfer it as by sale, gift, exchange etc.
> Jus sibi habendi – the right to hold a thing for oneself
> Jus alteri non habendi or Jus prohibendi – the right to exclude others from its use

In a rei vindicatio action, if the Court holds with the plaintiff, the Court accepts that he is the owner of the property. The owner of the property has the inherent right to possess the property. In other words, the right to possession is an essential attribute of ownership. Hence the plaintiff automatically gets the entitlement to the right to possession whether or not he has prayed for ejectment in the prayer to the plaint once the Court decides that he is the owner of the property. Vide Kamalawathie v. Premarathne (SC/APPEAL/118/2018, SC Minutes of 2.6.2021).

In Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR 169 at 172 Gratiaen J. held "In a rei vindicatio action proper the owner of immovable property is entitled, on proof of his title, to a decree in his favour for the recovery of the property and for the ejectment of the person in wrongful occupation."

Let me also add that even if an issue or issues have not been raised using the real legal terms, if the issue or issues raised in fact cover the situation intended by the legal terms, the Court cannot be found fault with for granting the relief using the legal term. In Pushpakumara v. Marmet [2003] 2 Sri LR 244 the District Court inter alia granted divorce on the ground of malicious desertion despite there being no issue framed on malicious desertion. When this matter was raised on appeal, the finding was upheld on the basis that "Despite the fact that the legal term malicious desertion is not referred to in the said issue however the issue raises the factual question as to whether the 1st defendant-respondent's conduct amounted to constructive malicious desertion."

As has been stated by Suresh Chandra J. in the case of Elias v. Gajasinghe (SC/APPEAL/50/08, SC Minutes of 28.06.2011):

> For the proper dispensation of justice, raising of technical objections should be discouraged and parties should be encouraged to seek justice by dealing with the merits of cases. Raising of such technical objections and dealing with them and the subsequent challenges on them to the superior courts takes up so much time and adds up to the delay and the backlog of cases pending in Courts. Very often the dealing of such technicalities become only an academic exercise with which the litigants would not be interested. The delay in dispensation of justice can be minimized if parties are discouraged > from taking up technical objections which takes up valuable judicial time. What is important for litigants would be their aspiration to get justice from courts on merits rather than on technicalities. As has often been quoted it must be remembered that Courts of law are Courts of justice and not academies of law.

Courts should not be swayed by high-flown technical objections in meting out substantive justice to litigants unless such objections shatter the very foundation of the case.

In a rei vindicatio action: Who has the onus of proof?
What is the standard of proof?
Is strict proof of title in the manner pleaded in the plaint necessary?

The High Court states that since this is a declaration of title action, the plaintiff must prove title to the land in the manner she has pleaded in the plaint.

As I have already adverted to, there is a distinction between a rei vindicatio action proper and a declaration of title action. The present action is not a rei vindicatio action proper but a declaration of title action. The distinction between the two was lucidly explained by Gratian J. in Pathirana v. Jayasundara (supra) at 172-173:

> In a rei vindicatio action proper the owner of immovable property is entitled, on proof of his title, to a decree in his favour for the recovery of the property and for the ejectment of the person in wrongful occupation. "The plaintiff's ownership of the thing is of the very essence of the action". Maasdorp's Institutes (7th Ed.) Vol. 2, 96.
>
> The scope of an action by a lessor against an overholding lessee for restoration and ejectment, however, is different. Privity of contract

(whether it be by original agreement or by attornment) is the foundation of the right to relief and issues as to title are irrelevant to the proceedings. Indeed, a lessee who has entered into occupation is precluded from disputing his lessor's title until he has first restored the property in fulfilment of his contractual obligation. "The lessee (conductor) cannot plead the exceptio dominii, although he may be able easily to prove his own ownership, but he must by all means first surrender his possession and then litigate as to proprietorship…" Voet 19.2.32.

Both these forms of action referred to are no doubt designed to secure the same primary relief, namely, the recovery of property. But the cause of action in one case is the violation of the plaintiff's rights of ownership, in the other it is the breach of the lessee's contractual obligation.

A decree for a declaration of title may, of course, be obtained by way of additional relief either in a rei vindicatio action proper (which is in truth an action in rem) or in a lessor's action against his overholding tenant (which is an action in personam). But in the former case, the declaration is based on proof of ownership; in the latter, on proof of the contractual relationship which forbids a denial that the lessor is the true owner.

Even if this is a rei vindicatio action proper, there is no necessity to prove the title of the plaintiff exactly in the same manner which the plaintiff has pleaded in the plaint. For instance, if the plaintiff in the plaint pleads title relying on one deed but at the trial marks several other deeds and documents (duly listed) to fortify his case, the Court should not disregard such deeds/documents and mechanically dismiss the plaintiff's action on the basis that the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action must prove title strictly in the same manner which he has pleaded in the plaint.

Even in a criminal case or a partition case such stringent procedure is not adopted. This does not mean that a plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action can present a different case at the trial from what he has pleaded in his pleadings. Suffice it to say, even that is possible, if issues are raised in that direction and accepted by Court, for the case is tried not on pleadings but on issues.

The burden of proof and the standard of proof in rei vindicatio actions are overwhelmingly overshadowed by misinterpretations, misconstructions and misunderstandings. Let me elaborate on this as significant portion of the District Court work is on rei vindicatio/declaration of title actions.

In order to succeed in a rei vindicatio action, first and foremost, the plaintiff shall prove his ownership to the property. If he fails to prove it, his action shall fail. This principle is based on the Latin maxim "onus probandi incumbit ei qui agit", which means, the burden of proof lies with the person who brings the action. Section 101 of the Evidence Ordinance is also to a similar effect.

Macdonell C.J. in De Silva v. Goonetilleke (1960) 32 NLR 217 at 219 stated:

> There is abundant authority that a party claiming a declaration of title must have title himself. "To bring the action rei vindicatio plaintiff must have ownership actually vested in him". (1 Nathan p. 362, s. 593.) ... The authorities unite in holding that plaintiff must show title to the corpus in dispute and that if he cannot, the action will not lie.

In Pathirana v. Jayasundera (1955) 58 NLR 169 at 172, Gratiaen J. declared:

> "The plaintiff's ownership of the thing is of the very essence of the action." Maasdorp's Institutes (7th Ed.) Vol. 2, 96.

In Mansil v. Devaya [1985] 2 Sri LR 46, G.P.S. De Silva J. (later C.J.) stated at 51:

> In a rei vindicatio action, on the other hand, ownership is of the essence of the action; the action is founded on ownership.

In Latheef v. Mansoor [2010] 2 Sri LR 333 at 352, Marsoof J. held:

> An important feature of the actio rei vindicatio is that it has to necessarily fail if the plaintiff cannot clearly establish his title.

Having said the above, it needs to be emphasised that the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action has no heavier burden to discharge than a plaintiff in any other civil action. The standard of proof in a rei vindicatio action is on a balance of probabilities.

Professor George Wille, in his monumental work Wille's Principles of South African Law, 9th Edition (2007), states at page 539:

> To succeed with the rei vindicatio, the owner must prove on a balance of probabilities, first, his or her ownership in the property. If a movable is sought to be recovered, the owner must rebut the presumption that the possessor of the movable is the owner thereof. In the case of immovables, it is sufficient as a rule to show that title in the land is registered in his or her name. Secondly, the property must exist, be clearly identifiable and must not have been destroyed or consumed. Money, in the form of coins and banknotes, is not easily identifiable and thus not easily vindicable. Thirdly, the defendant must be in possession or detention of the thing at the moment the action is instituted. The rationale is to ensure that the defendant is in a position to comply with an order for restoration.

In Preethi Anura v. William Silva (SC/APPEAL/116/2014, SC Minutes of 05.06.2017), the plaintiff filed a rei vindicatio action against the defendant seeking a declaration of title to the land in suit and the ejectment of the defendant therefrom. The District Court held with the plaintiff but the High Court of Civil Appeal set aside the judgment of the District Court on the basis that the plaintiff failed to prove title of the land. The plaintiff's title commenced with a statutory determination made under section 19 of the Land Reform Law in favour of his grandmother, who had bequeathed the land by way of a last will to the plaintiff, with the land being later conveyed to the plaintiff by way of an executor's conveyance. No documentary evidence was tendered to establish that the last will was proved in Court and admitted to probate in order to validate the said executor's conveyance. The District Court was satisfied that the said factors were proved by oral evidence but the High Court found the same insufficient to discharge the burden that rests upon a plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action, which the High Court considered to be very heavy. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the High Court and restored the judgment of the District Court, taking the view that the plaintiff had proved title to the land despite the purported shortcomings. In the course of the judgment, Dep C.J. (with De Abrew J. and Jayawardena J. agreeing) remarked:

> In a rei vindicatio action, the plaintiff has to establish the title to the land. Plaintiff need not establish the title with mathematical precision nor to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt as in a criminal case. The plaintiff's task is to establish the case on a balance of probability. In a partition case the situation is different as it is an action in rem and the trial judge is required to carefully examine the title and the devolution of title. This case being a rei vindicatio action this court has to consider whether the plaintiff discharged the burden on balance of probability.

What is the degree of proof expected when the standard of proof is on a balance of probabilities? This is better understood when proof on a balance of probabilities is compared with proof on beyond a reasonable doubt.

On proof beyond a reasonable doubt, in Miller v. Minister of Pensions [1947] 2 All ER 372, Lord Denning declared at 373:

> Proof beyond reasonable doubt does not mean proof beyond the shadow of doubt. The law would fail to protect the community if it admitted fanciful possibilities to deflect the course of justice. If the evidence is so strong against a man as to leave only a remote possibility in his favour which can be dismissed with the sentence "of course it is possible, but not in the least probable," the case is proved beyond reasonable doubt, but nothing short of that will suffice.

In relation to proof on a balance of probabilities, it was stated at 374:

> That degree is well settled. It must carry a reasonable degree of probability, but not so high as is required in a criminal case. If the evidence is such that the tribunal can say: "We think it more probable than not," the burden is discharged, but, if the probabilities are equal, it is not.

In consideration of the degree of proof in a rei vindicatio action, we invariably refer to the seminal judgment of Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR 169. In that case the plaintiff sued the defendant on the basis that the defendant was an overholding lessee. The defendant admitted the bare execution of the lease but stated that the lessors were unable to give him possession of the land. He averred that the land was sold to him by its lawful owner (not one of the lessors) and that by adverse possession from that date he had acquired title by prescription. The plaintiff then sought to amend the plaint by claiming a declaration of title and ejectment on the footing that his rights of ownership had been violated. The Supreme Court held:

> A lessor of property who institutes action on the basis of a cause of action arising from a breach by the defendant of his contractual obligation as lessee is not entitled to amend his plaint subsequently so as to alter the nature of the proceeding to an action rei vindicatio if such a course would prevent or prejudice the setting up by the defendant of a plea of prescriptive title.

In the course of the judgment the Court distinguished an action for declaration of title (based on the contractual relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant) from an action rei vindicatio proper. In general terms, in both actions, a declaration of title is sought – in the former, as a matter of course, without strict proof of title, but in the latter, as a peremptory requirement, with strict proof of title. H.N.G. Fernando J. (later C.J.) at page 171 explained the distinction between the two in this way:

> There is however the further point that the plaintiff in his prayer sought not only ejectment but also a declaration of title, a prayer for which latter relief is probably unusual in an action against an overholding tenant. I have no doubt that it is open to a lessor in an action for ejectment to ask for a declaration of title, but the question of difficulty arises is whether the action thereby becomes a rei vindicatio for which strict proof of the plaintiff's title would be required, or else is merely one for a declaration (without strict proof) of a title which the tenant by law precluded from denying. If the essential element of a rei vindicatio is that the right of ownership must be strictly proved, it is difficult to accept the proposition that an action in which the plaintiff can automatically obtain a declaration > of title through the operation of a rule in estoppel should be regarded as a vindicatory action. The fact that the person in possession of property originally held as lessee would not preclude the lessor-owner from choosing to proceed against him by a rei vindicatio. But this choice can I think be properly exercised only by clearly setting out the claim of title and sounding in delict.

The term "strict proof of the plaintiff's title" used here does not mean that the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action shall prove title beyond a reasonable doubt or a very high degree of proof. The term "strict proof of the plaintiff's title" was used here to distinguish the standard of proof between a declaration of title action based on a contractual relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant such as lessor and lessee, and a rei vindicatio action proper based on ownership of the property. In a rei vindicatio action, if the plaintiff proves on a balance of probabilities that he is the owner, he must succeed.

Professor G.L. Peiris, in his treatise Law of Property in Sri Lanka, Vol I, makes it clear at page 304:

> It must be emphasized, however, that the observations in these cases to the effect that the plaintiff's title must be strictly proved in a rei vindicatio, cannot be accepted as containing the implication that a standard of exceptional stringency applies in this context. An extremely exacting standard is insisted upon in certain categories of action such as partition actions. … It is clear that a standard characterized by this degree of severity does not apply to the proof of a plaintiff's title in a rei vindicatory action.

(Justice) Dr. H.W. Tambiah opines in "Survey of Laws Controlling Ownership of Lands in Sri Lanka", Vol 2, International Property Investment Journal 217 at pages 243-244:

> In a vindicatory action, the plaintiff must prove that he is the owner of the property which is in the possession of the defendant. See de Silva v. Gunathilleke, 32 N.L.R. 217 (1931); Abeykoon Hamine v. Appuhamy, 52 N.L.R. 49 (1951); Muthusamy v. Seneviratne, 31 C.L.W. 91 (1946). Once title is established, the burden shifts to the defendant to prove that by adverse possession for a period of 10 years he has acquired prescriptive title. Siyaneris v. Udenis de Silva, 52 N.L.R. 289 (1951). In rei vindicatory action once the plaintiff proves he was in possession but then he was evicted by the defendant, the burden of proving title will shift to the defendant. In Kathiramathamby v. Arumugam 38 C.L.W. 27 (1948) it was held that if the plaintiff alleges that he was forcibly ousted by the defendant the burden of proving ouster remains with the complainant. As a practical matter, the burden of proof in a rei vindicatio action is not burdensome. The plaintiff must prove only that he is the probable owner of the property.

The view of Dr. Tambiah "As a practical matter, the burden of proof in a rei vindicatio action is not burdensome. The plaintiff must prove only that he is the probable owner of the property" shall be understood in the context of his view expressed at the outset that "In a vindicatory action, the plaintiff must prove that he is the owner of the property which is in the possession of the defendant."

The recent South African case of Huawei Technologies South Africa (Pty) Limited v. Redefine Properties Limited and Another [2018] ZAGPJHC 403 decided on 29.05.2018 reveals that the burden of proof of a plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action is not unusually onerous. In this case it was held that what the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action needs to prove is that he is the owner of the property (which the Court stated could be done by producing his title deed) and that the defendant is holding or in possession of the property. Once this is done, the onus shifts to the defendant to establish a right to continue to hold against the owner. Cele J. declared:

> The rei vindicatio is the common law real action for the protection of ownership. C.P. Smith, Eviction and Rental Claims: A Practical Guide at p. 1-2; Graham v. Ridley 1931 TPD 476; Chetty v Naidoo 1974 (3) SA 13 (A). It is inherent in the nature of ownership that possession of the res should normally be with the owner and it follows that no other person may withhold it from the owner unless he or she is vested with some right enforceable against the owner. The owner, in instituting a rei vindicatio, need do no more than allege and prove that he is the owner and that the defendant is holding or in possession of the res. The onus is on the Defendant to allege and establish a right to continue to hold against the owner. Chetty v. Naidoo (supra) at 20 A–E. A court does not have an equitable discretion to refuse an order for ejectment on the grounds of equity and fairness. Belmont House v. Gore NNO 2011 (6) SA 173 (WCC) at para [15]. In the case of eviction based on an owner's rei vindicatio, the owner has only to prove his ownership which can be done by producing his title deed indicating that the property is registered in his name. Goudini Chrome (Pty) Ltd v. MCC Contracts (Pty) Ltd [1999] ZASCA 208; 1993 (1) SA 77 (A) at 82 A–C.

The requirement of proof of chain of title which is the norm in a partition action is not applicable in a rei vindicatio action.

This view was expressed by Professor Wille (op. cit. at page 539) when he stated that "In the case of immovables, it is sufficient as a rule to show that title in the land is registered in his or her name."

When the standard of proof is on a balance of probabilities, the Court is entitled to consider whose version – the plaintiff's or the defendant's – is more probable.

Banda v. Soyza [1998] 1 Sri LR 255 is a rei vindicatio action filed by a trustee of a temple seeking a declaration of title, the ejectment of the defendant and damages. The Court of Appeal set aside the judgment of the District Court and the plaintiff's action was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to establish title to the subject matter of the action or even to identify the land in suit. But the Supreme Court set aside the judgment of the Court of Appeal and restored the judgment of the District Court on the basis that there was "sufficient evidence led on behalf of the plaintiff to prove the title and the identity of the lots in dispute." G.P.S. de Silva C.J. laid down at page 259 the criterion to be adopted in a rei vindicatio action in respect of the standard of proof in the following manner:

> In a case such as this, the true question that a court has to consider on the question of title is, who has the superior title? The answer has to be reached upon a consideration of the totality of the evidence led in the case.

Dr. H.W. Tambiah (op. cit. at p. 244) refers to proof of superior title by the defendant as a defence to a rei vindicatio action.

> In a vindicatory action, the defendant has numerous defenses, which include: denial of the plaintiff's title; establishment of his own title, in the sense of establishing a title superior to that of the plaintiff; prescription; a plea of res judicata; right of tenure under the plaintiff – for example usufruct, pledge or lease of land; the right to retain possession subject to an indemnity from the plaintiff under peculiar conditions; a plea of exception rei venditae et traditae; and, ius tertii.

The Full Bench of the Supreme Court in Jinawathie v. Emalin Perera [1986] 2 Sri LR 121 adverted to superior title and sufficient title and held that the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action shall prove that he has title to the disputed property and that such title is superior to the title, if any, put forward by the defendant, or that he has sufficient title which he can vindicate against the defendant.

The plaintiff in Jinawathie's case filed a rei vindicatio action against the defendants relying upon a statutory determination made under section 19 of the Land Reform Law, No. 1 of 1972. The defendants sought the dismissal of the plaintiff's action on the basis that the alleged statutory determination did not convey any title on the plaintiff and that in the absence of the plaintiff demonstrating dominium over the land, the plaintiff's action shall fail. Both the District Court and the Court of Appeal held with the plaintiff and the Supreme Court affirmed it. Ranasinghe J. (later C.J.) with the agreement of Sharvananda C.J., Wanasundera J., Atukorale J., and Tambiah J., whilst emphasising that in a rei vindicatio action proper, the plaintiff's ownership of the land is of the very essence of the action, expressed the view of the Supreme Court in the following terms at page 142:

> This principle was re-affirmed once again by Gratiaen J. in the case of Palisena v. Perera (1954) 56 NLR 407 where the plaintiff came into court to vindicate his title based upon a permit issued under the provisions of the Land Development Ordinance (Chap. 320). In giving judgment for the plaintiff, Gratiaen, J. said: "a permit-holder who has complied with the conditions of his permit enjoys, during the period for which the permit is valid, a sufficient title which he can vindicate against a trespasser in civil proceedings. The fact that the alleged trespasser had prevented him from entering upon the land does not afford a defence to the action."

> In a vindicatory action the plaintiff must himself have title to the property in dispute: the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that he has title to the disputed property, and that such title is superior to the title, if any, put forward by the defendant in occupation. The plaintiff can and must succeed only on the strength of his own title, and not upon the weakness of the defence.
>
> On a consideration of the foregoing principles – relating to the legal concept of ownership, and to an action rei vindicatio – it seems to me that the plaintiff-respondent did, at the time of the institution of these proceedings, have, by virtue of P6 [statutory determination], "sufficient" title which she could have vindicated against the defendants-appellants in proceedings such as these.

In the Supreme Court case of Khan v. Jayman [1994] 2 Sri LR 233 the plaintiff sued the defendant for ejectment from the premises in suit and damages on the basis that the defendant was in forcible occupation of the premises after the termination of the leave and licence given to the defendant. The defendant claimed tenancy. The District Court dismissed the plaintiff's action on the basis that the plaintiff failed to establish that the defendant was a licensee and the Court of Appeal affirmed it. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the plaintiff shall succeed since the defendant failed to establish a "better title" to the property after the plaintiff established his title and the defendant in his evidence admitted the plaintiff's title. Kulatunga J. with the agreement of G.P.S. De Silva C.J. and Wadugodapitiya J. stated at page 235:

> The plaintiff did not pray for a declaration of title or raise an issue on ownership, presumably because no challenge to his ownership was anticipated. Indeed the defendant's answer did not deny the plaintiff's title. At the trial, the plaintiff established his title and the defendant in his evidence admitted the plaintiff's title to the premises in suit. This action is, therefore, a vindicatory action i.e. an action founded on ownership. Maasdorp's Institutes of South African Law Vol. II Eighth Edition page 70 commenting on the right of an owner to recover possession of his property states –

"The plaintiff's ownership in the thing is the very essence of such an action and will have to be both alleged and proved …"

He also states –

"The ownership of a thing consists in the exclusive rights of possession … and in the absence of any agreement or other legal restriction to the contrary, it entitles the owner to claim possession from anyone who cannot set up a better title to it and warn him off the property, and eject him from it".

The argument of the defendant that he was prejudiced in his defence as the plaintiff did not sue the defendant as the owner of the premises was rejected by the Supreme Court. Kulatunga J. stated at 239:

Learned Counsel for the defendant-respondent also submitted that in view of the fact that this was not a case of the plaintiff suing as owner simpliciter and in the absence of an issue on ownership, the defendant would not have known the case he had to meet and was prejudiced in his defence. I cannot agree. As stated early in this judgment, the plaintiff pleaded his ownership and clearly set out his case, including the fact that the defendant was in occupation of a room of the premises in suit by leave and licence. The defendant too set out his case in unambiguous terms viz. that he was a protected tenant from 1971. In the end, the plaintiff proved his case whilst the defendant failed to establish a better title to the property. As such, the question of prejudice does not arise.

When the paper title to the property is admitted or proved to be in the plaintiff, the burden shifts to the defendant to prove on what right he is in possession of the property.

In Siyaneris v. Udenis de Silva (1951) 52 NLR 289 the Privy Council held:

> In an action for declaration of title to property, where the legal title is in the plaintiff but the property is in the possession of the defendant, the burden of proof is on the defendant.

In Theivandran v. Ramanathan Chettiar [1986] 2 Sri LR 219 at 222, Sharvananda C.J. stated:

> In a vindicatory action the claimant need merely prove two facts; namely, that he is the owner of the thing and that the thing to which he is entitled to possession by virtue of his ownership is in the possession of the defendant. Basing his claim on his ownership, which entitles him to possession, he may sue for the ejectment of any person in possession of it without his consent. Hence when the legal title to the premises is admitted or proved to be in the plaintiff, the burden of proof is on the defendant to show that he is in lawful possession.

This was quoted with approval by G.P.S. de Silva C.J. in Beebi Johara v. Warusavithana [1998] 3 Sri LR 227 at 229 and reiterated in Candappa nee Bastian v. Ponnambalam Pillai [1993] 1 Sri LR 184 at 187. Vide also Wijetunge v. Thangarajah [1999] 1 Sri LR 53, Gunasekera v. Latiff [1999] 1 Sri LR 365 at 370, Jayasekera v. Bishop of Kandy [2002] 2 Sri LR 406 and Loku Menika v. Gunasekara [1997] 2 Sri LR 281 at 282-283.

In general, in a rei vindicatio action the plaintiff's case is based on his paper title whereas the defendant's case is based on prescriptive title. Prescriptive title necessarily commences and continues with violence, hostility, force and illegality. Court should not in my view encourage such illegal conduct. Court must resist converting illegality into legality unless there are cogent and compelling reasons to do so. As stated by Udalagama J. in the Supreme Court case of Kiriamma v. Podibanda [2005] BLR 9 at 11 "considerable circumspection is necessary to recognize the prescriptive title as undoubtedly it deprives the ownership of the party having paper title. It is in fact said that title by prescription is an illegality made legal due to the other party not taking action."

Can the defendant's evidence be considered in a rei vindicatio action?

Whilst emphasising that (a) the initial burden in a rei vindicatio action is on the plaintiff to prove ownership of the property in suit and (b) the burden of proof in a rei vindicatio action is proof on a balance of probabilities, if the plaintiff in such an action has "sufficient title" or "superior title" or "better title" than that of the defendant, the plaintiff shall succeed. No rule of thumb can be laid down on what circumstances the Court shall hold that the plaintiff has discharged his burden. Whether or not the plaintiff proved his title shall be decided upon a consideration of the totality of the evidence led in the case.

In this process, the defendant's evidence need not be treated as illegal, inadmissible or forbidden. The oft-quoted dicta of Herat J. in Wanigaratne v. Juwanis Appuhamy (1962) 65 NLR 167 that "The defendant in a rei vindicatio action need not prove anything, still less, his own title. The plaintiff cannot ask for a declaration of title in his favour merely on the strength that the defendant's title is poor or not established. The plaintiff must prove and establish his title." shall not be misinterpreted to equate a defendant in a rei vindicatio action with an accused in a criminal case where inter alia his confession made to a police officer is inadmissible and he can remain silent until the prosecution proves its case beyond reasonable doubt.

I must add that even in a criminal case, if a strong prima facie case has been made out against the accused by the prosecution, the accused owes an explanation, if it is within the power of him to offer such explanation. This is in consonance with the dictum of Lord Elenborough in Rex v. Cochrane (Garney's Reports 479) which is commonly known as Elenborough dictum. In reference to this dictum, Dep J. (later C.J.) in Ranasinghe v. O.I.C. Police Station, Warakapola (SC/APPEAL/39/2011, SC Minutes of 02.04.2014) states:

> This dictum could be applied in cases where there is a strong prima facie case made out against the accused and if he refrains from explaining suspicious circumstances attach to him when it is in his own power to offer evidence. In such a situation an adverse inference can be drawn against him.

The dicta of Herath J. in Wanigaratne v. Juwanis Appuhamy (supra) is eminently relevant to the facts of that particular case but has no universal application to all rei vindicatio actions. Since it is a one-page brief judgment, the facts are not very clear. However, as I understand, the plaintiffs in that case had filed a rei vindicatio action against the defendant on the basis that the defendant was a trespasser notwithstanding that he (the defendant) had been in occupation of some portions of the land for some considerable period of time. From the following sentence found in the judgment, "In this case, the plaintiffs produced a recent deed in their favour and further stated in evidence that they could not take possession of the shares purchased by them because they were resisted by the 1st defendant", it is clear that the plaintiffs, if at all, had only undivided rights in the land. It is also clear from the judgment that whether or not the defendant also had undivided rights was not clear to Court. It is in that context Herat J. states "The learned District Judge, in his judgment expatiates on the weakness of the defence case; but unfortunately has failed to examine what title, if any, has been established by the plaintiffs. No evidence of title has been established by the plaintiffs in our opinion."

It may be noted that in Wanigaratne's case, the finding of the Supreme Court is that "No evidence of title has been established by the plaintiffs". The facts are totally different in the instant case. In the instant case, even the High Court accepts that the plaintiff is entitled to 11/12 shares of the land by deed of transfer No. 2411 marked at the trial P3. The defendant does not have paper title to the land. The prescriptive claim preferred by the defendant was rejected by Court.

As this Court held in Wasantha v. Premaratne (SC/APPEAL/176/2014, SC Minutes of 17.05.2021), the Court can in a rei vindicatio action consider the evidence of the defendant in arriving at the correct conclusion:

> Notwithstanding that in a rei vindicatio action the burden is on the plaintiff to prove title to the land no matter how fragile the case of the defendant is, the Court is not debarred from taking into consideration the evidence of the defendant in deciding whether or not the plaintiff has proved his title. Not only is the Court not debarred from doing so, it is in fact the duty of the Court to give due regard to the defendant's case, for otherwise there is no purpose in a rei vindicatio action in allowing the defendant to lead evidence when all he seeks is for the dismissal of the plaintiff's action.

Actio rei vindicatio* and action *in rem

In Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR 169 at 173 Gratiaen J. states:

> A decree for a declaration of title may, of course, be obtained by way of additional relief either in a rei vindicatio action proper (which is in truth an action in rem) or in a lessor's action against his overholding tenant (which is an action in personam). But in the former case, the declaration is based on proof of ownership in the latter, on proof of the contractual relationship which forbids a denial that the lessor is the true owner.

The fact that a rei vindicatio action is identified as an action in rem has unmistakably contributed to expect a high degree of proof of title from a plaintiff in such an action. Is this thinking correct?

The phrase "in rem" requires an explanation rather than a definition. The Latin term "in rem" derives from the word "res", which means "a thing or an object" whether movable or immovable. Actions in rem were originally used as a means of protecting title to movables, especially slaves, because land was not at first the object of private ownership – Buckland and McNair, Roman Law and Common Law Comparison (Cambridge University Press, 1936) p. 6. Also, in rem jurisdiction is invoked in maritime cases where a party could bring an action in rem against a ship instead of the owner of the ship. It is the ship that suffers the consequences. The owner suffers the consequences if it is an action in personam.

Maasdorp's Institutes of South African Law, Vol II, 8th Edition (1960), p.70 states "The form of action for the recovery of ownership was under the Roman law called vindicatio rei, which was an action in rem, that is, aimed at the recovery of the thing which is in the possession of another, whether such possession was rightfully or wrongfully acquired, together with all its accretions and fruits, and compensation in damages for any loss sustained by the owner through having been deprived of it."

Black's Law Dictionary, 11th edition, defines the term "in rem" as "Latin 'against a thing' – Involving or determining the status of a thing, and therefore the rights of persons generally with respect to that thing." It defines the term "in personam" as "Latin 'against a person' – Involving or determining the personal rights and obligations of the parties. (Of a legal action) brought against a person rather than property."

The following passage of Dr. H. W. Tambiah (op. cit. p. 242) explains why rei vindicatio is an action in rem.

> The primary remedy granted to an owner against the person who disputes his ownership is rei vindicatio. This Roman-Dutch Law remedy has been adopted by the courts in Sri Lanka. Since the owner, as dominus, has a right of possession, occupation and use of the land, this action is in the nature of an action in rem. See Vulcan Rubber Ltd. v. South African Railways and Harbours, 3 S.A. 285 (1958); Hissaias v. Lehman, 4 S.A. 715 (1958). In this type of action, the owner of land whose title is disputed and who has been unlawfully ejected, may bring an action for a declaration of title and ejectment. If the owner has not been ejected but his title is disputed he is entitled to bring a declaratory action to dismiss any disputes to his title. Where an owner is unlawfully ejected he may bring an action for declaration of title for mesne profits, damages and ejectment.

In the case of Allis Appu v. Endris Hamy (1894) 3 SCR 87, Withers J. categorised rei vindicatio both as an action in rem and action in personam:

> Certain actions of an analogous nature apart, the action rei vindicatio is allowed to the owner and to him alone. Lesion to the right of property is of the very essence of the action and in that respect constitutes it an action in rem. Lesion to the personal right of the true proprietor properly constitutes a claim to compensation for the produce of which he has been deprived by the possessor and in that respect constitutes it an action in personam.

In classical Roman Law although actio rei vindicatio is classified as an action in rem as opposed to an action in personam, the term "action in rem" shall not be understood in the popular sense that we conceive in contemporary society. An action in rem means an action against a thing whereas an action in personam means an action against a person. A partition action is considered an action in rem in that the judgment in a partition action has a binding effect on all persons having interests in the property whether or not joined as parties to the action. It transcends the characteristic of an inter partes action and assumes the characteristic of an action in rem resulting in title good against the world. The scheme of the Partition Law is designed to serve that purpose. But the entire world is not bound by the judgment in a rei vindicatio action. The judgment in a rei vindicatio action binds only the parties to the action and their privies. In modern-day legal jargon, rei vindicatio is not an action in rem but an action in personam.

The fact that rei vindicatio is not an action in rem in the popular sense is reflected in the dicta of Dep C.J. in Preethi Anura v. William Silva (supra) where in reference to the standard of proof in a rei vindicatio action it was stated "The plaintiff's task is to establish the case on a balance of probability. In a partition case the situation is different as it is an action in rem and the trial judge is required to carefully examine the title and the devolution of title."

In Sithy Makeena v. Kuraisha [2006] 2 Sri LR 341 at 344, Imam J. with Sriskandarajah J. in agreement stated "It is well-settled law that only the parties to a rei vindicatio action are bound by the decision in such a case, as a rei vindicatio action is an action in personam and not an action in rem."

In the Supreme Court case of Mojith Kumara v. Ariyaratne (SC/APPEAL/123/2015, SC Minutes of 29.03.2016), the plaintiff filed action seeking declaration of title to the land in suit, ejectment of the defendants therefrom and damages. It was a rei vindicatio action proper. The defendants sought dismissal of the plaintiff's action. The plaintiff relied on a decree entered in his favour in a previous rei vindicatio action filed against a different party, but in respect of the same land. The District Court dismissed the plaintiff's action on the basis that the defendants before Court were not parties to the previous action and therefore they are not bound by that judgment. On appeal, the High Court set aside the judgment of the District Court and held that the plaintiff can claim ownership to the land on the strength of the previous decree apparently on the basis that rei vindicatio is an action in rem. The Supreme Court held that the previous action is an action in personam and not an action in rem and therefore third parties are not bound by that judgment. Chitrasiri J. with the agreement of Aluwihare J. and De Abrew J. held:

> A decree in a case in which a declaration of title is sought binds only the parties in that action. Such a proposition is not applicable when it comes to a decree in rem which binds the whole world. Effects and consequences of actions in rem and actions in personam are quite different. Action in rem is a proceeding that determines the rights over a particular property that would become conclusive against the entire world such as the decisions in courts exercising admiralty jurisdictions and the decisions in partition actions under the partition law of this country. Procedure stipulated in Partition Law contains provisions enabling interested parties to come before courts and to join as parties to the action even though the plaintiff fails to make them as parties to it. Therefore there is a rationale to treat the decrees in partition cases as decrees in rem.

Actions in personam are a type of legal proceedings which can affect the personal rights and interests of the property claimed by the parties to the action. Such actions include an action for breach of contract, the commission of a tort or delict or the possession of property. Where an action in personam is successful, the judgment may be enforced only against the defendant's assets that include real and personal or movable and immovable properties. Therefore, a decree in a rei vindicatio action is considered as a decree that would bind only the parties to the action. In the circumstances, it is clear that the plaintiff cannot rely on the decree in 503/L to establish rights to the property in question as against the defendants in this case are concerned.

The defendant cannot raise questions of fact for the first time in the Supreme Court

After leave to appeal was granted to the plaintiff by this Court, the defendant has raised two purported questions of law which I quoted at the outset. By these purported questions of law the defendant seeks to argue that the plaintiff has not established that the land described in the second schedule to the plaint is part of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint. It is significant to note that this was not put in issue at the trial in the District Court. This is not a question of law but a question of fact. Any question which is not a pure question of law, but a question of fact or a mixed question of fact and law, cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. Vide Hameed alias Abdul Rahman v. Weerasinghe [1989] 1 Sri LR 217, Leslin Jayasinghe v. Illangaratne [2006] 2 Sri LR 39, Simon Fernando v. Bernadette Fernando [2003] 2 Sri LR 158, Gunawardena v. Daraniyagala [2010] 1 Sri LR 309, Somawathie v.

Wilmon [2010] 1 Sri LR 128, Piyadasa v. Babanis [2006] 2 Sri LR 17 at 24, Leslin Jayasinghe v. Illangaratne [2006] 2 Sri LR 39 at 47.

In any event, the defendant in his evidence has unequivocally admitted that the land described in the second schedule to the plaint is part of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint (vide page 242 of the brief) and therefore the matter should end there.

Conclusion

The two questions of law raised on behalf of the plaintiff are answered in the affirmative.

The two questions of law raised on behalf of the defendant are misleading questions: The first is answered "The land described in the second schedule to the plaint is admittedly part of the land described in the first schedule to the plaint." The second is answered "Does not arise."

I set aside the judgment of the High Court and restore the judgment of the District Court. The plaintiff is entitled to costs in all three Courts.

Judge of the Supreme Court

P. Padman Surasena, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

A.L. Shiran Gooneratne, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST

REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

SC/APPEAL/174/2011
SC/HCCA/LA/57/10
DC Kalmunai Case No.2298/L
HC (Civil) Kalmunai
Case No.EP/HCCA/Kal/147/08

Kose Mohamed Sulaiha Umma of
Udanga, Summanthurai

PLAINTIFF

Vs

1. Ahamed Lebbe Assanar
2. Aliyar Thangamma
3. Mahulapillai Yseenbawa
   All of Udanga, Sammanthurai

DEFENDANTS

AND

1. Ahamed Lebbe Assanar
2. Aliyar Thangamma
3. Mahulapillai Yseenbawa
   All of Udanga, Sammanthurai

DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS

Vs

Kose Mohamed Sulaiha Umma of
Udanga, Summanthurai

PLAINTIFF-RESPONDENT

AND NOW

In the matter of an application for Leave to Appeal in terms of section 5(C)(1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) (Amendment) Act No. 54 of 2006 read together with Article 127 of the Constitution.

1. Ahamed Lebbe Assanar
2. Aliyar Thangamma
All of Udanga, Sammanthurai

Defendants-Appellants-Appellants

Kose Mohamed Sulaiha Umma of
Udanga, Summanthurai

Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent

Before : B. P. Aluwihare PC, J.
Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J.
Vijith K. Malalgoda PC, J

Counsel : V. Puvitharan PC with R. A. Vishanthanie, Anuya Rasanayakam for the 1st and 2nd Defendents- Appellants

M. Nizam Kariyaper PC with M.C.M Nausas and M.I.M Iynullah for the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent

Argued on : 1st February, 2018

Decided on : 4th October, 2023

Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J

Facts

The defendants-appellants-appellants (hereinafter referred to as "the defendants") filed the instant appeal against the judgment of the Civil Appellate High Court of Kalmunai which dismissed the appeal filed by them against the judgment of the District Court of Kalmunai, dated 24th of April, 2002 where it was held that the learned judge of the District Court is entitled to frame an additional issue (new issue) during the course of the judgment in terms of section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code, as amended (hereinafter referred to as the "Code").

The plaintiff-respondent-respondent (hereinafter referred to as "the plaintiff") instituted action against the defendants in District Court of Kalmunai on the 29th of April, 1999 and pleaded inter-alia that by virtue of the Permit No. AM/SP/282 dated 8th of May, 1979 issued by the Government Agent of Ampara, she became entitled to possess and occupy the land in terms of section 19(2) of the Land Development Ordinance.

Further, it was pleaded that she and her predecessors in title were in undisturbed and uninterrupted possession of the said land. However, the defendants disturbed the possession by breaking the boundary fence constructed by her.

Moreover, it was stated that when she made an attempt to repair the boundary fence by fixing new poles, the defendants not only fought with her but also made a complaint to the Sammanthurai Police. After the said complaint an inquiry was held on the 22nd of March, 1999 by the Divisional Secretary. However, no action was taken by him.

The plaintiff further stated that when the defendants again made an attempt to disturb the possession of the land, her son prevented the defendants from disturbing the possession of the property. Thereafter, the defendants made a false complaint to the Police. Subsequently, the son was arrested by Sammanhurai Police and he was remanded. She stated that the Police were helping the defendants to possess the land illegally and to fence it. Furthermore, the defendants influenced the Divisional Secretary and other State Officials preventing them from taking action against them and taking steps to enter, possess and develop the land and to deprive the plaintiff's entitlement to the land.

In the circumstances, the plaintiff stated that she instituted action in the District Court of Kalmunai and prayed inter alia to;

a) declare that the plaintiff is entitled to be possessed and occupy in the land more fully described schedule to the plaint, and

b) grant an enjoining order or interim injunction until the until the case is concluded preventing the Defendants from disturbing the possession and from doing any development to the premises, more fully described in the schedule to the plaint.

Thereafter, the defendants filed an answer denying the averments contained in the plaint and pleaded that the plaintiff was not in possession of the land described in the schedule to the answer. Further, it was pleaded that the defendants owned the property in question under and by virtue of Permit No. AM/SP/244A issued on the 16th of November, 1989 by the Government Agent of Ampara and prayed for a dismissal of the plaint.

At the commencement of the trial, the plaintiff raised the following issues;

1. Did Aliyar Adambawa become entitled to possess and occupy the premises fully described in the schedule to the plaint by virtue of permit No. AM/SP/282 dated 08.05.1979 issued by Government Agent of Ampara?

2. Is the plaintiff entitled to possess and enjoy the said premises in terms of the permit No. AM/SP/282 dated 02.02.1994 issues by Divisional Secretary of Sammanthurai?

3. Is the possession of the defendants in the said premises lawful?

4. If the above issues are answered "No" has the plaintiff incurred a loss?

5. If so, how much?

6. If the 1st, 2nd and 3rd issues are answered "yes" and the 4th issue is answered "No" is the plaintiff entitled to the reliefs prayed for the plaint?

Thereafter, the defendants raised the following issues;

7. Did the 1st defendant become entitled to the land morefully as described in the answer and by virtue of the Permit No. AM/SP/244(A) dated 16th November, 1989 issued by the Government Agent Ampara?

8. Are the defendants in possession of the said land since 1978 or 1979?

9. Is the land described in the plaint and the land given to the plaintiff on the permit identical?

10. If issue Nos 7 and 8 were answered "Yes" and issue No. 9 is answered "No" should the action of the plaintiff be dismissed?

Judgment of the District Court

The trial proceeded on 1st to 6th issues raised by the plaintiff and issues 7th to 10th raised on behalf of the defendants. After the conclusion of the inter parte trial the learned District Judge raised the following issue as an additional issue at the time of the delivery of the judgment;

Issue No. 11 –

If issue No. 3 is answered in the negative, should the possession be handed over to the plaintiff by ejecting the defendant from the land in dispute?

Thereafter, the learned District Judge having answered the issue No. 3 in the negative, answered issue No. 11 in the affirmative and entered the judgment in favour of the plaintiff. Being aggrieved by the said judgment, the defendants filed an appeal in the Provincial High Court of Kalmunai, inter alia, on the following grounds;

“

i. that the said judgment is contrary to law and against all principles governing civil procedure,
ii. it is a cardinal principle of law that a party is not entitled to the relief which has not been prayed for and the learned District Judge erred in law in ordering the ejectment of the defendants-appellants, when there was no prayer for such a relief,
iii. the learned District Judge failed to appreciate the importance of section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code, where the plaintiff-respondent had opted to restrict her claim for declaration of title only and not prayed for the ejectment of the defendant-appellant,

iv. the learned District Judge erred in law in granting the prayer for ejectment on his own, when the plaintiff has not prayed for it,

v. the learned District Judge wrongly applied the principle of framing issues and framed a fresh issue at the time of delivery of the judgment which was not warranted in law,

vi. it is for the party to include all claims and not for the learned District Judge to grant relief which has not been prayed for and,

vii. on the whole there is a clear misdirection of law and the judgment of the District Court should be set aside."

Judgment of the Civil Appellate High Court

After the hearing of the said appeal, the learned judges of the said High Court held inter alia, that the learned judge of the District Court acted within the scope of section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code and thus, it is not necessary to interfere with the judgment of the learned District Judge. Accordingly, the appeal was dismissed.

Being aggrieved by the said judgment, the Defendants-Appellants-Appellants appealed to this court and this court granted Leave to Appeal on the following question of law;

> "Did the Civil Appellate High Court err when it affirmed the decision of the District Court which had the effect of granting relief that had not been prayed for on the basis a fresh issue which had been raised by the District Judge in the course of preparing his Judgment?"

Submissions on behalf of the Defendants

The learned President's Counsel for the defendants submitted that the plaintiff did not pray for the ejectment of the defendants from the premises in-suit. Further, the plaintiff opted to restrict her claim only for a declaration and not prayed for the ejectment of the defendants. Therefore, the learned District Judge was clearly in error when, he on his own accord granted the relief to eject the defendants from the land on his own accord. Further, the plaintiff failed to make her full claim as required by section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code and therefore, she was not entitled for the additional relief granted by the learned District judge.

Moreover, the plaintiff did not amend the plaint to include a prayer for ejectment of the defendants and they became aware of the new issue framed by the learned District Court Judge only at the time of delivery of the judgment. In the circumstances, it was submitted that the defendants were not heard or allowed to adduce evidence as to why the said new issue relating to the ejectment should not be answered in favour of the plaintiff.

He drew the attention of court to the judgment delivered in Hameed V Cassim (1996) 2 SLR 30, which the learned District Judge and the learned judges of the High Court based their decision and submitted that it is distinguishable from the instant appeal as in the said judgment no relief was granted which was not prayed for. Thus, the said judgment does not support the impuned judgment. Further, it was submitted that the plaintiff had not prayed for the ejectment of the defendants and hence, the court cannot grant a relief which was not prayed for by a party.

The learned President's Counsel further submitted that in Perera V Perera 68 NLR 262, the plaintiffs-respondents filed an action for a declaration that they were entitled to draw water from a well and for a sum of Rs.250/- as damages for being deprived of that right. Moreover, after the plaintiffs-respondents obtained a decree moved for a writ of possession, which was allowed. Thereafter, in Appeal, it was contented that the right to draw water carries the right to use a footpath. It was held that the question to be decided was whether the plaintiffs-respondents having failed to ask for anything more than a declaration of their right and damages, can now ask for a writ of possession. The appeal should be allowed.

Submissions on behalf of the plaintiff

The learned President's Counsel who appeared for the plaintiff submitted that the objective of the rei vindicatio action is to recover the possession of the land back to the lawful owner, as such actions arise from the right to dominium. Moreover, the instant action was filed to recover a property belonging to the lawful owner. He further submitted that both the learned District Judge and the learned High Court Judge relied on the case of Hameed V Cassim (1996) 2 SLR 30 which is binding on them. Therefore, both the judgments of the District Court and Civil Appellate Court have to be upheld by this court.

Did the Civil Appellate High Court err when it affirmed the decision of the District Court which had the effect of granting relief that had not been prayed for in the plaint?

The scope of an action filed in the District Court

Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code as amended requires every regular action to be framed in order to achieve a final decision of the disputes between the parties so that it will prevent further litigation between them. Further, section 34 (1) of the said Code states that a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the action within the jurisdiction of the court. However, subsection (2) of the said section inter alia, states that if a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquishes any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished.
Moreover, section 93 of the said Code sets out the circumstances in which amendments of pleadings are allowed and section 406 set out the circumstances in which a court would allow a withdrawal and adjustments of claims stated in the pleadings and consequences of such matters.

Further, section 207 of the Civil Procedure Code states that;

> "All decrees passed by the court shall, subject to appeal, when an appeal is allowed, be final between the parties; and no plaintiff shall hereafter be non-suited."

Moreover, the explanation to section 207 states;

> "Every right of property, or to money, or to damages, or to relief of any kind which can be claimed, set up, or put in issue between the parties, to an action upon the cause of action for which the action is brought, whether it be actually so claimed, set up, or put in issue or not in the action, becomes, on the passing of the final decree in the action, a res adjudicata*, which cannot* afterwards be made the subject of action for the same cause between the same parties."

[Emphasis added]

A careful consideration of the aforementioned provisions and the other provisions of the Civil Procedure Code shows that one of the prime objects of the said Code is to prevent multiplicity of actions between the parties on the same causes of action.

Marking Admissions and Raising Issues

A trial in the District Court commences by marking admissions and framing issues on matters which the parties are at variance. In terms of section 72 of the Civil Procedure Code, if the defendants admit the claim of the plaintiff, the court shall deliver the judgment against the defendants according to the admissions so made. Further, in terms of section 146 of the Civil Procedure Code if the parties agree as to the facts, such facts should be recorded as admissions between the parties. Moreover, if the parties agree upon the matters that are required to be decided in the case, they may be recorded as issues to be decided in the case.

However, subsection (2) of section 146 states;

"If the parties, however, are not so agreed, the court shall, upon the allegations made in the plaint, or in answer to interrogatories delivered in the action, or upon the contents of documents produced by either party, and after such examination of the parties as may appear necessary, ascertain upon what material propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the court to depend."

The said sub section casts a duty on the learned trial judge to settle the issues by identifying the dispute between the parties before the evidence is recorded in the case. When parties are unable to agree on the admissions and issues, the learned judge ought to rule on the rival sets of admissions and issues, and decide on the admissions to be recorded in the case and the issues on which the parties should go to trial to arrive at the right decision in the case.

A similar view was expressed in Pathmawathie Vs. Jayasekare (1997) 1 SLR 248 where it was held;

> "Though in practice Counsel appearing for the plaintiff and defendant do suggest the issues it is the prime responsibility of the judge to frame issues. This is more so because it is ultimately the judge who should make a finding and without a clear understanding of the dispute and the issues that he has to determine it would be a most dangerous exercise to embark upon."

Moreover, if evidence is elicited during the trial either by oral evidence or documentary evidence which is necessary to decide the dispute between the parties to the case, the court may amend the existing issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks either at the request of a party to the case or on its own motion.

A plain reading of section 146 of the Civil Procedure Code does not impose a blanket prohibition to frame issues on the matters that have not been averred in the pleadings filed in the case. The object of the legislature in having section 146 is to allow the issues on which the right decision of the case identified by the court.

Further, in Bank of Ceylon V Chellaiahpilli 64 NLR 25 it was observed that;

> "a case must be tried upon the 'issues on which the right decision of the case appears to the Court to depend' and it is well settled that the framing of such issues is not restricted by the pleadings."

Moreover, in Avudiappan V Indian Overseas Bank (1995) 2 SLR 131 it was held;

> "...S.146 of the Civil Procedure Code permits Court to record issues on which the right decision of the case appears to Court to depend, on the pleadings, documents and evidence led at the trial."

However, explanation (2) to section 150 of the Civil Procedure Code, prohibits a party from making at the trial, a case materially different from that which he has placed on record and which his opponent is prepared to meet the facts proposed to be established by a party must in the whole amount to so much of the material part of his case as is not admitted in his opponent's pleadings.

The aforementioned provisions show that though the Civil Procedure Code contemplates an adversarial procedure, it casts a duty on the learned judge of the District Court to mark the admissions and raise issues in order to arrive at the right decision in the case.

Did the learned District Judge err in law by framing the issue No. 13 (new issue) referred to above at the time of the delivery of the judgment under section 149 of the said Code, without giving an opportunity to the parties to respond to the said issue?

Section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code states;

> "The court may, at any time before passing a decree, amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit."
>
> [Emphasis added]

Section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code does not preclude a District Judge from framing a new issue after the parties have concluded their respective cases and at the time of the judgment is read out in open Court. On the contrary, it allows the District Judge to amend or frame additional issues before passing a decree.

However, a careful consideration of the provisions of the said Code shows that section 149 of the Code cannot be considered in isolation. Hence, the said section should be considered along with the other sections applicable to framing of issues and be interpreted in harmony with them. The analysis of the said provisions in the Civil Procedure Code show that the power conferred on the District Court by section 149 of the said Code to amend the issues before passing a decree is subject to the other restrictions imposed by the Code. When the sections relating to such matters are considered together the cumulative effect is that the discretion conferred by section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code on the District Court should be exercised subject to the following;

(a) a new issue cannot be framed which will have the effect of converting an action of one character into another,

(b) the issues shall not be altered or raise new issues to change the scope of the action and thus, deprive a party from obtaining reliefs already pleaded in the case,

(c) raising new issues shall not be prejudicial to a party to an action,

(d) it should be necessary to decide the real issue between the parties,

(e) it should be necessary to raise further issues in the interest of justice to adjudicate the dispute/s between the parties, and

(f) none of the parties should be taken by surprise and thereby it will adversely affect their respective cases.

In the instant appeal, it is common ground that the plaint did not have a prayer to eject the defendants from the property described in the schedule to the plaint. However, in her evidence she stated that she became the owner of the land described in the schedule to the plaint by a permit bearing No: AM/SP/282 which was issued on the 2nd of February, 1992 in terms of section 19(2) of the Land Development Ordinance. She further stated that the defendant-appellant forcibly fenced part of her land and started possessing it. Moreover, in her evidence in chief she stated that she be given the possession of the land under consideration. It is pertinent to note that the plaintiff was not cross examined on this point.

Furthermore, the pleadings filed in the District Court and the evidence led at the trial show that the plaintiff and the defendants proceeded to trial on the basis that the peaceful possession of the land by the plaintiff was disturbed by the defendants. Further, as stated above, the plaintiff requested to put her in possession of the land in her evidence. Thus, the evidence led at the trial and issues No.2 and 3 clearly show that the entire case proceeded on the basis that the defendant disturbed the possession of the land belonging to the plaintiff and that she wants to enjoy the peaceful possession of the said land.

In the circumstances, the defendants were fully aware of the grievance of the plaintiff and the relief that she was seeking from the court. In fact, prior to the institution of the action the plaintiff has sought administrative reliefs to prevent the defendants disturbing the peaceful possession of the land by encroaching it. In this regard, it is pertinent to note that the appellant did not contest the findings of the learned District Judge with regard to the of the ownership of the land and granting the prayer for the declaration of title pleaded in the plaint.

Having considered the evidence led at the trial and the issues framed by the parties, I am of the opinion that there is no element of surprise by raising the additional issue by the learned District Judge at the time of the delivery of the judgment. Further the learned District Judge in framing the new issue has taken steps to arrive at the correct decision with regard to the dispute between the parties to the case. Further, it prevents further litigation between the parties and thus, raising the said additional issue is necessary to meet the ends of justice.

In Silva v. Obeysekera 24 NLR 97 it was held in the preamble;

> "No doubt it is a matter within the discretion of the Judge whether he will allow fresh issues to be formulated after the case has commenced, but he should do so when such a course appears to be in the interests of justice, and it is certainly not a valid objection to such a course being taken that they do not arise on the pleadings."

In the case of Hameed V Qasim (1996) 2 SLR 30 it was held as follows:

> "(1) the Provisions of S.149 of the Civil Procedure Code do not preclude a District Judge from framing a new issue after the parties have closed their respective cases and before the judgment is read out in open Court.
>
> It is not necessary that the new issue should arise on the pleadings. A new issue could be framed on the evidence led by the parties orally or in the form of the documents. The only restriction is that the Judge in framing a new issue should act in the interests of justice, which is primarily to ensure the correct decision is given in the case".

The learned President's Counsel for the appellant submitted that the facts of the judgment decided in Hameed v Quasin were different to the facts of the instant appeal. However, a careful consideration of the said judgment it shows that the ratio decidendi of the said judgment is applicable to the issue that needs to be decided in the instant appeal and thus, it is applicable to the instant appeal.

Therefore, the learned District Court Judge who heard the trial and the learned judges of the Civil Appellate High Court have correctly applied the ratio decidendi in the said case by following the doctrine of stare decisis.

Further, in In Dharmasiri V Wickrematunga (2002) 2 SLR 218, it was held;

"Issue raised on titled pleaded, Held;

1) Once issues framed and accepted, pleadings recede to the background.
2) Even though the plaintiff has not asked for a decleration of title it does not prevent him from seeking the relief for ejectment
3) Absence in the prayer for a decleration of title causes no prejudice, if in the body of the plaint, the title is pleaded and issues were framed and accepted by Court on the title so pleaded. It cannot be overlooked that title pleaded in the body of the plaint formed the basis for the issues raised at the trial and the question of title was examined by the tiral judge before arriving at a finding that the plaintiff-respondent has obtained title."

Section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code sates as follows:

> "The court may at any time before passing a decree, amend the issue or frame additional issue on such terms as it thinks fit."

Moreover, I am of the view that though there is no specific relief prayed by the plaintiff to eject the defendants, the cumulative effect of the averments in the plaint show that she wanted to possess the land and enjoy her rights under the aforementioned permit without any hindrance from the defendants. As the evidence elicited at the trial showed that the defendants were in possession of the part of the land under consideration, it is essential to evict them in order to occupy the said land of the plaintiff. If the District Court did not order the defendants to be evicted from the land, the purpose of only granting a declaration in favour of the plaintiff will make the entire relief futile as the plaintiff will have to file a fresh case to eject the defendants. Thus, I am of the view that the District Judge has exercised the discretion conferred on him under section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code. In view of the aforementioned findings, sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code have no application to the instant appeal.

Accordingly, the question of law is answered as follows;

> "Did the Civil Appellate High Court err when it affirmed the decision of the District Court which had the effect of granting relief that had not been prayed for on the basis a fresh issue which had been raised by the District Judge in the course of preparing his Judgment?"

No.

Accordingly the appeal is dismissed without costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

B.P. Aluwihare PC, J
I Agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

Vijith K. Malalgoda PC, J
I Agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for Special Leave to Appeal under and in terms of section 9(a) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No 19 of 1990 read with Article 128 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

Officer in Charge,
Criminal Investigation Division,
Colombo

Complainant

SC Appeal No. 182/2017

SC SPL LA No. 201/16

High Court Case No. HCMCA 136/2014

Magistrate Court (Fort) Case No.

~Vs.~

Sangili Ramalingam
No. 19,
Wilferd Place,
Colombo 3.

Accused

AND BETWEEN

Mohhamed Hajji Anwar
No 50/19,
Sir James Pieris Mw,
Colombo 02

First Complainant-Appellant

~Vs.~

Sangili Ramalingam
No. 19,
Wilferd Place,
Colombo 3.

Accused~Respondent

AND

Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Sangili Ramalingam
No. 19,
Wilferd Place,
Colombo 3.

Accused~Respondent~Appellant

~Vs.~

Mohhamed Hajji Anwar
No 50/19,
Sir James Pieris Mw,
Colombo 02

Virtual Complainant~
Appellant~Respondent

Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondent-Respondent

BEFORE	:	Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J L. T. B. Dehideniya, J. & P. Padman Surasena, J.
COUNSEL	:	Asthika Devendra with Kaneel Maddumage for the Accused-Respondent-Appellant. Shanaka Ranasinghe, PC. With Yasas Wijesinghe and Nisith Abeysooriya for the Virtual Complainant-Appellant-Respondent. Madhawa Tennakoon, SSC. With Thivanka Attygalle, SC. For the Respondent-Respondent.
ARGUED ON	:	08.06.2020
DECIDED ON	:	12.01.2023

JUDGEMENT

Aluwihare, PC, J.

(1) Accused Respondent Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the Accused) was charged before the magistrate's court on three counts punishable under section 25[1] of the Debt Recovery (Special Provisions) Act number 2 of 1990 and one count of Criminal Misappropriation punishable in terms of section 386 of the Penal Code.

(2) At the conclusion of the trial, the learned magistrate having concluded that the prosecution had failed to prove any of the charges preferred against the Accused, found him not guilty as charged and proceeded to acquit him.

(3) Aggrieved by the order of acquittal, the Virtual Complainant Respondent [hereinafter referred to as the Complainant] appealed against the said judgement of the learned magistrate, sanction having first obtained from the Honourable Attorney General, to the High Court.

(4) After hearing the appeal, the learned High Court judge in delivering the judgment, holding that the learned magistrate had erred in finding the Accused not guilty and acquitting him, set aside the said orders, and proceeded to convict the Accused on all four counts.

(5) Further, the learned High Court judge also held that the prosecution had proved the charges preferred against the Accused and that there was no impediment to convict the Accused for the charges preferred against him.

(6) The present appeal arises from the said judgement of the High Court, and when the matter was supported for special leave, the court granted special leave on the questions of law referred to in in sub- paragraphs (a) to (g) of paragraph 12 of the petition of the petitioner which are reproduced verbatim below.

(a) Did the learned High Court judge, err in holding that the Petitioner had failed to establish that he has repaid the money relating to the loan for which as guarantee the cheques in issue were given, whereas it was not the contention of the Petitioner that he has already repaid the said sums and/or which is not required to cast a doubt on the prosecution case?

(b) Did the learned High Court judge err in holding that the petitioner had failed to reveal specific details of the transaction relating to documents V1 to V6, whereas there is no burden in law for the accused to prove the same other than to cast doubt on the prosecution case.

(c) Has the learned High Court judge failed to evaluate the evidence relating to each charge individually, which is prior to the petitioner's conviction for all four counts as required by law?

(d) Did the learned High Court judge fail to consider that the version of the prosecution would not satisfy the test of probability, whereas evidence of PW-1 in respect of selling apparels to the petitioner was not proved before the court and/or has not been corroborated?

(e) Did the learned High Court judge err in law by failing to consider that the petitioner could not be found guilty for count 2 and count 3 as the same were framed under section 25 (1) (a) of the Debt Recovery (special provisions) Act and/or the petitioner has stopped the payments of the two cheques relating the set counts?

(f) Did the learned High Court judge, in law by failing to consider that the petitioner could not be found guilty for Count 4 as the prosecution has failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the readymade garments had been taken/obtained by the petitioner?

(g) Did the learned High Court judge fail to consider that the contention of the petitioner is more probable than the version of the respondent.

The factual background

(7) According to the Virtual Complainant, he being a trader in textiles and finished garments, sold a stock of garments to the Accused in December 2011 to the value of Rs.2.5 million and had received cheques from the Accused as payment. An invoice for the said amount [P5] and a 'Gate Pass' [P1] signed by the accused in proof of delivery, were produced in evidence.

(8) The invoice clearly indicates that the goods had been supplied to the Accused whom the Complainant knew of, having had business dealings with him previously and the Accused had signed at the foot of the invoice acknowledging the acceptance of the stock of garments.

(9) It appears that, what had been given by the Accused were post-dated cheques and the details are as follows;

[1] A cash Cheque no 196169 dated 30.03. 2012 drawn for Rs 850,000/-[P2]

[2] A cash Cheque no 196170 dated 30.04. 2012 drawn for Rs 850,000/-[P3]

[3] A cash Cheque no 196171 dated 15.05. 2012 drawn for Rs 800,000/-[P5]

(9) All three cheques were dishonoured in the following manner.

[i] The cheque No.196169, when presented to the bank, had bounced with the endorsement "refer to the drawer (01)". The code '(01)' is the standardised bank code used to denote that there were insufficient funds in the account of the drawer to meet the payment.

[ii] When cheque No. 169170 was presented it also had returned with the endorsement "payment stopped by the drawer (52)". The code "(52)" is the standardised bank code used to denote a directive from the drawer/ account holder countermanding the payment.

[iii] When the cheque No. 169171 was presented for payment, that too has bounced with the endorsement "Account closed (51)".

(10) A junior executive officer of the Commercial Bank, Lakshita Hewawasam in his testimony produced the details of the bank account maintained by the Accused with the Kotahena branch of the Commercial Bank. According to the witness, of the three cheques in question, the cheque number 196169 drawn for Rs.850, 000/- was dishonoured due to insufficient funds in the accused's account to meet the payment. Cheque No. 169170 drawn for rupees 850000/- was dishonoured as the account holder [the Accused] countermanded the payment, while the third cheque for Rs. 800,000/- when presented for payment on 15.8.2012, the account had been closed by the accused Rasalingam on 8. 5. 2022.

(11) The accused giving evidence under oath stated that he borrowed Rs.2.4 million as a lump sum on interest from the virtual complainant and issued 3 cheques. His position was that he paid the Complainant Rs.125000/- a month, as interest. The Accused, however, conceded that there is no documentary proof of the monies that he alleged to have borrowed from the Complainant or any proof of interest payments made by him as alleged. The Accused, however, denied that he ever engaged in any transaction relating to garments and denied the signature on the 'Gate Pass' P1 as his.

(12) It appears from the evidence led at the trial, that prior to the impugned transaction relevant to these proceedings, there had been business dealings between the two parties which the Complainant admitted in his evidence. The documents V1 and V2 were produced in that regard, but both those documents are dated in 2011 whereas the impugned cheques had been dated in 2012. The virtual Complainant had said that documents V1 and V2 have no connection with the sale of garments. As such there does not appear to be a nexus between those two sets of documents and the impugned transaction.

Legal issues

(13) Having considered the evidence led at the trial, this court is of the view that the prosecution had failed to establish the offence of Criminal Misappropriation. Although the learned High Court Judge had concluded that all elements of the said charge had been established, with due respect to the learned judge, I beg to disagree with the said conclusion.

(14) As far as the charge of Criminal Misappropriation is concerned, the allegation is that the accused dishonestly 'misappropriated' the garments he obtained from the virtual complainant. It is clear from the evidence that this was a pure and simple sale of goods and once the virtual complainant parted with the consignment of garments, the Accused was free to appropriate it in any manner he wished. Simply, there was no arrangement between the Virtual-Complainant and the Accused as to the manner in which the garments should be dealt with. Hence, one cannot say that the accused 'misappropriated' the garments.

(15) For the reasons set out above, I am of the opinion that the charge of Criminal Misappropriation is not made out and the conviction of the Accused for the said offence cannot be sustained. Accordingly, the conviction of the accused for the charge of Criminal Misappropriation [the 4th count] is hereby set aside and accordingly I make order acquitting the Accused on that count.

(16) For the reasons set out above I answer the question of law referred to in sub-paragraph (f) of paragraph 12 of the Petition in the affirmative.

(17) The remaining questions of law (a) to (e) and (g) relate to the conviction for the offences under the Debt Recovery (Special Provisions) Act.

(18) Before I deal with the liability of the Accused in terms of provision of the Act under which he was charged, I wish to consider the argument of the learned Counsel for the Accused where he argued that the learned High Court Judge had failed to evaluate the evidence led at the trial and in particular, to evaluate evidence relating to each charge before convicting the Accused. In this regard,

I wish to rely on the principle laid down in the case of Mannar Mannan Vs. The Republic of Sri Lanka 1990 1 SLR 280.

(19) It would be pertinent at this point to address our minds to the Constitutional provision embodied in Article 138 which sets down the criteria in granting relief in exercising Appellate jurisdiction. The proviso to the Article reads;

> Provided that no judgement, decree, or order of any court shall be reversed or varied on account of any error, defect or irregularity, which has not prejudiced the substantial rights of the parties or occasioned a failure of justice. [emphasis added]

Although the Article referred to above occurs in the Constitution under the heading "The Court of Appeal", the proviso referred to should be considered a guiding principle when a forum is exercising 'appellate jurisdiction'

It is also to be noted that the proviso to Article 138 referred to above, is mirrored in Section; 334(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act No.15 of1979 [hereinafter the CPC] the application of which was considered by a bench of five judges of this court in the case of Mannar Mannan [supra].

(20) The proviso to Section 334(1) of the CPC reads thus;

"Provided that the court may, notwithstanding that it is of opinion that the point raised in the appeal might be decided in favour of the appellant, dismiss the appeal if it considers that no substantial miscarriage of justice has actually occurred ".

In the case of R v.Nicholas Webb Edwards [1983] EWCA Crim J0228-2, the court considered some of the earlier English cases touching on the applicability of a proviso which is similar to that of our Constitution. This was a case where the appellant was convicted of rape and the sole ground of appeal was that there was a failure to direct the jury on the standard of proof. Goff L. J., in the course of his judgment stated: "*It is plain that the failure of the Judge to direct the jury on the standard of proof was a serious defect in the summing up..... That being so, we have to consider whether we should exercise our powers under the proviso to section 2 (1) of the Criminal Appeal Act of 1968 to dismiss the appeal if we consider that no miscarriage of justice has actually occurred. From those cases it appears that in such a case, as in any other case, the court must consider the operation of the proviso in the light of the particular facts of the case. [emphasis is mine].

(21) In answering the questions of law referred to above, all what this court has to consider is whether the prosecution has established, beyond reasonable doubt, the charges preferred against the accused under section 25 (1) of the Debt Recovery (special provisions) Act [Hereinafter the Act].

(22) Section 25(1) of the Act states thus;

(1) Any person who-

(a) knowingly draws a cheque which is dishonoured by a bank for want of funds;

(b) gives an order to a banker to pay a sum of money, which payment is not made by reason of there being no obligation on such banker to make payment or the order given being subsequently countermanded with a dishonest intention, or; and

(c) gives an authority to an institution to pay a sum of money to itself, in payment of a debt or loan or any part thereof owed to such institution, from, and out of an account maintained or funds deposited, by such person with such institution and such institution is unable to take such payment to itself by reason of such person not placing adequate funds in such account or by reason of the funds deposited having been withdrawn by reason of such person countermanding the authority given or by reason of any one or more of such reasons ; or shall be guilty of an offence under this Act and shall on conviction by a Magistrate after summary trial be liable to punishment with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one year or with fine of ten thousand rupees or ten per centum of the full value of the cheque, order, authority or inland bill in respect of which the offence is committed, whichever is higher, or with both such fine and imprisonment.

(d) having accepted an inland bill refuses payment dishonestly;

5.

(23) At this juncture it would be pertinent to consider the liability under the penal provision referred to above. It is clear that the provision is not a strict liability provision and a mental element is part of the offence.
In an instance where a cheque is dishonoured due to lack of sufficient funds, the requisite mental element is knowledge on the part of the Accused, whereas when the reason for a cheque to be dishonoured is either the same being countermanded or closure of the account after the cheque was issued, then the mental element that has to be established is one of dishonesty.

(24) It is my view, that in a prosecution under Section 25 of the Act, the reason or the reasons as to the issuance of the cheque is not relevant, as the nature of the transaction is immaterial as far as the offence is concerned. In the instant case the liability of the Accused has to be considered in the following manner;
Regarding the cheque No. No 196169 dated 30.03. 2012, the liability has to be considered under paragraph (a) of Section 25 (1) of the Act whilst in relation to cheques bearing Nos. 196170 and 196171, what would be applicable is paragraph (b) of that Section.

(25) In relation to count No.1, which is based on the Cheque 196169 what the prosecution was required to prove, in order to satisfy the ingredients of the offence was that the cheque that was drawn by the Accused was dishonoured due to insufficient funds and that the Accused had knowledge that the funds were insufficient to meet the cheque. It is common ground that the cheque was drawn by the Accused and the fact that it was dishonoured was not disputed by him either. It has also been established that the cause for dishonouring was due to lack of funds.

(26) The monthly bank statements of the Accused's business establishment for the months of January to May 2012 were marked and produced at the trial [P7]. In the normal course of events the account holder [Accused] ought to have received them at the end of each month. None of these statements reflect a sufficient credit balance to meet any of the cheques that the Accused issued to the Complainant.

(27) In any event there was no material placed before the court to show that the Accused did not have the knowledge that the credit balance was insufficient to meet the cheque. Regard being had to common course of natural events and human conduct plus the attended circumstances, it would be reasonable for the court to presume that the Accused was aware that the amount of money lying to his credit in the bank account in question was insufficient[to meet the cheques] at the time relevant to the impugned transaction.

(28) On the other hand, if any facts were especially within the knowledge of the Accused which was indicative of 'lack of knowledge' on his part as to the funds lying to the credit of the bank account, then it was incumbent on the Accused to prove that fact within the meaning of Section 106 of the Evidence Ordinance. The illustration to Section 106 reads thus;

> "A person is charged with travelling on a railway without a ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket on him"

(29) Considering the above, I hold that the learned High Court Judge was correct in coming to the conclusion that the prosecution has established count No.1 beyond reasonable doubt.

(30) As far as count 3 is concerned, the conduct of the Accused in closing the bank account before the due date on which the cheque No. 196171 could have been presented for payment, appears to be a deliberate act on his part to deprive the Complainant of encashing the cheque in question. When the cheque was presented for payment by the Complainant, there was no obligation on the banker to make the payment, thus fulfilling the requisite elements of paragraph (b) of Section 25(1) of the Act.

(31) Here, again the attendant circumstances are indicative of dishonesty on the part of the Accused in the absence of any material to infer otherwise. As such the conviction of the Accused on count 3 also cannot be faulted.

The questions of law

(32) The question (a) raises the issue as to whether the learned High Court judge, erred in holding that the Petitioner [the Accused] had failed to establish that he has repaid the money relating to the loan for which as guarantee the checks in issue were given. Firstly, it must be said that what the learned High Court Judge had said was, that the Accused had argued that the cheques were given in respect of a loan obtained by the Accused but the Accused had failed to establish that the loan had been repaid. As referred to earlier, these matters are irrelevant as far as the requisite elements of the offence and as such the manner in which the learned High Court Judge dealt with this aspect has no bearing on the charges. As such I answer the question of law (a) above in the negative.

(33) The question of law referred to in paragraph (b) raises the issue as to whether the learned High Court judge erred in holding that the Accused had failed to reveal specific details of the transaction relating to documents V1 to V6, whereas there is no burden in law for the accused to prove the same other than to cast doubt on the prosecution case. As referred to earlier, there does not appear to be any nexus between V1 to V6 and the impugned transactions relevant to this case. V1 refers to a cheque drawn on the Bank of Ceylon for Rs. 400,000/- V5 also refers to a cheque issued from the account the Accused maintained at the Bank of Ceylon, however, all the cheques relating to this case had been drawn on the Commercial Bank. It also refers to a cheque drawn for Rs.400, 000/-. None of the cheques relevant to the instant case had been drawn for Rs. 400,000/-. As such I am of the view that even if the learned High Court Judge had considered the documents V1 to V 6, he could not have arrived at a different decision. In the circumstances, I answer the question (b) referred to above also in the negative.

(34) The question of law referred to in paragraph (c) raises the issue as to whether the learned High Court judge failed to evaluate the evidence relating to each charge individually as required by law. As regard to the question of law raised, it is true that a court is required to consider each charge separately and decide as to whether the requisite actus reus and the mens rea have been established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt, before entering a conviction. The complaint in the instant case appears to be that the learned Judge had not done so. Upon perusal of the judgement, it appears that the contention on behalf of the Accused is correct in this regard. The question is whether the accused must be given the benefit of every non-direction or misdirection on the part of the learned judge. I do not think so. Even if there was a non-direction, if that non-direction had not caused any prejudice to the Accused or had not resulted in any failure of justice there is no reason then, to vary the judgement. Upon considering the entirety of the evidence led at the trial, I am of the view that if the learned High Court Judge had directed himself properly, he could not have come to a different conclusion other than finding the accused guilty. As such I answer the question of law referred to in paragraph (c) referred to above also in the negative.

(35) Question of law referred to in paragraph (d) raises the issue as to whether the learned High Court judge failed to consider that the version of the prosecution would not satisfy the test of probability whereas evidence of the Complainant in respect of selling apparels to the petitioner was not proved before the court and or has not been corroborated. This aspect again is not relevant in deciding the issues in this case as all what the learned High Court Judge was required to consider as to whether the requisite elements of the offence had been established or not and the probability of the version given by the Accused has no bearing on the charges as the Accused had not denied issuing the cheques. As such the question of law (d) too is answered in the negative.

(36) The question of law referred to in paragraph (e) raises the question as to whether the learned High Court judge erred in law by failing to consider that the petitioner could not be found guilty for count 2 and count 3 as the same were framed under section 25 (1) (a) of the Debt Recovery (special provisions) Act. In relation to count 2 and 3, the violations come under paragraph (b) of Section 25(1) and not under paragraph (a) of that section. The penal provision, however, is common to both limbs. Furthermore, in the body of the charges the specific reason as to the dishonouring of the cheques are referred to. In count 2 the actual reason for dishonouring of the cheque was due to the Accused countermanding the payment and not due to insufficient funds. However, the body of the charge states; 'knowing that the cheque would be dishonoured due to lack of funds to meet the cheque you issued it.' As far as the said count was concerned what the prosecution had established through the bank official was that they did not honour the cheque as the Accused instructed the bank to stop payment and the issue of insufficiency funds was not raised. Hence, to my mind the finding of guilt on count No. 2 was erroneous. As such, as far as count 2 is concerned, I answer the question of law referred to in paragraph (e) in the affirmative and set aside the finding of guilt and the conviction of the Accused on the said count. The situation, however, is different in respect of count 3 which specifically says after issuing a cheque dated 15. 05.2012 the Accused closed the bank Account. It is a known fact that in banking practices a cheque is valid for a period of six months from the date of its issuance. If a purposive construction is to be given to Section 25 of the Act, it would be reasonable to expect a reasonable man to make certain that all the cheques that had been issued by him had been presented for payment before taking the step of closing the bank Account. If a person acts with honesty, it would be reasonable to expect that person to inform any party to whom such person has issued cheques, his intention to close the bank account giving them a window to present any cheques for payment. In the instant case the Accused had not taken any such step which goes to indicate the dishonest intention on the part of the Accused. In the circumstance I hold that the finding of the Accused guilty on Count 3 is in accordance with the law and I answer the question of law referred to in paragraph (e) in the negative in respect of count 3.

(37) I have already dealt with the question of law referred to in paragraph (f) in paragraphs (13) to (16) of this judgement and answered the issue, as such I do not wish to repeat it here.

(38) The question of law referred to in paragraph (f) raises the question as to whether the learned High Court judge failed to consider that the contention of the petitioner [Accused] is more probable than the version of the respondent. I have expressed the view that the nature of the transaction is not material to decide the liability under Section 25(1) of the Act, unless it is relevant to establish or negate the requisite mens rea. The position taken up by the Accused was that the cheques were given as he borrowed money from the Complainant whereas the prosecution case is that it was given as payment for the stock of garments. When one considers the facts peculiar to the instant case in considering the culpability of the Accused, the non-consideration of probability of the Accused version has no bearing on the charge. As such I answer the question of law raised in paragraph (f) also in the negative.

Orders of the Court

The conviction of the Accused on counts 1 and 3 of the charge sheet dated 20th February 2013 are affirmed.

The conviction of the Accused on counts 2 and 4 of the said charge sheet are set aside and the accused is acquitted on the said counts.

As directed by the learned High Court judge, the magistrate is required to impose an appropriate sentence upon considering the aggravating and mitigatory factors.

The Registrar of this court is directed to return the original magistrate's court case record forthwith and to communicate the judgement of this court to the learned magistrate.

Appeal is partially allowed

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE L.T.B. DEHIDENIYA

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE P. PADAMN SURASENA

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application for Special Leave to Appeal in terms of Article 128(2) of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka, read with section 9(A) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 19 of 1990 and section 31DD (i) of the Industrial Disputes Act from a Judgement of the Provincial High Court of the Western Province (Holder in Colombo).

SC/Appeal/ 182/2019
SC (HC) LA/19/2016
Provincial High Court Revision
No. HCRA 175/2014
LT Case No.13/245/2011

B. K. M. Mahinda
No. 106/D, Meegaha Uyana,
Mabima, Heyyanthuduwa.

APPLICANT

Vs.

Sri Lanka Ports Authority
No. 19, Church Road, Colombo 1

RESPONDENT

AND THEN BETWEEN

Sri Lanka Ports Authority
No. 19, Church Road, Colombo 1

RESPONDENT-PETITIONER

Vs.

B. K. M. Mahinda
No. 106/D, Meegaha Uyana,
Mabima, Heyyanthuduwa

. APPLICANT-RESPONDENT

AND NOW BETWEEN

B. K. M. Mahinda

No. 106/D, Meegaha Uyana,

Mabima,

Heyyanthuduwa

APPLICANT-RESPONDENT-APPELLANT

Vs.

Sri Lanka Ports Authority

No. 19, Church Road,

Colombo 01.

RESPONDENT-PETITIONER-RESPONDENT

Before: Jayantha Jayasuriya PC CJ

Buwaneka Aluwihare PC J

Priyantha Jayawardena PC J

E.A.G.R. Amarasekara J

A.H.M.D. Nawaz J

Counsel: Uditha Egalahewa PC with N. K. Ashokbharan for the Applicant-Respondent- Appellant instructed by R. Pigera.

Viveka Siriwardena ASG with Nirmalan Wigneswaran DSG and Sureka Ahmed SC for the Respondent-Petitioner-Respondent.

Written Submissions: Written submissions of the Applicant-Appellant 29.11.2021

Written submissions of the Respondent 15.12.2021

Argued on: 09.11.2021

Decided on: 26.07.2023

JUDGEMENT

Aluwihare PC. J,

(1) The Applicant-Respondent-Appellant (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Applicant-Appellant") who was employed by the Sri Lanka Ports Authority, the Respondent-Petitioner-Respondent (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Respondent"), filed an application (P1') in terms of Section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act No. 43 of 1950 (as amended), in the Labour Tribunal of Colombo stating inter alia that his services were terminated unlawfully and unjustifiably by the Respondent.

(2) The Respondent raised a preliminary objection that the said application cannot be maintained against it as the Applicant-Appellant had failed to give one-month notice to the Respondent, which the Respondent asserted was required in terms of Section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act No. 51 of 1979 (as amended) (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the SLPA Act"), and moved the Labour Tribunal to dismiss the application.

(3) By order dated 30th June 2014, the learned President of the Labour Tribunal overruled the said preliminary objection and held that Section 54 of the SLPA Act has no application regarding the 'Applications' made to the Labour Tribunal, in terms of Section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act (P10).

(4) Aggrieved by the said order, the Respondent moved by way of revision to the High Court, seeking to have the order of the Labour Tribunal set aside. By order dated 24th February 2016 (P17), the learned High Court Judge set aside the order of the learned President of the Labour Tribunal, upholding the preliminary objection of the Respondent, and dismissed the application filed by the Applicant-Appellant in the Labour Tribunal.

(5) Aggrieved by the said order of the learned High Court Judge, the Applicant-Appellant moved this Court by way of an application for special leave to appeal and special leave was granted on a solitary question of law;

Did the Learned High Court Judge err in law, in coming to the conclusion that Section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act No. 51 of 1979 is a mandatory provision and should be adhered to, even in the filing of an application in the Labour Tribunal in accordance with the Industrial Disputes Act?

The Issue

(6) The fundamental issue to be determined in this appeal is whether an applicant who wishes to invoke the jurisdiction of the Labour Tribunal, is bound by the notice requirement stipulated in section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act.

(7) Section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act stipulates that;

"No Action shall be instituted against the Ports Authority for anything done or purported to have been done in pursuance of this Act-

(a) without giving the Authority at least one month's previous notice in writing of such intended action; or

(b) after twelve months have lapsed from the date of accrual of the cause of action." [Emphasis added]

The Placement of Section 54 in the SLPA Act

(8) The Applicant-Appellant claimed that the purpose and scope of s. 54 of the SLPA Act, as evidenced by its heading and placement is limited to tortious and related damages claims against the SLPA, and has no relevance or application to employment matters and in particular, applications to Labour Tribunals in terms of Section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act.

(9) The meaning of the words used in any part of a statute must necessarily depend on the context in which they are placed, whilst being mindful of the fact that all parts of an enactment must be construed together as forming one whole.

(10) In deciding the issue at hand, it would be pertinent to consider the well accepted canons of interpretations of statutes as well as the decisions handed down by Appellate courts regarding interpretation of provisions of statutes. As Maxwell points out, "Granted that a document which is presented to it [parliament] as a statute is an authentic expression of the legislative will, the function of a court is to interpret that document 'according to the intent of them that made it" [Maxwell on Interpretation of Statutes 12th Edition pg1]

(11) Bindra states that,

"…so far as possible, that construction must be placed upon words used in any part of the statute which makes them consistent with remaining provisions and with the intention of the legislature to be derived from a consideration of the enactment. The words may be given a wider or more restricted meaning than they ordinarily bear, if the context requires it. In construing a particular section of an Act, one must look at the whole Act, and it is necessary to consider the context in which the section occurs." [Interpretation of Statutes, 12th Edition (2017) at page 355] (the emphasis is mine)

(12) In Ram Narain vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR 1957 SC 13, the Supreme Court of India observed that "the meaning of words and expressions used in an Act must take their colour from the context in which they appear" and in the case of Sheikh Gulfan vs. Sanat Kumar Ganguli, AIR 1965 SC 1839, it was said that; "Normally, the words used in a statute have to be construed in their ordinary meaning; but in many cases, judicial approach finds that the simple device of adopting the ordinary meaning of words does not meet the ends of a fair and a reasonable construction. Exclusive reliance on the bare dictionary meaning of words may not necessarily assist a proper construction of the statutory provision in which the words occur. Often enough, in interpreting a statutory provision, it becomes necessary to have regard to the subject-matter of the statute and the object which it is intended to achieve. That is why in deciding the true scope and effect of the relevant words in any statutory provision, the context in which the words occur, the object of the statute in which the provision is included, and the policy underlying the statute assume relevance and become material…"

In Union of India vs. Elphinstone Spg & Wvg Co Ltd (2001) 4 SCC 139, the Indian Supreme Court expressed the view that,

"General words of a particular provision of a statute may be given a restrictive meaning if the context requires it. By 'context' is meant not only the textual context arising out of the other provisions of the statute, but also factual context including the mischief to be remedied, and the circumstances under which the statute was passed. 'Context' refers to the statute as a whole, the previous state of law, other statutes in pari materia, the general scope of the statute and the mischief that it was intended to remedy."

(13) What could be gleaned from the decisions referred to above is that a provision should not be construed as if it stood in isolation from the rest of the statute. When a court is called upon to interpret a term of any provision of a statute, it should not confine its attention to that particular provision. The court should also consider the other parts of the statute which shed light on the intention of the Legislature.

(14) Considering this well-settled principle, Section 54 of the SLPA Act should not, in my view, be interpreted in isolation, but must be looked at in light of its placement in the Act.

Section 54 is found in PART VI of the SLPA Act under the heading "Liability of the Ports Authority".

The first section under this Part, namely Section 45 reads as follows;

"The Ports Authority shall not be liable for any loss, damage or injury caused to any property or person within the limits of any specified port unless such loss, damage or injury is caused by the negligence or wrongful or unlawful act of that Authority or any of its employees or agents acting within the scope of his employment."

(15) The subsequent sections in this Part set out provisions pertaining to the limitation of the liability of the Respondent Authority in relation to any loss, damage or injury caused to any person or property within the limits of any specified port. It is in this context that Section 54 is placed in the Act.

(16) Additionally, Section 52 of the Act states as follows;

"This Part shall not affect any liability that may be imposed on the Ports Authority by any written law relating to compensation to workmen." [Emphasis mine]

(17) It is also pertinent to note that the 'Part' or in other words the 'Chapter' in which Section 54 is placed is titled; "Liability of the Ports Authority". According to Bindra; [supra]

"The title of a chapter in a statute is not a determining factor regarding the interpretation of the provisions of a section in the chapter, but the title certainly throws considerable light upon the meaning of the section, and where it is not inconsistent with the section, one should presume that the title correctly described the object of the provisions of the chapter."

(18) Having taken into account the provisions contained in Part VI of the Act, this chapter, can be said to be dealing with 'the limitation of the liability of the Respondent Authority' in relation to civil claims for damages for any loss, injury or damage caused to persons or property. If the intention of the Legislature was for the notice requirement to encompass and apply to all forms of litigation [against SLPA] including applications to Labour Tribunals filed under Section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act, then this procedural pre-requisite ought to have been placed in the 'General' chapter of the Act instead of Chapter on 'Liability of the Ports Authority'. Part VIII of the Act begins with the Chapter titled 'General'. This Chapter delineates inter alia rules and regulations which may be made by the SLPA, and includes a provision declaring that suit/action does not lie against the SLPA or any of its members for any bona fide act taken under the Act (S.69), and a provision that writs cannot be issued against any member of the SLPA in any action brought against the SLPA (S. 70).

(19) On examination of the provisions of Part VI, as referred to earlier, it is evident that the applicability of section 54 is confined to actions in relation to civil claims for damages for any loss, injury or damage caused to persons or property made against the Sri Lanka Ports Authority. Section 52 in particular highlights that Part VI of the Act was not intended to affect claims made by workmen against the Sri Lanka Ports Authority. Accordingly, in my view, Section 54 of the SLPA Act must be given a restrictive meaning so as to not affect an application made by a workman to a Labour Tribunal.

Whether the termination of employment is an act done in the pursuance of the SLPA Act

(20) Counsel on behalf of the Applicant-Appellant further submitted that section 54 of the SLPA Act is limited in scope to acts done or intended to be done in pursuance of the Act which does not include the termination of services of workmen.

(21) In order to substantiate this contention, the Court's attention was directed towards its interpretation of section 307 (1) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance No. 29 of 1947 (as amended) which stipulates a similar notice requirement. It was submitted that the provisions contained in section 54 of SLPA Act and section 307 (1) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance are similar and work towards the same objective and therefore must be interpreted in a similar manner, considering the principle of pari materia.

Section 307 (1) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance states as follows;

"No action shall be instituted against any Municipal Council, or the Mayor or any Councillor or any officer of the Council or any person acting under the direction of the Council or Mayor for anything done or intended to be done under the provisions of this Ordinance or by any by-law, regulation or rule made thereunder…" (emphasis added).

(22) Several judgments pertaining to the interpretation of Section 307 (1) of this Ordinance have been cited in order to substantiate the abovementioned contention.

In the case of Liyanage vs. Municipal Council Galle (1994) 3 SLR 216 this Court held that,

"Section 307(1) requires notice of action in respect of "anything done or intended to be done under the provisions of [the] Ordinance". Clearly, it is not in respect of every act or omission that notice is required, for if that was the legislative intention section 307(1) could have simply provided that "no action shall be instituted against any Municipal Council [etc.]… until the expiration of one month….

It has been held in Perera vs. Municipal Council, Kandy, that the corresponding section of the old Ordinance- "…applies to causes of action accruing from 'something done or intended to be done under the provisions of the Ordinance.' The entering into forcible possession of another's land cannot be done or intended to be done with any propriety under the Ordinance; at least I hope so."

This was followed in Ferdinandus vs. Municipal Council, Colombo- the plaintiff (ratepayer) sent a blank cheque to the Municipal Council, with instructions to fill it for the amount due as rates; the Council inserted an amount which also included warrant costs. This was held not to be an act done or purported to be done in pursuance of the provisions of the Ordinance, but only under the authority of the ratepayer;

"if the act does not fall within the express ambit of the section….it can neither be regarded as having been performed under the provisions of the Ordinance nor as an act intended to be performed under any such provision."

(23) In Weerasooriya Arachchi vs. Special Commissioner, Galle Municipality (1967) 69 NLR 437, this Court held that,

"Section 307 (2) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance is not applicable to a case where the cause of action arose from an act which was done under section 16 of the Electricity Act and which a Municipal Council has no power to perform under any of the provision of the Municipal Councils Ordinance."

(24) The interpretation of Section 307 (1) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance is that a notice is required only with respect to actions taken under that particular Act and not any other Act. The judgements also recognize that even those actions are subject to exceptions i.e., not all actions under that Act are subject to the notice requirement (eg; mala fide actions). In light of the narrow interpretation accorded to the notice requirement provision in the Municipal Councils Ordinance, it was argued by the learned President's Counsel that a similar interpretation must be rendered to section 54 of the SLPA Act too.

(25) In order to substantiate this contention, the learned President's Counsel for the Applicant-Appellant submitted that the application of section 54 is restricted to "anything done or purported to have been done in pursuance of this Act." (Emphasis added), and that the Act does not vest the Respondent Authority with the power to terminate the services of its employees as it is in fact a term implied by the common law.

(26) It would be appropriate at this stage to briefly discuss an employer's right to terminate employment under common law.

A contract of employment can be terminated in a variety of ways, namely,

a) Termination by the employer on disciplinary grounds and constructive dismissal.

b) Termination by the employer on non-disciplinary grounds. This has assumed particular importance in view of the Termination of Employment of Workmen (Special Provisions) Act, No. 45 of 1971.

c) Termination by operation of law, which includes termination of a contract due to such factors as frustration of contract and impossibility of performance.

d) Termination by effluxion of time, e.g., by the arrival of a mutually agreed date.

Termination by the employee, which may arise due to a variety of circumstances such as resignation, vacation or abandonment of employment or repudiation of the contract by the employee."

(The Contract of Employment, S.R. De Silva, Revised Edition-2017)

(27) The employer's right to terminate the services of an employee has been recognized as a term implied by common law (Roman Dutch Law). In "The Contract of Employment" by S.R. De Silva (2017-Revised Edition), it is stated that;

"In the common law either party was entitled to terminate the contract of employment in accordance with its provisions without consequences."

In "Egalahewa on Labour Law" at page 13, it is stated that;

"Implied terms may also come from common law, which is the foundation of contract of employment. Eg. the right of the employer to select the employee of his choice, to deal with misconduct, right to transfer, right to be supervised and direct the manner of performance, vacation of post, frustration, right to terminate the contract etc. subject, however to the modifications made by the statute law, if any as some of these rights are modified by statute law. The court may always imply statutory terms as are reasonably necessary to give effect to the contract even though the parties have omitted to settle any particular point, before engagement."

(28) In State Distilleries Corporation vs. Rupasinghe (1994) 2 SLR 395, it was held that;

"Under the common law, an employer had an absolute right to terminate the contract of employment (subject only to an obligation as to notice or payment in lieu)…"

(29) In Vasantha Kumara vs. Skyspan Asia (Pvt.) Ltd. (2008) 1 SLR 324, Dr. Shirani Bandaranayake, J. held that,

"It is to be noted that although this position would have been correct under the common law, where either party was entitled to terminate the contract of employment in accordance with its provisions without any consequential effect, the introduction of Labour Laws had modified this position."

(30) Under common law, therefore, an employer has a right to terminate the employment of a workman. On this basis, it was argued on behalf of the Applicant-Appellant that the termination of employment by the Sri Lanka Ports Authority is not an act done in pursuance of the SLPA Act.

(31) The Respondent, on the other hand argued that the long title of the Act and section 7(1) of the SLPA Act covers matters relating to workmen/employees as well.

The Long Title states that; "this Act shall apply for matters in relation to the officers and servants, property, rights, obligations and liabilities of the Port (Cargo) Corporation and the Port Tally and Protective Services Corporation and the public officers of, the property held by, and the rights, obligations and liabilities of, the department of the Port Commissioner…and for connected matters".

It was contended that the objectives of the Respondent Authority spelled out in the Long Title to the Act cannot be achieved without its workmen/employees who thus form an integral part of the Authority and are therefore covered by the Long Title.

Section 7 (1) of the SLPA Act states that the Respondent Authority has the power to;

"(b) employ such officers and servants as may be necessary for carrying out the work of the Authority;

"(e) to make rules in relation to the officers and servants of the Authority, including their appointment, promotion, remuneration, discipline, conduct, leave, working times, holidays and the grant of loans and advances of salary to them;

(f) to make rules and prescribe procedures in respect of the administration of the affairs of the Authority"

It was argued that under sections 7 (1) (e) and (f), the Respondent Authority has the power to make rules regarding conduct and discipline and prescribe procedures relating to the administration of affairs to achieve its objectives and thus it is only logical and pragmatic for the Respondent Authority to terminate the services of the workmen when carrying out the foregoing.

(32) The learned Additional Solicitor General also submitted that by-laws or rules of the SLPA provided for termination of its employees and therefore section 54 encompasses the act of termination of services. Counsel on behalf of the Applicant-Appellant, however, argued that this contention is baseless as section 54 only refers to "the Act" and not to any by-laws, rules or regulations.

(33) It was pointed out that this is in contrast to section 307 (1) of the Municipal Councils Ordinance which makes a notice mandatory for all actions "instituted against any Municipal Council, or the Mayor or any Councillor or any officer of the Council or any person acting under the direction of the Council or Mayor for anything done or intended to be done under the provisions of this Ordinance or by any by-law, regulation or rule made thereunder." (Emphasis added)

(34) The maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius enunciates the maxim of interpretation that the express/specific mention of one item in a list implies the exclusion of other items. This appears to be, in my view, an instance in which this maxim should be applied to raise the inference that the express exclusion of acts done or purported to have been done by any rule, regulation or by-law made under the SLPA Act, denotes that section 54 only applies with respect to acts done in pursuance of the Act itself.

(35) Despite the Respondent's argument that the SLPA Act refers to workmen and that the power to terminate the services of workmen is a necessary act performed under and by virtue of the SLPA Act, there is no specific provision contained in the Act which relates to termination of employment, apart from Section 22A, which states as follows,

> "Where the services of any employee of the Ports Authority are to be terminated on any ground other than that of misconduct, notice of such termination shall be given by the Ports Authority to such employee at least one month before the date of such termination or one month's salary or wages shall be paid to him by such Authority in lieu of such notice."

(36) This section does not vest the Respondent Authority with any power to terminate the employment of workmen. It merely stipulates an obligation that the Respondent Authority has to follow whenever the services of an employee are terminated on non-disciplinary grounds.

(37) Accordingly, there is nothing in the SLPA Act itself, which authorizes the Respondent Authority to terminate the services of a workman. Accordingly, the act of termination of a workman cannot be said to be an act done "in pursuance of this Act". Therefore, the inference that can be drawn is that section 54 of the SLPA Act does not encompass applications made to Labour Tribunals by workmen on the termination of their services.

The Definition of "Action"

(38) It was the contention of the learned President's Counsel for the Applicant-Appellant that the notice requirement contemplated in Section 54 of the Act is only in relation to "Action" filed against the SLPA and that an Application to the Labour Tribunal is not an "Action" within the meaning contained in the Civil Procedure Code but proceedings of sui generis nature.

(39) It was further contended that upon scrutiny of Section 54 of the SLPA Act, it is abundantly clear, the word "Action" referred to therein is an action within the meaning of Sections 5 and 6 of the Civil Procedure Code.

(40) The Applicant-Appellant, in his replication, admitted that he did not give prior notice under section 54 of the Act, on the ground that the Labour Tribunal application filed under the Industrial Disputes Act was for relief or redress and was not an "action" instituted against the Respondent.

(41) The term "Action" has not been defined in the SLPA Act.
In Black's Law Dictionary, 11th Edition, page 37, the term "action" is defined as,

"A civil or criminal judicial proceeding- An action has been defined to be an ordinary proceeding in a court of justice, by which one party prosecutes another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or the punishment of a public offense. But in some sense this definition is equally applicable to special proceedings. More accurately, it is defined to be any judicial proceeding, which if conducted to a determination, will result in a judgment or decree. The action is said to terminate at judgment."

Wharton's Law Lexicon (14th Ed.) states that, "actions are divided into criminal and civil……".

(42) Section 5 of the Civil Procedure Code (CPC) defines "Action" as "a proceeding for the prevention of redress of a wrong"

Section 6 of the CPC states that an action is,

"Every application to a court for relief or remedy obtainable through the exercise of the court's power or authority, or otherwise to invite its interference, constitutes an action."

Learned Counsel appearing for the Applicant-Appellant contended that an application before a Labour Tribunal is a sui generis application, and not an "action". Therefore, Labour Tribunals are not bound by the notice requirement stipulated in section 54 of the SLPA Act which is for "actions" instituted against the Respondent Authority.

(43) It was contended that ex facie, the Civil Procedure Code (CPC) which defines "action" only refers to the matters filed under the CPC, and therefore the CPC has no application to applications filed in a Labour Tribunal under section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act No. 43 of 1950 (as amended).

(44) It was also contended that Section 5 of the Civil Procedure Code which states that the words and expressions mentioned therewith "shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto" not only limits the scope of application of the definitions contained in the CPC but also enunciates the view that no blanket meaning can be attributed to a word and that every term must be interpreted in light of the context and/or subject.

(45) In light of Section 6 of the CPC which states that an action is an "…. application to a court for relief or remedy obtainable through the exercise of the court's power or authority, or otherwise to invite its interference…….", it was argued that applications before Labour Tribunals are not actions as Labour Tribunals are not Courts per se.

(46) The distinction between Tribunals and Courts is said to be further evinced by Article 105 of the Constitution which provides as follows;
"105. (1) Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the institutions for the administration of justice which protect, vindicate and enforce the rights of the People shall be-
(a) the Supreme Court of the Republic of Sri Lanka,
(b) the Court of Appeal of the Republic of Sri Lanka,
(c) the High Court of the Republic of Sri Lanka and such other Courts of the First Instance, tribunals or such institutions as Parliament may from time to time ordain and establish.
(2) All courts, tribunals and institutions created and established by existing written law for the administration of justice and for the adjudication and settlement of industrial and other disputes, other than the Supreme Court, shall be deemed to be courts, tribunals and institutions created and established by Parliament. Parliament may replace or abolish, or amend the powers, duties, jurisdiction and procedure of, such courts, tribunals and institutions." (Emphasis added)

(47) It was submitted that the Constitution itself distinguishes between courts, tribunals and other institutions created and established by existing written law for the administration of justice and for the adjudication and settlement of industrial and other disputes. The contention is that Labour Tribunals are not courts and therefore an application before a Labour Tribunal is not an action as per Section 6 of the CPC.

(48) Furthermore, Section 7 of the CPC states that;

"The procedure of an action may be either regular or summary."

Counsel for the Applicant-Appellant argued that Section 6 read with Section 7 clearly indicate the fact that an "action" as contemplated by the CPC is restricted to "regular" and "summary" actions contained therein, and does not include or even appear to contemplate applications to Labour Tribunals whose proceedings are neither regular nor summary but are of a sui generis nature.

(49) Furthermore, in order to substantiate the contention that Labour Tribunals operate differently from ordinary courts of law, great emphasis was placed on the distinct nature, function and powers of the Labour Tribunal.

(50) It was submitted that Labour Tribunals are conferred with just and equitable jurisdiction and are thus empowered to grant compensation to a workman, even when his/her dismissal is lawful and just, which in turn cannot be strictly construed as the redressing of a wrong. It was also noted that Labour Tribunals are entrusted with powers to be more flexible with procedural and evidential requirements in order to achieve justice and equity which evince their sui generis nature. Hence, it is argued that the Respondent's contention that Labour Tribunals are courts of law in which actions are instituted cannot stand.

(51) It was further submitted that this court has upheld the flexible nature of the Labour Tribunals in Somawathie vs. Backsons Textile Industries Ltd (1973) 79 NLR 204 affirming the position that Labour Tribunals function differently from courts of law and are not strictly bound by procedural requirements.

In this case it was held that (pages 206-207),

"Labour Tribunals were never intended to perform the functions of Courts of Law, and make an order whether the applicant is guilty or not of the allegations made against him by the employer. It is not a verdict that the Law requires from the President but a just and equitable order -order that is just and equitable in relation to the employer and employee and the employer-employee relationship, due consideration being given to discipline and the resources of the employer and even the interests of the public may have been given thought to. It is for this reason that the Labour Tribunals are not confined by the rules of evidence. They can adopt their own procedure, they can act on confession and the testimony of accomplices so that they can have a free hand to make a fair order."

(52) Furthermore, in the High Court case of Sri Lanka Ports Authority vs. Chandrawansa (HCRA/52/2011) it was held that, "What the learned President of the Labour Tribunal is required to do at the end of the inquiry is to pronounce a just and equitable order. This shows that such decisions should not be untrammeled by the technicalities."

(53) However learned Counsel on behalf of the Respondent submitted that this Court has been consistent in holding that Labour Tribunals are bound by the notice requirement stipulated by section 54 as evidenced by the case of Dissanayake Gamini Ratnasiri vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority (SC/Appeal/212/12), where it was held that "when an employee of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority files a case in the Labour Tribunal in terms of section 31B of the Industrial Disputes Act (IDA), he must give one month notice to the Sri Lanka Ports Authority in terms of section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act and if he has failed to comply with the said requirement his application in the Labour Tribunal is bound to be dismissed."

(54) It was further submitted that this position is fortified by the refusal of this Court to grant leave on this notice requirement matter in R.P. Nandasiri vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority (SC/SPL/LA/92/2012) and P. Welis vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority (SC/SPL/LA/230/2009). When leave to appeal was refused in P. Welis vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority, Marsoof PC J stated that "…in view of the fact that there is some evidence that a miscarriage of justice might have occurred in this case, Learned Deputy Solicitor General is requested by Court to see whether some administrative relief can be afforded, after considering any appeal that might be made on behalf of the petitioner to the Respondent Authority with a copy to the Attorney General."

(55) It is argued that this indicates not only the fact that this Court upheld the mandatory nature of the notice requirement but also indicates that in the event of non-compliance with this mandatory requirement, it is the Respondent Authority that must decide on equitable considerations.

(56) Commenting on the Backsons Textile case relied on by the Applicant-Appellant, it was argued that when considering the dicta quoted by the Applicant-Appellant it is evident that this Court had held that in relation to rules of evidence, the Labour Tribunals can adopt their own procedure, which is in fact fortified by Section 34(6) of the Industrial Disputes Act which provides that "In the conduct of proceedings under this Act, any industrial court, labour tribunal, arbitrator, or authorized officer or the Commissioner shall not be bound by any of the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance." Therefore, it is argued that the Applicant-Appellant's stance in relation to the Backsons Textile case is misconceived in law.

(57) It was also contended that apart from section 34(6) of the IDA which limits the application of the Evidence Ordinance to Labour Tribunal proceedings, there is no other provision in the IDA which broadly grants Labour Tribunals immunity from Acts of Parliament. Therefore, it is argued that one month's prior written notice to the Respondent Authority as per section 54 of the SLPA Act must be complied with prior to invoking the jurisdiction of the Labour Tribunal.

(58) Despite Labour Tribunals exercising just and equitable jurisdiction, the Respondent's contention is that equity cannot override Acts of Parliament, and that when Labour Tribunals make just and equitable orders, they must do so within the four corners of the existing legal framework which includes the SLPA Act.

(59) In order to illustrate this point, the Respondent cites the following cases,
In Hayleys v Crossette 363 NLR 248 it was held that,
"…. It is indeed a strange proposition to state that, when section 24 of the Industrial Disputes Act conferred jurisdiction on the Industrial Court to make such award as may appear to the Court to be just and equitable such a Tribunal can completely disregard the law of the country and act in an arbitrary manner. In my opinion, the Industrial Court should take into account the law of the country, and, in particular, the law governing contracts."

(60) In Richard Peiris & Co. Ltd vs. Wijesiriwardena 262 NLR 233 it was held that,

"In regard to the power of the Tribunal to make such order as may appear to be just and equitable there is point in the Counsel's submission that justice and equity can themselves be measured according to the urgings of a kind heart but only within the framework of the law."

(61) In Municipal Council of Colombo vs. Munasinghe 71 NLR 223, H.N.G. Fernando CJ held that,

"…where the Industrial Disputes Act confers on an Arbitrator the discretion to make an Award which is Just and Equitable the Legislature did not intend to confer on an Arbitrator the freedom of the wild horse……An Arbitrator holds no license from the Legislature to make any such Award as he may pleases, for nothing is Just and Equitable which is declared by whim or caprice or by the toss of a double headed coin."

(62) Therefore, it is the Respondent's position that the Labour Tribunal is bound by the Acts/Ordinances/ Laws and Statutes of Parliament and therefore just and equitable orders envisaged under the Industrial Disputes Act must be made within the framework of the law of the country.

(63) The Applicant-Appellant had contended that all actions under the CPC have to either be "regular" or "summary" actions as outlined in Section 7 of the CPC. However, in the case of In re Goonesingha 44 NLR 75 it was held that the classification of actions as regular and summary is not exhaustive. Mosley S. P. J. held that,

"…Crown Counsel's argument was that section 6 is qualified by section 7, which provides that "the procedure of an action may be either regular or summary," and contended that the procedure upon an application for a writ of certiorari is neither regular nor summary. A somewhat similar argument had been advanced in Subramaniam Chetty v. Soysa (supra) in which the question for decision was whether proceedings to set aside a sale constituted an action. That view was rejected by Bertram C. J., who conceived, for the purposes of the case before him, the possibility of "an action within an action". That, of course is not the case here, but, at all events, Bertram C.J. does not appear to have considered that the classification of actions in section 7 as regular or summary is exhaustive."

(64) In the more recent case of Jayawardene vs. Obeysekere and 5 Others, J. A. N. de Silva C.J., held,

"The Civil Procedure Code itself, despite the wording in section 7 paves the way for another type of proceedings i.e. found in chapter VIII to be followed in respect of liquid claims. The procedure set out therein is distinctly different to the "regular" procedure as well as the "summary" procedure already referred to….

…….

The legislature may have in its wisdom adopted various procedures to be followed in relation to the diverse actions which it deems appropriate".

(65) Accordingly, the contention of the Applicant-Appellant that all "actions" under the CPC must follow either the "regular" or "summary" procedure as specified in Section 7 cannot be supported.

(66) The main argument raised by the Applicant-Appellant is that an application before a Labour Tribunal is not an "action" within the meaning of the CPC. In order to assess this contention, it would be useful to determine judicial pronouncements surrounding the term "action".

(67) In M. L. Marikkar vs. Abdul Aziz 1 NLR 196, it was held that the term "action" does not encompass insolvency proceedings. Withers, J. stated "… Action is not an apt term to describe insolvency proceedings, the procedure in regard to which is regulated by Ordinance No. 7 of 1853."

(68) In Silverline Bus Co., Ltd vs. Omnibus Co., Ltd 58 NLR 193, the Privy Council held that an application for a writ of certiorari does not come within the meaning of the term "action" as defined in the CPC. Basnayake, C. J., held,

"… A writ of certiorari is not a means of obtaining a relief or remedy through the Court's power or authority. It is purely a supervisory function of the Court, while section 6 of the Civil Procedure Code contemplates an entirely different function. In my view it would be wrong to read section 6 by itself without reference to other provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. To my mind section 6 when read with the other sections of the Civil Procedure Code leaves no room for the view that a writ of certiorari falls within the definition of action in the code…"

(69) The cases referred to above suggest, that not all applications or proceedings before a Court of Law can be classified as "actions" as defined in the CPC. In determining whether an application or proceeding falls within the meaning of an "action" as per the CPC, it must be examined whether the Court is exercising its ordinary power or authority when dealing with such application or proceeding.

(70) The Applicant-Appellant in addition to contending that a Labour Tribunal is not a "Court", has highlighted many features of Labour Tribunals which distinguish applications before such Labour Tribunals from ordinary claims before a Court. The differences that exist between Labour Tribunals and ordinary Court of law can be seen from an examination of the history surrounding the establishment of Labour Tribunals.

(71) The Industrial Disputes Act was enacted in 1950 with the aim of preventing, investigating and settling industrial disputes and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto, as indicated in its long title. It has long been recognized that the object and purpose of this Act is the maintenance and promotion of industrial peace. In Colombo Apothecaries Co. Ltd Vs. Wijesooriya [70 NLR 481 at p. 490], G.P.A. Silva J said that "…. there can be hardly any doubt-that the sole object of the Act is the promotion and maintenance of industrial peace."

(72) Originally, the remedies provided to a workman under this Act were limited to, conciliation, arbitration, collective bargaining and Industrial Courts. However, these remedies had certain drawbacks. For example, arbitration greatly depended on the co-operation of the employer, when the employer failed to co-operate with the voluntary arbitration process, the only effective remedy available was compulsory arbitration at the discretion of the Minister. Thus, if the Minister did not refer the parties to compulsory arbitration the aggrieved workman would have no remedy available.

(73) Furthermore, when a dispute arose from unfair termination of employment, there was no direct remedy except under the Common Law of Sri Lanka (i.e. Roman Dutch Law) where a workman could resort to a civil action against the employer in the District Court. Since the Roman Dutch Law does not recognize specific performance of a contract of service, the aggrieved party was not entitled to reinstatement either directly by an order for reinstatement or indirectly by an injunction against the employer. Therefore, the only remedy available in a District Court was damages for wrongful termination. In R v. National Arbitration Tribunal, ex parte Horatio Crowther & Co. Ltd (1948) 1 KB 424, it was observed that,
"a remedy which no court of law or equity has ever considered it had power to grant. If an employer breaks his contract of service with his employees…..the workmen's remedy is for damages only. A court of equity has never granted an injunction compelling an employer to continue a workman in his employment or to oblige a workman to work for an employer."

(74) In the backdrop of the aforesaid lacunae found in the Industrial Disputes Act, Labour Tribunals were introduced and established under Part IVA of the Industrial Disputes (Amendment) Act No. 62 of 1957, to which aggrieved workmen whose services had been terminated could directly apply to for relief. Unlike ordinary courts of law which would only consider whether the termination was in terms of the contract, Labour Tribunals go beyond the parameters of the contract in order to ascertain whether the termination was wrongful and is vested with the power to award reinstatement or compensation to an employee who was unfairly dismissed even though the termination was in accordance with the contract, which is in contrast to the approach adopted in the District Courts.

(75) This is clearly evinced by the wording of Section 31B (1)(a) which states that a workman or a trade union on behalf of a workman who is a member of that union can make an application to a Labour Tribunal for relief or redress in respect of the termination of his services by his employer, which implies that termination in accordance with the contract of employment does not bar a workman from seeking relief or redress from a Labour Tribunal. The order of the Tribunal would be on the basis of what appears to it just and equitable.

(76) The sui generis nature of Labour Tribunals which distinguishes them from ordinary courts of law in which actions are instituted was highlighted in the case of The United Workers Union vs. Devanayagam (1967) 69 NLR 289. In this case the Privy Council held that a Labour Tribunal President did not hold judicial office when dealing with an application made to the Tribunal. It was also held that when a direct application is made to a Labour Tribunal, its powers and duties (i.e. to make a just and equitable order) do not differ from the powers and duties of an arbitrator, an Industrial Court or a Labour Tribunal on a reference by the Minister or the Commissioner of Labour. The Privy Council also specifically referred to the fact that in dealing with applications, the Labour Tribunals are not restricted by the terms of the contract of employment in granting relief or redress. Therefore, Labour Tribunals perform a different function to that of an ordinary Court of law.

(77) In consideration of the unique nature of Labour Tribunals and the rationale behind their establishment, the inference that can be drawn is that for the purpose of Section 54 of the SLPA Act, applications filed in the Labour Tribunals cannot be considered as "actions" contemplated in section 54 of that Act. Despite the Respondent's contention that the Industrial Disputes Act does not specifically exclude the application of the SLPA Act, on the interpretation of section 54 it is clear that this procedural pre-requisite has absolutely no bearing on applications filed in Labour Tribunals.

(78) The Respondent relied heavily on the decided case of Dissanayake Gamini Ratnasiri vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority (SC/Appeal/212/12) in support of their position that Labour Tribunals are bound by the notice requirement stipulated by Section 54 of the SLPA Act. In the said case it was held as follows,

"Black's law Dictionary 9th edition page 32, in relation to the word action, states as follows.

"A civil or criminal judicial proceeding- Also termed action at law- An action has been defined to be an ordinary proceeding in a court of justice, by which one party prosecutes another party for the enforcement or protection of a right, the redress or prevention of a wrong, or punishment of a public offence."

In the present case, the Applicant-Appellant prosecutes the Respondent for the enforcement or protection of his right to be in his employment. Thus, in my view, the application filed in the Labour Tribunal falls within the ambit of action.

Section 6 of the Civil Procedure Code reads as follows:

> "Every application to a court for relief or remedy obtainable through the exercise of the court's power or authority, or otherwise to invite its interference, constitutes an action."

In the present case the Applicant-Appellant whose services were terminated by the Respondent has made an application to the Labour Tribunal for relief which can be obtained through the exercise of the power of Labour Tribunal. After considering the above legal literature, I hold that the present application filed in the Labour Tribunal falls within the ambit of the term action in section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act."

(79) On the basis of the reasons stated above, this court in Dissanayake Gamini Ratnasiri vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority has come to the finding that an application to a Labour Tribunal is an action within the meaning of Section 54 of the SLPA Act. The Applicant-Appellant in the present action has raised several novel arguments such as the placement of Section 54 within the SLPA Act, the distinction between a Court and a Tribunal, as well as the sui generis nature of applications before Labour Tribunals which, presumably not urged before the court and thus, not come up for consideration in the aforementioned case. Consequently, I must most respectfully state that I am unable to agree with the findings arrived at in the decision of Dissanayake Gamini Ratnasiri vs. Sri Lanka Ports Authority.

(80) Accordingly, I hold that an application before a Labour Tribunal is not an "action" as contemplated in section 54 of the SLPA Act.

Whether the six-month statutory time limit provided for by Section 31B(7) of the Industrial Disputes Act cannot be fettered by the SLPA Act.

(81) It is noteworthy that Section 31B (7) of the Industrial Disputes Act as amended by Act No. 21 of 2008 imposes a six-month statutory time limit from the date of termination for a workman to make an application to a Labour Tribunal. The Applicant-Appellant submits that the aforementioned six-month statutory time limit is not subject to any other law. It is also submitted that the amendment made by Act No. 21 of 2008 represents the latest intention of the legislature which is to provide an employee six months to file an application before the Labour Tribunal. Accordingly, the Applicant-Appellant's contention is that prior to the submission of such application, if one month's notice is required to be given under S. 54 of the SLPA Act, it would only leave 5 months for a workman to invoke the jurisdiction of the Labour Tribunal. The contention is that the latest intention of the legislature as enacted in 2008, is to grant a six-month limit, and therefore an unrelated provision cannot be said to override the latest intention of the legislature reflected in section 31B (7) of the IDA.

(82) In my view, this position of the Applicant-Appellant cannot be supported. It is indeed possible for two distinct statutes, to set out two different obligations in relation to the same process, without the later statute necessarily having to supersede the earlier statute. There is nothing to suggest that the six-month statutory time period cannot be subject to any other requirements. Nothing in S. 31B(7) of the IDA or Act No. 21 of 2008 suggests that the said section should prevail over the SLPA Act. As the Respondent contends, when two distinct statutes impose different requirements or obligations, they should be read harmoniously so as to give effect to both statutes.

Bindra states that,

"When two provisions are mutually contradictory, they should be interpreted and read together so as to obviate the apparent inconsistency". [Interpretation of Statutes, 8th Edition (2017) at page 507]

Accordingly, I find the contention of the Applicant-Appellant that the six-month statutory time limit provided by Act No. 21 of 2008, being the latest intention of the legislature prevails over all other requirements, cannot be supported.

Conclusion

(83) In conclusion, this Court has arrived at the following findings. Firstly, an "action" as contemplated under section 54 of the SLPA act is an action against the SLPA in relation to civil claims for damages for any loss, injury or damage caused to persons or property and does not encompass an application made by a workman to a Labour Tribunal. Secondly, as the termination of employment of a workman is not an act done in pursuance of the SLPA Act, Section 54 does not apply to an application made by a workman before a Labour Tribunal. Thirdly, an application before a Labour Tribunal is not an "action", as contemplated under section 54 of the SLPA Act but is a proceeding of sui generis nature.

(84) Therefore, having analysed section 54 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act, it can be held that Labour Tribunals are not bound by the notice requirement stipulated in section 54 of that Act and the question of law on which special leave was granted is answered in the affirmative.

(85) Accordingly, the impugned order of the learned High Court judge dated 24.02.2016 is hereby set aside and the application of the Appellant is remitted to the Labour Tribunal to be dealt with expeditiously as the circumstances would permit, in accordance with the law.

Under the circumstances of this case, I do not order costs.

Appeal Allowed

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE JAYANTHA JAYASURIYA PC

I agree

CHIEF JUSTICE

JUSTICE PRIYANTHA JAYAWARDENA PC

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE E.A.G.R. AMARASEKARA

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE A.H.M.D. NAWAZ

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for Leave to Appeal under Section 5C of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No: 19 of 1990 as amended by Act No: 54 of 2006.

SC Appeal No: 188/14

SC/HCCA/LA No: 220/2014

NWP/HCCA/KUR/Appeal No:93/2007 (F)

D.C. Kurunegala Case No: 6014/L

Ratnayake Maudiyanselage
Herath Banda, Thiththawella,
Kubukgete.

Plaintiff

Vs.

1. Ihala Welgamage Abeysinghe,
   Kalawellandawatta,
   Kumbukgete.

2. G.G. Sanjeewa Karunaratne,
   No. 15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

3. Pushpa Karunaratne,
   No.15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

Defendants

AND

1. Ihala Welgamage Abeysinghe,
   Kalawellandawatta,
   Kumbukgete.

2. G.G. Sanjeewa Karunaratne,
   No. 15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

3. Pushpa Karunaratne,
   No.15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

Defendants- Appellants

Vs.

Ratnayake Maudiyanselage Herath Banda,
Thiththawella,
Kubukgete.

Plaintiff- Respondent

AND NOW

Ratnayake Maudiyanselage Herath Banda,
Thiththawella,
Kubukgete.

Plaintiff- Respondent-Appellant

Vs.

1. Ihala Welgamage Abeysinghe,
   Kalawellandawatta,
   Kumbukgete.

2. G.G. Sanjeewa Karunaratne,
   No. 15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

3. Pushpa Karunaratne,
   No.15, Jayawardane Place,
   Hill Street, Dehiwala.

Defendants- Appellants-Respondents

BEFORE:	MURDU N.B.FERNANDO, PC, J. YASANTHA KODAGODA, PC, J. K.KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.
COUNSEL:	Jacob Joseph for the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant Roshan Dayaratne instructed by R.Gamage for the Defendant-Appellant-Respondents.
WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS:	By the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant on 28th of November, 2014 and 8th of April 2022. By the Defendant-Appellant-Respondent on 6th of January, 2015 and 15th of March 2022.
ARGUED ON:	21.02.2022.
DECIDED ON:	12.06.2023.

K. KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.

This is an appeal from a judgment of the High Court of the North Western Province, Kurunegala dated 27.03.2014 which set aside the judgment of the District Court of Kurunegala, case bearing No: 6014/L dated 30.04.2007.

The Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the "Appellant") instituted the initial action before the District Court of Kurunegala against the Defendants-Appellants-Respondents (hereinafter referred to as the "Respondents") seeking a declaration that the Appellant is entitled to the land described in the schedule to the Plaint, ejectment of the Defendants from the subject land and claiming damages. The Respondents sought the dismissal of the Appellants' action and claimed prescriptive title to the property.

After the conclusion of the trial, the District Court delivered the Judgment in favour of the Appellant and ordered damages to be paid till vacant possession is given to the Appellant. Aggrieved by the said decision, the Respondents appealed to the High Court of the Northwestern Province, Kurunegala. In the Judgment of the High Court, it was held that the Appellant's action being a Rei Vindicatio action, the Appellant had to prove the title to the land in the suit and the Deed marked "P2" produced by the Appellant does not refer to the crown grant given to the vendor, the father of the vendees in "P2". The Learned High Court Judges presumed that the land has been granted under the Land Development Ordinance and questioned whether the correct legal procedure under the said act was followed by the vendor of the Deed marked P2 when alienating the land to the Appellant. Since the crown grant was not produced, their Lordships applied the presumption in Section 114(F) of the Evidence Ordinance and held that no title was passed to the Appellant.

The Appellant is before this Court challenging the said Judgment. This Court by Order dated 17.10.2014, granted Leave to Appeal on the questions of law stated in paragraph 24 (i) to (vi) of the Petition dated 07.05.2014, as set out below.

1. Did the High Court of the Northwestern Province Kurunegala err in law in holding that the Petitioner has not proved the title to the land in the suit?

2. Did the High Court act on assumptions and presumptions which were not warranted and against the issues raised and the weight of evidence in the above case?

3. Did the High Court fail to consider that the Respondents were only relying on the alleged prescriptive right of their Father Karunaratne who was not a party to the case?

4. Did the High Court fail to consider the substance of the defence put forward by the Respondents namely Jus tertii?

5. Whether the said Judgment of the High Court is against the evidence led in the case by the Appellant and the Respondents?

6. Did the High Court err in law in holding that the trial Judge has failed to investigate the title properly and holding in favour of the Appellant?

My analysis hereafter will be confined to examining the aforesaid questions of law based on which leave was granted.

The first matter for consideration by this court is whether the High Court erred in law in holding that the Appellant has not proved the title to the land in suit. This action indubitably being a rei vindication action, the onus clearly lies on the Appellant to establish his title to the land in question.

In Abeykoon Hamine v. Appuhamy, (1950) 52 N.L.R. 49, at page 49-55, Dias, SPJ. quoted with approval, the decision of de Silva v. Goonetileke (1931) 32 N.L.R. 27, where Macdonell, C.J., had stated that,

> "There is abundant authority that a party claiming a declaration of title must have title himself. —To bring the action rei vindication plaintiff must have ownership actually vested In him‖- 1 Nathan p.362, s. 593……..This action arises from the right of dominium…….The authorities unite in holding that plaintiff must show title to the corpus in dispute, and that if he cannot, the action will not lie."

This position was affirmed in Peeris v. Savunhamy (1951) 54 N.L.R. 207, at page 208 where Dias SPJ. With Gratiaen J. agreeing stated that,

> "This being an action for declaration of title, and the defendants being in possession, the burden lay on the plaintiff to prove that she had dominium to the land in dispute".

Further, in commenting on the standard according to which the plaintiff in a vindication action is required to establish, H.N.G. Fernando J, in Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 N.L.R 169, at page 171 stated that,

> "I have no doubt that it is open to a lessor in an action for ejectment to ask for a declaration of title, but the question of difficulty which arises is whether the action thereby becomes a rei vindicatio for which strict proof of the Plaintiff's title would be required, or else is merely ono for a declaration (without strict proof) of a title which the tenant is by law precluded from denying."

Accordingly, the Appellant has to narrate and prove his title fully in strict sense. The Respondent has raised two main issues under the first question of law during the arguments. Firstly, the Appellant has failed to produce the crown grant mentioned in the Deed marked P2 which the Appellant has primarily relied on in proving documentary title before both District Court and Civil Appellate High Court. Secondly, that the Appellant has failed to prove the identity of the subject matter in the present action.

With regard to the first issue, the Deed marked P2 which the Appellant has relied upon is a Deed of Transfer No. 117 dated 05.01.1960 attested by Anton Wilson Amirthanayagam Emmanuel, Notary Public. The vendor in the said Deed is one Kalukumara Mudiyanselage Banda and it refers to three allotments of lands namely,

1. Land called Kadurugahamulahene, Dalupothebogahamulahena, and Dalupothevewaismaththeva depicted as Lots 96, 211 and 215 in Title Plan No. S 20383 dated 23.02.1948 consisting of 3 Acres 2 Roods 23 Perches (3A-2R-23P) held and possessed by the said Vendor under and by virtue of Settlement Order No.993 dated 07.12.1948,
2. Land called Kurundungollahena and Bulugahamulahenayaya depicted as Lot 156 in Title Plan No.9169 dated 28.03.1951 consisting of 2 Acres 1 Rood 20 Perches (2A-1R-20P), and

3. Land called Konmadehena and Konmadegala depicted as Lots 57 and 58 in the Plan No. 9168 dated 28.03.1951 consisting of 1 Acre 3 Roods 34 Perches (1A-3R-34P) held and possessed by the said Vendor under and by virtue of Crown Grant dated 19.07.1951.

The subject matter to this action is the third allotment of land which is the land called Konmadehena and Konmadegala situated at Thittawella village.

As per the position of the Appellant, the said Kalukumara Banda by the abovementioned Deed marked P2 has transferred the title to the land in question to H.M.Dingiri Banda, H.M.Bandara Menike, H.M.Mudiyanse and H.M.Appuhamy.
The said H.M Dingiri Banda, H.M. Bandara Menike, the successors of other vendees, namely, H.M. Wasantha Piyathilaka Herath, H.M, Seneviratne Banda, H.M Jayawardhana Banda and H.M Amarasooriya Banda have amicably divided the land among themselves by Deed No.15911 dated 29.09.1997 attested by Padma Kumari Wanigasooriya, Notary Public according to Plan No.96213 dated 31.12.1996 made by H.Wijetunge, Licensed Surveyor.
By the abovementioned Deed No.15911, H.M. Bandara Menike and H.M. Wasantha Piyathilaka Herath became entitled to the land marked Lot 1 in Plan No.96213 consisting of 3 Roods 37 Perches (A0-R3-P37) and they have transferred their portion of land to the Appellant of the present case by Deed No.15420 dated 26.02.1997 attested by Padma Kumari Wanigasooriya, Notary Public.

The issue raised by the Respondents is that the Appellant had failed to correctly establish the chain of title by not producing the Crown Grant mentioned in the Deed marked P2.

With regard to establishing the chain of title in rei vindicatio action, in Kanapadian v. Pieters 9 S.C.C Vol. ix No. 47-185 Clarence J. stated that,

> "where title to land is a circumstance upon which the plaintiff bases his claim to relief, the intention of the Code is that title should be disclosed in the plaint so that the defendant may have notice of the case which he has to meet."

Nevertheless, in the same case it was further stated that,

> "The defendant might have asked to have the plaint taken off the file, as not disclosing the title set up. The Defendant however took no such course, but answered traversing plaintiff's averments as to ownership and possession and setting up a specific title in himself*".[emphasis added]*

In the abovementioned case, the plaintiff failed to disclose how he obtained title. Even in the absence of such, the court decided to allow the plaintiff to amend the plaint on the sole basis of the defendant's failure to raise objections at the right time.

In the present case, the Appellant has established the chain of title to the land in question from 1960 by presenting the relevant deeds and thereby, has fully disclosed how he lawfully became entitled to the land in question.

Thus, it is noteworthy that none of the documents produced by the Appellant was objected by the Respondents. Henceforth, the Respondents answered the averments of the Appellant by setting up a specific title to himself. As stated by Samarakoon, C.J., in Sri Lanka Ports Authrity and another v. Jugoilnija – Boat east (1981) 1 Sri L.R 18, at page 24,

> "if no objection to any particular marked document is taken when at the close of a case documents are read in evidence, they are evidence for all purposes of law".

The above decision was followed by the Supreme Court in the case of Balapitiye Gunananda Thero Vs. Thalalle Methananda Thero [1997] 2 Sri L.R 101 which stated at page 101 that,

> "When a document is admitted subject to proof but when tendered and read in evidence at the close of the case is accepted without objection, it becomes evidence in the case. This is the cursus curiae."

Therefore, it is evident that the Respondents have neither questioned the documentary title of the Appellant to the land in question nor have they objected to any of the documents the Appellant produced as evidence. Hence, this constitutes an acceptance of the Appellant's documentary title by the Respondents.

Moreover, the Deed marked P2 contains details of the Crown Grant and the Appellant has also produced the said Crown Grant before this court.

While considering the possibility of accepting fresh document at the appeal stage, Beatrice Dep v. Lalani Meemaduwa [1997] 3 Sri L.R Ismail J. at page 379 stated that,

> "In order to justify the reception of fresh evidence or a new trial three conditions must be fulfilled:
>
> i) It must be shown that the evidence could not have been obtained with reasonable diligence for use at the trial.
>
> ii) Evidence must be such that if given it would probably have an important influence on the result of the case, although it need not be decisive.
>
> iii) The evidence must be such as is presumable to be believed or in other words it must be apparently credible although it need not be incontrovertible."

Further, in Endiris de Silva v Arnolis 33 – C.L.W 39, Dias J. stated at page 39 that,

> "It is, of course, obvious that this right is one which must be very cautiously exercised but the court would have less hesitation in admitting such evidence when it consist of a judicial record, or a deed or a similar evidence which came into existence long before the dispute arose and the chances of fabrication are extremely remote*" [emphasis added]*

In the present case, as per the page 5 of the decision of the High Court the Appellant has stated that he does not possess the said Crown Grant and it is in the possession of H.M. Wasantha Piyathilake. However, the Appellant has presented all the deeds in his possession and the Deed marked P2 contains all the material details of the Crown Grant.

In light of these circumstances, this court is of the opinion that the Crown Grant presented by the Appellant which the argument of the Respondent is vehemently based upon must be accepted on the following grounds,

i. this Crown Grant bears an important influence on the result of the case,
ii. it is apparently credible,
iii. the Crown Grant was executed in 1951 long before the dispute arose,
iv. the Deed marked P2 produced by the Appellant mentions the material details of the Crown Grant. Therefore, there is no room for fabrication of such,
v. the rejection of such would lead to a miscarriage of justice.

The Respondent has further contended that the Partition Deed No. 15911 which the transferors of Deed No.15420 acquired their title has been executed on 29.09.1997 which is subsequent to the Appellant's title Deed (Deed No.15420 dated 26.02.1997).

Nonetheless, the Privy Council in The Colombo Apothecaries Company Limited v. M.A.Peiris and Others Appeal 58 N.L.R 361 at page 361 stated that,

"when a deed of transfer of immovable property is executed at a time - when the grantor has no title to the property, the subsequent acquisition of title by the grantor would not only give the benefit of such title to the instrument already executed but would also give the granter the benefit of priority by the registration of that instrument."

In Rajapkse v. Fernando 20 N.L.R 30, Lord Moulton at page 495 has stated that,

"Where a grantor has purported to grant an interest in land which he did not at the time possess, but subsequently acquires,, the benefit of his subsequent acquisition goes automatically to the benefit of the earlier grantee."

In light of these circumstances, it is evident that the subsequent acquisition of title by the grantors by the Partition Deed No.15911 gave the title to the Appellant and the exception rei venditae et traditae applies to this situation.

The second main issue raised by the learned Counsel for the Respondent is that the Appellant had failed to correctly identify the land in question, and this must be considered as a fatal weakness in the Appellant's action.

In Jamaldeen Abdul Latheef and v. Abdul Majeed Mohamed Mansoor and another [2010] 2 Sri L.R at page 377-378, Saleem Marsoof J. quoted with approval, a passage from Wille's Principles of South African Laws (9th Edition -2007) at pages 539-540 which stated that,

".. to succeed with an action rei vindication, which this case clearly is, the owner must prove on a balance of probabilities, not only his or her ownership in the property, but also that the property exists and is clearly identifiable*" [emphasis added]*

In the above case neither the Surveyors of the Plan referred to in the Plaint nor other witnesses who testified at the trial placed any evidence in identifying the northern and southern boundaries in the land in dispute. Hence, it was held at page 384 that,

“In the absence of such evidence, there is no justification to conclude that the boundaries of the land surveyed by these surveyors as the land in dispute, tally with the land described in the schedule to the petition of the Respondents.”

In the present case, the land described in the schedule to the plaint according to the Plan No. 96213 made by H.Wijetunga, Licensed Surveyor on 31.12.1996 is as follows,

"බලයලත් මිනින්දෝරු එච්. විජේතුංග විසින් සාදන ලද අංක 96213 දරණ පිඹුරේ කැබලි අංක 1ට මායිම්:

උතුරට: පී.පී.ආර් කරුණාරත්නට අයිති ඉඩම,

දකුණට: මමෙ පිඹුරේ 2ඒ් සහ 2බී් ද,

නැගෙනහිර: එම්.පී වික්‍රමසිංහට අයිති ඉඩම,

බස්නාහිරට: කොන්මඩේ වැව ද යන මායිම් තුල රූඩ් තුනයි පර්චස් තිස් හතක් විශාල ඉඩම”

The identification of the subject matter was in dispute at the trial and on a Commission issued by Court, E.G.A. Edirisinghe, Licensed Surveyor prepared the Plan No.202106 dated 16.08.2002. The boundaries of the disputed land is described in the above plan as follows, බලයලත් මිනින්දෝරු ඒ.ඒ.ජී එදිරිසිංහ විසින් සාදන ලද අංක 202106 දරණ පිඹුරේ කැබලි අංක 1ට මායිම්:

උතුරට: වැව ,

දකුණට: මමෙ පිඹුරේ 2ඒ් සහ 2බී් ද,

නැගෙනහිර: එම්.පී වික්‍රමසිංහට අයිති ඉඩම,

බස්නාහිරට: කොන්මඩේ වැව ද යන මායිම් තුල අක්කර එකයි රූඩ් එකයි පර්චස් දකෙයි දශම අනුවක් විශාල ඉඩම

Doubts in regard to the identity of the land sought to be vindicated arises from the inconsistencies in the northern boundary of the above two survey plans. However, it is important to emphasize that the H.Wijetunga, Licensed Surveyor who prepared the Plan No.96213 testified at the trial and admitted that the alleged discrepancy in the copies of the Plan No.96213 marked P (1) by the Appellant and V (1) by the Respondent was a mistake on his part (page 273 of the brief). Mr. Wijetunga was also shown the plan prepared by Mr.Edirisinghe and as per page 284 of the brief he admitted that Lot 5 in Plan No.202106 is the Tank and beyond that is the land possessed by the Respondents (පී.පී.ආර් කරුණාරත්නට අයිති ඉඩම). The Respondent presented another plan prepared by Rohan Rathnayake, Licensed Surveyor bearing No.66/2003 which also shows the Tank beyond the Northern boundary of Lot 1.

As the Licensed Surveyor who prepared the plan referred to in the Plaint has testified at the court and clearly stated the boundaries of the land, it is evident that the identity of the land has been properly proved by the Appellant.

Moreover, the Respondents have argued that according to the Appellant's title deed (Deed No.96213) his total entitlement is only a land of three Roods and thirty seven Perches (A0-R3-P37) but the land already possessed by the Appellant as per Plan No.202106 is one Acre one Rood and two decimal nine zero Perches (A1-R1-P2.90) which is very much more than his entitlement.

However, it must be noted that the land possessed by the Appellant as per the Plan No.202106 includes his wife's share as well which was admitted in the court. (page 150 of the brief) Therefore, I am of the view that the Appellant has correctly proved the identity of the land and his title to the same.

Hence, in relation to the first question of law, I conclude that the Appellant has correctly proved his title to the land in question.

The second question of law that must be determined is whether the High Court acted on assumptions and presumptions which were not warranted and against the issues raised and the weight of evidence in the above case.

The Learned Judge of the High Court has stated in page 5 of his Judgment that the Deed marked P2 does not refer to the crown grant given to the vendor, the father of the vendees in "P2" and the said crown grant was not produced in evidence.

In the absence of such, the High Court applied the presumption in Section 114(F) of the Evidence Ordinance in arriving at the conclusion that the father of the Appellant, the vendor in Deed marked P2 had failed to follow the correct procedure under the Land Development Ordinance No.19 of 1935. Thereby, no title has been passed to the Appellant, the vendee of the said deed.

In Hemathilake v Allina and Others [2003] 2 Sri L.R, Somawasa,J at page 147 stated that,

> "What section 114 of the Evidence Ordinance provides for is the common sense advice that court may from a proved fact infer another fact which it thinks is likely to be true regard being had to human conduct and the common course of natural events. The particular facts of each case must be carefully considered before any inference is drawn under section 114 of the Evidence Ordinance."

In Walimunige John v. State 76 N.L.R 488, G.P.A Silva J. stated that,

> "But where one witness's evidence is cumulative of the other and would be a mere repetition of the narrative, it would be wrong to direct a jury that the failure to call such witness gives rise to a presumption under section 114 (f) of the Evidence Ordinance."

Further, Dr.U.L.Abdul Majeed at page 721 of his book called "Applicability of the Evidence Ordinance in Civil Action" has stated that,

> "This illustration deals with the presumption which arises from withholding evidence and from the spoliation or fabrication or suppression of evidence. The conduct of the person withholding the evidence may be attributed to a supposed consciousness that the evidence if produced would operate against him. An adverse inference can be drawn against a party if there is withholding of evidence and not merely on account of the failure of the party to obtain evidence*". [emphasis added]*

These authorities elucidates that the court must first be satisfied that the evidence was available and was withheld before applying the presumption under Section 114 (f) of the Evidence Ordinance. Accordingly, there is no presumption if the evidence is not within the control of the party failing to produce it and if it is cumulative of the other.

In the present case, the Appellant has clearly mentioned at the trial that he does not possess the said Crown Grant and it is in the possession of one, Wasantha Piyathilake. (page 122 of the brief) This elucidates that the Appellant never tried to withhold the evidence but rather failed to obtain it as it was not within the control of the Appellant. Further, it must be noted that the material details of the said Crown Grant are mentioned at the schedule of the Deed marked P2. Thenceforth, this document must be considered as cumulative of the other evidence already produced by the Appellant.

Hence, I am of the opinion that the presumption that the High Court Judge acted upon is unwarranted and is against the weight of the evidence of this case.

The third and fourth matters for consideration by this court can be examined together as both of these questions of law are on the defence of jus tertii and the alleged prescriptive title of the father of the 2nd and 3rd Respondents who is not a party to the case.

The Respondent in answering the Plaint of the Appellant in the District Court has claimed prescriptive title to the land in question. The Respondent has taken the position that one, R.Karunarathne, the father of the Respondents had prescribed the said portion of land. Nevertheless, there are two main lacunas in their claim. First, the Respondent has failed to give any definite period with regard to the commencement of their prescriptive possession. Second, the said R.Karunaratne has not been made a party to the present action.

With regard to the first lacuna, in S.K. Chelliah v. Wijerathan et al. 54 N.L.R 337, Gratiaen J, at page 342 has stated that,

> "Where a party invokes the provisions of Section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance in order to defeat the ownership of an adverse claimant to immovable property, the burden of proof rests fairly and squarely on him to establish a starting point for his or her acquisition of prescriptive rights."

This position was affirmed in Sirajudeen and Two Others v. Abbas [1994] 2 Sri L.R 365.

Therefore, it is evident that in the present case, the Respondents cannot succeed on the prescriptive title to the land in question as they have failed to provide any definite time period with regard to the commencement of their prescriptive possession.

When analyzing the second lacuna pointed out, the defence of jus tertii has been considered as a valid defense in several Sri Lankan Judgments. In Allis Appu v. Endris Hamy (1894) 3 S.C.R 87, and Dharmalankara Thero v. Ahamadulebbe Marikkar (1952) 54 N.L.R. 181, the applicability of this defence under our law was conceded.

Nevertheless, in Dharmasena v. Alles [1985] 2 Sri L.R 35, G.P.S. De Silva J, by citing Timothy David v Ibrahim (1910) 13 N.L.R. 318 with approval, observed that a party to a suit cannot under Section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance set up a title of a third party who has not been joined in the action.

Similarly, in Luwis Singho and Others v. Ponnamperuma 1996 2 Sri L.R 320 Wigneswaran J. at page. 321 has stated that,

> "While refusing to accept the submission that jus tertii as a defence in vindicatory actions is not available under our law, it must be admitted that jus tertii as a defence in cases filed for Declaration of Title and ejectment based on the provisions of section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance would not be available if the third party is not a predecessor in Title or has not been joined in the action*." [emphasis added]*

In light of these circumstances, I am of the view that the Respondents cannot rely on the defence of jus tertii as the third party; R. Karunaratne has not been joined in the action.

The fifth question of law that needs to be examined is whether the said Judgment of the High Court is against the evidence led in the case by the Appellant and the Respondents.

The decision of the Learned High Court Judge is solely based on the Appellant's failure to produce the said Crown Grant before the court. At page 5 of the High Court Judgment, it is stated that the Appellant has failed to substantiate that the said land was granted to the original owner by the crown and has also failed to reveal when it was granted.

However, it is to be noted that at the schedule of the Deed marked P2 it is clearly mentioned that the said land was "held and possessed by the said vendor under and by virtue of Crown Grant dated 19.07.1951". It is unfortunate that the Learned High Court Judge has failed observe this material detail in the evidence adduced by the Appellant and has thereby, unwarrantedly presumed that said grant was made after 1951. (page 6 of the Judgment of the High Court of Kurunegala)

To further prove his title to the land in question, the Appellant in this case has presented all the relevant deeds as evidence and also has answered the issues raised by the Respondents with regard to the alleged discrepancies in the Plans through the oral evidence. (pages 266-279 of the brief)

Nevertheless, none of these evidence were considered by the Learned High Court Judge in arriving at his conclusion. Further, the High Court Judge disregarded that the Respondents in the present case has not produced any evidence whatsoever to substantiate their claim of prescriptive title to the land in question. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the Judgment of the High Court is against the evidence led in the case by the Appellant and the Respondents.

The sixth and the last question of law to be examined is whether the High Court erred in law in holding that the trial Judge has failed to investigate the title properly and holding in favour of the Appellant.

As correctly pointed out by the trial judge, the plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action need not prove anything other than his documentary title to the corpus. The appellant has produced two deeds, Deed No. 117, where the original owner transferred the title to the vendees, and Deed No. 15911, where two of the said vendees transferred their title to the appellant, to prove his title to the land. It must be noted that none of these documents were disputed by the Respondents at the trial. To further substantiate his claim, the Appellant called several witnesses including the Licensed Surveyor who prepared the plans he presented to the court. The trial judge before arriving at his conclusion has comprehensively analyzed all of such oral and documentary evidence adduced by the Appellant in proving his title to the land in question.

When considering all the above discussed circumstances, it is evident that the Appellant in the present case has correctly proved his title to the subject matter and his claim has met all the requirements in a rei vindicatio action. On the other hand, the Respondents have failed to bring conclusive evidence to defend his prescriptive title to the land in question.

Having examined the facts of the case, and the material placed before this court, I allow the appeal of the Appellant and hold that the Appellant is entitled to the subject matter of this action. The judgment of the High Court of Kurunegala dated 27.03.2014 is set aside and the judgment of the District Court of Kurunegala dated 30.04.2007 is affirmed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

MURDU N. B. FERNANDO, PC., J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

YASANTHA KODAGODA, PC., J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for Leave to Appeal under Article 128 of the Constitution read along with Section 5(1) (C) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 54 of 2006.

Liyana Athukoralalage Indrawathie,
1/418, Madugashandiya,
Mandawala.

S.C. Appeal No. 190/2016
SC/HCCA/LA No. 263/2015
WP/HCCA/AV/1206/2011(F)
D.C. Pugoda Case No. 831/L

Plaintiff

Vs.

1. Galolu Kankanamalage Dharmasena,
   Mee Ambawatte, Mandawala.

2. Gunarathna Arachchilage Don
   Linton Gunarathna, No. 208/A,
   Mahamera Road, Ihala Lunugama,
   Mandawala.

Defendants

AND

Liyana Athukoralalage Indrawathie,
1/418, Madugashandiya,
Mandawala.

Plaintiff-Appellant

Vs.

1. Galolu Kankanamalage Dharmasena,
   Mee Ambawatte, Mandawala.

2. Gunarathna Arachchilage Don
Linton Gunarathna, No. 208/A,
Mahamera Road, Ihala Lunugama,
Mandawala.

Defendant-Respondents

AND NOW BETWEEN

Liyana Athukoralalage Indrawathie,
1/418, Madugashandiya,
Mandawala.

Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant

Vs.

1. Galolu Kankanamalage Dharmasena,
Mee Ambawatte, Mandawala.

2. Gunarathna Arachchilage Don
Linton Gunarathna, No. 208/A,
Mahamera Road, Ihala Lunugama,
Mandawala.

Defendant-Respondent-Respondents

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare, P.C., J.

A. L. Shiran Gooneratne, J.

Janak De Silva, J.

Counsel:

Dr. Sunil Coorey for Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant

Seevali Amitrigala, PC with Pathum Wijepala for Defendant-Respondent-Respondents

Written Submissions:

06.02.2017 by the Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant

09.03.2017, 27.12.2017 and 26.05.2023 by the Defendant-Respondent-Respondent

Argued on: 04.05.2023

Decided on: 02.10.2023

Janak De Silva, J.

The Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant (Plaintiff) owns an undivided 1/3 share of land called Millagahawatta that is about R.2 P.3 in extent. The Appellant, by deed of transfer No. 5858 (P2) dated 14.12.2001 attested by M.A.N.A. Marasinghe, Notary Public, transferred an undivided 20 perches from the said land to the 1st Defendant-Respondent-Respondent (1st Defendant). On 27.05.2003, the 1st Defendant, by deed of transfer No. 105 (P3) attested by G.K. Gunasekera, Notary Public transferred the said portion to the 2nd Defendant-Respondent-Respondent (2nd Defendant).

On 31.07.2006 the Appellant instituted this action against the 1st and 2nd Defendants and sought a declaration that the 1st Defendant held the title to the said land subject to a constructive trust in favour of the Plaintiff, that deed No. 105 (P3) is null and void, or in the alternative that deed No. 5858 (P2) is null and void on the principle of laesio enormis and for the ejectment of the 2nd Defendant and those holding under him from the land described in the 2nd schedule to the amended plaint.

The case of the Plaintiff is that she sought a loan from the 1st Defendant in a sum of Rs. 50,000/= as she was in need of money. The 1st Defendant wanted her to bring a deed and agreed to reconvey the land once the loan was repaid with the interest. Accordingly, she obtained Rs. 40,000/= by executing deed No. 5858 (P2). The Plaintiff had repaid 7 instalments but failed to do so thereafter. The Plaintiff was not in a position to repay the loan when the 1st Defendant demanded repayment. Then the 2nd Defendant agreed to repay the outstanding loan to the 1st Defendant on behalf of the Plaintiff and accordingly deed No. 105 (P3) was executed. The 2nd Defendant agreed to retransfer the land upon the Plaintiff paying him back the loan with interest.

The versions of the 1st and 2nd Defendants are diametrically opposed to the case of the Plaintiff. They claimed that both deeds, i.e. Nos. 5858(P2) and 105(P3) were executed as outright transfers and that there was no agreement to reconvey.

The action was dismissed by the learned District Judge after trial, subject to costs. He primarily proceeded on the basis that deed No. 5858 (P2) was an outright transfer and that there was no express provision to be found, either in deed No. 5858(P2) or in deed No. 105(P3), regarding retransfer of the land to the Plaintiff.

Aggrieved by the judgment of the District Court, the Appellant appealed to the High Court of the Western Province (Civil Appeal) holden in Avissawella (High Court). The High Court dismissed the appeal subject to costs of Rs. 5000/=. The absence on the face of deed No. 5858(P2) or in deed No. 105(P3) about a loan and an agreement to reconvey also weighed heavily in the outcome.

Leave to appeal has been granted on the following questions of law:

1. Has the High Court failed to consider whether there were, and if so, what attendant circumstances there were, when deed No. 5858 was executed, from which it could be inferred that the Plaintiff did not intend to dispose of the beneficial interest on the interests conveyed by that deed?
2. Has the High Court and the District Court both erred in law by dismissing this action of the Plaintiff merely on the finding that there was no express provision to be found, either in deed No. 5858 or in deed No. 105, regarding retransfer of the land to the Plaintiff?
3. Whether the attendant circumstances having proved to establish a trust?

I will consider questions of law No. 2 and then No 1, in that order, as it examines the validity of the basis of the judgments of the District Court and High Court. Thereafter, I will examine question of law No. 3.

Question of Law No. 2

Issue Nos. 10, 11 and 12 read as follows:

(10) ඒ අනුව 1 වන විත්තිකරු අංක 5858 දරණ ඔප්පුවේ සඳහන් දේපළ පැමිණිලිකාරියගේ වාසියට වූ අනුමිත බාරයක් ලෙස දරා සිටින්නේද?

(11) මෙම නඩුවට අදාළ දේපළ 1 වන විත්තිකරු විසින් පැමිණිලිකාරියගේ වාසියට වූ අනුමිත බාරයක් ලෙස දරා සිටින අතරතුරදී එකී දේපළ අංක 105 හා 2003.05.27 දින දරණ පී. කේ. ගුණසේකර ප්‍රසිද්ධ නොතාරිස් තැනගේ ඔප්පුවෙන් 2 වන විත්තිකරුට පවරා ඇත්ද?

(12) 1 වන විත්තිකරු විසින් 2 වන විත්තිකරුට සිය දේපළ පවරන අවස්ථා වේදී 1 වන විත්තිකරු විසින් පැමිණිලිකාරියගේ වාසියට වූ අනුමිත බාරයක් ලෙස පැමිණිල්ලේ 2 වන උපලේඛනයේ සඳහන් දේපළ දරා සිටින බව 2 වන විත්තිකරු දැන සිටියේද?

It is evident that the Plaintiff's case was based on a constructive trust. Nonetheless, both the District Court and the High Court seem to have proceeded without fully comprehending the distinction between an express trust and a constructive trust.

Undoubtedly, Section 97 of the Trusts Ordinance declares that the duties, liabilities, and disabilities of a trustee under both an express and an implied trust are the same. There is no universal consensus on the meaning of express trust and constructive trust. Still, there is a distinction. The intention of the settlor to establish a trust is the foundation of an express trust. On the other hand, a constructive trust arises from the operation of law. As Birks states [Peter Birks, An Introduction to the Law of Restitution (Revised Ed. Oxford University Press, 1989, page 65)] "[T]here is a fine but important distinction between [positive] intent conceived as creative of rights [for express trusts] … and [positive] intent conceived as a fact which, along with others, calls for the creation of rights [through a constructive trust]". Hence, although it may be a fine difference, there is nevertheless a difference between an express trust and a constructive trust which must be recognized by court.

Accordingly, it is appropriate to begin by examining the provisions of the Trust Ordinance, which deal with express and constructive trusts relating to immovable property.

Express Trust and Constructive Trust over Immovables

Section 5(1) of the Trusts Ordinance reads:

> "Subject to the provisions of section 107, no trust in relation to immovable property is valid unless declared by the last will of the author of the trust or of the trustee, or by a non-testamentary instrument in writing signed by the author of the trust or the trustee, and notarially executed."

Accordingly, subject to the provisions of Section 107, a trust in relation to immovable property is valid only where it is so declared by the last will of the author of the trust or of the trustee, or by a non-testamentary instrument in writing signed by the author of the trust or the trustee, and notarially executed. This is the way in which an express trust can be established for immovable property.

Nonetheless, the Trust Ordinance acknowledges a number of exceptions to this rule.

Section 107 reads:

> "In dealing with any property alleged to be subject to a charitable trust, the court shall not be debarred from exercising any of its powers by the absence of evidence of the formal constitution of the trust, if it shall be of opinion from all the circumstances of the case that a trust in fact exists, or ought to be deemed to exist."

Hence, notwithstanding the failure to comply with the formalities specified in section 5(1) of the Trust Ordinance, a charitable trust may be inferred by Court in relation to immovable property where it shall be of opinion from all the circumstances of the case that a trust in fact exists, or ought to be deemed to exist.

Nevertheless, this is not the only exception to Section 5(1) of the Trust Ordinance by which a trust can be held to be in existence in relation to immovable property notwithstanding the absence of a declaration in one of the documents referred to therein.

Section 5(3) contains another exception to Section 5(1) that reads:

> "These rules do not apply where they would operate so as to effectuate a fraud."

Thus, where the application of the rules in Section 5(1) would operate to effectuate a fraud, a trust over immovable property can be established notwithstanding the absence of a declaration by the last will of the author of the trust or of the trustee, or by a non-testamentary instrument in writing signed by the author of the trust or the trustee, and notarially executed.

Hence, in Valliyammai Achi v. Abdul Majeed (45 N.L.R.169) and Ehiya Lebbe v. Majeed (48 N.L.R. 357) it was held that a trust was proved over land notwithstanding the absence of a declaration within the meaning of Section 5(1) of the Trust Ordinance as to ignore the existence of a trust was, in the circumstances of the cases, to effectuate a fraud.

Moreover, Chapter IX of the Trusts Ordinance contains provisions dealing with the creation of constructive trusts. Section 83 of the Trust Ordinance reads:

> "Where the owner of property transfers or bequeaths it, and it cannot reasonably be inferred consistently with the attendant circumstances that he intended to dispose of the beneficial interest therein, the transferee or legatee must hold such properly for the benefit of the owner or his legal representative."

It is evident from illustration (a) that constructive trusts can be formed over land. Therefore, Section 83 of the Trust Ordinance is an additional exception to the rule embodied in Section 5(1) of the Trust Ordinance. Thus, even where a deed does not expressly establish an express trust over immovable property, attendant circumstances can establish the creation of a constructive trust.

Thus, in Senadheerage Chandrika Sudarshani v. Muthukuda Herath Mudiyanselage Gedara Somawathi (S.C. Appeal No.173/2011, S.C.M. 06.04.2017) Prasanna Jayawardena J. noted (at page 11) that:

> "… it is also a well-established rule that, parol evidence can be led to prove the existence of a Trust over a land which is the subject matter of what appears, on the face of it, to be a deed of transfer by which the land has been transferred."

Parol evidence was indeed led by the Plaintiff in order to establish a constructive trust. Nevertheless, both the learned trial judge and the judges of the High Court placed much emphasis on the absence on the face of the two deeds, i.e. deed Nos. 5858(P2) and 105(P3), any reference to a loan or undertaking to retransfer of the land to the Plaintiff on the payment of principal and interest.

No doubt, the contents of a deed of transfer is a matter which will have to be considered as one of the attendant circumstances from which it could be inferred whether beneficial interest did pass or not. Nevertheless, it is not the only matter. In Muttammah v. Thiyagarajah (62 N.L.R. 559 at 571), H. N. G. Fernando J. held:

> "The plaintiff sought to prove the oral promise to reconvey not in order to enforce that promise but only to establish an 'attendant circumstances' from which it could be inferred that the beneficial interest did not pass. Although that promise was of no force or avail in law by reason of Section 2 of the Prevention of Frauds Ordinance, it is nevertheless a fact from which an inference of the nature contemplated in Section 83 of the Trusts Ordinance properly arises. The Prevention of Frauds Ordinance does not prohibit the proof of such an act. If the arguments of counsel for the appellant based on the Prevention of Frauds Ordinance and on Section 92 of the Evidence Ordinance are to be accepted, then it will be found that not only Section 83, but also many of the other provisions in chapter IX of the Trusts Ordinance will be nugatory. If for example 'attendant circumstances' in Section 83 means only matters contained in an instrument of transfer of property, it is difficult to see how a conveyance of property can be held in Trust unless indeed its terms are such as to create an express Trust."
>
> (emphasis added).

This statement was quoted with approval in Dayawathie and Others v. Gunasekera and Another [(1991) 1 Sri. L. R. 115 at 118].

As Ying Khai Liew states (Ying Khai Liew, Constructive Trusts in Sri Lanka: A Model for an Expansive Approach, Australian Journal of Asian Law, 2020, Vol 20 No 2, Article 2: 1-17, page 295 at 298), "while an 'improper' manifestation of intention to create a trust may not be enforced qua an express trust, it may nevertheless constitute one among a number of other facts that give rise to a constructive trust." However, both the District Court and the High Court fell into error by dismissing the action of the Plaintiff merely on the finding that there was no express provision to be found, either in deed No. 5858(P2) or in deed No. 105(P3), regarding retransfer of the land to the Plaintiff. By doing so they conflated an express trust identified in Section 5(1) with a constructive trust identified in Section 83 of the Trust Ordinance.

For the foregoing reasons, I answer question of law No. 2 in the affirmative.

Question of Law No. 1

The jurisprudence of Court has identified various circumstances which must be considered as attendant circumstances in terms of Section 83 of the Trust Ordinance in ascertaining whether the owner of immovable property intended to dispose of his beneficial interest. They are:

1. Whether transferor continued to remain in possession after the conveyance;
2. If the transferor paid the whole cost of the conveyance;
3. If the consideration expressed on the deed is utterly inadequate to what would be the fair, purchase money for the property conveyed;

   [Ehiya Lebbe v. Majeed (48 N.L.R. 357 at 359)]
4. The relationship between the parties;

   [Valliyammai Achi v. Abdul Majeed (45 NLR 169 at 191)]

L.J.M. Cooray in The Reception in Ceylon of the English Trust: An Analysis of the Case Law and Statutory Principles Relating to Trusts and Trustees in Ceylon in light of the Relevant Foreign Cases and Authorities (1971) at pages 129 – 130, appears to take the view that where the purchase price has not been repaid, it might point to the parting of beneficial interest.

He states:

> "If there is a trust, the contractual rule that time is of the essence of the contract would be relevant and it would be unnecessary to insist that the purchase money should be tendered within the specified period. If this is so, a trust under 83 will also arise where a person has transferred property subject to a notarial agreement because the period has elapsed. But if within a reasonable period the purchase price has not been repaid it may be assumed that the transferor has no intention of exercising the right of repurchase and has therefore parted with the beneficial interest."

The Plaintiff testified that she remained in possession of the corpus notwithstanding the execution of deed Nos. 5858(P2) and 105(P3). Both the learned trial judge and the judges of the High Court did not evaluate this evidence.

Moreover, the Plaintiff testified that the value of one perch of land in the area at the time of execution of deed No. 5858(P2) was around Rs. 20,000/= to 30,000/=. According to that deed the consideration paid for an undivided 20 perches was Rs. 40,000/=. The Plaintiff also called a valuer, Jagath Liyanaarchchi, to testify to the value of the corpus at the time of the execution of deed No. 5858(P2). According to him, the value of a perch of the corpus at that time was around Rs. 20,000/=. The learned trial judge makes a superficial statement about the value of the corpus without analysing the valuer's evidence. It amounts to a failure to properly evaluate whether the consideration expressed on the deed is utterly inadequate to what would be the fair purchase price for the property conveyed.

Accordingly, both the learned trial judge and the judges of the High Court failed to consider whether there were, and if so, what attendant circumstances there were, when deed No. 5858(P2) was executed, from which it could be inferred that the Plaintiff did not intend to dispose of the beneficial interest on the interests conveyed by that deed.

For the foregoing reasons, I answer question of law No. 1 in the affirmative.

Question of Law No. 3

In view of the answers given to the above questions, I must strive to analyse the evidence in order to ascertain whether the attendant circumstances establish a trust. The learned trial judge did not have any greater advantage in this endeavor. He was limited to seeing and hearing the evidence of the 2nd Defendant. The Plaintiff, the valuer Jagath Liyanaarchchi and the 1st Defendant testified before his predecessor.

It is necessary to evaluate the evidence in this matter based on firmly established rules of evidence.

In Senadheerage Chandrika Sudarshani v. Muthukuda Herath Mudiyanselage Gedara Somawathi (supra) Prasanna Jayawardena J. noted (at page 15) that:

> "It is clear that, the use of the words "it cannot reasonably be inferred consistently with the attendant circumstances" in Section 83, impose a requirement on the Court to satisfy itself that, the attendant circumstances clearly point to the conclusion that the owner did not intend to dispose of his beneficial interest. If the attendant circumstances unequivocally point to that conclusion, a Constructive Trust would have arisen. However, if the attendant circumstances fail to unequivocally establish that the owner did not intend to dispose of his beneficial interest or, in other words, there is a doubt as to the conclusion which can be drawn from the attendant circumstances, a Court should, usually, reject the claim that, a Constructive Trust exists.
>
> […]
>
> ...the burden of proof lies firmly on the person who claims a Constructive Trust to prove it. In this case, that is the plaintiff.
>
> Thus, if the plaintiff is to succeed in this appeal, she should have furnished evidence which satisfies the Court that, it cannot be reasonably inferred from the attendant circumstances that she intended to part with her beneficial interest in the land.
>
> […]

[…] [T]he Court has to apply an objective test when determining this question. Accordingly, the Court has to place more reliance on facts that can be ascertained from the evidence rather than unsubstantiated claims made from the witness box. The Court has to keep in mind that, a notarially attested deed of transfer should not be lightly declared to be a nullity. The Court must also guard against allowing a false or belated claim of `Trust' made by a transferor who has transferred his property and then had second thoughts or seeks to profit from changed circumstances."(emphasis added)

On the issue of possession, the Plaintiff maintained that she continued to be in possession of the corpus even after the execution of deed Nos. 5858(P2) and 105(P3). The 1st Defendant contested this and claimed that he had plucked the coconuts from the corpus. The 2nd Defendant claimed that he was in possession and that he started clearing the land to build a house in 2006 when the Plaintiff filed this action and obtained an enjoining order in the first instant. It was later dissolved.

In determining who was in possession of the corpus, an important fact that must not be overlooked is that it is part of a larger land that is co-owned property. As a co-owner, the Plaintiff sold an undivided 20 perches to the 1st Defendant.

No doubt both the 1st and 2nd Defendants claimed that what was sold to the 2nd Defendant was a divided and defined portion of land. This is untenable as a matter of law. There was no partition decree, deed of partition, or other method accepted in law that ended co-ownership. Hence, the corpus continued to be part of the co-owned property.

A co-owner's possession is in law the possession of all the other co-owners. Every co-owner is presumed to be in possession in his capacity as a co-owner. Therefore, even if the claim of the Plaintiff is accepted, she continued to possess as a co-owner and her possession is in law also the possession of the 1st and 2nd Defendants. I am therefore of the view that although the Plaintiff may be able to claim that she continued to be in possession of the corpus after deed Nos. 5858(P2) and 105(P3) were executed, her possession is also the possession of the 1st and 2nd Defendants.

In any event, the testimony of the Plaintiff of continued possession must be assessed in the context of the overall credibility of her evidence. She admitted knowledge of the transfer of ownership of the corpus to the 1st Defendant by deed No. 5858(P2). It was also admitted by the Plaintiff that M.A.N.A. Marasinghe, Notary Public who attested that deed was not informed of the alleged loan and arrangements to retransfer upon payment of principal and interest when the deed was executed.

Moreover, the Plaintiff claimed that the 2nd Defendant undertook to pay the amount due to the 1st Defendant from the Plaintiff. According to her deed No. 105(P3) dated 27.05.2003 was executed on that undertaking. The Plaintiff claimed that the 2nd Defendant informed her that she can pay him back in small sums over a period of 25 years. The 2nd Defendant denied this position and claimed that he bought the land to build a house for his son. It is inconceivable that the 2nd Defendant would agree to give the Plaintiff 25 years to pay back the debt. It is plausible if the parties were related. The Plaintiff and 2nd Defendants are not related.

No evidence has been led on whether the Plaintiff paid the whole cost of the conveyance for deed No. 5858(P2).

On the value of the land, there is the evidence of the valuer led on behalf of the Plaintiff. According to him, the value of a perch of the corpus at that time was around Rs. 20,000/=. However, he was not a valuer commissioned by Court and hence not an independent witness.

In Vandervell v. Inland Revenue Commissioners [(1967) 1 All E.R. 1 at 7] Lord Upjohn held:

> "But if the intention of the beneficial owner in directing the trustee to transfer the legal estate to X is that X should be the beneficial owner I can see no reason for any further document or further words in the document assigning the legal estate also expressly transferring the beneficial interest; the greater includes the less. X may be wise to secure some evidence that the beneficial owner intended him to take the beneficial interest in case his beneficial title is challenged at a later date but it certainly cannot, in my opinion, be a statutory requirement that to effect its passing there must be some writing under section 53(l)(c).”

Although this pronouncement was upon the necessity to comply with section 53 of the Law of Property Act 1925 of England, the principle enunciated is applicable to the instant case. Where it can be shown that the beneficial owner directed the trustee to transfer the legal interest in the trust to a third party so that the third party becomes both the beneficial and legal owner, no further documentation is needed secure the title of the third party. Any trust that existed as between the trustee and the beneficial owner ceases to exist and the third party becomes the absolute owner of the trust property.

In the instant case, the Plaintiff admitted that she signed as a witness to the execution of deed No. 105(P3) dated 27.05.2003 whereby title was passed on to the 2nd Defendant. However, she claimed that her signature was obtained on a blank paper. The Plaintiff alleged that the notary who attested it, G.K. Gunasekera, Notary Public, had told her to sign since she admitted to borrowing money. She claimed that she got to know about this deed only when the 2nd Defendant began clearing the land in July 2006.

Nevertheless, the Plaintiff did not make any complaint against the said notary to either the Police or any other body. In fact, a copy of that deed was obtained by her from the said G.K. Gunasekera, Notary Public. Moreover, the Plaintiff had sold another portion of land to one Ravindra Tissalal in 2002 by deed No. 6053 (V1) which was attested by M.A.N.A. Marasinghe, Notary Public who attested deed No. 5858(P2). It appears that the said land was reconveyed to the Plaintiff by deed No. 107(P6) dated 31.05.2003 attested by the very same G.K. Gunasekera, Notary Public who attested deed No. 105(P3).

It is inconceivable that the Plaintiff would go to the same notary, who allegedly obtained her signature on a blank paper, four days thereafter to execute deed No. 107(P6) dated 31.05.2003 to get title reconveyed to her by Ravindra Tissalal.

I am of the view that the fact that the Plaintiff signed as a witness to the execution of deed No. 105(P3) supports an inference that she intended to part with her beneficial interest in the land. Hence even assuming that there was a constructive trust as between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant, it ceased upon the execution of deed No. 105(P3).

In Senadheerage Chandrika Sudarshani v. Muthukuda Herath Mudiyanselage Gedara Somawathi (supra) it was held (at page 15) that:

> "If the attendant circumstances unequivocally point to that conclusion, a Constructive Trust would have arisen. However, if the attendant circumstances fail to unequivocally establish that the owner did not intend to dispose of his beneficial interest or, in other words, there is a doubt as to the conclusion which can be drawn from the attendant circumstances, a Court should, usually, reject the claim that, a Constructive Trust exists."

The Plaintiff has failed to establish unequivocally that she did not intend to dispose of her beneficial interest. Hence, I answer question of law No. 3 in the negative.

For the foregoing reasons, I dismiss the appeal. Parties shall bear their costs.

Appeal dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

A. L. Shiran Gooneratne J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

SC APPEAL NO. 191/2017
SC No. SC HC CA LA. 152/2016
HCCA No. UVA / HCCA/ BDL / 01/13/F
DC Badulla Case No. M 6896/2010

In the matter of an Application for Leave to Appeal under and in terms of the Provisions of Section 5C of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No.19 of 1990 as amended, read with Article 154P of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

The People's Bank,
No. 75,
Sir Chittampalam A. Gardiner Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

Plaintiff

Vs.

1. M. H. Saman Wijesekera
2. V. Chithrani de Silva Jayasuriya
3. Chamila Dilanthi Wijesekera
   All at
   No. 66 and 68.
   Bazaar Street,
   Badulla.

Defendants

AND BETWEEN

1. M. H. Saman Wijesekera
2. V. Chithrani de Silva Jayasuriya
3. Chamila Dilanthi Wijesekera

All at
No. 66 and 68.
Bazaar Street,
Badulla.

Defendants- Appellants

Vs.

The People's Bank
No. 75,
Sir Chittampalam A. Gardier Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

Plaintiff-Respondent

AND BETWEEN

1. M. H. Saman Wijesekera
2. V. Chithrani de Silva Jayasuriya

All at
No. 190/3,
Peter De Perera Mawatha,
Dutugamunu Street,
Kohuwala.

1st and 2nd Defendants-Appellants-Petitioners

Vs.

The People's Bank
No. 75,
Sir Chittampalam A. Gardier
Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

Plaintiff-
Respondent-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

1. M. H. Saman Wijesekera
2. V. Chithrani de Silva Jayasuriya

All at
No. 190/3,
Peter De Perera Mawatha,
Dutugamunu Street,
Kohuwala.

1st and 2nd
Defendants-Appellants-
Petitioners-Appellants

Vs.

The People's Bank
No. 75,
Sir Chittampalam A. Gardier
Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

Plaintiff-
Respondent-Respondent-
Respondent

And

3. Chamila Dilanthi Wijesekera
No. 29,
Jambugasmulla Mawatha,

Nugegoda.
3rd Defendant-Appellant-Respondent-Respondent

BEFORE: B.P ALUWIHARE, PC, J.
K.KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.
JANAK DE SILVA, J.

COUNSEL: Faisza Musthapha Markar with Zainab Markar with Dilini Gamage instructed by Sanjeewa Kaluarachchi for the Defendants-Appellant-Petitioners-Appellants.

Kaushalya Nawaratne with Aravinda Rajapaksa and Eshan Sandungahawatta for the Plaintiff- Respondent- Respondent Respondent.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: By 1st and 2nd Defendants-Appellants-Petitioners- Appellants on 14.11.2017.

By the Plaintiff- Respondent-Respondent Respondent on 27.05.2020.

ARGUED ON: 30.09.2022

DECIDED ON: 30.10.2023

K.KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.

This is an appeal from an order of the Provincial High Court of Civil Appeal of the Uva Province holden in Badulla dated 24.02.2016 which dismissed the application made by the Appellants to re-list the Appeal bearing No. UVA/HCCA/BDL/ 01/13/F, after the said appeal was dismissed by the same court on 09.10.2013 for want of appearance of the Appellant, or their Attorney-at-Law.

The Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent-Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "Respondent") instituted the initial action in the District Court of Badulla against the 1st and 2nd Defendants-Appellants-Petitioners-Appellants (hereinafter referred to as the "Appellants") and the 3rd Defendant-Appellant-Respondent-Respondent seeking to recover a sum of Rs. 7,126,338.17 and interest thereon. The Respondent stated that the said sum was owed by way of temporary overdrafts granted to one M.H.B Company of which Appellants were partners. The Appellant together with the 3rd Defendant-Appellant-Respondent-Respondent sought the dismissal of the Respondent's action and contended that there was a case filed earlier by them before Commercial High Court bearing No. L/C/Civil/268/09/MR seeking to recover damages against the Respondent.

When the case was taken up for trial in the District Court, the Appellant raised a preliminary objection that the District Court of Badulla has no jurisdiction to hear the case, and the case should be transferred to the Commercial High Court of Colombo having regard to the value of the claim. The said preliminary objection was overruled by the District Court by an order dated 31.05.2012 stating that the Appellant has accepted the jurisdiction of the District Court in their answer and any objection on such should have been raised at that stage. The Learned District Court Judge also refused two more applications made by the Appellants to postpone the trial pending a Leave to Appeal application bearing No.UVA/ HCCA/ BDL/LA/13/2012 and a Revision Application bearing No. HC/RA/14/12 being made by the Appellants against the said District Court order and for postponements to cross-examine a witness.

The District Court delivered the judgment dated 28.09.2012 in favour of the Respondent. In the judgment, the Learned District Court stated that in the absence of a stay order, there was no legal obligation to await the outcome of the Revision and Leave to appeal applications and although the witnesses were not cross-examined, the Appellant's counsel was present in court on all trial dates. Thereafter, the High Court delivered the order dated 18.10.2012 dismissing the said Leave to Appeal and Revision applications.

Aggrieved by the judgment of the Learned District Court Judge of Badulla, the Appellants appealed to the High Court of Civil Appeal of the Uva Province, Badulla. The Appellant were served with notice to be present before the High Court on 09.10.2013 and on the said date neither the Appellants nor their attorney-at-law were present. The Provincial High Court of Civil Appeal dismissed the appeal of the Appellants stating that "it appears that the Appellants are not proceeding with the appeal with due diligence". (page 488 of the brief) Thereafter, the Appellants filed an application to re-list the said appeal and the Provincial High Court of Civil Appeal refused the application for re-listing by the order dated 24.02.2016.

The Appellant is before this court challenging the said order. This court by order dated 03.10.2017 granted Leave to Appeal on the questions of law stated in paragraph 19 (a) to (e) of the Petition dated 04.04.2016, as set out below.

1. Did the Civil Appellate High Court err by the omission to take cognizance of the fact that its order dated 09.10.2013 dismissing the appeal for want of appearance contains no consideration whatsoever of the merits of the said appeal and as such has been made in breach of Section 769 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code?

2. Did the Civil Appellate High Court misdirect itself in law by the failure to consider that it was not competent for the said court to have made an order of dismissal inasmuch as the said appeal did not come up for "hearing" as contemplated by Section 769 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code?

3. Did the High Court of Civil Appeal misdirect itself by its failure to take cognizance of the fact that the Petitioners had paid the brief-fees and instructed their Attorney-at-Law to appear on their behalf before the said court, and thereby, err in holding that the petitioners had not prosecuted the civil appeal with due diligence?

4. Did the Civil Appellate High Court fail to take into consideration the attendant circumstances in making the said order of dismissal?

5. In making the said orders, did the Civil Appellate High Court fail to take into account the relevant circumstances and as such err in not exercising the discretion vested in court judicially?

In addition, the Learned Counsel for the Respondent has raised the following issues.

a) Whether the order of the Lordships of the High Court appeal dated 24.02.2016 is in compliance with the provisions of Section 769 of the Civil Procedure Code in view of the non-appearance of the Petitioners before court?

b) In such an event, are the petitioners bound and obliged to comply with proviso of Section 769 of the Civil Procedure Code to produce sufficient cause in making an application for re-listing?

The first matter for consideration by this court is whether the High Court erred in law by the failure to take cognizance of the fact that its order dated 09.10.2013 dismissing the appeal for want of appearance contains no consideration of the merits of the appeal and as such has been made in breach of Section 769 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code.

In order to ascertain the above question of law, it is pivotal to analyze Section 769 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code which states as follows,

"(2) If the appellant does not appear either in person or by an Attorney-at-Law to support his appeal, the court shall consider the appeal and make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Provided that, on sufficient cause shown, it shall be lawful for the Court of Appeal to reinstate upon such terms as the court shall think fit any appeal that has been dismissed under this subsection".

The position of the Appellant is that the court has a duty under the aforementioned section to consider the appeal before making any order thereon, in instances where the Appellant does not appear and the Learned High Court Judge has failed in his duty. In support of this position, the counsel for the Appellant has relied on the decision in the case of M. H. M. Suweyal Vs. Pandigamage Podinona, [S.C. Appeal No. 92A/2008] decided on 05.07.2017. In this judgment, Hon. Justice Aluwihare set aside the order of the High Court dismissing the Appeal and emphasized on the duty of the court to consider the merits of the appeal before making an order for dismissal.

The aforesaid judgment has no application here as the facts and the circumstances in the above case differ from that of the case at hand. In the above cited case, there was a delay in receiving notice to appear in the court as the Defendant had shifted from his original address and at the time he was informed, the appeal had already been dismissed. Nevertheless, the Appellants in the present case were served with notice to be present before the Provincial High Court of Civil Appeal of Uva Province on 09.10.2013. The Appellant has submitted to this court that they notified their attorney-at-law of the date and they were unable to be present on the said date as they reside in Colombo. The said Attorney-at-Law in his affidavit has failed to disclose any reasonable cause for his absence but rather has stated that, 'as this was the very first date it was taken for granted that it was only to be mentioned for the purpose of granting the next step namely a date for the written submissions of the Defendant-Appellants'. (page number 517 of the brief)

The above reason given by the said Attorney-at-Law in his affidavit itself clearly establishes that he has failed to carry out his bounden duty as the legal representative of the Appellants.

In Packiyanathan Vs. Singarajah [1991] 2 Sri L.R 205, Kulatunga, J. held that in page number 209 that,

"Relief will not be granted for default in prosecuting an appeal where —
(a) the default has resulted from the negligence of the client or both the client and his attorney-at-law,
(b) the default has resulted from the negligence of the attorney-at-law in which event the principle is that the negligence of the attorney-at-law is the negligence of the client and the client must suffer for it."

It was further emphasized in this case at page 205 that,

"A mere mistake can generally be excused; but not negligence, especially continuing negligence. The decision will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. The Court will in granting relief ensure that its order will not condone or in any manner encourage the neglect of professional duties expected of Attorneys-at-Law*."* [emphasis added]

Similarly, in Pakir Mohideen Vs. Mohamadu Casim [1900] 04 N.L.R 299, Bonser, C.J. held that,
"If the Proctor did not do his duty, he is to blame for the absence of the defendant and the defendant must suffer for the fault of his position."

This sentiment is similarly echoed in Schareguivel v Orr [1926] 11 N.L.R 302, where Lyall Grant J. held that,

"To my mind facts indicate that there was negligence on the part of the proctor and not personal negligence on the part of the Plaintiff. That however is immaterial. The plaintiff must suffer for his proctor's negligence. This is clearly laid down by Bonser CJ in Pakir Mohideen v Mohamadu Cassim (4 NLR 299)."

In the present case, both the Appellant and their Attorney-at-Law were informed of the date to appear in advance. However, neither of them appeared in court on the due date. It must be noted that they were not prevented from attending by an unavoidable cause. The reason given by the Appellant is that they reside in Colombo and could not come to Badulla on the date the appeal was taken. They further state that they informed their attorney and the attorney states he took the date as 'granted'. Both the Appellants and their attorney have 'assumed that their presence was not necessary as this was only a calling date'. (page 517 and 518 of the brief) In my view, these reasons given by the Appellants are absurd and the negligence on their side is unjustifiable.

With regard to the first question of law, I direct my focus to the case of Appuhamy Vs. Appuhamy [1911] 14 N.L.R. 233, where Wood Renton, J. held at page 236 that,

"The Court has undoubtedly a discretion as to whether or not an appeal shall be dismissed, when it is first called for hearing, on the ground of non-appearance, and we exercise that discretion every day".

I am of the opinion that the learned High Court judge in the present case has wielded the said discretion in the interest of justice. Therefore, I answer the first question of law in negative on the ground that the duty to consider the appeal before dismissal on default of appearance of the Appellant does not become a mandatory duty in situations where there is negligence on the part of the Appellants.

The second matter for consideration by this court is whether the High Court erred in law by dismissing the appeal as the said appeal did not come up for "hearing" as contemplated by Section 769 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code.

The position of the Appellant on this regard is that the said appeal was not taken up for 'hearing' under Section 769 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code on 09.10.2013 but was merely a calling date. Therefore, the appeal is not liable to be dismissed.

Nonetheless, in The General Insurance Company Ltd Vs. T.A.Don Abraham [1957] 59 N.L.R 282, Basnayake, C.J, in page 284 stated that,

"For the purpose of section 769 an appeal " comes on for hearing " each time it is on the daily list. If the appellant or his counsel is not present when the appeal is called in Court whether for the purpose of hearing the submissions of counsel or for. any other purpose, it is liable to be dismissed*". [emphasis added]*

In Jinadasa and another Vs. Sam Silva and Others [1994] 1 Sri L.R. 232, Amerasinghe J, stated at page 248 that,

"A judge must ensure a prompt disposition of cases, emphasising that dates given by the court, including dates set out in "lists" published by a court's registry, for hearing or other purposes, must be regarded by the parties and their counsel as definite court appointments*. No postponements must be granted, or absence excused, except upon emergencies occurring after the fixing of the date, which could not have been anticipated or avoided with reasonable diligence, and which cannot be otherwise provided for." [emphasis added]*

In the same judgment, Amerasinghe, J. has cited the Abdul Aziz v. Punjab National Bank [AIR 1929 Lahore 96, 99, 100]., where Jai Lai, J. has stated that,

*"In this connection due regard must be had to the nature of duties of counsel towards his other clients and the other courts. At the same time the court cannot be expected to give unlimited or unreasonable latitude to counsel in this respect. Counsel is ordinarily expected to be ready in court when the case is called and i*t is no good excuse to say he was busy elsewhere*." [emphasis added]*

As previously mentioned, the Appellants as well as their attorney assumed that their presence was not necessary as this was only a 'calling date'. (page 517 and 518 of the brief) Thus, the attorney has stated that he went out of Badulla on the date the case was taken into consideration. (page 517 of the brief) I must emphasize that every attorney has a duty towards his client as well as to the court and attorneys must assist the Judges in prompt disposition of cases. As stated in the case of Jinadasa and another Vs. Sam Silva and Others (above cited) every date where the case comes for hearing or for any other purpose, including, 'calling dates' must be regarded by the parties and their attorneys as definite court appointments which the absence will not be excused without a justifiable cause.

In the present case, the reason that the attorney was out of Badulla on the day that the case was taken cannot under any circumstance be excused. Therefore, I am of the opinion that every 'calling date' of a case must be considered as a date for 'hearing' under Section 769 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code and the second question of law must also be answered in negative.

The third question for consideration is whether the High Court erred in holding that the petitioners had not prosecuted the civil appeal with due diligence when the Appellant had paid the brief-fees and instructed their Attorney-at-Law to appear on their behalf.

In order to examine the legal issue raised above, it is important to first define 'due diligence' expected from an Appellant in an appeal. The phrase 'due diligence' has been defined in the Black's Law Dictionary, 2nd Ed. as,

"Such a measure of prudence, activity or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case."

The Appellant has paid brief fees and has received notices to appear before the court on 09.10.2013. However, the Appellant or their attorney did not appear on the said date as they 'thought it was not necessary' since it was only a calling date. The standard of due diligence expected from an Appellant does not stop once he has paid the brief fees and retained an attorney. It is the assiduity expected from a person whose rights have been violated and such assiduity must continue until he or she receives justice.

In Kanagasabai Vs. Kirupamoorthy [1959] 62 N.L.R. 45, while stating that if parties are required by law or by court to be present, then they must be present Bansanayake CJ held at page 58 that,

"Where, as in this case, the party is required to appear in person and he does not do so then he must suffer the consequences of his non-appearance. It is not sufficient to say that he gave a proxy to a Proctor and that the Proctor failed to appear by an " oversight". [emphasis added]

In the present case, the Appellant's cannot avert their duty to proceed with due diligence merely by stating that they paid the brief fees and retained an attorney. The Appellants are required to appear in the court on the given date either in person or through their attorney. If neither of them appear, there is no way for the court to determine whether there is a case to proceed or not. In the case at hand, the Appellant's attorney has stated that they thought their presence was not necessary. (page 518 of the brief) The Appellants have stated that they were unable to present on the said date on the sole reason of them being residents of Colombo. (the petition of the Appellants to this court)

Thus,as I have already discussed, the reason given by the Appellant's attorney for his absence is absurd and intolarable. Hence, even if it was the absence of due diligence of the Appellant's attorney which alone resulted in the challenged decision of the High Court, such is indefensible according to "the negligence of the proctor is in law the negligence of the client" and "the client must suffer for his proctor's negligence" principles as it was discussed in the case of Packiyanathan Vs. Singarajah (cited above). As this court has already established in Pakir Mohideen Vs. Mohamadu Casim and Schareguivel v Orr (cited above) it is the party who suffers when the attorney who was under a duty to have appeared for him fails to appear without sufficient case, yet, that is not a factor to be considered in deciding whether a matter should be considered

Therefore, in relation to the third question of law, I conclude that the learned High Court judge has not erred in law as the Appellants lacked the standard of due diligence expected from them.

The fourth and fifth questions of law which the leave was granted by this court can be considered together. Both these questions consider whether the High Court failed to take into account the relevant and/or attendant circumstances and as such err in not exercising the discretion vested in court judicially.

In this regard, it was held in D.S Ranaweera Vs. W.W.P Jinadasa and another [1992] BAL Vol.IV, Part II at page 20 that,

"Dealing instead, in the matter before it, with a mere invocation for the assistance of the Court of Appeal in the exercise of its discretion, the court had an uncontrolled power of disposal, so long as that power was not exercised in transgression of the law and legal principles, and so long as it was not actuated by whim or caprice, and exercised in good faith."

In the same case, Amerasinghe J cited the Indian case of Shamdasani and others Vs. Central Bank of India, [1938 Bombay 199]. where Chief Justice Beaumont at page 202 stated that,

"It is, after all, a very serious matter to dismiss a man's suit or summons, or whatever if may be, without hearing it, and that course ought not be adopted unless the court is really satisfied that justice so requires."

If the court is to wield its discretion to dismiss a case without hearing, such must be done to meet the ends of justice. In the above cited D.S Ranaweera Vs. W.W.P Jinadasa and another Amerasinghe J. stated that 'the needs of justice' go beyond the narrow interest of justice one or all of litigants in a matter and further held at page 21 that,

"The needs and expectations of the community as a whole in the due administration of justice must be considered. Interest rei publicae ut sit finis litum."

In the same case, it was held at page 23 that the court would order reinstatement in an application dismissed for want of appearance only if the defaulting party furnished the court with a 'comprehensive and satisfactory disclosure of all attendant circumstances'.

In the present case, the attendant circumstances are not satisfactory as such do not elucidate any reasonable or sensible explanation that justify the absence of the Appellant's attorney at the High Court on the said date. If this court is to allow this sort of irresponsible behavior of an attorney, it will lead to the erosion of professionalism in this noble profession. Even though it is very unfortunate in the present case that the Appellant has to suffer for the fault of their attorney, this one party's grievances must be overridden by the necessity to protect the interests of justice. Therefore, I am of the opinion that the learned High Court judge has correctly exercised his discretion in dismissing the application by the Appellants for re-listing to preserve the interests of justice.

In addition to the above questions of law, the Learned Counsel for the Respondent has two more questions. The first question is whether the order of the High Court appeal is in compliance with the provisions of Section 769 of the Civil Procedure Code in view of the non-appearance of the Petitioners before court. As I have already discussed, the court has wide discretion in relation to the dismissal of cases. However, if the court is to dismiss a case without giving a hearing, such has to be done only when the justice so requires and justice so requires in the present case.

The second question raised by the learned Respondent's counsel is whether the Appellants are bound and obliged to comply with proviso of Section 769 of the Civil Procedure Code to produce sufficient cause in making an application for re-listing.

In the Jinadasa and another Vs. Sam Silva and Others (cited above), the court by referring to the provision of Section 769 (2) of the Civil Procedure code held at page 250 that,

"The court may have reinstated the matter upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thought fit, yet it could only do so if sufficient cause for reinstatement had been established."

In the same case at page 233 states that,

"A court will hold that there was sufficient cause if the facts and circumstances established as forming the grounds for absence are not absurd, ridiculous, trifling or irrational but sensible, sane, and without expecting too much, aggreable to reason." [emphasis added]

The facts and circumstances established in the present case as forming grounds for absence are absurd and irrational. In the absence of sufficient cause, there was no obligation on the High Court to order a reinstatement.

In these circumstances and for the foregoing reasons, the appeal is hereby dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

B.P ALUWIHARE, PC, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JANAK DE SILVA, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST

REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for Special Leave to Appeal in terms of Article 128 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

The Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

Complainant

SC Appeal: 192/2017

SC SPL LA No: 123/2013

Court of Appeal Case No:180-182/2006

High Court Galle Case No: 1875

Vs.

1. Luwis Hemantha alias Mangala
2. Agampodi Jayalias alias Jayalie
3. Arumadura Sunil alias Malu Sunil
4. Wellage Nandasena alias Adul
5. Kukundura Ranjith
6. Wellage Nandasiri
7. Wellage Wipulasena
8. Wellage Padmasiri
9. Themmadura Prabhath Kumara
10. Agampodi Kapila Kumara alias Ajith
11. Themmadura Ranil Krishantha
12. Agampodi Somawathie
13. Agampodi Nalani alias Navalias Hamy

Accused

AND

1. Arumadura Sunil alias Malu Sunil
2. Kukundura Ranjith
3. Wellage Nandasiri
4. Wellage Wipulasena
5. Wellage Padmasiri

3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th Accused -Appellants

Vs.

Hon. Attorney General

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 12.

Complainant-Respondent

AND NOW

1. Arumadura Sunil alias Malu Sunil (now deceased)
2. Wellage Wipulasena

3rd and 7th Accused-Appellant-Petitioners

Vs.

Hon. Attorney General

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 12.

Complainant-Respondent-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Wellage Wipulasena

7th Accused-Appellant-Petitioner-Appellant

Vs.

Hon. Attorney General

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 12.

Complainant-Respondent-Respondent-Respondent

BEFORE: Buwaneka Aluwihare PC, J.

S. Thurairaja PC J.

E. A. G. R. Amarasekara J.

COUNSEL: Anil Silva, PC with Isuru Jayawardane for the 7th Accused-Appellant-Appellant.

Rohantha Abeysuriya, PC, ASG for the Hon. Attorney General

ARGUED ON: 22. 06. 2020

DECIDED ON: 10.11. 2023

JUDGEMENT

Aluwihare PC J,

(1) Thirteen accused were indicted before the High Court for the commission of several offences and the Accused-Appellant-Petitioner-Appellant stood as the 7th Accused before the High Court. Hereinafter, the Accused-Appellant-Petitioner-Appellant will be referred to as the '7th Accused'. The prosecution alleged that these offences were committed by the 7th Accused and the others who were indicted with him, along with one Wellage Sirisena Prabath Kumara and others unknown to the prosecution.

(2) The offences for which the 7th Accused and the others were indicted are as follows;

Count 1- Being a member of an unlawful assembly with the common object of causing injuries to Uragaha Siripala, an offence punishable under Section 140 of the Penal Code.

Count 2- Being a member of the said unlawful Assembly, caused the death of said Uragaha Siripala, an offence punishable under Section 296 of the Penal Code read with Section 146 of the Penal code.

Count 3- Being a member of the same unlawful assembly, caused the death of Uragaha Nadeeka Thushara, an offence punishable under Section 296 of the Penal Code read with Section 146 of the Penal code.

Count 4- Being a member of the same unlawful assembly caused mischief to the house of Chandrawathie, an offence punishable under Section 410 of the Penal Code read with Section 146 of the Penal code.

Count 5-Being a member of the same unlawful assembly committed robbery of Rs.75,400/-belonging to Chandrawathie an offence punishable under Section 380 of the Penal Code read with Section 146 of the Penal code.

Counts 6,7,8 and 9 were based on the substantive counts referred to in counts 2 to 5 above, on the basis that the said offences were committed by the accused in furtherance of a common intention. [Section 32 of the Penal Code]

(3) The trial before the High Court proceeded in the absence of the 5th Accused who absconded and the 9th Accused who died during the pendency of the trial.

(4) At the conclusion of the trial, the 1st, 4th, 10th, 11th, 12th and the 13th Accused were acquitted on all counts.

(5) The 3rd ,5th, 6th, 7th and the 8th Accused were convicted by the learned trial judge on counts 1 and 2 on the indictment, namely being a member of an unlawful assembly and the murder of Uragaha Siripala.

(6) The 3rd and the 5th Accused were also convicted on count 6 of the indictment, namely, causing the death of Nadeeka Thushara on the basis that the offence was committed by the said accused in furtherance of a common intention.

(7) The 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th and the 8th Accused appealed against the conviction and the Court of Appeal by its judgement dated 03.04.2013 affirmed the convictions of all the accused referred to, save for the 8th Accused. The appeal of the 8th Accused was abated as he passed away during the pendency of the appeal.

(8) The 3rd and the 7th Accused moved this court by way of Special leave to Appeal and leave was granted on the questions of law referred to in sub-paragraphs (b) and (c) of paragraph 15 of the petition of the Accused, which are as follows;

(b) Did the learned judges of the Court of Appeal misdirect themselves when they held that the doctrine of divisibility of credibility does not apply to the evidence of Sewwa Handi Nanadasiri in the circumstances of this case and thereby occasioned a miscarriage of justice.

(c) Did the learned Judges of the Court of Appeal misdirect themselves in rejecting the evidence of the 3rd Accused-Appellant on untenable grounds.

(9) As the 3rd Accused-Appellant- Petitioner-Appellant is since dead, what is left to be decided is the legality of the conviction of the 7th Accused. It is to be observed that the question of law referred to in sub-paragraph (c) of Paragraph 15, on which Special leave was granted relates to the legality of the conviction of the 3rd Accused-Appellant who is dead. Hence, answering the said question would not arise now. As such I shall confine to answering only the question of law referred to in sub-paragraph (b) of Paragraph 15.

(10) Upon an overall consideration of the submissions made by the learned President's Counsel on behalf of the 7th Accused, it appears that the main thrust of the argument was that the evidence implicating the 7th Accused is unreliable and cannot be acted upon; as such the prosecution had failed to establish the offences to satisfy the degree of proof required by law, i.e beyond reasonable doubt, hence, the conviction cannot stand.

(11) It was also contended that if the evidence was evaluated in the correct perspective applying the applicable legal principles, no reasonable court could have come to the conclusion that the 7th Accused was guilty. In the circumstances, it was argued that both the learned trial judge as well as the Court of Appeal erred in that respect.

(12) In view of the nature of the legal issue raised on behalf of the 7th Accused, it would be necessary to consider the totality of the evidence led at the trial and to consider whether the courts below have properly evaluated the evidence led at the trial, in particular the material incriminating the 7th Accused. In this context, I find the background to the incident would be of utmost relevance.

The Factual Background

(13) According to the evidence led at the trial, it transpired that two incidents had taken place on the day in question. According to witness Nandasiri, the two deceased happened to be his brother-in law [Siripala] and his nephew [Thushara]. They had lived roughly about 100 meters away from his residence, but the houses are not directly visible to each other. On the morning of the incident, Nandasiri had learnt that his nephew Thushara had shot one Shantha. Around mid-day, while he was at his aunt's place which was in close proximity to his house, he had seen a crowd of people going towards the deceased's house which was followed by a sound of an explosion. Then he had returned home.

(14) Around the same time, Siripala had come running to Nandasiri's residence, accompanied by his two daughters and son. Siripala had requested Nandasiri to board the two daughters to a bus saying that a crowd came to attack them. Nandasiri had dutifully acceded to the request and had taken the two daughters and seen to it that they boarded a bus. Thereafter Nandasiri has returned home. In the course of the examination in chief, he had said that he identified the 2nd Accused, Jayalie as one of the persons who came that day armed with a knife and he saw the deceased Siripala grappling with the 2nd Accused. At one point, he says he saw Siripala falling and at that juncture he witnessed the other Accused including the 7th Accused surrounding the deceased Siripala and attacking him.

(15) Under cross examination a contradiction was marked as 'V2', where he had told the police that he did not see Siripala being attacked ["සිරිපාල අයියට කොටනවා දැක්කේ නැත."] and that due to fear he fled and returned only after the Police and the Magistrate visited the scene. Although this witness had not seen as to how Thushara came about his death, he had seen the two bodies of Siripala and Thushara with multiple injuries. It is also to be noted that the statement of this witness to the Police is somewhat belated in that, he had given the statement the day after the incident. There was no mention in the statement, of him having witnessed the attack on Siripala, which was highlighted as an omission by the defence.

(16) According to witness Chandravathi who is the wife of the deceased Siripala, while she was in the Galle town, she was informed about the shooting of Shantha and she had rushed home. On the way she had been given the news by one Lucian, that a commotion was taking place near her house. She had said that, instead of going home, she got off the three-wheeler in which she was travelling at Lucian's house. From there she had walked towards home and she says she searched for her son Thushara in the vicinity as he was not to be found and when she was finally walking towards the house, she heard her sister Ruwani, shouting that a crowd from 'IDH Watte' is approaching.

(17) It appears that at this juncture this witness had got separated from her other family members and having realised that her house was surrounded, she had fled and had boarded a Matara bound bus. When the bus was passing in front of her house, she had identified the 7th Accused along with the several other Accused [the 1st , 3rd, 4th, 6th, and 11th] among the crowd that had surrounded her house. It was this witness who had made the initial complaint to the police and had arrived at the crime scene with the Police.

(18) Prosecution witness Rosalyn happened to be the mother-in-law and the grandmother respectively of Siripala and Thushara, the two deceased. According to the testimony of witness Rosalyn, the deceased Siripala, had come running in the direction of their house accompanied by his two daughters, saying he had heard a commotion from the direction of their house. After a while a crowd from 'IDH Watte' had come running in their direction and the 2nd Accused and Siripala had grappled with each other and others followed by attacking Siripala with knives and clubs. She had said she saw the 7th Accused attacking the deceased with an axe. She had also said that the deceased Thushara was hiding under a bed at their residence and she saw both the 3rd and 4th Accused entering the house having forced open the door. The witness having specifically referred to the 2nd, 3rd, 5th and the 6th Accused however had said; "I do not know the names of the others but all of them came."' ["ඔය කට්ටිය සේරම ආවා."] This appears to be a clear reference to the Accused that was standing in the dock. Then, the witness had been asked, of the people who came, who are in court and the response of the witness was "All of them were there" ["ඔක්කොම උන්නා."]. She had said that several Accused attacked Siripala with knives and in reference to the 7th Accused she had said that he attacked Siripala on his legs with an axe. The Post-Mortem Report of Siripala indicates that he has sustained several injuries to his right leg. In total, the JMO had observed 30 injuries on the body of Siripala.

(19) It must be noted however, that three omissions were highlighted in the course of the cross examination of Rosalyn to the effect that she had failed to state or mention that the 7th Accused was armed with an axe. What is significant is that the omission relates to the weapon the 7th Accused alleged to have carried at the time of the attack, but not relating to his presence at the scene when the crimes were committed. Her statement to the Police does not appear to be a belated one.

(20) It is also to be noted that other than the omissions referred to above, the evidence of Rosalyn is devoid of contradiction per se. The learned trial judge having considered the evidence of Rosalyn had observed that there is no reason to reject the evidence of the said witness. As the witness had testified before the predecessor of the learned High Court judge who delivered the judgement, he had not commented on the demeanour or the deportment of the witness. Undoubtedly it would have been a traumatic experience for Rosalyn to witness the attack on her son-in-law and grandchild. Further, she had mentioned that a crowd of about 25 people came there on that day. Under those circumstances, it was quite possible that she would not have been in a fit mental status, not only to absorb every detail of the events that unfolded on that day but also to narrate them in detail. I am of the view that the infirmities in Rosalyn's testimony must be evaluated considering the traumatic experience she had to undergo, having witnessed the incident.

(21) It was argued on behalf of the 7th Accused that, the 'omissions' referred to in the testimony of Rosalyn create a serious doubt about the testimonial trustworthiness of the witness. Although it was contended that the learned High Court Judge had failed to consider those omissions, in his judgement [at pg 448 of the brief] the learned High Court Judge had observed that her evidence is not tainted by 'serious contradictions' which goes to indicate that he had evaluated her evidence. Thus, the failure to state that the 7th Accused was armed with an axe, in my view is not sufficiently grave to discredit Rosalyn. Thus, I cannot find fault with the trial judge on relying on the testimony of Rosalyn.

(22) On the other hand, in evaluating Rosalyn's evidence, the learned trial judge had considered the evidence given by the police officers who visited the scene and had observed that her evidence is compatible with observations made by the police officers [pg 447 of the brief] in the circumstances aforesaid, the findings of the learned trial judge on the testimonial trustworthiness of Rosalyn cannot be faulted.

The Questions of Law

(23) The first question that this court is called upon to address is whether the Learned Judges of the Court of Appeal misdirected themselves when they held that the doctrine of indivisibility of credibility does not apply to the evidence of witness Nandasiri in the circumstances of this case and thereby occasioned a miscarriage of justice.

(24) Giving evidence before the High Court, witness Nandasiri stated that the 8th Accused hit the diseased Siripala with a pestle which made him fall to a side and that thereafter the 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th Accused surrounded Siripala and attacked him with weapons (pg 126 of the High Court Brief), seeing which, he fled the scene. In his statement to the Police, however, he had stated that he did not see the attack on the deceased Siripala. This contradiction was marked as '3V1' and '10V3' (pgs 149 and 183 of 'P1').

(25) Addressing the contradiction referred to above, the Court of Appeal held; "These omissions are, in my view, vital omissions although the learned trial judge, in his judgment, had concluded that they were not vital. When I consider the said omission, I feel that Nandasiri had not seen Siripala being attacked. Thus, his evidence with regard to the attack on Siripala cannot be accepted as true." Considering the nature of the contradiction and its impact on Nandasiri's evidence the conclusion of the Court of Appeal is correct.

(26) The Court of Appeal, however, having disbelieved Nandasiri's evidence before the High Court as to witnessing the attack on Siripala, proceeded to act on the other parts of his evidence, inter alia, relying on the decision in Samaraweera v. The Attorney General (1990) 1 SLR 256. In the case of Samaraweera [supra] the verdict of the High Court was challenged before the Court of Appeal mainly on the ground that the same two witnesses who had testified against the 2nd Accused who was acquitted had testified against the 3rd Accused who was found guilty. It was contended that if the two witnesses were disbelieved as against the 2nd Accused the jury should not have believed them regarding the 3rd Accused-Appellant, and the maxim falsus in uno falsus in omnibus should have been applied. Rejecting the said contention, the Court of Appeal held "The verdict was supportable in that the acquittal of the 2nd Accused could be attributable to the fact that vicarious liability on the basis of common intention could not be imputed to him on the evidence even if the two witnesses were believed."

(27) The learned President's Counsel citing, E.R.S.R. Coomaraswamy's 'The Law of Evidence' [Vol II, Book 2, page 753,] emphasized that "a failure to assert a fact, when it would have been natural to assert it, amounts in effect to an assertion of a non-existence of a fact." Relying further on Coomaraswamy, it was submitted that it is recumbent on the court to decide whether a particular omission amounts to a contradiction or not by reference to the facts. The test applicable is whether, it being natural for the person to make the assertion in question, such person has failed to make the assertion. Such conduct is prima facie an inconsistency unless cleared by an explanation. It was submitted that witness Nandasiri could not offer an explanation as to why he stated that he did not see the attack on the deceased in the police statement but stated that he did in fact witness the attack when giving evidence before the High court. It was further submitted that due to Nandasiri's personal relationship to the two deceased he is an interested witness. Given these factors it was submitted that there is a reasonable doubt about the evidence of Nandasiri and it should not be acted upon.

(28) I am of the view that the contradiction referred to, as to whether Nandasiri had witnessed the incident or not, is a vital one and makes his entire testimony unreliable and infirm. Thus, I am of the view that placing reliance on such evidence is unsafe and should not have been acted upon but rejected.

(29) For the reasons set out above, I answer the question of law referred to in sub-paragraph (b) of Paragraph 15 of the Petition in the affirmative. As referred to earlier the other question of law on which special leave was granted was in respect of the 3rd Accused who is now dead; and hence a requirement of answering the said question does not arise.

(30) The question that needs to be addressed now is, even though the question of law referred to above was answered in favour of the 7th Accused whether he would be entitled to an acquittal.

(31) Although both the learned trial judge as well as the Court of Appeal had misdirected themselves by not rejecting the evidence of witness Nandasiri, the same cannot be said about witness Rosalyn. Even if the evidence of witness Nandasiri is rejected, I see no reason to reject the evidence of Rosalyn and as such the trial judge cannot be faulted for acting on her evidence. As referred to earlier she had clearly implicated the 7th Accused as one of the persons who came with the crowd that day and attacked both Siripala and Thushara, the two deceased.

(32) In the circumstances referred to above, I am of the view that this is a fit case to apply the proviso to Article 138(1) of the Constitution which reads;

Provided that no judgment, decree or order of any court shall be reversed or varied on account of any error, defect or irregularity, which has not prejudiced the substantial rights of the parties or occasioned a failure of justice.

Although this court is of the opinion that the question of law raised should be decided in favour of the 7th Accused-Appellant, I proceed to dismiss this appeal as no failure of justice has occurred.

Appeal dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE S. THURAIRAJA PC

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE E.A.G.R. AMARASEKARA

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Weerasinghe Arachchige Sarath
Weerasinghe,
No. 11, Templars Road,
Mount Lavinia.
Plaintiff

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL/193/2014
SC LA NO: SC/HCCA/LA/246/14
HCCA COLOMBO NO: WP/HCCA/COL/315/2008(F)
DC COLOMBO NO: 20510/L

Vs.

H.D. Sarath Premaratne,
No. 184, Avissawella Road,
Wellampitiya.
Defendant

AND BETWEEN

H.D. Sarath Premaratne,
No. 184, Avissawella Road,
Wellampitiya.
Defendant-Appellant

Vs.

Weerasinghe Arachchige Sarath
Weerasinghe,
No.11, Templars Road,
Mount Lavinia.
Plaintiff -Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Weerasinghe Arachchige Sarath
Weerasinghe,
No.11,
Templars Road,
Mount Lavinia.
Plaintiff -Respondent-Appellant

Vs.

H.D. Sarath Premaratne,
No. 184,
Avissawella Road,
Wellampitiya.
Defendant-Appellant-Respondent

Before: Murdu N.B. Fernando, P.C., J.
Kumuduni Wickremasinghe, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

Counsel: Chandana Wijesooriya with Wathsala Dulanjanie for the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant.
K.G. Jinasena with Pradeepa Ariyawansha for the Defendant-Appellant-Respondent.

Argued on: 23.11.2021

Written submissions:
by the Plaintiff-Respondent-Appellant on 04.12.2014 and 14.12.2021.
by the Defendant-Appellant-Respondent on 14.12.2021.

Decided on: 22.05.2023

Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

The plaintiff filed this action in the District Court of Colombo seeking ejectment of the defendant from Lot B in Plan No. 268 and damages. Plan No. 268 comprising Lots A and B was marked P3. The defendant filed answer seeking a declaration that he is the owner of Lots A and B. The trial before the District Court proceeded on 8 admissions and 14 issues.

The defendant in paragraph 11 of his answer and by admission No. 8 admitted that his father gifted Lot A in Plan No. 268 to him by the deed marked V1. The plaintiff does not dispute that Lot A belongs to the defendant.

The plaintiff in paragraph 7 of his plaint and by way of issue No. 3 claimed that his mother had gifted Lot B in Plan No. 268 to him by the deed marked P2. This was accepted by the defendant in his evidence-in-chief itself. However, by paragraph 12 of his answer and by issue No. 13, the defendant claims title to Lot B by prescription. The subject matter of this litigation is Lot B in Plan No. 268. After trial, the District Court held with the plaintiff. On appeal, the High Court of Civil Appeal in Colombo set aside the judgment of the District Court and dismissed the plaintiff's action. The plaintiff appealed to this Court from the judgment of the High Court.

At the trial, several witnesses gave evidence. The judgment of the District Court is comprehensive, running into 22 pages. The District Judge has analysed all the evidence led at the trial to consider the competing claims made by the two rival parties. In contrast, the judgment of the High Court is brief, running into 2 ½ pages, where the only question considered was whether the plaintiff proved that "the defendant came into occupation of these premises with his (the plaintiff's) leave and license." This is because the plaintiff in the plaint and by way of issues has stated that the plaintiff came into occupation of Lot B as a licensee of the plaintiff's mother with the agreement of the plaintiff and thereafter this licence was terminated. In just one paragraph the High Court holds that this is not proved. The High Court judgment is silent about the other issues including the cross-claim of the defendant to Lot B on prescription.

In my view the High Court adopted a very mechanical approach to the whole case. When considering the admissions recorded and issues raised before the District Court, there is no dispute that, on deeds, Lot A of Plan P3 is owned by the defendant and Lot B is owned by the plaintiff. The defendant is now in occupation of both Lots and the plaintiff wants to eject the defendant from Lot B. As I have already stated, the defendant's position is that he has prescribed to Lot B. It is against this background that the Court needs to consider the claim of the plaintiff that the defendant had been in possession of Lot B together with Lot A, with the leave and licence of the plaintiff's mother since 1990 (vide issue No.7).

As seen from Plan P3, there is a large house on the land extending to both Lots. It is the position of the plaintiff that his mother occupied the portion of the house in Lot B until 1990. The defendant has admitted in evidence that until 1996 the name of the defendant's mother was included in the electoral registers marked V3-V24. The action was filed in 2004. If I were to assume that adverse possession began in 1996, there would still not be a period of prescriptive possession lasting at least ten years. Moreover, the plaintiff's mother and the defendant's father are close relatives, not strangers. Adverse possession in such circumstances cannot be by any secret intention in mind. It is my considered view that there is no room whatsoever for the defendant to claim prescriptive title to Lot B.

It is true that there is no document to say that the plaintiff's mother gave leave and license to the defendant to share Lot B together with Lot A. But on the facts and circumstances of the case, the District Court was correct to have considered that the defendant was in occupation of Lot B with the leave and licence of the plaintiff's mother.

The High Court states that the plaintiff filed the action on the basis that the defendant came into occupation of the premises with the leave and licence of the plaintiff and since this has not been sufficiently proved, the plaintiff's action must fail. In respect of leave and licence, the High Court states that the plaintiff's evidence is inadequate.

The facts of the Supreme Court case of Khan v. Jayman [1994] 2 Sri LR 233 are similar to the instant case where the plaintiff sued the defendant for ejectment from the premises in suit and damages on the basis that the defendant was in forcible occupation of the premises after the termination of the leave and licence given to the defendant. The defendant claimed tenancy. The District Court dismissed the plaintiff's action on the basis that the plaintiff failed to establish that the defendant was a licensee and the Court of Appeal affirmed it. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the plaintiff shall succeed since the defendant failed to establish a "better title" to the property after the plaintiff established his title and the defendant in his evidence admitted it. The Supreme Court directed to enter judgment for the plaintiff as prayed for in the plaint.

In the instant case, when the defendant does not dispute that the plaintiff is the paper title holder of Lot B, does it matter even if the defendant did not come into possession of Lot B with the leave and licence of the plaintiff? It does not. If the plaintiff is the owner of Lot B by the deed P2, by virtue of his ownership he is entitled to the right to possession of Lot B irrespective of whether he has specifically prayed for ejectment in the prayer to the plaint. The right to possession and the right to recover possession are essential attributes of ownership. In such circumstances, it is up to the defendant to prove on what right he is in possession of Lot B. Vide Theivandran v. Ramanathan Chettiar [1986] 2 Sri LR 219 at 222 per Sharvananda C.J. In Leisa v. Simon [2002] 1 Sri LR 148 at 151 it was held "Once the paper title became undisputed the burden shifted to the defendants to show that they had independent rights in the form of prescription as claimed by them." The defendant in the instant case claimed prescriptive title to Lot B in the District Court. This claim has rightly been held not to have been proved. The High Court has not interfered with that finding. If so, the defendant has no choice but to vacate Lot B.

Should the plaintiff's main relief that the defendant be ejected from Lot B be refused on the basis that the plaintiff is not seeking a declaration of title to Lot B in the prayer to the plaint? The answer is in the negative.

In the early case of Wanigasekera v. Kirihamy (1937) 7 CLW 134 it has been held that where a person obtains a declaration of title to land without an order for ejectment he is not entitled to a writ for delivery of possession. The same conclusion was reached in Vangadasalem v. Chettiar (1928) 29 NLR 446.

In Sopi Nona v. Karunadasa [2005] 3 Sri LR 237, the Court of Appeal held that without a specific prayer to that effect, the Court cannot order ejection of the defendant on the strength of the finding that the plaintiff is entitled to a declaration of title to the property.

In Jane Nona v. Padmakumara [2003] 2 Sri LR 118 there was no relief prayed for in the prayer to the plaint for ejectment of the defendant. But there was a paragraph in the plaint averring that a cause of action had accrued to the plaintiff to obtain an order for peaceful possession of the land and damages. In a prayer to the plaint the plaintiff had prayed for quantified damages until possession is restored to the plaintiff. The plaintiff also raised an issue as to whether the plaintiff would be entitled to the reliefs claimed in the plaint (not in the prayer to the plaint) if the plaintiff's issues are answered in the affirmative. In this backdrop, the Court of Appeal held that a prayer for ejectment of the defendant is implicit in the issues.

The Supreme Court case of Khan v. Jayman (supra) provides a good authority for the proposition that there is no impediment for the Court to grant ejectment despite there is no prayer in the plaint seeking declaration of title.

The recent trend of authority in the Supreme Court favours the plaintiff. Accordingly, the Court can now allow an application for ejectment of the defendant in order to restore the plaintiff to possession on the strength of the finding that the plaintiff is the owner of the property notwithstanding that there is no prayer for ejectment in the plaint.

In Weerasinghe v. Heling [2020] 3 Sri LR 136 the question was whether the plaintiff could seek ejectment of the defendants from the land in suit without a specific prayer for declaration of title. This Court answered it in the affirmative. De Abrew J. citing with approval Pathirana v. Jayasundara (1955) 58 NLR169, Jayasinghe v. Tikiri Banda [1988] 2 CALR 24 and Dharmasiri v. Wickramatunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218 held at 141 "in an action for ejectment of the defendant from the property in dispute, once the plaintiff's title to the property is proved, he (the plaintiff) is entitled to ask for ejectment of the defendant from the property even though there is no prayer in the plaint for a declaration of title."

In Kamalawathie v. Premarathne (SC/APPEAL/118/2018, SC Minutes of 2.6.2021) the Supreme Court reiterated this legal position.

In Jayasinghe v. Tikiri Banda [1988] 2 CALR 24 Viknaraja J. held "Where title to the property has been proved, as in this case, the fact that one had failed to ask for a declaration of title to the property will not prevent one from claiming the relief of ejectment."

A similar conclusion was reached in Dharmasiri v. Wickramatunga [2002] 2 Sri LR 218. The plaintiff sought ejectment of the defendant but there was no prayer for a declaration of title. However the Court held that the absence of a specific prayer for a declaration of title causes no prejudice if the title is pleaded in the body of the plaint and issues are framed and accepted by Court on the title so pleaded.

The question of law upon which leave to appeal was granted reads as follows: Did the High Court err in law in reversing the findings of fact of the District Court on the question of licence without adequate consideration of material analysed by the District Court? I answer this question in the affirmative.

I set aside the judgment of the High Court and restore the judgment of the District Court. The plaintiff is entitled to costs in all three Courts.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Murdu N.B. Fernando, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Kumuduni Wickremasinghe, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

The Pentecostal Assembly of Sri Lanka,
No. 5, Jubily Road,
Katubedda,
Moratuwa.
Plaintiff

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL/201/2016
SC LA NO: SC/HCCA/LA/630/2014
HCCA BADULLA NO: UVA/HCCA/BDL/RA/17/2013
DC BANDARAWELA NO: L/1705

Vs.

David Ratnam,
No. 279, Badulla Road,
Bandarawela.
Defendant

AND BETWEEN

The Pentecostal Assembly of Sri Lanka,
No. 5, Jubily Road,
Katubedda,
Moratuwa.
Plaintiff-Appellant

Vs.

David Ratnam,
No. 279, Badulla Road,
Bandarawela.
Defendant-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

David Ratnam,
No. 279, Badulla Road,
Bandarawela.
Defendant-Respondent-Appellant

Vs.

The Pentecostal Assembly of Sri Lanka,
No. 5, Jubily Road,
Katubedda,
Moratuwa.
Plaintiff-Appellant-Respondent

Before: P. Padman Surasena, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.
Arjuna Obeyesekere, J.

Counsel: Chathura Galhena with Dharani Weerasinghe for the Defendant-Respondent-Appellant.
S.A. Parathalingam, P.C., with Nishkan Parathalingam and Olivia Thomas for the Plaintiff-Appellant-Respondent.

Argued on : 16.12.2021

Written submissions:

by the Defendant-Respondent-Appellant on 12.05.2017 and 24.01.2022.

by the Plaintiff-Appellant-Respondent on 06.02.2017 and 20.01.2022.

Decided on: 22.05.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

The plaintiff, the Pentecostal Assembly of Sri Lanka, filed this action in the District Court of Bandarawela seeking a declaration of title to the premises described in the schedule to the plaint and ejectment of the defendant therefrom on the basis that the latter was the pastor of the church who has no title or entitlement to remain in possession. The defendant filed answer seeking dismissal of the plaintiff's action. At the trial, it was recorded as an admission that case No. L/1551 instituted previously in respect of the same premises had been dismissed. The only two issues the defendant raised at the trial were:

12. In view of the decision in case No. L/1551, has the Court jurisdiction to hear the case on the principle of res judicata?
13. If the answer to that question is in the negative, can the plaintiff maintain this action?

The defendant moved for only issue No. 12 to be tried as a preliminary question of law (මේ අවස්ථාවේදී විත්තිය වෙනුවෙන් නඟන ලද 12 වන විසඳිය යුතු ප්‍රශ්නය නීතිමය විසඳිය යුතු ප්‍රශ්නයක් ලෙස සලකා ලිඛිත සැලකිරීම් මගින් තීරණය කරන ලෙස දෙපාර්ශවය ඉල්ලා සිටී), not both 12 and 13. This is because issue No. 13 is a perfunctory question which has no independent survival. It is intrinsically interwoven with issue No. 12.

Both parties filed written submissions on this point before the District Court. The defendant in his written submissions made it very clear that his objection is based on res judicata as contemplated in section 207 of the Civil Procedure Code, saying "Section 207 and the explanation thereof clearly bars action L/1705 [present action] on the principles of Res Judicata."

Section 207 of the Civil Procedure Code upon which the defendant objects to the maintainability of the present action reads as follows: "All decrees passed by the court shall, subject to appeal, when an appeal is allowed, be final between the parties, and no plaintiff shall hereafter be non-suited." This section has no applicability to the facts of the present case where the plaintiff in case No. L/1551 moved to withdraw the action, which is governed by a different section, i.e. section 406 of the Civil Procedure Code. Section 406 deals with the withdrawal and adjustment of an action.

The learned District Judge rightly answered issue No. 12 against the defendant on the basis that case No. L/1551 was not dismissed on the merits but on the withdrawal of the case by the plaintiff due to the rejection of the lists of witnesses and documents of the plaintiff.

If the District Judge answered issue No.12 against the defendant, what he should have done was to fix the case for further trial. However, he did not stop at that. After answering issue No. 12 against the defendant, he ex mero motu proceeded to answer issue No. 13 in the negative and dismissed the action of the plaintiff. His position was that although the defendant cannot succeed on the objection of res judicata, the plaintiff's action cannot be maintained in view of section 406(2) of the Civil Procedure Code – a position not taken up by the defendant.

On appeal, the High Court of Civil Appeal of Badulla set aside the judgment of the District Court and directed the District Court to proceed with the trial. This appeal by the defendant is against the said judgment.

The finding of the District Judge in my view is unwarranted. We follow the adversarial system of justice and not the inquisitorial system of justice, where the judge is expected to resolve the dispute as it is presented before the judge and not in the way the judge thinks it ought to have been presented before him.

In the Supreme Court case of Ariyawathie Meemaduma v. Jeewani Budhika Meemaduma [2011] 1 Sri LR 124 at 134, Amaratunga J. held "sections 164 and 165 of the Civil Procedure Code and section 165 of the Evidence Ordinance do not require a judge to step in to fill the gaps of a case presented by a party."

In Beebi Johara v. Warusavithana [1998] 3 Sri LR 227, the defendant failed to hand over possession of the premises to the plaintiff who was the owner of the premises after the expiry of the lease. The defendant admitted the lease but pleaded that the premises were governed by the Rent Act and claimed to continue in occupation of the premises as a statutory tenant. The District Court held with the defendant. On appeal, the Court of Appeal accepted that the evidence produced in support of the defendant's claim was inadequate. The Court of Appeal found fault with the District Judge for being inactive at the trial to obtain relevant evidence and ordered retrial facilitating the defendant to lead more evidence. The Supreme Court found this approach of the Court of Appeal to be obnoxious to our system of justice and directed the District Court to enter judgment for the plaintiff. Chief Justice G.P.S. de Silva stated at 231:

In the present case, the burden was clearly on the defendant to establish that his possession of the premises was lawful. For this purpose the defendant relied largely on V1. The Court of Appeal correctly held that V1 was inadequate to establish the case for the defendant. The necessary consequence is that the defence set up at the trial has failed. The plaintiff having discharged the burden that lay upon her, was entitled to judgment. In this view of the matter, the Court of Appeal was in error in making an order for a trial de novo with all the attendant delay and expense. Already 10 years have passed since the institution of the action and, what is more, the defendant has failed to pay rent to the plaintiff since September, 1985.

Finally, I wish to refer to section 134 of the Civil Procedure Code and section 165 of the Evidence Ordinance. [Counsel] for the defendant-respondent relied on section 134 of the Civil Procedure Code in support of the view taken by the Court of Appeal. Section 134 of the Civil Procedure Code no doubt confers on the District Court the power of its own motion to summon any person as a witness to give evidence or to produce any document in his possession. Section 165 of the Evidence Ordinance confers inter alia the power on the Judge to order the production of any document or thing. These are enabling provisions intended to be cautiously and sparingly used in the interests of justice. Neither section 134 of the Civil Procedure Code nor section 165 of the Evidence Ordinance was meant to fill in the gaps in the presentation of its case by a party to the action. While these provisions confer a power upon the court, they do not place a burden upon the court; they do not detract from the adversarial nature of the proceedings before the court.

The District Judge states the term "same matter" in section 406(2) means "same property". This is also not correct. The term "same matter" in the said section means "same cause of action", not "same property". Vide Gangulwitigama Pannaloka Thero v. Colombo Saranankara Thero and Others [1983] 1 Sri LR 332 at 345.

On the facts and circumstances of this case, I set aside the finding of the District Judge on the applicability of section 406(2) of the Civil Procedure Code and affirm the finding on the applicability of section 207 of the Civil Procedure Code. I agree with the conclusion of the High Court of Civil Appeal.

The questions of law upon which leave to appeal was granted and the answers thereto are as follows:

Did the Civil Appellate High Court misdirect itself in deciding that the findings of the learned District Judge of Bandarawela and dismissing the action of the respondent by order dated 18.09.2007 is wrongful?

No.

Did the Civil Appellate High Court err in law in deciding that the respondent can maintain the action in terms of section 406(2) of the Civil Procedure Code?

Does not arise.

Did the Civil Appellate High Court misdirect itself in analysing the term "same matter" in section 406(2) of the Civil Procedure Code?

Does not arise.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

P. Padman Surasena, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Arjuna Obeyesekere, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Appeal in terms of Article 154(P)of the Constitution read with Section 31 D D of the Industrial Disputes Act (as amended) and Section 9 of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 19 od 1990

S.C. Appeal: 201/2017
SC/(Spl.) L A / 89 /2017
HC/AMP/LT/APP/432/2016
LT No. 44/610/2012

W.P.R.P. Devanagala
No: 26/135,
Kumudugama,
Dadayamtalawa

APPLICANT

-VS-

Sarvodaya Economic Enterprises
Development Services (Guarantee) Ltd
(SEEDS)
No. 45, Rawatawatte Road,
Moratuwa

RESPONDENT

AND

W.P.R.P. Devanagala
No: 26/135,
Kumudugama,
Dadayamtalawa

APPLICANT – APPELLANT

-VS-

Sarvodaya Economic Enterprises
Development Services (Guarantee) Ltd
(SEEDS)
No. 45, Rawatawatte Road,
Moratuwa

RESPONDENT – RESPONDENT

AND NOW BETWEEN

Sarvodaya Economic Enterprises
Development Services (Guarantee) Ltd
(SEEDS)
No. 45, Rawatawatte Road,
Moratuwa

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT - APPELLANT

-VS-

W.P.R.P. Devanagala
No: 26/135,
Kumudugama,
Dadayamtalawa

APPLICANT-APPELLANT-RESPONDENT

BEFORE: P. PADMAN SURASENA, J
K.K. WICKREMASINGHE, J
MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

COUNSEL: Malik Hannan for the Respondent- Respondent – Appellant instructed by R.A.N.C. Gunatilake
V. Puvitharan PC with Subhani Kalugamage and Anuja Rasanayakham for the Appellant-Appellant-Respondent

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: By Respondent-Respondent-Appellant on 04.12.2017 and 13.01.2022
By Applicant-Appellant-Respondent on 14.05.2018

ARGUED ON: 01.11.2021

DECIDED ON: 05.12.2023

K. KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J

This is an appeal from the judgement of the High Court of the Eastern Province (holden in Ampara) dated 08.03.2017. The crux of this matter centers around the questions of law based on which leave to appeal was granted, which are;

- Did the Honourable Judge of the Provincial High Court of the Eastern Province (holden in Ampara) err in law in varying the Labour Tribunal Order by awarding 04 years arrears of salary amounting to Rupees Seven Hundred and Twenty-Four Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen (Rs. 724,816,00) as well as Rupees Two Million (Rs. 2,000,000.00) as compensation?

- Did the Honourable Judge of the Provincial High Court of the Eastern Province (holden in Ampara) err in law in awarding 04 years arrears of salary as well a compensation when the Applicant-Appellant-Respondent has not placed any substantial evidence with regard to actual financial loss caused to the Appellant-Appellant-Respondent as a result of termination of his service by the Respondent-Respondent-Appellant?

Prior to addressing these questions of law, I will briefly set out the factual background of the case as follows:

The Applicant-Appellant-Respondent was employed at Sarvodya Economic Enterprises Development Services (Guarantee) LTD (SEEDS)- the Respondent-Respondent-Appellant, as a Divisional Project Manager. At the time of the alleged incident and when he was interdicted, he was the Deputy District Manager of the organisation and had served the Appellant- institution for more than 12 years. On the recommendation of the societies and the field officers, the SEEDS granted loans to four borrowers for a number of purposes. When the repayment of the loan was defaulted, it was discovered that either there were no persons as such or the borrowers mentioned in the application did not receive any loans from SEEDS. According to the Appellant, the field officers had committed fraud on the institution.

The Respondent-Employee was charged with the following

1. Issuing loans to 4 applicants without inspection and qualification of such applicants
2. Bad Supervision
3. For Financial loss to the institution as a result of not taking steps to recover the dues and non-payment of dues following the loan to the borrowers.

After an Inquiry, the Respondent-Employee's services were terminated on 17.01.2012. The Applicant-Appellant-Respondent instituted a Labour Tribunal proceedings against the Respondent-Respondent-Appellant on the 16th of July 2012 for terminating his services by letter dated 17.01.2012 and prayed for reinstatement in the same position, arrears of salary including all statutory allowances and compensation of Rs. 2,000,000/- and any other relief as Court deems meet.

The Appellant filed an answer dated 20th August 2012 denying the position taken up by the Respondent and stated inter alia that the Respondent's services were terminated after holding a domestic inquiry relating to the charges against the Respondent and thus the termination of the Respondent's service is based on equitable and just reasons and therefore the Respondent's application should be dismissed.

The Learned President of the Labour Tribunal delivered his Order on the 05.01.2016 and held that the Appellant has failed to produce substantial evidence to substantiate the termination of the Respondent's service but since the Appellant has lost confidence in the Respondent, in lieu of reinstatement a sum of Rupees One Hundred and Eighty-One Thousand Two Hundred (Rs. 181,200.00/-) was awarded as compensation.

The Appellant-Institution did not appeal against the said Order or the findings of the Learned President of the Labour Tribunal. But being aggrieved by the said Order, the Respondent made an appeal against the said Order to the Provincial High Court of the Eastern Province bearing Case No.

HC/AMP/LT/APP/432/2016 stating the Learned President of Labour Tribunal failed to grant compensation and underestimated back wages due to the Respondent.

On the 8th of March 2017 the Learned High Court Judge delivered his Order in the said Appeal and varied the Order of the Learned President of the Labour Tribunal by awarding 4 years arrears of salary amounting to Rupees Seven Hundred and Twenty-Four Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen (Rs. 724,816/-) and a further sum of Rupees Two Million (Rs. 2,000,000/-) as compensation for wrongful termination of the Respondent's service. Accordingly, a sum of Rupees Two Million Seven Hundred and Twenty-Four Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen (Rs. 2,724,816/-) was awarded to the Respondent.

Appellant's Position

The Appellant stated that the Learned High Court Judge erred in law and in facts holding inter alia;

a) That the 3 charges made against the Respondent are based on one particular issue and if the said issue cannot be proved, the charges cannot be maintained.
b) That the finding by the Learned President of the Labour Tribunal, that the Respondent was guilty to the 2nd charge as he admitted to the same, is unjust and unreasonable as the Respondent has pleaded not guilty to the same at the domestic inquiry.
c) That since the evidence revealed that one person responsible for the said incident is still in employment, itself is a fact which proves that the Respondent was not guilty of the same as to terminate his services.

The Appellant further states that the matter in issue is the misappropriation of loans by 3rd parties which were fraudulently obtained as a result of Respondent's approval of the said loans without properly assessing the details of the borrowers. This caused financial loss to the Appellant.

According to the evidence of the Appellant's witness, Sisira Wijesinghe Bandara, Manager Recoveries, the alleged loan misappropriation occurred due to the Respondent as he failed to assess the qualifications of the borrowers and follow the guidelines and circulars relevant to loan approval.

Furthermore, the Respondent admitted to the loan misappropriation while denying any responsibility for it. In addition, the Respondent stated unambiguously in his examination in chief that the domestic inquiry was conducted in accordance with the law. The Respondent admitted that he was guilty of the second charge, that his inability to assess the eligibility of loan borrowers resulted in the funds being misappropriated by third parties, causing the Appellant significant loss.

The Appellant draws the court's attention to the evidence of the Appellant's witness, who clearly stated that the six officers who placed their signatures in approving the loans are no longer in service. Therefore, it is the position of the Appellant that the High Court judge's findings that one person who placed his signature in approving the loans still being in service while the Respondent's services were terminated had proved mala fide on the part of the Appellant is unjust and unreasonable.

Moreover, the Respondent has not presented any evidence to show that he has been victimised in any way. Thus, the High Court's finding that there was no previous charge against the Respondent is also incorrect, as the Respondent revealed in his examination-in-chief that he was warned for improper asset assessment on one occasion and suspended for one month at half salary.

In light of the above, the Appellant claims that the Learned High Court Judge's determination that what the Respondent has done is just authorising loans without examining the borrowers' income is erroneous. The Appellant therefore claims that the award of compensation granting back wages is erroneous.

The Appellant also claims that the Respondent has failed to present any evidence of actual financial loss incurred by him as a result of the Appellant's termination of his services. It is well established that the employee must prove actual financial loss he suffered as a result of the employer's termination of his employment. If the employee fails to provide proof in this regard, the Labour Tribunal cannot award compensation even if it is proven that the termination of the employee's services was unjust and unreasonable.

The Appellant claims that the Learned High Court Judge's decision goes against the weight of the evidence presented in the case and that he failed to appreciate the just and equitable nature of the order of the learned President of the Labour Tribunal

Respondent’s Position

The Respondent asserts that the termination of his services was not warranted since the decision to issue loans to the beneficiaries was determined by a committee based on recommendations made by the society of which the beneficiary is a member and by the field officials of SEEDS.

The aforementioned committee does not identify the beneficiaries. The committee bases its conclusions on the suitability of the beneficiaries only on the documentation given upon verification.

According to the Respondent, the evidence shows that the SEEDS filing officials forged or fraudulently submitted the documents to the committee for approval. When approving the loans to the beneficiaries, neither the Applicant-Employee nor the committee could have detected the fraud.

The Respondent claims that the Learned High Court Judge appropriately examined the matter and awarded arrears of salary of Rs. 724,816 for wrongful termination over a four-year period. The Applicant-Employee who worked for the Respondent-Institution was wrongfully terminated, preventing him from working for any other institution. He could have obtained a better job if he hadn't been terminated. That opportunity was taken from him due to his wrongful termination, for which he must be adequately compensated.

Analysis

The Respondent Company conducted a disciplinary inquiry for financial loss to the institution as a result of not taking steps to recover the dues and non-payment of dues following the loan to the borrowers.

During the cross examination of the Respondent in the Labour Tribunal, when questioned on the 2nd charge, the Respondent admitted guilt on the said charge.

However the Learned High Court Judge delivered his Order by varying the Order of the Learned President of the Labour Tribunal by awarding 4 years arrears of salary amounting to Rupees Seven Hundred and Twenty-Four Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen (Rs. 724,816/-) and a further sum of Rupees Two Million (Rs. 2,000,000/-) as compensation for wrongful termination of the Respondent's service. Accordingly, a sum of Rupees Two Million Seven Hundred and Twenty-Four Thousand Eight Hundred and Sixteen (Rs. 2,724,816/-) was awarded to the Respondent.

The most important question that must be answered in this instant case is whether the Respondent whose service was terminated is entitled to compensation and back wages especially when he had admitted guilt to the 2nd charge.

Given that the Respondent admitted guilt to the second charge during the trial it is critical to assess whether the Appellant had lost confidence in the Respondent. If termination of the Respondent was justified and the Appellant had lost confidence in the Respondent, can the Respondent claim for both compensation and back wages?

This critical importance of loss of confidence was highlighted in the case of Democratic Workers' Congress v De Mel and Wanigasekera [CGG 12432 of 19th May 1961 at para 24] where it was held that;

"The contractual relationship as between employer and employee so far as it concerns a position of responsibility is founded essentially on the confidence one has in the other and in the event of any incident which adversely affects that confidence, the very foundation on which that contractual relationship is built should necessarily collapse ... Once this link in the chain of the contractual relationship ... snaps, it would be illogical or unreasonable to bind one party to fulfil his obligations towards the other. Otherwise it would really mean an employer being compelled to employ a person in a position of responsibility even though he has no confidence in the latter."

Loss of confidence occurs when an employer loses trust in an employee as a result of specific events, such that the employer no longer feels it appropriate to continue employing such individuals within the organisation.

S. R. De Silva in his book, The Legal Framework of Industrial Relations in Ceylon [(1973) at page 553] has stated as follows:

"Loss of confidence may justify a termination or, in a case where a termination is held to be unjustified, may be an argument against the award of reinstatement. Though theoretically there is no restriction as to the class of employee in respect of 15 whom termination of employment may be effected on the ground of loss of confidence, it usually applies in respect of employees who hold positions of trust and confidence such as accountants, cashiers and watchers or who perform a certain degree of responsible work. The type of conduct that can reasonably be said to lead to loss of confidence by an employer in an employee is generally that which involves bribery and corruption, collection of unauthorized commissions, revealing confidential information, having an interest in a rival business, dissuading clients and customers, transferring business orders to competitors, conniving actively or passively at thefts, defalcations and fraud, sabotage and undermining discipline or loyalty…" [emphasis added]

In 'The Law of Dismissal' [(2018) at page 123], S.R. De Silva has stated further that:

"Loss of confidence is not confined to conduct involving dishonesty. Thus, for instance, loss of confidence in an employee for making disparaging remarks concerning a senior planter to junior planters has been held to be justified [The Ceylon Mercantile Union v. Geo Steuart & Co. Ltd. CGG 14773 of 3 November, 1967]. In another case, the Court of Appeal, in concluding that the termination was justified, held that there was reasonable suspicion of the employee's complicity in the theft and that, although insufficient to bring home a charge of theft, it was sufficient to establish negligence having regard to his position as a security guard [Ceylon Cold Stores Ltd. v. Gunapala – CA/398/1980 – CAM 06.08.1982]."

In the case of Peiris v Celltel Lanka Limited [SC Appeal No. 30/2009; SC Minutes of 11th March 2011 at pages 8-9] the issue of loss of confidence in a non-banking environment was addressed. The Appellant in this case was an Assistant Manager, a position characterized by the court as "of responsibility which demands integrity, competency, reliability and independence." It was held by Tilakawardane, J that "… There was without a doubt an expectation by the Respondent that the Appellant was to act with the utmost integrity and honesty, arguably even more so than that required of an employee without such autonomy. Once the Appellant fell short of this expectation it is perfectly reasonable, by any reasonable standard, that the Respondent would cease to continue to repose any confidence in the Appellant.

Loss of confidence arises when the employer suspects the honesty and loyalty of the employee. It is often a subjective feeling or individual reaction to an objective set of facts and motivation. It should not be a disguise to cover up the employer's inability to establish charges in a disciplinary inquiry but must be actually based on a bona fide suspicion against the employee making it impossible or risky to the organization to continue to keep him in service. The employer-employee relationship is based on trust and confidence both in the integrity of the employee as well as his ability or capacity. Loss of confidence however, is not fully subjective and must be based on established grounds of misconduct which the law regards as sufficient" [emphasis added].

"... In cases of employment which demand a high level of responsibility and autonomy, a lapse in integrity is the precise sort of moral turpitude that can result in a particularly devastating structural and managerial breakdown simply because of the reliance and expectation placed in the hands of such positions, and as such is the sort of transgressive behaviour for which termination of services can be justified." [emphasis added]

The following two excerpts from the judgment Peoples' Bank Vs Lanka Banku Sevaka Sangamaya [SC Appeal 106/2012 decided on 09-06-2015] of His Lordship Justice Sisira J. de Abrew would show how this Court looked at the above issue of Loss of Confidence and Misconduct in the workplace.

"I now advert to these matters. It is correct to say that acts of misconduct committed by him are private transactions between him and third parties and that he had not caused any monetary loss to the Appellant Bank. As I pointed out earlier the cheques issued by him have been dishonored by the bank on the grounds that there were no sufficient funds in his account and that the cheques were issued after the account had been closed. These acts clearly demonstrate that he was dishonest when he issued the cheques. When an employee of the Appellant Bank committed the above-mentioned dishonest acts, they will affect the reputation of the bank and such acts would undoubtedly erode the confidence of the people that they have towards the bank. Needless to say, that the existence of a bank depends on public confidence. When employees of the Appellant Bank behave in this manner, it will affect the reputation of the Bank and therefore the Bank must take disciplinary actions against such employees. In my view such persons cannot function in Banks. When compensation is awarded to the employees who committed the above acts of misconduct, such a decision can be construed as an encouragement to commit further acts of misconduct. ....."

In the case M Sithamparanathan Vs. People's Bank [1986] (1) SLR 411 it was held that "..... It is needless to emphasize that the utmost confidence is expected of any officer employed in a Bank. Not only has he to transact business with the public but also he has to deal with money belonging to customers in the safe custody of the Bank. As such he owes a duty both to the Bank to preserve its fair name and integrity and to the customer whose money lies in deposit with the Bank. Integrity and confidence thus are indispensable and where an officer has forfeited such confidence and has been shown up as being involved in any fraudulent or questionable transaction, both public interest and the interest of the bank demand that he should be removed from such confidence. ...."

In this instant case, a Deputy District Manager is expected to work with diligence and confidence while issuing loans to applicants. The manager owes a duty both to the Company and the customers who borrow such loans.

In the case of National Savings Bank Vs. Ceylon Bank Employees' Union [1982] (2) SLR 629 it was held that ".... The public have a right to expect a high standard of honesty in persons employed in a bank and bank authorities have a right to insist that their employees should observe a high standard of honesty. This is an implied condition of service in a bank. Conduct on the part of a bankman which tends to undermine public confidence amounts to misconduct. Whether the misconduct relates to the discharge of his duties in the bank or not, if it reflects on the bankman's honesty, it renders him unfit to serve in a bank and justifies the dismissal..."

D L K Peiris Vs Celltell Lanka Ltd [SC Appeal 30/2009, decided on 24-11-2010] held that "The Appellant was an Assistant Manager, Credit Collections (outstation), a position of responsibility which demands integrity, competency, reliability and independence. Given the nature of the Appellant's services which was to independently handle the Respondent's work in the outstation districts, there was without a doubt an expectation by the Respondent that the Appellant was to act with the utmost integrity and honesty, arguably even more so than that required of an employee without such autonomy.*

Once the Appellant fell short of this expectation it is perfectly reasonable, by any reasonable standard, that the Respondent would cease to continue to repose any confidence in the Appellant. Loss of confidence arises when the employer suspects the honesty and loyalty of the employee. It is often a subjective feeling or individual reaction to an objective set of facts and motivation. It should not be a disguise to cover up the employer's inability to establish charges in a disciplinary inquiry but must be actually based on a bona fide suspicion against the employee making it impossible or risky to the organization to continue to keep him in service. The employer-employee relationship is based on trust and confidence both in the integrity of the employee as well as his ability or capacity. Loss of confidence however, is not fully subjective and must be based on established grounds of misconduct which the law regards as sufficient. The concept of loss of confidence has been well expressed in the following terms:

"the contractual relationship as between employer and employee so far as it concerns a position of responsibility is founded essentially on the confidence one has in the other and in the event of any incident which adversely affects that confidence the very foundation on which that contractual relationship is built should necessarily collapse…. Once this link in the chain of the contractual relationship…. snaps it would be illogical or unreasonable to bind one party to fulfill his obligations towards the other. Otherwise, it would really mean an employer being compelled to employ a person in a position of responsibility even though he has no confidence in the latter." (vide Democratic Workers' Congress vs De Mel and Wanigasekera ….)"

We could also look into a broader approach of the concept of loss of confidence by leaning into the concept of trust. Wanasundera, J in Kosgolle Gedara Greeta Shirani Wanigasinghe v Hector Kobbekaduwa Agrarian Research and Training Institute [SC Appeal No. 73/2014; SC Minutes of 2nd September 2015], stated that;

"The Appellant argued that she did not hold a fiduciary position in the Respondent Institution and therefore the final charge in the charge sheet regarding "loss of confidence" does not apply to her. I see this concept in a different way. All the workers in any institution work for the employer. The employer has employed each and every person having allocated some part of the work of the employer. Let it be the Chief Executive Officer, let it be a clerk or a peon or even a sanitation labourer, they are employed under the employer. The employer trusts that they will do their part of the work properly. The employer thus has trust on them. The CEO is a very highly trusted person. The officers are also trusted with may be a little lesser degree than the CEO. The minor employee also is trusted, may be even to a lesser degree than the officer. No employee is distrusted. Without trust, an employer cannot and will not employ any person. The employee knows that he is trusted not to be negligent in his work, not to be indisciplined, not to be fraudulent, not to work without due care for co-workers etc. They are tied to the employer with the bond of trust. I am of the view that each and every employee is holding a fiduciary position in relation to the employer. The employee cannot break his trust and work at his or her free will and leisure" [emphasis added].

Further Obeyesekere, J stated in the case of The Associated Newspapers of Ceylon Limited V M.S.P. Nanayakkara [SC Appeal No: 223/2016] decided on 06th December 2022 "I am of the view that an employee is expected at all times to serve his employer: (a) with honesty and integrity;

(b) in a manner that does not breach the trust that has been placed in him/her;
(c) in a manner that fosters the confidence that the employer has in him/her.

While the above would undoubtedly include a requirement that all matters that may give rise to a conflict of interest or any matter that may give rise to the employer losing confidence in the employee be reported to the employer forthwith, failure to act as set out above may result in the employer losing confidence in the employee."

Having laid down the legal context of loss of confidence and misconduct in the workplace, I shall now consider whether the Appellant has in fact lost confidence in the Respondent and therefore whether the Respondent can actually claim for compensation and back wages when in fact he admitted guilt to the 2nd charge.

It goes without saying that the position of a Deputy District Manager is a position of high responsibility and hence requires such a person who holds such a designation to work with diligence and consistency. It also should be noted that having worked for over 12 years, a reasonable person would expect a high standard of working and awareness in the Organisation. Therefore, it is fair to assume that the Respondent was aware of the dealings of the company. We should further notice that the Respondent should have known to carefully and not negligently control the issuance of loans to consumers.

It makes no difference whether the Respondent acted dishonestly in this situation. What matters is whether he acted negligently, causing the Appellant to lose confidence in the Respondent. He has acted negligently by not adequately supervising the granting of loans, which has led to the Appellant losing confidence in the Respondent. After working for a long period, an employer will place a certain amount of faith and trust in their staff.

This therefore raises the question of whether the Respondent can claim for compensation and back wages after;

1) losing faith in the Respondent
2) the Respondent admitted guilt to the 2nd charge

Taking into account the facts and circumstances unique to this case, I am of the view that the Respondent's failure to carefully supervise the issuance of loans is a serious breach of discipline that goes to the heart of the employer-employee relationship and is sufficient to state that the Appellant has lost trust and confidence in the Respondent.

The decision of the Appellant to terminate the service of the Respondent is amply supported by the facts and circumstances of the present case. The aforementioned facts are sufficient for the Appellant to no longer have confidence in the Respondent. The Company would not be able to function with Employees on its staff who are unwilling to strictly abide by the regulations set forth by the Company to protect the trust placed in them by customers.

Since it is now established that the Appellant has lost confidence in the Respondent, I answer the first question of law in the affirmative.

Even though the Labour Tribunal in the case of People's Bank v Lanka Banku Sevaka Sangamaya [SC Appeal No. 209/2012; SC Minutes of 16th November 2015 at pages 18-19]: granted compensation having held that the termination was justified in appeal, Sisira De Abrew, J set aside the order for compensation on the basis that, "When compensation is awarded to the employees who committed the above acts of misconduct, such a decision can be construed as an encouragement to commit further acts of misconduct.".

In David Michael Joachim v Aitken Spence Travels Limited [SC Appeal No. 9/2010; SC minutes of 11th February 2021], Kodagoda, J held that while an employee whose termination of services is lawful and justified cannot as of right claim compensation,

"The power conferred by law on the labour tribunal requires the President of the tribunal to make a just and equitable order, and he is not precluded by law from making an order for the payment of compensation to the applicant, if the circumstances justify the making of such an order …

The ordering of compensation to the applicant should be considered favourably, if attendant circumstances justifies the making of an order for compensation, and particularly when termination of services though determined by the tribunal to have been both lawful and justifiable, was not occasioned due to any wrongdoing/misconduct committed by the applicant. (employee).

In situations where termination of services was due to misconduct by the applicant/workman and such termination is held by the tribunal to have been just and equitable, an order for compensation would be just and equitable, only if there are special or exceptional circumstances, that warrant the making of such an order for payment of compensation."

In the present case, the Appellant Company had sufficient grounds to lose confidence and hence terminate the Respondent's employment. Hence, I conclude that the Respondent in this instance does not have any claim to compensation or back wages from the Appellant Company especially after having acted negligently and admitting guilt to the 2nd charge.

Accordingly, due to the reasons stated above, the two questions of law on which leave has been granted is answered in the affirmative , the Judgement of the High Court is set aside and the order of the Labour Tribunal is restored.

Appeal is allowed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

P. PADMAN SURASENA, J.
I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J.
I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Sunnadeniyage Jayadasa,
Dehigahalanda,
Ambalantota.
Plaintiff

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL 218/2016
SC LA NO: SC/HCCA/LA/37/2016
CA NO: SP/HCCA/TA/24/2012 (F)
DC TISSAMAHARAMA NO: 175/2002/L

Vs.

1. Sudusinghage John Singho
(Deceased),

1A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 1st Defendant

2. Ramasundara Hettige Misinona
(Deceased)

2A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 2nd Defendant

3. Jasenthu Hewage Dharmadasa,
No. 1046, Nandimithra Mawatha,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.

4. Chaminda Sudusinghe,
"Chaminda", Gemunupura,
Tissamaharama.
3rd and 4th Defendants

AND BETWEEN

Sunnadeniyage Jayadasa,
Dehigahalanda,
Ambalantota.
Plaintiff-Appellant

Vs.

1. Sudusinghage John Singho (Deceased),
1A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 1st Defendant-Respondent

2. Ramasundara Hettige Misinona
(Deceased),
2A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 2nd Defendant-Respondent

3. Jasenthu Hewage Dharmadasa,
No. 1046, Nandimithra Mawatha,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.

4. Chaminda Sudusinghe,
"Chaminda", Gemunupura,
Tissamaharama.
3rd and 4th Defendant-Respondents

AND NOW BETWEEN

Sunnadeniyage Jayadasa,
Dehigahalanda,
Ambalantota.
Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant

Vs.

1. Sudusinghage John Singho (Deceased),
1A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 1st Defendant-Respondent-Respondent

2. Ramasundara Hettige Misinona
(Deceased),
2A. Wimaladasa Sudusinghe,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.
Substituted 2nd Defendant-Respondent-Respondent

3. Jasenthu Hewage Dharmadasa,
No. 1046, Nandimithra Mawatha,
Gemunupura, Tissamaharama.

4. Chaminda Sudusinghe,
"Chaminda", Gemunupura,
Tissamaharama.
3rd and 4th Defendant-Respondent-Respondents

Before: S. Thurairaja, P.C., J.
Kumuduni Wickremasinghe, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

Counsel: W. Dayaratne P.C. with R. Jayawardena for the Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant.
Prabath de Silva with Madushani Kulerathna with Salome de Silva for the Defendant-Respondent-Respondents.

Argued on: 26.09.2022

Written submissions:
by the Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant on 27.04.2017 and 21.11.2022.
by the Defendant-Respondent-Respondents on 09.05.2017 and 26.10.2022.

Decided on: 27.03.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

The plaintiff filed this action in the District Court of Tissamaharama against the defendants seeking a declaration of title to the land described in the schedule to the plaint on deed No. 1907 marked P5, ejectment of the defendants therefrom and damages. The 1st and 2nd defendants filed answer seeking a dismissal of the plaintiff's action, a declaration that they are entitled to the property on prescriptive possession through Geetha

Chandanee Sudusinghe (මෙම උත්තරයේ උපලේඛනයේ සඳහන් දේපල 1,2 විත්තිකරුවන්ට ගීතා චාන්දනී සුදුසිංහ යන අයගෙන් කාලාවරෝධී භුක්තියට උරුම වී ඇති බව ප්‍රකාශ කරන ලෙස) and a declaration that deed P5 is a nullity.

After trial, the District Judge dismissed the plaintiff's action and entered judgment for the defendants. On appeal, the High Court of Civil Appeal in Tangalle affirmed the judgment of the District Court and dismissed the appeal. The plaintiff appealed to this Court against the judgment of the High Court and this Court granted leave to appeal mainly on two questions of law:

(a) Did the High Court of Civil Appeal err in law in affirming the judgment of the District Court which decided that P5 is a forgery relying entirely upon the report of the Examiner of Questioned Documents?
(b) Did the High Court of Civil Appeal err in law in affirming the judgment of the District Court which decided that upon the death of Geetha Sudusinghe, the property devolves upon the 1st and 2nd defendants being her natural parents?

At the trial, by way of formal admissions, it was inter alia accepted by the defendants that:

(a) David Silva became the owner of the property by a partition decree marked P1 and P2.
(b) David Silva gifted that property to his wife Podinona and Geetha Sudusinghe by deed No. 1227 marked P3.
(c) Podinona gifted her share to Geetha Sudusinghe by deed No. 33 marked P4 (thereby Geetha Sudusinghe becoming the sole owner of the property).
(d) Geetha Sudusinghe is the adopted child of David Silva and his wife, Podinona.

(e) The 1st and 2nd defendants are the biological parents of Geetha Sudusinghe.

The plaintiff's case was that Geetha Sudusinghe gifted the property to the plaintiff by deed P5. This was challenged by the defendants on the basis that P5 is a forgery and the District Court accepted the defendants' position. The contention of learned President's Counsel for the plaintiff is that the District Court came to this conclusion solely on the evidence of the Examiner of Questioned Documents (EQD) and on no other evidence and this is against the well-established law.

The EQD gave evidence at the trial. He is an officer of the Government Analyst's Department. The report was marked V3. His evidence is that the signature of Geetha Sudusinghe appearing on deed P5 is a forged one. According to his evidence, Geetha Sudusinghe's purported signature has been created by tracing out her genuine signature on deed P5.

> 03. පැ1 හි වූ පැ 1අ අත්සන පරීක්ෂා කොට අදාළ ආදර්ශ සමග ඉල්ලා ඇති පරිදි සැසඳුවෙමි. මා හට පෙනී ගියේ පැ1 හි පැ1අ ප්‍රශ්නගත අත්සන නිර්මාණය කර ඇත්තේ නිර්ව්‍යාජ අත්සනක් ආකෘතියක් ලෙස භාවිතා කර ඇද ගන්නා ලද කාවැද්දීම් මත බෝල්පොයින්ට් තීන්තෙන් ඇඳිමෙන් බවයි.
>
> 04. මාගේ නිගමනය වනුයේ පැ1හි පැ1අ අත්සන් කෙටුම්පත් කරන ලද ව්‍යාජ අත්සනක් බවයි.

The expert witness is very confident on that finding as he says that he used the latest advanced technology known as Video Spectral Comparator (VSC) technology in this regard. This technology with advanced characteristics for examination, comparison and authentication is a complete digital imaging system used by (among many others) Examiners of Questioned Documents for detecting variations on altered and counterfeit documents. At the invitation of the defendants' counsel the expert witness produced his investigation results marked V5. The District

Judge accepted his evidence. The complaint of learned President's Counsel for the plaintiff is based on the sentence found in the judgment of the District Court where the learned District Judge says that to come to the conclusion that deed P5 is a forgery, the evidence of the EQD itself is sufficient. I accept that the District Judge cannot decide the genuineness of P5 on the EQD report alone. The expert only expresses his opinion on the matter. It is not conclusive. The Court will take the expert's opinion into careful consideration to form its independent opinion, which shall ultimately prevail. The Court cannot blindly accept such evidence. Vide Gratiaen Perera v. The Queen (1960) 61 NLR 522, Charles Perera v. Motha (1961) 65 NLR 294, Fernando v. The State (1972) 75 NLR 315.

However I cannot accept the argument of learned President's Counsel for the plaintiff that the District Judge entirely depended on the evidence of the EQD to conclude that deed P5 is a forgery. The District Judge in the judgment inter alia refers to the evidence of Seetin, an attesting witness to the deed. His evidence is fragile and not convincing at all. Geetha Sudusinghe was sick at that time but she is said to have gone to Ambalantota by bus to execute the deed. Seetin also says that she died about one week after the execution of the deed but according to P5 it was executed on 10.01.2002. Geetha Sudusinghe died on 07.02.2002. He did not know that he was signing as a witness to a deed but later came to know that it was a deed. When suggested that they prepared a forged deed his answer was that he does not know. Vide pages 419-420 of the brief. The plaintiff did not call Sunil, the other attesting witness and/or the notary to give evidence.

On the available evidence I do not think the District Judge was wrong to have come to the conclusion that the due execution of the deed was not proved and the signature of the donor is a forgery.

The next question is whether the District Judge was correct when he came to the conclusion that Geetha Sudusinghe was brought up by David Silva and Podinona but there is no evidence of adoption of her by David Silva and Podinona (මෙම නඩුවේ ඉදිරිපත් වූ තවත් කරුණක් වන්නේ ගීතා චාන්දනි සුදුසිංහ කුඩාකළ සිටම නැසිගිය ඩේවිඩ් සිල්වා හා පොඩිනෝනා විසින් හදාවඩාගත් බවයි. එහෙත් කුලවද්දා ගැනීමක් පිලිබඳ කරුනු ඉදිරිපත්ව නැත), and therefore after the death of Geetha Sudusinghe, her propery shall devolve on her natural parents and siblings. This is a wrong finding. At the commencement of the trial, it was recorded as an admission of the defendants (පිලිගැනිම් විත්තිය වෙනුවෙන්) that Geetha Sudusinghe was adopted by David Silva and Podinona. (සුන්නා දෙනියගේ ඩේවිඩ් සිල්වා සහ ඔහුගේ භාර්යාව වන පොඩිනෝනා විසින් ගීතා චාන්දනී සුදුසිංහ යන අය දරුකමට හදාවඩාගත් බව පිළිගනී)

According to section 58 of the Evidence Ordinance such formal admissions recorded at the trial need no further proof unless the Court wants them to be proved.

> 58. No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which, before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule of pleading in force at the time they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings:
>
> Provided that the court may, in its discretion, require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions.

Section 31 of the Evidence Ordinance which enacts "Admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted, but they may operate as estoppels under the provisions hereinafter contained" relates to informal admissions mostly made out of Court.

Because of this formal admission, no issue was raised by either party whether Geetha Sudusinghe was adopted by David Silva and Podinona and rightly so. Nor did the Court want that fact to be proved by calling witnesses. If it was the position of the defendants that Geetha Sudusinghe was not legally adopted but only brought up by David Silva and Podinona, there was no necessity for the defendants to record such admission at the trial but instead it ought to have been raised as an issue at the trial. This was not done.

In jurisdictions where adversarial system of justice is adopted such as Sri Lanka, it is a rudimentary principle of law that the case shall be decided by the judge as it is presented before him by the competing parties and not in the way the judge thinks the case ought to have been presented before him. Therefore the finding of the District Judge on that matter cannot allowed to stand. The Court has to proceed on the basis that Geetha Sudusinghe is the adopted child of David Silva and Podinona.

By way of further admissions quoted above, the 1st and 2nd defendants have accepted that Geetha Sudusinghe became the owner of this land by the two deeds of gifts marked P3 and P4 executed by David Silva and Podinona. However in the answer and by way of issues the 1st and 2nd defendants say that Geetha Sudusinghe became entitled to the land by prescription. Issue 16 reads as follows: එකී සුන්නාදෙනියගේ ඩේවිඩ් සිල්වා මියයාමෙන් පසු, එකී ඩේවිඩ් සිල්වා අයිතිය දැරූ, උත්තරයේ උපලේඛණයේ ඇතුලත් දේපොල සහ ඔහුට අයිති සියළු දේපොල ගීතා චාන්දනි සුදුසිංහ යන අයට කාලාවරෝධී නීතිය යටතේ අයිති වේ ද?

The District Judge has answered this issue also in the affirmative. This is meaningless. I cannot understand how and why and against whom Geetha Sudusinghe had adverse possession to acquire the property by prescription when she had the paper title by deeds P3 and P4 about which there is no contest.

In any event, the plaintiff filed this action for declaration of title and ejectment of the defendants from the land. That means the defendants are in possession of the land. Merely because this Court sets aside the finding of the District Court on the question of adoption, the plaintiff cannot enter into possession of the land. This Court cannot express any legal opinion as to what the parties should do to vindicate their rights, if they think they have such rights.

The plaintiff's action in the District Court and the cross-claim of the defendants shall stand dismissed. The appeal is formally dismissed subject to the above findings. No costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

S. Thurairaja, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Kumuduni Wickremasinghe, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Sabaragamuwa Development Bank,
No. 28, Bandaranaike Mawatha,
Ratnapura.
Petitioner

SC APPEAL NO: SC/APPEAL/219/2014
SC LA NO: SC/HCCA/LA/197/2013
HCCA NO: SP/HCCA/RAT/12/2011 (RA)
DC EMBILIPITIYA NO: 9364/SPL

Vs.

1. Ranjith Lionel Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
2. Ranjula Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
3. N.A. Abedeera,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
4. Manoja Srimathi Abeysinghe,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.

5. Bulathsinhalage Nadeera Thushari
   Bulathsinhala,
   No. 189, Pothgul Vihara Mawatha,
   Ratnapura.
   Respondents

AND BETWEEN

Sabaragamuwa Development Bank,
No. 28, Bandaranaike Mawatha,
Ratnapura.
Petitioner-Petitioner

Vs.

1. Ranjith Lionel Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
2. Ranjula Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
3. N.A. Abedeera,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
4. Manoja Srimathi Abeysinghe,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.

5. Bulathsinhalage Nadeera Thushari
   Bulathsinhala,
   No. 189, Pothgul Vihara Mawatha,
   Ratnapura.
   Respondent-Respondents

AND NOW BETWEEN

Sabaragamuwa Development Bank,
No. 28, Bandaranaike Mawatha,
Ratnapura.
Petitioner-Petitioner-Appellant

Vs.

1. Ranjith Lionel Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
2. Ranjula Kuruneru,
   Ranjula Motors,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
3. N.A. Abedeera,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.
4. Manoja Srimathi Abeysinghe,
   Ratnapura – Hambantota Road,
   Padalangala.

5. Bulathsinhalage Nadeera Thushari
Bulathsinhala,
No. 189, Pothgul Vihara Mawatha,
Ratnapura.
Respondent-Respondent-Respondents

Before: P. Padman Surasena, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.
Arjuna Obeyesekere, J.

Counsel: Manohara de Silva, P.C., with Harithriya Kumarage and Sasiri Chandrasiri for Petitioner-Petitioner-Appellant.
Chathura Galhena for the 1st-4th Respondent-Respondent-Respondents.

Argued on: 11.02.2022

Written submissions:
by the Petitioner-Petitioner-Appellant on 30.01.2015.
by the 1st-4th Respondent-Respondent-Respondents on 03.05.2016.

Further Written submissions:
by the 1st-4th Respondent-Respondent-Respondents on 10.03.2022.

Decided on: 06.04.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

Introduction

The appellant, Sabaragamuwa Development Bank, as the judgment-creditor, made an application to the District Court of Embilipitiya seeking delivery of possession of the property described in the Certificate of Sale marked P12 issued in terms of section 16 of the Recovery of Loans by Banks (Special Provisions) Act, No. 4 of 1990. The Court allowed the application. The fiscal executed the writ on 05.10.2006. The fiscal's report insofar as relevant for the present purposes reads as follows:

> මෙම දේපල තුල දකුණු මායිමේ ප්‍රධාන පාරට මුහුණලා මහල්දෙකක් වනසේ තැනු ගොඩනැගිල්ලක් මෑතදී ඉදි කර ඇත. එකී ගොඩනැගිල්ලේ ප්‍රධාන පාර මට්ටමට ඇති උඩ කොටසේ එක් කාමරයක් වශයෙන් තිබුන අතර එහි රංජුල මෝටර්ස් නමින් යතුරුපැදි සේවා කරනවායැයි කියන ව්‍යාපාර ස්ථානයක් පවත්වාගෙනයයි. මෙම ගොඩනැගිල්ල රංජුල කුරුනේරු නමැති තම පුතාට අයිති බවත් 2004 වසරේ මෙම ඉඩම් කොටස එන්.ජී. අබේධීර නැමති අයගෙන් මිලදී ගත් බවත් මා සමග පවසනලදී.
>
> මෙම ඉඩමේ බස්නාහිර පැත්තේ අයිතිය තමන් සතු බවත් එන්.ඒ. අබේවීර නැමැති අයට අයත් බව ඔහුගේ බිරිඳ යයි කියන මනෝජා ශ්‍රීමනී අබේසිංහ නමැති අය පවසනලදී.
>
> බලයලත් මිනින්දෝරු එච්.එච්.ඩී.එස්. ශාන්ත මහතා විසින් මෙම අධිකරණ ආඥාවේ උපලේඛණයේ සඳහන් අංක 1058 පිඹුරේ සඳහන් මායිම් පොලවේ ලකුණු කරවා එම දේපල පෙත්සම්කාර සබරගමුව සංවර්ධන කළමණාකාර පී.ජී. දයාවංශ මහතාට පෙන්වාදුනිමි. ඉන්පසු ඉහත කී රංජුල මෝටර්ස් නැමති ගොඩනැගිල්ලේ සිටි රංජිත් ලයනල් කුරුනේරු නැමැති අයටද, එන්. ඒ. අබේධීර නමැති අයගේ නිවසේ සිටි මනෝජා ශ්‍රීමනි අබේසිංහ යන අයද පැමිණි සිටි අනෙකුත් සියලු දෙනා ද ඉදිරියේ අධිකරණ ආඥාව කියවා තේරුම් කර දී මෙම ඉඩමේ භුක්තිය පෙත්සම්කාර බැංකුවේ කළමණාකාර පී. ජී. දයාවංශ මහතාට භාරදුනිමි. රංජුල කුරුනේරු නැමති අය දේපලේ නොසිටි බැවින්ද ඔහු මෙම නඩුවේ පාර්ශවකරුවෙකු කර නොතිබූ බැවින්ද සුදුසු නියෝගයක් ලබාදෙන ලෙස ගරු අධිකරණයෙන් අයැද සිටිමි. මේ සම්බන්ධයෙන් ගරු අධිකරණයට ඉදිරිපත් වී සහන අයදින ලෙස පෙත්සම්කාර බැංකුවේ කළමණාකාර මහතාටත්, ඉඩමට අයිතිවාසිකම් කියූ දෙදෙනාටත් දැනුම් දුනිමි.

The 2nd and 3rd respondents made an application dated 11.10.2006 in terms of section 328 of the Civil Procedure Code seeking restoration to possession. However, this application was not pursued.

The appellant judgment-creditor made an application dated 18.10.2006 in terms of sections 325 and 326 of the Civil Procedure Code, stating that although the fiscal had delivered possession to the appellant on 05.10.2006, such possession was not properly delivered as the 1st-4th respondents namely, (1) Ranjith Lionel Kuruneru, (2) Ranjula Kuruneru, (3) N.A. Abeydheera, (4) Srimathi Abeysinghe had obstructed the fiscal from ejecting them from the property. The appellant sought effective delivery of possession by removing the buildings and ejecting the respondents from the property.

> 15. 2006.10.05 වන දින පැමිණිලිකාර ආයතනය වෙත භුක්තිය භාරදීමට පිස්කල් නිලධාරී තැන කටයුතු කර ඇතත් 1,2,3,4 වගඋත්තරකරුවන් බාධා කිරීම නිසා එය නිසි පරිදි භාරදී ඔවුන් දේපලින් ඉවත් කිරීමට කටයුතු කර නොමැත.
>
> 16. එසේ හෙයින් 2,3,4 වගඋත්තරකරුවන් සහ/හෝ වෙනත් කිසිවෙක් මෙම දේපල සම්බන්ධයෙන් හිමිකම් ඉදිරිපත් කරන්නේ නම් ඒ අයත් මෙම වගඋත්තරකරුවන්ද මෙම දේපලේ තනන ලද නිවාස ගොඩනැගිලි සහ වෙනත් ඉදිකිරීම් ඉවත්කර පැමිණිලිකාර ආයතනයට නැවත භුක්තිය භාර ගැනීමේ ආඥාවක් ලබා ගැනීමට කරුණු යෙදී ඇති බව ගරු අධිකරණය සැලකර සිටී.

Then the 1st-4th respondents made an application dated 12.11.2006 in terms of sections 325 and 326 of the Civil Procedure Code seeking restoration to possession.

According to the journal entry No. 6 dated 15.11.2006, the appellant's Attorney-at-Law made an application to the District Court to amend the petition dated 18.10.2006 by adding the judgment-debtor as the 5th respondent. The respondents did not object to that application and the Court allowed it. Accordingly, the amended petition dated 06.12.2006 was filed reflecting only that amendment. The 5th respondent did not come forward to contest the writ of execution.

The inquiry was held before the learned District Judge and several witnesses gave evidence. The 1st, 3rd and 4th respondents also gave evidence. At the time of the execution of the writ, the 1st and 4th respondents were present. In paragraph 2 of the petition dated 12.11.2006, the 1st and 4th respondents admit that they resisted the fiscal in the execution of the writ. This is also stated in the fiscal's report and by the 4th respondent in her evidence. There is no dispute that they resisted but the fiscal executed the writ nonetheless.

After the inquiry, the learned District Judge dismissed the application of the appellant on two grounds:

(a) The application of the appellant is unclear due to failure to establish which of the two limbs in section 325(1) of the Civil Procedure Code the appellant was relying on.
(b) The application of the appellant is time-barred.

On appeal, the High Court of Civil Appeal of Ratnapura, affirmed the order of the District Court. Hence this appeal by the judgment-creditor.

Let me now consider the legitimacy of the above two grounds relied on by the Courts below to dismiss the appellant's application.

Was the application of the appellant unclear?

Section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code reads as follows:

> 325. (1) Where in the execution of a decree for the possession of movable or immovable property the Fiscal is resisted or obstructed by the judgment-debtor or any other person, or where after the officer has delivered possession, the judgment-creditor is hindered or ousted by the judgment-debtor or any other person in taking complete and effectual possession thereof, and in the case of immovable property, where the judgment-creditor has been so hindered or ousted within a period of one year and one day, the judgment-creditor may at any time within one month from the date of such resistance or obstruction or hindrance or ouster, complain thereof to the court by a petition in which the judgment-debtor and the person, if any, resisting or obstructing or hindering or ousting shall be named respondents. The court shall thereupon serve a copy of such petition on the parties named therein as respondents and require such respondents to file objections, if any, within such time as they may be directed by court.

(2) When a petition under subsection (1) is presented, the court may, upon the application of the judgment-creditor made by motion ex parte, direct the Fiscal to publish a notice announcing that the Fiscal has been resisted or obstructed in delivering possession of such property, or that the judgment-creditor has been hindered in taking complete and effectual possession thereof or ousted therefrom, as the case may be, by the judgment-debtor or other person, and calling upon all persons claiming to be in possession of the whole or any part of such property by virtue of any right or interest and who object to possession being delivered to the judgment-creditor to notify their claims to court within fifteen days of the publication of the notice.

(3) The Fiscal shall make publication by affixing a copy of the notice in the language of the court, and, where the language of the court is also Tamil, in that language, in some conspicuous place on the property and proclaiming in the customary mode or in such manner as the court may direct, the contents of the notice. A copy of such notice shall be affixed to the court-house and if the court so orders shall also be published in any daily newspaper as the court may direct.

(4) Any person claiming to be in possession of the whole of the property or part thereof as against the judgment-creditor may file a written statement of his claim within fifteen days of the publication of the notice on such property, setting out his right or interest entitling him to the present possession of the whole property or part thereof and shall serve a copy of such statement on the judgment-creditor. The investigation into such claim shall be taken up along with the inquiry into the petition in respect of the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster complained of, after due notice of the date of such investigation and inquiry has been given to all persons concerned. Every such investigation and inquiry shall be concluded within sixty days of the publication of the notice referred to in subsection (2).

Section 325(1) has two main limbs.

According to section 325(1)

(a) where in the execution of a decree for the possession of immovable or movable property the fiscal is resisted or obstructed by the judgment-debtor or any other person, or
(b) where after the fiscal has delivered possession of immovable or movable property the judgment-creditor is hindered or ousted in taking complete and effectual possession by the judgment-debtor or any other person, the judgment-creditor may at any time within one month from the date of such resistance or obstruction or hindrance or ouster complain to the District Court by way of a petition.

Section 325(1) imposes a further restriction in respect of immovable property, in that, in addition to the one month restriction from the date of hindrance or ouster, it is required that such hindrance or ouster shall also fall within one year and one day from the date of delivery of possession. This additional condition is inapplicable to movable property.

The learned District Judge held that the appellant judgment-creditor failed to make clear which of the said two limbs apply to the appellant's application and therefore the appellant did not establish its claim. Is this conclusion correct and reasonable?

The learned District Judge says that according to the appellant's petition, possession was not delivered but according to the fiscal's report, possession was delivered, and these contradictory positions remain in obscurity. I beg to differ. The appellant in his petition does not say that possession was not delivered–vide what I quoted above. The appellant's complaint is that he could not take complete possession of the property.

The first limb of section 325(1) contemplates a situation where the fiscal is totally prevented from delivering possession to the judgment-creditor due to resistance or obstruction by the judgment-debtor or any other person.

Even if there is no resistance, obstruction, hindrance or opposition, if the property comprises, for instance, a large land with several buildings, the fiscal cannot traverse the entirety of the land and buildings and completely and effectually deliver every part of the land and buildings and every grain of sand to the judgment-creditor. The fiscal can only effect constructive or symbolic delivery of possession.

The second limb of section 325(1) contemplates two situations after the fiscal has delivered possession of the property:

(a) where the judgment-creditor has been hindered in taking complete and effectual possession of the property; or
(b) where the judgment-creditor has been ousted from the property.

The difference between constructive or symbolic delivery of possession by the fiscal and hindrance to the judgment-creditor taking complete and effectual possession after the delivery of possession needs to be clearly understood.

These two things need not happen at the same time. The District Court and the High Court failed to appreciate this difference and, hence, fell into error.

On the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the appellant satisfactorily established the following before Court:

(a) resistance to the fiscal in the execution of the decree, and
(b) hindrance to the appellant taking complete and effectual possession.

According to the fiscal's report, the fiscal could not give complete and effectual possession of the property to the judgment-creditor. The respondents continue to be in possession despite delivery of possession. The 2nd respondent is carrying on a garage business in a building constructed on the land.

In my view, on the facts and circumstances of this case, the appellant is eminently qualified to seek relief under the second limb of section 325(1), i.e. hindrance by the respondents to the appellant taking complete and effectual possession of the property after the delivery of possession.

For the aforesaid reasons, the first ground upon which the learned District Judge rejected the application of the appellant is faulty.

Time bar objection

The next question is whether the application made by the appellant is time-barred? According to section 325(1), the application has to be filed within one month from the date of such resistance or obstruction or hindrance or ouster. As I stated before, this has a further restriction. That is, if the application is for the delivery of possession of immovable property, the application shall be filed by the judgment-creditor within one year and one day from the date of delivery of possession of the immovable property.

The learned District Judge says the application was filed by the appellant in the District Court on 06.12.2006 because the inquiry was held based on that application. The fiscal executed the writ on 05.10.2006 and the appellant filed the application on 18.10.2006. There is no dispute that the original application was filed within one month from the date of delivery of possession. Thereafter, with the agreement of the respondents and the permission of Court, an amended petition was filed on 06.12.2006 only to add the name of the judgment-debtor as a party. The learned District Judge says the amended petition is not within time and therefore the application is time-barred. I regret my inability to agree. When pleadings (plaint, answer, petition, statement of objections etc.) are amended, it is considered for all purposes as relating back to the original pleadings. Vide Morris v. Dias (1892) 2 CLR 185, Endoris v. Hamine (1895) 3 NLR 97, Lucihamy v. Hamidu (1923) 26 NLR 41, Ordiris Silva & Sons Ltd v. Jayawardena (1953) 55 NLR 335, Nations Trust Bank PLC v. Piyathilake (SC/APPEAL/146/2014, SC Minutes of 05.10.2016). The application shall be taken to have been filed on 18.10.2006.

Hence, the second ground upon which the learned District Judge rejected the application of the appellant is also unacceptable.

Complexity of execution proceedings

I admit that the provisions pertaining to execution proceedings contained in the Civil Procedure Code are complex and complicated and the judgment-debtors exploit this complexity to deny or at least delay the decree holder from enjoying the fruits of his victory. These provisions are mainly found in Chapter XXII of the Civil Procedure Code spanning sections 217-354. In addition, there are several other sections scattered across the Code dealing with the execution of decrees. The fact that more than 150 sections are dedicated to the subject of execution of writ itself underscores the complexity of the issue. The statutory provisions in this regard have undergone radical changes over the years. Therefore, the present provisions of the law cannot be understood solely by relying on past decisions. With this in mind, in (SC/APPEAL/135/2017, SC Minutes of 31.03.2023) I dealt with the law relating to delivery of immovable property in the execution of decrees under section 217(c) in some detail. Hence I do not wish to repeat the discussion here.

Section 325 inquiry

Inquiries on execution proceedings held in terms of section 325 are not full-blown trials but summary inquiries to provide speedy and inexpensive remedies. Such inquiries shall be concluded within 60 days of the publication of notice on the land allowing any claimants to intervene.

In the instant case, after the execution of writ, the 2nd and 3rd respondents first made an application in terms of section 328 of the Civil Procedure Code and then, together with the 2nd respondent's father (the 1st respondent) and the 3rd respondent's wife (the 4th respondent), filed another application in terms of sections 325 and 326 of the Civil Procedure Code. It was not the appellant decree holder but the respondents who were uncertain in their applications. In those applications the respondents pray that they be restored to possession whilst they are in possession. This is because the fiscal had delivered constructive possession to the appellant.

In terms of section 325(1), a copy of the judgment-creditor's petition shall be served on the respondents requiring them to file objections, if any, within the given time. In terms of section 325(2), upon the application of the judgment-creditor, the Court can also publish notice on the property, the Court-house and in a newspaper calling upon all persons to give notice of their claims and file their statements of claim, if any, to Court within 15 days of the publication of the notice on the land. The appellant in this case served notice on the respondents and published notice on the land and the Court-house. It is in response to such notice that the respondents filed the written statement of claim dated 12.11.2006. This is different from filing objections in terms of section 325(1).

Both parties claim to have made their applications under sections 325 and 326. Then it can safely be concluded that the appellant made the application under section 325(1) and the respondents submitted their claims under section 325(4).

Section 326 spells out the orders the Court can make after the section 325 inquiry.

> 326. (1) On the hearing of the matter of the petition and the claim made, if any, the court, if satisfied-
>
> > (a) that the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster complained of was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by some person at his instigation or on his behalf;
> > (b) that the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster complained of was occasioned by a person other than the judgment-debtor, and that the claim of such person to be in possession of the property, whether on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, is not in good faith; or

(c) that the claim made, if any, has not been established, shall direct the judgment-creditor to be put into or restored to the possession of the property and may, in the case specified in paragraph (a), in addition sentence the judgment-debtor or such other person to imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.

(3) The court may make such order as to the costs of the application, the charges and expenses incurred in publishing the notice and the hearing and the reissue of writ as the court shall deem meet.

After the inquiry, the Court shall, if satisfied, direct the judgment-creditor to be put into or restored to (as the case may be) possession of the property.

Who shall prove what at the inquiry?

In general, what is required to be investigated at the inquiry in terms of section 325 are the claims of persons other than the judgment-debtor purportedly in possession of the land. The decree holder's right to have the decree executed arises from his decree and the burden is on the claimant to support his claim as against that decree. Although the right to commence the section 325 inquiry lies with the judgment-creditor as the petitioner, he cannot be expected to prove the negative.

In terms of section 327, if the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster is by a person in possession in good faith independent of the judgment-debtor by virtue of any right or interest which has been established, the Court shall dismiss the petition of the judgment-creditor.

Section 327 is connected to section 326. Section 326 deals with how the judgment-creditor's application can be allowed whereas section 327 deals with how his application can be dismissed confirming the possession of the claimant. Section 327 reads as follows:

> 327. Where the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster is found by court to have been occasioned by any person other than the judgment-debtor, claiming in good faith to be in possession of the whole of such property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor by virtue of any right or interest, or where the claim notified is found by the court to have been made by a person claiming to be in possession of the whole of such property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, by virtue of any right or interest, the court shall make order dismissing the petition, if it finds that such right or interest has been established.

When sections 325, 326 and 327 are read together it is clear that the judgment-debtor has no defence (subject to exceptions such as that he has already satisfied the decree), and the person other than the judgment-debtor shall prove to the satisfaction of the Court that, firstly, he is in possession and, secondly, he is in such possession in good faith and on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor by virtue of any right or interest. This is more than mere proof of possession but less than proof of title. Since the inquiry shall be concluded within 60 days of the publication of notice on the property in terms of section 325(4), full investigation of title is neither required nor possible. However the Court should know the standing of such persons in order to make a suitable order in terms of section 326, also allowing the dissatisfied party to institute action to establish his right or title to such property in terms of section 329.

If the resistance, obstruction, hindrance or ouster was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by another at his instigation, the Court may sentence the judgment-debtor or such other person for a period not exceeding thirty days. This is different from a contempt of court charge contemplated in section 330 of the Civil Procedure Code in terms of chapter 65 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Hence the view of both the District Court and the High Court that there is no burden cast upon the respondents to prove their claim until the initial burden is discharged by the appellant judgment-creditor by proving his application made under section 325(1), is misconceived in law.

Judgment-creditor should not be unnecessarily harassed

In my view, the District Court and the High Court placed an unnecessarily heavy burden on the appellant.

It must be understood that the petitioner is the decree holder or the judgment-creditor and, by virtue of the decree in his favour, he has every right to have it executed. Execution proceedings shall not be converted to a second trial. The Court shall not discourage the judgment-creditor from having the decree executed by imposing unnecessary fetters. Instead, the Court shall facilitate the judgment-creditor reaping the fruits of his hard-earned victory. What is necessary is not the mere execution of the decree but the enforcement of the decree. What is the use of having a decree on a piece of paper if the decree holder cannot translate it into reality? Justice should be real, not illusory.

No technical objections

In execution proceedings, there is no room for technical objections. In such proceedings the Court shall look at substance over form. The Court shall interfere with the execution only if substantial or material prejudice has been caused to a party or a claimant by any lapse on the part of the Court or the judgment-creditor resulting in a grave miscarriage of justice.

In Brooke Bond (Ceylon) Ltd v. Gunasekara [1990] 1 Sri LR 71 at 81, it was observed that the provisions relating to execution proceedings should not be construed in such a way as to lightly interfere with the decree-holder's right to reap the fruits of his victory as expeditiously as possible.

In Ekanayake v. Ekanayake [2003] 2 Sri LR 221 at 227, Amaratunga J. held:

> Execution is a process for the enforcement of a decreed right, mere technicalities shall not be allowed to impede the enforcement of such rights in the absence of any prejudice to the judgment debtor.

In Nanayakkara v. Sulaiman (1926) 28 NLR 314 at 315 Dalton J. stated:

> As observed by the Privy Council in Bissesur Lall Sahoo v. Maharajah Luckmessur Singh (6 Indian Appeals 233) in execution proceedings, the Court will look at the substance of the transaction, and will not be disposed to set aside an execution upon merely technical grounds, when the execution has been found to be substantially right.

This view was emphatically endorsed in an array of decisions including Wijewardene v. Raymond (1937) 39 NLR 179 at 181 per Soertsz J., Latiff v. Seneviratne (1938) 40 NLR 141 at 142 per Hearne J., Wijetunga v. Singham Bros. & Co. (1964) 69 NLR 545 at 546 per Sri Skanda Rajah J.

In Samad v. Zain (1977) 79(2) NLR 557, the plaintiff made five applications for the execution of writ. He died while the fifth was pending. The substituted judgment-creditor filed the sixth application for writ, which was refused on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to exercise "due diligence" to procure execution in the previous attempts ("due diligence" was a requirement under section 377 before the amendment introduced by Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act No. 53 of 1980). Whilst setting aside the order of the District Court on the basis that section 337 should not be construed too strictly against the judgment-creditor, Wanasundera J. with the concurrence of Tennekoon C.J. and Rajaratnam J. stated at 563:

> The Supreme Court has always been disposed to overlook technicalities in dealing with execution proceedings. Hearne, J. in Latiff vs. Seneviratne quoted the words of the Privy Council to the effect that-
>
> "In execution proceedings, the Court will look at the substance of the transaction, and will not be disposed to set aside an execution upon merely technical grounds, when the execution has been found to be substantially right."
>
> We would be interpreting the relevant provisions unduly harshly if we were to deny the appellant relief in the circumstances of this case. I would, therefore, allow the appeal with costs both here and below. The petitioner would be entitled to take out writ of execution with a view to obtaining satisfaction of the decree of which he is the assignee.

In Dharmawansa v. People's Bank and Another [2006] 3 Sri LR 45, the Court of Appeal quoted Samad v. Zain to interpret the provisions pertaining to execution proceedings broadly.

In Leechman & Co. Ltd. v. Rangalla Consolidated Ltd. [1981] 2 Sri LR 373 it was held "It is the Fiscal who must sign the prohibitory notice but even if the Registrar signs it the validity of the notice will not be affected where the Registrar and the Fiscal are one and the same person. Nor will the notice be bad because it was addressed to the Chairman, Land Reform Commission when it should have been addressed to the Land Reform Commission because no prejudice was caused and the objection was not taken at the earliest opportunity." Soza J. declared at page 380:

> In the case of Nanayakkara v. Sulaiman (1926) 28 NLR 314 it was held that in execution proceedings the Court will look at the substance of the transaction and will not be disposed to interfere on technical grounds. Especially where no objection has been taken at the earliest possible opportunity technicalities will be allowed only very exceptionally to prevail in execution proceedings. Accordingly all preliminary steps up to the stage of the garnishee proceedings under section 230 of the Civil Procedure Code must be held to have been duly complied with.

Vide also the judgment of De Sampayo J. in Suppramanium Chetty v. Jayawardene (1922) 24 NLR 50 and the separate judgments of Sirimane J. and Alles J. in Perera v. Thillairajah (1966) 69 NLR 237.

Respondents' claim not proved

The next question is whether the respondents established their claim to the satisfaction of the Court. In my judgment, they did not.

The 3rd and 4th respondents (husband and wife) gave evidence at the inquiry and attempted to prove that they have title to the land. They do not have any title deed or permit or grant to this land. Their evidence was that the 3rd respondent had a deed of declaration marked 4V7 prepared on 06.04.2004 based on their possession. The 1st respondent in his evidence states at one point that he is in possession on behalf of the 3rd respondent and at another point that he is in possession with the permission of the 3rd respondent. He also did not produce any title deed executed in his name. However, he has transferred a portion of the land by deed No. 7147 to his son (the 2nd respondent) on 02.11.2005.

The land was sold by parate auction on 03.12.2005. Before the sale took place, notice was served on the 5th respondent judgment-debtor and publicity of the sale was given by various means, as required by the Recovery of Loans by Banks (Special Provisions) Act. The modus operandi of the respondents is clear: they have no right or title or interest known to law to the land and have created a fake title to the land preventing the judgment-creditor from taking possession.

Conclusion

The questions of law upon which leave to appeal was granted and the answers thereto are as follows:

> Q: Did the High Court misdirect itself in not taking into consideration the failure of the District Court to make an order in respect of the claim made by the respondents under section 325(4) of the Civil Procedure Code when section 325(4) requires the Court to take both applications made by the judgment creditor and the respondents together?
>
> A: Yes.
>
> Q: Did the High Court err in failing to take into consideration the failure of the District Court to make an order under section 326(1)(c), when undisputedly the respondents failed to establish their claim made under section 325(4) of the Civil Procedure Code?
>
> A: Yes.
>
> Q: Did the High Court misdirect itself by its failure to consider that the learned District Judge has not properly considered the evidence before Court that the Fiscal was hindered in taking complete and effectual possession thereof within the meaning of section 325(2) of the Civil Procedure Code to deliver possession of the property to the judgement creditor due to the obstructions made by the judgement debtor and/or the representatives?

A: It was not the fiscal who was hindered in taking complete and effectual possession but the judgment-creditor.

Q: Did the High Court misdirect itself by not observing that the learned District Judge has not properly considered the evidence given by witness Ananda Thogadeniya, Manager Loans of the petitioner Bank which shows that the petitioner Bank has not been able to obtain possession due to the obstruction and resistance of the respondents?

A: Yes.

Q: Did the High Court err in failing to consider the error made by the learned District Judge to the effect that the petitioner failed to establish its claim when the evidence and the conduct of the respondent demonstrate that the petitioner has established its case?

A: Yes.

I set aside the impugned judgment of the High Court dated 04.04.2013 and the order of the District Court dated 15.12.2010 and allow the appeal. The District Court shall direct the fiscal to deliver to the appellant complete and effectual possession of the property described in the schedule to the amended petition dated 06.12.2006. The appellant is entitled to recover costs in all three Courts from the 1st-4th respondents jointly and severally.

Judge of the Supreme Court

P. Padman Surasena, J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Arjuna Obeyesekere, J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Appeal from an order of the Court of Appeal in terms of Article 128 of the Constitution.

Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.
Complainant

S.C. Appeal No.220/2012
SC (SPL) LA No. .49/2012
C. A. No. C.A.97/2004
H.C. Kalutara No.38/2000

Vs.

Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara,
Godella Watta, Andawela,
Meegama.
Accused

And

Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara,
Godella Watta, Andawela,
Meegama.
Accused-Appellant

Vs.

Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.
Complainant-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,

Colombo 12.
Complainant-Respondent-Appellant

Vs.

Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara,
Godella Watta, Andawela,
Meegama.
Accused-Appellant-Respondent

****

BEFORE : MURDU N.B. FERNANDO, PC, J.
KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.
ACHALA WENGAPPULI, J.

COUNSEL : Rohantha Abeysuriya, PC, ASG, for the Complainant-Respondent-Appellant
Anil Silva, PC, for the Accused-Appellant-Respondent.

ARGUED ON : 07th March, 2022

ORDER ON : 10th March, 2023

****

ACHALA WENGAPPULI, J.

The Complainant-Respondent-Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the Appellant), sought special leave to appeal from this Court over several questions of law arising out of a Judgment pronounced by the Court of Appeal on 02.02.2012 in relation to the criminal appeal No. CA 97/2004.

Perusal of the proceedings before the appellate Court indicate that one Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara was indicted by the Hon. Attorney General on 19.10.1997, alleging that he committed rape, an offence punishable under Section 364(2) of the Penal Code, as amended by Act No. 22 of 1995. The trial against said Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara proceeded before a Judge without a Jury and, at the conclusion of which, the Court found him guilty as charged. The High Court thereupon imposed a 10-year term of imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 5000.00 on him, coupled with a default sentence. In addition, he was to compensate the victim with a payment of Rs. 15,000.00. Being aggrieved by the said conviction and sentence, said Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara had preferred an appeal to the Court of Appeal under CA Appeal No. 97/2004. In the caption to his petition of appeal, he had described himself as the Accused-Appellant. The Court of Appeal, by its Judgment dated 26.10.2004, pronounced after hearing of the said appeal, had set aside the conviction entered against the Accused-Appellant by the Kalutara High Court in case No. 38/2000 HC, along with the sentences of imprisonment and compensation. It is against the said Judgment of the Court of Appeal that the Appellant had sought special leave to appeal from this Court.

However, in the operative part of the caption to the said application, i.e., the part demarcated by the section titled " AND NOW BETWEEN", which indicates the names of the parties to the application before this Court, the Appellant had named one Imbulana Liyanage Dharmawardhana of No. 145/53, Walaw-watta, Weliweriya, (hereinafter referred to as the original Respondent) as the Accused-Appellant-Respondent and not the actual Accused-Appellant before the Court of Appeal, namely Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara of Godella Watta, Andawela, Meegama, (hereinafter referred to as the present Respondent) in whose favour the impugned Judgment of the Court of Appeal was pronounced.

Application of the Appellant listed to be supported on 28.05.2012 and notice on the said original Respondent was dispatched by the Registry on 21.03.2012. When the application was taken up on 28.05.2012 for support, the original Respondent was absent and unrepresented. Thereupon, Court made order that the matter is re-fixed for support once again on 05.07.2012, "with notice to the Respondent". The notice issued on the original Respondent was returned to the Registry on 31.05.2012 with the endorsement that its intended recipient had "rejected the notice". This fact was brought to the notice of the Appellant on 11.06.2012 by the Registry. Consequent to the said intimation, a motion was tendered to Court by the Appellant on 25.06.2012. The Appellant thereby sought to "amend the caption by substituting the name and address of the Accused-Appellant-Respondent" but did not indicate as to the status of the already named Imbulana Liyanage Dharmawardhana of No. 145/53, Walaw-watta, Weliweriya upon the said "substitution". This motion was supported by the Appellant on 05.07.2012 and the Court allowed his application to amend the caption.

Consequent to the said order of Court, the Appellant had, in order to reflect the present Respondent, Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara of Godella Watta, Andawela, Meegama is named as the "Accused-Appellant-Respondent", tendered an amended caption. Only then the present Respondent was noticed to appear before Court on 11.09.2012, being the next date of support. Notice of the said application was dispatched on the present Respondent only on 31.07.2012, who had then tendered his proxy and caveat along with a motion dated 08.08.2012.

When the application of the Appellant for special leave to appeal was eventually supported before this Court on 07.12.2012, learned President's Counsel, who represented the present Respondent, moved Court to consider the question whether the application of the Appellant is time-barred inasmuch as a wrong party had been originally named and the present Respondent was brought in as a party to that application by substituting his name at a subsequent stage and that too after a period of over ten months. This Court, however, after hearing parties granted special leave to appeal to several questions of law, as set out in sub paragraphs (a) to (d) of paragraph 14 of the petition of the Appellant dated 14.03.2012 and the appeal was fixed for hearing.

When the instant appeal was taken up for hearing on 07.03.2022, learned President's Counsel for the present Respondent reagitated his contention already presented before this Court on 07.12.2012 and raised it formally as a preliminary objection. It was also his contention that the rules of procedure that had been laid down in the Supreme Court Rules of 1990, which sets out the manner in which a party could invoke the final appellate jurisdiction of this Court, are mandatory in nature and therefore, in view of the failure of the Appellant to comply with same, his appeal should be rejected in limine.

Since the objection of the present Respondent concerns a threshold issue as to the proper invocation of jurisdiction, the Court decided to hear parties on the said preliminary objection.

The preliminary objection raised by the present Respondent, in the manner in which the Appellant had invoked the jurisdiction of this Court, is founded upon his alleged failure to adhere to a procedural requirement, which he contends as mandatory in nature. In support of his objection, learned President's Counsel had strongly relied on the applicable rules of procedure contained in the Rules of the Supreme Court 1990, which specifically lay down the manner of lodging applications seeking special leave to appeal from a Judgment of the Court of Appeal. In the circumstances, it is very relevant to consider at the very outset of the applicable procedural requirements which must be fulfilled by an applicant, in seeking special leave to appeal, as laid down by the Supreme Court Rules 1990, along with the judicial precedents which had indicated the degree of importance this Court had attached to adherence to these procedural requirements and the consequences that may follow upon non-compliance of these Rules.

Article 118(c) of the Constitution states that subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the Supreme Court shall exercise "final appellate jurisdiction". Article 127(1) and 127(2) defines the scope of the said jurisdiction conferred on this Court while Article 128(1) provides that an appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any final order, Judgment, decree or sentence of the Court of Appeal, whether civil or criminal, which involves a substantial question of law, if the Court of Appeal granted leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. Article 128(2) states that the Supreme Court may, in its discretion, grant special leave to appeal from any final or interlocutory order, Judgment, decree or sentence of the Court of Appeal, whether civil or criminal. Special leave to appeal could also be granted by this Court, where the Court of Appeal has refused to grant leave to appeal or in the instances where this Court is of the opinion that the case or matter is fit for review.

The boundaries within which the right to invoke an appellate jurisdiction were considered in Martin v Wijewardena (1989) 2 Sri L.R. 409, where this Court held (at p. 419) that "an Appeal is a Statutory Right and must be expressly created and granted by Statute. It cannot be implied" and therefore "… the right to avail of or take advantage of that jurisdiction is governed by the several statutory provisions in various Legislative Enactments. That is to say, for appeals from the regular Courts, in the Judicature Act, and the Procedural Laws pertaining to those Courts". Hence, the preliminary objection of the present Respondent, founded on the premise of non-compliance of a mandatory procedural requirement.

In the Judgment of Nestle Lanka PLC v Gamini Rajapakshe (SC Appeal No. SC HC LA/54/18 – decided on 30.09.2020) Jayasuriya CJ, having observed that the "… Constitution that establishes the Supreme Court and makes provision relating to its jurisdiction have not made provisions relating to the practice and procedure of the Court and had left it to the Supreme Court to make provision on such matters by way of Rules under Article 136 subject to the provisions of the Constitution and any law". His Lordship further observed that the "… Constitution empowers to make such Rules regulating the practice and procedure including matters pertaining to appeals such as the terms under which appeals to the Supreme Court to be entertained and for provision for the dismissal of such appeals for non-compliance with such Rules." In this context, it is pertinent to refer to another observation on the same lines, made by Bandaranayake CJ, in the Judgment of Sudath Rohana and Another v Mohamed Zeena and Another (2011) 2 Sri L.R. 134 (at p. 144) where it is stated that "whilst the substantive law lays down the rights, duties, powers and liberties; the procedural law refers to the enforcement of such rights and duties. In other words, the procedural law breathes life into substantive law, sets it in motion, and functions side by side with the substantive law."

Thereupon, her Ladyship added that the "Rules of the Supreme Court are made in terms of Article 136 of the Constitution, to regulate the practice and procedure of this Court. Similar to the Civil Procedure Code, which is the principal source of procedure which guides the Courts of civil jurisdiction, the Supreme Court Rules thus regulates the practice and procedure of the Supreme Court".

Turning to the question at hand; it is to be noted that the caption to the application of the Appellant describes its nature as an application for special leave to appeal from an "order" of the Court of Appeal, in terms of Article 128 of the Constitution. Since the Appellant had sought special leave to appeal from this Court over a final Judgment of the Court of Appeal, it is clear that, in doing so, he had moved this Court by invoking its jurisdiction conferred under Article 128(2).

Learned President's Counsel strongly contended that for all purposes the application by which the Appellant sought special leave to appeal against the present Respondent was made only on 07.12.2012 and that too with the insertion of his name and thereby substituting him in the place of the original Respondent, whereas the impugned Judgment of the Court of Appeal had been delivered in favour of the present Respondent on 02.02.2012. Since the Appellant had moved this Court seeking special leave to appeal against the said Judgment after a period of well over ten months, the Appellant had acted in violation of the specific time period, as laid down by Rule 7, which restricted the time within which such an application should be made to six weeks reckoned from the date of the order, Judgment decree or sentence of the Court of Appeal. Therefore, the present Respondent contended that the appeal of the Appellant is clearly time barred and should be rejected.

There is no dispute to the factual position of naming the present Respondent was made, as the sole respondent in the special leave to appeal application of the Appellant, only after the applicable six-weeks' time period reckoned from the date of the Judgment of the Court of Appeal had lapsed. The Appellant, by a motion dated 25.06.2012, moved this Court to "amend the caption by substituting the name and address of the Accused-Appellant-Respondent as Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara, Godella Watta, Andawela, Meegama for the name and address Imbulana Liyanage Dharmawardana, No. 145/53, Walawatta, Weliweriya in the caption thereof". This motion was supported by a Deputy Solicitor General on 05.07.2012 and, in the absence of the present Respondent, this Court allowed the amendment of the caption and made order to notify the present Respondent.

Thus, the present Respondent was named as a respondent to the application of the Appellant only on the 05.07.2012 and that too was made without serving notice on him. The Judgment of the Court of Appeal, against which the application to seek special leave to appeal was lodged, was pronounced on 02.02.2012. Obviously, the time interval between these two points well exceeds the six-weeks limitation as per Rule 7.

Defending his motion to "substitute" the present Respondent, in place of the original respondent, the Appellant had contended that the application for special leave to appeal against the impugned Judgment of the Court of Appeal had in fact been lodged within the stipulated time period as prescribed by Rule 7 and therefore the jurisdiction of this Court had properly been invoked as far as this appeal is concerned.

In view of the conflicting positions presented by the learned Counsel as to the validity of the application, the pivotal question that should be decided by this Court in respect of the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the Respondent could be identified as whether, in terms of the Supreme Court Rules 1990, the Appellant could validly invoke the final appellate jurisdiction of this Court by "substituting" the present Respondent, after the expiration of the time period of six weeks reckoned from the date of the pronouncement of the Judgment of the Court of Appeal, to an application that had already been lodged within time but naming a wrong party?

In this regard, I must therefore consider the procedure that had been laid down in the said Rules, in setting out the manner in which a party could make an application for special leave to appeal against a Judgment or an order of the Court of Appeal and thereby properly invoke the final appellate jurisdiction of this Court.

Sub part A of Part I of the Supreme Court Rules 1990, which consists of a total number of 17 Rules (from Rule 2 to 18), sets out the procedure an applicant must follow and should comply with, when making an application for special leave to appeal. Rules 2 and 3 deals primarily with the content and the format of such an application should be drafted and presented with and, in addition, also impose the requirements of setting out the questions of law on which special leave to appeal is sought. The Rules further require such an applicant to set out in that application as to the circumstances which renders the case or matter fit for review by the Supreme Court.

The provisions that are directly applicable to find an answer to the question referred to in the preceding segment could be found in Rule 4. Hence, for the convenience of treatment, it is important to reproduce the said Rule below in its original form;

Rule 4, in reference to an application under Rule 2, states as follows;

> "In every such application, there shall be named as respondent, the party or parties (whether complainant or accused, in a criminal cause or matter, or whether the plaintiff, petitioner, defendant, respondent, intervenient or otherwise, in a civil cause or matter) in whose favour the judgment or order complaint against was delivered, or adversely to who whom such application is preferred, or whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal, and the names and the present addresses of all such respondents shall be set out in full."

The instant matter before this Court, the impugned Judgment is a final Judgment of the Court of Appeal, which determined an appeal preferred to that Court upon a conviction entered against the present Respondent following a criminal prosecution conducted before a High Court. In the circumstances, I once again reproduce the said Rule 4 below, but after leaving out the irrelevant parts. Thus, the edited-out Rule 4 now reads thus;

In every such application, there shall be named as respondent,

i. the accused in whose favour the judgment complaint against was delivered, or

ii. adversely to who whom such application is preferred, or

iii. whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal, and the names and the present addresses of all such respondents shall be set out in full.

The indictment presented before the High Court of Kalutara contained only one name as the person against whom the accusation of rape was made and it is the name of the present Respondent that appears therein as the accused. The caption to the petition of appeal that had been preferred to the Court of Appeal by the present Respondent after his conviction described him as the only Accused-Appellant named therein. The present Respondent succeeded in his appeal. In these circumstances, the present Respondent should have been named as the Accused-Appellant-Respondent at the time of lodgment of the application seeking special leave to appeal. This is because only he is qualified to be treated as either "the accused in whose favour the Judgment complaint against was delivered" or "whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal". The original Respondent, who had been named by the Appellant would only fit into the category of a person "adversely to who whom such application is preferred." Obviously, the original Respondent had nothing to do with the application of the Appellant seeking special leave to appeal against a Judgment of the Court of Appeal to which he is not a party and perhaps that could be the reason as to why he had refused to accept the notice sent by the Registry of this Court. The identity of the present Respondent is already known to the Appellant as the indictment and the petition of appeal of the present Respondent clearly indicate the names of the relevant parties to the prosecution as well as to the appeal preferred to the Court of Appeal.

But what is important to note here is when the Appellant had only named a person "adversely to who whom such application is preferred", and thereby leaving out "the accused in whose favour the Judgment complaint against was delivered" and "whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal", whether this Court could accept the contention of the Appellant that he had complied with the procedure as set out in Rule.

In view of the nature of the preliminary objection, the only way the Appellant could negate the contention of the present Respondent is that he must satisfy this Court there was a valid application pending before this Court to which the present Respondent was subsequently named as the Accused-Appellant-Respondent.

If the Appellant had named either "the accused in whose favour the Judgment complaint against was delivered" or "whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal", at the time of the lodgement of his application that would automatically satisfy the requirement of naming the person "adversely to who whom such application is preferred". But the Appellant did not name either "the accused in whose favour the Judgment complaint against was delivered" or the person "whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal". Instead only the person "adversely to who whom such application is preferred" was named as the Accused- Appellant-Respondent. In such an instance, the course of action adopted by the Appellant would lead to the question, whether there was a valid application for special leave to appeal for the Appellant to "substitute" the present Respondent with.

The requirement of correctly identifying and naming the parties in an application invoking appellate jurisdiction of this Court was raised before this Court and considered in the appeal of Ibrahim v Nadarajah (1991) 1 Sri L.R. 131. This was an instance where the appellant had failed to name a particular party to the proceedings before the original Court as a respondent in the appellate proceedings before this Court, despite naming several others. Court had then considered the question whether there was non-compliance of Rule 4 and 28(5) and if so, the consequences that would follow upon such non-compliance. Delivering the Judgment of Court, Amarasinghe J stated that the consideration of Rule 28(5) in relation to Rule 4 was necessary due to the reason that "although ordinarily in terms of Rule 27 all appeals to the Supreme Court must be upon a petition in that behalf lodged by the appellant, where leave to appeal is granted, Rule 12 makes it unnecessary for the appellant to file a fresh petition of appeal. The application for leave to appeal is deemed to be the petition of appeal. A petition of appeal, whether actual or deemed, however, must in terms of Rule 28 name as respondents all parties in whose favour the judgment appealed against has been delivered and all parties whose interests may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal together with their full addresses".

His Lordship then determined the consequences of such a failure would follow by holding that "It has always, therefore, been the law that it is necessary for the proper constitution of an appeal that all parties who may be adversely affected by the result of the appeal should be made parties and, unless they are, the petition of appeal should be rejected."

The principle of law enunciated by the said pronouncement of Amerasinghe J was re-affirmed in Senanayake v Attorney General &

Another (2010) 1 Sri L.R. 149, as it was stated by Bandaranayake J (as she then was) that "In terms of the Supreme Court Rules, for the purpose of proper constitution of an appeal, it is vital that all parties, who may be adversely affected by the result of the appeal should be made parties." In stating thus, this Court had considered the preliminary objection of the learned Senior State Counsel, who contended that since the Director-General of the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption, a necessary party to that application, had not been named a respondent, the appellant had not complied with Rules 4 and 28 of the Supreme Court Rules 1990. On that premise, he moved for the dismissal of the said appeal in limine. Having referred to Rules 4, 28(1) and 28(5), her Ladyship held that "The totality of the aforementioned Rules indicates the necessity for all parties, who may be adversely affected by the success or failure of the appeal to be made parties to the appeal". This Court thereupon proceeded to dismiss the appeal for non-compliance of the Supreme Court Rules.

In view of the above, it is clear that this Court had consistently held that naming "all parties who may be adversely affected by the result of the appeal should be made parties" as a mandatory requirement that an applicant must comply in seeking special leave to appeal against a Judgement or an order of the Court of Appeal and also for proper invocation of its appellate jurisdiction. In the circumstances, such an applicant must, in addition to naming "… all parties, who may be adversely affected by the result of the appeal" must also name the parties "adversely to who whom such application is preferred" if the circumstances so demand.

In addition to laying emphasis on the aspect of naming the proper parties who may be adversely affected by the success of appeal in view of the applicable rules of procedure, there is yet another aspect that had been emphasised by this Court, which needs to be referred to in this context. In the Judgment of The Ceylon Electricity Board & 9 others V. Ranjith Fonseka (2008) 1 SLR 337 this Court dealt with a situation where the petitioner, in filing a Special Leave to Appeal Application in the Supreme Court regarding an Order made by the Court of Appeal, included an incorrect title and a statement in the caption where the jurisdiction of this Court was pleaded incorrectly.

In pronouncing the Judgment, this Court was of the view that "… the application for Special leave to Appeal filed by the Petitioners before the apex Court of the Republic, should have been drafted with 'care and due diligence' in order to maintain the stature and dignity of this Court. An application such as the present application, which is teeming with irregularities and mistakes cannot, not only be tolerated, but also would be difficult to maintain as each irregularity stated above is fatal to the acceptability and maintainability of the application. Even if the objections may be technical in nature, such irregularities clearly demonstrate the fact that the application made by the petitioners has not complied with the Supreme Court Rules of 1990."

This particular aspect had become relevant in relation to the instant appeal as well. Perusal of the caption to the application seeking special leave to appeal lodged by the Appellant reveals that the name of the present Respondent is already mentioned in the part of the caption which describes the parties to the proceedings before the High Court and also before the Court of Appeal. However, in the operative part of the caption in which the parties to the proceedings before this Court are named, the Appellant had inserted the name of the original Respondent, instead of the present Respondent, who would undoubtedly be adversely affected by the success of the appeal.

In view of the pronouncements of this Court quoted above, there arises the question as to why this Court insisted on strict compliance of Rule as a mandatory requirement and therefore held its non-compliance is fatal to the maintenance of an application seeking special leave to appeal. The answer to this question could be found in Ibrahim v Nadarajah (supra) as it had been held that (at p.133) "… a failure to comply with the requirements of Rules 4 and 28 of the Supreme Court is necessarily fatal. Those Rules are meant to ensure that all parties who may be prejudicially affected by the result of an appeal should be made parties. How else could justice between the parties be ensured? It has always, therefore, been the law that it is necessary for the proper constitution of an appeal that all parties who may be adversely affected by the result of the appeal should be made parties and, unless they are, the petition of appeal should be rejected." The Court arrived at the said conclusion after considering the principles of law that had been laid down and followed in the Judgments of Ibrahim v. Beebee et al (1916) 19 NLR 289, Ammal et al v. Mohideen et al (1933) 34 NLR 442, Wickremasooriya v. Rajalias de Silva (1937) 8 CLW 29, Seelananda v. Rajapakse (1938) 11 CLW 36, Sinnan Chettiar and Others v. Mohideen and Swarishamy v. Thelenis et al (1916) 19 NLR 289.

It was also decided in Ibrahim v Nadarajah (supra, at p. 132) that the mere act of granting leave by this Court, as in the case of the instant appeal, would not confer any validity to a defective application for the reason that granting of leave would only determines the question of access to Court and it does not confer any advantages or exemptions on the appellant other than to make it unnecessary for the appellant to file a fresh petition of appeal.

It is already noted that by the motion dated 25.06.2012, the Appellant moved Court to "amend the caption by substituting the name and address of the Accused-Appellant-Respondent as Dekum Ambakotuwa Prageeth Nishantha Bandara, Godella Watta, Andawela, Meegama for the name and address Imbulana Liyanage Dharmawardana, No. 145/53, Walawvatta, Weliweriya in the caption thereof". The purpose of the motion, according to the Appellant, is to "substitute" the name of the original Respondent by the present Respondents, cited in the operative part of the caption to the said application.

In these circumstances, it is pertinent at this juncture to consider to the question whether such a step is even provided for in the Supreme Court Rules 1990.

Rule 38 of Part II of the Supreme Court Rules, which lay down general provisions regarding appeals and applications, indicate the circumstances under which the Court would allow a substitution of a party already named in an application or an appeal. The Rule 38 states that where at any time after lodging of an application for special lave to appeal "… the record becomes defective by reason of death or change of status of a party to the proceedings" this Court may make order substituting or adding a person "who appears to the Court to be the proper person" upon consideration of the material to establish that fact. Hence, the word 'substitute', irrespective of the purpose in which it was used in the said motion of the Appellant, should only be considered in the context of the scope, as envisaged in Rule 38. Therefore, the proposed "substitution" of one respondent in the place and room of another created by the act of mere deletion of his name from the amended caption and making the insertion of the name of another cannot be considered as a situation where the record had become defective owing to the reason of the death of a party or to a change of status of a party to the proceedings as provided for in Rule 38. In view of the above considerations, it is my view that, in terms of Rule 38 there cannot be a 'substitution' of a party who had wrongly been named at the time of lodgement of the application seeking special leave to appeal with the insertion of the name of the correct party at a subsequent stage. If that error is detected within the stipulated time period of six weeks, during which an applicant could lodge an application seeking special leave to appeal, such an applicant could lodge a fresh application naming the correct party.

An application for special leave to appeal, after its lodgement, could not be corrected subsequently to cure any defects in naming of parties, perhaps except to any obvious typographical errors. This is because, unlike in section 332 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act No. 15 of 1979 as amended, Rules of the Supreme Court does not contain any similar provisions that provide for making such amendments to an application for special leave to appeal after its lodgement, in order to facilitate an applicant to rectify a defect in naming parties by moving to "substitute" the correct party later. If an applicant had named a wrong party at the time of lodgement of his application, instead of a party who is adversely affected if the appeal succeeds, that party could not thereafter be "substituted" to that application at a later point of time and thereby enabling such an applicant to bring his application in conformity with the procedure of invoking the final appellate jurisdiction of this Court under Article 128(2), as laid down in Rules 1 to 7.

Section 332 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act specifically provide for an amendment of an appeal after its lodgement on the basis that is not in conformity with the manner prescribed therein, particularly by section 331 of that Code. The section 332 had empowered the original Court either to return the petition of appeal to the appellant to make the necessary amendment or to permit such amendment to be made then and there in satisfying the provisions of section 331. The failure of an appellant to comply with a direction of Court on such an amendment that should be made under section 332, would make such a petition liable to be rejected by that Court. In relation to civil litigation, Civil Procedure Code too, in section 759 also, provide for amendment of the petition of appeal that had already been lodged.

However, no comparable provision could be found in the Supreme Court Rules to these statutory provisions contained in section 332 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Code and section 759 of the Civil Procedure Code. In fact, said Rules indicate a contrary provision to sections 332 and 759. Rule 10(1) provided several reasons enabling a single Judge of this Court, sitting in chambers, to refuse to entertain an application for special leave to appeal. One such reason is if "such application does not comply with these rules". Thus, the defect of the application of the Appellant owing to the failure to name the party adversely affected if the appeal succeeds to the application at the time of its lodgement cannot subsequently be cured merely by 'substituting' that party after the mandatory six weeks period had elapsed. If there was compliance of Rule 8(4) by the Appellant, that initial defect in the application could have been easily detected for that particular Rule expected an applicant to attend the registry in the third week since the lodgement of the application for special leave to appeal and to verify whether the notices of the respondents were returned undelivered. If this was done by the Appellant, there would have been a window of opportunity to rectify the defect in the application, provided the remedial action is taken within the stipulated six-weeks period, as provided for by Rule 7.

This is not a situation where the often-quoted reasoning of Fernando J in Kiriwantha and Another v Navaratne and Another (1990) 2 Sri L.R. 393 could be applied. In that instance his Lordship had considered the nature of the consequences that would follow upon the failure to comply with Rule 46 of the Supreme Court Rules 1978. Setting aside the order of the Court of Appeal, in which such a failure had been considered as a ground for an automatic rejection, his Lordship preferred to adopt a " a more liberal view" as in the Judgment of Rasheed Ali v Mohammed Ali (1981) 1 Sri L.R. 262 and stated that " … the Court should first have determined whether the default had been satisfactorily explained, or cured subsequently without unreasonable delay, and then have exercised a judicial discretion either to excuse the non-compliance, or to impose a sanction ; dismissal was not the only sanction. That discretion should have been exercised primarily by reference to the purpose of the Rules, and not as a means of punishing the defaulter". In arriving at this conclusion, his Lordship cited and relied on the following quotation from Maxwell (Interpretation of Statutes, 12th ed. pp. 314-5);

> "When a statute requires that something shall be done, or done in a particular manner or form, without expressly declaring what shall be the consequence of non-compliance, is the requirement to be regarded as imperative (or mandatory) or merely as directory (or permissive)? In some cases, the conditions or forms prescribed by the statute have been regarded as essential to the act or thing regulated by it, and their omission has been held fatal to its validity. In others, such prescriptions have been considered as merely directory, the neglect of them involving nothing more than liability to a penalty, if any were imposed, for breach of the enactment. 'An absolute enactment must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly, but it is sufficient if a directory enactment be obeyed or fulfilled substantially".

Unlike the Rule 46 of the Supreme Court Rules 1978, Rule 10(1) of the Supreme Court Rules 1990, in fact had spelt out the consequences that would follow upon any failure to comply with the procedure that had been laid down for moving this Court seeking special leave to appeal, as set out in the Rules 1 to 7. That particular Rule made specific provision that such an application is liable to be refused or to be entertained.

In this context, it must be noted that this Court only allowed the Appellant to "amend the caption" on 05.07.2012, and clearly desisted itself in making a positive order of substitution, despite the motion requesting the Court to do so and thereby to accept the proposed "substitution" of the present Respondent as a party whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal. The Appellant only deleted the name of the original respondent from the amended caption and replaced him with the insertion of the present Respondent's name, under the nomenclature "Accused-Appellant-Respondent". The amended caption that was filed by the Appellant had no indication to the "substitution" of original Respondent, who was named and described in the original caption as the Accused-Appellant-Respondent, with the name of the present Respondent. The Court, at any point of time, neither made any order either discharging the original Respondent from these proceedings nor made order to "substitute" the present Respondent in the former's place, as already noted. However, with the replacement of the name of the present Respondent as the Accused-Appellant-Respondent, the original Respondent had totally disappeared from the caption. The amendment made to the caption by the Appellant replacing the already named original respondent with the present Respondent, after a period of six weeks from the pronouncement of the final Judgment, cannot cure the fundamental defect created by the failure to name the proper party at the time of Judgment of that application for special leave to appeal against the Judgment of the Court of Appeal in Appeal No. 97/2004.

In view of the above considerations, the appeal of the Appellant should firstly be rejected due the failure of the Appellant to name the present Respondent a party at the time of the lodgement of the instant application, as it was imperative on the Appellant to name him due to the reason that only he is qualified to be considered as "the accused in whose favour the Judgment complaint against was delivered" or "whose interest may be adversely affected by the success of the appeal" and not the original Respondent. Secondly, the appeal of the Appellant should be rejected for the reason that he cannot confer validity to a defective application by tacking on to the same with naming of the present Respondent and that too after the expiration of the mandatory period of six weeks.

The appeal of the Appellant is accordingly rejected. Parties will bear their costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

MURDU N.B. FERNANDO, PC, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE
DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal in terms of Article 128 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC Appeal No. 228/2014
SC (SPL) LA Application No. 78/2014
CA Appeal No. CA 205/2008
High Court Colombo No. 9698/98

Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

Complainant

-Vs-

1. Iddagodage Sarath Kumara,
2. Walpita Pathiranage Prasanna Perera alias Alli

Accused

AND BETWEEN

Iddagodage Sarath Kumara

1st Accused - Appellant

-Vs-

The Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department
Colombo 2

Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Iddagodage Sarath Kumara

Presently at

Welikada Prison

Base Line Road,

Borella.

1st Accused - Appellant - Appellant

-Vs-

Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 2

Complainant – Respondent - Respondent

Before: P. Padman Surasena J

Mahinda Samayawardhena J

Arjuna Obeyesekere J

Counsel:

Amila Palliyage with Sandeepani Wijesooriya and Anthony Gunawardane for the 1st Accused-Appellant-Appellant

Haripriya Jayasundara PC, ASG for Hon. Attorney General

Argued on: 11.02.2022

Decided on: 08.02.2023

P Padman Surasena J

Two accused namely, Iddagodage Sarath Kumara who is the 1st Accused - Appellant - Appellant (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the 1st Accused Appellant), and Walpita Pathiranage Prasanna Perera alias Alli (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the 2nd Accused), stood indicted in the High Court of Colombo. In the sole charge in the said indictment, the Attorney General had alleged that those two accused together with Patapilige Athula Devendra who was dead at the time of filing the indictment (he will hereinafter be sometimes referred to as the Dead Accused), had committed the murder of one Managamage Anura Wickramanayake, an offence punishable under section 296 read with section 32 of the Penal Code.

Both the said Accused, upon the charge in the indictment being read over and explained to them, had pleaded not guilty to the said charge. Thereafter, the learned High Court Judge having conducted the trial against them, by the judgment dated 11.01.2008, has convicted the 1st Accused Appellant for the charge in the indictment and acquitted the 2nd Accused. The learned High Court Judge had accordingly imposed death sentence on the 1st Accused Appellant as required under section 296 of the Penal Code.

Being aggrieved by this conviction, the 1st Accused Appellant had appealed to the Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal after the argument of the case, by its judgment dated 04th April 2014, has affirmed the conviction and the sentence imposed on the 1st Accused Appellant by the High Court and dismissed the said appeal.

The incident leading to the death of the deceased Managamage Anura Wickramanayake had occurred while he was returning from Galle Face where he had spent the previous evening with a group which had included some of the relatives and their family members. At the trial the prosecution had led the evidence of seven witnesses namely, the wife of the deceased Ranwilage Ajantha Malkanthi, Ramani Sandhya Kumari, the daughter of the deceased Managamage Sudheera Himashi, Assistant Judicial Medical Officer-Colombo, Assistant Superintendent of Police Ratnayake Mudiyanselage Ajantha Lal Samarakoon, Inspector of Police Saman Pushpa Kumara Ariyadasa and the Interpreter Mudaliyar of Colombo High Court. Out of the above witnesses, three witnesses namely, the wife of the deceased Ranwilage Ajantha Malkanthi, the daughter of the deceased Managamage Sudheera Himashi and the lady by the name Ramani Sandhya Kumari had travelled along with the deceased at the time he faced the incident relevant to the offence in the indictment.

Having being called by the prosecution to give evidence first at the commencement of the trial, the wife of the deceased Ranwilage Ajantha Malkanthi had testified that she saw the Dead Accused being armed with a Kris knife. She had seen the 1st Accused - Appellant and the Dead Accused going towards her husband (the deceased). After a while, upon hearing Ramani Sandhya Kumari shouting "අනුර අයියා අනින්න එපා" (Anura, don't stab) and "Anura Anura", she had proceeded towards the commotion and noticed her husband fallen on the ground. She also had testified that she saw the Dead Accused near her fallen husband. She had then proceeded to dispatch the deceased to the hospital.

The prosecution then called Ramani Sandhya Kumari to give evidence. She had testified that the 1st Accused - Appellant and the dead Accused were armed with a Manna knife and a Kris knife respectively. According to this witness's testimony, while she (along with the deceased) was looking for her children (who appeared to have gone missing at that time), the Dead Accused had started chasing the deceased. While being chased by the Dead Accused, the deceased had fallen on the ground. It was then that the Dead Accused had stabbed the deceased with the Kris knife several times. At this point she had seen the deceased profusely bleeding. She had further testified that after continuous struggle for life, the head of the deceased had bent down.

The prosecution then called the daughter of the deceased Managamage Sudheera Himashi to give evidence. She had witnessed the murder of her father (the deceased). She had seen the 1st Accused - Appellant initially attacking the deceased by dealing a blow on the head of the deceased with a knife. According to her testimony, following the attack by the 1st Accused – Appellant, the deceased had started running whereupon the Dead Accused had started chasing him. It was thereafter that the deceased had fallen on the ground. The witness along with the other daughter of the deceased, at this point had witnessed their father (the deceased) being continuously stabbed by the Dead Accused several times.

Police in the course of the investigations had recovered a knife from the scene and a Manna knife on the section 27 statement made by the Dead Accused (Athula Devendra). The Judicial Medical Officer had observed two types of injuries on the deceased which he had concluded are compatible being caused with a Kris knife and a Manna knife. At the trial the prosecution showed him and produced the two weapons (a Kris knife and a Manna knife), which in his opinion are capable of causing the injuries observed by him. Medical evidence was not challenged by the defence at the trial. Thus, the evidence of the two eye witnesses can be taken as having being corroborated by the medical evidence.

During the trial in the High Court of Colombo, among the other witnesses to the incident the daughter of the deceased Managamage Sudheera Himashi had testified that she saw the 1st Accused Appellant dealing a blow on the head of the deceased with a 'Manna Knife' prior to the deceased being stabbed by the dead accused. In regard to the above testimony, the defence, during cross examination had relied on the fact that the said witness (Managamage Sudheera Himashi Nimashi) had not stated during the non-Summary inquiry the fact that she saw the 1st Accused Appellant dealing a blow on the head of the deceased with a 'Manna Knife'. The defence had brought this to the attention of the learned High Court Judge pointing it out as a vital omission on the part of the said witness at the non-Summary inquiry.

Although the said omission was not proved by the defence, having considered that aspect, the learned High Court Judge had held: that it is not a material omission that goes to the root of the case; given the age of the witness at the time she gave evidence and the shock that she was in, it was natural for her to have failed to refer to the weapon that was used by the 1st Accused Appellant at the Non-Summary Inquiry. In considering this aspect of the case, the learned trial Judge has applied the principles laid down in an Indian judgment, where their Lordships had held that no immediate relation would want to falsely implicate an innocent person and let go of the real criminal. Having considered the evidence of the said witness (Himashi) at length, the learned trial Judge has categorically stated that a single omission will not discredit the witness. He has further stated that as there was no previous enmity between the witness and the accused persons, the witness did not have any reason to falsely implicate the 1st Accused Appellant in this case. (The witness was only 10 years old at the time of the incident). Having considered that aspect, the learned High Court Judge had decided against the 1st Accused Appellant.

Being aggrieved by the judgment of the High Court, the 1st Accused Appellant had appealed to the Court of Appeal complaining inter alia on the failure on the part of the learned High Court Judge to consider in his favour, the vital omission relied upon by the defence on the evidence of the prosecution eyewitness in relation to her evidence at the non- summary inquiry.[1]

At the time of hearing the appeal in the Court of Appeal, the learned counsel for the 1st Accused Appellant had drawn the attention of their Lordships of the Court of Appeal to the said omission which was raised as a ground of appeal. It is in that context that their Lordships of the Court of Appeal perused the Non-Summary proceedings and the Information Book Extracts.

The learned Judges of the Court of Appeal upon perusal of the Police statements and the evidence in the non- summary inquiry, had dismissed the appeal of the 1st Accused Appellant by their judgement dated 04.04.2014 holding that such omission in the non- summary inquiry has not prejudiced the substantial rights of the 1st Accused Appellant.

Being aggrieved by the decision of the Court of Appeal, the 1st Accused Appellant by Petition dated 12.05.2014 sought Special Leave to Appeal from this Court. Accordingly, this Court by order dated 25.11.2014 granted Special Leave to Appeal on the following questions of law.[2]

---

[1] Vide page 5 of the Petition of the Supreme Court dated 12.05.2014.
[2] Paragraphs 12 (v) and (vi) of the petition dated 12th May 2014 (reproduced in verbatim).

1. Have their Lordships the judges of the Court of Appeal erred in law by perusing the Information book extracts, non-summary proceedings?

2. Is there a prejudice caused to the petitioner by perusing the Information book extracts, non-summary proceedings?

The learned counsel for the 1st Accused-Appellant though did not seek to challenge the powers of Court to peruse the information book extracts in the exercise of its overall control of the proceedings and to use it as an aid at the trial, he complained before this Court that their Lordships of the Court of Appeal had wrongfully perused the information book extracts and arrived at a conclusion that there is no such omission as alleged by the defence. It was his submission that this had caused him an immense prejudice as the said conclusion has been contradictory to that of the trial judge. He took offence with the following paragraphs in the Court of Appeal judgment.

Paragraph 3, Page 8, CA Judgement dated 4th February 2014

> I have perused the entirety of the Information Book extracts, non-summary and trial proceedings, the judgement of the learned trial Judge and finally the extensive written submissions and case law authorities submitted by both parties at the hearing of the appeal. It is now left to consider the several grounds of appeal urged on behalf of the appellant.

Paragraph 2, Page 9, CA Judgement dated 4th February 2014

> Further, in reviewing the veracity of a witness, the Appellate Court may employ certain rules and guidelines to elicit the truth as the Appellate Judges do not have the benefit of observing and questioning the witness first-hand. One such rule is to delve in to the police statement of the witness, not to use it as substantive evidence but to bolster a proper inference as to the credit-worthiness of a witness, as enunciated by F.N.D. Jayasuriya J in Keerthi Bandara vs Attorney General (2002) (2 SLR 245 at page 261). In the instant case a perusal of the police statement of witness Himashi clearly indicates that she had explicitly mentioned witnessing the appellant Sarath attacking her father with a weapon like a manna knife. A perusal of her evidence at the non-summary inquiry also indicate that she had testified that the appellant had attacked her father on the head while seated before the boutique which is consistent with her evidence at the trial, even though she had omitted to mention the use of a weapon like a manna knife. Evidence of Sandya Kumari (Page 100 of the Record) corroborates the fact that the appellant was armed with a manna knife.

Paragraph 3, Page 10, CA Judgement dated 4th February 2014

In view of the above, the failure of the learned trial Judge to act on the purported omission in the evidence of Himashi at the non-summary inquiry has not prejudiced the substantial rights of the appellant. Accordingly, the main ground of appeal should fail.

I would commence the discourse relevant to the questions of law by first adverting to sub sections 3 and 4 of section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act No. 15 of 1979 which is as follows.

Section 110 (3) and (4) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act.

(1) …..

(2) ……

(3) A statement made by any person to a police officer in the course of any investigation may be used in accordance with the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance except for the purpose of corroborating the testimony of such person in court;

Provided that a statement made by an accused person in the course of any investigation shall only be used to prove that he made a different statement at a different time.

Anything in this subsection shall not be deemed to apply to any statement falling within the provisions of section 27 of the Evidence Ordinance or to prevent any statement made by a person in the course of any investigation being used as evidence in a charge under section 180 of the Penal Code.

(4) Any criminal court may send for the statements recorded in a case under inquiry or trial in such court and may use such statements or information, not as evidence in the case, but to aid it in such inquiry or trial. Save as otherwise provided for in section 444 neither the accused nor his agents shall be entitled to call for such statements, nor shall he or they be entitled to see them merely because they are referred to by the court but if they are used by the police officer or inquirer or witness who made them to refresh his memory, or if the court uses them for the purpose of contradicting such police officer or inquirer or witness the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance, section 161 or section 145, as the case may be, shall apply:

> Provided that where a preliminary inquiry under Chapter XV is being held in respect of any offence, such statements of witnesses as have up to then been recorded shall, on the application of the accused, be made available to him for his perusal in open court during inquiry.

Thus, it can be seen from the above section that our law has not completely shut out any use of the statements recorded in a case under inquiry or trial. Moreover, it is mandatory under section 162 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act No. 15 of 1979 to attach to every indictment, the following documents:

> (a) Where there was a preliminary inquiry under Chapter XV, a certified copy of the record of inquiry and of the documents and of the inquest proceedings if there had been an inquest;
>
> (b) Where there was no preliminary inquiry under Chapter XV, copies of statements to the police, if any, of the accused and the witnesses listed in the indictment;

According to section 159 (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act when the Magistrate commits the accused for trial he shall, forthwith transmit to the High Court-> i. the record of the inquiry together with all documents and things produced in evidence; and > ii. a copy certified under his hand of such record and of such documents; and > iii. one of the certified copies of the notes of investigation and of statements furnished by the officer in charge of the police station;

Why have both the above sections insisted for those material to be transmitted to the trial Court? If it is completely prohibited for the trial judge even to touch them, they could have been completely kept away from the trial Judge. Our law does not envisage such a prohibition. This however should not be understood as giving a freehand for the trial Judge even to use such statements as evidence. The extent to which such statements can be used by trial judges was considered by His Lordship Ninian Jayasuriya J in Keerthi Bandara Vs. Attorney General.[3] Having considered the relevant provisions of law Jayasuriya J laid down the following principle:

> We lay it down that it is for the Judge to peruse the Information Book in the exercise of his overall control of the said book and to use it to aid the Court at the inquiry or trial. When defence counsel spot lights a vital omission, the trial Judge ought to personally peruse the statement recorded in the Information Book, interpret the contents of the statement in his mind and determine whether there is a vital omission > or not and thereafter inform the members of the jury whether there is a vital omission or not and his direction on the law in this respect is binding on the members of the jury. Thus when the defence contends that there is a vital omission which militates against the adoption of the credibility of the witness, it is the trial Judge who should peruse the Information Book and decide on that issue. When the matter is again raised before the Court of Appeal, the Court of Appeal Judges are equally entitled to read the contents of the statements recorded in the Information Book and determine whether there is a vital omission or not and both Courts ought to exclude altogether the illegal and inadmissible opinions expressed orally by police officers (who are not experts but lay witnesses) in the witness box on this point [4].

[3] 2002 (2) Sri. L. R. 245 at page 261.

Justice Ninian Jayasuriya while laying down the perusal of the statement recorded in the Information Book to interpret and determine the existence or non-existence of any omission, to be a personal duty of the trial Judge, also held that the Court of Appeal hearing the appeal of such case too has an undoubted right to do the same. It could be gathered by the following paragraph of the same judgment.

> If the trial Judge has an undoubted right to do so, certainly the Judges in the Court of Appeal hearing an appeal would also have the undoubted right to peruse such statements for such limited purpose in the interest of justice and in determining whether there is an omission on a vital point or not. The Judges would in this exercise only be concerned with the issue of the credibility of the witness and they would not in that exercise be using the contents of the statement as substantive evidence to arrive at an adjudication on the main issues in the case. That is the significant distinction between the process indulged in by the High Court Judge in Sheela Sinharage's case and the issue that arises upon this appeal relating exclusively to the province of credibility [5].

Although the learned counsel for the 1st Accused-Appellant had relied on Sheela Sinharage's case, as in Keerthi Bandara's case that case has no application to the instant case as the issues in this case too only revolve around some steps taken by the Judges of the Court of Appeal to peruse the information book extracts to consider the arguments advanced by the defence in relation to an omission which the defence had argued was vital for the credibility of the witness.

---

[4] 2002 (2) Sri. L. R. 245 at page 258, Paragraph 2.
[5] 2002 (2) Sri. L. R. 245 at page 261, Paragraph 2.

The above principle laid down by the Court of Appeal in Keerthi Bandara's case has thereafter been consistently followed not only by the Court of Appeal but also by this Court in numerous judgments. It would suffice to cite two of such cases to wit, Kahandagamage Dharmasiri Vs The Republic of Sri Lanka SC. Appeal No.04/2009, decided on 03.02.2012 and Rathnasingham Janushan & Another Vs The Officer in Charge Headquarters Police Station Jaffna & Others SC (Spl) Appeal No. 07/2018, decided on 04.10.2019.

I observe that the learned Judge of the Court of Appeal has not only referred to Keerthi Bandara's case but also referred to the need to guard against using the contents of such statement recorded in the Information Book as evidence in the case before them. I am satisfied that their Lordships of the Court of Appeal had taken adequate measures to stay within their boundaries when examining the statements recorded in the Information Book and the Non-Summary inquiry record.

Thus, I am of the view that the contents of the above paragraphs of the Court of Appeal judgment which is impugned by the learned counsel for the 1st Accused-Appellant are paragraphs merely setting out how their Lordships of the Court of Appeal had exercised their undoubted right and the fervent duty to personally peruse the previous versions of the statements recorded at various stages of the case to interpret and determine the existence or non-existence of the omission alleged by the 1st Accused-Appellant. Their Lordships in the Court of Appeal just like the trial judges are under a duty to examine such previous statements when such complaint is made before them.

However, the sentence "I have perused the entirety of the Information Book extracts, non-summary and trial proceedings, the judgement of the learned trial Judge and finally the extensive written submissions and case law authorities submitted by both parties at the hearing of the appeal" in Paragraph 3 of Page 8 of the Court of Appeal judgment when taken in isolation, at once gives the reader, the impression that the learned judges of the Court of Appeal had considered the material mentioned therein in deciding the issues they had decided.

Lord Chief Justice Hewart's well-known dictum "Justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done" uttered nearly 100 years ago, still rings true and is widely accepted and followed particularly throughout the common law countries. The importance of adhering to this principle is underscored by the most fundamental requirement of maintaining the impartiality of the adjudicator in any process of administration of justice.

Thus, I cannot accept that the statements such as the kind quoted above, used by the learned Judge of the Court of Appeal are in the best interest in complying with the above dictum.

The learned counsel for the 1st Accused-Appellant also complained against the content in the middle paragraph of page 14 of the Court of Appeal Judgment. For easy reference the said judgment is reproduced below:

> A minute perusal of the Information Book Extracts would have thrown further light of previous enmity and evidence of motive between the deceased and the perpetrators, which the prosecuting State Counsel had failed to grasp and lead at the trial, which would have perhaps answered the pertinent question why the assailants attacked the deceased.

At the outset, it would be useful to mention here that the focus of the complaint made by the learned counsel for the 1st Accused-Appellant against the above paragraph was on the prejudice such perusal of such Information Book Extracts would have caused in their Lordships' minds. Admittedly, the prosecution had not adduced any evidence as to the presence of any motive on the part of the accused to commit this crime. However, the contents of the above paragraph shows that the learned Judge of the Court of Appeal had proceeded to form the view that there was evidence of motive which the prosecution should have led against the accused. It is clearly a conclusion arrived at using Information Book Extracts without any evidence being adduced in that regard. However, I have to note that the learned Judge of the Court of Appeal had stated that merely to highlight a lapse on the part of the prosecutor and not to conclude on that statement that there was a motive established by the prosecution. Be that as it may, in my view, the Court of Appeal should have been more careful when engaging in such exercises.

The learned Additional Solicitor General in the best interests / true spirit of the Attorney General's Department has conceded that the Court of Appeal should not have stated what it had stated in the above paragraph of their Lordships' judgment. However, she proceeded to argue that no prejudice has been caused to the 1st Accused Appellant in view of the presence of overwhelming evidence in the instant case against him. Let me now turn to that argument by reproducing below section 436 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act No. 15 of 1979.

Section 436 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act.

> (Finding or sentence when reversibly by reason of error or omission in charge or other proceedings.)

Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained any judgement passed by a court of competent jurisdiction shall not be reversed or altered on appeal or revision on account-

(a) of any error, omission, or irregularity in the complaint, summons, warrant, charge, judgement, summing up, or other proceedings before or during trial or in any inquiry or other proceedings under this Code; or

(b) of the want of any sanction required by section 135, unless such error, omission, irregularity, or want has occasioned a failure of justice.

As has already been stated before, the three witnesses namely, the wife of the deceased Ranwilage Ajantha Malkanthi, the daughter of the deceased Managamage Sudheera Himashi and the lady by the name Ramani Sandhya Kumari had been travelling along with the deceased when the unfortunate incident had happened. Their evidence clearly establishes guilt of the 1st Accused Appellant in the murder of the deceased Managamage Anura Wickramanayake. This evidence stands completely corroborated by the other witnesses called by the prosecution including the Assistant Judicial Medical Officer-Colombo. Thus, in any case, there is overwhelming evidence to affirm the conviction of the 1st Accused Appellant on the charge in the indictment. While the statement referred to above made by the Court of Appeal is undesirable, I am of the view that no prejudice has been caused to the rights of the 1st Accused Appellant.

I answer the questions of law in respect of which this Court has granted Special Leave to Appeal as follows.

1. Their Lordships the judges of the Court of Appeal have not erred in law by perusing the Information book extracts, non-summary proceedings.

2. No prejudice has been caused to the 1st Accused Appellant by mere reason that the Court of Appeal had perused the Information book extracts, non-summary proceedings.

I affirm the judgment dated 11.01.2008, pronounced by the learned High Court Judge which has convicted the 1st Accused Appellant for the charge in the indictment and also affirm the judgment dated 04th April 2014, pronounced by the Court of Appeal in so far as it has affirmed the conviction and the sentence imposed on the 1st Accused Appellant by the High Court. I proceed to dismiss the instant appeal subject to the above observation.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Mahinda Samayawardhena J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Arjuna Obeyesekere J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application for Leave to Appeal in terms of Article 128 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka, read with Section 5C of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 19 of 1990 as amended by the Act, No. 54 of 2006.

Lindamulage Paul Jesudasa De Silva,
No. 508/1, De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

PLAINTIFF

SC APPEAL 232/2016
SC/HCCA/LA 502/2014
CA Appeal: WP/HCCA/MT/No. 01/13/RA
DC Moratuwa No. 254L

Vs.

Rambukkanage Lesman Fernando
De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

DEFENDANT

AND THEN

Lindamulage Paul Jesudasa De Silva,
No. 508/1, De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

PLAINTIFF-PETITIONER

Vs.

Rambukkanage Lesman Fernando
De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT

AND NOW BETWEEN

Rambukkanage Lesman Fernando
De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT-APPELLANT

Vs.

Lindamulage Paul Jesudasa De Silva,
No. 508/1, De Soyza Road,
Molpe, Moratuwa.

PLAINTIFF-PETITIONER-RESPONDENT

BEFORE: Hon. Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J
Hon. Murdu N. B Fernando, PC, J
Hon. Yasantha Kodagoda, PC, J

COUNSEL: Darshana Kuruppu with Chinthaka Udadeniya for the Defendant-Respondent-Appellant.
Dhanya Gunawardena for the Plaintiff-petitioner-Respondent.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: 21st November 2016 and 22nd May 2020 for the Defendant-Respondent Appellant.

ARGUED ON: 10.03.2020.

DECIDED ON: 13.10.2023

Judgement

Aluwihare, PC, J

(1) The Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent [hereinafter referred to as 'the Plaintiff'] filed action against the Defendant-Respondent-Petitioner-Appellant [hereinafter 'the Defendant'] in the District Court seeking an order to obtain a right of way over the Defendant's land on the basis that the Plaintiff had acquired prescriptive rights over the roadway by immemorable user of the right of way.

(2) At the conclusion of the trial, the learned trial judge held with the Plaintiff and delivered judgement holding that the Plaintiff is entitled to the right of way sought by him.

(3) The Defendant asserts that, consequent to the entering of the decree, the writ was executed and possession in respect of the right of way had been handed over to the Plaintiff on 19.06.2003.

(4) The Defendant, however, sought to have the decree amended on the basis that the same was not in conformity with the judgement. Having heard the parties, by his order dated 04.03.2004, the learned District Judge rejected application of the Defendant.

(5) Aggrieved by the order referred to in the preceding paragraph, the Defendant moved the High Court of Civil Appeals by way of an appeal. Upon consideration of the same, the appeal was dismissed by the learned Judges of the Civil Appellate High Courts on 29th March 2011.

(6) During the pendency of the appeal filed by the Defendant referred to above, in 2009, the Plaintiff had filed charges of contempt against the Defendant for obstructing his roadway. The District Court, however, by its order dated 31.03.2010, held that the District Court does not have the power to inquire into and determine the allegation of contempt against the Defendant.

(7) Consequent to the dismissal of the Defendant's Appeal, [referred to in paragraphs 4 and 5 above] the Plaintiff, in 2012, by way of Petition and affidavit moved the District Court for a direction on the fiscal, to have the obstructions removed and to have the possession of the 8-foot roadway handed over to the Plaintiff, who became entitled to the same, by virtue of the judgement delivered by the District Court in 2001.

(8) The said application was made by the Plaintiff on the premise that the Defendant had constructed a building on the entire property in a manner causing obstruction to the usage of the roadway the Plaintiff was granted by virtue of the judgement aforesaid.

(9) It was in this backdrop that the Plaintiff sought an order directing the fiscal to hand over possession of the roadway, free from any obstacles. The relief prayed for by the Plaintiff [according to the petition he filed] is reproduced;

(අ) මෙම නඩුවේ තීන්දුව ක්‍රියාවට යෙදවීමේ ක්‍රියාවලිය අවහිර කිරීමට වත්තිකරුට කිසිදු අයිතියක් නොමැති හෙයින් වෂී 2003/06/19 වන දින මෙම අධිකරණයේ පිස්කල් නිලධාරී වසින් පැමිණිලිකරුට නඩුවට අදාළ ස්ථානයේදී බාදුන් ආකාරයට අඩි 08ක් පළල මාර්ග ප්‍රවේශය ඒ ආකාරයෙන්ම ලබා ගැනීම සඳහා ඇති සියළු බාධා ඉවත් කොට එම මාර්ගයේ ඵලදායී පැමිණිලිකරු වෙත බාර දෙන ලෙසට මෙරටුව පිස්කල් නිලධාරීට නියෝගයක් නිකුත් කරන මෙන් ද

(ආ) මෙම නඩුවේ ගාස්තු යහ ගරු අධිකරණයට යෙහෙකැයි හැගෙන වෙනත් සහ වැඩිමනත් සහනයන් ප්‍රදාන කරන ලෙසත් වේ

(10) The learned District Judge by his order dated 28-11-2012, rejected the relief sought by the Plaintiff on the basis that the Plaintiff had been handed over possession of the roadway once, way back in the year 2003 and as such there is no provision in the law to order the execution of the writ [of possession] for the second time.

(11) Aggrieved by the said order, the Plaintiff moved the High Court of Civil Appeal by way of revision and after the inquiry, the High Court held that the Plaintiff was entitled to have the writ executed again. The basis for drawing this conclusion was that, the Plaintiff had not received the complete and effectual possession in terms of Section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code and in the instant case the rights of the parties were finally determined only on 29.03.2011, when the High Court of Civil Appeals dismissed the Defendant's appeal. The Court went on to observe that the issue of lapse of time does not arise as the Plaintiff had not 'got complete and effectual possession' in terms of Section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code. On this basis, the learned judges of the High Court of Civil Appeals held that the Plaintiff was entitled to have the writ executed as the application [for writ] was made after all the disputes in relation to the rights of the parties had been settled. Accordingly, acting in revision, the relief sought by the Plaintiff was granted.

(12) Being aggrieved by the said Judgement of the High Court of Civil Appeals, the Defendant invoked the jurisdiction of this Court by way of leave to appeal, to have the judgement of the High Court set aside.

(13) On the 6th of June 2016, this Court granted leave to appeal on the questions of law referred to in sub-paragraphs (i) to (v) of Paragraph 13 of the petition of the Defendant dated 7th October 2014. At the hearing of this appeal, however, the learned counsel for the Defendant confined himself to the following questions:

i. Have the Learned Judges of the Civil Appellate High Court of Mount Lavinia failed to consider that the Plaintiff has not averred any exceptional circumstances in his petition?

ii. Have the learned Judges of the Civil Appellate High Court of Mount Lavinia erred in Law by holding that the application for issue of a fresh writ was not time barred when there is one year and six months delay from 29/03/2011?

Respective positions of the parties;

(14) The Plaintiff, in explaining the delay, submits that he could not have sought the remedy that was available to him in terms of Section 325 of the CPC to have the writ executed for the second time as the Defendant's appeal relating to the variation of the decree, was pending and it was on that basis that his complaint of contempt against the Defendant was rejected. As such, he had no option but to await the conclusion of the appeal process in 2011, before moving court to have the writ executed for the second time as provided in Section 325(1) of the CPC in 2012.

(15) Elaborating the delay further, the Plaintiff takes up the position that, it was correct that the writ was executed in 2003, but when he complained to the District Court of the disturbance to his peaceful enjoyment of the rights he had obtained from the court, the District Court was functus, as far as the case was concerned, in view of the appeal[of the Defendant] challenging the District Court order rejecting his application to vary the decree was pending before an appellate forum.

(16) It was argued on behalf of the Plaintiff that the jurisprudence developed over the years has now crystalised into a rule, that the Court can exercise its inherent powers vested in it under the Section 839 of the Civil Procedure Code to avert injustices in situations of this nature, particularly in instances where parties take the law into their own hands and that the court was not hamstrung by the period statutorily stipulated [Section 325] in the CPC relating to issuing of the writ for the second time which is one year and one day from being disposed.

(17) The learned Counsel for the Plaintiff relying on the decision of Senevirathne Vs. Francis Fonseka Abeykoon 1986 2 SLR and Sirinivasa Thero Vs. Suddassi Thero 63 NLR 31, submitted that in the case of Senevirathne [supra] it was held that 'since the plaintiff had taken the law into his hands and forcibly evicted the defendant alleging abandonment and deterioration of the premises, the Court could in the interest of justice resort to its inherent powers saved under Section 839 of the Civil Procedure Code and make order of restoration of possession for the fiscal to execute even though the Civil Procedure Code provided for such restoration to possession only on a decree to that end entered under section 217(c) of the Civil Procedure Code.

(18) The Defendant, on the other hand argued that the application for a writ in terms of Section 325 of the CPC requires strict compliance and even if the appellate process had come to an end on 29.03.2011, the Plaintiff had moved court for the execution of the writ for the second time only on 06.09.2012, which is almost 18 months after the decision of Defendants Appeal was delivered.

(19) Before I address the questions of law on which leave to appeal was granted, it would be of significant importance to consider the findings and the conclusions of the learned District Judge in refusing the application of the Plaintiff to refuse to issue the writ for the second time based on his application made in 2012.

(20) The reason being, the judges of the High Court set aside the order of the learned District Judge who refused to issue the writ for the second time, in exercising the revisionary jurisdiction vested in them. The criteria for exercising revisionary power, as a discretionary remedy, is when the court's conscience is shocked by the illegality of the order that is sought to be revised.

(21) In the circumstances aforesaid, it would be pertinent to consider the order made by both the learned District Judge as well as the High Court of Civil Appeals. It is significant to note that the learned High Court judges have not referred to any illegality of the order of the learned District Judge but have merely stated in their order that "a writ for the second time cannot be issued only if the Plaintiff gets complete and effectual possession in terms of section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code. In the instant action the parties can only obtain complete and effectual possession of a land only after the rights of parties are finally determined. In this case the rights of the parties were finally determined only on 29.03.2011. Thus, the issue of lapse of time does not arise as the Plaintiff had not got complete and effectual possession in terms of Section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code" [page 5 of the Order].

(22) Apart from the passage referred to above, nowhere in the order had the High Court pointed out any illegality of the impugned order of the learned District Judge. Essentially, it appears to me that the only element which the learned Judges of the High Court deem to have been incorrectly concluded by the learned District Court Judge is that "parties can only obtain complete and effectual possession of a land only after the rights of parties are finally determined" [supra]. The power of the court to issue a writ for the second time is undisputed. In my opinion, the issue which had to be determined by the learned Judges of the High Court, is whether the impugned order of the learned District Judge was 'illegal' or whether in refusing to issue the writ for the second time, he had exercised his discretion wrongly, and in a manner which shocked 'the conscience of the court'. The same question – whether in refusing to issue the writ for the second time, the Order of the learned District Judge had broached legality, is now placed for determination before this Court.

(23) I have given the sequence of events in paragraphs 2 to 7 of this judgement. For convenience, I shall briefly refer to them here;

(i) The Judgement of the District Court was delivered in 2001.
(ii) The writ of possession was executed in 2003.
(iii) The defendant sought a variation of the decree in 2004.
(iv) The Defendant challenged the refusal before the High court in 2004.
(v) The Plaintiff filed contempt proceedings in 2009.
(vi) Contempt charges were rejected by the District Court in 2010.
(vii) The High Court refused the application of the Defendant for a variation of the Decree in 2011.

(24) From the sequence of events referred to above, it is clear that from 2003 up to 2009, there had been no complaint by the Plaintiff of any obstruction on the part of the Defendant. The District Court by its considered order delivered on 31.03.2010, held that the District Court has no jurisdiction to inquire into the contempt charges filed by the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff did not challenge the said order.

(25) It was in this backdrop that the Plaintiff moved the District Court in 2012 for a writ of possession for the second time. The ground on which this application was made is that the District Court rejected the contempt charges on the basis that there was a connected matter pending in appeal and that the District Court is functus officio due to that reason.

(26) Although the petition filed before this court also states that the reason to dismiss the contempt proceeding filed by the Plaintiff was due to the fact that the challenge by the Defendant to vary the decree was still pending before an appellate forum, when perusing the said order of the District Court, it is evident that the refusal to proceed with the contempt charges was based on the ratio of the case of Regent International Hotel Ltd v. Cyril Gardiner 78-79 1 SLR 278 and the order does not refer to any pending case before an appellate forum as a fetter to inquire into the allegation of contempt against the Defendant.

(27) The assertion, therefore, of the Plaintiff, that he had to wait to make an application to issue the writ for the second time till the rights of the parties were finally determined in 2011, does not appear to be accurate. The fact remains that the Plaintiff's complaint of interruption to his peaceful enjoyment of the roadway was only after six years from the date of the execution of the writ which was in 2003.

(28) Undoubtedly, the Defendant appears to have prevented the Plaintiff from enjoying the right he won years after litigation and the conduct of the defendant cannot be condoned by this court; however, this court is called upon to decide on specific legal issues and not the contumacious conduct of the Defendant.

(29) As referred to earlier, all we are called upon to decide is whether the High Court of Civil Appeals had corrected an illegality of the Order made by the learned District Judge.

(30) The learned District judge, in refusing to issue the writ for the second time, had observed that the application was made many years [six years] after the previous order was made, and in terms of Section 325(1) of the CPC, where after the officer [fiscal] has delivered possession, the Judgement-Creditor is hindered or ousted by the Judgement-Debtor, in taking complete and effectual possession, in the case of immovable property, where the judgement creditor had been hindered or ousted within a period of one year and one day, the judgement-creditor any time within one month of the date of such obstruction or hindering or ouster, complain thereof to the court by a petition. The learned District Judge relying on the decision of Badrun Nisa Wazeer Vs. Velayuthan 90 2 SLR 146 held that the Plaintiff was not entitled to have the writ obtained for the second time.

(31) As stated before, in granting the writ for the second time and revising the Order of the learned District Judge, the learned Judges of the High Court had only noted that per Section 325, a writ sought for the second time could only be refused if the Plaintiff who sought such writ had obtained 'complete and effectual possession', and since the matter was pending in appeal and the legal rights of the parties were, at the time, unresolved, the "issue of lapse of time does not arise as the Plaintiff had not got complete and effectual possession in terms of Section 325 of the Civil Procedure Code" [Supra]. No reliance is placed on any judicial precedent to support the above position.

(32) The concept of 'complete and effectual possession' does not in any way contemplate the legal entitlement or rights of the parties. In my view, all that is contemplated by the phrase is de facto possession of the property concerned, in a manner which allows for the complete enjoyment of the property. The fact that legal entitlement to such property was being resolved by a Court of Law did not and should have any bearing on the factum of physical possession of the property.

(33) The issue of time lapse is therefore central to this determination of this case. Section 325(1) and its requirements have been comprehensively addressed in a recent judgement of this court.
In Saleem Mohamed Fawsan v. Majeed Mohamed & Others, SC Appeal No. 135/2017, S.C Minutes of 31.03.2023, his Lordship Justice Samayawardhena observed that; [at pages 18 and 19]
"According to section 325(1)
(a) Wherein the execution of a decree for the possession of immovable or movable property the fiscal is resisted or obstructed by the judgment-debtor or any other person, or

(b) where after the fiscal has delivered possession of immovable or movable property the judgment-creditor is hindered or ousted in taking complete and effectual possession by the judgment-debtor or any other person the judgment-creditor may at any time within one month from the date of such resistance or obstruction or hindrance or ouster complain to the District Court by way of a petition.

The first limb of Section 325(1) contemplates a situation where the fiscal is totally prevented by the judgment-debtor or any other person from delivering possession to the judgment-creditor by resistance or obstruction.

The second limb of section 325(1) contemplates two situations:
(i) after the fiscal had delivered possession of the property, the judgment-creditor has been hindered in taking complete and effectual possession thereof; or
(ii) ousted therefrom.
….
It may further be observed on a careful reading of section 325(1) that, in a situation of (a) above, the judgment-creditor shall come to Court within one month from the date of resistance or obstruction to the fiscal, but in a situation of (b) above where possession has been delivered, if it is immovable property, in addition to the one month restriction from the date of the hindrance or ouster, such hindrance or ouster shall also fall within one year and one day from the date of delivery of possession." [Emphasis added]

(34) The limb which would be applicable to the present case is the second limb of Section 325(1). As noted above, the Plaintiff was hindered by the Defendant from enjoying the 'effectual possession' of the property after the execution of the decree and after the fiscal had delivered possession. Accordingly, the Plaintiff could seek a writ by invoking the jurisdiction of the District Court if and only if the hindrance occurred within one year and one day from the date the fiscal delivered the property, and only by complaining to the court within one month of the date of the hindrance. This position was previously affirmed in Badrun Nisa Wazeer Vs. Velayuthan 90 2 SLR 146 and in Sinna Lebbe Saliya Umma Vs. Shahul Hameed Mohammed & Others, S.C Appeal No. 99/2014, S.C Minutes of 04.04.2018. In the case of Badrun Nisa Wazeer, it was held that the time clause in S. 325(1) of the Civil Procedure Code is mandatory, and that per the Section, in matters relating to immovable property, a party who was dispossessed or obstructed from exercising possession within one year and one day can complain to court within one month of ouster or hindrance. The learned District Court Judge had also relied on the aforementioned judgement in his Order.

(35) The Fiscal delivered possession to the Plaintiff on 19th June 2003. The Plaintiff invoked the jurisdiction of the District Court to seek a writ for the second time on 06th September 2012. If there had been a hindrance to the Plaintiff enjoying complete and effectual possession within one year and one day of 19th June 2003, the Petitioner should have invoked the jurisdiction within one month of such hindrance. The Petitioner had only made an application under Section 325(1) after 9 years of being delivered possession. Therefore, it is evident that the Plaintiff had not invoked the jurisdiction of the District Court in the manner required by the law and the Order of the learned District Cort Judge was lawful and could not have shocked the conscience of the court.

In the circumstances, I find that it would not be necessary to determine the first (i) question of law since the application for the issue of a fresh writ, as stated in the question of law (ii) was in fact time barred. Accordingly, the questions of law; "Have the learned Judges of the Civil Appellate High Court of Mount Lavinia erred in law by holding that the application for issue of a fresh writ was not time barred when there is one year and six months delay from 29/03/2011" is answered in the affirmative.

For the reasons stated above, the Order of the High Court dated 26.08.2014 is hereby set aside and the Order of the learned judge of the District court dated 28.11.2012 is hereby affirmed.

In the circumstances of this case, the parties may bear their own costs.

Appeal Allowed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

MURDU N. B FERNANDO, PC, J
I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

YASANTHA KODAGODA, PC, J
I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application for Leave to Appeal from the Judgment of the Civil Appellate High Court Case No. WP/HCCA/COL/115/2011 [F] of the Act No. 54 of 2006.

Fathima Meroza Jazeel,
No. 212/3,
Galle Road,
Mount Lavinia.

SC APPEAL 237/2017
SC (HCCA) LA No. 213/2016

Plaintiff

PHC APPEAL
No. WP/HCCA/COL 151/2011 (F)

District Court of Colombo
Case No. 115/08/DLM

Vs.

Dhammika Dahanayake,
No.34, Panchikawatte Road,
Colombo 10.

Defendant

AND BETWEEN

Fathima Meroza Jazeel,
No. 212/3,
Galle Road,
Mount Lavinia.

Plaintiff-Appellant

Dhammika Dahanayake,
No. 34, Panchikawatte Road,
Colombo 10.

Defendant-Respondent

AND THEN BETWEEN

Fathima Meroza Jazeel,
No 212/3,
Galle Road,
Mount Lavinia.

Plaintiff-Appellant-Petitioner

Dhammika Dahanayake,
No.34, Panchikawatte Road,
Colombo 10.

Defendant-Respondent-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

Fathima Meroza Jazeel,
No 212/3,
Galle Road,
Mount Lavinia.

Plaintiff-Appellant-Petitioner-Appellant

Dhammika Dahanayake
(now deceased),
No.34, Panchikawatte Road,
Colombo 10.

Defendant-Respondent-Respondent-Respondent

1. Poorna Ranga Dahanayake,
2. Tharanga Dahanayake,

Both of;
No.32/7,
Dharmadasa Weerarathne
Mawatha,
Kandy.

Substituted Defendants-Respondents-Respondents-Respondents

Before : S. Thurairaja, PC, J
Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J
K. Priyantha Fernando, J

Counsel :

H. Withanachchi with Shantha Karunadhara for the Plaintiff - Appellant – Appellant.

J. A. J. Udawatta with Anuradha N. Ponnamperuma instructed by V. W. Kularathne Associates for the Substituted – Defendants – Respondents – Respondents – Respondents.

Argued on : 18.07.2023

Decided on : 14.09.2023

K. PRIYANTHA FERNANDO, J

1. The Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant in this case (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) instituted action against the Defendant-Respondent-Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the respondent) claiming that the respondent is a trespasser in the premises owned by the appellant. The main contest between the parties is whether the respondent is a trespasser of the premises in suit as claimed by the appellant, or a lawful tenant of the premises as claimed by the respondent.

2. At the hearing of this appeal, this Court granted leave to appeal on the questions of law (i)-(viii) set out in paragraph 15 of the petition dated 06.05.2016. However, when the matter was taken up for hearing, this Court observed that some of the questions of law were in repetition. Both Counsel submitted that, they will be satisfied if the questions of law set out in paragraph 15(ii), 15(iv) and 15(vi) would be decided by this Court.

Facts in Brief

3. The appellant Fathima Meroza Jazeel is the owner of the property to which the action relates. The property is situated at No. 34, Panchikawatta road, Colombo 10. According to deed No. 3526 dated 24.11.1947 [P-1], the property has been owned by the grandfather of the appellant. Thereafter, the grandfather has transferred the property to the appellant's grandmother preserving life interest, by deed No. 3691 dated 30.03.1951 [P-2]. The grandmother has transferred the property to the mother of the appellant reserving life interest. Thereafter, by deed No. 150 dated 03.02.1964 [P-3], the grandmother has renounced the property from the life interest and the mother of the appellant has become the absolute owner of the property. Thereafter, by deed No.2975 dated 09.10.1988 [P-4] attested by N.M. Thaha Notary Public, the property has been transferred to the appellant. The father of the appellant M.H.M. Dean has been managing the property in question ever since he was married to the appellant's mother and even after the property was transferred to the appellant, the father M.H.M. Dean has continued to manage the premises. Dean has passed away on 07.07.2008 [P-5].

4. When Dean was sick, the appellant has got an anonymous phone call stating that the caller is a friend of the appellant's father and has informed that the premises owned by the appellant is being occupied unlawfully. The appellant has instituted action to evict the respondent from the premises, stating that she is not a tenant of the appellant and therefore is unlawfully occupying the premises. Following this, action has been filed by the appellant in the District Court of Colombo. The appellant states that, she has never visited the premises. However, after the death of her father, when she had passed by the premises, she had seen the name 'Asoka Digicom Private Limited' affixed in the premises [P-6].

5. The respondent, Dhammika Dahanayake has stated that, she has been running a communication center in the premises. The premises has been originally taken on rent by the father-in-law of the respondent in 1968. He has taken it on rent from the father of the appellant (Dean). After the death of the father-in-law of the respondent, the husband of the respondent has succeeded to the tenancy of Dean and paid rent to Dean. He has carried on the business under the name 'Asoka Communication' which was later converted into a Private Limited Company. Thereafter, the husband of the respondent has passed away on 05.10.2007 and the respondent has become the tenant of Dean. The appellant's father, Dean, has also attended the funeral of the respondent's husband. After the death of her husband, the respondent has succeeded to the tenancy and has continued to pay the rent of the premises to the bank account of Dean upon his request. The payment receipts have been produced ['V-36' – 'V-47']. The respondent has been unaware of the death of Dean up until action was instituted against her by the appellant.

6. The Respondent alleges that the company is the lawful tenant to the premises, and the company is being run by her. The letter ['P-8'] has been sent on 25.03.2008 by the appellant through an Attorney-at-Law, which was addressed to the respondent stating that the appellant is the owner of the said premises, it was unlawful for the respondent to occupy the premises and requesting the respondent to vacate the premises and surrender peaceful and vacant possession. The respondent has not replied to the said letter.

7. The plaint ['X-1'] has been filed by the appellant in the District Court on 30.04.2008 seeking a declaration that the appellant is the owner of the premises, a declaration for the ejectment of the respondent from the said premises and damages together with interests until possession was handed over.

8. The learned Judge of the District Court, delivering the judgment ['X-6'] on 23.09.2011 held in favor of the respondent stating that, the respondent was the tenant of the premises and that the respondent's tenancy had not been terminated in accordance with the provisions of the Rent Act.

9. Being aggrieved by the judgment of the District Court, the appellant appealed to the Civil Appellate High Court of the Western Province holden in Colombo (Case No. WP/HCCA/COL 151/2011/F). The Civil Appellate High Court by judgment dated 28.03.2016 ['Z'] dismissed the appeal of the appellant.

10. Being aggrieved by the decision of the Civil Appellate High Court of Colombo, the appellant preferred the instant appeal. This Court will address the questions of law set out below, as mentioned before in paragraph No. 2 of this judgment.

> 15(ii) - Did the Courts below err in law by failing to take into account that the tenancy created by the father without a title to the premises in suit, was not binding on the plaintiff?
>
> 15(iv) - Did the Courts below err in law by not following the legal consequences flowing from the failure of the defendant to respond to letter 'P8'?
>
> 15(vi) – Whether the Courts below err in law by the finding that the tenancy of the defendant would continue notwithstanding the repudiation of the presumed conduct by her, after the receipt of 'P8'?

Written submissions on behalf of the Appellant

11. The learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that, since the appellant's title to the property in question has been established, the burden was on the respondent to prove her right to occupy the premises.

12. The learned Counsel submitted that, the question of validity of the letting done by the father without any right, title or interest in the property and the question whether the title of the appellant was in derivative title from the original landlord, are matters that arise in this appeal. Reference was made to the case of Imbuldeniya v. D. De Silva [1987] 1 Sri. L.R. 367 which dealt with an identical situation where it was stated that, "…the tenancy which Gunawardena granted to the Defendant will not bind the Plaintiff who at all relevant times was the true owner of the premises; the plaintiff would be entitled to an order evicting the Defendant who is a trespasser as against her."

13. The learned Counsel further submitted that, although the case of Imbuldeniya(supra) was brought to the notice of the Civil Appellate High Court, there was no reference as to why the ratio in that case would not apply to the present case or could be distinguishable on facts.

14. It was further submitted that, the Civil Appellate High Court erred in taking the view that the appellant was not entitled in law to seek eviction, when the tenancy of the respondent with Dean was intact. Since the appellant's title was not derived from the father, she was not bound by the tenancy created by the father and there could not have been an automatic succession to the position of landlord, in the manner found in the Civil Appellate High Court on the strength of Izadeen Mohamed v. Singer Sewing Machine [1962] 64 N.L.R. 407 and Bhojraj v. Abdulla [1998] 1 Sri.L.R. 1 which dealt with distinguishable situations where new purchasers would be compelled to accept sitting tenants.

15. The learned Counsel for the appellant further submitted that, the respondent asserting lawful tenancy under the father of the appellant, did not bother to reply and/ or dispute the contents of the said letter ['P-8'] which was sent by an Attorney-at-Law on instructions. This being a business and/ or an official letter challenging the right of the recipient to occupy the property in suit, it is incumbent on the recipient to dispute the facts therein. Reference was made to the case of Saravanamuttu v. De Mel [1948] 49 N.L.R. 529 where it was held that, the failure or silence of the recipient of a business letter indicating that a certain state of facts exists, amounts to an admission of the truth of the allegations contained in that letter. The inference drawn from the silence is that, the contents of the letter were true and that the respondent did not assert any tenancy under the appellant.

16. The learned Counsel further submitted that, although the notice['P-8'] did not contain a request by the appellant to the respondent asking her to attorn the appellant as the landlord, the respondent could have availed herself of the opportunity to attorn, in which event the appellant would have to elect either to accept attornment to treat the respondent as a tenant or to deny attornment to treat the defendant as a trespasser.

17. It was further submitted by the learned Counsel that, even after the receipt of the letter ['P-8'] the respondent had deposited money in a Bank of Ceylon account in favour of Dean from April 2008 to October 2008 [receipts marked 'V-41'-'V-46']. According to the case of Violet Perera v. Asilin Nona [1996] 1 Sri.L.R. 1 depositing rent in favour of Dean after the receipt of the letter ['P-8'] cannot be treated as a proper payment made to the landlord, as the appellant has held out that she is the owner of the premises in suit.

18. The learned Counsel further submitted that, if the respondent was confronted with a situation in which she was in doubt as to whom the payment should be made, the simplest thing should have been to reply to ['P-8'] asking for more particulars and attorned to the appellant by offering to pay rent to her.

19. It was further submitted that, the appellant cannot be faulted for sending the said letter ['P-8'] as she was not bound by the contract of tenancy created by the father, and it was incumbent on the respondent to indicate her position coupled with an offer to pay rent to the appellant. The conduct of a reasonable person under normal circumstances would have been to send a reply asking for further details. Further, the fact that the address indicated in the notice['P-8'] being similar to the address of Dean [receipts D15-D16 at pages 272,273 of the appeal brief] is an additional reason for the respondent to have responded to the notice ['P-8'].

20. The learned Counsel for the appellant further submitted that, the respondent should not be allowed to insist on the privity with Dean by keeping silent as the respondent has not acceded to the demand in ['P-8'] and continued to occupy the premises when the contract of tenancy was being challenged by the contents of letter ['P-8'].

21. The learned Counsel further submitted that, assuming but not conceding that the letter ['P-8'] was not a notice to attorn, the contents as indicated by a legal professional on instructions, should not have been ignored on the basis that the appellant was not entitled to send such notice.

22. It was further submitted that, although a presumed contract of tenancy was created when the respondent was confronted with the demand of vacation on the letter ['P-8'] and the respondent continued to occupy the premises, the said presumed contract of tenancy was set in nought by the conduct of the respondent in failing to indicate that she was a lawful tenant and/ or in tendering rent to the appellant. Mere deposit of rent in favour of the father without bothering to verify, could not have resulted in sustaining the said presumed contract of tenancy.

Written submissions on behalf of the Respondent.

23. The learned Counsel for the respondent submitted that, the principal matter that has to be decided by this Court is whether the respondent was in unlawful occupation of the premises. The title of the premises has been admitted in favour of the appellant.

24. It was submitted by the learned Counsel that, the appellant in cross examination on 14.07.2010 (pages 85-88 of the appeal brief) by admitting the signature of the rent receipts to be that of her father's [marked 'V-1'-'V-14'] corroborates the position of the respondent that she was not a trespasser but was occupying the premises as a tenant of Dean.

25. It was further submitted that, according to the evidence of the appellant (at pages 65, 66, 67 and 93 of the appeal brief), her father, Dean, has been managing the premises in suit on behalf of the appellant with her implied agreement in the capacity of an agent. An agency is implied from the special circumstances of this case, and the appellant as the principal was bound by the contracts entered into by her agent. Therefore, a valid tenancy existed between the appellant's father and the respondent and the appellant was bound by the contract of tenancy created by her father though he was not her predecessor in title.

26. The learned Counsel further submitted that, even after being aware that a business was in operation for 20 years in the premises, the appellant by not raising her concerns has acquiesced the same (pages 69 and 70 of the appeal brief).

27. It was submitted by the learned Counsel that, the case of Imbuldeniya v. D. De Silva [1987] 1 Sri. L.R. 367, has no bearing to the facts of the instant case as the facts are quite different.

28. The learned Counsel further submitted that, as the lawful tenancy that existed between the appellant's father and the respondent was not terminated in law, the appellant upon assuming control over the premises in suit has to first notice the respondent to accept her as a tenant upon attornment. If no such notice is given, the original tenancy subsists. Reference was made to the case of Izadeen Mohamed v. Singer Sewing Machine Co. [1962] 64 N.L.R. 407. Where it was held that, "If the purchaser fails to give notice of election to the tenant, the contract of tenancy between the vendor and the tenant subsists and it is only the vendor who is competent to terminate that contract of tenancy".

29. It was further submitted that, the said notice to quit cannot be considered in law as a notice to attorn. Reference was made to the meaning of the term attornment as described in Wille, Principles of South African Law 4th edition at page 176. Accordingly, it occurs when there is an agreement between the owner, the intended transferee, and agent to the effect that the agent is from then on to hold the thing for the transferee. It was submitted that no such agreement existed between the parties as no evidence was led to that effect by the landlord Dean, requesting the respondent to attorn the tenancy to the appellant and to consider the appellant as the new landlord.

30. The learned Counsel further submitted that, the respondent's continued occupation in the premises in suit, following the receipt of the notice dated 25.03.2008 ['P-8'] would create a privity of contract between the appellant and the respondent if and only if the said letter consists of a notice of the appellant's election to recognize the respondent as a tenant. Reference was made to the case of Seelawathie v. Ediriweera [1989] 2 Sri.L.R. 170. However, the aforesaid notice to quit did not consist of an intention of the appellant to recognize the respondent as a tenant, but that the respondent was in unlawful and illegal occupation of the premises in suit.

31. It was submitted by the learned Counsel that, the failure on the part of the respondent to reply to the letter ['P-8'] does not give rise to an adverse inference against the respondent, as she was unaware of the change in ownership of the premises and bona fide accepted Dean as her landlord. Further, there was no necessity for the respondent to reply to a letter sent by a complete stranger.

32. It was further submitted that, in the case of Saravanamuttu v. De Mel [1948] 49 N.L.R. 529, exceptions to the rule requiring a person who does not agree with the contents of a letter to dispute the assertions have been set out. "... .For example, failure to reply to mere begging letters when the circumstances show that there was no necessity for the recipient of the letter to reply can give rise to no adverse inference against the recipient."

33. The learned Counsel made reference to the case of Disanayake Mudiyanselage Chandrapala Meegahaarawa v. Disanayake Mudiyanselage Samaraweera Meegahaarawa SC Appeal No. 112/2018, S.C. min. 21.05.2021, where the impact of the failure to reply to a letter was discussed and where it was stated that, the impact of the failure to reply would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case.

34. It was further submitted by the learned Counsel that, the said quit notice cannot be considered in law as a notice to attorn since the said letter does not consist of a notice of the appellant's election to recognize the respondent as a tenant.

35. The learned Counsel for the respondent further submitted that, the learned High Court Judges in affirming the judgment of the learned District Judge, has carefully arrived at the conclusion that the document marked ['P-8'] cannot in any conceivable sense be considered as a notice of attornment. In any event, by the time the letter ['P-8'] was sent, the defendant was not in illegal occupation of the premises.

36. The learned Counsel further submitted that, according to the document marked ['P-5'] (at page 215 of the appeal brief) as at the date the letter marked ['P-8'] was sent, and at the time action was instituted, Dean had been alive. It was submitted by the learned Counsel that, a valid contract of tenancy was in subsistence between the respondent and Dean even at the time of filing action.

37. It was further submitted that, the appellant could not have instituted the instant action against the respondent, without having repudiated the contract of tenancy that existed between her father and the respondent.

38. I will first answer the question of law set out in Paragraph 15(ii) of the petition.
Did the Courts below err in law by failing to take into account that the tenancy created by the father without a title to the premises in suit, was not binding on the plaintiff?

39. When considering the testimony of the appellant, the appellant in cross examination on 14.07.2010 (at pages 85-88 of the appeal brief) has admitted the signature of the rent receipts [marked 'V-1'-'V-14'] to be that of her father's. Therefore, it can be established that a valid contract of tenancy subsisted between the father of the appellant and the respondent.

40. Further, according to the evidence of the appellant, she has consistently stated that her father Dean, has been managing the premises in question ever since he got married to the appellant's mother. Accordingly, when considering the circumstances of this case, an agency can be inferred as the appellant has allowed her father to continue to manage the premises even after her mother transferred the property to her. It can be stated that, the father of the appellant was acting as an agent of the appellant under the implied agreement of the appellant. Where an agency is inferred, when the agent (father of the appellant) enters into a contract with the respondent, the principal (appellant) would be bound by such contract. Therefore, in the circumstances of this case, as a valid tenancy existed between the appellant's father and the respondent, the appellant being the principal will be bound by the contract of tenancy created by her father.

41. The learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that, the case of Imbuldeniya(supra) dealt with a similar situation, however, although this case was brought to the attention of the Civil Appellate High Court, reference has not been made as to why the case of Imbuldeniya(supra) is not applicable to the instant case.

42. However, the learned Counsel for the respondent pointed out that, the case of Imbuldeniya(supra) has no bearing to the facts of the instant case, as the facts of it are different to the instant case.

43. When considering the facts of the case of Imbuldeniya(supra), the father of the plaintiff has let out the premises to the defendant and appropriated the rent for himself. He has done so for his own benefit without the authority from the plaintiff. At the time the property was let out, the plaintiff was not aware that she was the absolute owner. Further, when the father rented the premises to the defendant, he was not acting as her agent. The father had no right or any authority to rent out the premises to the defendant. The plaintiff neither acquiesced in or adopted the letting by her father to the defendant.

44. Thus, as the case facts of Imbuldeniya(supra) are not similar to the instant case, the finding of that case cannot be applied to the instant case where the evidence leads to the inference that an agency was present between the appellant and the father of the appellant and even after knowing the appellant was the absolute owner, she continued to let her father manage the property in suit.

45. With regard to the first question of law that has been raised, it is my view that, in light of the evidence and the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the courts below have not erred in law and have correctly come to the conclusion that the tenancy created by the father of the appellant is binding on the appellant.

46. Now I will consider the second question of law that has been set out in paragraph 15(iv) of the petition.
Did the Courts below err in law by not following the legal consequences flowing from the failure of the defendant to respond to letter 'P8'?

47. The learned Counsel for the appellant by relying on the case of Saravanamuttu v. De Mel [1948] 49 N.L.R. 529 took the position that, as the respondent did not reply or dispute the contents of the letter ['P-8'] it amounts to an admission of the truth of the allegations contained in that letter.

48. The respondent took the position that, the case of Saravanamuttu(supra), sets out exceptions to the rule requiring a person who does not agree with the contents of a letter to dispute the assertions. "… .For example, failure to reply to mere begging letters when the circumstances show that there was no necessity for the recipient of the letter to reply can give rise to no adverse inference against the recipient."

49. Further, in the case of Disanayake Mudiyanselage Chandrapala Meegahaarawa v. Disanayake Mudiyanselage Samaraweera Meegahaarawa SC Appeal No. 112/2018, S.C. min. 21.05.2021, it was stated,

> "However, I must add that although it is a general principle that failure to answer a business letter amounts to an admission of the contents therein, this is not an absolute principle of law. In other words, failure to reply to a business letter alone cannot decide the whole case. It is one factor which can be taken into account along with other factors in determining whether the Plaintiff has proved his case. Otherwise, when it is established that the formal demand, which is a sine qua non for the institution of an action, was not replied, judgment can ipso facto be entered for the Plaintiff. That cannot be done. Therefore, although failure to reply a business letter or a letter of demand is a circumstance which can be held against the Defendant, it cannot by and of itself prove the Plaintiff's case. The impact of such failure to reply will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case."

50. Further, in the case of Wickremasinghe v. Devasagayam [1970] 74 N.L.R. 80 Weeramantry J stated that, although the failure to reply to a letter is a circumstance which may be urged against the defendant, it cannot by itself prove the plaintiff's case.

51. Thus, in light of the findings in the above cases, it is my view that, when considering the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the failure of the respondent to reply to the letter ['P-8'] would not in itself amount to an admission of the truth of the contents of that letter.

52. Therefore, it is my view that, the Courts below have not erred in law when deciding on the legal position following the respondent's failure to reply to the letter ['P-8'].

53. Thirdly, I will answer the final question of law set out in paragraph 15(vi) of the petition.
Whether the Courts below err in law by the finding that the tenancy of the defendant would continue notwithstanding the repudiation of the presumed conduct by her, after the receipt of 'P8'.

54. The appellant took up the position that, although a presumed contract of tenancy was created when the respondent continued to occupy the premises even after the letter ['P-8'] demanding vacation, this contract was repudiated when the respondent failed to indicate that she was a lawful tenant and failed to pay rent to the appellant.

55. It was brought to the attention of this Court that, according to the document marked ['P-5'] (page 215 of the appeal brief), the father of the appellant had been alive when the said letter ['P-8'] was sent by the appellant to the respondent. The letter ['P-8'] was sent on 25.03.2008 and the death of the appellant's father had occurred on 07.07.2008 ['P-5']. Further, action has also been instituted on 30.04.2008 [plaint 'X-1'] which is before the death of the appellant's father. Therefore, a valid contract existed between Dean and the respondent at the time the letter ['P-8'] was sent, and also at the time action was instituted by the appellant.

56. Thus, as the appellant was not entitled to send the letter ['P-8'] while her father was alive, it is my view that, the Courts below have not erred in law by finding that the tenancy of the respondent would continue even after the receipt of the letter ['P-8'].

Declaration.

57. As all three questions of law have been answered in the negative, I hold that the respondent is not a trespasser but a lawful tenant. I affirm the judgments of the District Court and the Civil Appellate High Court of Colombo. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE S. THURAIRAJA, PC.

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE.

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application for Special Leave to Appeal from the Judgement pronounced on 08.05.2013 by the High Court of the North Central Province holden in Anuradhapura in High Court Appeal No. 44/201 under Section 9(a) of the High Court of Provinces (Special Provisions) Act, No. 19 of 1990 read with Article 154P of the Constitution and the Supreme Court Rules of 1990.

SC Appeal No. 74/2014

HC MCA 44/2011

MC Kebithigollawa Case No. 67675

W.G.S.L. Wasala,

Public Health Officer,

Mahasenpura.

Complainant

Vs.

Coca-Cola Beverages Sri Lanka Ltd.

Tekkawatta,

Biyagama.

Accused

And then between

Coca-Cola Beverages Sri Lanka Ltd.

Tekkawatta,

Biyagama.

Accused-Appellant

Vs.

1. W.G.S.L. Wasala,

Public Health Officer,

Mahasenpura

Complainant-Respondent

2. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department,

Colombo 12.

Respondent

And now between

Coca-Cola Beverages Sri Lanka Ltd.

Tekkawatta,

Biyagama.

Accused-Appellant-Appellant

1. W.G.S.L. Wasala,

Public Health Officer,

Mahasenpura

Complainant-Respondent-Respondent

2. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department,

Colombo 12.

Respondent-Respondent

BEFORE: Buwaneka Aluwihare P.C, J

Kumudini Wickramasinghe, J

Janak De Silva, J

COUNSEL: Gamini Marapana, PC with Navin Marapana, PC and Uchitha Wickremasinghe for the Accused-Appellant-Appellant.

Madhawa Tennakoon, DSG with Ganga Wakishta Arachchi, SSC for the Respondent-Respondent.

ARGUED ON: 12.07.2021.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: Accused-Appellant-Appellant on 08.07.2014.

Respondent-Respondent on 18.01.2021.

DECIDED ON: 09.11.2023

Judgement

Aluwihare, PC, J,

1. The Public Health officer, Mahasenpura (Complainant-Respondent-Respondent) on 23rd October 2010, took into custody a bottle of Ginger Beer of 'Lion' brand which was offered for sale at "Aluthkade Welandasela" in Nikawewa. As the bottle of Ginger Beer concerned did not contain a label declaring the batch number, the date of expiry and the date of manufacture, the Public Health Officer (hereinafter referred to as the 'Respondent') instituted criminal proceedings before the Magistrate's court (Kebithigollawa) against the Manufacturer of the bottle, Coca Cola Beverages Sri Lanka Ltd. (the Accused-Appellant-Appellant) for having manufactured or distributed the bottle in in violation of Section 18(1)(c) read with section 2(1) of the Food Act, No. 26 of 1980 as amended and Regulation 04(2) (e), (f) and (d) of the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations published in the Gazette Extraordinary No. 1376/9 of 19th January 2005. The said paragraphs of the Regulation require the label to carry; (e) the date of expiry, (f) date of manufacture and (d) batch number respectively. At the conclusion of the trial, the learned Magistrate convicted Coca Cola Beverages Sri Lanka Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the Appellant) on all charges.

2. Aggrieved by the said judgement, the Appellant appealed against the conviction to the Provincial High Court of the North Central Province and the learned High Court Judge by his judgement dated 08/05/2013 affirmed the findings of the learned Magistrate of Kebithigollawa and upheld the conviction. The present appeal is from the said judgement of the High Court.

3. This Court granted Special Leave to Appeal on the questions of law referred to in sub-paragraphs in (viii) and (x) of the petition of the Petitioner dated 19.06.2013. The said questions are reproduced below:

   1) Are manufacturing and distribution not covered by the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005 published in Gazette Extraordinary No. 1376/9 of 19th January 2005?

   2) In any event were the charges levelled against the Accused ambiguous & defective as a result of including two distinct and separate acts i.e. 'manufacturing or 'distribution' in one and the same charges in violation of provisions under Chapter XVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act, No.15 of 1979 read with those of Food Act, No.26 of 1980 as amended & Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005 published in Gazette Extraordinary No.1376/9 of 19th January 2005?

4. The facts of the case presented before the Magistrate's Court were that the Complainant officer detected a bottle of 'Ginger Beer' on which the date of manufacture, the date of expiry and the batch number were not clear, ["පැහැදිලිව නොමැති නිසා එය අත්අඩංගුවට ගැනීම සිදුකලා" vide pg.19 of the MC proceedings]. The second witness who testified on behalf of the prosecution, one Buddhika Lakmal, stated that those details were vaguely visible on the bottle ["ඒන නොපෙනෙන ගානට තිබුනේ", vide pg. 24 of the MC proceedings]. The fact that only one such bottle was detected is relevant. I will now address the first question of Law.

Are manufacturing and distribution not covered by the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005 published in Gazette Extraordinary No. 1376/9 of 19th January 2005?

5. The Respondent's position, as contended by the learned DSG was that the Appellant committed an offence by manufacturing the Ginger Beer bottle without having a batch number, the date of manufacture and the date of expiry printed on the label of the bottle. The main contention of the learned President's Counsel for the Appellant on the other hand was that the Appellant cannot be held liable for a violation of Regulation 02 of the Regulations made under the Food Act, promulgated in the Gazette bearing number 1376/9 of 19th January 2005, as the said Regulation 02 does not contemplate the manufacturer's liability in respect of what may happen to a product at the hands of a retailer or a third party.

6. While Regulation 02 defines the parameters and purview of the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005, the rest of the Regulations describe details and specific obligations relating to labelling and advertising. It was the contention of the learned President's Counsel that the liability under Regulation 02 of the said Regulations rests on any person who "sells, offers for sale, exposes, or keeps for sale, transports or advertises for sale any food contained in a package" and the said Regulation has no application to distributors and manufacturers and therefore, the appellant, who was the manufacturer of the bottle of 'Lion' Ginger Beer cannot be held liable.

7. The learned DSG for the Respondents submitted, however, that as per the evidence adduced before Court, labelling is done at the time of manufacture itself by the Appellant, and labelling is therefore an integral part of the manufacturing process. He submitted further that it is the same person who manufactures the product who is responsible for the proper labelling of the product, in terms of Section 2 of the Food Act, therefore, the manufacturer is also liable for any contravention of the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005. Accordingly, it was the position of the learned DSG that the Appellant, being the manufacturer of [bottle of] Ginger Beer becomes liable for non-compliance with Regulation 02 of the aforementioned Regulations and as such, the findings, both of the learned Magistrate and the learned High Court Judge are correct and must be upheld.

8. When considering the arguments placed before the Court, both by the Appellants and the Respondents, it would be necessary to consider both the statutory provisions of the Food Act and the liability imposed upon parties by the Regulations made thereunder.

9. Section 02 of the Food Act spells out the liability in general of various stakeholders who are involved in distinct/different processes, commencing from the point of manufacture to the retailer. It is to be noted, however, that Section 02 is not a penal provision but stipulates a series of conducts that are prohibited. The Regulations, however, not only refer to specific violations, but also spell out penal sanctions that would follow in the event of any breach of the same. In this context, it would be relevant to consider the intention of the legislature in enacting the statutory provisions referred to above and the regulations made thereunder.

10. Section 2(1) of the Food Act, No. 26 of 1980 as amended states:

"No person shall manufacture, import, sell, expose for sale, store or distribute any food –

(a) that has upon it any natural or added deleterious substance which renders it injurious to health;

(b) that is unfit for human consumption;

(c) that consists in whole or in part of any unclean, putrid, repugnant, decayed, decomposed or diseased animal substance or decayed vegetable substance or is insect infected;

(d) that is adulterated;

(e) that has in or upon it any added substance in contravention of the provisions of this Act or any regulation made thereunder; or

(f) in contravention of the provisions of this Act or any regulation made thereunder."

11. As referred to earlier, Section 02(1) lays down certain prohibitions and broadly spells out the mischief the legislature intended to prevent. The legislature, taking cognizance of the fact that various stakeholders are involved across the food chain, that is, production, trade and handling of food, has legislated statutory provisions as well as subordinate legislation to ensure 'food safety' and 'food quality' from the perspective of the public, within the sphere of the industry.

12. Upon further observation, I note that the provisions of the Act and the Regulations identify specific violations in relation to various sectors in the food industry i.e production, trade and handling of food, and therefore, when deciding on whom the liability lies in the present instance, in the context of the compliance imposed, one must necessarily refer to the provisions of the Act and/or the Regulations as the case may be, and identify on whom the liability is imposed and whether it has not been complied with.

13. In the course of the argument, the learned DSG contended that the Appellant is liable under Section 2(1)(f) of the Act, as in terms of the said provision, manufacturing, exposition for sale, storing or distribution of any food in contravention of the provisions of the Act, or any regulation made thereunder is prohibited. When one analyses Section 2 of the food Act [referred to in paragraph 10 above] it is clear from the words used; "No person shall manufacture, import, sell, expose for sale. Store or distribute any food…….in contravention of the provisions of this Act or any regulation made thereunder", that the offences do not impose strict liability, but the liability is pinned on the 'person' who is responsible for the violation alleged. The reason is a rational one. In the 'food chain', different stakeholders in the industry handle 'food' at various points [in the chain] and once a particular stakeholder [in the chain] loses control of that 'food', there is no justification to hold that stakeholder liable for every non-compliance that takes place after that particular stakeholder had lost control of the 'food', unless it can be established that the violation had taken place in the hands of that particular stakeholder.

14. Scrutiny of the legal regime relating to regulation of the food industry makes it clear that the legislature had been alive to this fact and had made clear provisions to ensure that the liability is imposed based on whose responsibility it is to comply with law at a given point. Thus, it is sine qua non to consider the statutory provisions and regulations from this perspective to identify who is responsible for compliance.

15. Case to the point is Regulation (4) of the very Regulations under which the Appellant had been charged, which reads, thus; "no person shall sell, offer for sale, expose or keep for sale any food, transport for sale after the date of expiry thereof*".* The compliance in relation to this Regulation is required from the 'seller'. What the regulation prohibits are the 'acts in connection with sale of food' beyond its shelf life. It would be beyond any stretch of imagination to argue that by virtue of Section

2 of the Food Act, the manufacturer is also liable if the retailer sells an item of food after its expiry date.

16. Regulation 2 of the said Regulations under which the Appellant is charged carry the identical words; "no person shall sell, offer for sale, expose or keep for sale any food, transport or advertise for sale, any food contained in a package or container, unless such package or container is labelled in accordance with the regulations.

17. The learned President's Counsel for the Appellant argued that it is clear from the above Regulation that the actors who are responsible for the obligations regarding labelling are persons who "sell, offer for sale, expose or keep for sale, transport or advertise for sale, any food contained in a package or container", that this does not include manufacturers within its scope and therefore, there is no liability on the manufacturer in relation to any of the obligations that are laid down in the said Regulation.

18. The essential element for any prosecution in respect of non-compliance is the availability of evidence establishing liability. When the Food Act and its regulations are examined, it becomes apparent that the drafters of this legislation were conscious of the fact that the industry which was sought to be regulated involved multiple processes, multiple actors, and multiple concerns. The legislation has been meticulously drafted to reflect industrial realities. This is evident in the scheme of the Act. For example, Section 02(1) states that "No person shall manufacture, import, sell, expose for sale, store or distribute any food…" followed by subsection (f) which states "in contravention of the provisions of this Act or any regulation made thereunder" so as to indicate that the manufacture, importation, sale, exposure for sale, storage or distribution of any product in violation of the Regulations promulgated under the Act would constitute an offence.

19. It was also brought to the attention of the Court by the learned President's Counsel for the Appellant that the Act empowers the Minister in charge of the subject to make Regulations in respect of matters governed by the Act [vide Section 32(1)] and such Regulations have been enacted from time to time. Of those Regulations, 'manufacturing and distribution' have been specifically addressed by other Regulations such as Regulation No. FR 1405/3 published in the Gazette Extraordinary 1405/3 dated 31.12.2005, Regulation No. FR 1420/4 published in the Gazette Extraordinary 1420/4 dated 21.05.2006. This observation is in my view, crucial to this appeal for if the legislature intended liability to be imposed on the manufacturer for matters which may affect the product beyond the scope of control of the manufacturer too, the legislature would have expressed such intention in the Regulations which seem to spare no detail. Charging the manufacturer in relation to a matter which could have occurred at the hands of the retailer or other actor would therefore be futile as it does not serve to enforce the Act or the Regulations. I am reminded of the astute observations of Justice Sharvananda (as he was then) in Nandasena v. Senanayake and Another [1981] 1 SLR 238 at p. 245.

"Statutes should be construed, as far as possible, to avoid absurdity or futility. A statute should be construed in a manner to give it validity rather than invalidity - ut resmagis valeatquam pereat [so that the matter may flourish rather than perish]". (parenthesis and emphasis added)

20. No doubt, food labelling is an effective tool to protect consumer health in terms of food safety and nutrition. Food labels convey information about the product's identity and contents, and on how to handle, prepare and consume it safely. This is a universally accepted thesis. For example, the Food and Agriculture Organisation of the UN, states that "the empowerment of consumers is necessary through improved and evidence-based health and nutrition information and education to make informed choices regarding consumption of food products for healthy dietary practices". This can be achieved by ensuring the 'information' is made available to the consumer at the time the consumer makes the decision with regard to the purchase, thus the responsibility cast on the seller to ensure that the information is made available at the point of sale.

21. Other than the rationale referred to above, there can be numerous reasons as to why it would be practically possible to make the manufacturer liable in relation to the Regulation in issue. The main reason I see is that, once the product leaves the manufacturer, it loses control of the product and if the product gets deformed due to mishandling of the same by third parties, one cannot hold the manufacture liable. Another would be in instances where the packaging is done by a totally an independent actor over which the manufacture may not have control. This may be true in instances where food is imported in bulk and packaging is done locally. It is for that reason I referred to the fact that the words in section 2 of the Food Act are of vital importance, the liability is on the person who contravenes the Act or the regulation. Whether a person had contravened the provisions can only be decided on evidence and not on surmise.

22. Prior dicta do not offer any discernable guidance regarding the charging of parties within the scheme of the Act. Therefore, I find it prudent to examine the practices of jurisdictions beyond our seas in this respect. In the United States of America, the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act governs the safety of food products exposed to consumers. The said Act includes a laudable scheme whereby the Secretary of Health and Human Services (Secretary) has the option of giving the alleged violator notice of intention to prosecute and the opportunity to respond orally or in writing before reporting a violation of the Act to a United States attorney for prosecution. This proceeding is commonly known as a "Section 305 hearing" and the opportunity for such hearings is normally made available to targets of prosecution. While our legislation does not imbue a scheme for prior hearing, one aspect that may offer guidance is the criterion adopted to evaluate whether the FDA (the authority) is possessed with the facts and circumstances which warrant the institution of criminal proceedings. These factors were stated by one by Eugene Pfeifer, then Associate Chief Counsel for Enforcement at the FDA, in his article, “Section 305 Hearings and Criminal Prosecutions”, 31 CCH Food Drug Cosmetic Law Journal (1976) 376 at pg. 371-381. In India, I have observed that in addition General Guidelines issued to Food Safety Inspection Officers by the Food Safety and Standards

Authority of India, direction is also given in the form of 'Inspection Matrices' and Checklists which help the Inspection Officers to ascertain whether the elements listed below were evident in the product. Many of the same elements also exist in the 'Compliance and Enforcement Policy' of the Canadian Food Inspection Agency, which is responsible for the enforcement of the Food and Drugs Act of Canada. In my view, these elements must also be considered by Public Health officers prior to the initiation of criminal proceedings under our Food Act:

a) Whether there has been a deliberate or intentional violation of the law.
b) Whether there has been a failure to exercise due diligence. For example, if any product contains any foreign substance, even if it is an isolated incident, then that fact would be relevant and persuasive in the institution of prosecution.
c) Whether alleged violations have exposed the public to some danger.
d) Whether the violation was obvious to a person knowledgeable about the industry.
e) Whether the violation has been a recurrent problem that the alleged suspect has failed to deal with over a period of time.
f) Whether the violation results from the commission or omission of an act which could have been prevented, detected, or corrected. The absence of a quality control system which could have prevented the problem would be relevant and persuasive in the institution of prosecution.
g) Any violation which resulted or may have resulted in significant economic damage to the public.

23. I must stress that these factors are not exhaustive. I also do not suggest that these factors should inhibit or restrain the Public Health officers from initiating prosecution against an accused when the available evidence establishes a nexus between the offence and the members of the body-corporate committing such offence. However, one must employ a general understanding of Corporate Liability when understanding the objectives of the Act. We are not entitled to treat the law as being an entity immune from sense. Particularly, we must bear in mind that when examining the regularization of an industry such as the Food Industry, the Manufacturer, once he has created the product loses control over the product created in degrees as the product is distributed, offered to retailers and then exposed for sale by shop owners.

24. For the reasoning referred to above, I hold that the Regulation under which the Appellant was charged is not applicable to the manufacture and therefore no liability can be imposed on the Appellant.

25. Accordingly, I set aside the conviction and sentence imposed on the Appellant and Appellant is acquitted. In view of the finding made above, I do not think it would be necessary to address the second question of law on which special leave was granted.

26. I now advert to a matter relating to this appeal which, in my opinion, warrants the attention of the Court. The Court is mindful that the subject of Food Legislation concerns consumer protection and public health. It is a serious issue which affects the public at large and as I pen this judgment, I am much concerned by the fact thought that if the system were to weaken or be undermined by lack of resources, the entire citizenry would suffer. While I commend the efforts and yeoman services provided by the Public Health Officers, I also think that it is important to note that effective enforcement and prosecution of offences under the Food Act and its Regulations is dependent on Public Health Officers possessing the requisite knowledge of the legal landscape for the purpose attributing liability and regulating the industry within the confines of the law.

27. In the circumstances, it is my view that the relevant authorities and agencies, must endeavour to provide such assistance, and should consider the possibility of engaging in capacity-building, aimed towards providing legal training for Public Health Officers, for the effective implementation of the Act and its Regulations.

Conclusion

In view of the observations made above, I answer the question of law of this appeal in the following manner.

1. Are manufacturing and distribution not covered by the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005 published in Gazette Extraordinary No. 1376/9 of 19th January 2005?

   Yes, manufacturing and distribution are not covered by the Food (Labelling and Advertising) Regulations 2005 published in Gazette Extraordinary No. 1376/9 of 19th January 2005.

The conviction set aside and the Appeal allowed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Kumudini Wickramasinghe, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Janak De Silva, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for Leave to Appeal under and in terms of Section 5C of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) (Amendment) Act No. 54 of 2006.

M.Y. Jezeema Beebi,
No. 166/8A, 166/8B,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Plaintiff

SC Appeal No: 47/2015
SC/HCCA/LA No. 497/2014
WP/HCCA/COL/29/2009/F
DC Colombo No. 20654/L

Vs.

Gothanayagi,
No. 166/8,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Defendant

AND THEN BETWEEN

M.Y. Jezeema Beebi,
No. 166/8A, 166/8B,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Plaintiff-Appellant

Vs.

Gothanayagi,
No. 166/8,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Defendant-Respondent

AND NOW BETWEEN

M.Y. Jezeema Beebi,
No. 166/8A, 166/8B,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Plaintiff-Appellant-Petitioner

Vs.

Gothanayagi,
No. 166/8,
Elvitigala Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

Defendant-Respondent-Respondent

Before: Justice P. Padman Surasena

Justice A.L. Shiran Gooneratne

Justice Arjuna Obeyesekere

Counsel: Vishwa de Livera Tennekoon with Lilani Ganegama instructed by Nepataarachchi for the Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant.

Heshan Thambimuttu with Prasanth Mahendran for the Defendant-Respondent-Respondent.

Argued on: 17/02/2023

Decided on: 22/09/2023

A.L. Shiran Gooneratne J.

By Plaint dated 02/03/2005, the Plaintiff-Appellant-Appellant (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Plaintiff-Appellant") filed this Action No. D.C. Colombo 20654/L against the Defendant-Respondent-Respondent ("the Defendant-Respondent"), and sought a declaration that the Plaintiff-Appellant is entitled to Lot 1, 2, 3 and 4 bearing Assessment Nos. 166/8A and 166/8B, Elvitigala Mawatha, Colombo 5, depicted in Plan No. 2055 dated 07/10/2001, made by I.M.C. Fernando, Licensed Surveyor and a declaration that the Defendant-Respondent is not entitled to the said land.

In paragraph 1 of the said Plaint, the Plaintiff-Appellant states that her mother M.I.S.S. Beebi became entitled by Deed of Disposition No. 16007 dated 17/05/1995, attested by the Commissioner of Department of National Housing, to Lots 5 and 6 bearing Assessment Nos. 166/8A and 166/8B Elvitigala Mawatha depicted in Plan No. MF

46/76 dated 06/08/1976 made by I.M.C. Fernando Licensed Surveyor. The Plaintiff-Appellant claims entitlement to the said land by virtue of Deed of Gift No. 3 dated 01/01/1996 attested by P.D.R. Priyadharshani, Notary Public.

According to paragraphs 5 and 6 of the Plaint, on or about 1997, the Defendant-Respondent had forcibly entered the southern side of Lot 6 and the eastern side of Lot 5 depicted in the said Plan No. MF 46/76. The Plaintiff-Appellant claims that with the concurrence of both parties to this action, the said land was resurveyed and the boundaries were demarcated by the said Plan No. 2055 dated 07/10/2001, and further that Lots 5 and 6 depicted in Plan No. MF 46/76 were amalgamated, sub divided and depicted as Lots 2, 3 and 4 in Plan No. 2055. The Plaintiff-Appellant also claims Lots 2, 3 and 4 in the said Plan No. 2055, as land encroached by the Defendant-Respondent.

In Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the Plaint, the Plaintiff-Appellant states that, according to the said Plan No. 2055 dated 07/10/2001, the Defendant-Respondent has encroached zero decimal four two perches (0.42 perches) upon Lots 2, 3 and 4. The Plaintiff-Appellant relied on the said Plan No. 2055 to claim that, the Defendant-Respondent is using the encroached land unlawfully for construction purposes thereby causing mischief and irreparable loss to the Plaintiff-Appellant.

The Defendant-Respondent by amended answer dated 26/10/2005, denies any encroachment to the said land and states that she has acquired prescriptive title to Lot No. 4 in Plan No. MF 46/76 depicted as Lots Nos. 2, 3 and 4 in the resurveyed Plan No. 2055, for a period of over 30 years and prayed for a dismissal of the Plaint.

At the conclusion of the trial, the Additional District Judge by Judgment dated 16/01/2009, held inter alia, that the Defendant-Respondent has established uninterrupted possession of over 30 years to the said Lots Nos. 2, 3 and 4 in Plan No. 2055, and therefore acquired prescriptive title over the said land and accordingly, dismissed the action of the Plaintiff-Appellant.

Being aggrieved by the said Judgment, the Plaintiff-Appellant by Petition of Appeal dated 12/03/2009, appealed to the High Court of the Western Province exercising civil appellate jurisdiction holden in Colombo ("the Appellate Court"). The Appellate Court, after having also considered the question of the title by prescriptive possession acquired by the Defendant-Respondent to the relevant Lots, as in the District Court, by Judgment dated 22/08/2014, affirmed the said Judgment of the Additional District Judge dated 16/01/2009 and dismissed the appeal with costs.

The Plaintiff-Appellant, by Petition dated 03/10/2014 is before this Court, to set aside the said Judgment dated 22/08/2014, delivered by the Appellate Court.

By Order dated 04/03/2015, this Court granted leave to appeal on the following questions of law;

1. Has the Civil Appellate High Court erred in law in effectively failing to take into consideration the applicability of Section 15(2) of the Ceiling on Housing Property Law No. 1 of 1973 in this instance?

2. Has the Civil Appellate High Court misdirected itself in law by erroneously determining that the Respondent has established undisturbed, uninterrupted, and adverse possession, and therefore, has acquired prescriptive title to Lot No.'s 5B and 6B more fully depicted in Plan No. 424/2006 prepared by S. Rasappah, Licensed Surveyor having regard to Section 15(2) of the Ceiling on Housing Property Law No. 1 of 1973 and/or Section 15 of the Prescription Ordinance?

3. Has the Civil Appellate High Court erred in law by failing to determine that the Respondent had not acquired any prescriptive rights to Lot No.'s 2, 3 and 4 in Plan No. 2055, dated 7th October 2001, prepared by I.M.C. Fernando, Licensed Surveyor, subsequent to 17th May 1995 as envisaged in terms of Section 3 of the Prescription Ordinance?

In this action, the Plaintiff-Appellant claimed to be entitled to the land and premises marked Lots 5 and 6 depicted in Plan No. MF 46/76 dated 06/08/1976, made by I.M.C. Fernando, Licensed Surveyor, marked as 'P1'. The Plaintiff-Appellant further claimed that the said land was resurveyed by the same Licensed Surveyor, I.M.C. Fernando, and based on the said resurvey which amalgamated Lots 5 and 6 of Plan No. MF 46/76, the Plaintiff sought a declaration that she is entitled to Lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in the resurveyed Plan No. 2055 dated 07/10/2001, 'P4' (marked subject to proof). Accordingly, the District Court was called upon to declare the rights of the Plaintiff-Appellant based on the Resurveyed Plan No. 2055.

The Plaintiff-Appellant contends that the Defendant-Respondent forcibly encroached upon the said Lots 5 and 6 in Plan No. MF 46/76, which were later depicted as Lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in Plan No. 2055. The Plaintiff-Appellant alleges that the Defendant-Respondent is constructing a toilet in the encroached land and has caused damage to her land.

When this matter came up before the trial court, at the request of the Defendant-Respondent, the court appointed Surveyor S. Rasappah, who prepared Plan No. 424/2006 dated 18/08/2006, marked as 'X', and the Surveyor's Report marked as 'X1'. Both parties relied on the said Plan No. 424/2006 and the said Surveyor Report.

Surveyor Rasappah in his evidence stated that Plan 'X 'was prepared by superimposing Lot 4 (belonging to the Defendant-Respondent), and the said Lots 5 and 6 of Plan No. MF 46/76. Accordingly, the said Lot 4 is depicted as 4A and 4B, Lot 5 as 5A and 5B, and Lot 6 as 6A, 6B and 6C. Lot 4A is a building occupied by the Defendant-Respondent and Lot 4B is the right of way to the premises owned by the Defendant-Respondent. Lots 5A and 6A, consist of the building occupied by the Plaintiff-Appellant and Lot 5B is also made use of by the Defendant-Respondent as a right of way.

According to Surveyor Rasappah, Lot 6B is identified as the portion encroached by the Defendant-Respondent. He repeatedly stated to the trial court that he was not privy to the Resurveyed Plan No. 2055 marked 'P4', when preparing Plan 'X'.

According to the said survey report marked 'X1', the roadway depicted as Lot 5B, is used by the Defendant-Respondent without any disturbance or interruption by the Plaintiff-Appellant. The Surveyor has also observed that the permanent wall and the tin sheet wall separating Lots 6A and 6B, and the building constructed therein are over 20 years.

The Plaintiff-Appellant contends that the Defendant-Respondent has encroached upon Lot 5B, which is presently used as a roadway and the encroachment upon Lot 6B. It is in evidence that Lots 6A and 6B are separated by a permanent wall and a tin sheet fence which extends up to the disputed toilet used by the Defendant-Respondent.

The Plaintiff-Appellant did not call into question Surveyor Rasappah's assertion based on experience, that the said wall was in place for over 20 years nor placed any evidence to the contrary. The Plaintiff-Appellant also did not question the surveyor on the alleged encroachment to Lot 6B, which is used as a roadway by the Defendant-Respondent.

The Plaintiff-Appellant in her evidence admitted that the said wall demarcated the boundaries of the land owned by the respective parties and that the said wall was constructed by the Defendant-Respondent. Answering a question posed by Court, the Plaintiff-Appellant stated that she cannot remember the period when the tin sheet wall was constructed, however, at a later stage stated that the wall was constructed after 1995. The Plaintiff-Appellant did not place any further evidence to substantiate the said claim nor put in issue the encroachment to Lot No. 6B, used as a roadway by the Defendant-Respondent.

The Defendant-Respondent's position in brief is that she resides in the said premises since 1971 and the said wall existed prior to 1983 as a timber plank wall and thereafter, the present wall was constructed around 1984. Whilst admitting that Lots 5 and 6 in

Plan marked 'P1' belong to the Plaintiff-Appellant, the Defendant-Respondent completely disassociated herself with any knowledge of the existence of Plan No. 2055 or to the veracity of the boundaries depicted therein. Before parting with her cross examination, the learned Counsel for the Plaintiff-Appellant suggested to the Defendant-Respondent that Lots 5 and 6 (clearly in reference to Plan No. MF 46/76) belong to the Plaintiff-Appellant, to which the Defendant-Respondent answered in the affirmative. An issue raised by the Defendant-Respondent to establish uninterrupted possession of the toilet situated in the northern part of Lot 4 in Plan No. 46/76 shown as Lots 2, 3 and 4 of Plan No. 2055, for over 30 years, was decided in favor of the Defendant-Respondent.

The dispute between the parties to this action clearly arise from the boundaries to the land and premises depicted in Plan No. 2055. The Defendant-Respondent did not dispute the boundaries of the land and premises marked Lots 5 and 6 depicted in Plan No. MF 46/76 and accordingly, the trial court held that the Plaintiff-Appellant was entitled to Lots 5 and 6 in the said Plan No. MF 46/76.

As stated earlier, the Plaintiff-Appellant relied on Plan No. 2055 made by I.M.C. Fernando, Licensed Surveyor marked 'P4', for relief as prayed for. Surveyor I.M.C. Fernando was deceased at the time this case came up for trial and a survey report in respect of the said Plan No. 2055 is also not part of the record.

In the said Judgment dated 16/01/2009 in case No. D.C. Colombo 20654/L, the learned Additional District Judge inter alia held,

1) that the said Plan No. 2055 remains a document that has not been duly proved by the Plaintiff-Appellant,
2) that the land occupied by the Defendant is enclosed by a permanent wall and Tin roofing sheets for a period of over 20 years,
3) that no forced entry to the Plaintiff's land by the Defendant has been revealed in evidence.

The Court held that the Plaintiff-Appellant's claim that the Defendant-Respondent has encroached Lot 6 was not proved and accordingly, dismissed the action of the Plaintiff-Appellant.

As stated earlier, in its Judgment dated 22/08/2014, the Appellate Court inter alia, considered the undisturbed and uninterrupted possession of the Defendant-Respondent of the relevant Lots Based on Plan No. 424/2006 made by Rasappah Licensed Surveyor, the Appellate Court inter alia, held that the subdivided lot 5B is presently used by the Defendant-Respondent as a right of way and the subdivided lot 6B remains a part of the Defendant-Respondent's land attached to Lot No. 4.

The Appellate Court further held that;

"The very important factor reveals from the Surveyor's Report is that the said subdivided Lots 6A and 6B are partitioned and separated by the said permanent wall and the galvanized sheet fence and the said fence and wall runs up to the place where the defendant's latrine is situated. In terms of said plan and report the subdivided lots 5B and 6B are within the possession of the defendant" and declared that "the defendant has prescribed to the sole possession of subdivided lots marked 4A, 4B, 5B and 6B in the said plan marked X".

With regard to Plan No 2055, the Appellate Court, whilst commenting that it remains a document that has not been duly proved, stated that "Plan Bearing No. 2055 does not show a latrine and a kitchen alleged to have been built by the Defendant in the Plaintiff's land".

The Appellate Court, affirmed the Judgment of the learned trial Judge and dismissed the appeal with costs.

In this regard, it is observed that-

a) the Plaintiff-Appellant filed this action seeking a declaration that the Plaintiff-Appellant is entitled to Lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 depicted in Plan No. 2055 and a further declaration that the Defendant-Respondent is not entitled to the said land;
b) Plan No. 2055, dated 07/10/2001 was made by I. M. C. Fernando, the same surveyor who made the Original Plan No M.F. 46/76 dated 06/08/1976;
c) as commented upon earlier in this Judgment, the Commission Plan No. 424/2006, made at the request of the Defendant-Respondent, established that the Defendant-Respondent had encroached on to the Plaintiff-Appellant's land;
d) both courts below were of the view that the Defendant-Respondent had encroached on the Plaintiff-Appellant's land based on the said Commission Plan No. 424/2006, however, they decided that the Defendant-Respondent was entitled to prescriptive title to the encroached land, even though any relief was not claimed by the Defendant-Respondent to that effect;
e) In his evidence before the trial court, Surveyor Rasappah clearly stated that he was unaware of the existence of the said Plan No. 2055 and did not consider the said plan when making Plan No. 424/2006;
f) Surveyor Rasappah made use of the Original Plan No. M.F. 46/76 to prepare the said Plan No. 424/2006 and not Plan No. 2055 dated 07/10/2001, on which the Plaintiff-Appellant based her claim for relief;
g) The purported encroachment by the Defendant-Respondent on the Plaintiff-Appellant's land, as reflected in the Commission Plan No. 424/2006, is based on the Original Plan No. M.F. 46/76, dated 06/08/1976, with no reference to Plan No. 2055, which the Plaintiff-Appellant relied upon;
h) Even though the Appellate Court decided on the prescriptive rights of the Defendant-Respondent, and in her favour; the Defendant-Respondent did not pray for any relief, other than the dismissal of the said action.

The Plaintiff-Appellant's relief as prayed for in the Plaint dated 02/03/2005, is based on Plan No. 2055. The Defendant-Respondent consistently disputed and rejected Plan

No. 2055 on the basis that the said plan was not duly read in evidence and that a survey report thereon is not available.

Although the Plaintiff-Appellant's relief, was based on Plan No. 2055, the Plaintiff-Appellant failed to follow due procedure according to law to establish the death of the surveyor or to call a competent witness to read the said Plan in evidence. Plan No. 2055 was never shown to the Court appointed surveyor when he visited the land and there is no reference made to the said Plan in the Commission Plan/ Report tendered in evidence. Both the trial court and the Appellate Court has referred to the said Plan No. 2055 as a document which was not duly proved.

The Plaintiff-Appellant did not place any material before this Court to negate the said stand that Plan No. 2055 was not duly proved as contended by the Counsel for the Defendant-Respondent and upheld by the courts below.

The Plaintiff-Appellant came before the trial court seeking a declaration that she is entitled to Lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 depicted in Plan No. 2055, dated 07/10/2001. Accordingly, the trial court was called upon to decide on the Plaintiff-Appellant's rights based on Plan No. 2055.

In the aforesaid circumstances, this Court is of the view that Plan No. 2055 was not adequately proved to determine the rights of the Plaintiff-Appellant.

In discussing the duties and obligations of the Plaintiff-Appellant and the Defendant-Respondent respectively, in an action for declaration of title to land, (as in this instance), reference may be made to the following cases decided by our Appellate Courts.

a) Menikgama Arachchige Don Ananda Vs. Kollupitiye Mahinda Sangarakkitha Thero, Viharadhipathi and Trustee, Kelaniya Raja Maha Vihara, Kelaniya- CA 908/96 F, CA minutes dated 23/04/2012

In the course of the Judgment in this case, the Court of Appeal,

I. stated that the Plaintiff sought to vindicate his title to the subject matter of the action, to wit, the land described in schedule 2 of the Plaint, which had been pleaded by the Plaintiff was as a portion of the land more fully set out in schedule 1, and that, "From the issues suggested by the Plaintiff, it is quite clear that the Plaintiff has not made any attempt to identify the land described in schedule 2 of the Plaint as a portion of the larger land described in schedule 1". The Court went on to state that "It is common knowledge that without establishing title to the larger land described in schedule 1 of the Plaint, the Plaintiff cannot succeed in establishing his title to the land described in schedule 2 of the Plaint. It is of paramount importance in an action of this nature, to identify and establish the identity of the subject matter and the title by adducing clear evidence to obtain a declaration of title and ejectment of the Defendant;"

II. stated that "It is trite law that the burden in a rei vindicatio action is on the plaintiff to prove ownership to the subject matter of the action. More so when the defendant is in possession of the corpus;"

III. referred to the case of Dharmadasa Vs. Jayasena (1997) 3 SLR 327, which is mentioned in, b) below;

IV. stated that the Plaintiff failed to prove that the subject matter of the action was vested in him, and that "he had given no evidence whatsoever to prove it;"

and allowed the appeal of the Defendant-Appellant and set aside the Judgment of the District Judge in favour of the Plaintiff-Respondent.

b) Dharmadasa Vs. Jayasena (Supra) which states in the headnote that-

"The Plaintiff sued the Defendant for a declaration of title and ejectment. The Plaintiff based his claim on a Grant from the Urban Council, Anuradhapura.

Held: in a rei vindicatio action the burden is on the Plaintiff to establish the title pleaded and relied on by him. The Defendant need not prove anything. The Grant relied on by the Plaintiff was invalid. Hence the Plaintiff has failed to establish his title."

In the course of the Judgment in this case, the Supreme Court stated that "The Authorities unite in holding that the Plaintiff must show title to the corpus in dispute and that if he cannot, the action will not lie". per Macdonell C.J., at page 219, in De Silva Vs. Goonetilleke (1931) 32 NLR 217. The principle was lucidly stated by Herat J. in Wanigaratne Vs. Juwanis Appuhamy (1964) 65 NLR 167 in the following terms "The defendant in a rei vindicatio action need not prove anything, still less his own title. The plaintiff cannot ask for a declaration of title in his favour merely on the strength that the defendant's title is poor or not established. The plaintiff must prove and establish his title. This, the plaintiff has failed to do, and his action must therefore fail."

c) Terrence Clinton Percival Thirunayake Vs. M George Anthony Fernando (SC Appeal No.18B of 2009) SC minutes dated 07/03/2014

The Plaintiff instituted a rei vindicatio action in 1994, in the District Court of Kurunegala, inter alia, seeking a declaration of title that the Plaintiff is the owner of the land described in the second schedule to the Plaint and for an order ejecting the Defendant and his agents occupying a portion of the land. The District Judge gave Judgment, in 2001, in favour of the Plaintiff, against which the Defendant appealed to the Civil Appellate High Court.

The Civil Appellate High Court allowed the appeal and dismissed the Judgment of the District Judge on the basis that the land in dispute has not been precisely identified and the land described in the schedule to the Plaint is different in that the land is a larger land; against which order of the Civil Appellate High Court the Plaintiff filed an appeal to the Supreme Court.

In the course of the Judgment in this appeal, the Supreme Court –

I. citing the decision in Peiris Vs. Sinnathamby, 54 NLR 207, stated that "…. in a rei vindicatio action claiming a declaration of title and ejectment it is a paramount duty on the part of the petitioner (appellant in this case) to establish correct boundaries in order to identify the Corpus." Referring to the evidence produced by the Appellant the Court stated further, "Therefore, it is obviously clear that the Appellant has failed to produce evidence to identify the land in dispute" and that "this being an action rei vindicatio there is a greater and heavy burden on the part of the Appellant to prove not only that he has a dominion to the land in dispute but also the specific precise and definite boundaries when claiming a declaration of title" and

II. agreeing with the submissions of the Counsel for the Respondent, concluded that "……. the land in dispute has not been precisely and definitely described in the schedule to the Plaint in terms of the Law…." dismissed the Appeal, affirming the Judgment of the Civil Appellate High Court.

In view of the above and from what has been stated earlier in this Judgment, it is clear that the Plaintiff-Appellant has failed to fulfill the obligations and duties and duly discharge the burden of proof, which is required of a Plaintiff in a rei vindicatio action, which have been described above, particularly, in regard to the establishment of the identity of the property in respect of which declarations are sought in such a rei vindicatio action and the due establishment of the title of the Plaintiff thereto.

The Defendant-Respondent has also made extensive submissions in this regard, in the written submissions dated 03/07/2015 and 17/03/2023 filed in this Court, that the reliefs sought by the Plaintiff-Appellant are untenable in Law, with which I agree.

In the circumstances, this Court is of the view that, in deciding on this Appeal, the three questions on which leave to appeal to this Court have been granted and which have been quoted earlier in this Judgment need not be considered and, with respect, I answer such three questions accordingly.

For these reasons, the Judgment dated 16/01/2009 of the Additional District Judge and the Judgment dated 22/08/2014 of the Appellate Court are hereby affirmed and this Appeal is dismissed. No order for Costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

P. Padman Surasena, J

I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

Arjuna Obeyesekere, J

I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Appeal under and in terms of Section 5(1) of the High Court of Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996 read with Article 154H of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka and Chapter L VIII of the Code of Civil Procedure

Mohamed Lebbe Mohamed Zarook,
No. 41, Kandy Road,
Gampola.

SC (CHC) Appeal No. 22/2014
Case No. HC (Civil) 121/2005/MR

PLAINTIFF

~Vs.~

Tokyo Cement Company (Lanka) Ltd.,
No. 469/1/1, Galle Road,
Colombo 3.

DEFENDANT

AND NOW BETWEEN

Mohamed Lebbe Mohamed Zarook,
No. 41, Kandy Road,
Gampola

PLAINTIFF~APPELLANT

~Vs.~

Tokyo Cement Company (Lanka) PLC.,
No. 469/1/1, Galle Road,
Colombo 03.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT

BEFORE: Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J,
L. T. B. Dehideniya, J &
P. Padman Surasena, J

COUNSEL: Kamran Aziz with Ms. Fahama Latheef instructed by Earnest Law Chambers for the Plaintiff-Appellant.

Nihal Fernando, PC with Rajindra Jayasinghe instructed by Sudath Perera Associates for the Defendant-Respondent.

ARGUED ON: 01.02.2022

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: 14.03.2022

DECIDED ON: 12.01.2023

JUDGEMENT

Aluwihare, PC, J.

Introduction

(1) The Plaintiff-Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the "Plaintiff") instituted action against the Defendant-Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "Defendant") in the Provincial High Court of the Western Province (Exercising Original Civil Jurisdiction) (hereinafter referred to as the "Commercial High Court") seeking relief as prayed for in the plaint dated 01.07.2005. The Defendant by their Answer, sought the dismissal of the Plaintiff's action. After the conclusion of the Trial, the learned Judge of the High Court, by Judgement dated 2013.09.20 dismissed the action.

Facts of the Case

(2) The Plaintiff filed this action against the Defendant on the following five causes of action,

(a) The Defendant had wrongfully seized a lorry owned by the Plaintiff and obtained Rs. 800,000/- from the Plaintiff for its release, but had refused to release the same thereafter. Therefore, the Defendant has been unjustly enriched by their unlawful conduct.

(b) The Defendant failed to pay certain incentive allowances amounting to Rs. 619,360/- owing to the Plaintiff.

(c) The Defendant failed to pay certain transport allowances amounting to Rs. 240,200/- due to the Plaintiff.

(d) The Defendant through their conduct of terminating the services of the Plaintiff as a cement distributor, prevented the Plaintiff from earning an income of Rs. 12 million thus causing damages to the Plaintiff.

(e) The Defendant through their conduct of terminating the services of the Plaintiff as a cement distributor, caused injury to the Plaintiff's goodwill and reputation causing a loss of Rs. 10 million to the Plaintiff.

(3) For the purpose of this appeal, the Plaintiff limited their arguments to the first cause of action, which is that the Defendant has been unjustly enriched, owing to the alleged wrongful seizure of the lorry owned by the Plaintiff.

(4) The facts material to the present appeal are as follows. The Plaintiff carries on a business called "Jinnah Hardware" as the proprietor. The Defendant is a Company that produces Cement under the name "Tokyo Cement" for the local market. On or about 1994, the Defendant appointed the Plaintiff as a distributor of "Tokyo Cement" in the Central Province.

The facts alleged by the Plaintiff

(5) The facts alleged by the Plaintiff by their Plaint dated 01.07.2005 are as follows,

(a) On or about 11.09.2003, the Plaintiff dispatched his lorry bearing No. 68-3654 together with a cheque for Rs. 112,100/- to the Defendant's Depot in Trincomalee to take delivery of an ordered consignment of Cement.

(b) The Defendant thereafter seized the lorry, retained the cheque of Rs. 112,100/- and refused to supply the said order of cement until the Plaintiff deposited a sum of Rs. 1,000,000 to the Defendant's account.

(c) The Plaintiff, upon notice of the seizure of the lorry, stopped the payment of the cheque amounting to Rs. 112,100/-.

(d) Thereafter the Plaintiff, delivered three cheques to the Defendant amounting to Rs. 500,000/-, Rs. 200,000/- and Rs. 100,000 respectively.

(e) After the said cheques were realized, the Defendant continued to refuse to release the said lorry or to supply cement to the Plaintiff.

(f) Thereafter, the Plaintiff, sent two letters dated 17.11.2003 and 30.01.2004 demanding the release of the said lorry and supply of cement.

(g) The Defendant by their letter dated 22.03.2004 refused to comply with the Plaintiff's demand.

The facts alleged by the Defendant.

(6) The facts alleged by the Defendant are as follows,

(a) The Plaintiff, prior to instituting the present action, had instituted action before the District Court of Colombo by Case No. 7275/Spl against the Defendant based on the same facts and the same letter of demand dated 30.01.2004. In the said case, the Plaintiff had not reserved its right to institute a separate action. Accordingly, the Defendants raised a preliminary objection that the present case is contrary to Section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code and/or is res judicata and therefore the Plaintiff's case should be dismissed in limine.

(b) It was the Defendant who facilitated the purchase of the lorry bearing No. 68-3654, by advancing a sum of Rs.1, 292,000/- in order for the Plaintiff to distribute cement to the Defendant, and that the Defendant was the registered owner of the said lorry (V8 produced along with the affidavit of the Finance Manager of the Defendant). As such the Defendant had a lien over the said lorry till any outstanding sums owing to the Defendant were paid by the Plaintiff. The Defendant admitted to having seized the lorry on or about 11.09.2003, and having kept the lorry in their possession till certain sums owed to the Defendant were settled by the Plaintiff.

(c) The payment practice that was followed for the purchase of cement by the Plaintiff was for the Plaintiff to deposit the monies directly to the Defendant's Bank Account and 'fax' the customer's copy of the credit slip to the Defendant as proof of depositing the monies. The Defendant alleged that the Plaintiff had forged credit slips (V1 to V 6) and faxed such forged slips to the Defendant in order to purchase cement.

(d) The Commercial Bank had informed that the 'Credit slip' copies faxed by the Plaintiff, did not relate to any of the vouchers in their records and as such the Bank is unable to reconcile the purported deposits (V1 to V6) with the vouchers held by the Bank(letter V3) and the copies of credit slips submitted for verification do not tally with any of the original credit slips in the possession of the Bank (letter V5) .

(e) Accordingly, the Defendant alleged that there was an outstanding sum of Rs. 1,539,900 which was due and owing from the Plaintiff to the Defendant for Cement supplied at the time the said lorry was seized by the Defendant.

(f) The payment of Rs. 800,000 by three cheques, after the seizure of the lorry is an admission by the Plaintiff that a sum of Rs. 1,539,900 is due and owing by them to the Defendant.

The Issue

(7) The learned Judge of the High Court, by Judgement dated 2013.09.20, upheld the preliminary objection raised by the Defendant and dismissed the action. The main ground of appeal raised by the Petitioner is that said dismissal of the action by the learned Judge is erroneous.

(8) At the outset, it would be apposite to determine the legality of the findings of the learned Judge of the High Court with respect to the preliminary objection raised by the Defendant. The learned Judge in his judgement finds that the action of the Plaintiff was contrary to sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code.

(9) It must be noted that the Plaintiff in his Plaint in the Commercial High Court has alleged five distinct causes of action against the Defendant. The first cause of action distinctly relates to the alleged unlawful seizure of the lorry by the Defendant, which was also in issue in the previous case, the District Court case No. 7275/Spl filed by the Plaintiff against the Defendant. The remaining four causes of action, that is the second to fifth causes of action, are not directly related to the said seizure. These causes of action mainly arise from the termination of the services of the Plaintiff as a cement distributor and appear to mainly concern the commercial transactions that have taken place between the Plaintiff and the Defendant. Accordingly, it is my view that each cause of action must be considered to assess any inconsistency with Sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code in light of the District Court action filed by the Plaintiff.

(10) The second to fifth causes of action are as follows,

(a) The Defendant failed to pay certain incentive allowances amounting to Rs. 619,360/- owing to the Plaintiff.

(b) The Defendant failed to pay certain transport allowances amounting to Rs. 240,200/- due to the Plaintiff.

(c) The Defendant through their conduct of terminating the services of the Plaintiff as a cement distributor, prevented the Plaintiff from earning an income of Rs. 12 million thus causing damages to the Plaintiff.

(d) The Defendant through their conduct of terminating the services of the Plaintiff as a cement distributor, caused injury to the Plaintiff's goodwill and reputation causing a loss of Rs. 10 million to the Plaintiff.

(11) It is quite evident on the face of the Plaint that the second to fifth causes of action relate to commercial transactions between the Plaintiff and the Defendant. The second and third causes of action relate to recovering certain incentive allowances and transport allowances allegedly due and owing from the Defendant to the Plaintiff. The fourth cause of action pertains to deprivation of the Plaintiff's ability to earn income by the conduct of the Defendant. The fifth cause of action relates to an alleged harm to the Plaintiff's goodwill and reputation. These causes of action, prima facie does not appear to be related to the unlawful seizure of the lorry. The Plaintiff's contention that the present action is distinct from the previous action filed by the Plaintiff, in District Court Case No. 7275/Spl, prima facie, appears to have some merit only with regards to the second to fifth causes of action.

(12) The learned High Court Judge, while dismissing the Plaintiff's action on the preliminary objection raised, has proceeded to assess the merits of all the causes of action alleged by the Plaintiff, without prejudice to the preliminary objection raised. Accordingly, the learned High Court judge has found that the Plaintiff has not sufficiently proven their case with respect to the second to fifth causes of action. Although the Plaintiff has preferred this appeal against the said judgement, in the present appeal, the Plaintiff has restricted their submissions to the first cause of action. Accordingly, the Plaintiff has not canvassed before this court any of the findings of the learned High Court Judge with respect to the second to fifth causes of action.

(13) Even though the Plaintiff did not challenge the findings of the learned High Court Judge in respect of the merits of the second to fifth causes of action this Court has given its mind to the findings of the learned High Court judge and we find no material error regarding the conclusions reached by the learned High Court Judge with regards to the merits of the said causes of action. Therefore, for the purposes of this appeal, it is immaterial whether the second to fifth cause of action are in fact barred by Sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code. Accordingly, the same need not be determined by this Court.

(14) The material issue at hand is whether the first cause of action of the Plaintiff, the unjust enrichment of the Defendant as a result of their alleged unlawful seizure of the lorry of the Plaintiff, is contrary to Sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code, in light of the District Court case No 7275/Spl filed by the Plaintiff.

(15) The Plaintiff in their submissions before this Court stated that the unlawful seizure of the lorry is a transaction that resulted in two distinct causes of action, first for the recovery of the possession of the lorry and secondly for the recovery of the money given by the Plaintiff to the Defendant in order to get the said lorry released. The Contention by the learned Counsel for the Plaintiff was that, although flowing from the same transaction, these two actions related to two distinct causes of action.

(16) The learned President's Counsel for the Defendant submitted that the claim in the present action arises from the same transaction as in the District Court Case No. 7275/Spl. He further submitted that the payment of Rs. 800,000/- which is sought to be recovered by the Plaintiff, is intrinsically interwoven to the cause of action in the District Court case. Accordingly, the learned President's Counsel argued that the present action is contrary to Section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code and that the Learned High Court Judge was correct in dismissing the Plaintiff's action.

(17) It must be noted that neither the Counsel for the Plaintiff, nor the Defendant, focused on Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code in their submissions before this Court. The main focus of the submissions was with regards to Section 34 of the Code and whether the previous action filed by the Plaintiff in the District Court and the present action flow from the same cause of action.

(18) I am of the view that Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code [Hereinafter the CPC] is key in determining this appeal. In fact, the learned High Court Judge in his judgement dated 2013.09.20 at page 12 has referred to Section 33 of the CPC and stated,

"ඉහත කරුණු අනුව දිසා අධිකරණයේ නඩුවට පාදක වූ ලොරිය රඳවා ගැනීම, එහි ලියාපදිංචි අයිතිය නොපැවරීම පිළිබඳ ආරවුල පාශ්වයන් අතර වූ සිමෙන්ති බෙදාහැරීමේ ගණුදෙනු වලින් ස්වාධීනව නොපිහිටන බව පෙනී යන නිසා මේ සියලු කාරණා සිවිල් නඩු විධාන සංග්‍රහයේ 33 වගන්තියට ප්‍රකාරව වැඩිදුර නඩුකිරීම් ඇති නොවන ලෙස එක නඩුවෙන්ම මතු කල යුතු කරුණු බවට වැඩි බරින් තීරණය කරමි."

(19) It would be pertinent at this stage to refer to Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code which reads thus;

> "Every regular action shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them."[Emphasis added]

(20) Although most judgements refer to Section 33 of the CPC solely as a means to interpret Section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code, I am of the view that Section 33, imposes certain limitations on the types of actions that could be filed by a Plaintiff, quite independent of Section 34.

(21) It must be noted that Section 33 does not refer to the term "cause of action". The term used in the section is "subjects in dispute". The term "subjects in dispute" is much wider than the term "cause of action". Many distinct causes of action may arise from the same subjects in dispute. Therefore, quite independent of whether the two actions flow from the same cause of action, if two actions relate to the same "subjects in dispute", Section 33 requires that these matters be tried together as far as practicable so as to prevent further litigation concerning them.

(22) It must be noted that Section 33 of the CPC does not strictly require that all distinct causes of actions arising out of the same subjects in dispute always be tried in the same action. They must only be tried together so far as the same is practicable. Distinct causes of action, although arising out of the same "subjects in dispute" may be far apart in time, or involve completely different parties so as to not enable the same to be tried conveniently in one action. However, when different causes of action arise out of a sequence of events which are so proximate, involving the same parties, and relating to the same subjects in dispute, Section 33 of the CPC requires that the same be tried in a single action so far as practicable. In such an instance, if parties decide to file distinct actions, relating to the same "subjects in dispute," it would be incumbent upon them to satisfy the court that such matters could not have been conveniently tried in a single action. If the Parties fail to satisfy the court in that regard, it would be open for the court to dismiss such action for non-compliance with Section 33.

(23) The purpose of this section is explained in the section itself. If Parties were allowed to file distinct actions pertaining to the same subjects in dispute without any restriction, this could definitely lead to multiplicity of litigation concerning the same dispute and might cause inconvenience as far as the administration of Justice is concerned. As Chief Justice Sharvananda observed in the case of Mackinons vs. Grindlays Bank 1986(2) SLR 272 " All rules of court are nothing but provisions intended to secure the proper administration of justice and it is therefore essential that they should be made to serve and subordinate to that purpose."

(24) The need for a finality in litigation is echoed in several decided judgements. In Pedris v. Mohideen (1923) 25 N.L.R. 105, at Page 111 it was held by Schneider J.,

> "The policy of the Civil Procedure Code is to prevent a multiplicity of actions. It is, therefore, enacted in section 33: 'Every regular action shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them.'"

(25) In Miguel Appuhamy v Appuhamy (1938) 40 N.L.R. 200 the issue was whether a Plaintiff, who has sued one of several joint-tort-feasors for the recovery of a share of the damage caused to him and has obtained judgment against him, could maintain a subsequent action against any of the other tort-feasors upon the same cause of action., Kretser J. Stated, [at pg. 204];

> "This view [that the Plaintiff cannot maintain a subsequent action], accords with the maxim of the law Reipublicae interest ut sit finis litium, which we find embodied in section 33 of our Civil Procedure Code. That section says, "Every regular action shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so as to prevent further litigation concerning them ".

After referring to Sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code, Kretser J. went on to state; "This section is very wide in its scope and emphatic in its language. It embodies the policy of our law. It clearly refuses to recognize division of a claim."

At page 205, Kretser J. goes on to state that, "On grounds of convenience too a multiplicity of actions is to be deplored. Take the present plaintiff's conduct. He claimed Rs. 300 from one wrongdoer and now claims Rs. 300 from another. There is no statement in the plaint as to what his total damages were but it was later taken to be Rs. 900. Had he been free to sue he might have gone on suing each of the five for Rs. 300. Had his damages to be estimated in the first case it would mean that the trial would be concerned with a claim for Rs. 900. Even if Rs. 300 were clearly due in that case it would not be so clearly due in the following cases. Besides the quantum of damages might be differently estimated by different Judges."

(26) In Mammoo v. Menon (1964) 66 N.L.R. 289 the issue was whether a landlord who, before the notice to quit sent by him to his monthly tenant has taken effect, sues the tenant for recovery of arrears of rent but not for ejectment, is entitled to bring a separate action in ejectment after the same notice to quit has taken effect. At Page 292 Basnayake CJ. Observed;

> "The basic principles of the law of Res Judicata have been written into our Civil Procedure Code. Its provisions are designed as far as may be to prevent a multiplicity of actions."

(27) In several decided judgements, actions have been dismissed on the basis that they relate to claims that ought to have been raised on a previous action which had been instituted between the same parties.

(28) In Ponniah v. Payhamy (1905) 8 N.L.R. 375, the question of res judicata with regards to an action for land was considered. At page 376 Layard C.J. held,

> "Now, the subject in dispute in both these actions was the right of the defendants to retain possession of the land in dispute as against the superior title of the plaintiff. Section 33 of our Civil Procedure Code provides that "every regular action shall, as far as practicable, be so framed as to afford ground for a final decision upon the subjects in dispute, and so to prevent further litigation concerning them." The original action ought then to have been so framed as to set out every title that the plaintiff might have claimed to the land in dispute. It cannot be said in this case that the plaintiff was unaware of his title by conveyance, because it is admitted that he was aware of it at the time the original action was brought."

(29) In the case of Vanderpoorten v. Peiris (1937) 39 N.L.R. 5, the Plaintiff had sued the Defendant to recover arrears of rent due on an indenture of lease and for a cancellation of the lease on the ground that the defendant sublet the premises contrary to the terms of the lease. The Plaintiff thereafter instituted another action to recover damages for the failure of the Defendant to keep the premises leased in proper order and condition. The issue was whether the subsequent action was maintainable. The finding that the Plaintiffs could have brought the claims made at the subsequent action at the previous action was a material fact which influenced the Court in finding that the subsequent judgement was barred by the previous action. Poyser J. in allowing the appeal, declared;

"As previously pointed out, however, the plaintiffs could easily have ascertained, if they did not already know, the damage caused to the premises by the defendant and particularly so the construction of the concrete floors and could have without difficulty included in the previous action a claim in respect of these matters."

(30) The principle outlined in Section 33, which is that quite independent of whether the two actions flow from the same cause of action, if two actions relate to the same "subjects in dispute", these matters be tried together as far as practicable so as to prevent further litigation concerning them, is very similar to the principle of "constructive res judicata" recognized in India. The case of State of Uttar Pradesh v. Nawab Hussain [1977] AIR 1680, is the landmark judgement in this regard. In the Judgement delivered by Shinghaal J. it was held that;

> "But it may be that the same set of facts may give rise to two or more causes of action. If in such a case a person is allowed to choose and sue upon one cause of action at one time and to reserve the other for subsequent litigation, that would aggravate the burden of litigation. Courts have therefore treated such a course of action as an abuse of its process and Somervell L.J., has answered it as follows in Greenhalgh v. Mallard;
>
> "I think that on the authorities to which I will refer it would be accurate to say that res judicata for this purpose not confined to the issues which the court is actually asked to decide, but that it covers issues or facts which are so clearly part of the subject matter of the litigation and so clearly could; have been raised that it would be an abuse of the process of the court to allow a new proceeding to be started in respect of them."

This is therefore another and an equally necessary and efficacious aspect of the same principle, for it helps in raising the bar of res judicata, by suitably construing the general principle of subduing a cantankerous litigant. That is why this other rule has sometimes been referred to as constructive res judicata, which, in reality, is an aspect or amplification of the general principle."

(31) Considering the foregoing, I entertain the view that Section 33 of our Civil Procedure Code recognises a principle very similar to the aforementioned principle of "constructive res judicata" recognised in India.

(32) Applying the provisions embodied in Section 33 of the CPC to the facts of the instant case, I take the view that the first cause of action in the present action is a matter that the Plaintiff ought to have raised in the action filed by him in the District Court Case, in case No. 7275/Spl.

(33) Even if the Plaintiff's argument is accepted, that is, the action filed in the District Court and the first cause of action in the present action relate to two separate causes of action stemming from the same transaction, it is quite evident to the Court that both actions relate to the same "subjects in dispute", which is the lorry bearing No. 68-3654, which was alleged to have been unlawfully seized by the Defendant. It does not appear to Court that the Plaintiff has substantiated as to why the relief sought in the District Court action, and the first cause of action in the present case, could not be tried together in the same action. In my opinion the claim to obtain ownership and possession of the lorry as well as the claim to recover the money given to the Defendant in order to get the lorry released, could have been conveniently tried in the same action. The two wrongs alleged to have been committed by the Defendant, namely the unlawful seizure of the lorry followed by the request to pay for its release and the subsequent refusal to release the lorry even upon the payment of a sum are so proximate, and arising between the same parties that it appears to be convenient to try the same in a single action.

(34) In this regard the following facts may be highlighted.

(a) There are many similarities between the Plaint filed by the Plaintiff in the present case and of that was filed in the District Court Case No. 7275/Spl. Paragraphs [1] – [8] are identical in both Plaints. Paragraphs [9] – [11] in the Plaint in the present case is identical to paragraphs [14] – [16] of the Plaint in the District Court action. Paragraphs [12] – [19] of the Plaint in the present case is identical to [18] – [25] of the District Court action with a few minor changes. Accordingly, almost all paragraphs setting out the facts of the case are identical.

(b) The documents annexed to the Plaint in the present case marked 'P1' to 'P36(28)' are identical to the documents annexed to the Plaint in the District Court Case marked 'P1' to 'P36(28)'.

(c) Both actions have been filed on the same letter of demand marked 'P11' with the Plaint in both actions. Page 3 of the said Letter of Demand states as follows,

"The irresponsible and unreasonable acts of your Officers have caused substantial and irreparable losses and damages to our client. We have been instructed to specify the said losses and damages together with the amounts payable to our client as follows:

a) The earned incentive allowance of Rs. 619,360/-

b) The entitled transport allowance of Rs. 240,200/-

c) The aggregate sum of Rs. 800,000/- tendered as a deposit/-

d) The lorry bearing No: 68-3654 valued at Rs. 1.5 million.

e) Prospective income of Rs. 50,000/- per month from the said lorry.

f) Prospective income of Rs. 100,000/- per month from the business.

g) Loss of Good Will and Reputation estimated at Rs. 10 million."

(35) These facts make it evident that the Plaintiff knew of all relevant facts necessary to bring the present action, at the time of filing the action in the District Court. These facts also indicate that the claims made by the Plaintiff, in the present action and the District Court action arise from incidents that are so closely connected that the Plaintiff ought to have tried all claims in a single action. There is no explanation as to why the Plaintiff failed to do so. The Plaintiff has not reserved his right to institute a separate action in respect of these claims either.

(36) Even if the present claim and the District Court action arise out of two causes of action, there is no bar against the Plaintiff combining the two causes of action. The Civil Procedure Code does not prevent a Plaintiff from combining different causes of action. Most Plaints entertained by Courts disclose multiple causes of action. In fact, the Plaint of the Plaintiff in the current action discloses five causes of action and prays relief for all five. Accordingly, the Plaintiff ought to have tried the first cause of action in the present action, in the previous action filed by the Plaintiff in the District Court.

(37) The learned High Court Judge has approached this issue in a different perspective. The learned Judge has held that the unlawful seizure of the lorry and the subsequent demand of money for its release was intricately connected with the underlying commercial transactions between the Plaintiff and the Defendant. He reasons his deduction on the following facts,

(a) The lorry in question had initially been purchased by the Defendant and the Defendant had 'resold' the same to the Plaintiff on the basis that the Plaintiff would pay the purchase price in 36 installments, for the purpose of distributing Defendant's Cement.

(b) The Plaintiff was obliged to make payment for the lorry in 36 monthly installments. The Plaintiff had alleged that on or about 29.04.2002 they had completely settled all 36 monthly installments and had become the lawful owner and possessor of the lorry. However, according to Plaintiff's own document 'පැ 35' the Defendant had continued to be the registered owner of the said lorry despite the fact.

(c) Subsequent to the alleged unlawful seizure of the lorry, the highly unusual payment of Rs. 800,000/- made to the Defendant by the Plaintiff, solely on the request made by the Defendant.

(d) The failure of the Plaintiff to lodge a complaint regarding the alleged unlawful seizure of its lorry.

(38) The learned High Court Judge, based on the above observations has deduced that the Defendant may in fact have a lien over the lorry for any unpaid sums by the Plaintiff, as claimed by the Defendant. Accordingly, the learned Judge has held that the unlawful seizure of the lorry, as being a part of the larger commercial arrangements between the Parties. The learned Judge observes that the Plaintiff is also aware of this fact based on the fact that the letter of demand, marked 'P11' has been annexed in the present action and the District Court action. Therefore, the judge finds that the issue pertaining to the ownership and possession of the lorry could not be decided independently of the underlying commercial transactions between parties. The learned Judge concludes that all these matters should have been determined in one action, so as to prevent a multiplicity of litigation, as per Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code.

(39) Whether or not the unlawful seizure of the lorry was directly connected with the underlying commercial transactions between the Parties is a question of fact that ought to be determined at Trial. The learned High Court Judge has found that there is sufficient evidence to establish that such a connection exists. I find no defects in the reasoning of the learned Judge. The history of the ownership of the lorry as well as the Plaintiff's behaviour immediately subsequent to the seizure of the lorry is evidence that such a connection exists. Accordingly, the learned Judge has held that all these issues ought to have been tried in one action to prevent further litigation on the same issues as required by Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code.

(40) I find the reasoning of the judge, with respect to the first cause of action of the Plaintiff in the present case to be sound. If the alleged unlawful seizure of the lorry was in fact connected with the underlying commercial transactions between the parties, then the underlying commercial transactions between the Parties would be directly connected with the issue of ownership and possession of the lorry bearing No. 68-3654, which is the "subjects in dispute" in the District Court case No 7275/Spl. Accordingly, it was incumbent upon the Plaintiff to show reasons as to why the two claims, the first for ownership and possession of the lorry, and the latter for recovery of sums of money, were not filed in a single action. In the absence of the same, the learned Judge was entitled to hold that the present action was contrary to Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code as it leads to a multiplicity of litigation.

(41) The Sections of the Civil Procedure Code which relate to Amendment of Pleadings and Claims in Reconvention are all aimed at preventing multiplicity of litigation. It is in the interest of Justice that all claims that can conveniently be disposed of in a single action be tried in a single action. Otherwise, the same facts would have to be established, the same documents would have to be proven, and the same witnesses would have to be led, as has happened in the present instance, in two different courts. Such methods of litigation are undoubtedly an abuse of the process of court and contrary to Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code.

(42) I therefore hold that the present action is contrary to Section 33 of the Civil Procedure Code and an abuse of the process of Court. I find that the Plaintiff's first cause of action in the present action is contrary to S. 33 of the Civil Procedure Code as it relates to the same subjects in dispute as in the District Court Case No 7275/Spl, and the two claims could have been conveniently been tried in the same action. I also affirm the Judgement of the learned High Court Judge that the Plaintiff's first cause of action, although concerning certain commercial transactions between the Parties, is directly connected with the subjects in dispute in the District Court Case No7275 and therefore should have been raised in the said action, to prevent a multiplicity of litigation.

(43) The submissions of both parties at the appeal mainly focused on whether the present action filed by the Plaintiff and the District Court action, relates to the same cause of action or distinct causes of action. The same may be analysed at this stage.

(44) It would be pertinent, at this point to refer to S. 34 of the Civil Procedure Code which reads as follows;

> "(1) Every action shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the action within the jurisdiction of any court.
>
> (2) If a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquishes any portion of, his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished. A person entitled to more than one remedy in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of his remedies; but if he omits (except with the leave of the court obtained before the hearing) to sue for any of such remedies, he shall not afterwards sue for the remedy so omitted.
>
> (3) For the purpose of this Section, an obligation and a collateral security for its performance shall be deemed to constitute but one cause of action."

(45) The purpose of both Section 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code is to prevent multiplicity of litigation as specified in Section 33.

(46) In contrast to Section 33 which Parties are required to follow as far as practicable, Section 34 is to be strictly followed by the Parties. The term "cause of action" is narrower in scope than the term "subjects in dispute". Parties are strictly required to present all claims which they wish to bring before the court, arising out of the same cause of action in a single action.

(47) The definition for the term "cause of action" is set out in Section 5 of the Code. The section states,

> "Cause of action" is the wrong for the prevention or redress of which an action may be brought, and includes the denial of a right, the refusal to fulfill an obligation, the neglect to perform a duty and the infliction of an affirmative injury.

(48) "Cause of action" was defined as follows by Lascelles J. in Samichi v Peiris (1913) 16 N.L.R. 257 at 261,

> "The true 'cause of action,' it seems to me, is the right in virtue of which this claim is made; the foundation of the claim which, in this case, is the right claimed under the assignment. This was the true cause on which the action was founded."

(49) The submission of the Plaintiff, as stated earlier was that the unlawful seizure of the lorry and the demand of payment for its release was a transaction which resulted in two causes of action, the first, for the recovery of the possession of the lorry and the second for the recovery of money given in order to get the lorry released.

(50) The cause of action refers to, the underlying wrong committed by a Party, which gives another party the right or entitlement to seek relief. This construction supports the definition of "cause of action" set out in Section 5 of the Code. Section 5 describes a "cause of action" as the wrong for the prevention or redress of which an action may be brought. This construction is also supported by the words of Section 34. Section 34 speaks of a claim that a plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of a cause of action. Accordingly, it flows that the Plaintiff is entitled to make claims or pray for reliefs upon a cause of action.

(51) In the District Court case, the basis of the action appears to be the unlawful seizure of the lorry owned by the Plaintiff by the Defendant. In the present case, the basis of the first cause of action appears to be the Defendant's demand of money for the release of the lorry, and the subsequent refusal by the Defendant to release the lorry, which followed in sequence to the unlawful seizure of the lorry. The question to be determined is whether these two actions constitute two separate causes of action or constitute a series of steps of one continuing act.

(52) The better view, in my opinion is that these two actions relate to two separate, but closely linked, causes of action. The cause of action in the District Court or the wrong sought to be redressed in the District Court was the unlawful seizure of the lorry by the Defendant on or about 11.09.2003. The cause of action for the present action, or the wrong alleged by the Plaintiff in the present case is the money demanded by the Defendant for the release of the lorry and the subsequent refusal to release the same. It is clear that the second cause of action inevitably flows from the first cause of action. Accordingly, the two causes of action are linked. However, they are two distinct wrongs or two distinct causes of actions that the Plaintiff alleges that the Defendant has committed.

(53) Had the Defendant not demanded payment for the release of the lorry, subsequent to which the Plaintiff paid Rs. 800,000/- to the Defendant, the District Court action to recover the ownership and possession of the lorry would still be maintainable. However, in such circumstances there would be no ground for the present action to arise since no payment of money would have been made to the Defendant by the Plaintiff and thereby no unjust enrichment would have occurred. This in my view indicates that the two claims in question concern two causes of action.

(54) I am of the view that the objective of Section 34 of the Code is to prevent parties from filing separate actions to claim different reliefs in respect of the same cause of action. This has been held in Palaniappa v Saminathan (1913) 17 N.L.R 56 where at page 60, Lord Moulton describing Section 34 declared,

> "It is directed to securing the exhaustion of the relief in respect of a Cause of action, and not to the inclusion in one and the same action of different causes of action, even though they arise from the same transactions."

(55) For example, when a wrong is committed by a Party, the other party could sue for the rectification of such wrong and also for the party injured to be paid compensation for the loss suffered. If the injured Party files an action, praying for rectification of the wrong, but fails to pray for compensation as a relief, then such party cannot bring a separate action alleging the same wrong and praying for compensation for the loss suffered. In this example, since both reliefs are claimed from the same cause of action, or the same wrong that is alleged, Section 34 would be a fetter, in maintaining the subsequent action.

(56) Applying this principle to the facts of the present case, if the Plaintiff in District Court Case No 7275/Spl failed to pray for damages for the loss caused by the unlawful seizure of their lorry, such claim for damages cannot be prayed in the present action. However, the present claim concerns a cause of action closely connected but technically separate to that alleged in the District Court case.

(57) Nonetheless, such technical arguments should not function as an excuse for a Party to divide claims that ought to have been tried together. The mere fact that the two claims relate to two distinct causes of action does not explain the need to institute two separate actions.

(58) The Plaintiff has relied on several decisions to support their contention that, two distinct actions can be maintained from two separate causes of action that flow from the same transaction.

(59) In the case of Allagasamy v. The Kalutara Co., Limited (1911) 14 N.L.R. 262 cited on behalf of the Plaintiff A kangany, sued the second defendant (the superintendent of an estate) in the Court of Requests for " pence money " due to him in respect of a gang of coolies. The defendant pleaded that the coolies had been transferred from plaintiff's gang to another gang, and that therefore no "pence money" was due to the plaintiff. Ultimately a portion of his claim was admitted and paid, and it was recorded that the Plaintiff Kangany was allowed to withdraw his action. The Kangany then brought the subsequent action, against the first defendant company and the second defendant to recover a sum of Rs. 10,000 as damages for the wrongful transfer of the coolies. The defendants took a plea of res judicata but the court held that the action was maintainable.

(60) The position taken up in Allagasamy [supra] could be distinguished from the present case. Middleton, J stated that; [at page 267]

> "There is nothing to show that at the time of the institution of the Court of requests case, the plaintiff was aware, that he could have claimed any other relief than that sought for in that case, and I think, therefore, that under section 207 of the Civil Procedure Code he is not now estopped from claiming the relief demanded in the present action."

In the said case, the Plaintiff could not have maintained both claims concurrently in the same action as he was unaware that he could have claimed any other relief. The position is clearly distinct in the present case since the Plaintiff was aware of all the relevant information to bring the present action, at the time of instituting the first action.

(61) The Plaintiff also relied on the decision in Kandiah v Kandasamy (1967) 73 N.L.R. 105 in support of their contention. In the said case, the first action by the Plaintiff against the Defendant had been to recover his share of profits for the first half-year. The second action filed by the Plaintiff was to recover his share of profits for the second half-year. The final action was filed by the Plaintiff to recover his share of capital of the partnership business. At page 107 T. S. Fernando J. states,

> "The present case was founded on an entirely different cause of action, viz, the refusal or failure to pay back to the plaintiff his share of the capital contributed by him, and section 34 provides no bar to that claim."

The facts of the said case are quite distinct to the present as the causes of action were entirely distinct, and not connected as in the present action.

(62) The Plaintiff has also cited certain judgements, namely, Palaniappa v Saminathan (1913) 17 N.L.R 56 and Fernando v The Village Council of Andiambalama Palatha (1975) 78 N.L.R. 4 which have held that Section 34 of the Code does not require a Plaintiff to include all causes of action arising from the same transaction. I am in agreement with this position. The court, however, had not considered the impact of Section 33 of the Code in any of these cases. In contrast, the learned High Court Judge has specifically relied on Sections 33 and 34 in arriving at his conclusions.

(63) As mentioned earlier, although being two distinct causes of action, the claims are so proximate and closely connected that it is in the interest of Justice that they are tried in the same action. The filing of two separate actions by the Plaintiff is contrary to Section 33 as both those issues could have been framed in a single action, and conveniently been disposed of. If this court were to allow the present action, which appears extremely similar to the previous action instituted by the Plaintiff in the District Court, to proceed the court would be paving the way for abuse of court process.

(64) I find that the Plaintiff's action, although not contrary to Section 34 of the Civil Procedure Code, offends Section 33 of the Code. There is no reason to adjudicate on the arguments put forward by the Parties with regards to the merits of the matter, since the preliminary objection against the present action stands. Accordingly, the Judgement of the learned High Court Judge with regards to the preliminary objection under Sections 33 and 34 of the Civil Procedure Code is affirmed, accordingly the appeal is dismissed.

The Defendant is entitled to the costs of this appeal.

Appeal dismissed

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE L.T.B. DEHIDENIYA
I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE PADAMN SURASENA
I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal under and in terms of Section 5(1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions Act) Act No. 10 of 1996.

Bank of Ceylon
No. 4,
Bank of Ceylon Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

DEFENDANT

SC Appeal No. SC/CHC/23/2008

Case No. HC (Civil) 167/2005 (1)

vs.

AraliyaImpex (Pvt) Ltd.
No. 69, Old Moor Street,
Colombo 12.

PLAINTIFF

AND NOW BETWEEN

AraliyaImpex (Pvt) Ltd.
No. 69, Old Moor Street,
Colombo 12

DEFENDANT – APPELLANT

vs.

Bank of Ceylon
No. 4,
Bank of Ceylon Mawatha,
Colombo 01
PLAINTIFF – RESPONDENT

Before: Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J
Murdu N.B. Fernando PC, J
S. Thurairaja PC, J

Counsel: Lakmini Amaratunga for the Defendant-Appellant

N. Wigneshwaran, Deputy Solicitor General with G.M. Gamage for the Plaintiff-Respondent

Argued on: 6th December, 2021

Decided on: 5th July, 2023

Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J

The Plaint

The plaintiff-respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "respondent bank") had instituted action in the District Court of Colombo to recover money given as an overdraft to the defendant-appellant (hereinafter referred to as the "appellant"). The respondent stated that the appellant had maintained a current account at the Gas Works branch of the respondent bank.

The respondent bank stated that, at the request of the appellant, it had provided an overdraft facility to the appellant on or about the 10th of October, 2000 at a rate of 30% interest per annum.

The respondent bank further stated that, as at 31st of July, 2003 the appellant had an outstanding amount of Rs. 1,829,489.21 and accrued interest of Rs. 1,212,909.98 to be paid to the respondent bank. Hence, by the letter of demand dated 19th of August, 2002 the respondent bank had requested the appellant to pay the outstanding amount along with the interest due.

As the appellant failed to settle the said overdraft facility given to him, an action was instituted by the respondent bank in the District Court of Colombo to recover a sum of Rs. 3,042,398.29/- against the appellant on the 18th of December, 2003.

The Answer

Thereafter, the appellant filed its answer inter alia denying that a cause of action had been accrued to the respondent bank to sue the appellant.

Further, the following preliminary objections were raised in the answer filed by the appellant:

"(a) this Court has no jurisdiction to hear and determine this matter in that, the alleged cause of action falls within the 1st limb of schedule 1 to the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provinces) Act No. 10 of 1996.

(b) the Plaintiff does not have the authority to file this action.

(c) the Plaintiffs purported cause of action is prescribed in law."

The appellant further stated that it does not owe any money to the respondent and that the action should be dismissed.

Request to transfer the case to the Commercial High Court

On the 3rd of August, 2005 the appellant had made an application to the District Court to transfer the case to the Commercial High Court in terms of section 9 of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act, No. 10 of 1996, stating that the District Court has no jurisdiction to hear and determine actions where the monetary value of the action exceeds Rs. 3 million.

Having considered the said application, the learned District Judge allowed the said application and transferred the case to the Commercial High Court.

Proceedings before the Commercial High Court

The trial had commenced before the High Court, by making admissions and raising issues. After the respondent bank raised its issues, the appellant raised the following issues:

"18. As pleaded in paragraph 2 of the Answer, does the Plaintiff have the authority to file this action?

19. Has a cause of action accrued to the Plaintiff to sue the Defendant?

20. Does the Appellant have to pay the sum of money due to the Plaintiff as submitted in the Plaint?

21. Should the Respondent's case be dismissed if one or more or all of the above issues are answered in favour of the Appellant?"

Judgment of the Commercial High Court

After an inter-parte trial, the learned High Court Judge delivered the judgment in favour of the respondent bank and held, inter alia, that in terms of section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance No. 22 of 1871, as amended, the applicable prescription period to recover money lent without a written agreement is three years. Further, it was held that the prescription period is calculated starting from the date of the last payment. Moreover, according to the evidence led in the case, the last payment had been made on the 23rd of April, 2001. Therefore, since the instant case had been filed in the District Court on the 18th of December, 2003 within the stipulated period of three years, this case is not prescribed.

Appeal to the Supreme Court

Being aggrieved by the aforementioned judgment of the High Court, the appellant filed an appeal in the Supreme Court. At the hearing before the Supreme Court, the parties informed court that they would confine their submissions to the following ground of appeal referred to in paragraph (b) of the petition of appeal, which is as follows:

"(b) the learned Judge has not given sufficient thought to question of the action being prescribed in law"

Computation of time for the purpose of considering prescription

An action can be filed for a breach of an agreement/contract, whether the agreement/contract is in writing or not.

In respect of a written agreement, an action shall be filed within six years from the date of the breach of the said written agreement (from the date of the cause of action), in terms of section 6 of the Prescription Ordinance No. 22 of 1971 as amended by Act No. 2 of 1889 [hereinafter referred to as the Prescription Ordinance]. However, in the case of an unwritten agreement, an action should be filed within three years from the breach of the said agreement (from the date of the cause of action), in terms of section 7 of the said Ordinance.

In the instant appeal, it is common ground that the respondent bank had granted the overdraft facility to the appellant without a written agreement. Hence, section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance applies to the instant appeal.

Section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance states;

> "No action shall be maintainable for the recovery of any movable property, rent, or mesne profit, or for any money lent without written security, or for any money paid or expended by the plaintiff on account of the defendant, or for money received by defendant for the use of the plaintiff, or for money due upon an account stated, or upon any unwritten promise, contract, bargain, or agreement, unless such action shall be-commenced within three years from the time after the cause of action shall have arisen." [emphasis added]

Accordingly, the said section imposes a deterrent to institute action after three years from the time the money became due upon an unwritten agreement.

In the instant appeal, the appellant had made the last payment to repay the overdraft on the 23rd of April, 2001. Thereafter, the appellant had failed and/or neglected to pay the money due on the overdraft. Hence, the cause of action arose on the 23rd of April, 2001, which is the date of default in the repayment of the overdraft given to the appellant by the respondent bank.

Further, because the overdraft facility was not granted based on a written agreement, the action ought to have been filed within three years from the 23rd of April, 2001 in terms of section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance. Thus, the respondent bank was required to institute the action on or before the 22nd of April, 2004.

The journal entries maintained by the District Court show that the plaint of the respondent bank was filed in the District Court on the 18th of December, 2003 which is within the three-year period stipulated in section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance.

When the District Court case was taken up in court on the 3rd of August, 2005 the appellant had made an application to the said court to transfer the case to the High Court established under the High Court of the Provinces Act (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996 [hereinafter referred to as the "High Court of the Provinces Act"] in terms of section 9 of the said Act on the basis that the District Court had no jurisdiction to hear and determine cases where the monetary value of the action exceeded Rs. 3 million (which was the applicable monetary limit at that time).

Accordingly, at the request of the appellant, the instant appeal was transferred to the Commercial High Court, and the said court had received the case record on the 3rd of August, 2005.

When the case was taken up for trial before the Commercial High Court, the learned counsel for the appellant raised an objection to the plaint on the basis that the cause of action pleaded in the plaint is prescribed in terms of section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance. The said objection was based on the fact that, the case was transferred to the Commercial High Court after three years from the date of the cause of action alleged in the plaint.

However, after an inter-parte trial, the learned High Court Judge had held that the cause of action pleaded in the plaint filed by the respondent bank was not prescribed in terms of the Prescription Ordinance as the case was filed in the District Court within three years from the date of the cause of action.

Hence, the issue that needs to be considered in the instant appeal is whether the date of institution of the action in the District Court or the date of transfer of the case from the District Court to the Commercial High Court should be taken into consideration in computing the prescription period.

Section 9 of the High Court of the Provinces Act provides for the transfer of cases to the Commercial High Court. It states as follows:

> "Where there is evidence that the value of any action filed in any District Court is one that should have been filed in the High Court established by Article 154P of the Constitution exercising jurisdiction under section 2, the Judge shall record such fact and make order accordingly and thereupon the action shall stand removed to the appropriate Court." [emphasis added]

The phrase "the action shall stand removed to the appropriate Court" in the above section 9 shows that if an action is filed in the District Court which should have been filed in the Commercial High Court, the case stands transferred to the Commercial High Court by operation of law. Further, there is no legal provision in the said Act preventing the filing of an action in the District Court where the cause of action falls within the scope of the High Court of the Provinces Act.

Thus, if a case that falls under the provisions of the said High Court Act is filed in the District Court, the said court cannot reject the plaint on the basis that the plaint has been filed in the wrong court or on the basis that the District Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the plaint.

However, in such an instance, the District Court has no jurisdiction or power to hear and determine the case, including the granting of interim relief. Furthermore, the District Court should transfer such a case to the Commercial High Court in terms of section 7 of the said Act.

Hence, in computing the prescription period, it should be calculated from the date of the alleged cause of action and the institution of the action in the District Court and not from the date on which the case was transferred to the Commercial High Court.

As stated above, the journal entries maintained by the District Court show that the plaint was filed in the District Court on the 18th of December, 2003. As the respondent bank had filed the action in the District Court within the stipulated time under section 7 of the Prescription Ordinance, the cause of action pleaded in the plaint by the respondent bank is not prescribed.

The learned counsel for the appellant cited Hatton National Bank Limited v Helenluc Garments Ltd. and Others [1999] 2 SLR 365 in support of her contention. However, the said judgment has no relevance to the instant appeal, as the said case relates to an overdraft given subject to a mortgage bond furnished as security for the repayment of the money lent by the defendant. Further, in the said case, the cause of action arose on the date of the demand.

Further, the learned counsel for the appellant cited Mudiyanse v Siriya 23 NLR 285, Kuluth v Mohamadu 38 NLR 48 and Amarasekara v Abeygunawardena 56 NLR 361 in support of her submissions.

The above two cases were filed in the District Court, which lacked jurisdiction to hear the said cases and therefore, the plaints were returned to be presented to the proper court by the said court in terms of section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code. However, in the instant appeal, the case was filed in the District Court and transferred to the Commercial High Court in terms of section 9 of the High Court of the Provinces Act.

Furthermore, section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code has no application to a case filed under the said High Court of the Provinces Act. Therefore, the cases cited by the counsel for the appellant have no application to the instant appeal.

Moreover, the learned Deputy Solicitor General cited Merchant Bank of Sri Lanka v Buddhadasa and Another [2002] Bar Association Law Report Vol. IX, Part II, 64 and Seylan Bank Limited v Intertrade Garments (Private) Limited [2005] 1 SLR 80 in support of his submissions. Both of those cases are in respect of the requirement to demand money lent on a written agreement. In the instant appeal, there was no requirement to demand the money as it was not lent on a written contract or agreement, and therefore, there was no request to demand the repayment of that money given and advanced to the appellant. Therefore, the above cases also have no relevance to the instant appeal.

Conclusion

Thus, the following ground of appeal should be answered as follows:

"The learned Judge has not given sufficient thought to question of the action being prescribed in law"

No

In the circumstances, I am of the view that the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court has correctly decided that the cause of action pleaded in the plaint is not prescribed.

Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed with costs. I order a sum of Rs. 100,000 as costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Murdu N.B. Fernando PC, J

I Agree Judge of the Supreme Court

S. Thurairaja PC, J

I Agree Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal under Section 5(1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996 read together with Section 6 thereof, Sections 754(1), 755(3) and 758 of the Civil Procedure Code and Article 128 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC (CHC) Appeal No. 37/2011
Commercial High Court of Colombo
Case No. HC (Civil) 285/2006(1)

Pan Arch Architecture (Pvt) Limited,
19-D, Ocean Tower, Station Road,
Colombo 4.

Plaintiff

vs

(1) Neat Lanka (Pvt) Limited,
47A Prince Street, Colombo 11.

And also at
No. 50 1/11, Colombo Plaza, Wellawatte.

(2) Neat Property Developers (Pvt) Limited,
51, Vipulasena Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

Defendants

And now between

Pan Arch Architecture (Pvt) Limited,
19-D, Ocean Tower, Station Road,
Colombo 4.

Plaintiff – Appellant

vs

(1) Neat Lanka (Pvt) Limited,
47A Prince Street, Colombo 11.

And also at
No. 50 1/11, Colombo Plaza, Wellawatte.

(2) Neat Property Developers (Pvt) Limited,
51, Vipulasena Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

Defendants – Respondents

Before: Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC, J
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J
Arjuna Obeyesekere, J

Counsel: Geoffrey Alagaratnam, PC with Suren Fernando for the Plaintiff – Appellant

Argued on: 29th May 2023

Written Submissions: Tendered on behalf of the Plaintiff – Appellant on 7th June 2023

Decided on: 13th October 2023

Obeyesekere, J

The Plaintiff – Appellant [the Plaintiff] instituted action in the High Court of the Western Province exercising Civil jurisdiction and holden in Colombo [the Commercial High Court] on 7th December 2006 against Neat Lanka (Private) Limited, the 1st Defendant – Respondent [the 1st Defendant] and Neat Property Developers (Private) Limited, the 2nd Defendant – Respondent [the 2nd Defendant], claiming that the Defendants are jointly and severally liable to pay the Plaintiff a sum of Rs. 10,200,000 for the architectural and consultancy services provided by the Plaintiff to the Defendants and seeking to recover the said sum of money together with interest from 28th September 2006. While each of the Defendants filed answer denying liability, the 2nd Defendant preferred a claim in reconvention against the Plaintiff, necessitating the filing of a replication by the Plaintiff denying the said claim.

Admissions and Issues having been raised on behalf of all parties, the case proceeded to trial with the Plaintiff leading the evidence of two witnesses, namely Kumudu Munasinghe, its Managing Director and Lakkana Abeynayake, who had served as the Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant at the time relevant to the impugned transaction. Sanjeeva Senaratne, a director and shareholder of the 1st and 2nd Defendants gave evidence on behalf of the Defendants. On 16th September 2011, the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court entered judgment in favour of the Plaintiff but only against the 1st Defendant.

Aggrieved, the 1st Defendant filed an appeal in this Court against the said judgment. The Plaintiff too filed an appeal complaining that the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court erred when he failed to hold against the 2nd Defendant, as well, in spite of having answered the issues relating to the 2nd Defendant in a manner favourable to the Plaintiff. Both appeals were taken up together for argument on 29th May 2023, on which date the learned President's Counsel for the Defendants informed this Court that he has received instructions from the Defendants that both companies are presently defunct and for that reason, the 1st Defendant is not interested in pursuing with the appeal filed by it and the 2nd Defendant will not participate in the appeal filed by the Plaintiff.

The learned Counsel for the Plaintiff, Geoffrey Alagaratnam, PC informed this Court that he has received instructions to proceed with the appeal of the Plaintiff. Accordingly, this Court proceeded to hear Mr. Alagaratnam, PC, who submitted that while the findings of the Commercial High Court against the 1st Defendant are no longer in issue, the principal issue that is left to be determined is whether the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court erred when he did not hold the 2nd Defendant jointly and severally liable for the payment of the aforesaid sum of money to the Plaintiff.

Background to the transaction

I shall commence by setting out as briefly as possible the background events relating to the transaction that culminated in the filing of action in the Commercial High Court.

The Plaintiff, a limited liability company incorporated under the provisions of the Companies Act, was engaged in the business of architecture, engineering, project management and safety consultancy. According to its Managing Director Munasinghe, discussions had taken place in November and December 2005 with Senaratne, Suminda Perera, who was the other director and shareholder of the 1st Defendant, and Lakkana Abeynayake who did not hold any position in either of the Defendants at that time, relating to the construction of a luxury mixed development project [the Project] on a land situated on Galle Face Terrace, Colombo 3, which land was said to have been owned by the 1st Defendant.

There are three matters that must be noted. The first is that Abeynayake was appointed as the Chief Executive Officer of the '2nd Defendant' by the 1st Defendant with effect from 2nd January 2006 by letter dated 3rd January 2006 signed by Senaratne and Perera [P26]. The second is that the 2nd Defendant was not in existence at this point in time and was incorporated only on 26th January 2006. The third is that the intention of the aforementioned Directors of the 1st Defendant was to incorporate the 2nd Defendant as a special purpose vehicle for the purpose of carrying out the said Project, which meant that the 2nd Defendant too was to be a contracting party. Senaratne confirms this position in his affidavit which served as his evidence-in-chief before the Commercial High Court where he states that, "The 2nd Defendant Company was incorporated to engage in a Project for the development of a land situated in Kollupitiya and for the construction of a condominium building thereon and for the 2nd Defendant to sell or lease condominium units therein to prospective buyers and lessees." With the 2nd Defendant being a shell company with no assets of its own, the Project was to be funded by the 1st Defendant.

Offer and acceptance

Pursuant to the aforementioned discussions and at the invitation of the 1st Defendant, the Plaintiff had submitted its written offer dated 28th December 2005 [P4] for the provision of consultancy services for the said Project, addressed to Suminda Perera, in his capacity as a Director of the 1st Defendant. The said proposal sets out the scope of services to be performed by the Plaintiff, the fee that was payable for the said services and the payment milestones linked to six design stages. P4 had been followed by another letter from the Plaintiff the next day [P5], addressed in the same manner as P4, amending the fee proposed in P4 from 6% to 4%. It is noted that the receipt of P4 and P5 have been acknowledged in writing by P6, to which I shall refer in detail, later.

Although no formal written agreement was executed between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant relating to the provision of services by the Plaintiff for the Project, the acceptance by the 1st Defendant of the offer of the Plaintiff contained in P4 and P5 is borne out by the payment of a sum of Rs. 1,500,000 that the 1st Defendant made as an advance by a cheque dated 5th January 2006 drawn on its account [D5]. While this payment served as a promise from the 1st Defendant to the Plaintiff that payment for the work that was to be carried out by the Plaintiff was to be made by the 1st Defendant, it also demonstrated the intention on the part of the 1st Defendant to contract the services of the Plaintiff for the said Project and create a legal relationship between the parties. The receipt of the said sum of money has been acknowledged by the Plaintiff by an invoice dated 6th January 2006 [P10] issued in favour of "Suminda Perera, Neat Developers (Pvt) Limited" which is not the corporate name of either the 1st or the 2nd Defendant. Be that as it may, by making this payment, and especially in the absence of any written correspondence to the contrary, the 1st Defendant has clearly undertaken to be financially responsible and contractually liable for payment for services that the Plaintiff was to provide in terms of P4, read with P5.

Appointment of the Plaintiff

P4, P5 and the aforementioned payment were followed by letter dated 17th January 2006 [P6] titled, 'Letter of appointment for Consultancy Services for new Luxury Mixed Development Project at No. 27A, Galle Face Terrace, Colombo 3', addressed to the Plaintiff. Although the 2nd Defendant was yet to be incorporated, P6 was on a letter head of the 2nd Defendant and signed by Abeynayake, in his capacity as the Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant.

P6 reads as follows:

> "On behalf of Neat Property Developers (Private) Limited*, I am pleased to appoint your company, Pan Arch Architecture (Private) Limited as the Consultancy Company for the provision of a Consortium service for our prestigious new luxury development project at No. 27A, Galle Face Terrace, Colombo 3,* on the terms and conditions as set out in your letters dated 28th and 29th December 2005 except that the Consortium Fee is 3.5%, as was subsequently agreed between our Directors, Mr. Sanjeeva Senaratne and Mr. Suminda Perera and yourself.
>
> Further, as approved and confirmed by our Directors, Mr. Sanjeeva Senaratne and Mr. Suminda Perera, Neat Lanka (Private) Limited will be responsible for all payments/expenses with regard to the Project*, since both Directors, Mr. Sanjeeva Senaratne and Mr. Suminda Perera are also directors of Neat Lanka (Private) Limited and the project site at No. 27A, Galle Face Terrace, Colombo 3 is also owned by Neat Lanka (Private) Limited.*
>
> We look forward to a successful outcome to this project and a long and happy association with Pan Arch Architecture." [emphasis added]

There are three important matters to be noted with regard to P6. The first is that even though P6 had been written on behalf of the 2nd Defendant, the 2nd Defendant had not been incorporated as at the date of P6. The second is that in between P4 and P6, negotiations had taken place between the 1st Defendant and the Plaintiff which resulted in the consortium fee being reduced by a further 0.5% to 3.5%. The third is that even though the Plaintiff was required to provide the consultancy services to the 2nd Defendant, the 1st Defendant had undertaken the liability to make the payments for the work that was to be carried out by the Plaintiff.

Pre-incorporation contracts

I must at this stage advert to the legality and the consequences of a contract entered into by a company prior to its incorporation, known as pre-incorporation contracts, and thereby place P6 in its proper perspective.

In Gower's Principles of Modern Company Law [by Paul L. Davies and Sarah Worthington, 10th ed., 2016, Sweet & Maxwell] the position in England with regard to pre-incorporation contracts has been laid down in the following manner [pages 111 to 113]:

> "As already noted, these contracts cannot bind the non-existent entity, and the company, once formed, cannot ratify or adopt the contract. Prior to statutory amendments driven by the UK's entry into the EU, the legal position as between the promoter and the third party seemed to depend on the terminology employed. If the contract was entered into by the promoter and signed "for and on behalf of XY Co Ltd" then, according to the early case of Kelner v. Baxter [(1866) L.R. 2 C.P. 174], the promoter would be personally liable. But if, as is much more likely, the promoter signed the proposed name of the company, adding his own to authenticate it (e.g. XY Co Ltd, AB Director) then, according to Newborne v. Sensolid (Great Britain) Ltd., [(1954) 1 Q.B. 45 CA] there was no contract at all. This was hardly satisfactory.
>
> The statutory rule took a clear if rather dramatic stand. The relevant provision is now CA 2006, s. 51, which reads:
>
> > "(1) A contract which purports to be made by or on behalf of a company at a time when the company has not been formed, has effect, subject to any agreement to the contrary, as one made with the person purporting to act for the company or as agent for it, and he is personally liable on the contract accordingly."

The obvious aim of the provision is to increase security of transactions for third parties by avoiding the consequences of the contract with the company being a nullity. The provision imposes contractual liability on the promoter, and applies even if the new company is never formed. To avoid the promoter's personal liability under the statute, the third party must explicitly agree to forego the protection – consent cannot be deduced simply from details of the contract which, interpreted widely, would be inconsistent with the promoter accepting personal liability, such as the promoter signing as agent for the company.

The presence of the statutory provision has had an effect on the courts' perception of the common law in this area. In Phonogram Ltd v. Lane [(1982) 1 Q.B. 938 CA], Oliver LJ said that the "narrow distinction" drawn in Kelner v. Baxter and the Newborne case did not represent the true common law position, which was simply: "does the contract purport to be one which is directly between the supposed principal and the other party, or does it purport to be one between the agent himself – albeit acting for a supposed principal – and the other party?" This question is to be answered by looking at the whole of the contract and not just at the formula used beneath the signature*. If after such an examination the latter is found to be the case, the promoter would be personally liable at common law, no matter how he signed the document.*

On this analysis the difference between s. 51 and the common law is narrowed, but not eliminated. At common law, if the parties intend to contract with the non-existent company, the result will be a nullity and the third party protected only to the extent that the law of restitution provides protection. Under the statute, a contract which purports to be made with the company will trigger the liability of the promoter, unless the third party agrees to give up the protection. In other words, the common law approaches the question of the third party's contractual rights against the promoter as a matter of the parties' intentions*, with no presumption either way, whereas the statute creates a presumption in favour of the promoter being contractually liable. The common law is still important in those cases which fall outside the scope of the statute."* [emphasis added]

In Attygalle and Another v Commercial Bank of Ceylon Ltd. [(2002) 1 Sri LR 176], the Court of Appeal observed that the Companies Act, No. 17 of 1982 does not have a provision similar to Section 36(c) of the Companies Act of England 1975 which was in force at that time and which was similar to Section 51 referred to earlier. In Company Law by Kanag-Isvaran and Wijayawardana [2014, at page 79], it has been pointed out that prior to the enactment of the present Companies Act in 2007, and in the absence of any provisions in the Companies Act, No. 17 of 1982, " … it was the common law that governed pre-incorporation contracts in Sri Lanka. The common law, as it stood, that governed pre-incorporation contracts was simple. A company had no capacity to contract before its incorporation, for one cannot act before one comes into existence. This was based on the principle that an act which cannot be done by a non-existent principal, cannot be done through an agent. It was also a settled principle in common law that after a company was incorporated it could not ratify pre-incorporation contracts, for the reason that a contract purported to be made by a company which did not exist was considered a nullity in the eyes of the law. "

The issue that had arisen in Kelner v Baxter (supra) and Newborne v Sensolid (Great Britain) Ltd. (supra), was however laid to rest by some legislative wizardry in the form of Sections 23 to 25 of the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, of which Sections 23 and 24 are re-produced below:

Section 23

"(1) For the purpose of this section and sections 24 and 25 of this Act, the expression "pre-incorporation contract" means –

(a) a contract purported to have been entered into by a company before its incorporation; or

(b) a contract entered into by a person on behalf of a company before and in contemplation of its incorporation

(2) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any law, a pre-incorporation contract may be ratified within such period as may be specified in the contract or if no such period is specified, within a reasonable time after the incorporation of such company, in the name of which or on behalf of which it has been entered into.

(3) A pre-incorporation contract that is ratified under subsection (2), shall be as valid and enforceable as if the company had been a party to the contract at the time it was entered into.

(4) A pre-incorporation contract may be ratified by a company in the same manner as a contract may be entered into on behalf of a company under section 19."

Section 24

"(1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any law, in a pre-incorporation contract, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the contract, there shall be an implied warranty by the person who purports to enter into such contract in the name of or on behalf of the company –

(a) that the company will be incorporated within such period as may be specified in the contract, or if no period is specified, within a reasonable time after the making of the contract; and

(b) that the company will ratify the contract within such period as may be specified in the contract or if no period is specified, within a reasonable time after the incorporation of such company.

(2) The amount of damages recoverable in an action for breach of an implied warranty referred to in subsection (1), shall be the same as the amount of damages that may be recoverable in an action against the company for damages for breach by the company of the unperformed obligations under the contract, if the contract had been ratified by the company.

(3) Where after its incorporation, a company enters into a contract in the same terms as or in substitution for, a pre-incorporation contract (not being a contract ratified by the company under section 23), the liability of a person under subsection (1) shall be discharged."

Thus, had this transaction taken place after the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007 was enacted, the Plaintiff could have resorted to the above provisions in pursuing its legal rights.

Continued involvement of the 1st Defendant

The evidence of Abeynayake was that P6 had been prepared on the instructions of Senaratne and Perera. With the 2nd Defendant not having been incorporated by the time P6 was written, I must emphasise the fact that P6 to my mind, served as much more than a mere comfort letter to the Plaintiff that payment would be made by the 1st Defendant, especially since the 2nd Defendant was being incorporated for the specific purpose of carrying out the Project and did not possess the necessary financial resources at the beginning of the Project to meet the advance payment of 10% which was due upon the Plaintiff undertaking the Project. The fact that the 2nd Defendant did not have any assets or for that matter even a bank account after its incorporation has been confirmed by Abeynayake in his evidence, thus demonstrating that it is the 1st Defendant who had the financial strength to execute the Project and that the 1st Defendant was very much an integral part of the Project, and was to continue as a contracting party to the transaction, in spite of the fact that the services were to be provided to the 2nd Defendant. This is further confirmed by the email dated 24th January 2006 [P9], by which the Plaintiff had forwarded the Preliminary Construction Cost Estimate to Abeynayake, with the 1st Defendant being referred to as the Client.

Entry of the 2nd Defendant

The 2nd Defendant was incorporated two days after P9 – i.e., on 26th January 2006 [P8a], with Senaratne and Perera being the only shareholders and directors of the 2nd Defendant. While the correspondence tendered do not indicate as to what transpired between the parties immediately thereafter, by letter dated 24th February 2006 [P12] addressed to Abeynayake in his capacity as Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant, the Plaintiff had sought the payment of a sum of Rs. 3,400,000 being the balance of the advance payment and a further Rs. 9,800,000 being the percentage due for the schematic design which the Plaintiff claims it had completed for the 2nd Defendant after its incorporation. The fact that the Plaintiff called for payment from the 2nd Defendant demonstrates that in its mind, the 2nd Defendant too was a contracting party and an integral part of the transaction.

This is confirmed by the reply to P12 which is a letter dated 2nd March 2006 [P13] sent by Abeynayake in his capacity as Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant on a letter head of the 2nd Defendant, where, under the title of "Consultancy Fees for new luxury mixed development project at No. 27A, Galle Face Terrace, Colombo 3," he has stated as follows:

> "We have received your letter dated 24th February 2006 setting out the payments due for the advance and the schematic stage of design.
>
> Our directors, Mr. Sanjeeva Senaratne and Mr. Suminda Perera have approved and agreed to release the balance money from Neat Lanka (Pvt) Limited, as soon as possible, since the payments due are in order.*
>
> Thank you for sending me a copy of the schematic design drawings." [emphasis added]

P13, quite apart from not contesting the fact that services have been and are being performed by the Plaintiff for the 2nd Defendant and that payments are due, contains a promise on the part of the 2nd Defendant that the payments would be made by the 1st Defendant, thus ensuring the continued presence of the 1st Defendant in the transaction. I must perhaps emphasise that the transaction that had developed since December 2005 and which was still evolving in the months of January and February 2006, saw the involvement of both Defendants, with work being carried out by the Plaintiff initially at the request of the 1st Defendant and after its incorporation, for the 2nd Defendant, with the 2nd Defendant acknowledging that the work has been carried out to their satisfaction, and the 1st Defendant taking financial responsibility for the said work, thus giving rise to a tri-partite transaction. One cannot argue that the 2nd Defendant stands removed from the relationship between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant as, had that been the case, there need not have been any involvement from the 2nd Defendant at all and, it certainly should not have made any representations as to the contract terms, like those that one sees from P13.

Further payments by the 1st Defendant

Pursuant to P13, the 1st Defendant had made two further payments of Rs. 1,500,000 by cheque drawn on its account in favour of the Plaintiff, the first being on 20th March 2006 [D8] and the second being on 27th March 2006 [D9]. The two payment vouchers [D6 and D7] prepared by the 1st Defendant however state that the monies are being given by way of a loan to the 2nd Defendant. By stating so, the 1st Defendant has confirmed that the work is being carried out for the 2nd Defendant. The invoices for these two payments [P14 and P15] have been issued by the Plaintiff in favour of the 2nd Defendant, thus confirming the intention of the Plaintiff to create a legal relationship with the 2nd Defendant, as well.

By letter dated 8th May 2006 [P16] addressed to Senaratne in his capacity as Director of the 2nd Defendant, the Plaintiff had requested that the balance sum of Rs. 10,200,000 be paid. It appears that the relationship between the parties had deteriorated by this time, probably due to the failure to make payment for the work already done. Two reminders to P16, both addressed to the same person as in P16, had been sent to the 2nd Defendant on 31st May 2006 [P17] and 25th July 2006 [P18], with the receipt of both letters having been acknowledged by the 1st Defendant. In between P17 and P18, i.e., on 14th June 2006, Abeynayake had resigned as Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant. P17 and P18 have been followed by letters of demand dated 28th September 2006 to both the 1st Defendant [P20] and the 2nd Defendant [P21]. As the Defendants had failed to respond to any of the aforementioned letters P16, P17, P18, P20 and P21 and pay the money claimed therein, action had been instituted on 7th December 2006, on the basis that the 1st and the 2nd Defendants are jointly and severally liable for the payment of the balance sum for the work performed by the Plaintiff.

Relationship between the parties – vide the pleadings

The question whether it is the 1st or the 2nd Defendant that is liable or whether both Defendants are liable depends on the relationship that developed between the parties, the promises they made to each other and the intention of each party that can be gathered from the evidence, both oral and documentary.

In paragraph 12 of its plaint, the Plaintiff had stated that, "at all times material the Defendants are jointly and severally liable to the Plaintiff on the written agreement entered into between the parties, especially as the contract was between the 2nd Defendant and the Plaintiff and the holding out of the 1st Defendant as being also liable for payments was for the convenience of the 2nd Defendant and in any case in addition to the liability of the 1st Defendant." [emphasis added]

Thus, the pleaded position of the Plaintiff was that the agreement is not only with the 2nd Defendant but with the 1st Defendant as well, as the 1st Defendant had undertaken the obligation of making payment for the services carried out by the Plaintiff, thus making both Defendants liable to the Plaintiff, jointly and severally. It must be stated that the Plaintiff did not claim that part of the contract had been novated in favour of the 2nd Defendant.

The position taken up by the 1st Defendant in its answer was of course a complete denial of liability with its position being that it only provided the necessary finances to the 2nd Defendant to enable the 2nd Defendant to make the necessary payments to the Plaintiff. The 1st Defendant alleged that Abeynayake, who had worked with Munasinghe on another project prior to assuming office as Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant, had colluded with the Plaintiff and committed the 2nd Defendant to certain obligations without the knowledge of the 1st Defendant. While a similar position has been taken by the 2nd Defendant in its answer, a claim in reconvention had also been made by the 2nd Defendant for the refund of the monies paid so far on the basis that the schematic drawings prepared by the Plaintiff, for which payment was being claimed by the Plaintiff, had not been accepted by the Defendants. The allegation of collusion has been denied by the Plaintiff in its replication, and remained unsubstantiated during the trial.

The principal issues between the parties

There are two principal issues that were raised at the trial by all parties which remains to be answered by this Court. The first is, was there an agreement between the 1st and/or 2nd Defendant/s on the one hand, and the Plaintiff, on the other?

In Noorbhai v Karuppan Chetty [27 NLR 325] it was held by the Privy Council that "… the very elementary proposition of law [is] that a contract is concluded when in the mind of each contracting party there is a consensus ad idem ..."

Weeramantry in "The Law of Contracts" [1967, Volume I, paragraph 84] has pointed out that the constituent elements of a contract can be reduced to the following basic essentials:

(a) Agreement between parties;

(b) Actual or presumed intention to create a legal obligation;

(c) Due observance of prescribed forms or modes of agreement, if any;

(d) Legality and possibility of the object of the agreement;

(e) Capacity of parties to contract.

Weeramantry goes on to state as follows:

> "An agreement is a manifestation of mutual assent by two or more persons to one another. In simpler terms, therefore, an agreement would mean a state of mental harmony regarding a given matter between two persons, as gathered from their own words or deeds. Contract generally connotes among other things an actual or notional meeting of minds, for in general without such a meeting of minds a contract does not come into being. Agreement on the other hand, primarily denotes such meeting. [paragraph 86]

The view is commonly held that in addition to the other requisites for the formation of a valid contract there should also be present, on the part of the parties, an intention to enter into legal relations*. It follows from this view that this requirement must be superadded to the fact of agreement if the agreement is to be productive of legal results.* [paragraph 158; emphasis added]

Whether two minds are in actual or real agreement not even the parties themselves can say for no man can fathom the thoughts of another; and in the realm of actual intention no man can speak for anyone but himself. The law consequently views the question of intention objectively*. Unable to plumb the depths of intention, it proceeds upon the external manifestations of such intention, whether by words or by deeds. From these external manifestations the law ascertains the presumed or notional intentions of parties.* [paragraph 86; emphasis added]

Agreement, which is so important to the formation of contract, depends in its turn on the intention of the contracting parties. The inner or true intention of a person is, however, not generally capable of ascertainment with any degree of assurance by another, if indeed it is capable of ascertainment at all. The law therefore always adopts an objective test in determining the intention of the parties to a contract*, and is guided by their manifestations of intention whether by words or by acts. From such words or acts it draws its inferences regarding intention on the basis of a reasonable person's assessment of them in the context in which they were uttered or performed.* [paragraph 104; emphasis added]

It would therefore be more correct to say that in all cases where the law requires an actual intention to enter into legal relations, what is required is either an intention which actually exists or one which, having regard to all surrounding circumstances, it will by a fiction deem to exist in the minds of the parties*."* [paragraph 158; emphasis added]

The second issue that needs to be answered in this appeal is whether the 1st and 2nd Defendants are jointly and severally liable towards the Plaintiff. Several liability arises when two or more persons make separate promises to another, whether by the same instrument or by different instruments. On the other hand, joint liability arises when two or more persons jointly promise to do the same thing, with their being only one obligation. Joint and several liability arises when two or more persons jointly promise to do the same thing and also severally make separate promises to do the same thing.

Relationship between the parties – vide the evidence

Munasinghe, having referred to the background facts that I have already referred to, has stated as follows in his affidavit which served as his evidence-in-chief:

a) Upon its incorporation, the 2nd Defendant acted on the offer reflected in P4 and proceeded with the Project subject to the terms and conditions specified in P4 and P5;

b) The 1st Defendant undertook the financial responsibility for the payments – vide P6 and P13 – although the agreement was formally to be entered into with the 2nd Defendant;

c) The 1st and 2nd Defendants agreed to be jointly and severally liable to the Plaintiff in respect of all monies due to the Plaintiff.

In cross examination, Munasinghe stated as follows:

a) The initial negotiations were with the 1st Defendant which was followed by an offer of services [P4 and P5] to the 1st Defendant;

b) The 2nd Defendant came into the transaction in addition to the 1st Defendant, as the 1st Defendant wanted a separate company for the project;

c) Accordingly, the 2nd Defendant was incorporated for the execution and implementation of the Project, as admitted by Senaratne in his affidavit;

d) After its incorporation, the Plaintiff corresponded with the 2nd Defendant as it was the intention of all parties that the 2nd Defendant too would be a contracting party. Accordingly, there is an agreement between the 2nd Defendant and the Plaintiff;

e) The work was carried out by the Plaintiff at the request of the 1st Defendant for the 2nd Defendant;

f) By making three payments to the Plaintiff, the 1st Defendant has accepted the terms and conditions of the offer that the Plaintiff had made to the 1st Defendant by P4 and P5;

g) The receipts for the payments however were issued in favour of the 2nd Defendant;

h) Even though there was no written agreement with the 1st Defendant, the 1st Defendant was nonetheless liable because it is the 1st Defendant who initiated the discussions, had negotiations with the Plaintiff, extended the promises and acted upon such promises by making the payments.

Viewed objectively, it is evident from the oral and documentary evidence that what had emerged was an agreement between the 1st and 2nd Defendants on the one side, and the Plaintiff on the other, thus giving credence to the position taken up by the Plaintiff that both Defendants are jointly and severally liable to the Plaintiff.

Relationship between the parties – vide the evidence of Senaratne

It would perhaps be relevant to refer to the affidavit of Senaratne at this stage. I must say at the outset that most of the matters averred in the said affidavit, especially as to the discussions that took place during February to April 2006 between the directors of the 1st and 2nd Defendants and the Plaintiff and what transpired at such discussions were not suggested to Munasinghe in cross examination, thereby reducing the evidentiary value of Senaratne's affidavit.

The fact that the 2nd Defendant was incorporated for the sole purpose of the Project is made clear by Senaratne's statement that, "in the month of December 2005, steps were taken to incorporate the 2nd Defendant to engage in the development of this land by constructing a Condominium Building thereon and selling or leasing Condominium units therein to prospective buyers and lessees."

I am of the view that the transaction that took place between the parties must be viewed from the perspective of the above explanation of Senaratne. When a company already in existence is keen to commence a new project and takes on the role of the promoter, an option that is open to the promoter of the new project would be to incorporate a separate corporate entity with limited liability for that project, thus making the newly formed entity a special purpose vehicle. Quite apart from separating or isolating the entity to be formed from the existing promoter entity for commercial and financial reasons, and gaining the advantage that a limited liability company with a separate legal personality has to offer, considerations of tax benefits and fiscal concessions for entities engaging in specific kinds of activity too demand that the activity relating to the new project be kept separate.

However, on the other side of the table is an entity – the Plaintiff in this case – who is entering into the transaction on the financial strength of the already existing promoter company and which therefore seeks some form of comfort from the promoter in order to ensure that payments are made for the services provided. It is therefore important that these transactions are structured properly with the rights and liabilities of each party correctly identified. Unfortunately, in this appeal, that has not been done, with the result that:

(a) the evidence, similar to pieces of a jigsaw have to be put together by Court to form the complete picture and determine the intention of the parties; and

(b) for reasons to which I have already adverted to and shall advert, both Defendants have exposed themselves to liability.

In his affidavit, Senaratne, for the first time stated as follows:

(a) P4 and P5 were unsolicited proposals;

(b) The parties were only having preliminary discussions to explore the possibility of the 2nd Defendant employing the Plaintiff as architect for the Project;

(c) There were no dealings whatsoever between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant;

(d) The Plaintiff did not submit a detailed Project proposal acceptable to the 2nd Defendant;

(e) No firm contract was entered into between the Plaintiff and the 2nd Defendant for the employment of the Plaintiff as the architect.

I must say that the above, quite apart from not being suggested to Munasinghe during cross examination, was contrary to the documentary and oral evidence that the Plaintiff had already placed before the Commercial High Court.

Senaratne has stated further that:

> "We advised the Plaintiff that in the event the Plaintiff company being in fact employed as Architect, the related contract would be between the Plaintiff and the 2nd Defendant which was then under incorporation and would not be between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant as the 2nd Defendant was to be responsible for all aspects of the Project and the 1st Defendant was unconnected with the Project and was engaged in an entirely different field of business."
>
> "Although the Plaintiff and the 2nd Defendant had discussions regarding the 2nd Defendant employing the Plaintiff as architect*, no firm agreement or contract was entered into by which the 2nd Defendant in fact employed the services of the Plaintiff as architect. "* [emphasis added]

Although Senaratne took great pains to explain that the 1st Defendant had no liability towards the Plaintiff, he was confronted by the fact that not only had an assurance of payment been made by the 2nd Defendant on behalf of the 1st Defendant but that payments had in fact been made by the 1st Defendant. Even if his explanation that, "as the 2nd Defendant was pending incorporation at that stage, the payment was lent and advanced to the 2nd Defendant by the 1st Defendant and the cheque in payment was issued by the 1st Defendant" could be accepted for the first payment in January 2006, it cannot be accepted for the balance two payments as the 2nd Defendant had been incorporated by then. Thus, in my mind, the 1st Defendant had contractually bound itself to the Plaintiff by making all three payments.

Referring to the payments made to the Plaintiff, Senaratne has stated as follows:

> "The payments aggregating Rs. 4.5 million made by the 2nd Defendant to the Plaintiff were by way of an advance payment to cover the cost of preliminary work said to have been done by the Plaintiff such as the initial project appraisal and the cost of preliminary studies on the obtaining of the necessary approvals from the Urban Development Authority and the Colombo Municipal Council and liaising with these two authorities and the checking of the electricity, water and sewerage connections etc. which were to be carried out by the Plaintiff."
>
> "No agreement was reached for the appointment of the Plaintiff as the architect and no agreement was reached as to the fees that were payable to the Plaintiff other than the aforesaid Agreement for the 2nd Defendant to pay the Plaintiff a sum of Rs. 4.5 million to cover the cost of preliminary work said to have been done by the Plaintiff." [emphasis added]

It is clear to me that Senaratne was blowing hot and cold. On the one hand, he states that there was no agreement at all with the 2nd Defendant and on the other he admits that payment was made to cover the cost of preliminary work carried out by the Plaintiff but adds a rider by saying that the work was said to have been done by the Plaintiff. None of these explanations were made at the time payment was demanded in writing nor were these matters suggested to Munasinghe during cross examination.

Failure to respond to business correspondence

Mr. Alagaratnam, PC has invited this Court to draw an adverse inference against the 2nd Defendant for its failure to respond or deny the contents of the letter of demand [P21] or for that matter, most of the other letters sent, although the receipt of such letters was admitted by Senaratne.

In The Colombo Electric Tramways and Lighting Co. Ltd v Pereira [25 NLR 193 at page 195], Jayawardena, A. J, quoted with approval the following dicta of Lord Esher in Wiedeman v Walpole [(1891) 2 Q. B. 534], which has been cited in many later cases:

> "Now there are cases – business and mercantile cases – in which the Courts have taken notice that, in the ordinary course of business, if one man of business states in a letter to another that he has agreed to do certain things, the person who receives that letter must answer it, if he means to dispute the fact that he did so agree. So, where merchants are in dispute one with the other in the course of carrying on some business negotiations, and one writes to the other, "but you promised me that you would do this or that," if the other does not answer that letter, but proceeds with the negotiations, he must be taken to admit the truth of the statement."

Dias, J in Saravanamuttu v De Mel [49 NLR 529 at page 542] held that, "In business matters, if a person states in a letter to another that a certain state of facts exists, the person to whom the letter is addressed must reply if he does not agree with or means to dispute the assertions. Of course there are exceptions to this rule. For example, failure to reply to mere begging letters when the circumstances show that there was no necessity for the recipient of the letter to reply can give rise to no adverse inference against the recipient."

Having considered inter alia the above cases, my brother, Justice Samayawardhena has stated as follows in Disanayaka Mudiyanselage Chandrapala Meegahaarawa v Disanayaka Mudiyanselage Samaraweera Meegahaarawa [SC Appeal No. 112/2018; SC minutes of 21st May 2021]:

"However, I must add that although it is a general principle that failure to answer a business letter amounts to an admission of the contents therein, this is not an absolute principle of law. In other words, failure to reply to a business letter alone cannot decide the whole case. It is one factor which can be taken into account along with other factors in determining whether the Plaintiff has proved his case. Otherwise, when it is established that the formal demand, which is a sine qua non for the institution of an action, was not replied, Judgment can ipso facto be entered for the Plaintiff. That cannot be done. Therefore, although failure to reply to a business letter or a letter of demand is a circumstance which can be held against the Defendant, it cannot by and of itself prove the Plaintiff's case. The impact of such failure to reply will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case."

I am in agreement with Samayawardhena, J and wish to reiterate that the failure to respond to a business letter must not be looked at in isolation of the other facts and that its impact would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. Having said so, I am in agreement with the learned President's Counsel that this Court is certainly entitled to draw an inference against both Defendants arising from their failure to deny the existence of a contract with the Plaintiff to provide consultancy services upon receipt of the several letters referred to earlier. I am therefore of the view that the Defendants cannot deny that the Plaintiff in fact provided the relevant services, thus requiring this Court to consider whether the Defendants are jointly and severally liable to make payment for the said services.

Judgment of the Commercial High Court

The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court, having taken into consideration the following circumstances of this case, concluded that the 1st Defendant is the alter ego of the 2nd Defendant and thereby the 1st Defendant is liable to the Plaintiff:

(a) The initial discussions were with the 1st Defendant;

(b) The invitation to submit bids was extended by the 1st Defendant;

(c) The directors and shareholders of both the 1st and the 2nd Defendant are identical;

(d) The land on which the Project was to be implemented belonged to the 1st Defendant;

(e) P6 was prepared by Abeynayake in consultation with the Directors of the 1st Defendant who later became the shareholders of the 2nd Defendant and took up appointment as directors of the 2nd Defendant;

(f) At the time P6 was written, the 2nd Defendant was yet to be incorporated and the acceptance of P4 and P5 by Abeynayake who had been appointed by the 1st Defendant as the Chief Executive Officer of the company that was to be incorporated is binding on the 1st Defendant;

(g) By P6, it was represented to the Plaintiff that the payment obligation has been undertaken by the 1st Defendant which was the only existing entity at that time and the payments were in fact made by the 1st Defendant, even after the incorporation of the 2nd Defendant.

I must add to the above list, the fact that, (a) the negotiations prior to and post P4 and P5 were with the 1st Defendant; (b) P17 and P18 by which payments were demanded from the 2nd Defendant were acknowledged by the 1st Defendant.

Lifting of the corporate veil

The learned President's Counsel for the Plaintiff did not seek to argue before us that the 2nd Defendant would be liable simply in view of the above conclusion of the Commercial High Court, and hence, the necessity for me to consider if the said conclusion is correct does not arise. I must however state the obvious. A limited liability company is a separate legal entity, has an existence of its own and is organised to do business in its own right. Each such entity has legal rights and liabilities distinct from its shareholders and the corporate veil between them would not be disturbed lightly.

Of course, there are circumstances where the corporate form will be disregarded and the corporate veil will be pierced to hold individual officers or shareholders personally liable for the acts of the corporate. In 'Gower's Principles of Modern Company Law' [supra; at page 198], the authors, having stated that, "When analysing the judicial decisions on lifting the veil, it is crucial to distinguish between those situations where the court is applying the terms of a contract (other than legislation relating to companies) or, less often, a contract, from those where, as a matter of common law, the veil is lifted. The reason is that the justification for lifting the veil in the former group of cases is to be found in the wording of the statute or the contract," proceeded to state as follows [at pages 205 and 206]:

> "The doctrine of lifting the veil plays a small role in British company law, once one moves outside the area of particular contracts or statutes. Even where the case for applying the doctrine may seem strong, as in the under capitalised one-person company, which may or may not be part of a larger corporate group, the courts are unlikely to do so. As Staughton LJ remarked in Atlas Maritime Co SA v Avalon Maritime Ltd, The Coral Rose [1991] 4 All ER 769 at 779:
>
> > "The creation or purchase of a subsidiary company with minimal liability, which will operate with the parent's funds and on the parent's directions but not expose the parent to liability, may not seem to some the most honest way of trading. But it is extremely common in the international shipping industry and perhaps elsewhere. To hold that it creates an agency relationship between the subsidiary and the parent would be revolutionary doctrine."

The above passage from Gower and Davies, albeit from the 8th edition, has been quoted by Saleem Marsoof, PC, J in DFCC Bank v Weliwita Don Kushmitha Mudith Perera [SC Appeal No. 150/2010 – SC minutes of 25th March 2014]. Merely because one company is a parent and another is its subsidiary does not mean that their rights and liabilities – and their fates – are inextricably intertwined in law. And, to introduce a wide and easily accessible route, via which the distinctness in corporate personalities between the parent and the subsidiary can be flouted, would be to shake the very foundations of company law. This does not mean, however, that by virtue of being separate corporate entities, an impassable gulf exists between the parent and the subsidiary. In exceptional circumstances, our Courts are indeed empowered to lift and/or pierce the veil of incorporation, and have done so in the past, though of course cautiously. It bears repeating therefore that it would be a rare occasion indeed for the veil to be lifted and/or pierced.

The factual circumstances – revisited

While reiterating the aforementioned factual matters relied upon by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court as to why the 1st Defendant is liable to the Plaintiff, the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioner submitted that the 2nd Defendant too must be held liable for the reason that (a) the work was to be performed for the 2nd Defendant; (b) the contract was for the benefit of the 2nd Defendant; (c) the 2nd Defendant too has extended promises to the Plaintiff; and (d) therefore the contract was not only with the 1st Defendant but with the 2nd Defendant, as well. In other words, his position was that there was a clear intention on the part of all parties to create legal relations in respect of the Project which gave rise to a contract where both Defendants are jointly and severally liable to the Plaintiff.

It would be well at this stage to recapitulate the factual circumstances in order to decide whether there existed an agreement with the 1st and 2nd Defendants on the one hand, and the Plaintiff on the other. The starting point of course would be the initial discussions held in December 2005 between the Plaintiff and the 1st Defendant, with the 1st Defendant being represented by its two directors and shareholders, namely Senaratne and Perera, and Abeynayake who became the Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant a few days later.

The discussions were followed by the initial proposal of the Plaintiff [P4 and P5] made to the 1st Defendant. In my view, P4 and P5 fortify the position of the Plaintiff that they had discussions with the 1st Defendant and were invited to submit its proposal. This is followed by the 1st Defendant making the first payment of Rs. 1,500,000 [D5], which was prior to the incorporation of the 2nd Defendant. Thus, the cumulative effect of the above is the intention of the 1st Defendant to enter into an agreement with the Plaintiff for the provision of consultancy services for the Project.

The 'entry' of the 2nd Defendant to the transaction takes place on 6th January 2006 by P6. Although not incorporated as at that date, P6, which according to Abeynayake was prepared in consultation with Senaratne and Perera, is signed by Abeynayake on behalf of the 2nd Defendant and not only refers to and accepts P4 and P5 but seeks to appoint the Plaintiff as the Consultant for the provision of a Consortium service for the Project on the terms and conditions set out in P4 and P5 and provides a specific assurance that payments would be made by the 1st Defendant, with a payment of Rs. 1,500,000 being made almost simultaneously. While P6 does not make the 2nd Defendant liable for the reason that the 2nd Defendant was not incorporated as at that date, it certainly gives context to the intention of the parties to have the 2nd Defendant involved in the entire transaction.

The next document after P6 is P9 dated 24th January 2006, by which the Plaintiff forwarded the Preliminary Construction Cost Estimate to Abeynayake, with the 1st Defendant being referred to as the client. The incorporation of the 2nd Defendant followed two days thereafter on 26th January 2006.

The next two letters are crucial. The first is letter dated 24th February 2006 [P12] addressed to Abeynayake in his capacity as the Chief Executive Officer of the 2nd Defendant. By P12, the Plaintiff requested the 2nd Defendant to pay a sum of Rs. 3,400,000, which was the balance sum of money outstanding on the advance payment of 10%. Thus, by P12, the Plaintiff acknowledged the presence and involvement of the 2nd Defendant in the transaction. What followed thereafter – P13 – cements the contractual involvement of the 2nd Defendant for the reason that the 2nd Defendant not only confirmed that the payments are in order but also stated that "…our directors, Mr. Sanjeeva Senaratne and Mr. Suminda Perera have approved and agreed to release the balance money from Neat Lanka (Pvt) Limited*, as soon as possible...*". Thus, P13 confirms the position of the Plaintiff that there existed an agreement between the parties with both Defendants promising to do the same thing.

Pursuant to P13, the 1st Defendant continued to make two further payments by cheques drawn on its account [D8 on 20th March 2006 and D9 on 27th March 2006], even though the 2nd Defendant had been incorporated by then and payments were called from the 2nd Defendant. The explanation of Senaratne was that even though it is the 1st Defendant that made the payments, it was only a loan made to the 2nd Defendant. While this confirms that the services were being performed for the 2nd Defendant, it must be noted that the payments were made directly by the 1st Defendant to the Plaintiff and not through the 2nd Defendant. Thus, the position is that the work was carried out for the 2nd Defendant, with the invoices and receipts issued to the 2nd Defendant and for payments to be made by the 1st Defendant.

Conclusion

Based on the above discussion, it is clear to me that both the 1st Defendant and the 2nd Defendant have been present on one side of the table and made separate promises to the Plaintiff but with the same objective – i.e., to contract the Plaintiff to provide consultancy services for the Project. Adopting an objective test, the promises the Defendants had made to the Plaintiff through the entire course of the transaction point to the two of them acting together. This being so, the liability must surely fall on both of them, not just on the 1st Defendant.

The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court has appreciated the fact that the evidence was sufficient to hold the 1st Defendant liable. It appears from the answers given by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court to the issues raised by both parties that he was of the view that the 2nd Defendant too is liable. This is borne out by the answers given to Issue Nos. 3, 4, 9 and 10 raised by the Plaintiff and issue No. 19 raised by the Defendants, as set out below.

Issue No. 3 – Was there a written agreement between the 1st and the 2nd Defendants and the Plaintiff? – P6 න් P13 න් හා ගෙවීම් කිරීමෙන් ගිවිසුම්ගත පැවැත්ම සංස්ථාපනය වේ.

Issue No.4 – Are the 1st and 2nd Defendants liable jointly and severally under the said Agreement? පෙනි යන ගිවිසුම අනුව මුදල් ගෙවීමේ වගකීම 1 වන විත්තිකරු වෙතය. ඒ අනුව 1 විත්තිය වග කිව යුතුය.

Issue No. 9 – Has a cause of action arisen to the Plaintiff to sue the Defendants jointly and severally for the recovery of Rs. 10,200,000? ඔව්. නඩු පැවරීමට නඩු නිමිත්තක් පැනනැගී ඇත. ගෙවීමේ වගකීම 1 විත්තිය වෙතය.

Issue No. 10 – If one or more of the above issues are answered in favour of the Plaintiff, is the Plaintiff entitled to the relief prayed for? ඔව්. ගිවිසුම්ගත බැඳීම් අනුව එය ගෙවීමට බැඳෙන්නේ 1 විත්තිය වේ.

Issue No. 19 – Did the Plaintiff and the 2nd Defendant not enter into the purported contract claimed by the Plaintiff? ගිවිසුමකට ඇතලු වූ බව සාක්ෂි අනුව පෙනේ.

However, the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court has failed to undertake a closer look at the liability of the 2nd Defendant and appears to have overlooked the fact that the 2nd Defendant is liable. It is on this point alone that the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court has erred in an otherwise correct and exhaustively analysed judgment.

Taking into consideration the totality of the above circumstances, I am of the following view:

(a) The findings of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court in respect of the 1st Defendant are correct and therefore are affirmed;

(b) The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court erred when he failed to consider that the 2nd Defendant too has made promises to the Plaintiff and that the correspondence establish that the 2nd Defendant and the Plaintiff had an intention to create legal relations in respect of the work performed by the Plaintiff in respect of the Project, and the 2nd Defendant is therefore jointly and severally liable towards the Plaintiff;

(c) The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court erred in law when he failed to answer Issue Nos. 4, 9 and 10 in favour of the Plaintiff against the 2nd Defendant. The said three issues are accordingly answered in favour of the Plaintiff and the Plaintiff shall be entitled to relief as prayed for in the plaint against the 2nd Defendant, as well.

The Commercial High Court is directed to enter decree accordingly.

I make no order for costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Mahinda Samayawardhena, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIAIST REPUBLUC OF SRI LANKA

Yashodha Holdings (Pvt) Ltd,
455, Galle Road, Colombo-03

Now at,
Room 1, 4th Floor,
282 C, Galle Road, Colombo-03.

Defendant-Appellant

SC CHC Appeal No. 01/2018
HC. (Civil) 90/99 (1)

-Vs-

People's Bank,
No.75, Sir Chittampalam A.Gardiner Mawatha,
Colombo-02

Plaintiff-Respondent

Before: : P. Padman Surasena J
Yasantha Kodagoda PC, J
Kumudini Wickremasinghe J

Counsel: : Lakdev Unamboowe for the Defendant-Appellant.
S. A. Parathalingam PC with Kushan D' Alwis PC and Hiran Jayasinghe for the Plaintiff-Respondent.

Argued

Decided on: 04-12-2023

P. Padman Surasena J

Court heard the submissions of the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Appellant as well as the submissions of the learned President's Counsel for the Plaintiff-Respondent and concluded the argument.

At the outset, the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Appellant drew the attention of Court to the Motion dated 29-11-2023 through which he had sought permission of Court to tender the Hansard dated 24-09-2003 which contains a record of the Parliamentary proceedings of the said date and the report referred to therein. Except mere seeking of permission of Court, the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Appellant did not make any relevant submission to highlight the presence of any legal provision enabling this Court to consider the said new material that was sought to be adduced through the said Motion.

We are mindful that this is an appeal filed to challenge the final order of the relevant case heard by the Commercial High Court. Therefore, our task is to examine the correctness of the Judgment pronounced by the learned Commercial High Court Judge in this case. We have to do that within the four corners of the brief. We have no reason/basis to grant permission to adduce new material as requested by the Motion dated 29-11-2023 at this stage of the case. Therefore, we decided at the outset to refuse the said Motion.

The Plaintiff-Respondent has instituted this action against the Defendant-Appellant to recover a sum of Rs. 187,294,109/59 with interest, on account of the grant of a short-term loan amounting to Rs. 120 million.

The sole defence taken up by the Defendant-Appellant as per the pleadings is that there is no outstanding amount of money due to the Plaintiff-Respondent from the Defendant-Appellant.

The Plaintiff-Respondent had led the evidence of one witness on its behalf who had produced several documents establishing its case before Court.

In the course of the argument, learned Counsel who appeared for the Defendant-Appellant advanced the argument that the position taken up by the Defendant-Appellant namely the fact that the Plaintiff-Respondent Bank had failed to recover its dues on account of the relevant loan at the correct time from the funds available in several accounts maintained by the Defendant-Appellant in the same Bank. It is the complaint of the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Appellant before this Court that the learned Commercial High Court Judge had failed to consider this aspect of the case.

Perusal of the proceedings relating to cross examination of the Plaintiff-Respondent's witness by the Defendant-Appellant shows that the Defendant-Appellant had failed to take up such a position in the course of the trial. However, it appears that at some stage of the case, this argument had been advanced before the Commercial High Court through some means. This has prompted the learned Commercial High Court Judge to observe in his Judgment as follows:

> " I must say that this is a new position taken up by the Defendant during the course of the trial without such a position being pleaded in the answer and without such an issue being raised at the trial. This is not permissible 1999(3) Sri LR 301."

Having considered the material adduced before us, we find no reason to deviate from the above conclusion arrived at by the learned Commercial High Court Judge.

It appeared to us that the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Appellant had more focussed on some material contained in the amended answer which he had sought to file at some stage before the Commercial High Court. As pointed out by the learned President's Counsel for the Plaintiff-Respondent, we observe that the Commercial High Court had already rejected the said amended answer and there has been no proceedings against that rejection thereafter. Thus, the matter should end there.

For the foregoing reasons, we see no merit in this appeal. Therefore, we proceed to dismiss this appeal with costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Yasantha Kodagoda, PC J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Kumudini Wickremasinghe J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

kpm/-

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal in terms of Section 5(A) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 19 of 1990 as amended by Act No. 54 of 2006 read with Section 755 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Case no: SC/CHC/APPEAL/25/2015

Commercial High Court Case No: CHC/272/2009/MR

Sampath Leasing and Facturing Limited,

No 24A,

Ward Place,

Colombo 07.

Previous Address

No 110, Sir James Peiris Mawatha, Colombo 02.

PLAINTIFF

vs.

1. Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez,
   No. 142,
   Himbiliyagahamadiththa,
   Uwa.

2. Arpin Mohomed Hameen

No. 96,
Mihindupura,
Meepilimana,
Nuwara-Eliya

3. Wahampurage Rukman Samaranayake,
"Happy Inn",
No. 35,
Unim View Road,
Nuwara-Eliya

DEFENDANTS

AND BETWEEN

An application under section 86(2) of the Civil Procedure Code

1. Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez,
No. 142,
Himbiliyagahamadiththa,
Uwa

1st DEFENDANT-PETITIONER

Vs

Sampath Leasing and Facturing Limited,

No. 24A,

Ward Place,

Colombo 07.

Previous Address

No. 110, Sir James Peiris Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

PLAINTIFF-RESPONDENT

AND

2. Arpin Mohomed Hameen
   No. 96,
   Mihindupura,
   Meepilimana,
   Nuwara-Eliya

3. Wahampurage Rukman
   Samaranayake,
   "Happy Inn",
   No. 35,
   Unim View Road,
   Nuwara-Eliya

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENTS

AND NOW BETWEEN

1. Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed
   Haneez,

No. 142,

Himbiliyagahamadiththa,

Uwa

1ST DEFENDANT-PETITIONER-APPELLANT

Vs

Sampath Leasing and Facturing Limited, No. 24A,

Ward Place,

Colombo 07.

Previous Address

No. 110, Sir James Peiris Mawatha, Colombo 02.

PLAINTIFF-RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT

AND

1. Arpin Mohomed Hameen
   No. 96,
   Mihindupura,
   Meepilimana,
   Nuwara-Eliya

2. Wahampurage Rukman
   Samaranayake,
   "Happy Inn",
   No. 35,

Unim View Road,

Nuwara-Eliya

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT-RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J

A.H.M.D. NAWAZ, J AND

K. P. FERNANDO, J

COUNSEL : M. D. J. Bandara for the 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant

Kaushalya Nawaratne with Prabuddha Hettiarachchi for the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS : 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant on 1st September 2023

ARGUED ON : 6th July 2023

DECIDED ON : 22nd September 2023

S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J.

The 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant, namely Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez, (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Appellant") preferred this appeal against the order of the Commercial High Court dated 10th March 2015.

The Appellant had filed his Petition of appeal on 8th May 2015 and submitted as follows:

> "7) Being aggrieved by the said Order of the Honourable High Court Judge of Commercial High Court of Colombo dated 10-03-2015 the 01st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant humbly makes this appeal against the said Order to Your Lordship's Court on the following among other grounds that may be urged by his counsel at the hearing of this appeal.

a. The said order is contrary to Law and against the weight of facts and circumstances in this case.

b. The Honourable High Court Judge has failed to consider the real Issues placed by the Appellant

c. The Honourable High Court Judge has failed to consider the fact that the Respondent has failed to prove that the summons have been properly served only Appellant by the Fiscal.

d. The Learned High Court Judge has failed to consider the legal entitlement of the Respondent and his order is totally contrary to the doctrine of undue enrichment.

(Reproduced as it is) [sic]

This Court observes that there is no specific pleading of Questions of Law hence the Court inquired for the Counsel to submit his questions of law. After submissions, the Counsel submitted that he will be continuing his argument on paragraph 7(c) of the Petition and moves to accept the same as questions of law and grounds of application. The Counsel stated that he is not relying on (a), (b) and (d) of paragraph 7 as they are wide and uncertain. Accordingly, the Court will be considering the following question of law:

"c. The Honourable High Court Judge has failed to consider the fact that the Respondent has failed to prove that the summons have been properly served only Appellant by the Fiscal."

(Reproduced as it is) [sic]

This Court reluctantly observes and places on record that none of the Parties have filed written submissions. This was brought to the notice of both Counsel and they pleaded that they be permitted to make submissions and the written submissions will be filed within two weeks, i.e. 20th July 2023. Unfortunately, up until 28th August 2023, neither party has filed the written submissions. The Counsel for the 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant only filed his written submissions on 1st September 2023, more than a month after the written submissions were due to be filed. This Court is compelled to rely on their oral submissions and the materials available in the appeal brief.

To have a better understanding it will be preferable to have the facts of the case.

The Facts

1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant had obtained leasing facilities via Leasing agreement bearing No. V/0885/24/NUW dated 24th May 2006 from Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent Company (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Plaintiff") to lease a Mitsubishi FE516BD Motor Lorry. In the said leasing agreement (P2), the 1st Defendant was to pay sixty monthly instalments of Rs. 61,056.74 to the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent. Two guarantors Arpin Mohomed Hameen (2nd Defendant) and Wahampurage Rukman Samaranayake (3rd Defendant) entered into Guarantee Agreement with the Plaintiff Company dated 24th May 2006 and guaranteed inter alia that the 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant would make punctual payment of all rentals and all sums due and owing to the Plaintiff in terms of the said Lease Agreement.

The Appellant failed to pay the monthly Lease Rentals as stated in the agreement. The Plaintiff therefore issued Notice of Failure. As the 1st Defendant failed to remedy the substantial failure, the Plaintiff set out to terminate the Lease Agreement by letter dated 20th March 2007. Letters of demand were sent to 1st, 2nd and 3rd Defendants to pay the sum of Rs. 3,088,679.28 which was owed to the Plaintiff. Since there was no response, the Plaintiff Company filed an action at the Commercial High Court to recover the due amount. Summons were served on 3rd Defendant. He had appeared and filed his proxy and answer on or about 11th October 2009. It was reported that the 2nd Defendant has died during the pendency of the case in the Commercial High Court of Colombo.

Plaintiff Company claims that they have sent notices via Registered post and since there is no response, they have served notice through the Fiscal.

In the fiscal report dated 30th July 2009, the person who served summons affirmed and stated that

> "සිතාසි බාරදෙන්නා වන M. සෙල්වම් නමැති මා... 2009 07 මස 21 වැනි දින 1, 2 විත්තිකරුවන් සාමාන්‍යයෙන් පදිංචිව සිටින මාගස්තොට, මිපිලිමාන පිහිටි ඔහුගේ ගෙදරට මා ගිය බවත් 1, වන විත්තිකරු වැලිමඩ ප්‍රදේශයේ සිටින බවත් 2 වන විත්තිකරු මියගොස් ඇති බවත් ගරු අධිකරණයට වාර්ථා කරමි"

The unofficial translation of the above is given below for ease of reference.

> "I, summons server, M. Selvam, inform the Honourable Court that on 21st July 2009, I went to his house at Magasthota, Mipilimana where the 1st and 2nd Defendants usually reside, and I am being informed that the 1st Defendant is residing in Welimada area and the 2nd Defendant is now deceased. "

On the application made by the Plaintiff Company the Court ordered to serve the summons through substituted service, the same was effected by the fiscal on the given address i.e. No. 42/12, Gajabapura, Magastota, Nuwara Eliya.

The Fiscal of Nuwara Eliya reported with an affidavit stating that the notice was pasted on the doors of the given address and substituted service was duly complied with. Thereafter it was informed to Court that he is living elsewhere, namely, No. 142, Himiliyagahamadiththa, Uwaparanagama.

Once again, the notice was sent to the new address but the 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant was not available and evading of receiving the notice. Once again it was served through substituted service and a report was filed in the Court.

A timeline of the events and the actions taken by the fiscals and the reports filed by them can be found below.

Fiscal report/affidavit of person who served summons dated 22nd June 2010 (10B) stated as follows:

> "සිතාසි බාරදෙන්නා වන එම්. කලුබන්ඩා නමැති මා ... මෙහි නම් සඳහන් 1 විත්තිකරු මොහමඩ් තව්බීර් මොහමඩ් හනීස් නමැති ... 2010-05-31 සහ 2010-06-08 09 දී සිතාසියේ සඳහන් ලිපිනයේ දී සෙවූ බවත් සොයාගත නොහැකි වූ බවත් ය."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

> "I, summons server M. Kalubanda, searched for the defendant Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez ... on 31-05-2010, 08-06-2006 and 09-06-2010 at the address mentioned in the summons but could not find him."

On the same report it was written that he went to the given new address to find the 1st Defendant in this case, (for 3 days), but then came to know that this Defendant is not available, absconding and evading the service of notice. Therefore, he reported to the Court that the summons cannot be served.

> "මෙම නඩුවේ 1 විත්තිකරු සොයා, දී ඇති නව ලිපිනයට මා ගිය නමුත් (දින 3ක්), මෙම විත්තිකරු සැඟවන බව මා හට දැන ගැනීමට හැකි විය. එබැවින් සිතාසිය භාර නොකැල හැකි ඌ බව ගරු අධිකරණයට වාර්ථා කර සිටිමි."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

> I am reporting to this Honourable Court that; I went in search of the defendant in this case for three days to the given new address. I understand that he is hiding hence I am unable to serve the summons on him

On 15th November 2010, the Fiscal for the Welimada District Court reported as below:

"සිතාසි භාර දෙන්නා වන පියදාස නමැති මා ... මෙහි නම් කර ඇති සිතාසිය/ දැන්වීම එහි දෙවන පිටපතක් වර්ෂ 2010 නොවැම්බර් මස 8 වැනි දින උඟව පරනගම දී හනීස් විත්ති ආදේශ ක්‍රමයට නිවසේ ඉදිරි දොරේ සිතාසි වාර්තාව අල්වන ලදී."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

"I, summons server Piyadasa, am hereby reporting that on 8th November 2010, I went to 1st Defendant Haneez address given in the notice/ summons at Uwaparanagama, served the notice on substituted service by pasting the notice on the front door of the house."

On 25th May 2012, the fiscal report states as follows:

"සිතාසි භාර දෙන්නා වන S. රාජපක්ෂ නමැති මා 2012 මැයි මස 08 වැනි දින මොහොමඩ් තව්බීර් මොහොමඩ් හනීස් සාමන්‍යයෙන් පදිංචිව සිටින අංක 42/12, ගජබාපුර, මාගස්තොට, නුවරඑළියේ පිහිටි ඔහුගේ ගෙදරට මා ගිය බවත් විත්තිකරු වැලිමඩ ප්‍රදේශයේ සිටින බවත් මොහොමඩ් හරීෆ් පවසයි. එබැවින් සිතාසිය දෙන්න බැරි වූ බව ගරු අධිකරණයට වාර්තා කරමි."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

I, summons server S. Rajapakse, hereby report to the Honourable Court that on 8th May 2012 went to Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez usual residence at 42/12, Gajabapura, Magasthota, Nuwara Eliya. He was not there and I was informed by Mohamad Harif that he is residing at Welimada.

The Precept to Fiscal to serve dated 17th May 2013 reads as follows:

"1 විත්තිකරුගේ නව ලිපිනයට තීන්දු ප්‍රකාශය නොතිස් ආදේශ ක්‍රමයට නව ලිපිනයට භාර දී වාර්තා කරන්න"

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

"Serve the notice and judgement on the 1st Defendant's new address and report."

The Fiscal Report dates 30th May 2013

"සිතාසි භාර දෙන්න වන හෙට්ටිහේවා නමැති මා ... මෙහි නම සඳහන් මොහොමඩ් තව්බීර් මොහොමඩ් හනීස් නමැති අංක 142, හිඹිලියස්ගහමඩිත්ත, උඟව 2013.05.27 දී සෙවූ බවත් සොයා ගත නොහැකි වූ බවත්ය. විත්තිකරු කොළඹ සිටින බව විත්තිකරුගේ පියා කියා සිටි ගරු අධිකරණයට වාර්තා කරමි."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

I, summons server Hettihewa, on 27th May 2013, hereby report to the Honourable Court that I searched for the defendant named Mohomed Thawbeer Mohomed Haneez at the address given as 142, Himbilyasgahamadiththa, Uwa, but he could not be found. Father of the defendant said that he is in Colombo.

The Fiscal report dated 28th June 2013 states as follows:

"සිතාසි භාර දෙන්නා වන හෙට්ටිහෙවා නමැති මා ... මෙම නම් කර ඇති සිතාසිය/ දැන්වීම එහි දෙවෙන පිටපතක් වර්ෂ 2013 06 මස 19 වැනි දින ලිපිනයේ දී තීන්දු ප්‍රකාශය ඉදිරිපස දොරේ අලවා භාර දෙන ලදී.

පිස්කල් අන කර එය ලිපිනයට ගොස් ආදේශ ක්‍රමයට ඉදිරිපස දොරේ අලවා තීන්දු ප්‍රකාශය භාර දෙන ලදී."

An unofficial translation of the above can be found below.

"I, summons server Hettihewa on 19th June 2013 served the herein numbered second copy of the Notice/ summons by pasting the same on the front door.

I served the fiscal order via substituted service by pasting the judgment on the front door."

On 9th October 2013 the Plaintiff Company changed its name, and this was informed to the lawyers of the 1st and 3rd Defendants via registered post.

The Commercial High Court of Western Province being convinced of the service of summons, heard the case ex parte against the 1st Defendant and ordered in favour of the Company (Plaintiff-Respondent) on 16th December 2011.

When the company tried to proceed against the 3rd Defendant, the 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant made an application under Section 86 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code to vacate the order. Section 86 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code has been reproduced below.

> "Where, within fourteen days of the service of the decree entered against him for default, the defendant with notice to the plaintiff makes application to and thereafter satisfies court, that he had reasonable grounds for such default, the court shall set aside the judgment and decree and permit the defendant to proceed with his defence as from the stage of default upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as to the court shall appear proper."

The Commercial High Court after hearing both sides, dismissed the application to vacate the ex parte order. Being aggrieved with the order of the Commercial High Court, 1st Defendant-Petitioner-Appellant preferred an appeal to this Court.

Analysis

It is to be noted that the written submissions, motions and petitions submitted by the parties have variations with regard to the names of the parties. Therefore, we will be referring to the Petition filed in this Court regarding the same.

The main issue raised by the Appellant is that the Commercial High Court Judge has failed to consider the fact that the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent Company has failed to prove that the summons have been properly served on the Appellant by the Fiscal.

In Wimalawathie and Others vs Thotamuna and Others (1998) 3 Sri LR 1, Dr. Ranaraja, J held that > "The affidavit filed by the Process Server is prima facie evidence of the fact that summons was duly served on the defendants mentioned therein and there is a presumption that summons was duly served. Accordingly, the burden shifts on to the defendants to prove that no summons had been served."

>
> (Emphasis added)

As affidavits have been filed by the process/summons servers, the 1st Defendant must present evidence to prove that no summons had been served, however, there has been no satisfactory evidence to prove the stance of the 1st Defendant. He keeps insisting that the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent Company has to prove the summons were served on him, although vide Dr. Ranaraja, J's judgement in the above mentioned case, once an affidavit has been signed, the burden of proof shifts to the 1st Defendant.

I discussed earlier that the Appellant was evading notice and not residing in the address stated on the Lease Agreement. As seen in the Commercial High Court Journal Entry No.10B, the Fiscal has got to know that the Appellant was "hiding/evading" from receiving summons. Journal Entry No. 14 dated 06th September 2010 states that the summons was pasted on the door of the previous address given on the Lease Agreement.

Now I draw my attention to the above mentioned lease agreement bearing No. V/0885/24/NUW dated 24th May 2006.

The address given by the Appellant was No. 42/12 Gajabapura, Magastota, Nuwara Eliya. If a party changes their address, it is mandatory for them to inform the other side of their change of address. But if the party has a reasonable explanation for not doing so within a reasonable time, it can be considered according to the situation subjectively. In the given matter, the summons server got to know that the 1st Defendant was not residing in the address given in the lease agreement only after he went to serve summons on separate days. Even after the summons were served on the second address, the 1st Defendant was not present at the second address either. It was the 1st Defendant's father who informed the summons server that his son (the 1st Defendant) was residing in Colombo at the time. It must be highlighted that none of these address changes were informed to the Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent Company at any point. The 1st Defendant has moved around the country but has not informed the Plaintiffs of his changes in addresses even at one instance. This is a clear evasion of receiving summons.

Further, I draw my attention to Article 30 of the lease agreement above mentioned which provides for service of notice. It says as follows:

> "Article 30: Service of Notice
>
> Any notice summons or demand to be sent or given by either party or their duly authorised representative or their Attorneys-At-Law or by any Court or any Tribunal or any Arbitrator/s to the other may be sent by registered post to the address of the other party as appearing herein or such other address as such party may from time to time have duly communicated to the other and if so sent shall be deemed to be served on the day following the date of posting*. In* proving service of any notice, summons, demand or Arbitral award it shall be sufficient to show that the letter containing the notice, summons, demand or Arbitral Award was properly addressed, stamped and posted under registered cover, or has been served to the address of the other party as appearing herein or such other address as such party may have from time to time duly communicated to the other party.

It is hereby agreed by and between the parties hereto that a notice, summons, demand or Arbitral Award so sent and/or served in terms of the foregoing by one party is deemed to have been received by the other party and no objection on grounds of non-receipt of notice can be taken by the party to where such notice, summons, demand or Arbitral Award was sent.

(Emphasis added)

It is clear that there is a contractual obligation between these two parties regarding service of notice. If a notice is sent to the given address, as per the above provisions of the contract, it will be sufficient.

In the present case however, the company had not only served notices to the given address through registered post but also served notices via Fiscal and substituted service. It had also informed the Defendants of change in the name of the Company. The Company and the fiscals have gone above and beyond their duty to serve the summons on the 1st Defendant. He therefore cannot rely on his evasion to claim that he did not receive summons and claim that the Learned Commercial High Court Judge erred in his judgement.

Section 60 of the Civil Procedure Code reads as follows:

"(1) The court shall, where it is reported that summons could not be effected by registered post or where the summons having been served and the defendant fails to appear, direct that such summons be served personally on the defendant by delivering or tendering to him the said summons through the Fiscal or the Grama Niladhari within whose division the defendant resides or in any case where the plaintiff is a lending institution within the meaning of the Debt Recovery

(Special Provisions) Act, No. 2 of 1990, through the Fiscal or other officer authorized by court, accompanied by a precept in form No. 17 of the First Schedule. In the case of a corporation summons may be served personally by delivering or tendering it to the secretary or like officer or a director or the person in charge of the principal place of business of such corporation.

(2) If the service referred to in the preceding provisions of this section cannot by the exercise of due diligence be effected, the Fiscal or Grama Niladhari shall affix the summons to some conspicuous part of the house in which the defendant ordinarily resides or in the case of a corporation or unincorporated body, to the usual place of business or office of such corporation or such body and in every such case the summon shall be deemed to have been duly served on the defendant."

(Emphasis added)

It is the Appellant's contention that the summons has not been served properly by the Fiscal. However, as per Section 60 (2) above, it is seen that if personal service has not been successful, then the Fiscal has the authority to fix the summons to some conspicuous part of the house in which the defendant ordinarily resides in, which is known as substituted service of summons. As evidenced by the Journal Entry No. 14 dated 06th September 2010, the summons was pasted on the door of the address given on the Lease Agreement, completing the substituted service of summons.

The summons and judgements have been served on the address mentioned in the lease agreement, and later at the second address. The 1st Defendant has not been present at any of the two addresses on the dates that the summons were served by the summons server. As proved by the journal entries and the fiscal reports mentioned above, it is safe to assume that the Defendant is within the country, although he has moved from place to place constantly.

Decision

Considering all above material before us, I turn to answer the question of law considered by this Court, as to whether the High Court Judge has failed to prove that summons have been properly served on the Appellant by the Fiscal. I answer in the negative and find that the learned High Court judge has not failed to consider the fact that the summons have been properly served on the Appellant by the Fiscal.

I state that the learned High Court Judge has made the correct order. There is no reason for us to interfere with said order. Accordingly, I dismiss this appeal with cost.

Appeal Dismissed with cost.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

A.H.M.D. NAWAZ, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

K. P. FERNANDO, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE

DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal in terms of section 5(1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996, against a judgment pronounced by the High Court exercising its jurisdiction under section 2 of the said Act.

SC (CHC) Appeal No. 44/2014
Commercial High Court
Case No: 322/2009/MR

Lanka Orix Leasing Company PLC,
100/1, Sri Jayawardhanapura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

PLAINTIFF

Vs.

Kaluarachhilage Osmond Bandula
8L, Housing Scheme,
Hanthana,
Kandy.

DEFENDANT

AND NOW BETWEEN

Lanka Orix Leasing Company PLC,
100/1, Sri Jayawardhanapura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

PLAINTIFF-APPELLANT

Vs.

Kaluarachchilage Osmond Bandula
8L, Housing Scheme,
Hanthana,
Kandy.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT

Before: P. PADMAN SURASENA, J

KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J

ARJUNA OBEYESEKERE, J

Counsel: Sumedha Mahawanniarachchi with Binara Silva for the Plaintiff-Appellant instructed by Santhoshi S. Herath Associates. (Dipika Herath, AAL)

W.D. Weeraratne for the Defendant-Respondent.

Argued on : 06.12.2022

Decided on : 03.11.2023

P Padman Surasena J

The Plaintiff-Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the Plaintiff) had entered into the Agreement bearing No. 163 dated 17-04-2008 produced marked P1[1] with the Defendant-Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the Defendant) for the lease of the property described in its schedule. Parties have inter alia agreed on the followings, [1] Produced marked "P1" in the Petition of Appeal dated 20-12-2013, filed before the Supreme Court and produced marked "A" in the Plaint dated 13-07-2009 filed in the Commercial High Court.

a) The Defendant will lease the relevant property to the Plaintiff for a period of five years commencing from 01-06-2008 and ending on 31-05-2013 for a total consideration of Rs. 5,400,000/=.

b) The lease rental shall be Rs. 90,000/= per month,

c) Out of the total consideration of Rs. 5,400,000/= , a sum of Rs. 3,240,000/= shall amount to the total lease rentals for the period of first three years (36 months) i.e., for the period commencing from 01-06-2008 ending on 31-05-2011.

d) Out of the said total lease rentals for the period of first three years (Rs. 3,240,000/=), a sum of Rs. 3,140,000/= shall be given to the Defendant as an advance.

e) The balance sum of Rs. 100,000/= from the first three years' rental shall be retained with the Plaintiff to spend for any minor repairs that may be needed during the operative period of the lease.

f) The Defendant shall renovate the said premises in the agreed manner and handover the same to the Plaintiff on or before 01st June 2008.

g) The Plaintiff shall pay to the Defendant, the balance sum of Rs. 2,160,000/= as lease rentals at the rate of Rs. 90,000/= per month for the balance 24 months commencing from 01st June 2011 and ending on 31-05-2013.

h) At the expiry of the full term of the lease, the Plaintiff shall pay back the aforesaid retained sum of Rs. 100,000/= to the Defendant after deducting any expenses that may have been incurred.

The Plaintiff has pleaded that its officers visited the relevant premises from time to time and it was made clear for the said officers (as per their observations with regard to the progress of the work), that the Defendant was not in a position/or was not planning to hand over the possession of the relevant premises to the Plaintiff before the agreed date, i.e., 01-06-2008. The Plaintiff has also stated that the relevant premises was not ready even by 10-11-2008. It was on that basis that the plaintiff had requested the Defendant to allow the Plaintiff to finish the remaining work in a manner that could suit the carrying out of the Plaintiff's business at the Plaintiff's expense and thereafter to deduct the said cost from the lease rentals of the balance two years.

As a second cause of action, the Plaintiff has averred in the Plaint that it had lost the opportunity of conducting its business as it had lost the opportunity of opening a branch at Ampara, because of the failure of the Defendant to hand over the possession of the relevant premises to the Plaintiff by the due date. The plaintiff on the said second cause of action had sought to recover a sum of Rs. 2,000,000/- from the Defendant.

The case for the Plaintiff is based on an allegation that the Defendant had entered into the aforesaid Agreement only with the intention of getting the afore-stated advance money. It was in the above circumstances that the Plaintiff had sent through its Attorney-at-Law a Letter of Demand to the Defendant demanding the re-payment the aforesaid advance with interest and damages at the rate of Rs. 3,000/- per month as per the Agreement. It was in the light of the above background that the Plaintiff in its plaint filed in the Commercial High Court of Colombo had prayed inter alia :

a) that a judgement and decree against the Defendant be entered in favour of the Plaintiff to recover a sum of Rs. 3,140,000/= and Rs. 3,000/- per day from 01st June 2008, until the aforesaid sum is paid in full to the Plaintiff;

b) a judgement and decree against the Defendant be entered in favour of the Plaintiff to recover a sum of Rs. 2,000,000/= and legal interest thereon from the date of the decree, until the aforesaid sum is paid in full to the Plaintiff,

The Defendant had filed an answer taking up the following positions:

I. The Defendant had carried out and completed the relevant renovations and/ or alterations as requested by the Plaintiff as per the Agreement at a cost of Rs. 982,500/-

II. After the said completion, the Defendant had informed the Plaintiff to take over the possession of the relevant building on 01-06-2008 as previously agreed, upon which the officers of the Plaintiff had visited the premises and became satisfied with the renovations/ alterations carried out by the Defendant.

III. Despite the aforesaid, the Plaintiff in breach of the Agreement had failed and neglected to take over the possession of the relevant premises.

The Defendant has also stated that the Plaintiff had sent the Letter of Demand to him only after a lapse of nine months. The Defendant had stated that this was designed to show falsely, a failure to hand over the possession by the due date by the Plaintiff to the Defendant. The Defendant has also stated that his Attorney-at-Law, by the letter dated 26-03-2009 had responded to the Letter of Demand he had received from the Plaintiff.

The Defendant in his answer had prayed for dismissal of the Plaintiff's action. Submitting a Claim in Reconvention, the Defendant had sought to recover from the Plaintiff, a sum of Rs. 2,210,000/- together with legal interest thereon from 01-06-2008, being the loss and damage suffered by him as he was compelled to terminate the lease of three other lessees who were occupying the said premises in order to handover the vacant possession of the said premises to the Plaintiff. It was on that basis that the Defendant had prayed for judgment and decree against the Plaintiff on the Claim in Reconvention, in a sum of Rs. 2,210,000/- together with legal interest thereon from 01-06-2008 until the date of the decree and thereafter legal interest on the decreed sum until payment in full, together with costs.

The Plaintiff filed replication on 09-03-2010 and the case was taken up for trial on eight Admissions and seventeen issues.

The afore-stated eight Admissions are as follows:[2]

1) Paragraph 01 of the plaint is admitted.

2) The fact that the parties entered into the agreement marked "A" produced with the plaint, is admitted.

3) The fact that a sum of Rs. 3,140,000/- being the rent in advance for a period of thirty six months commencing from 01st June 2008, was paid to the Defendant by the Plaintiff in terms of the agreement marked "A" produced with the plaint, is admitted.

4) The fact that the Plaintiff paid to the Defendant, a sum of Rs. 100,000/-being a deposit, to be refunded after deducting any costs for repairs, is admitted.

5) The fact that the Plaintiff agreed to pay the Defendant an aggregate lease rental of Rs. 5,400,000/- for a period of 5 years commencing from 01st June 2008 at the rate of Rs. 90,000/- per month in terms of the agreement marked "A" produced with the plaint, is admitted.

[2] Vide Consolidated Admissions and Issues at page 135 of the brief.

6) The fact that the Plaintiff requested the Defendant to carry out certain alterations and/or renovations to the said premises in order to suit the Plaintiffs business requirements and to provide vacant possession of the said premises by 01st June 2008, is admitted.

7) The fact that the Defendant sent the letter marked "B" produced along with the plaint to the Plaintiff, is admitted.

8) The bare receipt by the Defendant, of the document marked "C" produced along with the plaint, is admitted.

At the conclusion of the trial, the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court by his judgment dated 29-10-2013, had concluded that the Plaintiff had failed to establish his case against the Defendant and dismissed the Plaintiff's action. The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court also dismissed the Defendant's Claim in Reconvention.
Being aggrieved by the judgment of the learned Commercial High Court judge, the Plaintiff has lodged the instant appeal to this Court seeking to set aside judgment of the Commercial High Court dated 29-10-2013.

Let me now examine whether there is merit in this Appeal. The Plaintiff had led the evidence of four witnesses and produced documents marked P1 to P40. Thereafter, the Defendant had led evidence of two witnesses and produced documents marked V1 to V4(අ).

At the outset, I must observe that the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court by its judgment dated 29-10-2013 had dismissed the action of the Plaintiff mainly because he had not believed the evidence of the witnesses called by the Plaintiff.

The Plaintiff in order to prove that the Defendant had failed to complete the required renovations and/or alterations as per the Agreement by the due date i.e., 01-06-2008, had relied on the evidence of its first witness who is the Plaintiff's Chief Regional Manager (Sirikkaduge Yanik Sajanaka Fernando). He had produced his evidence in chief by way of an Affidavit. This witness in paragraph 17 of the said Affidavit dated 03-03-2011 had stated as follows:

> "I state that thereafter, I inspected the said premises on 01st and 20th of April 2009 to ascertain the correctness in P22 and instructed Mr. Jayasundara Dissanayake of the Plaintiff to obtain photographs depicting the status of the premises on the said two dates."

True copies of 3 such photographs showing the status of the premises on 01st April 2009 are annexed hereto and produced in evidence as P23 to P25 and 5 such photographs showing the status of the premises as at 20th April 2009 are annexed hereto and produced in evidence as P26 to P30."

However, during the cross examination, this witness had admitted that although he had stated in paragraph 17 of his affidavit that he had inspected the premises personally on 01-04-2009 and 20-04-2009 and had requested Mr. Jayasundara to take pictures of the premises, this was not true. He stated in the cross examination that his final visit was in fact in September of 2008. This can be seen in the following excerpts produced from the proceedings pertaining to the cross-examination of this witness.

"ප්‍ර : දිවුරුම් ප්‍රකාශයේ 17 වන ඡේදයේ තමා කියා තිබෙනවා තමා ඔය පරිශ්‍රය පරීක්ෂා කරන්න ගියා කියා 2009 අප්‍රේල් මාසේ. දැන් මහත්මයා කියපු සාක්ෂි අනුව මේ 17 වන ඡේදයෙන් කියා තිබෙන කරුණු වැරදියි. මහත්මයා දෙවතාවක්ම ප්‍රකාශ කළා 2008 සප්තම්බර් වලට පසු ඔය ස්ථානය බලන්න ගියෙ නැහැ කියා?

උ : එහෙමයි. මගේ අවශ්‍යතාවය මත තමයි ජයසුන්දර දිසානායක මහතා පින්තූර ටික ලබා දුන්නේ.

ප්‍ර : තමා පරීක්ෂා කලා කියන එක වැරදියි?

උ : වැරදියි.

ප්‍ර : තමා එතැන බොරුවක් කියා තිබෙන්නේ?

උ : වැරදියි.

ප්‍ර : දිවුරුම් ප්‍රකාශය 17 වන ඡේදයේ තමා එම පරිශ්‍රය පරීක්ෂාකර දිනත්සඳහන් කර තිබෙනවා. බලල තමයි තමන් කීවේ ජයසුන්දර මහතාට පින්තූර ගන්න කීවේ කියා?

උ : ඒක වැරැද්දක්.

ප්‍ර : එසේනම් මහත්මයාගේ දිනපොත් තියාගෙන ඉන්න එකයි මේ ආයතනයෙන් නීති අංශයේ මහතුන්ට ඊමේල් පණිවුඩ යැව්වා කියන එක බොරු. මොකද මෙතන දින සඳහන් කරම කියා තිබෙනවා?

උ : අනෙක් කාරණා සත්‍යය බවට මම කියා සිටිනවා.

ප්‍ර : හැබැයි මෙතන සඳහන් වෙලා තිබෙන්නේ බොරුවක්?

උ : වැරැද්දක්.

ප්‍ර : තමා කියන හැටියට දිනපොත් පිළියෙල කරනවා නම් ඊමේල් පණිවුඩ යවා තිබෙනවා නම් මේ වගේ බොරු ප්‍රකාශයක් කියන්න අවශ්‍ය නැහැනේ දිනයක් සඳහන් කර තමන් ගිහින් බැලුවා කියා?

උ : මෙතන ප්‍රකාශ කර තිබෙන එක වැරදියි බවට පිළිගන්නවා. නමුත් අනෙක් කරුණු සත්‍ය බවට ප්‍රකාශ කරනවා."

Thus, the Plaintiff had relied on three photographs P23 to P25 to show the status of the premises as at 01st April 2009 and five photographs P26 to P30 to show the status of the premises as at 20th April 2009 with an attempt to prove that the Defendant had failed to complete the required renovations and/or alterations as per the Agreement by the due date i.e., 01-06-2008. The Defendant had not disputed that the photographs depict the relevant premises but had taken up the position that the dates shown on the photographs are fabricated. It is the position of the Defendant that these photographs are ones that had been taken some time back when the renovation work was in progress. In these circumstances, the dates on which these photographs have been taken have assumed the greatest importance. Thus, they have become directly relevant to the main fact in issue in this case, i.e., the issue whether the Defendant was ready to hand over the possession of the relevant premises to the Plaintiff before the agreed date, i.e., 01-06-2008. However, the Plaintiff's main witness himself has established before Court, the fact that these photographs had not been taken on the dates asserted by him .

The Plaintiff has also called witness Jayasundera Mudiyanselage Dissanayake to give evidence on its behalf. According to the Plaintiff's Chief Regional Manager (Yanik Sajanaka Fernando), the witness Jayasundera Mudiyanselage Dissanayake is the person who has taken three photographs P23 to P25 on 01st April 2009 and five photographs P26 to P30 on 20-04-2009. This witness in his evidence has stated that the photographs were taken on the dates printed on them. However, in view of the admission by Yanik Sajanaka Fernando that his assertion that the photographs were taken on those dates is false, the decision by the learned Commercial High Court Judge not to rely on the evidence of these witnesses is justified.

The Plaintiff has also called Muthupora Thotage Joseph Mary Anthony Perera to give evidence on its behalf. The said witness is the architect attached to the Plaintiff company. According to this witness's evidence, when he had visited the premise on 15-05-2008 there was only very little work to be completed and that work would have only taken about fifteen days for completion. Therefore, I observe that this witness has not established the Plaintiff's case but has been helpful to establish the position taken up by the Defendant.

Thus, the cumulative effect of all the above circumstances are directed towards justifying the conclusion arrived at by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court that the Plaintiff has made an abortive attempt to convince Court that the Defendant had failed to complete the required renovations and/or alterations as per the Agreement by the due date i.e., 01-06-2008. Moreover, the Defendant does not accept that the Plaintiff's witnesses had visited the premises on the dates they claimed to have visited the said premises. The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court for the reasons set out in his judgment had accepted the position taken up by the Defendant. I too have no reason to deviate from that conclusion either. This too no doubt has affected the credibility of the Plaintiff's case presented before Court. I agree with the above conclusion arrived at by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court.

There are numerous other reasons which the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court had given in his judgment for his final conclusion. I am in agreement with those conclusions also. Since the above reasoning is sufficient to dispose this appeal, I would not endeavour to analyse all those reasons in detail again.

For the foregoing reasons, I see no merit in this appeal. I affirm the judgment dated 29-10-2013 pronounced by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court and proceed to dismiss this appeal. The Defendant is entitled to costs in both Courts.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

ARJUNA OBEYESEKERE, J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

L B Finance PLC
No. 275/75,
Prof. Stanley Wijesundara
Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

SC/CHC Appeal/56/2013 Plaintiff
CHC (Civil) 202/2009 (MR)

Vs.

Wadduwa Palliyagurunnanselage
Namal Senanayake,
"Nihathamani",
Ambagahawatta,
Kaikawala,
Induruwa.

Defendant

AND NOW BETWEEN

Wadduwa Palliyagurunnanselage
Namal Senanayake,
"Nihathamani",
Ambagahawatta,
Kaikawala,
Induruwa.

Defendant-Appellant

L B Finance PLC
No. 275/75,
Prof. Stanley Wijesundara
Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

Plaintiff-Respondent

Before	:	E. A. G. R. Amarasekera, J Yasantha Kodagoda, PC. J K. Priyantha Fernando, J
Counsel	:	Prinath Fernando for the Defendant-Appellant Kanchana Peiris with Anjula Rajapaksha instructed by Wickrama Punchihewa for the Plaintiff-Respondent
Argued on	:	09.05.2023
Written Submissions Tendered on	:	07.05.2019 on behalf of the Defendant-Appellant. 07.06.2019 on behalf of the Plaintiff-Respondent.
Decided on	:	14.06.2023

****

K. PRIYANTHA FERNANDO, J

1. The defendant-appellant (hereinafter referred to as the appellant) has obtained a loan of Rs. 2,000,000 upon the security of the mortgage of the appellant's property. After paying some installments, the appellant has failed to pay the balance moneys due. Thereafter, the plaintiff respondent (hereinafter referred to as the respondent) filed action in the Commercial High Court of Colombo to recover a sum of Rs. 3,262,938.08 and interest thereon, and to sell the mortgaged property and recover the moneys due if the appellant fails to pay the money.

2. After trial, the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court of Colombo delivered the judgment in favour of the respondent. The instant appeal has been filed by the appellant against the above judgment of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court dated 25.06.2013.

3. In his petition of appeal, the appellant has averred that the impugned judgment of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court is contrary to law. In that, it is averred that the land mortgaged as security for the aforestated loan is situated in the district of Kalutara and therefore, the Commercial High Court of Colombo lacks jurisdiction. It has further been averred that, the witnesses for the respondent have admitted that the appellant has paid a sum of Rs. 1,700,000 to the respondent and therefore the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court has misled himself when he decreed to recover the total amount stated in the prayer of the plaint. It was also averred that the appellant challenged the attestation of the mortgage bond. However, it is observed that neither the Notary Public who attested the bond nor the witnesses to the attestation have been called to give evidence by the appellant on this regard.

4. Although the above points were averred in the petition of appeal, at the hearing, the learned Counsel for the appellant failed to pursue any such ground of appeal against the judgment of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court.

5. At the hearing of this appeal, the learned Counsel for the respondent submitted that, none of the documents tendered in evidence by the respondent were challenged by the appellant at the trial. Further, the documents were not tendered by the appellant subject to proof. Further, the calculation of the moneys due to the respondent from the appellant were also not challenged and hence, the judgment of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court cannot be impeached.

6. Although no ground of appeal was pursued by the learned Counsel for the appellant at the hearing of this appeal, I propose to consider and discuss the matters raised in the petition of appeal and the written submissions filed on behalf of the appellant.

7. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that, according to the issue No. 14 that was raised at the trial, the respondent was unable to prove the validity of the mortgage bond on the basis that the mortgage bond in question has not been attested in terms of section 2 of the Prevention of Frauds Ordinance. This issue has been aptly discussed by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court in his judgment. As rightly concluded by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court, the mortgage bond in question has been produced in Court marked P-8 without any objection. It was not produced subject to proof. Hence, the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court, upon citing authorities, has rightly concluded that the mortgage bond has been proved, by the respondent.

8. It is pertinent to consider the transitional provision (section 3) of the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act No. 17 of 2022 that was certified on 23rd of June 2022. The said section 3 provides;

> "Notwithstanding anything contained in section 2 of this Act, and the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance, in any case or appeal pending on the date of coming into operation of this Act –
>
> (a) (i) if the opposing party does not object or has not objected to it being received as evidence on the deed or document being tendered in evidence; or
>
> (ii) if the opposing party has objected to it being received as evidence on the deed or document being tendered in evidence but not objected at the close of a case when such document is read in evidence,
>
> the court shall admit such deed or document as evidence without requiring further proof;
>
> (b) if the opposing party objects or has objected to it being received as evidence, the court may decide whether it is necessary or it was necessary as the case may be, to adduce formal proof of the execution or genuineness of any such deed or document considering the merits of the objections taken with regard to the execution or genuineness of such deed or document."

[Emphasis added]

9. When considering the above provision of law in light of this case, as the said mortgage bond was produced at the trial without objection, it is my view that the Court shall admit the same in evidence without requiring further proof. Further, as it is expressly stated in the above provision, this applies to pending appeals as well. Thus, it is applicable to the adjudication of the instant appeal. Hence, the argument raised by the appellant is devoid merit.

10. In his written submissions, the learned Counsel for the appellant has also taken up the position that the land that was mortgaged as the security for the loan is situated beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the Commercial High Court of Colombo and therefore, the Commercial High Court of Colombo is not the competent Court to hear and determine this case. This matter has also been sufficiently discussed by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court in his judgment. The initial contract for granting/obtaining the loan was signed in Colombo. Therefore, in terms of section 9 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Commercial High Court of Colombo clearly has the jurisdiction to hear and determine this case as the contract sought to be judicially enforced had been entered into within the territorial jurisdiction of Commercial High Court of Colombo. Thus, this ground too has no merit.

11. The learned Counsel of the appellant in his written submissions submitted that, the installment payments that were already paid by the appellant has not been given credit. This issue has also been sufficiently considered by the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court.

12. On behalf of the respondent, the accountant of the respondent company has given evidence, and the statement of accounts has also been submitted without any objection. The said document has not been produced subject to proof. No evidence was led by or on behalf of the appellant at the trial to show that the payments that he had already been made were not taken into consideration. Therefore, this ground also fails.

13. At the trial, the respondent has led clear evidence to prove the granting of the loan subject to a mortgage of the property which is mentioned in the mortgage bond and the failure on the part of the appellant to make the necessary installment payments that were due. Therefore, this Court has no reason to interfere with the judgement of the learned Judge of the Commercial High Court of Colombo dated 25.06.2013.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE E. A. G. R. AMARASEKERA.

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE YASANTHA KODAGODA, PC.

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Dharma S.Samaranayake,
No.150/1,
Moraketiya, Pannipitiya.

SC (CHC) Appeal No.60/2013
HC (Civil) No. 27/2008/IP

Plaintiff

Vs.

Sarasavi Publishers (Pvt) Limited,
No 30,
Stanley Thilakaratna Mawatha,
Nugegoda.

Defendant

AND NOW BETWEEN

Sarasavi Publishers (Pvt) Limited,
No 30,
Stanley Thilakaratna Mawatha,
Nugegoda.

Defendant- Petitioner/Appellant

Vs.

Dharma S.Samaranayake,
No.150/1,
Moraketiya, Pannipitiya.

Plaintiff- Respondent

Before: Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC J.
P. Padman Surasena, J. and
A.H.M.D. Nawaz, J.

Counsel: K.G Jinasena with D.K.V Jayanath for the Defendant-Petitioner
Asoka Serasinghe with Akalanka Serasinghe for Defendant – Respondent

Argued on: 29.01.2021

Decided on: 17.05.2023

Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC. J.

The defendant-appellant ("the defendant"/ "the appellant") preferred this Appeal against the judgement dated 17th May, 2013 of the Commercial High Court ("the High Court").

The High Court by the said judgement recognized the plaintiff-respondent ("the plaintiff"/ "the respondent") as the author of the book titled "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and went onto hold that the plaintiff Dharma S Samaranayake has the copyright for the said book and that the defendant Sarasavi Publishers (Pvt) Limited has infringed the economic rights of the plaintiff and directed the defendant, Sarasavi Publishers to pay a sum of Rs. 837,500/= as damages to the plaintiff for infringement of her economic rights.

The case presented by the plaintiff, albeit in brief before the High Court was

- that the plaintiff, a well-known journalist and the editor of a weekly sinhala newspaper and interested in local culinary methods was instrumental in introducing Publis Silva, a Cook at Mount Lavinia Hotel, (ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයෙහි අරක්කැමියෙකු) to the female newspaper readers;
- that in 2003 the plaintiff gathered material and information to publish a book on local culinary and that Publis Silva assisted (ව්‍යවහාරික සහයෝගය) and supported her by trying out recipes;
- that there was an understanding between the plaintiff and Publis Silva to title the book using the words "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා" and hence it was titled "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්";
- that chapters one to eleven of the book were compiled with material personally gathered by her through interviews with Publis Silva and others; that for chapter twelve she received positive support (සාධනීය සහයෝගය) from Publis Silva by trying out recipes; that chapters 14,15 and 16 were written and created solely by her and therefore the plaintiff has the copy right of the said book;
- that she requested the Sarasavi Publishers to publish "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", but did not enter into a formal agreement with the publishing company; that the book was launched on 25th June, 2005 and she received a sum of Rs 25,000/= as an advance payment for the 1st edition of the book. A copy of the 6th edition of the book (not the 1st) was annexed to the plaint dated 30th July, 2008 as P1;
- that subsequently she became aware that the defendant had published six editions without her express or implied consent and was getting ready to publish the 7th edition; that in March, 2008 she demanded royalty for the six editions; the defendant failed to pay her royalty but indicated that the defendant had entered into an agreement with Publis Silva for publication of the said book;

- that Publis Silva cannot write and has not written a single word of the said book and that she is the author of the book; that the defendant publishing company has failed to pay her royalty and thus infringed her economic rights;
- therefore, plaint was filed against the defendant publishing company, inter alia for a declaration that the plaintiff is the author of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and she has the copyright of the said book. Further she moved court for injunctive relief, royalty and compensation under Section 170(10) of the Intellectual Property Act No 36 of 2003 ("the IP Act") and in the interim for an enjoining order and interim injunction against the publication, distribution and sale of the book.

The High Court did not grant the plaintiff the enjoining order prayed for in the plaint dated 03rd December 2008 but issued notice on the publishing company pertaining to the interim relief. The defendant publishing company, filed objections to the grant of interim injunction sought by the plaintiff and contended:

- that the creator of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is Publis Silva and that the copyright of the book lies with Publis Silva;
- that the defendant has paid royalty to Publis Silva as expressly agreed between the parties and annexed a copy of the agreement (V2) and an affidavit from Publis Silva V5 to the objections;
- that plaintiff was only the editor of the book and she has been paid editorial fees (සංස්කාරක ගාස්තු) for such services by Publis Silva; and
- that prior to the 1st publication of the said book, upon the request of Publis Silva a sum of Rs. 25,000/= was given to the plaintiff by the defendant but the said sum of money was not an advance nor royalty as contended by the plaintiff and moved that the application for interim injunction be rejected.

On 19th February, 2009 the High Court delivered order refusing the plaintiff's application for interim relief.

Thereafter the trial began, evidence led and the learned judge of the High Court delivered judgement in favour of the plaintiff and granted the below mentioned relief:-

(i) a declaration that the plaintiff has the copyright for the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and the defendant has violated the plaintiff's economic rights;
(ii) a direction for the defendant to submit a full report of books printed and sold and a further declaration for the defendant to pay royalty upon the sales to the plaintiff;
(iii) a declaration for the defendant to pay a sum of Rs. 837,500/= to the plaintiff in terms of Section 170(10) of the IP Act; and
(iv) a permanent injunction preventing the defendant from publishing, distributing, possessing and sale of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

Being aggrieved by the said judgement, Sarasavi Publishers came before this Court challenging the said judgement on many grounds based upon facts and law and that is the matter that this Court is now called upon to determine in this appeal.

Prior to examining the said judgement. I wish to consider the copyright regime in Sri Lanka with a brief overview of what is "copyright".

'Copyright' deals with the rights of intellectual creators in their creation and originated with the creation of paper and vastly grew as a right with the development of the printing industry. 'Copyright' or 'authors right' is respected world over and blossomed during the medieval time both in the common law and civil law countries. It gained statutory force with the Statute of Anne enacted in England. During the period this country was governed by the British, common law norms on intellectual property which encompassed copyright, entered our domestic legal system through English statutes. We also became parties to many international conventions.

In 1908, we enacted our own statute, Copyright Ordinance which was followed by the Code of Intellectual Property in 1979. In 2003, the present Intellectual Property Act based on the frame work of international treaties and modernized to cater to global trends and specifically to safeguard the interests of owners and users of 'copyright' as well as its 'related rights' [or neighboring rights as it was termed earlier] was enacted.

Copyright consists of multiple rights. It is a bundle of different rights that spring from the 'works'. These rights can be 'assigned' or 'licensed' either as a whole or separately and independently by the 'owner of the copyright'.

However, there is no copyright in 'ideas' and subsists only in the material form in which the ideas are expressed. This gave rise to the "idea-expression dichotomy". In order to secure copy protection, the author must bestow upon the 'work' sufficient 'judgement, skill and labour or capital' or 'sweat of the brow' as certain jurisdictions refers to the test. The precise amount of 'judgement/knowledge, or skill and labour' that is required in order to acquire copyright cannot be defined in explicit terms. It depends on the speciality and facts of each case and is very much a subjective test.

There is no doubt that 'copyright' subsists in the original 'work' but 'originality' does not mean that the work must be of original or inventive thought. Nevertheless, the 'work' must not be copied from another 'work' and it should originate from the author.

Section 6(1) of our IP Act enumerates the 'works' protected in the literary, artistic or scientific domain ranging from books and speeches to illustrations and sketches. Section 6(2) specifies that the 'works' referred to in Section 6(1) is protected by the sole fact of its creation, irrespective of its mode or form of expression, as well as its content, quality and purpose.

Sections 9 and 10 of the IP Act bestows upon the 'owner of copyright' a series of exclusive rights to authorize certain acts termed 'economic rights' which include reproduction, adaptation and distribution of the works as well as an independent 'moral right'.

Section 13 gives the duration of copyright or the period upon which a work can be protected.

Section 14(1) indicates the 'original owner of economic rights' to be the 'author who created the work'. However, this is subject to certain restrictions more fully referred to in sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) of Section 14.

Section 15 clearly lays down the 'presumption of authorship' as the physical person whose name is indicated as the 'author' on a work. Section 16 provides for assignment or licensing of authors rights by the 'owner of the copyright'.

Section 22 details the rights of the 'owner of copyright' to seek remedy in a court of law and or to seek the intervention of the Director-General of Intellectual Property for dispute resolution, in the event any person infringes or is about to infringe any of the rights protected under the IP Act. Section 170 elaborates the infringement and the remedies in greater detail with regard to any of the recognized rights granted and safeguarded under the Intellectual Property Act which includes 'copyright'.

Having referred to the relevant provisions of the IP Act in a nutshell, let me now proceed to examine the 'work' which is in issue in this appeal. In my view, such an examination at the outset is crucial, in view of the nature of this 'work' and as the 'work' itself is a repository of material that answers many issues that crop up in this appeal.

The 'work' marked P3 at the trial, is the book titled "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", a cookery book in Sinhala consisting of 279 pages. (A literal translation of the title would be Mount Lavinia Hotel Publis Silva's Local Cuisine) It has a coloured removable outer jacket. The front cover prominently depicts the face of Publis Silva. He is in a chef's hat and his image covers the right half of the front cover. The words 'Mount Lavinia Hotel' embedded in the iconic building is depicted on the top left of the front cover. The title of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is in black printed at the bottom left, in four lines, top two lines in bold font and smaller.

The back cover of the book, on top indicate the title of the book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". The following statement appears right below the title:

> "ශ්‍රී ලංකාවේ විශිෂ්ටතම සූපවේදියා කවුරුන්දැයි කවරෙකු හෝ ඇසුවහොත් බොහෝ දෙනෙකුට එකවර සිහිපත් වනු ඇත්තේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ නමය. ගල්කිස්ස මහ හෝටලයේ ප්‍රධාන සූපවේදියා ලෙස ඔහු අද ශ්‍රී ලංකාව පුරාත්, ජාත්‍යන්තර ලෝකයේත් කීර්තියක් දිනූවෙකි. ගල්කිස්ස මහ හෝටලයේ අඟුරු ඇදීමේ රස්සාවට පැමිණ, එතැනින් අරක්කැමියෙකු ලෙස උසස් වී, කළමනාකාර ධූරයකට පත් වී, අවසානයේ නතරවූයේ එම හෝටලයේම අධ්‍යක්ෂවරයෙකු බවට පත්වීමෙනි. හතරවැනි පන්තියට ඉගෙන පහළම තලයකින් ආරම්භකොට ඉහළම තලයට ළඟා වූ ඔහු ධෛයර්මත් තනි මිනිසෙකු පිළිබඳ පූර්වාදර්ශයක් බදුය.
>
> පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා ශ්‍රී ලාංකික සූපවේදීන් අතර විශිෂ්ටත්වයට පත් වූයේ ඔහු මේ කලාව ඉතා මැනවින් ප්‍රගුණ කිරීම නිසා පමණක් නොවේ. ඔහු ශ්‍රී ලංකාවට ආවේණික ඉවුම් පිහිම් කලාවක් හඳුන්වා දීමට පුරෝගාමියා ද වූයේ ය....."

The bottom of the back cover depicts a picture of Publis Silva in chef kit cooking in front of a stove, holding a pan in one hand and a spoon in the other. The name of Sarasavi Publishers is depicted on to the right of the back cover.

The title of the book is repeated and depicted inside the book in the 1st page. It is conspicuously printed in black and standing alone in a very noticeable font. Similar to the front cover, the words "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ" is in slightly smaller font compared to the "හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". The name "පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ" is in bold type and clearly identifiable.

Whilst, the 2nd page is blank, the 3rd page also depicts the title of the book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", in similar font as the cover and 1st page and is at the very top. The words "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ" is slightly smaller to "හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and the words "පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ" is in black and eye catching.

The center of the 3rd page depicts in smaller lettering the name of the plaintiff, Dharma S Samaranayake as the editor (සංස්කරණය)and the bottom of the page depicts the name of the defendant, Sarasavi Publishers, its logo and the address.

The 4th page which is commonly referred to as the "title page" indicates in a clear and distinctive manner the following details: -

At the top

- The initial publication- March 2005
- ISBN No
- © Publis Silva [the holder of the copy right by the notation **"©"]

At the center

- Computer page formatting and type setting by Pushpananda Ekanayake of 'The Font Master' and address
- Cover page by Sisira Wijetunga

At the bottom

- Printed by Tharanji Prints and the address

The title page is followed by the 'editors note' (සංස්කාරකගේ සටහන). It runs into three pages, bearing page numbers 5, 6 and 7. (The numbering of the pages begins from page five).

In page 7, at the end of the 'editors note' the name of the plaintiff is indicated very clearly together with the address and contact details including the e-mail address.

At page 9, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා" pronounces his heart felt gratitude (ඔබ සැමට මාගේ භක්ති ප්‍රණාමය) and acknowledges many including the management of Mount Lavinia Hotel, the plaintiff and the defendant. Pages 8 and 10 are kept blank and at page 11, it signifies that the book is dedicated to the Chairman of Mount Lavinia Hotel, Sanath Ukwatta and all readers with an epicurean taste.

Page 12 depicts the index of the book, consisting of 14 chapters. Page 13 indexes the coloured photographs (in glossy finish) of 24 food styling, appearing in the book with the relevant page numbers. These food items range from Waraka Pudding to Tibbatu Curry.

Just below the heading 'Coloured Photographs' (වර්ණ ඡායාරූප පිටු), a statement acknowledging that the photographs are published with the courtesy of Mount Lavinia Hotel and all rights of the photographs taken by Sisira Wijetunga are reserved with Mount Lavinia Hotel is depicted. It prohibits reproduction of the photographs in any form, without prior written permission of Mount Lavinia Hotel.

Pages 14 to 16 is a ready reckoner to 378 recipes contained in Chapters 11,12 and 13 of the book. Chapter 11 heading 'Publis Special- Recipes Invented by Publis Silva' is followed by Chapters 12 and 13 general recipes and reader's recipes. These recipes spanning from pages 73 to 274 (200 pages) consist of the major part of the cook book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

Pages 14,15 and 16 of the 'work' i.e., the afore discussed index to the recipes reflected in chapters 11,12 and 13 is followed by Chapters 1 to 10. Whilst chapters 1 and 2 depicts the life of Publis Silva, a short commentary on food is found in chapters 3 to 10.

Chapter one, heading "මා ආ මාවන" is the auto biography of 'Publis Silva' beginning at page 17 and consists of 16 pages. In this chapter Publis Silva narrates in 'first person', his life story, his village, his family, his education, first job, journey to Colombo, first assignment at Mount Lavinia Hotel as a helper of the hotel kitchen, initial duty to carry coal to light the kitchen hearth and his gradual rise to the top and includes his foreign tours sponsored by Mount Lavinia Hotel. His assignment to serve at the table of the chairman of Mount Lavinia Hotel as well as a cook at the official residence of the Governor General is highlighted in this chapter and concludes by his special interest in 'enhancers' and 'curry powders' pre-dominantly used in Sri Lanka, which interest he says was awaken when in India.

Chapter one ends with the following statements which demonstrates Publis Silva's mission in life with regard to Sri Lankan cuisine.

> "මම ඒ වෙනස හඳුන්වා දුනිමි. මේ ආදී වශයෙන් මේ ග්‍රන්ථයේ වෙන්ව ඉදිරියේදී හඳුන්වාදෙන සූප ක්‍රම එක්රැස්කොට අපේ සූප කලාවේ ප්‍රමිතියක් සකස් කිරීම මගේ අරමුණයි." (page 33)

Chapter two of the book consisting four pages (page 34 to 36) is a continuation of the autobiography and depicts Publis Silva's interest in the culinary field, representing Mount Lavinia Hotel at foreign symposiums, conducting exhibitions for chefs of lesser known hotels and gives pride of place to UK Edmund, Chairman of Mount Lavinia Hotel for his (Publis Silva's) success in life.

These two chapters are followed by chapter 3- the history of culinary; chapter 4- food prior to Vijaya era; chapter 5- food and nutrition; chapter 6- the traditions around partaking of food; chapter 7- preparation of food; chapter 8- quality of food; chapter 9- food enhancers; chapter 10- health guide lines in preparing food; and chapter 14- cooking hints. These chapters 3 to 10 and 14 span through only 37 pages of the 279 page cook book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

The inner page of the front cover is a quotation from chapter 3 on history of food. The inner page of the back cover reads as follows:

"පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම් ශ්‍රී ලංකාවේ පළවන පළමු අංග සම්පූර්ණ සූප ශාස්ත්‍ර ග්‍රන්ථය යි. එය ඉවුම් පිහුම් කලාවේ ස්වදේශික ලකුණක් ඇති කළ, ශ්‍රී ලාංකික අනන්‍යතාවක් බිහි කළ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා සූපවේදියාගේ ප්‍රථම ග්‍රන්ථය යි. මෙතෙක් විවිධ විද්‍යුත් හා මුද්‍රිත ජනමාධ්‍ය මගින් සූපවේදය පිළිබඳ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ විශේෂඥභාවය අනාවරණය කරගෙන ඇතත් එය ග්‍රන්ථයකට ගොණුවන ප්‍රථම අවස්ථාව මෙය යි..." (emphasis added)

From the foregoing and on a careful examination of the 'work' in dispute, and specifically the title page, it is demonstratively seen that the copyright of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" lies with Publis Silva. Title page clearly and unequivocally notes by the notation "©" Publis Silva, that the copyright of this book, first published in March 2005, is with Publis Silva.

There is also no ambiguity that the 'editor' of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is the plaintiff, Dharma S Samaranayake. Page 3 of the book and the 'editor's note' at pages 5 to 7, clearly recognize and refer to the 'editor', Dharma S Samaranayake, the plaintiff in the instant case.

Thus, prima facie, the 'work' in issue, edited by Dharma S Samaranayake bestows the copyright of the book upon Publis Silva.

However, the finding of the learned High Court Judge was that the plaintiff is entitled to copyright of the book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

In this appeal the crux of the issue to be determined by this Court is, did the High Court Judge err when it came to the finding, that the owner of the 'copyright' of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is the plaintiff, and if so, did the High Court err in granting relief to the plaintiff?

Having referred to the factual matrix of the 'work' in dispute, let me now move over to the legal provisions governing the matter before us. i.e., Part II of the Intellectual Property Act, consisting of two chapters, chapter I- 'copy right' and chapter II- 'related rights'. Whilst sections 5 to 16 discussed in this judgement falls within chapter I- copy right, Section 22 pertaining to remedies is placed ironically in chapter II, the related rights chapter.

In terms of the interpretation section i.e., Section 5, the word 'author' means the physical person who created the work and in terms of Section 14(1) of the IP Act, the 'original ownership' of the 'economic rights' in a work is with the 'author' who created the work. This presumption however, is subject to three exemptions referred to in sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) of the said section 14, viz joint ownership, collective work and in the course of another's employment, where the 'original authorship' will lie with the co-authors, or the physical person at the initiative and or under the direction of whom the work was created or the employer, subject to the provisions referred to in the said sub-sections respectively.

In terms of Section 15(1) the physical person whose name is indicated as the 'author' on a work in the usual manner, is presumed to be the 'author' of the work, unless proved otherwise.

The above sections clearly denote that in a 'work' the 'author' indicated therein, is the 'holder of the copyright' and upon whom the economic rights are bestowed.

In "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" the work in dispute, there is no person indicated and identified as an 'author'. Thus, the question for determination is who owns the copyright of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්"?

Is it the copyright holder signified by the notation "©" or the editor or the compiler or a 3rd party?

In order to ascertain an answer to the said question, I wish to examine the 'work' in greater detail.

The title page (page 4) clearly identifies that the copyright of the book is bestowed upon Publis Silva by the notation **"©".

In page 3, the role of the plaintiff has been clearly and precisely recognized and acknowledged as the 'editor' (සංස්කරණය). The plaintiff has penned the editor's note (සංස්කාරකගේ සටහන) running into three pages and has categorically accepted that she is doing so as the 'editor'.

The editor's note begins at page 5 with the following words, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම් නමැති ග්‍රන්ථයේ සංස්කරණය වෙනුවෙන් සටහනක් තබනු පිණිස". At page 7, the editor Dharma S. Samaranayake profusely thanks Publis Silva whom she accepts as the 'true owner' of the book (මේ සත්ක්‍රියාවේදී පලමුවෙන්ම මාගේ ස්තුතිය පිරිනමන්නේ මේ ග්‍රන්ථයේ සැබෑ හිමිකරුවා වන පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා මහතාටය)

Publis Silva too, at page 9 in his appreciation and acknowledgement, (ඔබ සැමට මාගේ භක්ති ප්‍රණාමය) values the contribution made by the plaintiff in the following manner "මෙවන් ග්‍රන්ථයක් ඔබ අතට පත්කිරීමට මා යොමු කළ ධර්මා එස්. සමරනායක මාධ්‍යවේදිනිය"

The back cover and the inner back cover of the book (quoted earlier in this judgement), clearly acknowledge that this is the 1st book of Publis Silva, a renowned chef who has given a Sri Lankan identity to the culinary field and goes onto explain his vision to bring out this book. Publis Silva's vision and mission is more fully referred to in chapters one and two.

In my view, the information and the specific details narrated above, distilled and elicited from the 'work' itself, sheds sufficient light to establish and answer the principal question in issue in this appeal viz, who is the original 'owner of the copyright' of the work "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". It is non-other than Publis Silva himself.

Further, the 1st edition of this book was published in March 2005 and was launched at a ceremony held on 06th April, 2005 at the BMICH. The four page invitation for the event (in Sinhala and English) marked at the trial as V3 (pages 425-428 of the brief) indicate thus;

> "The internationally famous chef of Mount Lavinial Hotel, Publis Silva launches his book ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්"

Upon perusal of the invitation it is observed that at the launch, an address by Dharma S Samaranayake, the 'compiler' (සම්පාදිකා) of the book was slotted in as the penultimate item.

The plaintiff filed this action on 30th July, 2008 praying for royalty and moving for enjoining order and interim injunction, three years after the launch and publication of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". By then the 6th edition was published and a copy of the 6th edition was annexed to the plaint by the plaintiff.

On 19th February, 2009 the High Court after hearing the parties rejected the plaintiff's prayer for interim relief. On 16th November, 2009 the trial began and admissions and issues based on specific and general grounds raised. Whilst the trial was proceeding on 01st April, 2010 the plaintiff filed the 1st edition of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" published in March 2005 in court (vide pages 132 - 136 of the brief)

It is observed, this 1st edition filed subsequently, is an autographed copy (page 135 of the brief) dated 06th April 2005 i.e. the date of launch of the 1st edition of the 'work'. It is an established practice, that at a book launch, the book is autographed by the author. The signature appearing in the autographed copy is difficult to decipher but resembles the signature that is appearing at pages 90 and 131 of the brief, i.e. of "ී. පබ්ලිස්", reflected in the affidavit (V5) tendered by Publis Silva to court dated 03rd September, 2008 and in the agreement (V2) executed between Publis Silva and the defendant Sarasavi Publishers dated 22nd October, 2003. In fact, the plaintiff in her cross-examination (which will be discussed later) admitted the signature of Publis Silva appearing in the agreement V2, executed between Publis Silva as the 'author' and the Sarasavi Publications as the 'publisher.'

Another significant factor that drew my attention in this appeal, is the assertion of the plaintiff at paragraphs 13 to 15 of the plaint, that chapters 1-11 and 14 - 16 of the book were compiled by her exclusively, whereas in compiling chapter 12 she received positive support from Publis Silva. However, upon perusal of the book "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" it appears, the said assertion is factually incorrect. The 'work' amply demonstrates that this book has only 14 chapters and not 16 as reflected in the plaint and chapter 1 and 2 is the life story of Publis Silva and chapter 11 is a compilation of recipes under the heading 'Publis Special' wherein Publis Silva has been acknowledged clearly and precisely as the inventor and creator (පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ අත්හදා බැලීම්) of the said recipes. Further, the date of the launch of the 1st edition is erroneously stated in the plaint as 25th June, 2005.

The above factors clearly denote that the plaintiff filed the instant case, seeking ownership of copy right, three years after its 1st edition and even after the 6th edition was published, without annexing a copy of the 1st edition and alluding to facts which are demonstratively incorrect as seen from the 'work' itself which was led in evidence as P3.

At the trial, the plaintiff gave evidence and the main contention of the plaintiff was that the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" was written by her and that Publis Silva cannot write (ඔහුට රචනා ශෛලියක් නැහැ, ලියන්නත් බැහැ- page 627 of the brief) and that the script handed over to the publisher was in her hand writing and therefore the copyright of the 'work' should be hers.

In cross-examination the plaintiff admitted her role as the 'editor' in the following manner:

ප්‍ර- මම අහන්නේ මුළු පොතම?
උ- ලිව්වේ මම. එයා කිව්වම මම ගැලපෙන විදියට ලිව්වා.
ප්‍ර- ඒක සංස්කාරකගේ කාර්යභාරය?
උ- පිළිතුරක් නැත (page 683 of the brief)

Further, she admitted the signature of Publis Silva in the agreement (V2) executed between Publis Silva as 'author' and Sarasavi Publishers as the 'publisher', wherein the said two parties agreed to publish 'a compilation of recipes' in Sinhala titled 'ගල්කිස්ස මහ හෝටලයේ සිංහල සූප විධි' (the title of the book being subject to change to one of very similar title) dealing particularly with recipes of food prepared at the Mount Lavinia Hotel under T. Publis Silva's guidance. By the said agreement the parties i.e., Publis Silva and Sarasavi Publishers, specifically agreed that the 'author' Publis Silva will be entitled to a payment of royalty of 15% of the sale price of the book.

In cross-examination, the plaintiff also admitted that many books authored by her had been published by Sarasavi Publishers. One such book was produced at the trial marked V6 (vide pages 429 - 574 of the brief). It was titled "දහකාරයන්ගේ වික්‍රමය (12) - ගිනිමැලයෙන් ආ අමුත්තෝ" and was published in March 2008, prior to filling of the plaint in the instant case. It is clearly seen that in the said book in the title page, the holder of the copyright is signified by the notation "©" and is the plaintiff herself. The plaintiff in her cross-examination admitted that the defendant publishing company has paid royalty to her for the said publication.

On behalf of the plaintiff, a Sinhala scholar gave evidence. He stated that he provided source material to the plaintiff to compile chapter 4 and that he is identified and acknowledged by name at the end of chapter 4. The said chapter consists of four pages and is on history of food prior to Vijaya's period. He also gave expert opinion in relation to the meaning of the words 'author' (කර්තෘ) and 'editor' (සම්පාදක) and contended it was one and the same.

For the defendant, the Managing Director of Sarasavi Publishers gave evidence. His evidence pertained to discussions between the parties, namely Publis Silva, Management of Mount Lavinia Hotel, the plaintiff and the defendant, publishing company, in relation to the compilation and other matters connected thereto prior to publication of the 'work' P3.

In the affidavit tendered in evidence, at the trial, this witness referred to three other cook books published by Publis Silva and annexed copies of same to his affidavit. The High Court rejected the marking and production of the said cook books, upon the ground that though the said cook books were listed in an additional list of witnesses and documents, such list was not filed of record prior to the commencement of the trial. Court also made order that the said cook books could be produced only if Publis Silva gives evidence. However, this witness (the Managing Director) in his evidence contended that the said cook books are in the public domain and one such book titled "Authentic Sri Lankan Cuisine of Publis Silva", a cook book printed in English, edited by Piyasiri Nagahawatte was published by Sarasavi Publications in 2011. The holder of the copyright of the said book "Authentic Sri Lankan Cuisine of Publis Silva" is Publis Silva and it is clearly acknowledged by the notation "©" in the book itself, as per the practice of the printing trade, the witness contended.

The 2nd witness for the defendant was a former employee of Sarasavi Publishes. He was the Manager, Publications during the period "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" was published. This witness gave evidence in relation to the discussions that took place prior to the publication of the works between Management of Mount Lavinia Hotel, Publis Silva, the plaintiff and himself representing the defendant company; the reservations made by Mount Lavinia Hotel with regard to the photographs in food styling to be included in the 'work' and also referred to the agreement (V2) which was executed between Publis Silva and Sarasavi Publishers in 2003, wherein he signed as one of the witnesses and identified the signature of the other witness by name as the representative from Mount Lavinia Hotel who was instrumental in the aforesaid discussions. He also gave evidence with regard to the contents of the (V2) agreement, the change of title of the 'work' and royalty granted to Publis Silva considering his expertise regarding the said book. In cross-examination, although a valiant attempt was made on behalf of the plaintiff to discredit this witness alleging that the agreement was an after-thought, the witness was unwavering in his evidence and stood his ground. At the time of giving evidence this witness averred, he was not in the employment of the defendant company but at another leading publishing company.

Having referred to the evidence led at the trial, let me now move onto examine the impugned judgement.

The learned judge of the High Court came to the finding that the plaintiff is the copyright holder of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" mainly upon the ground that the defendant Sarasavi Publishers, failed to call Publis Silva as a witness to substantiate its contention that the reproduction rights of the 'work' was assigned to the defendant publishing company by Publis Silva.

The learned judge went onto hold that by not calling Publis Silva and leading his evidence, the defendant failed to rebutt the evidence given by the plaintiff that the 'work' was the plaintiff's own creation. The learned judge also held, the defendant company failed to establish that the plaintiff was employed as an 'editor' by Publis Silva; that plaintiff was paid editorial fees (සංස්කාරක ගාස්තු) for editing of the book by Publis Silva and especially the sum of Rs. 25,000/= (admittedly given to the plaintiff by the defendant) was editorial fees given on behalf of Publis Silva and upon Publis Silva's specific request and not per se by the defendant company.

The learned judge did not consider as relevant, the facts and assertions made by the plaintiff in the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" itself, especially the 'editor's note' penned by the plaintiff stating that the 'true owner of the book is Publis Silva' and that 'she (the plaintiff) is penning a few words only as the editor'.

In the judgement the learned judge re-iterated the failure of the defendant to call Publis Silva, as a material fact to establish that the plaintiff was paid to do a job as the 'editor' and specifically considered it as a significant factor in deciding this case for the plaintiff. The learned judge also accepted the contention of the plaintiff, that Publis Silva cannot write simply because Publis Silva did not rebutt the said position. (ඒ අනුව පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාට ලිවීමට නොහැකි බවට පැමිණිලිකාරිය පවසන විට පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා පැමිණ ඊට ප්‍රතිවිරුද්ධ කාරණා නොකියන විට, ඉහත කෘති ඔහු නමින් තිබීම තුලින්ම ඒවා ඔහු තම ලේඛන හැකියාවෙන් ලියූ ලෙස සැලකීම අසීරුය.)

The learned judge also glosses over the facts discussed earlier in this judgement pertaining to chapters 1 and 2 of the 'work' i.e., it is written in the 1st person and it is the autobiography of Publis Silva; the narration in the back cover page that this is Publis Silva's 1st complete book on culinary methods; and the wording in the invitation for the launch of the 'work', 'that internationally famous Chef of Mount Lavinia Hotel Publis Silva launches his book' as factors that are irrelevant in coming to a finding regarding the 'holder of the copyright' of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", the matter in dispute.

Further, more, the learned judge rejects the affidavit filed by Publis Silva (V5), the agreement (V2) executed by Publis Silva and the defendant publishing company and the other cook books published by Publis Silva which are said to be in the public domain, upon the basis of Publis Silva not being present before court to substantiate such facts. The learned judge goes on to assert that the name of Publis Silva was used in the title of the 'work' with or without the knowledge of the plaintiff by the defendant, because of its 'brand name' and in order to increase the sales. (මෙම කෘතිය අලෙවි කිරීම සඳහා මෙය පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ කෘතියක් ලෙස දැක්වීම සඳහා ප්‍රකාශකයා වන විත්තිකරු සමහර විට පැමිණිලිකාරියගේද අනුදැනුම හා සහයෝගය ඇතිව භාවිතා කළා වීමට බොහෝ ඉඩ කඩ ඇත). Thus, the learned judge asserts that the defendant publishing company has infringed the plaintiff's economic rights.

The learned judge concludes his findings referring to the use of the notation "©" and holding that the law does not require such a notation and goes on to hold that in any event the use of the notation "©" is not the work of the plaintiff but of the defendant Sarasavi Publishers. The learned judge makes no reference regarding the book authored by the plaintiff (V6) marked and produced at the trial, wherein admittedly the notation "©" is depicted and the plaintiff paid royalty as the copyright holder, by the very same publisher, the defendant Sarasavi Publications.

Thus, based upon the evidence of the plaintiff, which the learned judge re-iterates was not rebutted by Publis Silva, a finding is made firstly, that the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is the creation of the plaintiff and secondly, that the plaintiff is the 'author' of the publication and 'holder of the copy right' and thus, grants the following relief prayed for by the plaint to the plaintiff, namely,

(i) prayer (a) and (b)

- a declaration that the plaintiff is the author of the 'work' and that the defendant publisher has infringed her economic rights;

(ii) prayer (c) and (d)

- a direction for the defendant to tender a report regarding the total sales and a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to royalty payable by the defendant;

(iii) prayer (e)

- a sum of Rs. 837,500.00 to be paid by the defendant to the plaintiff as damages, computed on the basis of 10% royalty, on books printed per edition x sale price x number of editions less advance paid; and

(iv) prayer (g)

- a permanent injunction preventing the defendant from printing, distributing, possessing and selling the 'works' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

The computation of damages detailed in the judgement is given below: -

- Total sale proceeds = [Number of books per edition x number of editions x sale price]

  = 2000 x 6x Rs 700/= = Rs 8,400,000/=

- Royalty = [10% of sales]

  = Rs. 8,400,000/= x 10% = Rs 840,000/=

- Damages = [Royalty – advance paid]

  = Rs 840,000/= - 25,000/= = Rs 837,500/=

At the hearing before this Court, the submissions of the counsel for the appellant publishing company was as follows:

- that the learned High Court judge failed to analyse the evidence adduced at the trial with regard to the plaintiffs' role as the 'editor' of the 'work';
- that the learned judge failed to consider the evidence vis-a-vis the provisions of Section 14(3) and 14(4) of the IP Act;
- the plaintiff failed to establish the authority she received and/or her relationship with Publis Silva to publish Publis Silva's 'ideas' in the 'work' and to use Publis Silva's picture and name in the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", by way of an express or implied contract or agreement or even as a 'common understanding' between the parties;
- that the learned judge failed to consider the delay and the silence of the plaintiff for more than two years, which creates a doubt regarding the genuineness of the cause of action; and
- that the plaintiff has failed to name Publis Silva as a party to the instant action.

Further the learned Counsel relied upon the judgements of University of London Press Ltd v. University Tutorial Press Ltd [1916] 2 Ch 601; Macmillan and Co. Ltd v. Cooper (1924) 40 TLR 186; and JD Fernando v. Gamlath - S.C/CHC/04/2011- BASL LJ [2011] Vol XVII p.251-254 to substantiate its position.

Countering the said submissions, the counsel for the respondent took up the position,

- based upon Section 5 of IP Act the plaintiff is the owner of the copyright;

- the defendant publishing company has failed to call Publis Silva to establish that the 'work' was a 'commissioned work'; and
- the compensation granted by the High Court based on six editions is insufficient as there were twelve editions of the 'work' published.

Having referred to the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", the impugned judgement, the submissions of the counsel for the appellant and the respondent, it is clear that Publis Silva plays a major role in the instant case. This brings me to the pivotal issue to be determined by this Court. Who is the 'copyright holder' of the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්"?

JAL Sterling in his renowned work, "World Copyright Law" [2nd ed] emphasizes as follows:

> "The word 'copyright' means many things to many people. To some it signifies a component of the rights of man deriving from natural law and sustaining the work of the human mind by protecting authors in respect of all uses of their works. To others it represents a commercially inspired monopoly for the better regulation of the exploitation of the author's works in the market place. In between are other concepts, each with its own philosophical and juridical justifications."

The law of copyright protects 'work' which are created as a result of an individual's creativity. Thus, it concerns the 'creators', literary and artistic creations and safe guards the legitimate interests of the 'users' of such creation. These concepts were originally embodied in the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works and are the main ingredients and the rationale underlying the protection of copyright, which have now entered domestic legal systems.

Granting of copyright therefore is in the nature of a privilege granted by law to certain types of creative works. Its primary purpose is to foster originality in literary, artistic and scientific productions and to afford legal protection to the authors. The goal of the provisions pertaining to copyright seems to be to encourage creation of and facilitate public access to works of intellectual interest to society. [See: Vasantha Obeysekara v. A.C.Alles - CA No. 730/92F dated 22-03-2000].

In University of London Press Ltd v. University Tutorial Press Ltd (supra) Peterson, J., at page 608 observed:

> "The word 'originality' does not in this connection mean that the work must be the expression of original or inventive thought. Copyright Acts are not concerned with the originality of ideas but with the expression of thought. [..] But the Act does not require that the expression must be in an original or novel form, but that the work must not be copied from another work, that it should originate from the author".

In Macmillan and Co. Ltd., v. Cooper (supra) Lord Atkinson at page 190 observed:

> "What is the precise amount of knowledge, labour, judgement or literary skill or taste which the author of any book or compilation must bestow upon its composition in order to acquire copyrights within the meaning of the Copyright Act of 1911, cannot be defined in precise terms. In every case it must depend largely on the special facts of that case, and in each case be very much a question of degree."

The above observations have been re-iterated by our appellate courts time and time again [See: Wijesinghe Mahanamahewa and another v. Austin Canter [1986] 2 Sri LR 154; JD Fernando v. Gamlath [2011] 1 Sri LR 273 and Director Department of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources and others v. Aloy Fernando and others SC/CHC/Appeal 30/2006 S.C.M. 10-09-2018]

In order to establish 'creativity' and 'ownership of a copyright' which is distinctive from authorship, the factors to be proved and evidence to be led on skill, labour and knowledge would depend and vary on the special facts of each case and is very much a subjective test.

In Fernando v. Gamlath (supra) this Court clearly identified and recognized the reputation of a singer and went onto state that there has to be a way of safeguarding the rights of original artists, composers and singers especially when a singer has achieved a reputation which would be recognized from generation to generation.

In my view, such recognition could extend to a chef too, like in the instant case and his creations and copy right safeguarded for generations, regardless of him being able to read or write, educated or not so educated, a 'cook' (අරක්කැමියකු) rising up from humble beginnings or a chef (සූපවේදියකු) who has made an indelible mark in the culinary field here and overseas.

In a 'work', identification of the 'author' is paramount in deciding who the owner of the copyright is, since the author is entitled to not only 'economic rights' but 'moral rights' too, as guaranteed by Sections 9 and 10 of the IP Act. To have the name of the author indicated in a work prominently is a 'moral right' and such right is not transmissible during the lifetime of the author. It is independent to the economic rights and will exist even after the author of the work has assigned the economic rights to another.

In the case before us, as discussed in detail earlier in this judgement, an 'author' is not identified in the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". However, in the title page, the holder of copyright is clearly and precisely identified by the notation "©", namely as "Publis Silva".

The case presented by the plaintiff is that she is the author, whereas the 'work' itself only recognizes her as the 'editor'. The plaintiff is suing the defendant publishing company for royalty, and the contention of the publishing company is Publis Silva, the 'holder of the copyright', has assigned the re-production and publishing rights of the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" to the defendant publishing company.

The plaintiff did not name or bring Publis Silva with whom she alleges she had an understanding (පොදු එකඟතාව) to this case either as a party for notice only or as a necessary party to justify her contention that she is the 'author' of the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". Similarly, the plaintiff did not call or lead the evidence of Publis Silva as a witness, for the plaintiff to establish her contention or to challenge Publis

Silva for using the notation "©" in the 'work' in dispute, which she contends is her creation and upon which she claims she is entitled to royalty as the 'author' and 'holder of copyright'.

In my view, the plaintiff's failure to call or name Publis Silva who is a key player and literally adorns the 'work' cover to cover is a material fact that the learned judge has missed, ignored, and not considered in coming to its finding. It is more so and propound, since Publis Silva who was hitherto acknowledged and paid royalty as the holder of the copyright of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" for six editions, has now been deprived of that right and privilege without hearing him, which goes against the grundnome of the rule of law.

The gravity and importance in bringing the necessary parties before court, time and time again enunciated by this Court. In the said backdrop, I wish to look at the case law pertaining to the copyright regime in Sri Lanka (especially civil) to ascertain and identify the necessary parties that have been brought before our Courts, as defendants, in matters pertaining to infringement of copyrights.

In Mahanama hewa v. Canter (supra), the dispute related to two publications authored by the plaintiff and the 1st defendant on sinhala shorthand. The plaintiff alleged, that his copyright has been infringed by the 1st defendant and the question of originality of the work was the matter in issue and both parties were before Court and heard in determining the issue on 'originality'.

In Fernando v. Gamlath (supra) the dispute related to a musical composition of a renowned singer, plaintiff's late husband, which was alleged to be infringed by the defendant by distorting and using it in a teledrama without the permission of the plaintiff the holder of the copyright. In this case too, both parties were represented and heard prior to judgment being pronounced.

In Ariyawathie Senadheera and another v. Shantha Senadheera and another SC/CH/Appeal 40/2010 S.C.M. 22-06-2017 the dispute revolved around a book titled "නූතන චිත්‍ර කලාවේ රසික සංකල්ප" authored by Kulanatha Senadheera an artist and scholar. Upon his death, a 2nd edition was published and the heirs of the author sued the alleged copyright holder the 1st defendant, [a relative who was signified by the notation "©" in the relevant publication viz the 2nd edition] and two others. The 1st defendant i.e. copyright holder, denied he was the copyright holder though cited by the notation "©" in the 2nd edition and acknowledged Kulanatha Senadheera as the copyright holder. The plaintiff thereafter did not pursue the case against the 1st defendant (whose name was signified by the notation "©") as well as the 3rd defendant, the publisher of the book and proceeded only against the 2nd defendant a nephew of the author, who was alleged to be directly responsible for the publication of the 2nd edition, without the express authority of the heirs of the deceased author. The High Court, having heard the evidence of the plaintiff and the 2nd defendant and taking into consideration the stand of the 1st and 3rd defendants, dismissed the application of the plaintiff pursued against the 2nd defendant. This decision was upheld by the Supreme Court. Thus, in this case too, the necessary parties were before court and heard prior to dismissal of the plaint.

In Director, Department of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources and others v. Aloy Fernando (supra), the Department of fisheries called tenders for a 'compilation of fishing crafts, gear and methods' for a UNDP project. The plaintiff and another person were hired for the said project by the Department of Fisheries and the said two persons submitted a report, 'a compilation' under their name. This report was published by the Department of Fisheries and in the 'published work', the plaintiff and the co-authors names were not included nor acknowledged, which ensued in the plaintiff filing this case against the defendant, Department of Fisheries, praying for a declaration that the plaintiff and the other, were the 'co-authors' of the 'published works'. Hereto, the court heard both parties who were before court prior to granting relief to the plaintiff.

From the foregoing it is apparent that all relevant and necessary parties have been brought before court as parties, represented and heard, prior to the trial court coming to a finding, regarding the ownership of the copyright and consequently the infringement of the copyright of the 'work' per se, in the cases referred to above.

In the instant case the main actor, the copyright holder, has not been brought before court as a party nor heard, prior to delivery of the judgement. Thus, an important link is missing in the equation. The learned High Court judge goes on the basis, that the defendant publishing company, did not bring Publis Silva to establish its defence. Is it the responsibility of the defendant or the plaintiff? Where does the burden lie?

The stand of the defendant publishing company is that the reproduction or the publishing rights were assigned to it by the 'creator' and the 'copyright holder' of the 'work' as evince by the agreement (V2) executed between Publis Silva and the defendant publishing company. Plaintiff is challenging the said position and states, she as the 'author' entered into an understanding with the defendant, to reproduce the 'work'. Then shouldn't the plaintiff first establish the said position. i.e., that she is the author and she entered into an agreement to assign and/or license the defendant publishing company, to exploit her economic rights?

In my view, the plaintiff's real dispute appears to be not with the defendant publishing company but with Publis Silva himself who is recognized and identified by the notation "©" as the holder of the copyright of the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

In the impugned judgement, it is clearly seen that the 'work'"ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" per se, i.e., the introductory pages, the title page, the front and back cover and its contents have not been examined by the learned judge. Nevertheless, based only on the evidence of the plaintiff and the assumption that the defendant failed to call Publis Silva to rebutt the evidence of the plaintiff and considering it to be the key element, the High Court judge gave judgement for the plaintiff accepting her as the 'author' and 'copyright holder' of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

Thus, the queries that need answer in the first instance or in other words, the threshold issues this Court should determine is, who is the creator? Who should call Publis Silva? Is it the plaintiff or the defendant? Who should establish the case in order to obtain the relief prayed for? On whom does the burden of proof lie to substantiate the claim? Has the plaintiff proved the instant case on balance of probability or has the plaintiff failed to establish her contention?

In my view, Publis Silva is a necessary party to the instant matter, and the plaintiff has failed to name him as a party or call him as a witness to justify her contention that she is the author and the copyright holder, especially, since the 'work' prominently carry the notation "©" and bestows the copy right on Publis Silva. The defendant is only the publishing company and has no role to play in respect of the dispute pertaining to copyright between the plaintiff and Publis Silva. The significance in the plaintiff not bringing Publis Silva as a party or a witness to the instant case is greater, than the defendant calling him, as a witness to rebut the plaintiff's evidence as opined by the learned judge, since the burden lies on the plaintiff to establish her case. Moreover, the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", specifically acknowledges and identifies Publis Silva as the 'holder of copyright' by the notation "©" and that fact too, has to be negated by the plaintiff. Hence, my considered view is that the plaintiff has failed to discharge the burden of proof and thus, failed to establish the case for the plaintiff.

Regarding to the notation "©", the learned High Court Judge determined, it is not relevant, since our IP Act does not mandate such a notation. There is no dispute that our IP Act does not recognize registration of a 'copyright' with a state authority or in a particular register. Our law based on the Berne Convention and common law concepts protects the 'works' from its creation as opposed to other jurisdictions where registration is mandatory. Section 6(2) of the IP Act provides that the 'specified works' referred to in Section 6(1) is protected by the sole fact of its creation and irrespective of its mode or form of expression, as well as its content, quality and purpose. Nevertheless, the publishing companies in Sri Lanka uses the notation "©", to indicate the ownership of copyright following global trends.

In Ariyawathie Senadheera v. Shantha Senadheera (supra), the copyright acknowledged by the notation "©" was the matter in issue and this Court considered such notation in arriving at its determination. Hence, there is judicial precedence to rely on such notation and in my view the learned High Court judge erred in rejecting the notation "©" in limine and more so, what it symbolizes, namely, that the copyright holder of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is Publis Silva.

Another factor that the counsel for the appellant drew the attention of this Court was the learned judge's failure to distinguish "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" with a book authored by the plaintiff herself titled, "දහකාරයන්ගේ විකුමය" (V6) and published by Sarasavi Publications. This Court observes, that the very same Dharma S. Samaranayake the plaintiff, has been acknowledged as the copyright holder by the notation "©" in the title page of the said book (V6) and paid royalty for her creation by Sarasavi Publishers, the very same defendant before this Court.

We also observe, that the learned judge has failed to appreciate the evidence of the 1st witness for the defendant, the Managing Director of Sarasavi Publishers, who referred to another cook book published by Sarasavi Publishes, titled "Authentic Sri Lanka Cuisine by Publis Silva" wherein too, the notation "©" is used, acknowledging that the copyright of the said book is with Publis Silva.

Hence, in my view, though the IP Act does not require any formality relating to 'copyright' it is evident in the publishing trade that the symbol "©" is vastly used to denote the holder of copyright and use of the said notation "©" has become a trade practice. Ironically, it has been used even in a book authored by the plaintiff (V6) herself, as discussed earlier.

DM Karunaratne, in his book "An Introduction to the Law of Copyright and Related Rights in Sri Lanka" at page 39 observes as follows:

> "The Indian Copyright Act for example, provides for registration of a copyright but it is not mandatory and is only prima facie evidence as it being entered in the Register of Copyright. In the United States of America, an action for infringement of copyright cannot be initiated unless the copyright is registered, subject to an exemption in respect of a work covered by the Berne Convention and work in question has been created in a country other than the United States of America".

I am also mindful that our IP Act by Section 26, has extended the scope of the application of our copyright and related rights law to non-nationals and to 'works' that are protected in accordance with any international convention or agreement to which Sri Lanka is a party.

Thus, a harmonized legal framework on copyright through increased legal certainty, while providing for a high level of protection of intellectual property will foster creativity. Hence, a consideration for trade practice, especially the use and significance of the notation "©", without rejection in toto, in my view would auger well, for both the creators and the printing industry of this country.

In the said circumstances, especially when the 'work' itself acknowledges, by the notation "©" that the 'copy right holder' is Publis Silva, the failure of the plaintiff to name Publis Silva as a party to this case and more so, the failure of the plaintiff to call Publis Silva as a witness are relevant factors which should have been addressed by the learned judge, prior to coming to a finding on the question of copyright, since the paramount duty of a judge is to ascertain the truth at a trial.

In the instant case, the learned judge not only held that the plaintiff was the 'author' and 'copyright holder' and directed the publishing company to pay royalty to the plaintiff on the assumption that the ownership of the copyright of "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" is with the plaintiff but deprived Publis Silva, of his copyright without hearing him. The learned judge, came to such a conclusion, when Publis Silva is expressly acknowledged in the 'work' as the copyright holder by the notation "©" and moreover, when Publis Silva has been enjoying such right for the past nine years, flowing though many editions of the 'work'. The gravity of the finding of the learned judge, becomes significant since there is an express agreement (V2) before court implying that the rights of the copyright holder for publishing and reproduction of the 'work' had been assigned to the defendant publishing company by Publis Silva himself even prior to the publication of the 1st edition of the 'work'.

Thus, I see merit in the submissions of the appellant, that the High Court judge failed to analyse the evidence before court in determining the ownership of the copyright of the work "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". It is also observed that the learned judge failed to appreciate the role of the plaintiff i.e., as the 'editor' of the work "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" vis-a-vis the copyright holder and more so, when the 'work' was a compilation and a compilation of recipes - a cook book. The mere fact of providing assistance in an abstract level as an editor or compiler, in my view will not entitle a person or a party to claim creativity of a 'work' and more so, the ownership of copyright of the said 'work'.

The learned counsel for the appellant as his next submission drew the attention of this court to Section 14(3) and 14(4) of IP Act and contended that the learned judge has failed to analyse the provisions of the said sub-sections vis-a-vis the evidence led in arriving at the finding that the copyright of the work is with the plaintiff.

The said sub-sections read as follows:

> Section 14(3) - In respect of a collective work, the physical person [...]at the initiative and under the direction of whom or which the work has been created shall be the original owner of the economic rights.
>
> Section 14(4) - In respect of a work created by an author employed by a physical person [...] the original owner of the economic rights shall, unless provided otherwise by way of a contract, be the employer. If the work is created pursuant to a commission, the original owner of economic rights shall be, unless otherwise provided in a contract, the person who commissioned the work.

The learned judge in his findings, limits his observations to the sub-section pertaining to an 'author employed by a person' i.e., Section 14(4) and determines, that the defendant cannot rely on this sub-section, since Publis Silva was not called by the defence, the publishing company.

Nevertheless, it is seen that the aforesaid sub-sections 14(3) and 14(4) clearly denotes that in the event the 'work' is done or created at the initiative and under the direction of another or in the course of employment or pursuant to a commission, the person under whose direction or the employer or the person who commissioned the work shall be the original owner of the economic rights.

In the instant case, the plaintiff categorically admitted that the work was created under the direction of Publis Silva. (ලිව්වේ මම, එයා කිව්වම මම ගැලපෙන විදියට ලිව්වා).

Further, the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" clearly denotes that the content therein, is of Sri Lanka Cuisine by chef Publis Silva of Mount Lavinia Hotel. Moreover, the colour photographs included in the 'work' is published with the courtesy of Mount Lavinia Hotel and all rights of the photographs are reserved with Mount Lavinia Hotel. The 'work' itself is a compilation of 378 recipes. chapter eleven specifically refers to "Publis Special"- recipes invented by Publis Silva and chapters one and two is the autobiography of Publis Silva. The front and back cover pages feature Publis Silva and the inner back cover page indicate the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්", is chef Publis Silva's 1st book. (පබ්ලිස් සිල්වා සූපවේදියාගේ ප්‍රථම ග්‍රන්ථයයි).

In the aforesaid, I find it difficult to fathom the rationale of the learned judge, when he shifts the burden of proof to the defendant and opines that the defendant publishing company should have called Publis Silva to rebut the evidence of the plaintiff. Similarly, the learned judge's finding that Publis Silva was not called by the defendant, because the defendant may with or without the knowledge of the plaintiff use the "brand name" or good will of Publis Silva as a marketing tool, and for that reason the original economic rights of the 'work' should vest with the plaintiff, to say the least is incomprehensive.

This is especially so, when the plaintiff herself pens, the 'editorial note' as 'editor' and not as the 'author'. The 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" as discussed herein admittedly acknowledges the plaintiff as the 'editor' and not as the 'author'. This leaves me with an unanswered query. Does the learned judge assume that the defendant has commercialized a celebrity's right or misappropriated an individual's personality? Is that the reason for the learned judge to determine, that the 'work' is the creation of the plaintiff? Moreover, is it the reason for the learned judge to hold that the defendant has infringed or violated the copy right of the plaintiff?

In my view, the aforesaid contention of the learned judge is illogical and not in accordance with the law. The evidence clearly indicate that the plaintiff has only edited the 'work', which was created under the direction and guidance of Publis Silva. Significantly, by the notation "©", in the 1st edition of the 'work' itself, the 'copyright' was bestowed on Publis Silva and it continues to be with him even with the 6th edition. Thus, in terms of the law the economic rights too, should vest with the 'holder of the copyright', namely Publis Silva, until such rights are assigned or licensed to another, in accordance with the law.

Furthermore, the learned judge, as discussed earlier has not considered the 'work' as a whole nor looked into or referred to the contents therein and thus, failed to analyze the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" as a cook book, which has a separate copyright regime as a 'compilation', where the selection, arrangement and co-ordination of recipes are protected, if the recipes are creative in their own way and if accompanied by substantial literary expression in the form of an explanation or direction.

Hence, I see merit in the submission of the appellant, that the learned judge has failed to analyse the evidence adduced by the plaintiff with regard to her role as the 'editor' vis-a-vis the provisions of Section 14(3) and 14(4) of the IP Act.

Another factor that drew my attention is the finding of the learned judge, that the word 'author' and 'editor' are one and the same, based on the evidence of the plaintiff's only other witness, a Sinhala scholar of repute. However, the Court observes in the "මහා සිංහල ශබ්දකෝෂය" published by MD Gunasena and Co and edited by the same scholar, there is a marked difference between the definition of the word "කර්තෘ"- කිසියම් ක්‍රියාවක් කරන්නා- නිර්මාණය කරන්නා and "සම්පාදක"- සකස් කරන්නා- පිලියෙල කරන්නා- සපයන්නා.

Similarly, in the Sinhala-English Dictionary compiled and edited by Budhadasa Hewage and the Sinhala-English Dictionary compiled by Sompala Jayawardena, the words ‘author’ and ‘editor’ are defined and given separate meanings. Malalasekara’s English-Sinhala Dictionary also defines the words ‘author’ and ‘editor’ as two distinct words. Thus, it is very clear, that ‘author’ and ‘editor’ are definitely not one and the same as expressed by the learned judge. Corollary, Black’s Law Dictionary [11th ed] defines ‘author’ as the person who created an expressive work or the person or business that hires another to create an expressive ‘work’.

Hence, the words ‘author’ and ‘editor’ has to be considered not in a literal sense as propounded by the plaintiff’s witness and accepted by the learned judge but in the light of the copyright regime and the provisions of the IP Act, especially Section 5 read together with Section 14 and its sub-sections and the presumption in Section 15. Such consideration is necessary since this in turn would extend to the ‘author’ of a work or the ‘copyright holder’ to exploit or make profit of the ‘protected rights’ referred to in the IP Act, namely the ‘economic rights’, referred to in Section 9.

Independently, the ‘author’ of a ‘work’ is entitled to safeguard the ‘moral rights’ referred to in Section 10. This brings me to another matter that needs an answer. What is the moral right the plaintiff has in respect of the ‘work’ “ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්” as against Publis Silva? To have the plaintiff’s name indicated prominently on the copies or to object to any distortion, modification or other derogatory action as stated in the section, in relation to “ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්” prejudicial to the plaintiff’s honour and reputation? In my view, acknowledging the plaintiff who was only the ‘editor’ of the ‘work’, to be put on a pedestal as the ‘author’ and ‘copyright holder’ goes against the pith and substance of the IP Act and would amount to absurdity, when the plaintiff is given a moral right for example, to protect her honour and reputation, which Publis Silva will not be entitled to, with regard to “ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්”.

At this juncture, I wish to consider the submissions of the learned counsel for the respondent. His main submission was that the plaintiff is the ‘author’ of the work and based upon the definition clause in Section 5 of the IP Act and, the plaintiff is the sole owner of the copyright and such position has not been rebutted by the defendant. For the reasons elucidated in detail earlier in this judgement, I find it difficult to accept the contention of the counsel for the respondent and limit myself to look at Section 5 only, and permit the plaintiff to exploit the protected rights, when the ‘work’ “ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්” (P3), prima facie, showcase that the plaintiff was not the ‘author’ but was only the ‘editor’ of the ‘work’ in dispute “ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්” and the role of the ‘editor’ cannot be compared with the role of the ‘author’. Thus, I reject the contention of the respondent and look at the broader picture of the IP Act, to come to a determination of this appeal.

The next contention of the plaintiff that the script handed over to the defendant publisher was in the hand writing of the plaintiff in my view, cannot negate or over-ride the ‘work’ itself which clearly acknowledge the ‘copyright holder’ to be Publis Silva. In order to challenge what is embodied in the ‘work’ itself in black and white, the plaintiff should have named or called and led the evidence of Publis Silva. Then maybe, as transpired in the case of Ariyawathie Senadheera v. Shantha Senadheera (supra) where the dispute pertained to the book titled ‘නූතන චිත්‍ර කලාවේ රසික සංකල්ප’, the copyright holder denoted by the notation

"©", could have clearly indicated to court, whether such person was the owner of the copyright or not, which would have sealed the issue, in limine.

Further, this Court observes that the plaintiff has not only failed to establish her relationship with Publis Silva but also failed to prove the 'common understanding' and or the authority and or approval she obtained to use Publis Silva's name, his profile, his picture, his vision, the recipes invented and created by Publis Silva as well the permission to reproduce the food styling and coloured photographs depicted in the 'work'. Similarly, the plaintiff has also failed to establish under what authority the name of Mount Lavinia Hotel, is referred to in each and every page of the 'work' and the hotel itself is featured on the cover page of the book, "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

Having considered and examined the evidence led at the trial and the law pertaining to copyright, my considered view is that the plaintiff has failed to establish that she is the 'owner of the copyright' of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and therefore the action filed by the plaintiff cannot be substantiated.

The final submission of the counsel for the appellant at the hearing before us, was the delay and the long silence of the plaintiff in challenging the ownership of the copyright of the 'work', which he submitted tainted the impugned judgement. Therefore, the judgment cannot be left to stand, the learned counsel contended.

The work in dispute was first published in March 2005. The plaintiff demanded royalty from the defendant publishing company only three years after the publication and even after the 6th edition rolled out of the press. No reason has been offered for the delay and the failure to demand royalty from March 2005, until a letter of demand was sent in March 2008. Further, it is observed the plaintiff failed to annex even a copy of the 1st edition of the 'work' to the plaint when filing the instant case in July 2008 and did so only after the trial began.

Thus, this Court sees merit in the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant, that the delay in the plaintiff to espouse her claim and especially the long wait of three years to claim the balance sum due as adverted to by the plaintiff, on the ground that Rs 25,000/= was paid by the defendant publisher only as an advance payment, creates a doubt as to the veracity of the plaintiff's claim. Would a prudent person, wait for such a long time, without demanding royalty if it was justly due? In any event, it is an accepted legal maxim, that "delay defeats equity".

In the aforesaid circumstances, it is evident that the learned High Court judge has failed to analyse the evidence before court in respect of the plaintiff's role as the 'editor' of the disputed work and also failed to appreciate the difference and the precise nature of the 'author' and the 'owner' of the copyright of the 'work' in dispute "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

Furthermore, the learned judge has misdirected himself in applying the provisions of the copyright law in determining the original owner of the economic rights and the assignment and transfer of the economic rights pertaining to the disputed 'work'.

Moreover, the learned judge has erroneously determined the burden of proof in the instant case by shifting the responsibility to the defendant, when in fact the plaintiff should establish the case instituted.

The learned judge has also failed to appreciate the role of Publis Silva in the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and also not appreciated the distinction between originality and creativity in determining this matter in favour of the plaintiff and thus the judgment goes against the grain of basic principles of the rule of law.

Upon perusal of the impugned judgement, it is further observed that the relief granted by the learned judge is also imprecise and ambiguous. Consequent to granting prayer (a) and (b) of the plaint, viz the declarations more fully discussed earlier in the judgement, the plaintiff was also granted statutory damages, as per prayer (e) of the plaint in a sum of Rs. 837,500/= said to be computed as 'royalty less advance paid'. However, when the advance payment of Rs. 25,000/= is deducted from Rs. 840,000/= the royalty granted (calculated as per the learned judge's computation), the balance amount to be paid would be Rs. 815,000/= and not Rs. 837,500/= as stated in the judgment. Thus, the computation of damages by the learned judge is also patently erroneous.

Further it is observed, the learned judge also granted the plaintiff relief in terms of prayer (c) & (d) i.e., a direction to call for a full report of sales of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and a declaration for the defendant to pay royalty to the plaintiff upon the said sales but did not determine a rate or a percentage as a basis of calculating royalty.

In any event, no evidence was led by the plaintiff with regard to the computation of royalty. Is it 10% or 15% as agreed in the V2 agreement or some other rate?

Corollary, is the aforesaid declaration in prayer (d) to pay royalty, independent to the payment of statuary damages in prayer (e)? If so, when should prayer (c) & (d) be implemented? These are also matters that have not been clearly and precisely stated and answered in the impugned judgement, which leads on to the assumption that the relief granted by the learned judge is ambiguous and uncertain.

The issue becomes more compounded by the respondent peddling a case before this Court that the damages granted is not sufficient and that the learned judge was in error when only royalty was calculated for six editions, when it ought to be for twelve editions of the 'work', "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්".

I observe that although the learned judge granted statutory damages in terms of Section 170(10) of the Intellectual Property Act, that the calculation of such sum i.e. damages, was based upon royalty calculated at 10% into six editions of the 'work' been published. Nevertheless, there was, no documentary evidence whatsoever to suggest that twelve editions have been published.

In the aforesaid circumstances, whilst I reject the submission of the respondent with regard to the enhancement of damages, I hold that the relief granted by the High Court is ambiguous, imprecise and erroneous.

Having considered the facts of this instant case and especially the 'work' in dispute "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්" and the law governing "copyrights" and for reasons more fully adumbrated in this judgement, I hold that the learned High Court judge was in error and misdirected himself in declaring that the plaintiff is the author, owner and copyright holder of the 'work' "ගල්කිස්ස හෝටලයේ පබ්ලිස් සිල්වාගේ හෙළ රටාවට ඉවුම් පිහුම්". Moreover, the relief granted to the plaintiff, is erroneous and not in accordance with the law.

In conclusion and for reasons more fully stated herein, the impugned judgement of the High Court dated 17th May, 2013 is set aside and the plaint dated 30th July, 2008 is dismissed with costs fixed at Rs. 25,000/=, payable by the Plaintiff-Respondent to the Defendant-Appellant.

The appeal is allowed with costs of Rs. 25,000/=.

Judge of the Supreme Court

P. Padman Surasena, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

A.H.M.D. Nawaz, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

Anthony Surendra,

No. 251/42B,

Kirula Road,

Colombo 05.

SC CHC/APPEAL 68/2014

PLAINTIFF

Commercial HC- No.29/2008/IP

vs.

1. Sri Lankan Airlines,

No.22, East Tower,

World Trade Center,

Echelon Square,

Colombo 01.

2. Sri Lanka Rupavahini Corporation,

P.O. Box 2204,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07.

DEFENDANTS

AND

In an application under Section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code.

Anthony Surendra,

No. 251/42B,

Kirula Road,

Colombo 05.

PLAINTIFF-PETITIONER

vs.

1. Sri Lankan Airlines,

   No.22, East Tower,

   World Trade Center,

   Echelon Square,

   Colombo 01.

2. Sri Lanka Rupavahini Corporation,

   P.O. Box 2204,

   Independence Square,

   Colombo 07.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENTS

AND NOW

In the matter of an application under Section 5(1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act

No.10 of 1996 read together with Section 6 thereof and Section 88(2) read together with Section 754(1) read together with Section 755(3) and 758 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Sri Lanka Rupavahini Corporation,

P.O. Box 2204,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07.

2ND DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT-APPELLANT

vs.

1. Anthony Surendra,

   No. 251/42B,

   Kirula Road,

   Colombo 05.

PLAINTIFF-PETITIONER-RESPONDENT

2. Sri Lankan Airlines,

   No.22, East Tower,

   World Trade Center,

   Echelon Square,

   Colombo 01.

DEFENDANT-RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : JAYANTHA JAYASURIYA, PC, CJ
S. THURAIRAJ, PC, J
MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

COUNSEL : Palitha Kumarasinghe, PC with Viraj Bandaranayake instructed by Mrs. N. Wijekoon for the 2nd- Defendant- Respondent- Appellant.
Chandaka Jayasundere, PC with Rehan Almeida instructed by Gayan Salwathura for the Plaintiff-Petitioner-Respondent.
Minoli Jinadasa instructed by M/S Pieris and Pieris for the 1st Defendant-Respondent- Respondent.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: 2nd Defendant-Respondent-Appellant on 6th January 2021.
Plaintiff- Petitioner-Respondent on 6th February 2023.

ARGUED ON : 30th January 2023

DECIDED ON : 1st December 2023

S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J.

The Plaintiff-Respondent-Respondent, namely Anthony Surendra (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "Plaintiff") instituted this action at the Commercial High Court against the 1st Defendant-Respondent-Respondent (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the "1st Defendant") and the 2nd Defendant-Respondent-Appellant (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "2nd Defendant") claiming compensation for the alleged infringement of the Copyrights of the Plaintiff in and over the songs "Nana nanane" and "Rajakale Hittapu" which were being exploited without his authorization in contravention of the Plaintiff's economic rights and moral rights in and over the music and the lyrics over the aforementioned songs. Thereby, Plaintiff sought relief in the form of inter alia an order for a sum of Rs. 10 million on account of loss suffered by the Plaintiff for several acts of infringement by the Defendants, and, an order to deliver to the Plaintiff all material that infringes the said rights that is in possession of the Defendant. The matter was set for trial, and upon settling the issues, the Plaintiff sought permission to file evidence by way of an Affidavit. The 2nd Defendant states that upon the Plaintiff filing his evidence by way of Affidavit, the matter was fixed for further hearing, and after two days of hearing which concluded on 18th October 2011, the matter was re-fixed for 16th January 2012, on which date the Plaintiff was to be cross-examined. However, on 16th January 2012, the Plaintiff failed to appear before the court at 9.30 A.M., at which time the proceedings had commenced. The Court waited for a period of time at the request of the Attorneys-at-Law, and the case was taken up again at 10:15 A.M., at which time the Plaintiff was still absent. The Court thereafter proceeded to dismiss the Action by reason of the Plaintiff not being present at the trial.

Despite this, Plaintiff, who arrived at 10:45 A.M. of the same day as the aforementioned proceedings, states that the delay was caused not as a result of his default but due to an unusual traffic congestion in the area surrounding the Plaintiff's residence caused as a result of the ceremonial opening of the Narahenpita Police Station on the same day. Thereafter, the Plaintiff proceeded to tender the petition and affidavit seeking the permission of the Commercial High Court to set aside the order dismissing the action of the Plaintiff in accordance with section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code.

The Learned Commercial High Court Judge delivered his Order permitting the Application of the Plaintiff and held inter alia that; (a) the Plaintiff was interested in the case as he filed papers to set aside the dismissal order on the same day, (b) the Plaintiff had not admitted that he was negligent, (c) the Plaintiff informed the Attorney-at-Law of his delay in attending the Court at around 10.15-10.30 A.M., (d) the delay of the Plaintiff in attending the Court was beyond his control, (e) no objections were raised by the 2nd Defendant under section 145 of the Civil Procedure Code, and (f) time was given to the Defendant on 18th October 2011 till 16th January 2012 and as such section 145 of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply in the instant case.

Being aggrieved by this order, the 2nd Defendant has now made an appeal to this Court on the grounds that the Learned High Court Judge had no power to set aside the order dismissing the action of the Plaintiff as the instant was a default within the ambit of section 145 of the Civil Procedure Code, and even if it was within the ambit of section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code, the Plaintiff had failed to establish reasonable grounds for his non-appearance, thereby the application of the Plaintiff should not be permitted.

In light of the facts and circumstances of the instant case, the evidence on behalf of the Plaintiff was led through three witnesses; namely the Plaintiff, one Karagapalliya Guruge Dayananda and one Kaluthara Patabendige Patrick. Firstly, the evidence of the Plaintiff was led wherein the Plaintiff affirmed the matters as follows.

On the date fixed for trial, the Plaintiff was delayed in being present in Court at the time at which the matter was called. Nonetheless, the Plaintiff arrived in Court at 10.45 A.M. despite having attempted to arrive by 9.00 A.M. due to the fact that a halt in traffic flow down the lane in which the Plaintiff lived had occurred due to the new Narahenpita Police Station being ceremoniously opened on that specific date.

Furthermore, the vehicles of the Department of Labour were parked down the Plaintiff's Lane and in addition, two banks were also situated on the said lane. From time to time, the main road was closed due to the opening of the new building of the Narahenpita Police Station, and there was a continuous inflow of vehicles into the Plaintiff's Lane. As a result, the Plaintiff stated that although he was able to leave his house in his vehicle, the vehicle was later jammed by the traffic congestion that had occurred in the lane. Therefore, the Plaintiff stated that he was unable to attend Court at the specified time due to no fault of his own. Furthermore, on this day, due to the traffic congestion, the Plaintiff had failed to hear his mobile phone and therefore missed the calls from his instructing Attorney. The Plaintiff was unable to leave his vehicle in the middle of the road and journey on foot and/or resort to alternate means of transportation. Furthermore, the vehicle could not be parked on either side of the road due to the fact that several vehicles had already been parked therein. The Plaintiff stated to Court that, on previous occasions, his appearances at Court were punctual, having left his residence at the same time as he did on 16th January 2012. His contention was that the delay was not his fault and instead beyond his control.

The evidence of one Karagapalliya Guruge Udayananda (a three-wheeler driver who operates from a three-wheeler stand opposite the Narahenpita Police Station) and one Kalutara Patabandige Patrick Anesley Peiris (a resident of a road which leads to Kirula Road) was led thereafter. These witnesses corroborated the evidence of the Plaintiff, and in particular, stated that on 16th January 2012, the new building housing the Narahenpita Police Station was being ceremoniously opened, and a major congestion of traffic occurred between 8.00 A.M. and 10.30 A.M. While the Narahenpita police station has two gates, on that specific date, it was only the gate alongside Kirula Road that was in use. The said Kirula Road is an ordinary by-road where, in the event two vehicles are parked, it would be difficult to manoeuvre another. On the said date, senior police officials and VIPs had parked their vehicles on Kirula Road, which made it impossible for the residents and users, including the said Udayananda, to move their vehicles. A photo showing the road was marked 2D3 (at page 368 of the appeal brief). All witnesses claim that on the said date, the police did not allow the residents to move their vehicles out or in that morning.

The 2nd Defendant led evidence of Police Inspector Weerasinghelage Wasantha Jayaratne. The witness confirmed the fact that the ceremonial opening of the Narahenpita Police Station took place on 16th January 2012 and that a number of distinguished invitees were present, including Mr. Dinesh Gunawardene, Mr. Geethanjan Gunawardene, Mr. Gotabaya Rajapakse and the Inspector General of Police. There was no road closure during the time at which VIPs were travelling towards the ceremony, but, from time to time, roads were indeed closed, coinciding with the arrival of VIPs. Further, he stated that the vehicles of the VIPs were parked in the car park of the police station while the other vehicles of Police dignitaries were parked alongside the wall of the Department of Labour situated on Kirula Road. During the time at which the ceremony took place, the police took steps to ensure that the vehicles of the individuals participating in the ceremony were given parking in and around the area and that the vehicles that were usually parked in those areas were not allowed to park there during such time. The traffic flow on Kirula Road was stopped by the police from time to time, although he stated that he was not personally aware of the state of traffic between 8.30 A.M. and 9.00 A.M. on the top of the road on which the Plaintiff resides (Vide- at page 416 of appeal brief). Furthermore, the witness stated that it is only when there is a special traffic plan in operation that the police take steps to notify the public of the same and on this occasion, there was no such traffic plan in place. Therefore, no such information was conveyed to the public. In this regard, the movement of VIPs and road closures, as stated by the witness, took place during normal traffic conditions, which are admittedly already heavily congested at that specific time of day (Vide- at page 417 of appeal brief). The witness also admitted that in the event that a vehicle is within the lane on which the Plaintiff resides, there was no alternative way to exit the road other than the singular access towards Kirula Road.

Sections 87 and 145 of Civil Procedure Code

In this case, the Plaintiff, relying on section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code, submitted that the order of dismissal can be set aside. But the 2nd Defendant submitted to Court in his written submissions to consider his application under Section 145 of the Civil Procedure Code.

The learned High Court Judge explained this situation at pages 10 and 11 of his judgement which reads as follows.

"සිවිල් නඩු විධාන සංග්‍රහයේ 87 වගන්තියට අනුකූලව අයදුම්පත ඉදිරිපත් කර නැති බවට විරෝධතාවක්ද 2 වන විත්තිකාර වගඋත්තරකරු විරෝධතා පෙත්සමේදී ගෙන ඇතත්, ප්‍රමාණවත් ලෙස පෙත්සම්, දිවුරුම් පෙත්සම් මගින් අදාළ ඉල්ලීම කර ඇත. ඒ අනුව එකී විරෝධය හුදු තාක්ෂණික විරෝධයක් පමණි.

ලිඛිත දේශන වලදී 2 විත්තිකාර වගඋත්තරකරු වෙනුවෙන් සිවිල් නඩු විධාන සංග්‍රහයේ 87 වගන්තිය යටතේ ඉල්ලීමක් කළ නොහැකි බවත් අදාළ වන්නේ සිවිල් නඩු විධාන සංග්‍රහයේ 145 වගන්තිය බවත් ඒ අනුව වලංගු ඉල්ලීමක් නැති බවටත්, කළ යුතුව තිබුණේ සෘජු ඇපෑලක් ඉදිරිපත් කිරීම බවත් තර්ක කර ඇත. මෙය නම විරෝධතාවයන් දී නොනැගූ ලිඛිත දේශණයේ දී පමණක් අනෙක් පාර්ශවයට පිළිතුරු දීමට හැකියාවක් නොමැති වන ලෙස ගොඩ නගන තර්කයකි. විරෝධතාවයේදී 2 වන විත්තිකරු වෙනුවෙන් ගෙන ඇති ඉල්ලීම 87 වගන්තියට අනුකූලව ඉදිරිපත් කර නැති බවකි."

An approximate translation of the above paragraph is produced below:

"Although the 2nd defendant-respondent has also raised an objection that the application has not been submitted in accordance with Section 87 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the relevant request has been made through petitions and affidavits. Accordingly, that objection is only a technical objection.

In the written submissions, it has been argued that no request can be made under Section 87 of the Civil Procedure Code and Section 145 of the Civil Procedure Code is applicable therefore, there is no valid request, and a direct appeal should have been made. This is an argument that is built only in the written submissions so that the other party is not able to answer without raising their objections. The plea taken on behalf of the 2nd Defendant in the objection is that the application of the Plaintiff has not been submitted in accordance with Section 87."

Chapter XII of the Civil Procedure Code deals with matters relating to consequences and cures of default of appearance and pleadings of the parties to actions. While section 84 deals with default of appearance of the defendant, section 87 deals with non-appearance of the plaintiff. Both above-mentioned sections deal with appearance and non-appearance of the parties. Default of appearance of the defendant may occur on the summons returnable day and the answer due date. Default of appearance of the plaintiff may occur on the replication due date. Further, either party can be in default, in instances where a date was granted for a step but failed to take such step, where there is failure to file list of witnesses and documents and where either party is not ready with evidence at the trial stage and at the partly heard trial stage. The provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, relating to the consequences of default of appearance, does not contemplate orders made thereunder to be final and conclusive in the first instance itself. In every instance, an opportunity is afforded to a party in default to cure his default. It is only upon failure to cure such default; an order is made absolute and final.

Non-appearance of the plaintiff and reinstatement of the case is set out in section 87 of the Code. Section 87(3) of the Code enables a Court, upon application by a plaintiff within a reasonable time from the date of dismissal, to set aside its order of dismissal for want of appearance of a plaintiff, where it is satisfied that there were reasonable grounds for the non-appearance of the plaintiff. The burden of alleging and proving the existence of facts, on the basis of which a court may decide that there is good cause for absence, rests on the absent party who seeks reinstatement of the case. Section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code provides as follows:

"The plaintiff may apply within a reasonable time from the date of dismissal, by way of petition supported by affidavit, to have the dismissal set aside, and if on the hearing of such application, of which the defendant shall be given notice, the court is satisfied that there were reasonable grounds for the non-appearance of the plaintiff, the court shall make order setting aside the dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the action as from the stage at which the dismissal for default was made."

(Emphasis added)

Chapter XVIII of the Civil Procedure Code dealt with the adjournments, which contained sections 143-145, which reads as follows.

143. (1) The court may, if sufficient cause be shown at any stage of the action, grant time to the parties or to any of them, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing of the action:

Provided however, that no adjournment in excess of Six weeks may be granted except in exceptional circumstances, and for reasons to be recorded.

(2) In all such cases the court shall fix a day for the further hearing of the action, and may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the costs occasioned by the adjournment:

Provided that, when the hearing of evidence has once begun, the hearing of the action shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the court finds the adjournment of the hearing to be necessary for reasons to be recorded and signed by the Judge.

144. If on any day to which the hearing of the action is adjourned, the parties or any of them fail to appear, the court may proceed to dispose of the action in one of the modes directed in that behalf by Chapter XII, or make such other order as it thinks fit.

145. If any party to an action, to whom time has been granted, fails to produce his evidence, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses, or to perform any other act necessary to the further progress of the action, for which time has been allowed, the court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to decide the action forthwith.''

The word 'adjournment' generally means the appointment of another day for the continuation of that which has already commenced in contradistinction to postponement, which means the putting off of that which was appointed to be done on a specified day for a later day. As per section 143, when the hearing of evidence has begun, the hearing must be continued from day to day, until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the Court finds any adjournment necessary for reasons to be recorded and signed by the Judge. Under section 143 of the Code, adjournment is entirely discretionary, and under section 145 of the Code, if a party to whom time has been granted fails to produce his evidence or to bring his witnesses or to do any other act necessary for the further progress of the case, for which time has been allowed, the Court has power notwithstanding such default, to decide the action forthwith. Section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code provides for instances of non-appearance of a party on the adjourned day.

It appears as per section 145 that when a court grants time to a party to the case to produce certain evidence at the hearing, and the said party has failed to do so, the court must proceed to hear the other evidence as may be tendered on behalf of the party in default and decide the action forthwith.

However, on the day in question, namely 16th January 2012, this case was listed for cross-examination of the Plaintiff, and the date was granted based on the request made by the Defendants. The Court granted time for the Defendants on 18th October 2011 for the cross-examination upon the request made by the Defendants. Section 145 deals with the failure of such parties to whom such time has been granted and empowers the judge to exercise his discretion as to whether or not the case should proceed and be decided notwithstanding such failure. in the instant case the learned High Court judge has duly applied his mind and exercised and his discretion and deemed it appropriate to afford an opportunity for the Plaintiff to cure his default. In my view the Defendants have not given sufficient reasons as to why this Court should interfere with the findings of the learned High Court Judge. Therefore, I am inclined to agree with the view taken by the learned High Court Judge to consider this matter under section 87 of the Civil Procedure Code and in giving an order in terms of section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code.

In order to succeed in the application in question, the Plaintiff had to prove that there were reasonable grounds for the non-appearance on the part of the plaintiff.

In Rev. Sumanatissa vs Harry [2009 (1) SLR 31] it was held that,

> "On an analysis of section 87 (3) of the Code the limiting factors would be that the application to restore should be made within a reasonable time and the plaintiff should satisfy Court that there were reasonable grounds for non-appearance. The legislature in its wisdom had not set a rigid deadline as to what period of time should construe within a reasonable time*. This is a clear indication that in interpreting Section 87 (3) Court must use the yardstick of a* subjective test rather than a less flexible objective test in determining what is reasonable."
>
> (Emphasis added)

Section 87(3) states that the application should be made within a reasonable time and on reasonable grounds, and this section enables a Court to decide the application based on a subjective test. The burden of proving the existence of facts, on the basis of which a court may decide that there is a good cause for absence, rests on the absent party who seeks reinstatement of the case. Considering the evidence led before the High Court, it was undisputed that on the date in question, the opening ceremony of the Narahenpita Police Station took place. From the strength of the evidence of the Plaintiff, it is proven that on the date in question, a considerable amount of traffic congestion was present in the Plaintiff's Lane, and the reason for such congestion was the fact that an unforeseen number of vehicles had been directed into the Plaintiff's lane. The position of the Plaintiff was corroborated, by other independent evidence produced before the Court.

As it was revealed, during the opening ceremony of the police station, no traffic plan was in place. However, evidence was given by Police Inspector Weerasinghelage Wasantha Jayaratne to the effect that he did not personally know the situation in the Plaintiff's Lane as this officer was not on duty at that point. Although certain dignitaries' vehicles were parked within the premises of the police station, certain other dignitaries' vehicles (particularly the high-ranking police official's vehicles) had to be parked outside of the police station. As a result, the vehicles that were normally parked at this location had to find alternative areas to park. The witness was unable to account for where these vehicles had found parking. Therefore, it can be considered that vehicles that normally park in other areas surrounding the Plaintiff's Road, had parked down the road instead, leading to a heightened congestion of vehicles. As such, the Plaintiff's reasons for being unable to be present before Court at the designated time could be accepted on a balance of probabilities.

Decision

For the aforementioned reasons, considering all facts and circumstances of this instant case, I hold that the Plaintiff does in fact have reasonable grounds for his non-appearance at the Commercial High Court on 16th January 2012. Having perused the aforementioned evidence, it can be understood that there was, in fact, an unusual level of traffic congestion, which resulted in the Plaintiff arriving at the Commercial High Court on 16th January 2012 well after the time of trial. Yet, the most compelling point on behalf of the Plaintiff in my view is that an application was filed on the same day for an appeal to set aside the order dismissing his application, which indicates that it was due to a misfortune beyond his control that he was not able to arrive on time and that he did yet maintain an interest in this action. Therefore, the view taken by the learned High Court Judge to consider this matter under section 87 of the Civil Procedure Code and in giving an order in terms of section 87(3) of the Civil Procedure Code setting aside the dismissal of the action of the Plaintiff is acceptable. The Appeal of the 2nd Defendant is hereby dismissed with taxed Costs.

Appeal Dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JAYANTHA JAYASURIYA, PC, CJ

I agree.

CHIEF JUSTICE

MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an appeal to the Supreme Court in terms of Sections 5 and 6 of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996 read with Chapter LVIII of the Civil Procedure Code.

S.C. (C.H.C) Appeal No. 69/2013

S.C.HC.LA. No. 74/2012
Case No. HC (Civil) 4/2010/MR

Shahla Cassim,
No. 14, Sulaiman Avenue,
Colombo 05.
PLAINTIFF

Vs.

Sri Lanka Savings Bank,
No. 110 D.S. Senanayake Mawatha,
Colombo 08.
DEFENDANT

AND NOW BETWEEN

Shahla Cassim,
No. 14, Suleiman Avenue,
Colombo 05.
PLAINTIFF-APPELLANT

Vs.

Sri Lanka Savings Bank,
No.110, D.S. Senanayake Mawatha,
Colombo 08.
DEFENDANT-RESPONDENT

Before: P. Padman Surasena J
A.L. Shiran Gooneratne J
Arjuna Obeyesekere J

Counsel: Rozali Fernando instructed by F.J. & G. De Saram for the Plaintiff-Appellant.
Dulna De Alwis with Kamal Dissanayake for the Defendant-Respondent.

Argued on: 08.02.2022

Decided on: 22.09.2023

P. Padman Surasena J:

The Plaintiff-Appellant instituted action relevant to the instant case in the District Court of Colombo against the Defendant-Respondent praying inter alia, for Specific Performance of the Agreement of Sale bearing No. 749 dated 28.06.2002 produced marked P 1 (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Agreement) and an order directing the Defendant-Respondent to execute a Deed of Transfer to have the land which is the subject matter in the Agreement (P 1) transferred to the Plaintiff-Appellant. With the establishment of the Commercial High Court, the proceedings of the case were later transferred to the Commercial High Court.

After the conclusion of the trial, the learned Commercial High Court Judge by his judgment dated 30th May 2013, had concluded that the contract entered into by the parties as per the Agreement of Sale bearing No. 749 dated 28.06.2002 (P 1) has come to an end due to the impossibility of performance or frustration. The learned Commercial High Court Judge has further held that the Defendant-Respondent is entitled to receive from the Defendant-Respondent, a sum of Rs. Four Million (Rs.4,000,000/-) which is the sum of money paid as the advance payment by the Plaintiff-Appellant as per the Agreement (P 1) with the legal interest thereon since 01.11.2002. Being aggrieved by the judgment of the learned Commercial High Court Judge, the Plaintiff-Appellant has lodged the instant appeal to this Court seeking to set aside the judgment of the Commercial High Court dated 30th May 2013.

Before I proceed any further, let me briefly set out the background facts of the case. The Plaintiff-Appellant on 28th June 2002, had entered into the Agreement of Sale (P 1) with Pramuka Savings and Development Bank Ltd. (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Pramuka Bank) to purchase the land (belonging to Pramuka Bank) described in the schedule thereto, for a price of Thirty-Five Million Rupees (Rs.35,000,000/-). At the time of execution of the said Agreement the Plaintiff-Appellant had paid a sum of Four Million Rupees (Rs. 4,000,000/-) as an advance payment. As per the Agreement, the Plaintiff-Appellant had undertaken to pay the remainder on or before 30.10.2002.[1]

On 25.10.2002 the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka (CBSL) had issued an order directing Pramuka Bank to forthwith suspend its business. CBSL by the said order prohibited carrying out any business transactions by Pramuka Bank with immediate effect. This is evident by the letter dated 25th October 2002 produced marked V 2(a). Subsequently, in the year 2007, by press release dated 31.07.2007 marked P 13 it is apparent that the Government had established a state bank by the name of 'Sri Lanka Savings Bank Limited' (the Defendant-Respondent in the instant appeal) to take over the business of Pramuka Bank. The order vesting the business of Pramuka Bank in the Defendant-Respondent with effect from 01.08.2007 has been produced marked P 14.

The Plaintiff-Appellant claims that by virtue of the vesting order marked P14 all rights and obligations of Pramuka Bank was assigned to the Defendant-Respondent. It is the position of the Plaintiff-Appellant that all rights and obligations including those under the Agreement of Sale (P 1) stand transferred to the Defendant-Respondent as the Defendant-Respondent has become 'the successor and/or permitted assign' of Pramuka Bank in terms of the Agreement of Sale. It was in the above backdrop that the Plaintiff-Appellant had taken up the position that the Defendant-Respondent being the successor of Pramuka Bank must be compelled to carry out the specific performance in terms of Clause 6 of the Agreement of Sale.

The Clause 6 of the Agreement of Sale is as follows.

Clause 6

> "If upon the Purchaser duly observing and performing the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement and on the part of the Purchaser to be duly observed and

[1] Paragraph 5 of the Agreement of Sale bearing No. 749 dated 28.06.2002 (P 1).

> performed and if the Owner shall wilfully refuse to execute a Deed of Transfer in favour of the Purchaser in terms of Paragraph 5 hereof the Purchaser shall be entitled to enforce specific performance of this Agreement, or in the alternative the Purchaser would be entitled to receive his advance of Rs,4,000,000/- together with interest thereon and a further sum of Rs.4,000,000/- not as a penalty but as liquidated damages from the Owner." [2]

Clause 6, by itself, has subjected the entitlement conferred on the purchaser for the specific performance of the Agreement of Sale to three conditions. These conditions are embedded in Clause 6 itself and could be identified as follows:

i. The Purchaser should have duly observed and performed the terms and conditions set forth in the Agreement.
ii. The owner should have wilfully refused to execute a Deed of Transfer in favour of the Purchaser in terms of Paragraph 5.
iii. The entitlement for the specific performance has not been conferred on the purchaser as of a right as a right to an alternative remedy has also been given to the Purchaser namely, an entitlement to receive his advance of Rs. 4,000,000/- together with interest thereon and a further sum of Rs.4,000,000/- not as a penalty but as liquidated damages from the owner.

As there is a reference to Clause 5 in the second condition above, it would also be necessary to look at Clause 5 of the Agreement of Sale. It is as follows.

Clause 5

> "The purchase shall be completed on or before the Thirtieth day of October Two Thousand and Two (2002) by the Purchaser tendering the balance purchase price of Rs. 31,000,000/- (Rupees Thirty One Million) of lawful money of Sri Lanka to the Owner and the Owner executing a valid and effectual Deed of Transfer in favour of the Purchaser."

As regards the third condition, it is the position of the Plaintiff-Appellant that damages in lieu of specific performance would not be adequate as obtaining an alternative land, even if considered as substantially equivalent of the promised performance would not only be difficult and inconvenient but also be 'undeniably impossible'. The Plaintiff-Appellant has attributed this to the significant increase of the value of the property within the area, over the time. It is on that basis that the Plaintiff-Appellant has insisted on the specific performance as per Clause 6 of the Agreement of Sale.

[2] Emphasis is mine.

Be that as it may, the first condition above is a mandatory condition to be fulfilled by the purchaser. In other words, the availability of the remedy of specific performance in terms of that clause is available only when the Plaintiff-Appellant has fulfilled her obligations by tendering the balance purchase price of 31 million Rupees on or before 30th October 2002. This is because the Plaintiff-Appellant relies on Clause 6 of the Agreement, to seek an order for specific performance against the Defendant-Respondent. Having considered the material adduced in this case, I am of the view that this appeal could be disposed of only by considering at the outset, the question whether the Plaintiff-Appellant has fulfilled her obligations by tendering the balance purchase price of 31 million Rupees on or before 30th October 2002.

Indeed, it is the aforesaid first condition which is couched in the first issue raised jointly by both the Plaintiff-Appellant and the Defendant-Respondent. The said issue No. 01 (in verbatim) is as follows:

a) Was the Plaintiff ready and willing to complete the sale on or before 30.10.2002 by tendering the balance purchase price of Rs. 31,000,000 to Pramuka Savings and Development Bank Limited?
b) Was the same accordingly informed to Pramuka Savings and Development Bank Limited through the plaintiff's Lawyer by letter dated 28.10.2002?
c) Did Pramuka Savings Development Bank Limited by writing dated 28.10.2002, fax to Plaintiff's lawyer its reply and confirm their Agreement to proceed with the sale of the said Property?

As there are three limbs in Issue No. 01 let me first consider its limb (a) i.e., whether the Plaintiff-Appellant was ready and willing to complete the sale on or before 30.10.2002 by tendering the balance purchase price of Rs. 31,000,000 to Pramuka Bank. The Plaintiff-Appellant had sought to prove this fact by stating that by 30.10.2002, she had raised the required funds by selling the property in which her mother had resided and was ready to tender the balance purchase price. The Plaintiff-Appellant had sought to substantiate the above fact by relying on the Deed of Transfer produced marked P3.

The Deed of Transfer (P3) had been produced in the course of the trial 'subject to proof'. That was because of the objections raised by the Counsel for the Defendant-Respondent both at the time of producing it and at the time of closing the Plaintiff-Appellant's case. In the presence of the issues No. 04 and 05, one can understand the underlying reason behind the afore-stated objection to the Deed of Transfer (P3) raised by the Counsel for the Defendant-Respondent. The said issues No. 04 and No.5 (in verbatim) are as follows:

d) In terms of the averments contained in paragraph 9 to the Plaint did the Plaintiff enter into the aforesaid Agreement of Sale No. 749 to the purchase for the said property with the specific intention of using the said property for the Plaintiff's residential purposes?

e) In terms of the averments contained in paragraph 10 of the Plaint, on or about 21.10.2002, were the residential premises owned by the Plaintiff's mother Gulnar Saleem sold in order to raise funds to complete the transaction under the Agreement of Sale No. 749.

The above questions have stood as issues to be answered by the Trial Judge. Before I consider this aspect any further, let me at this stage consider briefly, the applicable law in this regard.

Section 154 of the Civil Procedure Code deals with tender of documents in evidence in the course of a trial. The explanation given at the end of that section would have some relevance with regard to this matter. It is as follows:

Explanation to Section 154 of the Civil Procedure Code.

If the opposing party does not, on the document being tendered in evidence, object to its being received, and if the document is not such as is forbidden by law to be received in evidence, the court should admit it.
If, however, on the document being tendered the opposing party objects to its being admitted in evidence, then commonly two questions arise for the court:-

- Firstly, whether the document is authentic- in other words, is what the party tendering it represents it to be; and
- Secondly, whether, supposing it to be authentic, it constitutes legally admissible evidence as against the party who is sought to be affected by it.

> The latter question in general is matter of argument only, but the first must be supported by such testimony as the party can adduce. If the court is of opinion that the testimony adduced for this purpose, developed and tested by cross-examination, makes out a prima facie case of authenticity and is further of opinion that the authentic document is evidence admissible against the opposing party, then it should admit the document as before.
>
> If, however, the court is satisfied that either of those questions must be answered in the negative, then it should refuse to admit the document.
>
> Whether the document is admitted or not it should be marked as soon as any witness makes a statement with regard to it ; and if not earlier marked on this account, it must, at least, be marked when the court decides upon admitting it.

Let me at this stage consider whether the Deed of Transfer (P3) constitutes legally admissible evidence as against the party who is sought to be affected by it even if it is assumed to be authentic. The Deed of Transfer (P3) is a document which is required by law to be attested. Therefore Section 68 of the Evidence Ordinance applies in relation to its proof. According to that section, such document shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there is an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the court and capable of giving evidence.

The Plaintiff-Appellant has neither called at least one attesting witness to give evidence to establish the proof of the execution of P3 nor adduced any evidence regarding the availability/non-availability of such witnesses. Such evidence is necessary to ascertain: whether the attesting witnesses are alive or have passed away; whether they could be subjected to the process of the court if they are alive; whether they are capable of giving evidence in Court. Thus, in that sense, the Plaintiff-Appellant has not proved the Deed of Transfer (P3) according to section 68 of the Evidence Ordinance.

However, the above conclusion is not complete unless and until section 154A of the Civil Procedure Code is also considered in that regard. This is because that section too would apply for such instance. That section is reproduced below for easy reference.

Section 154A of the Civil Procedure Code.

> 1) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance (Chapter 14), in any proceedings under this Code, it shall not be necessary to adduce formal proof of the execution or genuineness of any deed, or document which is required by law to be attested, other than a will executed under the Wills Ordinance (Chapter 60), and on the face of it purports to have been duly executed, unless-

a) in the pleadings or further pleadings in an action filed under regular procedure in terms of this Code, the execution or genuineness of such deed or document is impeached and raised as an issue; or

b) the court requires such proof

Provided that, the provisions of this section shall not be applicable in an event, a party to an action seeks to produce any deed or document not included in the pleadings of that party at any proceedings under this Code.

2) The provisions of subsection (1), shall mutatis mutandis apply in the actions on summary procedure under this Code.

3) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 2 of this Act, and the provisions of the Evidence Ordinance, in any case or appeal pending on the date of coming into operation of this Act –

a)

i. if the opposing party does not object or has not objected to it being received as evidence on the deed or document being tendered in evidence; or

ii. if the opposing party has objected to it being received as evidence on the deed or document being tendered in evidence but not objected at the close of a case when such document is read in evidence, the court shall admit such deed or document as evidence without requiring further proof;

b) if the opposing party objects or has objected to it being received as evidence, the court may decide whether it is necessary or it was necessary as the case may be, to adduce formal proof of the execution or genuineness of any such deed or document considering the merits of the objections taken with regard to the execution or genuineness of such deed or document.

I observe that during the course of the Plaintiff-Appellant's evidence, when the Plaintiff-Appellant marked and produced the relevant Deed of Transfer bearing No. 1456 attested by Mohamed Cassim Mohamed Muneer the learned counsel who appeared for the Defendant-Respondent in the Commercial High Court had informed court that the documents P3, P6, P7, P8, P9, P10, P11, P12, P15, and P16 must be marked subject to proof.

However, the Plaintiff-Appellant had not taken any step to prove the Deed marked P3 (that is the document which is relevant for the instant discussion). Moreover, the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Respondent, when the Plaintiff-Appellant closed his case, had informed court that the said documents (P6, P7, P8, P9, P10, P11, P12, P15, P16 and P17) were not proved in terms of the Evidence Ordinance. The record indicates that the learned Counsel who appeared for the Plaintiff-Appellant had been content only by replying to the aforesaid submission of the learned Counsel for the Defendant by saying:

> "those documents have already been proved and I make the relevant submissions at the end of the trial."

Thus, it is clear that the Plaintiff-Appellant according to the applicable law set out above had not taken any step to prove the Deed marked P3. This is despite the fact that Defendant-Respondent had objected to P3 being received as evidence and also objected at the close of the Plaintiff's case to the Deed marked P3 being read in evidence. Therefore in terms of Section 154A of the Civil Procedure Code, the court cannot admit P3 as evidence without requiring further proof.

Let me now consider whether it is necessary in the circumstances of the case at hand, to adduce formal proof of the execution or genuineness of the Deed marked P3 in the light of the merits of the objections taken by the Defendant-Respondent with regard to the execution or genuineness of the said deed. In this regard let me first ascertain the extent to which the Defendant-Respondent has challenged the Deed marked P3 in the course of the trial.
To start with, I observe that the Plaintiff-Appellant answering the questions posed to him in the course of the cross examination, has taken up the following positions:

i. She was not an account holder or a depositor of Pramuka Bank.
ii. She was only a bona fide buyer of the relevant property.
iii. She went to purchase the property through a broker.
iv. She went to the bank with her husband.
v. She cannot remember who she met at the Bank.

vi. She had signed the Sales Agreement in front of two Directors, a Company Secretary and the witnesses who were there.

vii. She was living at Duplication Road which she had to sell, the sale of which she concluded through Deed No. P3.

viii. She is now aware that the Deed No. 1275 dated 27.07.1999 (document P1) has been challenged in another case in court.

ix. The Agreement for Sale was entered into in Colombo at Pramuka Bank in their Board Room in Kolpetty, Colombo 3 and the said agreement was not entered into in Wattala.

x. She got to know the suspension of activities of Pramuka Bank on the morning of 28.10.2002 and she had finished the sale of the House at Duplication Road, coincidentally on the same day.

In my view, the nature of the above positions taken up by the Plaintiff-Appellant clearly cast very serious doubts about the authenticity of the impugned transaction. That is not the only factor. The fact whether the consideration mentioned in the Deed P3 had in fact passed, is another question which cries out for proof. In this regard, I observe that according to the attestation on P3 the consideration relevant to the said Deed of Transfer which is Rs.35,140,000 (Rupees Thirty-Five Million Hundred and Forty Thousand) had been paid by the purchaser at the execution of the deed in the following manner:

By cash	Rs. 5,000,000/-
By Pay order Commercial Bank of Ceylon Limited dated 11th October 2002 bearing No. 699679	Rs. 6,000,000/-
By Pay order Nations Trust Bank dated 16th October 2002 bearing Nos. 002356 for 002406 for	Rs. 7,640,000 Rs. 12,000,000
By Pay order Commercial Bank of Ceylon Limited dated 21st October 2002 bearing No. 699708	Rs. 4,500,000
Total	Rs. 35,140,000/=

Thus, it is clear that the major part of the consideration has been paid by three pay orders of banks. It is relevant to note that the Plaintiff-Appellant's evidence reveals some relevant and startling facts in this regard. The said evidence has been quoted below which is self-explanatory.

> "Q: In other words, the money was found only after the suspension order made on the 25th of October 2002?
> A: No, "P3" that Deed showing that we sold our house, was completed on the 21st of October 2002. After that we have got the money.
> Q. Your position is you got the money on the 21st of October 2002? How did you get that money, you got it in cash?
> A. Rs. 5 million in cash, there was a pay order form Commercial Bank, it is all listed in the Deed. All the monies are here. There are three pay orders and cash.
> Q. It was Friday?
> A. I don't know the day.
> Q. You said that you found the money on the 24th of October 2002?
> A. 21st of October 2002
> Q. How did you get that money, you got it by way of cheque or cash?
> A. We had cash and we had three pay orders.
> Q. Pay orders?
> A. Yes.
> Q. You should have deposited those pay order into your account?
> A. They would have been deposited because we had to get all the monies realized for us to complete the transactions on or before the 30th.
> Q. I am asking now you got the money as pay orders?
> A. Yes.
> Q. Are you said that you got on the 21st of October 2002?
> A. Yes.
> Q. When was it encashed?
> A. We were ready and willing to sign on that date on the 28th, we got all these monies and put into the bank, they got it that is why between the 21st, there was a few days to get it all together and we were signing on the 28th, with the money intact.
> Q. I suggest to you, you are deliberately lying on this issue?

A. No, I am not telling lie, I don't have the place to live. My identity card gives the same address.

Q. You were not ready with the money even prior to the date of 25th of October 2002?

A. No, I was ready with the money, I can get the Bank confirmation to say that the monies were all realized, were all deposited and it was ready.

Q. Having failed to complete the transaction on or before the 25th of October 2002, 28th of October 2002, you made all the arrangements to write a…"

A closer look at the above evidence shows that the Plaintiff-Appellant had failed to prove to the satisfaction of Court that the consideration had in fact passed through pay orders as claimed by the Plaintiff.

From the answers the Plaintiff-Appellant had given to the questions posed to him by the learned Counsel who appeared for the Defendant-Respondent during the cross-examination, it is clear that the Defendant-Respondent had very seriously and in an unambiguous manner challenged continuously, the authenticity of the Deed of Transfer P3 and the actual happening of the whole transaction which the Plaintiff-Appellant had claimed to have happened. The place of Agreement which the Plaintiff-Appellant says is not the place mentioned in the relevant document. The Plaintiff-Appellant merely says it is a typographical error. As has already been revealed, there is no adequate proof that the relevant consideration also has passed.

The Plaintiff-Appellant's assertion that the Deed of Transfer P3 was executed on the same date that she got to know about the suspension of activities of Pramuka Bank by the Central Bank, is also a strange coincidence. Courts are not bound to believe such fanciful stories however much the witnesses harp on them. Further, such evidence must be evaluated in the light of the other infirmities of the evidence of the Plaintiff-Appellant and the very suspicious background in which this transaction had taken place. These suspicious transactions have been more fully revealed in the course of this judgment in the next few pages.

Additionally, certified copies of the Deed of Transfer P3 have not been submitted and there is no proof of P3 having been registered at the land registry. There is also no specific date on which the Purchaser had signed that Deed of Transfer. These factors merely add on to increase the questionable circumstances surrounding P3.

Thus, having considered the positions taken up by both parties at the trial in relation to the authenticity of the Deed of Transfer P 3, I am of the view that the Plaintiff-Appellant is obliged in law to take necessary steps to ensure that the Deed of Transfer (P3) is proved. The Deed of Transfer (P3) is a notarially executed document; therefore, in the above circumstances, section 68 of the Evidence Ordinance would apply with regard to the proof of P3. That is necessary to prove the fact that the residential premises owned by the Plaintiff's mother Gulnar Saleem was sold in order to raise funds to complete the transaction under the Agreement of Sale No. 749.

As stated in the explanation to Section 154 of the Civil Procedure Code the Plaintiff-Appellant has not proved the authenticity of the Deed of Transfer at P3 even after the learned Counsel for the Defendant-Respondent had objected to the production of the said document.

For the above reasons, I hold that the Plaintiff-Appellant has failed to prove the Deed of Transfer produced marked P3 and thereby failed to prove that by 30.10.2002, she had raised the required funds by selling the property in which her mother had resided in Duplication Road and was ready to tender the balance purchase price.

Let me next consider limb (b) of Issue No. 01 i.e., whether the Plaintiff-Appellant has proved that she had informed Pramuka Bank by writing dated 28.10.2002, her agreement and readiness to proceed with the execution of the Deed of Transfer to effect the sale of the said Property.

Plaintiff-Appellant has relied on the letter dated 28th October 2002 which has been produced marked P4 in the Commercial High Court, to prove that she had fulfilled her obligations as per the Agreement (P1) by the deadline i.e., 30.10.2002 (vide Clauses 5 and 6 of the Agreement). It would be necessary to read through this letter to ascertain whether the Plaintiff-Appellant had in fact confirmed her agreement and readiness to complete the sale on or before 30.10.2002 by tendering the balance purchase price of Rs. 31,000,000 to Pramuka Bank. The operative paragraphs of the letter P4 are reproduced below.

> "….. I write with reference to the Sales Agreement No.749 dated 28th June 2002 entered into between your bank and my client Mrs. Shahla Cassim of No. 7, Dickmans Lane, Duplication Road, Colombo 5 whereby the bank agreed to transfer the aforesaid property to my client on or before the Thirtieth day October

Two Thousand and Two, in consideration of a sum of Rupees Thirty Five Million (Rs. 35,000,000/-) of which said sum of Rs. 35,000,000/- a sum of Rs. 4,000,000/- was paid to your bank as an advance by my client on 28th June 2002, the balance sum of Rs. 31,000,000/- to be paid at the time of execution of the deed of transfer.

It was agreed between the parties to execute the deed of transfer on the 28th of October 2002 at 2.30 p.m as per the conversation had with your Assistant General Manager Corporate Secretarial & Legal Mr. Surein J.S Peiris. Subsequently my client came to know through media reports that the Central Bank of Sri Lanka had suspended the business of the bank with immediate effect for a maximum period of sixty (60) days thereby placing a legal impediment on the bank to enter into a valid contract.

I wish to state that my client is willing ready and prepared to fulfill her obligations under the aforesaid Sales Agreement No. 749 and expects to and holds the bank responsible, in turn to fulfil the obligations of the bank under the said Agreement.

My client seeks an early resolution to the problem that has risen by the legal impediment placed on your bank to execute a valid contract and requests you to obtain written permission from the Central Bank of Sri Lanka to complete the said transaction.

My client proposes that in view of the circumstances arisen beyond her control that she has be given written notice by Pramuka Savings & Development Bank/ Central Bank as to the date on which the Central Bank lifts the suspension order on the Pramuka Savings & Development Bank to carry out banking activities and that a mutually agreeable date be fixed to sign and complete the aforementioned transaction and such date for signing be within 3-7 working days after receiving such notice.

My client and I await your urgent and earliest response, and an expeditious resolution of the matter. …. ″

A closer look at the letter P4 shows that the Plaintiff-Appellant was aware that the Central Bank of Sri Lanka had suspended the business of the Defendant-Respondent with immediate effect at the time she had written P4. Moreover, there is only one general sentence stating that she was willing, ready and prepared to fulfill her obligations under the Agreement P1. However, the purpose and the focus of the letter cannot clearly be taken as a genuine endeavor to get the proposed transaction completed on or before 30th October 2002 by tendering the balance purchase price to the Defendant-Respondent. Indeed, one cannot find a specific assertion in the letter P4 to the effect that the Plaintiff-Appellant was ready and willing to complete the sale on or before 30th October 2002 by tendering balance Rs. 31,000,000 to the Defendant-Respondent and complete the transaction. To the contrary, P4 is a mere request made to the Defendant-Respondent urging it to inform her of the date on which the Central Bank would lift the suspension order and to fix a mutually agreeable date thereafter to sign and complete the proposed transaction within 3-7 working days after receiving such notice. This clearly means that P4 is not a letter which confirms the Plaintiff-Appellants willingness to complete the proposed transaction on or before 30th October 2002. It also does not inform the Defendant-Respondent that the Plaintiff-Appellant has raised the balance purchase price of Rs. 31,000,000 as per the Agreement. Although the learned Commercial High Court Judge had chosen to answer the limb (b) of Issue No. 01 in the affirmative, having regard to the above facts, I am of the view that the letter P4 should not have been taken as sufficient proof of limb (b) of Issue No. 01. For the above reasons, I hold that the Plaintiff-Appellant has failed to prove to the satisfaction of Court that she had informed Pramuka Bank by writing dated 28.10.2002, her agreement and readiness to proceed with the execution of the Deed of Transfer to effect the sale of the relevant Property.

Let me next consider limb (c) of Issue No.1 i.e., whether Pramuka Bank by writing dated 28.10.2002, confirmed to the Plaintiff-Appellant, its agreement to proceed with the sale of the said Property.

The Plaintiff-Appellant had sought to prove that she had fulfilled her obligations as per the Agreement P1 by the deadline (30.10.2002) set out in the Agreement relying on P4 and P5. However, as has been mentioned above, the Plaintiff-Appellant at the time of writing the letter P4, was aware of the decision taken by the Central Bank as per the document produced marked V2 (a) and V3. It is appropriate to reproduce the operative part in P5, which is as follows:

"We refer to your fax dated 28th October 2002 on the above subject. We have noted the contents thereon and wish to confirm that the Pramuka Savings and Development Bank Limited agreed to same."

It is to be noted that the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka (CBSL) on 25.10.2002, had issued an order directing Pramuka Bank to suspend its business. The said order had also prohibited it to carry out any business transactions with immediate effect. This is evident by the letter dated 25.10.2002 marked V2 (a). The following paragraphs of V2 (a) would shed further light on the matter. They are as follows:

"2. On the basis of the return on capital adequacy submitted by PSDB for the quarter ending 31st March, 2002 and the examination conducted by officers of the Bank Supervision Department of the books and records of the PSDB, thereafter and the subsequent examination conducted consequent to the return for the month ending 30th September 2002 dated 15.10.2002 and the returns referring to in paragraph 1. I am satisfied that PSDB has a substantial negative net worth and around 80% of the bank's advances are non-performing. Even on the basis of the PSDB's subsequent letter of 21.10.2002, around 75% of the bank's advances are non-performing.

3. According to information obtained in the examinations conducted by the officers of the Bank Supervision Dept. and intimated to the PSDB and its Board of Directors from time to time the extremely weak financial situation of PSDB cannot be considered as a temporary phenomenon, because the deterioration of the financial position of PSDB has been continuing over a considerable period of time.

4. On the basis of the above-mentioned examinations and the information furnished by PSDB, I am satisfied that PSDB is insolvent and is likely to become unable to meet the demands of its depositors, and that its continuance in business is likely to involve loss to the bank's depositors and creditors. I have reported accordingly to the Governor of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka in terms of section 76 M (1) of the Banking Act No. 30 of 1988.

5. Having reviewed the facts and circumstances, the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka has made an Order in terms of the provisions of the said section 76 M (1) directing PSDB to forthwith suspend business, and has also directed me to take all measures as maybe necessary to prevent the continuation of business by PSDB.

6. The PSDB is hereby informed of the above-mentioned Order of the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka and is required, in terms of the said Order, to suspend all its business with immediate effect. Accordingly, the PSDB is prohibited from carrying out any business transaction with immediate effect."

The afore-stated contents of V2 (a) would proceed to show that the action taken by the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka was not a sudden action came as a surprise either to the Board of Directors or to the Secretary of Pramuka Bank. Copies of this communication have been sent not only to all the Directors but also to its secretary. Thus, in as much as the Plaintiff-Appellant was aware of this decision (as revealed by P4), the Directors and the Secretary of Pramuka Bank were also aware of the direction given by the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of Sri Lanka to suspend its business and cease to carry out all business transactions with immediate effect. The Agreement (P1) between the Plaintiff-Appellant and Pramuka Bank is no doubt questionable as both parties had entered into the said Agreement on the verge of the collapse of Pramuka Bank. Although the Plaintiff-Appellant had given evidence that she was prepared with the remainder of the purchase price by 21.10.2002, the Plaintiff-Appellant has failed to satisfy court as to why she waited until the suspension of the business of Pramuka Bank to make that fact known to the other party.

I also observe that the document marked P4 by the learned Counsel of the Plaintiff-Appellant had been faxed to Pramuka Bank at 11.30 am.

The letter P5 has been signed by 'Surein J.S. Peiris Assistant General Manager Corporate Secretarial & Legal'. The letter P5 does not assert that the author had any authority by the Board of Directors to communicate what it had communicated. P5 is dated 28th October 2002 and the communication directing the suspension of the business of Pramuka Bank [V2 (a)] is dated 25th of October 2002. Therefore, in any case, neither the Board of Directors nor the author of P5 could legally have written any such letter. I also observe that P4 and P5 are both dated on 28th October 2002; both have been faxed to each other giving no room for the Board of Directors to make a considered decision on the purported decision the Pramuka Bank claims to have been made according to the Plaintiff-Appellant as per P5. For those reasons, I hold that the communication P5 is not lawful communication and hence has no force or avail in law.

For the above reasons, I hold that the Plaintiff-Appellant has failed to fulfil her obligations under the Agreement of Sale (P1).

The law on contract is clear that if one party to a contract fails to fulfil his/her obligation said party would be in breach of the relevant contract. Accordingly, a party in breach of contract would not be entitled to an order for specific performance.

According to Clause 6 of the Agreement, which provides for the specific performance, such remedy is available only where the Plaintiff-Appellant had fulfilled her obligations by tendering the balance purchase price of 31 million on or before 30th October 2002.

In the instant case, the Plaintiff-Appellant has clearly breached her obligations under the Agreement of Sale (P1). Therefore, she is not entitled to the remedy of specific performance under Clause 6 of the Agreement.

For the foregoing reasons, I proceed to dismiss this appeal with costs fixed at Rs. 200,000/= payable to the Defendant-Respondent by the Plaintiff-Appellant.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

A.L. Shiran Gooneratne J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Arjuna Obeyesekere J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for leave to appeal made under Section 5 (1) of the High Court of the Provinces (Special Provisions) Act No. 10 of 1996.

S.C. (CHC) Appeal No. 72/2013
H.C. (Civil) Case No. CHC/244/07/MR

Standard Credit Lanka Limited carrying on its business at No. 277, Union Place, Colombo 02 and registered at No. 97, Hyde Park Corner, Colombo 02 (formerly Ceylinco Investment and Realty Limited).

Plaintiff

Vs.

1. Harankaha Arachchige Menaka Jayasankha No. 49/6, Makola South, Makola.

2. Dewasinghe Hewage Kulawathi Minipura No. 49/6, Makola South, Makola.

Defendants

AND NOW BETWEEN

1. Harankaha Arachchige Menaka Jayasankha No. 49/6, Makola South, Makola.

2. Dewasinghe Hewage Kulawathi Minipura No. 49/6, Makola South, Makola.

Defendants – Appellants

Vs.

Standard Credit Lanka Limited carrying on its business at No. 277, Union Place, Colombo 02 and registered at No. 97, Hyde Park Corner, Colombo 02 (formerly Ceylinco Investment and Realty Limited).

Plaintiff – Respondent

Before: Jayantha Jayasuriya P.C., C.J.

Janak De Silva, J.

Achala Wengappuli, J.

Counsel:

Thilak Wijesinghe with Gayanthika Menike Goonesinghe for the Defendants-Appellants

Wasantha Fernando with Chamathka Suriarachchi, Shaloshi Fernando and Kavindya Dharmarathnam for the Plaintiff-Respondent

Written Submissions:

Defendant-Appellants on 24.01.2022

Plaintiff-Respondent on 24.01.2022

Argued on: 14.12.2021

Decided on: 23.11.2023

Janak De Silva, J.

The Plaintiff-Respondent ("Respondent") instituted this action against the Defendants-Appellants ("Appellants") to recover a sum of Rs. 12,433,028/= and interest thereon. Admittedly, on 17.01.2006, a sum of Rs. 3,000,000/= was lent by the Respondent to the Appellants as a housing loan. The property more fully described in the schedule to the plaint was mortgaged by Mortgage Bond No. 486 as security.

At the trial, the Appellants admitted the due execution of Mortgage Bond No. 486 and the receipt of a sum of Rs. 3 million in accordance with the said Mortgage Bond.

On behalf of the Respondent, the Chief Financial Officer gave evidence and marked documents X1 to X10 as evidence. None of them were marked subject to proof. They included the statement of accounts (X9), letters of demand (X7 and X8), and the reply of the Appellants (X10) to the letter of demand (X8).

On behalf of the Appellants, only the 1st Appellant gave evidence.

The only defenses raised by the Appellants at the trial were that the contents of the Mortgage Bond were not explained prior to signing and that the statement of account was incorrect.

The learned Judge of the Provincial High Court of the Western Province holden in Colombo (Commercial High Court) rejected these contentions and entered judgment as prayed for in the plaint.

In this appeal, the Appellants seek to assail the judgment of the learned Commercial High Court Judge on the following three grounds:

(1) The amount of Rs. 12,433,028/= sought to be recovered by the Respondent is not recoverable in terms of Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code and the law of contracts;
(2) Awarding interest on Rs. 12,420,504/= is contrary to section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code; and,
(3) Interest granted is contrary to Section 5 of the Introduction of Law of England Ordinance, No. 5 of 1852 ("Civil Law Ordinance").

According to the Appellant, in the statement of account marked (X9), the amount claimed by the Respondent includes:

(1) Defaulted instalments (as at 24.11.2006 after deduction of Rs. 158,000/= payment made by the Appellants)	-	Rs. 313,101.00
(2) Default charges (interest on defaulted instalments)	-	Rs. 12,524.00
(3) Future Rentals (from 24.11.2006 to December 2026)	-	Rs. 12,107,403.00
Total	-	Rs. 12,432,028.00

The Appellants contend that in terms of the law, the said amount of Rs. 12,432,028/= includes:

(a) Balance principal sum;

(b) Interest accrued on the principal sum prior to the institution of the action;

(c) Interest on the defaulted installments (compound interest); and,

(d) Future interest since 24.11.2006 to January 2026.

It should be noted that there is no record of the Respondent being awarded future interest until January 2026. The statement of accounts (X9) claims that the total outstanding balance in respect of the loan agreement as at 25.11.2006 is Rs. 12,489,072.36, with an additional interest rate of 4% per month from 25.11.2006 on the balance of rentals receivable until payment is made in full.

In terms of the second schedule to Mortgage Bond No. 486 (X4), the Appellants agreed to pay the principal sum of Rs. 3,000,000/= with 21% interest thereon in equated monthly instalments of Rs. 52,413/= in 240 months. Hence, a sum of Rs. 12,579,120/= (Rs. 52,413/= x 240) should have been paid over 20 years by the Appellants if they were to fully perform their obligations in terms of the agreement.

The statement of account (X9) shows that the sum of Rs. 12,489,072.36 claimed by the Respondent has been arrived at after deducting payments made amounting to Rs. 158,616/= from Rs. 12,579,120/= (Rs. 12,420,504/=) plus a few other charges. Therefore, it is clear that the Respondent claimed only what it was entitled to in terms of the agreement between the parties and the interest thereon from the date of the action to the date of the judgment and to the full payment thereof.

The question to be determined is whether the sum claimed can be granted in accordance with Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code. According to the Appellants, the Court cannot grant compound interest under Section 192(1) of the Civil Procedure Code.

Hence, I propose to address this contention after examining the provisions in Section 192 (1), which reads:

> "When the action is for a sum of money due to the plaintiff, the court may, in the decree order interest according to the rate agreed on between the parties by the instrument sued on, or in the absence of any such agreement at the rate of twelve per centum per annum to be paid on the principal sum adjudged from the date of the action to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal sum for any period prior to the institution of the action, with further interest at such rate on the aggregate sum so adjudged, from the date of the decree to the date of payment, or to such earlier date as the court thinks fit."

These provisions specify the period and at what rate interest on money may be calculated. It deals with three distinct periods.

Firstly, it deals with interest prior to the institution of the action. Interest can be charged on the principal sum for any period prior to the commencement of the action at the rate agreed upon by the parties.

Secondly, interest can be charged on the principal sum to be paid from the date of the action until the date of the decree.

Thirdly, interest can be ordered on the aggregate sum so judged, from the date of the decree to the date of payment or such earlier date as the Court thinks fit.

I need not examine the rate at which interest may be ordered since the contention of the Appellants is on the type of interest that can be ordered and not the rate at which it can be done.

Compound interest (anatocismus) is the interest that is calculated based on the principal and any accumulated interest. On the question of compound interest, it appears that at one time the law was disconcerting.

Let me begin the analysis by considering the position in Roman law and Roman-Dutch law.

In Roman Law, interest was due either by agreement or by rule of law. The promise of interest usually requires stipulatio, a contract in the form of verbal question and answer.

Lee [The Elements of Roman Law, 4th ed. (Sweet & Maxwell, Reprint 2007), page 291] states that "[b]efore Justinian the law forbade the parties to agree in advance that the loan should bear compound interest. Justinian (very absurdly) forbade it as regards accrued interest as well; that is to say, the parties were not allowed to convert accrued interest into an interest-bearing loan by a new agreement".

Grotius [The Introduction to Dutch Jurisprudence, Translated by Charles Herbert (London: John Van Voorst and another, 1844), page 326] states that "it is for good reasons forbidden to heap up and add the unpaid interest to the capital, and again stipulate for a profit thereon (Anatocismus); because parties who do not look into consequences are thereby effectually ruined."

Van Der Linden [Institutes of the Laws of Holland, Translated by J. Henry (London, 1828), page 219] states "that interest upon interest is not allowed, nor to be turned into principal, so as to increase the original debt".

It is evident that compound interest was not permitted under both Roman law and Roman-Dutch law.

It appears that at first, it was thought that this principle was part of our law.

Walter Pereira in Institutes of the Laws of Ceylon [Vol. II (H.C. Cottle – acting Government Printer, 1901), page 547] states that "compound interest, that is interest upon interest, is not allowed [Vand. D.C. 57] even though expressly stipulated for [Pulle v. Tamby Cando, Ram. Rep. 1872-1876, 189. See Cens. For. 1.4.4.27]".

This principle was adopted in Mudiyanse v. Vanderpoorten [23 N.L.R. 342] and Obeyesekere v. Fonseka [36 N.L.R. 334], an authority relied on by the Appellants, where it was held that Roman-Dutch law does not allow compound interest even though expressly stipulated for.

Nevertheless, in Abeydeera v. Ramanathan Chettiar [38 N.L.R. 389], it was held that in Ceylon (as it was then) compound interest may be recovered where the party charged has agreed to pay it. In Marikar v. Supramaniam Chettiar (44 N.L.R. 409) the majority held that compound interest is recoverable under the law of Ceylon, although the question of such a charge may be considered on the reopening of a transaction in terms of the Money Lending Ordinance. Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance was believed by the majority to have abolished the Roman-Dutch law rule against compound interest.

Weeramantry in The Law of Contracts [Vol. 2, (Lawman (India) (Pvt.) Ltd., 1969 reprint in 1999), page 925] clarified this position and stated:

> "The Roman Law prohibited compound interest so also the Roman Dutch Law did not allow compound interest even though expressly stipulated for, but the Roman-Dutch law prohibition against compound interest is no longer in force in South Africa or in Ceylon."

The Court of Appeal in Kiran Atapattu v. Pan Asia Bank Ltd. [(2005) 2 Sri.L.R. 276] adopted this position.

On the basis of the above authorities and the reasoning therein, I am of the opinion that compound interest is not prohibited in Sri Lanka. Moreover, there is nothing in Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code which contradicts this position.

I reject the Appellants' argument that compound interest cannot be claimed by the Respondent.

Nonetheless, it is important to consider the provisions in Section 5 of the Introduction of Law of England Ordinance, No. 5 of 1852 (“Civil Law Ordinance”) which states that the amount recoverable on account of interest shall in no case exceed the principal amount.

It is interesting to note that although this rule is embodied in an enactment made by the British, it formed part of Roman-Dutch law.

Van Der Linden [supra.] states that “the amount of interest may not exceed the principal”.

Lee [supra.] states that “in the classical period arrears of interest, might not be recovered in any action in excess of the capital. Justinian enacted that the capital might not in any circumstances yield in interest a sum greater than itself. This meant that when the capital had doubled it ceased to bear interest”.

It appears that due to the genesis of the rule in the Roman-Dutch law, at some point, the rule was refused to be applied in Ceylon (as it was then) on equitable considerations.

In Sedembranader v. Sangerapulle (Ram. Rep. 1843-1855, 19), decided in 1845 before the Civil Law Ordinance was enacted in Ceylon (as it then was), Oliphant C.J. commented that the rule is unknown to the English law and refused to apply the rule as there was no equity in it.

It is possible that the rule was incorporated into the Civil Law Ordinance to overcome the apprehension of the English judges in enforcing it as part of Roman-Dutch law. It is thus clear that Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance is in fact based on the principle in the Roman-Dutch Law inasmuch such principle was not known to English law.

It has been confirmed in Lucia Perera v. Albert Fernando (1 C.L.W. 107) that the rule in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance is a restatement of the Roman-Dutch law rule.

Walter Pereira in Laws of Ceylon [supra.] states that where interest is paid from time to time there is no limit to the amount which may be recovered as interest. The amount already paid may exceed the principal. Still, the creditor is entitled to recover a sum equal to the principal as interest.

It appears that Pereira was of the view that if interest is paid periodically, there is no limit to the amount that can be recovered as interest. He relies on two authorities, Coomarevelo v. Sittarapuwalpillai (4 S.C.C. 28) and Sidenberenada v. Sangarapulle (sic) [supra.] for this proposition. Let me examine them to test the validity of this proposition.

In Sinnathamby Cumaraveley and another v. Muttutamby Sitterapuvalpulley [(1881) 4 S.C.C. 28] the headnote states that the plaintiff was entitled to recover in this action his principal and all arrears of interest then due up to the amount of the principal. The principal sum borrowed in that case was rupees 5,000. Cayley C.J. states [ibid., page 29] that "the plaintiff cannot recover more than 5,000 rupees". The only principle sought to be made is that there is nothing preventing the obligee of a bond from recovering at any time arrears of interest equal to the principal, however much interest he may have previously received.

In Sedembranader v. Sangerapulle [supra.], the Court considered the rule as part of the Roman-Dutch law and not in the context of Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance. It is clear that the learned judge was under a misapprehension about the ambit of the rule for he says the application of the rule means that one who has lent say £100 at ten percent for ten years, and who has regularly been paid £10 a year as interest, would not be entitled to demand his £100 at the end of the tenth year, because he had been paid that sum in the shape of interest.

I am of the view that the above decisions do not support the proposition made by Pereira [supra] that where interest is paid from time to time there is no limit to the amount which may be recovered as interest.

However, there appears to be support for a narrower version of Pereira's proposition in the case of Talpe Gamagey Don Carolis De Silva Appuhami v. Baffamagey Don Theodoris [(1882-1883) S.C.C. 16] where Clarence A.C.J. held:

> "… running interest stops when the amount in arrear reaches the amount of the principal, but that if a part-payment of interest be then made, interest may then run on till the amount of the principal be again reached: and this is in accordance with the Roman-Dutch Law or practice as described by Voet, who says (xxii, i. 19) "Non iniquum ex nostris moribus visum fuit, durare obligationem usurariam, donec sors restituta fuerit, etiamsi triplicatoe vel quadruplicatoe sortis supercent quantitatem, si modo particiulatim soluatoe sint."

According to Roman-Dutch law, running interest stops when the amount in arrears reaches the principal. However, if part-payment of interest is made thereafter, interest may then run until the principal amount is reached again. In Talpe Gamagey Don Carolis De Silva Appuhami v. Baffamagey Don Theodoris [ibid.] Clarence A.C.J. held that this was indeed the practice in the country.

How does section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance affect that position in Roman-Dutch law? Is that part of the Roman-Dutch law still valid in Sri Lanka after Section 5 was enacted? I need not address that question here as there is no evidence in this case that the amount of interest to be paid by the Appellants to the Respondent reached the principal amount. It is a matter to be considered in appropriate proceedings when the issue arises.

The ambit of Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance was considered in Fernando and Another v. Sillappen & Others [5 C.W.R. 301] which was decided in 1918, where Bertram C.J. explained the meaning of the words "the amount recoverable on account of interest". He did so after interpreting Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code to provide for the adjustment of three sums, firstly, the principal sum, secondly, the interest on the principal sum up to the date of action, and in the third place, a supplementary sum in respect of interest from the date of action brought to the date of judgment.

In so far as the interest is concerned, Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code allows the Court to award interest on the principal sum at the rate agreed between parties firstly, for any period prior to the institution of the action, and secondly, from the date of action to the date of the decree. Furthermore, the Court is competent to grant interest on the total amount decided upon from the date of the decree to the date of payment.

Bertram C.J. [ibid., page 303] took the view that the words "the amount recoverable on account of interest" in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance did not apply to the aggregate amount made up of the two sums of "interest", i.e., firstly, the interest due up to the date of action brought, and secondly, the interest due from the date of action brought to the date of judgment.

In other words, the prohibition in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance applies only to the amount of interest due on the principal sum as at the date of the institution of the action.

This prohibition does not apply to the power vested in Court in terms of Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code to award interest on the principal sum according to the rate agreed between parties from the date of action to the date of decree and on the aggregate sum so adjudged from the date of the decree to the date of payment or such earlier date determined by Court.

Bertram C.J. [ibid.] held that Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code intended to give the creditor a certain additional statutory right to interest in addition to the limit of interest which he was allowed by the common law. The principle of this additional statutory right is that the creditor's rights ought not to be prejudiced by the length of the resistance offered to his claim by the debtor.

In Lucia Perera v. Albert Fernando [supra.] decided in 1931, it was held that Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code does not in anyway repeal the provision in Section 3 (present Section 5) of the Civil Law Ordinance and that it must be read subject to that. The decision in Fernando and Another v. Sillappen & Others [supra.] was not discussed.

Weeramantry in The Law of Contracts [supra., page 932] states:

> "Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code does, however confer on creditors an additional right in this sense, that interest may be claimed for the period between the plaint and judgment even in cases where the interest claimed in the plaint already equals the amount of the principal. The date of plaint is thus the time at which the line is drawn in calculating the limit of interest allowed under the Civil Law Ordinance, the underlying principle being that the creditors rights ought not be prejudiced by the length of resistance offered in Court by the debtor."

In my view, this proposition has much merit given that the Civil Procedure Code was enacted in 1889 whereas the Civil Law Ordinance was enacted in 1852.

Moreover, this assertion is of greater significance in the current context where laws delays have had a negative impact on the administration of justice. To apply the principle in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance to the additional right conferred on creditors terms in Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code will embolden the debtors to prolong litigation with the assistance of canny legal advice. The creditor may, at the end of a prolonged litigation, be left with a worthless paper decree.

In Nimalaratne Perera v. Peoples Bank [(2005) 2 Sri.L.R. 67] it was held that the limitation placed by Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance on the amount recoverable as interest has no application to interest recoverable relating to a banking transaction. The Respondent is not a bank. The transaction in question is not a banking transaction. Hence, we are not called upon to test the validity of the ratio in Nimalaratne Perera v. Peoples Bank [ibid.].

It is pertinent to note that the rule in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance has been referenced in some recent legislation by the legislature. On one occasion it is repeated, and on another occasion an exception has been made.

Section 5 of the Money Lending Ordinance No. 2 of 1918 as amended, states that in taking account under Section 2 therein, the court shall observe the rule that no interest shall at any time be recoverable to an amount in excess of the sum then due as principal.

In terms of Section 21 of the Debt Recovery (Special Provisions) Act No. 2 of 1990 as amended, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in that Act or any other law, "an institution" may recover as interest "in an action instituted under this Act", a sum of money in excess of the sum of money calculated as principal, in such action. (emphasis added)

However, the Respondent does not benefit from this exception as this action has not been instituted under that Act.

For all the foregoing reasons, I hold that the rule in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance is part of our law. It prevents the recovery on account of interest a sum exceeding the principal as at the date of the institution of the action even where interest has been paid from time to time provided that the interest so paid has not reached the principal sum. However, the rule in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance does not apply to the interest that the Court can order in terms of Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code on the principal sum and interest thereon from the date of the action to the date of the decree and on the aggregate sum so adjudged from the date of the decree to the date of payment or such earlier date determined by Court.

The learned Commercial High Court Judge awarded the Respondent a sum of Rs. 12,433,028/= and interest of 21% per annum on a sum of Rs. 12,420,540/= from 25.11.2006 to the date of payment. This is contrary to the rule set out in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance.

Accordingly, I am of the view that the Respondent is only entitled to the following relief:

(1) The balance of the principal sum of Rs. 2,841,384/= (Rs. 3,000,000/= less payment received as at termination Rs. 158,616/=);
(2) Interest on Rs. 3,000,000/= at the rate of 21% per annum agreed between the parties from 07.01.2006 (the date of the Mortgage Bond No. 486) up to 24.07.2007 (the date of institution of this action). If the total amount of interest exceeds Rs. 3,000,000/=, the Respondent is only entitled to Rs. 3,000,000/= in view of Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance;
(3) From the date of institution of this action to the date of the decree, the Respondent is entitled, in terms of Section 192 of the Civil Procedure Code, to interest on the principal sum of Rs. 3,000,000/= at the agreed rate of 21% per annum;
(4) For the aggregate amount, namely the interest recoverable under item (2) and (3) above, an interest at the rate of 13% from the date of judgment till the date on which the entire amount is paid.

The rule in Section 5 of the Civil Law Ordinance will not apply to items (3) and (4).

The above calculation is based on the statement of accounts marked X9 which was not challenged during the evidence of the 1st Appellant.

For the foregoing reasons, the judgment of the learned Commercial High Court Judge is varied to the extent set out above. The learned Judge of the Commercial High Court is directed to enter a decree accordingly.

Appeal partly allowed. I make no order as to costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Jayantha Jayasuriya P.C., Chief Justice

I agree.

CHIEF JUSTICE

Achala Wengappuli, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms on Article 105(3) of the Constitution read with Section 21 of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act No. 21 of 1996.

SC / Contempt / 01 / 2023

Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka,
No. 14, R A de Mel Mawatha,
Colombo 04,
Sri Lanka.

Complainant – Petitioner

-Vs-

1. M.P.D.U.K. Mapa Pathirana,
   Secretary,
   Ministry of Power and Energy,
   No. 437, Galle Road,
   Colombo 03.

2. N.S. Ilangakoon,
   Chairman.

3. K.G.R.F. Comestar,
   Additional General Manager.

4. T.K. Liyanage
   Finance Manager.

5. A.R.M.M.S. Karunasena,
   Deputy General Manager.

   All of Ceylon Electricity Board,
   6th Floor, No. 50,
   Sir Chittamapalam A.
   Gardiner Mawatha,
   Colombo 02.

6. Janaka Rathnayake,
   Chairman,
   Public Utilities Commission,
   No. 1200/9, Rajamalwaththa
   Road, Battaramulla.

7. Mohamed Uvais Mohamed,
   Managing Director/Chairman.

8. V.N. Weerasuriya,
   Deputy General Manager
   (Finance),

9. S.M.C.P. Samarakoon,
   Manager (Sales)

   All of Ceylon Petroleum Corporation,
   Dr. Danister De Silva
   Mawatha,
   Colombo 09.

10. Hon. Attorney-General
    Attorney General's Department,
    Colombo 12.

Contemnor - Respondents

Before : Hon. E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J.

Hon. Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J.

Hon. A.L. Shiran Gooneratne, J.

Counsel : Mr. Upul Jayasooriya PC with Theekshana Pathirana, Sachira Andrahannadi and Sandamal Rajapaksha for the Complainant Petitioner.

Kanishka de Silva Balapatabendi, DSG with MS. I. Randeny for the 1st & 10th Contemnor Respondents.

Dr. Romesh de Silva, PC. With Uditha Egalahewa, PC, Nishan Anketell and N. K. Ashokbharan for 2nd and 5th Contemnor Respondents.

Argued on : 03.02. 2023 and 07.02.2023

Decided on : 10.02.2023

E. A. G. R. Amarasekara, J.

The Complainant Petitioner, The Human Right Commission of Sri Lanka (Hereinafter sometimes referred to as the HRCSL or the Petitioner) has invoked the jurisdiction of this Court by way of Petition and Affidavit tendered to this court on 30.01.2023 and has sought relief among others;

1. An interim order compelling the 1st and 2nd Respondents, and in particular the 2nd Respondent, to abide by the Directive marked P7 until the final determination of the case;
2. Issue summons in the first instance on the 1st to 9th Respondents;
3. Issue notice on the Attorney General and direct him to file draft charges on the accused Contemnors;
4. An Order nisi directing the Respondents, in particular the 2nd Respondent, to appear before the Supreme Court and to show cause as to why the 2nd Respondent should not be dealt with and punished for contempt of Court pursuant to Section 21 of the HRCSL Act read with Article 105(3) of the Constitution in respect of the following Rule;
   'That on or about 26/01/2023 within the Jurisdiction of this Court in Colombo that the 2nd Respondent by failing to abide by the Directive marked P7 issued by the Petitioner unduly interfered with the course of administering justice in this Republic and thereby committed the offence of Contempt of Court punishable under Article 105(3) of the Constitution read with section 21 of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act no21 of 1996.'

At the top of the caption of the Petition, the Petitioner has referred to the application as an application made under and in terms of Article 105(3) of the Constitution read with Section 21 of the Human Rights of Commission of Sri Lanka act No.21 of 1996 (Herein after sometimes referred to as the HRCSL Act). Article 105 (3) of the Constitution confers on this Court the power to punish for Contempt of this Court. Section 21 (1) and (2) of the HRCSL Act make contemptuous acts against the HRCSL equivalent to Contemptuous acts done against this Court and authorize this court to try and punish such contemptuous acts.

Section 21 (3)(c) of the HRCSL Act reads as follows;

"21(3) If any person-[c] refuses or fails without cause which is the opinion of the Commission is reasonable to comply with the requirements of a notice, written order or direction issued or made by to him, by the commission……. Such person shall be guilty of the offence of contempt against or in disrespect of, the authority of the Commission." (Underlined by me).

In terms of section 24(4), where the Commission determines a person is guilty of an offence of contempt, it may transmit a certificate to this Court, setting out the determination and such certificate has to be signed by the Chairman of the HRCSL. Thus, section 21(4) of HRCSL Act provides for how the HRCSL may invoke the Jurisdiction of this Court for Contempt. It is by transmitting the said Certificate. Since section 21(1) empowers this Court to try every such offence as an offence committed against this Court, it appears that the determination by the HRCSL is not conclusive as an act of contempt against this Court. Thus, this Court has to come to its own conclusions at the end, if this Court take cognizance of the certificate and proceed to try the offence. Once the Certificate is transmitted to this Court, as per section 21(5), this Court need not proceed further unless this Court thinks it fit to take cognizance of the certificate transmitted by the HRCSL.

In relation to a Similar Provision in the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption Act No 15 of 1994, K. Sripavan C.J., held that if the Court take cognizance of the certificate, it tantamounts to initiation / instituting of the proceedings. Therefore, there is no necessity to file a Petition and Affidavit- vide MRS. Dilrkshi Dias Wickramasinghe,P.C, V Hon. Lakshman Namal Rajapaksha, M.P, SC Contempt 04/2016 decided on 15.09,2016. However, what is important is that this Court should think it fit to take cognizance of the Certificate.

The Procedure adopted by the Petitioner in this matter invoking Jurisdiction of this Court

The Petitioner invoking the Jurisdiction of this Court in terms of section 21 of the HRCSL Act has filed a petition and an affidavit along with documents marked P1 to P15 which includes the certificate. Further among other reliefs, it has prayed for an interim relief to compel the 1st and 2nd Contemnor Respondents to abide by the directive marked P7 until the final determination of this case. It is trite law that if someone asks for interim relief, he must disclose all material facts to show uberima fides and has to show the existence of a prima facie case. As such, it can be understood why this application was made by way of a petition and affidavit along with several documents. Nevertheless, it must be noted what has been attempted through an interim relief was to enforce a directive issued by the HRCSL when there is no such provision to enforce a directive in that manner in terms of section 21 of the HRCSL Act, in terms of which the jurisdiction of this court was invoked to take cognizance of the certificate.

Whether the interim relief could have been given or can be given

When this matter was taken up on 02.02.2023, 2nd to 5th Contemnor Respondents (hereinafter 2nd to 5the Respondents) have given an undertaking to provide uninterrupted electricity supply in the course of the day and until the case is supported. The learned Counsel for the Petitioner contends in his submissions that an undertaking is equivalent to an interim order. It may be so as far as it is in force, but it is not an order made by a Court but an undertaking a party voluntarily gives. Thus, once it is withdrawn the party moved for interim relief must satisfy Court that he has a prima facie case and the existence of other requirements needed to issue interim relief. Thus, when the undertaking was withdrawn on 03 .02 2023, this court declined to grant interim relief at that moment and stated that it will be considered if the order nisi is issued as prayed for. However, for the following reasons an interim relief could not have been given by this court.

- To issue an interim relief it should have direct relevance to the main relief prayed for. The main relief prayed for in the petition seems to be the Order nisi mentioned above. Non issuance of the interim relief to abide by the directive has nothing to do with the safeguarding of the final relief prayed for or the punishment of contempt. Non issuance will not render the final relief nugatory.

- The final relief in the petition itself is an order nisi which is temporary in nature and there is no order prayed for an order absolute in the petition.
- As it was informed to this court that the Petitioner does not intend to punish the other Respondents for contempt and only wants to frame charges against the 2nd Respondent, no interim relief can be issued against the 1st Respondent as there is no imaginable final relief against the 1st Respondent.
- The 2nd Respondent is only the chairman of the Board of the CEB and other members of the Board have not been made parties to this application and even the General Manager who is entrusted with the executive powers and is charged with the business of the board, the organization and execution of the powers, functions and duties of the board and administrative control of the Board as per the Electricity Board is not a party to the action. No interim relief has been prayed for against them. Hence, issuing of an interim relief against the chairman has no force on the other members of the board and the general manager. Such an interim relief may become useless as they are not bound to abide by it.
- As Counsel for the 2nd Respondent correctly pointed out, Contempt proceedings are quasi criminal in nature, inviting to reply to an application for interim relief may affect his right to remain silent.
- This court cannot consider an interim relief on the basis of maintaining the status quo, since undertaking given indicates that the status quo at the time of institution of proceedings was the interruption of power supply.
- This application was made under section 21 of the HRCSL Act. It provides for contempt proceedings but not for the enforcement of the directives of the HRCSL. The highest Court of this country cannot act as a 'cat's paw' to enforce orders other than in the manner provided by law. If this court rubber-stamp and enforce directives or decisions of other institutions when such enforcement is not provided by law, this court will have to be responsible for the illegalities, errors and defects etc. in such orders.

As per the reasons given later in this order, this court would not take cognizance of the certificate and as such there is no prima facie a case where this court can grant such interim relief.

Whether the Certificate marked P14 should be taken cognizance of and whether the Order Nisi as prayed for in the petition be issued

The Counsel for the Petitioner later argued that the mere certificate alone could have qualified the Petitioner and the Court should proceed and issue summons in relation to the contempt proceedings purely on the strength of the certificate. In other words, he invites this Court to turn a blind eye to the Petition and affidavit and the accompanying documents other than the certificate. However, he referred to some of these other documents in his oral submission even after taking up such argument. Even in his synopsis of submissions tendered after the oral submissions he has referred to some of the documents other than the certificate. A party cannot be allowed to blow hot and cold. It is not proper for a party to use documents he tendered for his benefit and ask others to ignore them. If so, he should have taken up this position at the beginning withdrawing the interim relief. Due to the fact that the Petitioner has prayed for interim relief and issued notices to the parties, Parties are before Court and it is the Petitioner who filed these documents before Court. It is against the conscience of this Court to ignore such documents when such documents contain glaring evidence with regard to the process that took place in issuing the certificate, and legality and or regularity of such certificate. On the other hand, it is not the task of this Apex Court to rubber-stamp the certificate and commence contempt proceedings. The legislature in its wisdom has used the words "which the supreme Court may think fit to take cognizance". As per the decision in SC Contempt 04/2016 referred to above, the expression 'take cognizance' means taking judicial application of the mind of the Court to the facts mentioned in the certificate. It is the view of this Court that the words 'thinks fit' add more scope to the words 'take cognizance'. If the documents tendered by the Petitioner itself indicate that it is improper to proceed for contempt and it is unlikely to reach a conclusion that will end in punishing the purported contemnor, it is not fit to take cognizance of the certificate. It would only be a waste of valuable time, energy and resources of this Court as well as of the Parties involved. Afterall, all these documents are documents tendered by the Petitioner. It must be noted that as per section 21(6), it is not possible to summon commissioners to get clarifications on any issue relating to the documents tendered with the Petition unless they themselves decide to come and give evidence.

As said before, the Counsel for the Petitioner informed Court that he intends to proceed for contempt only against the 2nd Respondent, first this Court will consider the certificate alone and see whether it is fit to proceed against the 2nd Respondent.

As per the last paragraph of the certificate, HRCSL has determined that CEB and/or its officials have acted in contempt of the HRCSL. To frame charges against a person or many of them it must be clear who is or are liable to answer the charges. As per the said last paragraph it is not clear whether it is CEB alone or CEB and its officials together or its officials alone are liable. On the other hand, when it says 'its officials', without naming them, it may contain large group of persons that this Court could not recognize without further clarifications. Only named person is the CEB (Ceylon Electricity Board), a legal person. As mentioned before due to the words used "and/or", it is not clear whether it is CEB or its officials are liable. On the other hand, CEB is a body corporate which consists of many members (section 3 of the CEB Act). It is the General manager, subject to the general instructions of the Board on matters of policy, is charged with the business of the Board, organization and execution of the powers, functions and duties of the Board etc. If the CEB is the Contemnor, there is no material in the certificate to single out the chairperson of the Board of CEB to frame charges against him. What is mentioned above is sufficient to refuse to take cognizance of the certificate against the 2nd Respondent on the strength of the certificate.

Furthermore, as per section 21 (3) (c) of the HRCSL Act, offence of contempt of the HRCSL constitute only when one refuses or fails without a reasonable cause to comply with request of a notice, written order or direction issued or made to that person by the HRCSL. The certificate does not indicate that the 2nd Respondent, chairman of the CEB refused to act in accordance with the purported directive. Further, the certificate does not reveal that an opportunity was given to him to show cause to the HRCSL to assess whether the show cause was reasonable or not. Hence another reason emanating from the certificate not take cognizance of the certificate. Even the affidavit tendered with the petition does not indicate such opportunity was given to show cause prior to the issuance of the certificate.

Now it is time to consider the background facts that has come to light through the application along with the documents tendered by the Petitioner.

The certificate attempts to highlight a noncompliance by CEB in contravention of a directive(P7) issued by HRCSL despite a clear undertaking given by the CEB. The learned DSG submitted that HRCSL has no authority to issue this type of directives, and Directives and Directions are distinct to each other having different meanings.

In section 10(c) of the English version of HRCSL Act the word directive is found but in a different context. The word 'Direction' is found in sections 21(3) (c) and in section 16 (6) of the Act. However, it appears that the Sinhala version of the Act use the word "Vidanaya" for both the words, directive and direction. Even if it is considered that the word used as directive is used for a direction contemplated in the Act, direction is issued only after a conciliation or mediation process referred to in section 16 of the Act. Neither the certificate nor the affidavit indicates that there was a conciliation or mediation process as contemplated by section 16 of the Act. Since an interim relief was prayed in the first instance, it can be assumed that all the material facts were revealed by the Petitioner. Since nothing relating to a conciliation or mediation process has been divulged there may be a truth in the argument that this type of direction/directive cannot be issued by the Petitioner.

It was undisputed and the counsel for the petitioner in his oral submissions admitted that the process ended in issuing the certificate was after an investigation by the HRCSL on its own motion in terms of section 14 of the Act. Unless the Commission decided to refer it to conciliation or mediation under section 15(2), only recommendations can be issued in term of the other provisions of section 15 of the HRCSL Act. This make the directive marked P7 questionable as to the fact whether it was issued as per the law. P7 directive is the base for the issuance of the certificate that has to be taken cognizance of at the first instance to commence contempt proceedings. The P7 directive/direction indicate that it was issued on the basis of the settlement arrived. The purported settlement is found in P6 and P5. In P6 the purported settlement has been entered as a recommendation of the HRCSL- vide last paragraph of P6. As per the documents, both P5 and P6 were made at 4.00 pm on 25.01.2023. The settlement part that indicates the terms seems to be identical in both P6 and P5. If a recommendation is issued, there seems to be no provision to convert such recommendation to a directive/ direction. If a recommendation is issued, procedure contemplated in the Act requires the HRCSL to give a time limit to report back to the HRCSL with regard to the implementation of the recommendation. If the relevant person fails to report or the actions taken by that person is inadequate, the HRCSL must make full report and place it before the President of the Country who shall cause it to be placed before the Parliament. This may be to provide administrative relief but there is no provision to convert a recommendation to a direction and proceed to initiate contempt proceedings. Though, the learned Counsel for the Petitioner later attempts to indicate that P6 is not a recommendation as contemplated by the HRCSL act but a mutual settlement, both the Petition and the affidavit tendered by the chairperson of the HRCSL have referred to this document marked as P6 also as a recommendation. This creates doubts as to the legality of the procedure followed by the HRCSL.

P1 and P2 marked with the Petition are addressed to the 1st and the 6th Respondent only and P2 informs them to take part in an inquiry to be held at 10.30 Am. Even though P2a attendance sheet indicates that some of the officers of the CEB were present, the purpose of their attendance is not clear since the invitation letters sent to them are not marked. P2a does not indicate the authority they had from CEB or any other person. Thus, P1 to P2a does not indicate any involvement of the 2nd Respondent, the chairman of CEB. Even though P3 is addressed to the 2nd Respondent requesting him to take part in a discussion in relation the power interruptions during the Advanced Level examinations, it does not indicate that it is intended to enter in to an agreement. Nevertheless the 2nd Respondent has not participated in the discussions as evinced by P3a, and P4 indicates that representatives were authorized to represent the CEB but not the Chairman, the 2nd Respondent. Thus P3, P3a or P4 do not provide sufficient material to impose a separate liability on the chairman, the 2nd Respondent with regard to any agreement entered into, if there is any valid agreement on behalf of the CEB.

P5 clearly indicates that the Representatives of the CEB signed it subject to a condition which states that it was signed on behalf of the Chairman and subject to the approval of the Director Board. It must be noted P4 does not authorize them to represent the Chairman. Thus, the paragraph 10 of the petition and the corresponding paragraph in the affidavit contains incorrect facts. Perhaps, the representative of the CEB would have used the term 'on behalf of 'since the place for signature was allocated to the Chairman Of CEB. The condition they entered when signing P5 clearly indicates that they did not have authority to enter into an agreement on behalf of the CEB and they needed the approval of the CEB. (These facts indicate that paragraph 11 of the petition and corresponding paragraph of the affidavit of the Chairperson of the HRCSL is questionable). It is also questionable whether without the approval of the Board the Chairman, could bind CEB since it is a statutory body governed by the provisions of the statute that established it. It appears the representatives of the CEB by inserting the condition did the correct thing to indicate that they lacked the authority to bind the CEB. Thus, P5 does not indicate a clear agreement. P6 also contains the same conditions and it bears the same time as P5. There is nothing to indicate that at the same moment of time the representatives of the CEB got the approval of the Board. Hence, these documents create a serious doubt as to whether there was a clear agreement as stated in the certificate, for which CEB or the 2nd Respondent consented. It must be noted that the time for discussions to commence was 4.00 pm. Even the purported agreements seem to have reached by 4PM. The learned Counsel for the Petitioner tried to explain this in oral submissions by stating that it is a typographical error which fact is not supported by the averments in the affidavit of the Chairperson of the HRCSL. The said affidavit states that, since there was a condition entered accompanying the signature, the Petitioner inquired as to the rationale behind this condition and after a recess of nearly 30 minutes parties agreed to sign the agreement. Her affidavit as aforesaid does not indicate how both the documents marked P5 and P6 contains the same time which is the time the discussions was to be commenced. Her affidavit does not explain, when there is a serious doubt as to the approval of the CEB was lacking due to the condition placed by the signature in P5, how such approval was taken for P6. HRCSL should have considered that CEB is a statutory body which is governed in accordance with the statute that established it, and it may need time to give approval for an agreement through its regular procedure. Time gaps between P4 to P6 questions whether there was sufficient time for a Statutory Body to meet and take decisions. However, the facts revealed through the Petitioners own documents create serious doubts as to the validity of the agreement entered which is the base for the purported directive and the certificate. This Court does not see that there was clear agreement as stated in the Certificate.

One may argue that advance level examinations had already started and there was an urgency to find solutions. Advance level examinations would have been scheduled many weeks ago when power interruptions were already in force. These problems could have been foreseen by the relevant authorities including some of the other Respondents. Even the affidavit of the chairperson of the Petitioner refers to P9 where His Excellency the President made some remarks regarding the gravity of the situation some months ago. However, delay in taking steps to find solution cannot be an excuse to do it in an incorrect manner. The last moment dramas to find solutions which lacks legal validity and propriety only allow some to capitalize on the public emotions for their personal gains while causing harm to the faith the people have on the institutions they respect.

As per the reasons given above;

A. The certificate itself does not contain sufficient material to form charges against the 2nd Respondent
B. The documents tendered by the Petitioner itself questions the legality of the settlement and the process culminating in issuing a directive and a certificate.

Thus, this Court does not think that it is fit to take cognizance of the certificate and proceed further to commence contempt proceedings against the 2nd Respondent or to issue an order nisi as prayed for.

Accordingly, the application is dismissed without costs.

……..

Judge of the Supreme Court

Kumudini Wickremasinghe., J.

I agree.

……

Judge of the Supreme Court

A.L. Shiran Goonneratne, J.

I agree.

……

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for a ruling of contempt of the court under Article 105(3) of the Constitution

Nagananda Kodithuwakku,
The General Secretary,
Vinivida Foundation,
99, Subadrarama Road,
Nugegoda.

SC/Contempt/ 02/2022 Petitioner

Vs

Jayantha Jayasuriya,
Chief Justice,
Supreme Court of Sri Lanka,
Colombo 12.

Respondent

Before: Murdu N. B. Fernndo, PC., J.
E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J.
A.H.M.D. Nawaz, J.
Janak De Silva, J. and
Achala Wengappuli, J.

Counsel: The Petitioner appears in person.
Sanjay Rajaratnam, PC., Attorney General, with Ms. Kanishka de Silva DSG, Ms. S. Ahmed SC and R. Gooneratne SC appears as Amicus Curiae.

Argued on: 31-01-2023

Decided on: 11-08-2023

Oder of Court

The Petitioner an Attorney-at-Law, a public interest litigation activist and Vinivida Foundation General Secretary, filed the instant application dated 12th December, 2022 in terms of Article 105(3) of the Constitution against the Respondent, Jayantha Jayasuriya, the incumbent Chief Justice.

The Petitioner in paragraph two of his petition, referred to the Respondent and the cause of action as thus;

> (2) The Respondent is the incumbent Chief Justice of the Republic of Sri Lanka. In this contempt matter he is 'charged' for contempt of court for a contemptuous act committed by him on 20th September, 2017 undermining the authority of the Supreme Court and bringing it into disrepute, when he was the Attorney General of the Republic of Sri Lanka…. (emphasis added)

The Petitioner, in paragraph 18 of the petition, referred to the alleged contemptuous act as "an opinion given by the Respondent in his capacity as the Attorney General on 20th September, 2017 to the Honorable Speaker of the Parliament of Sri Lanka". A copy of the opinion was annexed to the petition marked X12.

The Petitioner pleaded, that such advice was patently flawed and the Respondent had deliberately undermined the good office of the Attorney General and the independence of the judiciary. The Petitioner also contended that X12 advice, tantamount to a direct insult to the authority and an affront to the dignity of the judiciary and therefore moved inter-alia for the following relief:

> (b) issue summons on the Respondent to show cause as to why he should not be punished by the Supreme Court for insulting and undermining the authority of the Supreme Court and thereby committing an offence of contempt of the Supreme Court;
> (c) charge the Respondent on the offence of contempt of court in terms of Article 105(3) of the Constitution;
> (d) issue a Rule Nisi; and
> (e) to make the Rule Nisi into Absolute and impose an appropriate sentence for defying the rule of law and bringing the court into disrepute. (emphasis added)

On 16th December, 2022 by a chamber order, the listing judge directed the Petitioner's instant application be listed for notice on 31st January, 2023 before a nominated bench of five Judges of the Supreme Court. A direction was also made to issue notice on the Attorney General to appear and assist this court as Amicus Curiae.

When this matter was taken up for support on 31st January, 2023 the Attorney General Sanjay Rajaratnam, PC appearing as Amicus Curiae moved that this application be dismissed in limine and contended that the Petitioner's application is misconceived in law. His challenge was twofold.

Firstly,

The learned Attorney General contended that the application of the Petitioner cannot be maintained before this court, as the papers filed before court i.e., the petition and the supporting affidavit sworn to by the Petitioner Nagananda Kodithuwakku contained, many an offensive and slanderous averments, flawed and erroneous statements, distorted facts, misleading and absolutely false accusations, willful suppression of material facts and twisted legal contentions and is misconceived and thus not in accordance with the law.

Mr. Rajaratnam, also contended that the Attorney General's opinion reflected in the document X12, in respect of Provincial Councils Elections (Amendment) Bill was tendered to the Speaker of the Parliament by the Respondent, in the capacity as the Attorney General, way back in September 2017. Further it was submitted that the said opinion was tendered in order to discharge and fulfill the duties bestowed upon the Attorney General, in terms of the Constitution and specifically the provisions contained in the proviso to sub-article (2) of Article 77 of the Constitution.

Mr. Rajaratnam, drew our attention to many averments of the petition, the assertions and surmises, wherein the Petitioner has mingled together the facts pertaining to the aforesaid Provincial Council Elections (Amendment) Bill and the 20th Amendment to the Constitution Bill and contented that such distortion creates mischief.

Furthermore, the Attorney General as Amicus Curiae found offensive the use of the word 'charged' and specifically the allegation of the Petitioner contained in the petition, that the Respondent is 'charged for contempt of court'. He submitted it is a blatant lie and a serious accusation.

It was contended that the petition is founded upon distorted and erroneous facts and surmises and as such the petition is fundamentally flawed. Mr. Rajaratnam also submitted that the Petitioner's allegation propounded by an affidavit, that the opinion X12 was tendered consequent to the Respondent in the capacity as the Attorney General been 'summoned' to Parliament and the 'Respondent circumvented the legislative process in tendering advice for personal benefit,' is also a lie and is based on Petitioner's wishful thinking and conjecture.

He strenuously contented that in the said circumstances, there was no basis whatsoever to permit the Petitioner to support this application which is replete with offensive and slanderous averments. Therefore, he moved that the instant application be rejected as the Petitioner by including such flawed and misleading averments in the petition and affidavit, not only slanders the Respondent but also this court and scandalizes the entire process of the administration of justice.

Another factor that the learned Attorney General in his inimitable style, put forward was that in any event the Attorney General is a Lawyer by profession and that X12 is his opinion and a Legal Opinion of a Lawyer is his expression of ideas and cannot and should not be construed as a contemptuous act, upon which an offence in terms of Article 105 (3) of the Constitution can be founded upon.

Secondly,

Our attention was drawn to the motion dated 13th December, 2022 which was tendered to this court by the Petitioner together with the afore mentioned petition and affidavit and the documents annexed thereto and especially to the below mentioned paragraph in the motion which reads thus;

> "Whereas this is a matter involving the Chief Justice who is charged for criminal offence of contempt of court committed in the month of September 2017, whilst holding the public office of the Attorney General of the Republic of Sri Lanka.
>
> In terms of Article 132(3) (iii) of the Constitution it is requested for the appointment of a special bench of not less than five judges who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case SC/Writ/2/2021…"

Mr. Rajaratnam, PC vigorously re-iterated that the words 'Chief Justice who is charged for criminal offence', is a contemptuous statement as the Chief Justice was never charged for a criminal offence by this court by or any other court, at any time what so ever and as such the use of such words, repeatedly, show case the Petitioner's co-lateral intentions, conduct and animosity.

The AG further, contended that the phrase 'judges who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case SC/Writ/2/ 2021' is fundamentally flawed and erroneous as the said case filed by the Petitioner in the Supreme Court previously, was dismissed by this Court on 4th May, 2021. Mr. Rajaratnam also submitted that the decision to dismiss the said application was arrived after following the due process of the law and therefore, the use of the aforesaid term 'judges who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case' is offensive and repulsive and the use of such slanderous language, scandalizes this court.

It was also the contention of the learned Attorney General, that the Petitioner who appeared in person in the said case, should be very much aware of the dismissal of such case way back in May 2021 and cannot plead ignorance and allege in a motion filed 1 ½ years later, i.e., dated 13th December, 2022 to have this matter listed before 'judges who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case', when in fact, such a case allegedly termed judicial corruption by the Petitioner himself for whatever reasons, no longer exists or pending in the court diary. It was emphasized that the decision of the divisional bench of this court was unanimous and the court refused to issue notice on the said writ application and in limine dismissed the purported 'judicial corruption case' viz, SC/Writ/2/2001, for reasons stated in its Order dated 04th May, 2021.

Mr. Rajaratnam also contended that, nomination of judges to a 'bench comprising five or more judges of the Supreme Court is entirely within the purview of the Chief Justice in terms of Article 132(3) of the Constitution and by requesting to exclude certain judges, the Petitioner is 'forum shopping' and such conduct of the Petitioner amounts to 'preposterous conduct' of a litigant before court.

In response to the aforesaid submissions of the Attorney General, the Petitioner Nagananda Kodithuwakku appearing in person contended as follows:

Firstly,

With regard to the allegations contained in the petition and the motion, Mr. Kodithuwakku justified the use of the words 'charge' and 'corruption' and submitted since the Petitioner had complained to the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption (CIABOC) against an alleged act of the Respondent and others, which the Petitioner deems corrupt, that the Petitioner is entitled to use the said words in the motion. (The communique which the Petitioner addressed to the CIABOC titled 'Complaint against the Attorney General, Speaker, Prime Minister and M.P.'s was annexed to the petition marked X15).

Secondly,

The Petitioner justified the reference to SC/Writ/2/2021 in the motion, a case dismissed by this court on 04th May, 2021 and the request for empanelling a divisional bench, excluding certain judges of this court as correct. His contention was that when the said case, which the Petitioner allegedly terms a 'judicial corruption case', was taken up for support since an observation was purportedly made that the judiciary was helpless, as the judicial power of the people was being exercised by the Parliament through the judiciary, that the Petitioner has no impediment to make such a request for exclusion of certain judges.

The Petitioner also contended that the Petitioner has a right to request for an impartial bench and such a request should be permitted in terms of Article 13(3) of the Constitution as he is entitled to a fair trial.

The Petitioner drew our attention and relied upon a speech made by Hon. Sir Gerard Brennan, AC KBE, Chief Justice of Australia on Judicial Independence at the Australian Judicial Conference on 2nd November, 1996 wherein Sir Brennan opined,

> "Justice is administered by human institutions; they can be fallible, but they should never be perverse. Being human institutions, continual vigilance is needed to ensure that they are isolated from impermissible influences and strengthened by the pressure of a peer group devoted to impeccable standards of independence".

Mr. Kodithuwakku also referred to the case of Centre for Environmental Justice (Guarantee Ltd) V. Mahinda Rajapakse SC/FR/109/2021 S.C.M. 01-12-2021 wherein it was opined that "the Attorney General is the guardian of public interest and should represent the public interest with complete objectivity and detachment and must act independently of any express pressure" and submitted that the Attorney General has a special duty with regard to enforcement of the law.

Whilst appreciating the submissions of the Petitioner, in relation to the observations made by this court in the aforesaid Centre for Environmental Justice case and the words of wisdom of Hon. Sir Gerard Brennan, relevancy of such sentiments to the matter in issue is a factor that should be borne in mind in determining the instant application.

The specific issue that is before us at this juncture, is not the merits of the alleged act of contempt as perceived by the Petitioner, but the preliminary objection raised by the learned Attorney General, viz, that the instant application cannot be maintained before this court in view of the erroneous, offensive, slanderous nature of the application, which tantamounts to scandalizing the administration of justice and the very nature and authority of this court and that the petition and the affidavit filed before court by the Petitioner which is replete with flawed, misleading and false accusations, twisted and distorted legal contentions and suppression of material facts, creates mischief and for that reason should be dismissed in limine.

Undoubtedly the Supreme Court is the highest and the final Superior Court of Record in the Republic of Sri Lanka constitutionally recognized by virtue of Article 118 of our Constitution. Thus, making false representations before the Supreme Court, knowing it to be false, undisputedly amounts to contempt of the court and is a direct interference with the administration of justice.

Upon perusal of the application filed before this court, viz, the petition, the affidavit and the motion and specifically the phrases highlighted and emphasized earlier in this Order, it is amply clear and there is not an iota of doubt, that the Petitioner's principal contention is that the Respondent is 'charged for contempt of court' for a contemptuous act, i.e., the Respondent is 'charged for the criminal offence of contempt of court'.

Is such contention of the Petitioner correct or is it false?

The submission of the learned Attorney General appearing as Amicus before this court is that the afore stated statement is a blatant lie. He submits, that the statement is not only an absolute falsehood but that the papers filed are flawed and erroneous, offensive and slanderous and scandalizes the very foundation of the Supreme Court.

The Petitioner on the other-hand contends, that the use of said phrases i.e., 'charged', 'summoned' and 'corrupt' is correct as it is the truth. He further states, that he is at perfect liberty to use such phrases in his pleadings and repeatedly allege, that the Respondent is 'charged' for contempt, since the Petitioner has complained to the CIABOC about the conduct of the Respondent, by the communique X15 dated 04th October, 2017.

Can a complaint made to the CIABOC by the Petitioner be equated to being 'charged' for contempt by a competent court or tribunal? If not, is the Petitioner misleading or deceiving this court by such a statement? Will such a statement undermine the dignity of this court? Will it interfere with its independence? Is it likely to erode the public confidence in the administration of justice? Will such a statement bring the due process of law into disrespect and disregard? Will it diminish or affect the authority of court, trust and comfort the citizens have in respect of the judicial system? Thus, by making such a statement, is the Petitioner slandering and scandalizing this court?

In my view, these are the threshold issues we have to examine in determining the preliminary objections raised before this court regarding the maintainability of the Petitioner's application.

CIABOC or the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption was established by Act No 19 of 1994. Functions of the CIABOC is referred to in section 3 of the said Act.

The said section reads as follows:

> "3. The Commission shall subject to the others provisions of this Act, investigate allegations, contained in communications made to it under section 4 and where any such investigation discloses the commission of any offence by any person under the Bribery Act […], direct the institution of proceedings against such person for such offence in the appropriate court." (emphasis added)

Elaborating the functions of the CIABOC further, section 4(2) of the Act goes onto state,

> "Upon receipt of a communication under section 4(1) Commission, if it is satisfied that such communication is genuine and that the communication discloses material upon which an investigation ought to be conducted, shall conduct investigations as may be necessary for the purpose of deciding upon […]
>
> (a) prosecution or other suitable action under the Bribery Act […] or
>
> (b) prosecution under any other relevant law." (emphasis added)

Thus, it is axiomatic that upon receipt of a communication or a complaint, the Commission has to be first satisfied that it is genuine and discloses material upon which an investigation ought to be conducted. Thereafter, only an investigation is launched and a decision is made as to what steps need be taken to charge or prosecute the person against whom the communication or the complaint is made. Thus, it is a three step process.

Complaint → Commission to be satisfied of its genuineness → investigation → decision made to charge or prosecute.

In the matter in issue, the Petitioner complained to the CIABOC against the then Attorney General (i.e. the Respondent), the Speaker, the Prime Minister and all the Members of the then Parliament X15. However, the Petitioner has not divulged the outcome of such communication. The Petitioner has failed to indicate whether any investigation took place based upon the communication in the first instance. The Petitioner has also failed to demonstrate whether a prosecution or a charge was framed by a competent court or tribunal against any of the said persons named in X15.

In the aforesaid and in view of the paucity of such material information and the failure of the Petitioner to establish whether any proceedings were instituted against such persons, and especially in the absence of an averment in the petition that a charge has gone out against the Respondent, the appropriateness of using the word 'charged' and specifically the phrase 'the Chief Justice who is charged for the criminal offence of contempt of court for a contemptuous act committed by him in September 2017' as specifically indicated in the petition, prima facie appears to be perverse, flawed and erroneous.

Thus, the submission of Mr. Rajaratnam that the said statement is a blatant lie and that the petition is founded upon distorted and erroneous facts and surmises, in my view has merit which demand rejection of the petition in limine.

The provisions of the CIABOC Act as discussed earlier, clearly indicate that upon receipt of a 'communication', the Commission will investigate the allegation and only where such investigation discloses the committing of an offence, a direction will be made to initiate proceedings and 'charge' or 'indict' a person.

The word 'charged' is defined in simple language as to accuse somebody formally of a crime so that there can be a trial in court, whereas the word 'complaint' is defined as a statement that something is wrong or not good enough and the word 'communication' as imparting or exchanging of information by writing or speaking or using some other medium. [Oxford Dictionary] From the foregoing, it is imperative to note, that there is a world of difference between the said terms, 'charged', 'complaint' and 'communication'.

CIABOC Act as discussed earlier, in section 3 refers to a 'communication' i.e., excharge of information.

The 'communication' of the Petitioner X15 made in October, 2017 is against a hosts of persons, including the Respondent. A complaint or a communication as stated earlier is only the 1st step. CIABOC has to be first satisfied of the genuineness of the complaint or communication. Thereafter only an investigation is launched. That is the 2nd step. Based on the report of the investigation only a decision will be made by CIABOC to 'charge' or 'prosecute' a person. That is the 3rd step in the process. From the foregoing it is abundantly clear that the communication X15 itself cannot be considered 'charging' a person as contended by the Petitioner. Such contention goes against the basic tenants of the rule of law. The Petitioner cannot 'charge' a person. It has to be done only by a competent court of law or a tribunal.

The underlying principle in 'charging' a person, is that an independent judicial mind is required to assess the sufficiency of the material against a person even before summons or warrant is issued in the first instance and in any event, before a charge is formed or indictment is sent. This is salutary and fundamental. It is to protect the liberty of a subject. Our Criminal Procedure Code is founded upon such hallowed principles.

Thus, the allegation of the Petitioner that the Respondent is 'charged' is fundamentally flawed. In my view, use of the said term, undermines the public confidence in the administration of justice. It attacks the very foundation of this institution. It scandalizes the court. This court frowns upon such machinations and the repeated use of such phrase by the Petitioner against the Respondent. Such conduct willful or otherwise, by the Petitioner, not only shatters the public confidence in the legal system and the rule of law, it tarnishes the image of the high office held by imminent dignitaries and persons and should not be permitted, tolerated nor condoned. Such scurrilous statements in my view, scandalizes this court, the highest and final superior court of record of the Republic.

This court founded in 1801 by Royal Charter has stood tall for the last two centuries. It has withstood the weather. It is our bounden duty to safe guard this institution and not allow it to be slandered or scandalized in any manner.

From the foregoing it is beyond doubt, the contention of the Petitioner that the Respondent the incumbent Chief Justice is 'charged' for the criminal offence of contempt of court is factually incorrect, perverse and is offensive. I am firmly of the view that the use of the word 'charged' scandalizes the very nature of this court.

Hence, the petition of the Petitioner should not be allowed to stand and should be dismissed in limine as it undermines the dignity and authority of this court. It erodes the public confidence in the judicial system and the administration of justice. Moreover, it disrespect and disregard the due process of the law and the rule of law in particular.

Mr. Rajaratnam appearing as Amicus curiae also took offensive of the term 'Attorney General being summoned to Parliament' referred to in paragraph 15 of the petition of the Petitioner. The context in which the said term was used by the Petitioner was that the Respondent, the incumbent Chief Justice, prior to his elevation to this august office, whilst holding the post of Attorney General, was 'summoned' to Parliament and that thereafter he tendered a legal advice 'circumventing the legislative process for personal benefit'.

The contention of Mr. Rajaratnam, was that the said term 'summoned' was also grossly wrong which tarnishes the image of the post of Chief Justice and scandalizes the Supreme Court. Mr. Rajaratnam further contended that the matter referred to in the petition, where the Petitioner alleges, the Respondent was 'summoned' to Parliament is an incident that occurred in September 2017, (i.e., five years prior to filling of this contempt of court application), when the Respondent was functioning as the Attorney General and performing a constitutional function. It was the position of Mr. Rajaratnam, that the Attorney General has a constitutional duty to advice the Parliament with regard to Bills being presented to Parliament, and the legal advice X12 was tendered in such capacity. He further contended that the Respondent in his previous capacity holding the office of the Attorney General was never 'summoned' to Parliament, as alleged to in the petition by the Petitioner.

The word 'summoned' is defined as 'to call with authority; to command to appear, especially in court; an authoritarian call; a call to surrender [Webster's Dictionary] and to cite a defendant to appear in court to answer a suit; to notify the defendant that an action has been instituted against him. [Black's Law Dictionary]

From the foregoing definitions, it is clearly seen that the use of the word 'summoned' denotes a 'command', an 'authoritarian call' and not a 'duty' or a 'request' to be present.

In the matter in issue, the Petitioner alleged that the Respondent in his previous capacity as the Attorney General was 'summoned' to Parliament i.e., commanded to appear in Parliament.

The role of the Attorney General with regard to Bills presented to Parliament is enumerated in Article 77 of the Constitution.

It reads as follows:

> "77 (1) It shall be the duty of the Attorney General to examine every Bill […];
> (2) If the Attorney General is of the opinion […] he shall communicate such opinion to the President;
> Provided that in the case of an amendment proposed to a Bill in Parliament*, the Attorney General shall communicate his opinion to the* Speaker at the stage when the Bill is ready to be put to Parliament for its acceptance*."* (emphasis added)

Thus, it is amply clear, that the Attorney General has a constitutional duty in respect of Bills presented to the Parliament. Firstly, to examine the Bill and tender advice to the President. Secondly, if and when an amendment is proposed to a Bill in Parliament to submit his opinion to the Speaker at the stage when the Bill is ready to be put to Parliament viz, the second reading and/or when the Bill is referred to the committee of the whole Parliament.

Hence, I accept the submission of Mr. Rajaratnam, that the Respondent in his capacity as the then Attorney General, tendered the advice X12, being the opinion of the Attorney General, in performing a duty enshrined in the Constitution. Thus, the contention of the Petitioner, that the Respondent was 'summoned' to Parliament is palpably wrong and misconceived. It creates mischief and diminishes and tarnish the role of the Attorney General. Moreover, high lighting the aforesaid in December 2022, five years after the passing of the Bill and crystalizing same as a contemptuous act to 'charge' the incumbent Chief Justice for the 'criminal offence of contempt of court', in my view could only be considered as an act of scandalizing the Supreme Court and the Chief Justice and bringing the Supreme Court into disrepute in the eyes of the public and the world over.

In the aforesaid, I see much merit in the submissions of Mr. Rajaratnam, that the instant application should be rejected upfront.

The learned Attorney General also drew our attention to another factor, which he argued was offensive and repulsive and thereby scandalizes the court. It is the motion filed by the Petitioner, together with the petition and the affidavit, wherein a request is made to list this application before 'judges who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case SC/Writ/2/2021'.

As discussed earlier, the Petitioner is relying upon a case filed by the petitioner and purportedly termed by the petitioner as a 'judicial corruption case' (i.e., SC/Writ/2/2021) which a divisional bench of this court dismissed *in limine way back in May 2021. The Order made in the said case denote that this court did not consider it a fit and proper case to even issue notice on the Respondents.

In my view, constantly harping upon a case which was rejected summarily and dismissed, is like the proverbial 'beggars wound', an 'ever festering wound of a beggar which never heals'.

Can the Petitioner rely on such a case wherein he had purportedly named certain judges as Respondents, which was dismissed in limine and move for elimination of such judges to hear and determine cases filed by the Petitioner? Can the Petitioner make an application in the instant case specifically in this manner to keep out named judges? Doesn't such conduct of the Petitioner, scandalize the court and undermine the dignity and interfere with its independence?

In my view, it does and for that reason and that reason alone the motion filed, should be rejected.

In any event, what does the Petitioner mean by 'judicial corruption?'

Whilst the word 'judicial corruption' does not feature in any of the Acts and Laws of the Republic, the word 'corruption' is defined in section 70 of the Bribery Act No 11 of 1954 as amended by Act No 9 of 1980 as follows:

> "70. Any public officer who, with intent to cause wrongful or unlawful loss to the Government, or to confer a wrongful or unlawful benefit, favour or advantage on himself or any person. [....]
> (a) does, or forbears to do, any act, which he is empowered to do by virtue of his office as a public officer,
> [....]
> shall be guilty of the offence of corruption [....]"

The Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery and Corruption Act, No. 19 of 1994 in section 28 the interpretation section, defines the word 'corruption' to have the same meaning as in section 70 of the Bribery Act

It is patently clear that there is not an iota of evidence of 'corruption', leave alone 'judicial corruption' before any court, tribunal or institution against any of the named Respondents in SC/Writ/2/2021, the so called 'judicial corruption case'. Thus, in my view the purported 'judicial corruption case' is nothing but a figment of the Petitioner's imagination.

In any event as stated earlier, the purported 'judicial corruption case' was dismissed in limine on 4th May 2021, without even notice being issued on the Respondents.

In the aforesaid, the statement of the Petitioner that the instant application should be taken up before a special bench of judges 'who have not been made respondents in the judicial corruption case', in my view is grossly incorrect, erroneous, slanderous and scandalizes the Supreme Court. Hence, I see merit in the submissions of Mr. Rajaratnam, that the instant application should be dismissed in limine, in view of the wrongful, repulsive and offensive statements contained in the papers filed before this court. The actions of the Petitioner, in my view tantamounts to forum shopping and impairs upon the fair and efficient administration of justice.

From the foregoing it is crystal clear that the words 'charged' and 'summoned' conspicuously and freely used in the petition and affidavit by the Petitioner against the Respondent, namely, the incumbent Chief Justice, creates a general displeasure, disrespect and dissatisfaction against judicial authority and its decisions and determinations and erodes the public confidence in the administration of justice and the due process of the law.

Can a petition and affidavit filed in court consist of erroneous and or slanderous statements of this magnitude? What is the duty of a pleader towards court? In my view, it is to speak the truth and nothing but the truth and uphold the rudiments of law.

At this juncture, I wish to digress from the discussion on offensive and standerous phrases, to look at the judicial dicta and pronouncements made by this court, regarding the duty of a pleader.

In the matter of proceedings against an Attorney-at-Law for contempt of court [1983]1 Sri LR 243 at page 250 it was observed "a pleader has a duty to the court to see that the case is fairly and honestly conducted. A pleader must not mislead the court".

In Jayasinghe v. The National Institute of Fisheries and Nautical Engineering (NIFNE) and others [2002] 1 Sri.L.R. 277 at 286 this court held:

> "Any party who misleads Court, misrepresents facts to Court or utters falsehood in Court will not be entitled to obtain redress from Court. It is a well-established proposition of law, since Courts expect a party seeking relief to be frank and open with the Court. […] Court will not go into the merits of the case in such situations."

Similarly, In Hee Jung Kim alias Kim Hee Jung V. Hoiryong Poonglin Iwant and another SC/Contempt/03/16 S.C.M. 15.07.2021 it was opined, "a pleader owes a duty to court, not to intentionally make false statements in his pleadings. When a person misleads court, it amounts to interference with the due course of justice by attempting to obstruct the court from reaching a correct conclusion."

Furthermore, the Supreme Court (Conduct of and Etiquette for Attorneys-at-Law) Rules, 1988 refers to the duty of a pleader in the following manner: -

"Rule 50 - An Attorney-at-Law owes a duty to Court, Tribunal or other institution created for the Administration of Justice before which be appears to assist in the proper administration of justice without interfering with the independence of the Bar.

Rule 51- An Attorney-at-Law shall not mislead or deceive or permit his client to mislead or deceive in any way the Court or Tribunal before which he appears."

If an Attorney-at-Law is in breach of his duty to court, to assist in the proper administration of justice and also if an Attorney-at-Law misleads or deceives court, the aforesaid Supreme Court Rules provide, to deal with such an Attorney-at-Law for professional misconduct or take any other action which the court deems fit depending on the facts and circumstances of each case.

Undisputedly, the Supreme Court Rules provide for the aforesaid action, to prevent undue interference with the administration of justice and in the interest of the public. Thus, when a petition filed before court is replete with flawed and erroneous statements, which create dissatisfaction in the eyes of the public and erode the public confidence in the adjudication process, such conduct in my view, amounts to scandalizing the court.

In the instance case, the petition filed by the Petitioner is replete with offensive and slanderous statements against the Supreme Court, the highest and final court of record in this country and specifically against the Respondent, the incumbent Chief Justice.

The alleged statement made against the Respondent namely, that the 'Respondent is charged, for the criminal offence of contempt of court' and was 'summoned' to Parliament in my view is p*rima facie* slanderous, perverse, vexacious and made to embarrass this court.

Filing of this application at this juncture and highlighting a Legal Advice X12 that was tendered by the Respondent, when the Respondent Chief Justice was holding the post of Attorney General, half a decade ago and moving to 'punish' the Respondent, the incumbent Chief Justice for 'insulting and undermining the authority of the Supreme Court' and to 'impose an appropriate sentence for defying the rule of law and bringing the court into disrepute' as prayed for in the prayer to the instant application is beyond comprehension, baffling and inconceivable.

Such conduct by an Attorney-at-Law to say the least is despised and repugnant.

In the aforesaid and having considered the judicial pronouncements of this court, the submissions made by the Attorney General Mr. Rajaratnam and Mr. Kodithuwakku, we are convinced that the instant application p*rima facie* scandalizes this court and for the said reason and the said reason alone, this application should be rejected in limine.

We have also considered and examined the submissions made before us, the totality of the pleadings filed and all matters material to this application and for reasons adumbrated in this Order, we uphold the preliminary objections raised by the Attorney General Mr. Rajaratnam, that the instant application contains many an offensive and slanderous averments, flawed and erroneous statements, and also grossly wrong and distorted facts. Thus, we see much merit in the submissions of the learned Attorney General that the totality of such factors tantamount to scandalizing the Supreme Court.

We are further of the view, in view of the vexatious nature of the instant application, that the dignity and authority of this court, the highest and final superior court of the country is undermined. Moreover, the public confidence in the administration of justice is eroded and the public perception of the due process of law is diminished.

In the aforesaid circumstances, we hold that this application is misconceived in law, perverse, ill-founded and creates mischief. Thus, we reject this application in limine and dismisses the instant case.

Application is dismissed.

Judge of the Supreme Court

E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

A.H.M.D. Nawaz, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

Janak De Silva, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

Achala Wengappuli, J.
I agree

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE
DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of a Rule in terms of Article 105 (3) of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka against Hewa Aluth Sahal Arachchige Ajith Prasanna .

SC Contempt 03/2020

Hewa Aluth Sahal Arachchige Ajith Prasanna.
87/D, Parakrama Mawatha
Talahena,
Malabe
Respondent

Before: P. Padman Surasena J
S. Thurairaja PC J
E. A. G. R. Amarasekara J

Counsel: Shavindra Fernando, PC with Thivanka Attygalle, A. Arawwala and Natasha Wijesekara for the Respondent.
Janaka Bandara DSG for the Hon. Attorney General

Argued on : 08-09-2022
Decided on : 24-01-2023

P Padman Surasena J

This Court has issued a Rule against the Respondent Hewa Aluth Sahal Arachchige Ajith Prasanna (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Respondent) directing him to appear before this Court and show cause as to why he should not be found guilty and punished under Article 105 (3) of the Constitution, for Contempt of Court committed during a media briefing on or about 19th January 2020.

On 12th February 2021, Court read out and explained the Rule to the Respondent. On that day, the learned President's Counsel who appeared for the Respondent, had stated to Court that the Respondent pleads not guilty to the allegations levelled against him in the Rule. It was in those circumstances, that the court had fixed this matter for inquiry on several dates commencing from 8th September 2022.

Eventually, when Court took this matter up for inquiry on 8th September 2022, the learned President's Counsel who appeared for the Respondent informed court that his client does not wish to contest the charges against him, and wishes to withdraw the earlier plea of not guilty with a view of tendering a plea of guilty in respect of the charges in the Rule issued against him. The Court then once again, read out the Rule against the Respondent in Open Court. The Respondent then withdrew his earlier plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the charges in the Rule.

The Rule alleged, that the Respondent whilst participating in a media briefing on or about 19th January 2020 made the following statement in reference to the previous judgment of SC Case No. SC/TAB/2A – D/2017 pronounced by this Court in relation to the sentencing of Duminda Silva. The said media briefing was titled 'Thissa Aththanayake/ තිස්ස තිස්ස අත්තනායක හිරේ දැම්මේ කව්ද / Ajith Prasanna" uploaded onto YouTube via SL 360 TV Channel on or about 19th January 2020. The said statement made by the Respondent (according to the Rule) is as follows:

> ''මේ මානව මිහිකම් ගැන කතා කරනවා හැබැයි මෙතැනදී නිහඬයි. ඒ විතරක් නෙවෙයි ශ්‍රේෂ්ඨාධිකරණය නිහඬයි. අධිකරණ සේවා කොමිෂන් සභාව නිහඬයි. ඒ නිසා මම ඉල්ලනවා දුමින්ද සිල්වා එක දවසක් හරි වැඩිපුර සිරගතවෙලා ඉන්නවා කියන්නේ මේ පාපය කරගහන්න වෙන්නේ වෙන කාටත් නෙවෙයි. මේ රටේ අගවිනිසුරු ප්‍රමුඛ ශ්‍රේෂ්ඨාධිකරණයේ සමස්ත විනිසුරු මඩුල්ලටයි. ඊට අමතරව මේ රටේ අධිකරණ සේවා කොමිෂමේ ප්‍රධානියා ඇතුළු මණ්ඩලයට මේ සියලු දෙනා වගකියන්න ඕනේ'

> ‘‘දුමින්ද සිල්වා හිරේ එක දවසක් පාසා මම හිතනවා මේ රටේ ඉන්න අගවිනිසුරුවරු ප්‍රමුඛ ශ්‍රේෂ්ඨාධිකරණයේ සමස්ථ විනිසුරුවරුද, අධිකරණ සේවා කොමිෂමේ මන්ත්‍රීවරු, සමාවෙන්න අධිකරණ සේවා කොමිෂමේ සාමාජිකයෝද ඔහු එකදවසක් හිරේ ඉන්නවනම් දින දෙක බැගින් මේ අය හිරේ ඉන්න ඕනේ. දින දෙක බැගින් නීතිපතිතුමා සමග. මම කියනවා ඒ නිසා මම නැවත කියනවා මහත්වරුනි ඔබත් හිරේට යන්න. දුමින්ද සිල්වා නිදහස් නොවෙන තාක් කල් මේ රටේ අග විනිසුරු ඇතුළු ශ්‍රේෂ්ඨාධිකරණයේ විනිසුරුවරුන්ට එළියේ ඉඳීම සම්පූර්ණයෙන් ම වැරදි’’

The Respondent has now admitted his guilt for the allegations levelled against him in the Rule.

The Court then proceeded to hear the submissions of the learned President’s Counsel who appeared for the Respondent as well as the submissions of the learned Deputy Solicitor General.
The learned President’s Counsel on behalf of the Respondent, making submissions with regard to mitigation of sentence, submitted the following facts.

- The Respondent regrets having made the above statement and had given an affidavit on 09-01-2021 to the Court of Appeal in the bail application bearing No. CA/BL/37/2020.
- The Respondent had not participated in any media briefing thereafter.
- The Respondent had served in the Sri Lanka Army and had been injured during the civil war.
- The Respondent is a father of two children and his wife is currently unemployed.
- The Respondent had been in remand for nearly 01 year.
- The Respondent truly repents his action of making the relevant statement.

Concluding the submissions, the learned President’s Counsel stated that the general public would not have believed what the Respondent stated to media, as the public would have understood the Respondent’s statement to be one so foolishly made.

The learned Deputy Solicitor General who appeared for the Attorney General, in his submission highlighted the following facts.

- In the case referred to by the Respondent in the media statement, it was a five-judge bench of this Court which included Hon. Chief Justice, which affirmed the conviction of the accused (Duminda Silva).
- The Respondent had continued to defame lower court Judges who had become helpless after hearing the statements of the Respondent.
- Therefore, the conduct of the Respondent has affected adversely to the foundation of the administration of justice system in this country.
- The statements made by the Respondent was unacceptable to the extent that in a Court below, the DSG even had to move court to ascertain whether the Respondent was suffering from any mental ailment to have made such statements.
- The above media statement had come from the Respondent who is an Attorney-At-Law, and that fact has magnified the gravity of the offence.

Concluding his submissions, the learned DSG emphasized the gravity of the offence and moved Court to impose an appropriate sentence that would reflect the gravity of the offence committed by the Respondent.

At the outset, it must be noted that the Judiciary is one of the three pillars (the three pillars being the Executive, Legislature and Judiciary) upon which the smooth functioning of the State would depend. The Judiciary, stand independently in interpreting and applying the law to ensure delivery of justice to all persons. The Judiciary as well as the other two organs are the custodians of the sovereignty of people of this country.[1] The Constitution of this country expects the judiciary to function independently. As the disputes of citizens are resolved through the judicial system of this country, it stands to reason to expect that the citizens are expected to respect the administration of justice system of the country. Any derogation from this would lead the country to an anarchy. It is on this requirement that the legislature through Article 105 (3) of the Constitution had intended to vest this Court with wide powers to punish those who commit the offences of contempt of Court.

[1] As per Article 4 (c) of the Constitution.

We shall now consider as to what would happen when a member of public who listens to a statement such as the one made by the Respondent. Two things can happen; the public may accept it as true; they may reject it as false. In the first scenario, if the Public believe the statement as true, there would be nothing left for the judiciary to stand on. This is because it is inevitable that public would regard the judiciary not as a justice maker but as an injustice maker. Who would then rely on the judiciary to resolve their disputes? They will be then inclined to settle their disputes by themselves by whatever means they deem fit. The effect by and large is the same in the second scenario, also. This is because those members of Public who would not believe the statement as true, would still wonder how dare a person has stated so serious statement against those hallowed institutions, with impunity. If such a situation is not immediately arrested, others would follow suit. That too would result in the citizens losing the confidence and coercive powers of Court. They would then be prompted to get assistance from illegal means to settle their disputes. Thus, in both the instances, effect of the statement made in public by the Respondent is same. That effect can be neutralized only when the maker of such serious statement is promptly visited with a deterrent sentence.

Learned President's Counsel who appeared for the Respondent in his submission went to the extent of saying that even the general public would not have believed what the Respondent had stated to media as that is a statement which is so foolishly made. An Attorney at Law; so foolish? A person who had served in the Army; so foolish?

What is the effect of this statement on society when the Respondent who is an Attorney at Law very seriously, strenuously and in a commanding language states with vigour in no uncertain terms in public that the Chief Justice, Judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Judicial Service Commission have all committed a serious offence in affirming a conviction of one or more accused. Doesn't this statement undermine the very foundation of the criminal justice system of this country? This is more so because the accused referred to in the Respondent's statement is an accused who had been duly tried and convicted by the prevailing judicial system of this country.

Learned DSG brought to our notice that the Respondent had continued to defame lower court Judges who had become helpless as they had to continue to hear the statements made by the Respondent. Doesn't this conduct on the part of the Respondent affects the sustainability of the administration of justice system in this country?
We have no basis to answer the above questions in the negative. On what reasons/basis the Respondent had made that statement? No basis at all! What is his explanation for having to make that statement? Absolutely none!

In my view, the statement uttered by the Respondent is aimed at creating an image in the eyes of public that the administration of justice system in this country is not only unreliable for the general public but also causes only travesty of justice. Thus, the Respondent, in my view, has attempted very vigorously to make havoc in the administration of justice system in this country.
It is the fervent duty of this Court as the apex Court of the country to ensure that the administration of justice system in this country is primarily free from all forms of intimidations and undue influences. This is to enable the smooth functioning of that system. Maintaining this standard is essential for the well-being of the people of the country who would ultimately benefit from a trouble-free system of administration of justice in the country. We cannot wait passively until just one person, in this case the Respondent who is an Attorney at Law destroys everything in the system which is meant for the rest of the citizens. We have to step in, to stop that devastation.

The Constitution itself through Article 105 (3) has vested this Court with wide powers to punish those who commit such drastic offences i.e., contempt of Court.

When one listens to the statement which the Respondent had made in the instant case, it becomes unambiguously clear that the making of that statement is calculated to obstruct or interfere with the due Course of justice by intimidating the judges in public. He had made it with the deliberate intention on his part, to obtain an order he had desired. This is because this Court had concluded the proceedings of the case which the Respondent had referred to in his statement, by the time he had made the statement. In other words, what he was trying to do was to force this court by intimidating the judges, to reverse the judgment it had already pronounced i.e., that is the judgment affirming the conviction of some accused in the case referred to by him. It is unimaginable that an Attorney-At-Law had done this only to plead guilty only when the Court was about to commence the inquiry. He had not shown any repentance up until that moment.

As stated by Amerasinghe, J, in Re. Garumunige Tilakaratne[2]:

> "… whenever men's allegiance to the laws is so fundamentally shaken it is the most fatal and most dangerous obstruction of justice, and, in my opinion, calls out for a more rapid and immediate redress than any other obstruction whatsoever…"

The Court observes that every citizen of this country has a duty to protect the integrity of the system of administration of justice. Any destruction to the public trust reposed in the system can have serious collateral consequences for the welfare of Society and its well-being. As stated in Kandoluwe Sumangala v Mapitigama Dharmarakitta et al:[3]

> "law of contempt of Court does not exist for glorification of the Bench. It exists – and exists solely- for the protection of the public"

The judicial power of the people has been vested in this Court by the Constitution of this country. The Constitution has been put in place democratically for the benefit of people. It is the duty of the judiciary to protect and uphold the Constitution put in place by the citizens of the country. As stated by Wanasundera J, in Hewamanne v. De Silva:[4]

---

[2] Re Garumunige Tilakaratne (1991) 1 Sri L.R Page 168,
[3] Kandoluwe Sumanagala v Mapitigama Dharmarakitta et al. (1908) 11 NLR 201 page 201
[4] Hewamanne v De Silva and Other (1983) 1 S.L.R page 5

> "The power vested in the Judges to safeguard the welfare and the security of the people is also a delegated part of the sovereignty of the People, referred to in Article 3 and 4 of the Constitution. Contempt against the judges is therefore an insult offered to authority of the People and their Constitution."

Accordingly, when such damaging statements are made against the judiciary; it is essentially made against the power of the people and not the judicial officers of this Court. Therefore, in this matter, the Respondent has essentially jeopardised the right of the ordinary citizens of this country to have recourse to the Court system of this country which is a right guaranteed to them under the constitution.

In Re Wickramasinghe[5] it was stated;

> "The objective of this branch of law, of course, is not the protection of the personal reputation of judges but the protection of the authority of the courts, which must be preserved in the interests of the community. It is therefore no less an offence to scandalise the judiciary generally than to scandalise the judge or judges of a particular court"

As has been mentioned earlier, this proceeding has emanated from a Rule issued by this Court against the Respondent and this Court at no stage had placed the Respondent in remand custody pending this proceeding. The period of almost one year in remand claimed by the Respondent is not in respect of this proceedings but in respect of another case. Further, it appears from the submissions of the learned DSG that the Respondent was placed in remand to prevent him making continuous further utterances. That appears to be the reason as to why he had to swear an affidavit undertaking not to make any further statements of the kind he had made, to obtain bail. The Respondent appears to have been released on bail only after he had undertaken in the affidavit that he would not repeat such utterances again. Therefore, we are not inclined to consider the period the Respondent claims to have spent in remand for his benefit in the instant proceedings.

[5]Re S A Wickramasinghe (1954) NLR Page 511.

We are satisfied that the statement of the Respondent had been made with the deliberate intention to intimidate the Judges of the Apex Court in this country in order to obtain an order he had desired i.e., to get this Court to reverse the judgment it had already pronounced. The said action on the part of the Respondent is not an accidental or random one but a deliberate and a planned one calculated to somehow obtain the order he had desired. He had done it deliberately, on his own volition leaving no room for anyone else to stop him.

The Respondent, had pleaded not guilty to the offence when Court served a copy of the Rule and read it out to him at the first occasion. This means that the Respondent had neither remorse nor regret for his statement at least as at that date. However, when Court took this matter up for inquiry on 8th September 2022, he withdrew his earlier plea of not guilty and tendered a plea of guilty in respect of the charges in the Rule against him. It was thereafter that the learned President's Counsel who appeared for him submitted that he truly repents his action of making the relevant statement. Be that as it may, we have considered all the factors urged before this court by the learned President's Counsel who appeared for the Respondent as well as the learned Deputy Solicitor General.

In all the circumstances of this case, we are of the view that Court should not treat the statement made by the Respondent lightly. Such a course of action is not warranted by any yardstick.

Considering all the circumstances, we decide to sentence the Respondent to a term of four (04) years Rigorous Imprisonment and a fine of Rupees three hundred thousand (Rs. 300,000/=) with a default sentence of 06 months Rigorous Imprisonment. Registrar is directed to take all necessary steps to implement this punishment.

The Respondent who is an Attorney-at-Law now stands convicted and sentenced. Thus, we direct the Hon. Attorney General to draft a Rule to be issued against the Respondent Attorney-at-Law in terms of the relevant provisions in the Judicature Act. We also direct the Registrar of this Court to forward to Hon. Attorney General, certified copies of the relevant documents to enable the Hon. Attorney General to draft the said Rule against the Respondent Attorney-at-Law. In order to implement the above direction by Court, we further direct the Registrar of this Court to take necessary steps to institute proceedings against the Respondent Attorney-at-Law under a new SC Rule case number by opening a case record under new SC Rule No. and mention that case in Open Court.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

S. Thurairaja PC J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

E. A. G. R. Amarasekara J

I had the opportunity of reading the draft order written by His Lordship Justice Surasena.

I agree with the following views expressed or implicit in the said draft order;

a) That the statement made by the Respondent was aimed to create an image in the eye of the public that our administration of justice system is unreliable and cause travesty of justice;

b) That the said statement undermines the very foundation of our criminal justice system and affects the sustainability of our criminal justice system unless this court promptly and appropriately step in and take necessary measures to prevent such harm. With all due respect to his Lordship's views, I also intend to add my views as expressed below;

Even though, this court has no jurisdiction to revise a judgment pronounce by it, it appears from the context of the said statement was made, the Respondent was trying to create an impression in the minds of the people that the pronouncement made by this court should be reversed and if not, the judges of this court including the Chief Justice should be jailed. Being a Lawyer, he should have known the finality of the decision of this court and how those decisions are being made after hearing the relevant parties. Thus, clearly the impugned statement was made to bring this court to disrepute and to indicate that this court is not competent and is comprised of judges who should be punished. The effect of the statement is targeted to destabilize the faith the public has in this court. The statement is thus intended to interfere with the administration of justice by this court.

Further, the relevant part of the statement quoted in the Rule has been taken from a statement made during a press conference and the said full statement apparently give the impression that the decision made in the relevant murder case is politically influenced decision which lacks impartiality. Thus, this statement had the potential of inciting certain politically motivated people to cause harmful acts against the administration of justice system including this court and the judges involved in decision making, though such things did not happen. Thus, as my brother judge observed, we should not treat this statement lightly.

An attack on the honesty and the impartiality of the judiciary has always been held to be contempt- see Hewamanne V de Silva (1983) 1 Sri L R 1 at 97. However, there is nothing before us to say that the Respondent's statement was a fair comment. Further, In the matter of proceedings for contempt of Court, against Dr. S. Abeykoon reported in The Bar Association Law Journal Reports [1995] Vol.VI Part I, it was held that Contempt of Court may be said to be constituted by any kind of conduct that tends to bring the authority and administration of law into disrespect or disregard or to interfere with or prejudiced parties, litigants, or their witnesses during litigation. It was further held that intention to interfere with the proper administration of justice is not an essential ingredient of the offence of contempt of Court, but it is enough if the action complained of is inherently likely so to interfere. Moreover, there it is quoted from Aiyar "Law of Contempt" that it is the evil tendency of the act, rather than the mental element by which it is accompanied that makes it an offence.

Hence, whatever the angle we look at the statement made by the Respondent it constitutes the offence of Contempt.

In The Matter of Proceedings Against an Attorney-At-Law for Contempt of Court (1983) 1 Sri L R 243 at 251, this Court has highlighted the following principles in this respect.

"(a) that the object of discipline enforced by Courts in case of contempt is not to vindicate the dignity of the members of the Court, but to prevent undue interferences with administration of justice, in the interest of the public in general. In Re Johnson (1887) 2 QBD 68; Packer V Peacock 13 Commonwealth Law Reports 577.
(b) that the power to punish for contempt should be sparingly used only from a sense of duty and under the pressure of public interest, not so much to punish the particular offender as to deter like conduct in the future. Aiyar "Law of Contempt of Courts, Legislature and Public servants" p535 and McLeod V St Aubyan (1899) AC 549.
(c) that the power to punish summarily for contempt should be used with circumspection where it is absolutely necessary to do so, in the interest of justice, and to ensure that public confidence in the Courts will not be undermined."

Article 105(3) of the Constitution has vested this court with the power to punish contempt with an imprisonment or fine or both as the Court may deem fit. No specific punishment or upper or lower limit of a punishment has been prescribed. The legislature has left it to the Court to decide. It is understood as the nature of contempt may vary from a trivial one, where a warning from the court may suffice, to a profoundly serious one that may have been intended to challenge the fundamental supremacy of the rule of law the courts are bound to uphold. In the matter of Dr. S Abeykoon referred to above, this Court has stated that in both England and India the punishment for contempt is regulated by statute. This court has further observed that in England, superior courts have power to give imprisonment up to 2 years while there is no limitation for the fine that can be imposed. It is stated in that decision that the maximum imprisonment for contempt that can be given by an inferior court in England is limited to one month and the fine may be extended up to £500. In India, as per the said decision, the punishment appears to be simple imprisonment that may extend to 6 months or a fine which may extend to Rs.2000. These references were made in 1995. However, it appears our legislature had thought otherwise. The Judicature Act has vested District Courts with powers to impose simple or rigorous imprisonments up to 2 years or a fine up to Rs.2500 and Magistrate Courts with power to impose simple or rigorous imprisonment up to 18 months or a fine not exceeding Rs.1500.00- vide section 55 of the Judicature Act. Furthermore, the Judicature Act has vested High Courts with powers to impose simple or rigorous imprisonment up to five years and/or to a fine up to five thousand rupees- vide section 18 of the Judicature Act. Thus, when Article 105(3) empowers our superior courts to impose an imprisonment or fine or both as the Court deems fit, it is logical to think that the legislature considered to empower superior courts with powers to impose punishment which may be harsher than the punishments that can be given by courts below if the circumstances demand such punishments. In fact, in Chandradasa Nanayakkara V Liyanage Cyrill (1984) 2 Sri L R 193 Court of Appeal imposed a deterrent punishment of 7 years. However, it was a case where the person charged with contempt of court had forcibly entered the chambers of the magistrate and threatened to kill or cause bodily harm to the Magistrate. There it was held as follows;

"Of all contempts committed against the lawful authority of courts of law the most heinous are those which involve actual or threatened injury to the person of a judge with view to intimidating him into revoking or altering an order or decision made by him in the discharge of his judicial duties. The outrageous nature of the acts committed by the respondent constitutes not only an afront to the dignity and authority of the court but also a direct challenge to the fundamental supremacy of the law itself. It is a type of contemptuous conduct which appeared to us to be unprecedented in the annals of courts of this country. It is absolutely imperative that such conduct, whenever or whatever court it occurs, should be dealt with speedily, firmly and unmercifully. People like respondent who have but scan respect and regard for law and order and the courts of the land must be made to realise that the arm of the law is sufficiently long and sufficiently strong to repel any attempts at undermining the authority of courts. It is our duty in situations such as have arisen in the instant case to uphold and vindicate not the personal reputation of the holder of particular office, but the sanctity and supremacy of authority of courts so as to secure the preservation of law and order and to ensure the protection of the future administration of justice."

The above indicates that our courts considered even long-term imprisonment for contempt when the circumstances demand such imprisonments. However, the perusal of decisions of our courts on contempt of courts show that the punishments vary according to the factual background in each case from warnings, fines and simple imprisonments to long term rigorous imprisonments or combination of such punishments.

In the above backdrop now, I prefer to consider facts that mitigate or aggravate punishments.

Aggravating circumstances

- The statement made by Respondent defames the Judges of the lower court as well as the judges of the Supreme Court who were involved in the decision making which can be considered as an attack on the honesty and impartiality of the judiciary. The said statement is an afront to the dignity and authority of the Court and it is a challenge to the supremacy of law. The Judges cannot go on making public statements in reply unless such actions are properly dealt with in an action for contempt.
- The Respondent is a lawyer and cannot be considered as a person ignorant of law or our legal system and of how a court comes to its findings. He should be aware why the dignity and sanctity of our courts should be protected and the harm that may be caused to law and order, if such dignity and sanctity is attacked. The protection of the sanctity and dignity of courts for the maintenance of law and order is for the benefit of the public. When a person knowledgeable in law makes adverse comments of our courts, people may tend to believe and accept such statements as true. Thus, the conduct of the Respondent adversely affects the faith people has on our administration of justice system.
- As mentioned above the statement referred to in the rule has to be understood in the context it was made during the press conference. It appears, when one considers the full statement, the Respondent has attempted to give the impression that the decision in the relevant murder case was tainted with political influence. Even though no physical attack erupted due this statement, this type of statement may arouse politically motivated people to cause harm to courts and judges involved.

Mitigating Circumstances

- The Counsel for the Respondent submitted that the Respondents truly regrets his action and thus, pleads guilty. However, whether a belated apology sufficiently indicates his repentance is questionable since such a late apology may be tendered for various other reasons.
- I agree with what my brother Judge has stated regarding the period he spent in the remand prison, and I do not think that we should consider that in mitigation.
- I do not think that his service as an army officer during the civil war should be considered in mitigation to condone an attack on the judiciary which may affect law and order of the country.
- However, as it appears that he has not been convicted before and this seems to be the first conviction, I would prefer to consider it in mitigation.
- Finally, as per the submissions of the counsel, the Respondent is a father of two children and his wife is not employed at present. This court recognizes the hardships that may have to be faced by the family members, especially how it affects the upbringing of the children when the sole breadwinner is incarcerated. However, the severity of the statement made by the Respondent makes it difficult consider it in a lighter vein.
- I further foresee the issues the Respondent may have to face with this conviction as an Attorney-at-Law, since his conduct may be considered as a statement against the ethical standard expected from an Attorney-at-Law.

With all due respect to the decision of my brother judge, while keeping the principles stated in The Matter of Proceedings Against an Attorney-At-Law for Contempt of Court (1983) 1 Sri L R 243 at 251 (Supra) and after considering all the facts mentioned above, I sentenced the Respondent to a term of 30 months rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs.300,000.00 with a default sentence of 6 months simple imprisonment. I also agree with my brother judge in directing the Hon. Attorney General and the Registrar of this Court to take necessary steps to institute proceedings against the Respondent Attorney-at- Law as this conviction relates to a conduct of an Attorney-at-Law.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application for the offence of Contempt of Court under and in terms of Article 105(3) of the Constitution of the of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC /Contempt No. 02/2023

Herath Mudiyanselage Vijitha Herath
No. 464/20 Pannipitiya Road,
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

Complainant-Petitioner

Vs.

K.M. Mahinda Siriwardana
Secretary to the Treasury
Ministry of Finance
The Secretariat
Colombo 01.

Contemnor-Respondent

SC /Contempt No. 03/2023

Rathnayake Mudiyanselage Ranjith Madduma Bandara
No. 31/3, Kandawatte Terrace
Nugegoda.

Complainant-Petitioner

Vs.

K.M. Mahinda Siriwardana
Secretary to the Treasury
Ministry of Finance
The Secretariat
Colombo 01.

Contemnor-Respondent

Before	:	Jayantha Jayasuriya, PC, CJ Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J. Priyantha Jayawardena, PC, J. Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC, J. Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC,J.
Counsel	:	Upul Kumarapperuma with Kaneel Maddumage, Radha Kuruwitabandara & Dulini Godagamage for the Complainant-Petitioner in SC. Contempt No. 02/2023. G. Alagaratnam, PC with Suren Fernando, Sandamali Rajapaksha, Lasantha Garusinghe, Luwie Ganeshadasan, Nisala Seniya Fernando and Supuni Gunasekara for the Complainant-Petitioner in SC. Contempt No. 03/2023. Eraj de Silva with Hafeel Faris , N.K. Ashokbharan, Janaka Sundaramoorthy, Daminda Wijeratne for the Contemnor – Respondent instructed by Vidanapathirana Associates in SC. Contempt No.02/2023 & SC. Contempt No. 03/2023.
Written Submissions filed on	:	05th June 2023 on behalf of Attorney General in case Nos. SC. Contempt/02/2023 and SC. Contempt/03/2023. 07th June 2023 by the Contemnor – Respondent in Case No. SC. Contempt/ 02/2023 08th June 2023 Preliminary written submissions by the Contemnor – Respondent in Case No. SC. Contempt/ 03/2023.

21st June 2023 by Contemnor – Respondent in Case No. SC. Contempt/02/2023 and SC. Contempt/ 03/2023.

07th June 2023 by the Contemnor – Respondent in Case No. SC. Contempt/ 02/2023.

Argued on : 22.05.2023

Decided on : 14.11.2023

In both these matters K.M.Mahinda Siriwardane, Secretary to the Treasury is named as the Contemnor-Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the respondent). Furthermore, both these matters are described as applications for the offence of contempt of court under and in terms of Article 105(3) of the Constitution. While SC Contempt 02/2023 is filed by Herath Mudiyanselage Vijitha Herath, Rathnayake Mudiyanselage Ranjith Madduma Bandara has filed SC Contempt 03/2023. Both have identified themselves as complainant-petitioner in the respective applications.

These applications have been filed on the basis that the respondent willfully refused to abide by the Order of this Court dated 03 March 2023 in SC FR 69/2023 and failed to honour the aforesaid Order. Petitioners have further claimed that the respondent disregarded the aforesaid Order. They contend that the respondent had unduly interfered with the due administration of justice by his aforesaid conduct and thereby he had committed the offence of contempt of court, punishable under Article 105(3) of the Constitution.

In view of the fact that the cause of action pleaded in both these matters arise from the same conduct of the respondent and the fact that both petitioners have claimed the identical relief, they were listed together for support and all parties agreed that a single judgment can be delivered in relation to both these matters.

Both petitioners claim that the respondent was cited as the 1st respondent in SC FR 69/2023. The said application had been filed on the basis that arbitrary, wrongful, malicious, capricious, illegal, unlawful and pernicious actions and/or decisions of the respondent and/or actions or decisions of the Minister of Defence, Finance, Economic Stabilisation, National Policies, Technology, Investment Promotion, Women, Child Affairs and Social Empowerment to not provide adequate funds to the members of the Election Commission for the purpose of conducting Local Government Elections have violated Fundamental Rights guaranteed to the petitioner of the said application and all other citizens under Article 12(1) and 14(1)(a) of the Constitution.

On 03rd March 2023, this Court having heard submissions of counsel representing all parties in the aforesaid application while granting leave to proceed, granted interim orders as prayed for in prayers (i) and (j) of the petition dated 21/02/2023.

Prayers (i) and (j) of the aforesaid petition reads as follows:

> (i) Issue an interim order restraining and / or preventing the 01st and / or 2nd (ie Honourable Minister of Defence, Finance, Economic Stabilisation, National Policies, Technology, Investment Promotion, Women, Child Affairs and Social Empowerment represented by the Honourable Attorney-General) Respondents and their servants and agents and any other state functionary from withholding any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023 until the final determination of this application, subject to such terms, if any, as to Your Lordship's Court sees fit;
>
> (j) issue an interim order, restraining and / or preventing the 01st and / or 2nd (ie Honourable Minister of Defence, Finance, Economic Stabilisation, National Policies, Technology, Investment Promotion, Women, Child Affairs and Social Empowerment represented by the Honourable Attorney-General) Respondents and their servants and agents and any other state functionary from withholding any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023, from the 8th Respondent, until the final determination of this application, subject to such terms, if any, as Your Lordship's Court sees fit;

The 8th respondents referred to in prayer (j) is the Government printer.

According to the petitioners, thereafter the 4th respondent in the aforesaid application - the Chairman of the Election Commission – by his letter dated 07th March 2023 while informing that a decision was taken to reschedule the elections for the local government authorities for 25th April 2023, requested the respondent to release a total sum of rupees one thousand and one hundred million to the election commission by 17th April 2023 in six tranches and a total sum of rupees one thousand three hundred and sixty to the police headquarters, government printer and the postal department. Subsequently, on 08th March 2023, the gazette notifications had been issued by the returning officers of respective administrative districts, declaring 25th April 2023 as the new date of elections for the local government authorities.

In response to this letter, the respondent had informed that he sought the approval of the Minister of Finance to release the funds as requested and steps would be taken to release funds no sooner such approval is granted. In the same letter the respondent had said, that the approval of the minister was sought in view of the direction of the Cabinet of Minsters dated 13th February 2023.

Thereafter, on 18th March 2023, the petitioner in Contempt 03/2023, Ranjith Madduma Bandara through an attorney-at-law had informed the respondent that steps will be initiated to charge the respondent for the offence of contempt of court as the latter is in manifest violation of the orders of the apex court and on 21st March 2023, the petitioner, initiated proceedings before this Court.

Upon receipt of these applications this Court listed them for support with notice to the Attorney-General. When these matters were taken up for support, the respondent was represented by the Counsel, even no notices were issued on him by court.

At the commencement of the hearing the learned counsel for the respondent raised preliminary objections on several grounds and moved that these applications be dismissed in limine. Such objections were raised on the basis that; the respondent did not have the ability to comply with the direction of the Court, there is no wilful or contumacious act of the respondent, petitioners failed to annex the charge sheet / or the draft charges, Court lacks jurisdiction, the petitioners have invoked jurisdiction for collateral purposes and the petitioners have no locus standi. In response to these objections, the learned counsel for the petitioners contended that none of the objections have merit and moved that they be rejected and a show cause notice be issued against the respondent.

Jurisdiction of the Court

Learned Counsel for the respondent contended that the two petitions should be dismissed in limine as this Court lacks jurisdiction. It was submitted that Courts do not have jurisdiction to consider any matter relating to powers of Parliament as stipulated under Article 4(c) of the Constitution. It is his contention that the matters connected to these proceedings forms part of powers of Parliament in relation to public finance and Article 4(c) excludes the judicial power of the Courts including the power to punish for contempt of court in the matters relating to public finance.

Article 4(c) of the Constitution reads as*: "the judicial power of the people shall be exercised by Parliament through courts, tribunals and institutions created and established, or recognized by the Constitution, or created and established by law, except in regard to matters relating to the privileges, immunities and powers of Parliament and of its Members, wherein the judicial power of the people may be exercised directly by Parliament according to law;"*.

The learned counsel further contends that matters relevant to these proceedings fall within the ambit of "control of public finance" and therefore Article 148 of the Constitution precludes Court from examining this matter. It is his submission that under Article 4 (c) judicial power of the people relating to matters on powers of parliament has to be exercised by Parliament and not by Parliament through courts.

Article 148 of the Constitution reads as:

> "Parliament shall have full control over public finance. No tax, rate or any other levy shall be imposed by any local authority or any other public authority, except by or under the authority of a law passed by Parliament or of any existing law".

Learned Counsel for the Petitioners submitted that the respondent's contention has no merit. While conceding that the Parliament's authority on public finance since the Parliament is vested with full control over public finance by Article 148 of the Constitution, present proceedings relate to an Order made by this Court and Court's jurisdiction as recognized under Article 105 (3) of the Constitution.

Article 105(3) reads as:

> "The Supreme Court of the Republic of Sri Lanka and the Court of Appeal of the Republic of Sri Lanka shall each be a superior court of record and shall have all the powers of such court including the power to punish for contempt itself, whether committed in the court itself or elsewhere …"

When we examine the nature of proceedings before this Court, it is clear that the petitioners are invoking jurisdiction of this court under Article 105(3) on the basis that the respondent failed to act in accordance with an order made by this Court. Jurisdiction of this court in relation to matters of Contempt of Court had been in existence over a period of time and such power is vested in court to protect the dignity and authority of the court. We do not see any merit in the submissions of the learned Counsel for the respondent on this matter. Therefore we overrule this objection.

Respondent's ability to comply with the order

The learned Counsel for the respondent submitted, that at this stage the Court should be satisfied that there is evidence available which can lead the court to conclude that an offence appears to have been committed, if the court is to issue a rule nisi for contempt of court. It is his contention that when the Court is deciding whether an offence appears to have been committed, the Court should consider four elements namely; (a). existence of an undertaking or an order, (b). knowledge of the undertaking or order, (c). ability to comply with the undertaking or the order, (d). wilful contumacious disobedience of undertaking or order.

The learned Counsel for the respondent submitted that the interim Order of the Court dated 03rd March 2023 requires the respondent (a). not to withhold any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023 and (b). not to withhold from the 8th Respondent any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023. The 8th Respondent in the said application was the Government Printer.

The Counsel contended that if this Court is to issue a rule nisi on the respondent, the petitioners should satisfy court that there is sufficient evidence for the Court to conclude that the respondent had the ability to comply with the said order. He contended that at no stage the respondent withheld release of funds but at all times acted according to the Constitution.

As per the material presented before this Court by the petitioners in this matter, subsequent to the aforesaid order of this Court dated 03rd March 2023, the respondent received a request of the Election Commission dated 07th March 2023 to release funds for the conduct of local government elections. Upon receipt of this request, he sought permission from the Minister of Finance to release such funds and on the same day informed the election commission that steps would be taken to release funds no sooner he is granted permission. It is his position that he had to seek permission to release funds in view of the cabinet decisions dated 06th and 13th February 2023. It is his contention that the material available to this court reveal that the Cabinet of Ministers on 06th February 2023 and on 13th February 2023 had approved the Minister of Finance to advise the Secretary to the Treasury to release imprest only for the expenditure set out in the relevant Cabinet Memorandums until the revenue condition reaches the expected levels. Therefore, the learned counsel contends that the material available before this court is insufficient for the court to conclude that the respondent had the ability to comply with the Order of this court.

Furthermore, he submits that the respondent by his affidavit dated 13th March 2023 filed together with annexures A1, A2 and A3 in SC FR 69/2023 – the case in which the relevant Order was made - appraised the court of the request made by the election commission and the steps he took in relation to the said request. The learned Counsel contends, that the respondent by his conduct demonstrated his willingness to comply with the order and entertains no disrespect towards the Court. The learned Counsel further submitted that the Petitioners have deliberately withheld this fact in their petitions filed in this Court on 21st and 22nd March 2023 and thereby is guilty of suppression of relevant material.

Countering these submissions, the learned President's Counsel for the petitioners in SC Contempt 03/2023 contends, that the ability of the respondent to comply with the order of this court is a matter that should be examined by this Court at the main hearing. It is for the respondent to demonstrate this factor by presenting all necessary material at a full inquiry. Furthermore, they contend that the matters raised by the respondent were already considered by this Court when it made the Order on 03rd March 2023 and therefore the respondent has no right to agitate the same facts in these proceedings. In their submission that the respondent's failure to release funds to the Election Commission and other agencies to meet the expenses relating to the conduct of local government elections amounts to noncompliance with and a complete disregard of, the Order of this Court. The learned counsel for the petitioners in SC Contempt 02/2023 fully associated with the above submissions.

In considering these submissions this Court first needs to examine the nature and the scope of the relevant order. There are two parts in the order. The effect of the first part of the interim order issued by the court as applicable to the respondent is restraining and / or preventing him from withholding any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023. The second part as applicable to the respondent is restraining and / or preventing him from withholding any funds allocated by the Activity Budget Estimates for the fiscal year of 2023 and / or the Budget for the year 2023 for the purpose of conducting Local Government Polls 2023, from the Government Printer. Therefore, the effect of these orders is, preventing the respondent from withholding funds allocated for the purpose of conducting the local government polls 2023.

Examination of all the material available to this Court reveal that the Budget Estimates of 2023 had set out Rupees 10,910 million under the heading Election Commission and the General Treasury had released a total sum of 165 million rupees between 31st January 2023 and 07th February 2023 under the General Warrant on the request of the Election Commission. The Election Commission on 07th March 2023 had requested the respondent to release a total sum of Rupees 1100 million prior to 25th April 2023 to the Election Commission and a further total sum of Rupees 1360 million to the Police Head Quarters, Printing Department and the Postal Department as election related expenditure. However, despite the interim order of this Court dated 03rd March 2023 directing the respondent not to withhold funds required for the Local Government Elections 2023, the responded had replied that he sought approval from the Minister of Finance and would take steps to release funds no sooner he receives the approval.

The issue before this Court is whether the respondent had breached the above mentioned Order of this Court and thereby have committed Contempt of Court. In this context, is there prima facie evidence that the respondent withheld funds, for this Court to issue summons and/or an order nisi against the respondent? It is pertinent to note that the Court by the Order dated 03rd March 2023 had not directed the respondent to release funds. In this background, the question arises as to whether the respondent by 07th March 2023 had the authority to release funds as requested by the Election Commission. For this Court to examine this issue, all material presented need to be considered and in that process this Court is not precluded from examining the material that had already been considered by this Court, at the time the interim Order was made. This Court independent of the relevant order of this Court, needs to be satisfied in these proceedings that the respondent had the ability to give effect to the said Order and if there had been any non-compliance or a breach of the order whether it amounted to contempt of court.

The Privy Council in Reginald Perera v The King 52 NLR 293 at 296 in reference to the definition of contempt of court, it was observed:

> "...That phrase has not lacked authoritative interpretation. There must be involved some act done or writing published calculated to bring a Court or a judge of the Court into contempt or to lower his authority " or something " calculated to obstruct or interfere with the due course of justice or the lawful process of the Courts "

The Court of Appeal in Croos and Another v Dabrera [1999] 1 SLR 205 at 209-210, observed that:

> "The charge of contempt of court, was classically defined in the case of Regina v. Kopito, by Goodman, J. as "the scandalizing of the court, in that the words or the acts are likely to bring the court and Judges into disrepute.
>
> The action taken with regard to acts of contempt is based on the premises that a well-regulated laws of a civilized community cannot be sustained without sanctions being imposed for such conduct. It is therefore thought important to maintain the respect and dignity of the court and its officers, whose task it is to uphold and enforce the law, because without such respect, public faith in the Administration of Justice would be undermined and the law itself would fall into disrepute."

The Court further observed that "Even if contempt is not always a crime, it bears a criminal character and therefore, it must be satisfactorily proved. Lord Denning, M. R in Re Bramblewale ([1969] 3 ALL ER 1012) stated that "a contempt of court must be satisfactorily proven. To use the all time honoured phrase it must be proven beyond reasonable doubt" (supra at 210)

In Perkier Foods Ltd v Halo & Mr Tague [2019] EWHC 3462 (QB) in describing the mens rea required to establish contempt of court cited with approval the following observation in Masri v Consolidated Contractors Ltd [2011] EWHC 1024 (Comm):

> "In order to establish that someone is in contempt it is necessary to show that (i) that he knew of the terms of the order; (ii) that he acted (or failed to act) in a manner which involved a breach of the order; and (iii) that he knew of the facts which made his conduct a breach…".

Furthermore, the court accepted that it was not necessary to show any direct intention to disobey the order. However, the court cited with approval the views of court in Sectorguard plc v Dienne plc [2009] EWHC 2693 (Ch), that:

> "…failure to perform an impossible undertaking is not a contempt. The mental element required of a contemnor is not that he either intends to breach or knows that he is breaching the court order or undertaking, but only that he intended the act or omission in question, and knew the facts which made it a breach of the order.
>
> Nonetheless, even a mental element of that modest quality assumes that the alleged contemnor had some choice whether to commit the relevant act or omission. An omission to do that which is in truth impossible involves no choice at all. Failure to comply with an order to do something, where the doing of it is impossible, may therefore be a breach of the order, but not, in my judgment a contempt of court".

In Perkier (supra) Justice Chamberrlain held that > 14. "…Contempt of court, whether criminal or civil, was at common law a misdemeanour: see Dean v Dean [1987] 1 FLR 517, per Neill LJ, cited in Arlidge, Eady & Smith on Contempt (5th ed.), §12-51. That, together with the fact that its potential consequences include imprisonment and other penal sanctions, is why its elements must be proved to the criminal standard. In Sectorguard, Briggs J reasoned that a person who has no choice, because compliance with the order is impossible, does not have even the modest mens rea required for contempt. It is for the applicant to prove to the criminal standard that the respondent had the necessary mens rea. In a case where the respondent says that compliance was impossible, and there is some evidence to that effect, mens rea is in issue and it should be for the applicant to prove to the criminal standard that compliance was possible, in the sense that the respondent had a choice about what to do. That result is consistent with the general rule in criminal law.

>
> 15. In the vast majority of cases, it will not be difficult for the applicant to prove that compliance is possible. In general, an injunction will not be granted if it would be impossible to comply with it. Furthermore, as the above cases show, it is not necessary to show that compliance would have been easy or convenient or inexpensive. Court orders must be complied with even if compliance is burdensome, inconvenient and expensive. What has to be proved on a committal application, in a case where the respondent has adduced evidence that compliance would be impossible (and so has discharged the evidential burden), is simply that compliance was possible….."

The Court in Croos (supra at 210) while describing the mens rea required to establish a charge of contempt of court, observed, that:

"Under Rule 31 of the Old English Rules of the Supreme Court, an act of disobedience would become an act of contempt only if it was "Willful". "Willful" was taken to mean that while, where the terms of an injunction were broken it was not necessary to show that the person was intentionally contumacious or that he intended to interfere with the administration of justice, yet where the failure or refusal to obey the order of court was casual or accidental and unintentional, it will "not be met by the full rigours of the law" ".

In Dayawathie and Peiris v. Dr. S. D. M. Fernando and others [1988] 2 SLR 314 Amerasinghe J cited with approval the following views of the Supreme Court of India in Debabrata Bandopoadhay v The State of West Bengal (AIR 1969 SC 189) and in Ragunath Rai v P.Sahai (1968 S.C. 189, 193) :

"A question whether there is contempt of court or not is a serious one. The Court is both the accuser as well as the Judge of the accusation. It behoves the Court to act with as great circumspection as possible making all allowances for errors of judgment and difficulties arising from inveterate practices in courts and tribunals. It is only when a clear case of contumacious conduct not explainable otherwise, arises that the contemnor must be punished .... Punishment under the law of contempt is called for when the lapse is deliberate and is in disregard of one's duty and in defiance of authority. To take action in an unclear case is to make the law of contempt do duty for other measures and is not to be encouraged." (Debabrata – supra).

"Whether in a particular case contempt has been committed or not, has to be decided in the light of the circumstances of each. case. While zealously safeguarding the dignity of the Court, it is also to be borne in mind that it is of equal importance that-contempt proceedings should not be abused and that utmost care must be taken to avoid resort to such proceedings in such cases where such action is not appropriate. Though disregard of a Court's order may itself amount to contempt even in the absence of disobedience; it would still be necessary, in my opinion, to prove in most cases, that even the disregard was wilful and not bona fide" (Ragunath Rai – supra).

When the legal principles as derived from these authorities are considered in the context of the facts presented by all parties before this court, firstly, it is common ground that what is ordered by this Court is for the respondent not to withhold funds. Secondly, the Appropriation Act, No.43 of 2022 had allocated to each expenditure head in accordance with the budgetary provisions for year 2023. However, on 06th February 2023, the Cabinet of Ministers had granted approval to the Minister of Finance to advise the Secretary to the Treasury to release imprest only for expenditure relating to twenty-two subjects specified in the Cabinet Memorandum on "Maintaining Essential Public Services in the Most Difficult Financial Circumstances" until the revenue condition reaches the expected level. This decision had been communicated to the respondent on the 7th February 2023 by the Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers specifying, "action by Ministry of Finance, Economic Stabilisation and National Policies".

Cabinet of Ministers had taken this decision in the backdrop where the Cabinet of Ministers from January 2023 had considered several proposals relating to estimated expenditure as identified in the Appropriation Act, No.43 of 2022. In this regard the Cabinet of Ministers had considered matters including Payment of Government Salary Bill, Reduction of Recurrent Provisions in the Expenditure Estimates approved for the year 2023 by 05 Percent, Relief to vulnerable low-income families and Government Paddy Purchasing Programme.

It is pertinent to note that the Cabinet of Ministers is charged with the direction and control of the Government of the Republic while the Parliament is vested with full control over public finance, within the constitutional framework. In the context of the role of Parliament and the executive over the Government expenditure as envisaged in the Appropriation Act, it is pertinent to note that Section 7 of the Appropriation Act provides that:

"Where the Minister is satisfied- (a) that receipts from taxes and other sources will be less than the amounts anticipated to finance authorized expenditure; or (b) that amounts originally appropriated for a particular purpose or purposes are no longer required, he may with the approval of the Government, withdraw in whole or in part any amounts previously released for expenditure under the authority of a warrant issued by him, from the Consolidated Fund or from any other fund or moneys, of or at the disposal of the Government, to meet any authorized expenditure and the details of all such withdrawals shall be incorporated in the Final Budget Position Report which is required to be tabled in Parliament under section 13 of the Fiscal Management (Responsibility) Act, No. 3 of 2003".

When the aforementioned cabinet decisions are considered in the context of the provisions of the Appropriation Act as described above, it appears that the direction to the respondent to confine the release of imprest to identified subjects "until the revenue conditions reaches the expected level", the respondent is legally obliged to seek the approval of the Minister of Finance to release imprest for any purpose other than the above mentioned specified subjects. The respondent having informed the Election Commission of his position had appraised the court by his affidavit dated 13th March 2023 the steps that he took in seeking the approval of the Minister and the fact that he lacks authority to materialize budgetary allocations without the approval of the Minister. The impugned conduct of the respondent therefore reflects that the respondent had taken necessary measures within his purview. In our view available evidence is insufficient to establish a prima facie case of contempt of court solely on the ground that he took this lawful step as a precursor to taking a decision on the request of the Election Commission to release funds.

In view of these findings, we are of the view that the material available does not warrant initiating contempt of court proceedings against the respondent. Both applications are devoid of any merits.

Before concluding, it is also pertinent to note that the Election Commission upon receipt of the response of the respondent dated 07th March 2023, had written to the Minister of Finance on the following day (i.e 08th March 2023) and had requested the Minister to grant approval to the respondent to release necessary funds. This demonstrates that the Election Commission had accepted the respondent's position and made the request to the Minister. In fact, the Election Commission copied the said letter to the respondent for his information. It is surprising to note that the petitioners did not disclose this fact to court for reasons best known to them and these facts were revealed from the material filed in these proceedings by the Attorney-General on 08th May 2023.

In view of these findings, we have arrived as discussed herein before, we will not proceed to examine other objections raised by the respondent.

Both applications are dismissed and make no order on costs.

Jayantha Jayasuriya, PC.

Chief Justice

Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Priyantha Jayawardena, PC.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE
DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC Expulsion 01/2022

Zainul Abdeen Nazeer Ahamed
No. 107, Railway Avenue,
Kirulapone, Colombo 05

PETITIONER

Vs.

1. The Sri Lanka Muslim Congress,
   Dharussalam
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

2. Rauff Hakeem
   Leader, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

3. A. L. Abdul Majeed
   Chairman, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

4. A. C. Raawather Naina Mohamed
   Senior Deputy Leader, Sri Lanka
   Muslim Congress

No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

5. U. T. M. Anver
   Deputy Leader II, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

6. Br. H. M. M. Harees,
   Deputy Leader III, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

7. Br. S. M. A. Gaffoor,
   Deputy Leader IV, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

8. Br. Nizam Kariapper,
   Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

9. Br. M. S. M. Aslam,
   Treasurer, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
   No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
   Colombo 02.

10. Br. M. I. M. Mansoor
    National Coordinating Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,

Colombo 02.

11. Moulavi A. L. M. Kaleel
    President Majlis – e-Shoora , Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

12. Br. U. L. M. N. Mubeen
    National Propaganda Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

13. Shafeek Rajabdeen
    National Organiser, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

14. Br. A. M. Faaiz
    Director International Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

15. Br. M. B. Farook
    Director Constitutional Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

16. Br. M. S. Thowfeek
    Director Affiliated Bodies, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress

No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

17. Moulavi H. M. M. Ilyas
    Representative of the Ulema's Congress, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

18. Br. K. A. Baiz
    Director Political Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

19. Br. M. Naeemullah
    Deputy Chairman, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

20. Br. Mansoor A. Cader
    Deputy Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

21. Br. Ziyadh Hamieedh
    Deputy President Majlis – e - Shoora, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

22. Br. Rahmath Mansoor

Deputy National Coordinating
Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

23. Seyed Alizahir Moulana
Deputy National Propaganda
Secretary, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

24. Br. M. Faizal Cassim
Deputy National Organiser, Sri Lanka
Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

25. Br. A. L. M. Nazeer
Coordinator Political & Religious Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

26. S. L. M. Faleel
Coordinator Education & Cultural Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

27. R. M. Anver MPC
Coordinator Social Service & Disaster
Relief, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

28. A. L. Thavam MPC
    Coordinator Youth & Employment
    Affairs, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

29. Ms. Sithy Rifaya Ifthie
    Ladies Congress Representative, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.
30. Br. A. J. M. Rizvi
    Secretary Working Committee, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

31. Br. I. L. M. Mahir MPC
    Secretary – Delegate's Conference,
    Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

32. Br. U. M. Wahid
    Secretary – Majlis – e-Shoora, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

33. Br. M. H. Abdul Hai
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

34. Br. M. Y. M. Hilmy

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

35. Br. J. Ansar
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

36. Br. A. S. M. Rilvan
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

37. Br. M. N. M. Nafly
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

38. Br. M. I. M. Firthouse
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

39. Br. Jaufer Marikar
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

40. Br. A. M. Rakeeb
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

41. Br. M. T. Thameem

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

42. Br. M. H. A. Gaffoor
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

43. Br. J. M. Lahir
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

44. Br. M. H. M. Nazik
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

45. Br. M. Safee Raheem
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

46. Br. Arshad Nizamdeen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

47. Br. M. H. Segu Ismail
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

48. Br. N. Mahir

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

49. Br. M. S. A. Waasith
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

50. Br. M. I. Naiser
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

51. Br. A. M. Harees
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

52. Br. M. H. M. Salman
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

53. Br. J. M. Fuard Najeeb
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

54. Moulavi U. M. Jabeer
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

55. Br. S. H. M. Niyas

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

56. Br. H. M. Rayees
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

57. Br. A. R. A. Hazeer
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

58. Br. A. C. A. Nazar
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

59. Br. Moulavi A. M. Mubardeen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

60. Br. A. H. Fairoze
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

61. Br. A. H. Fairoze
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

62. Br. A. C. Yehya Khan

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

63. Br. S. M. M. Musthaffa
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

64. Br. Marzuk Ahamed Lebbe
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

65. Br. Shibly Farook
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

66. Br. Arif Samsudeen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

67. Br. A. Jalaaldeen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

68. Br. B. Thajudeen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

69. Br. H. M. M. Riyal

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

70. Br. M. N. M. Jawzy
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

71. Br. F. Fatheen
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

72. Br. M. S. M. Marzook
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

73. Br. Riya Mashoor
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

74. Br. Hunais Farook
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

75. Br. H. M. M. Faiz
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

76. Br. S. M. A. Niyas

Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

77. Br. Athamlebbe Nafeel Amanulla
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

78. Br. K. M. Nihar
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

79. Br. M. M. A. Aroos
Chairman Mutur Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

80. Br. A. Mubarak
Chairman KPS Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

81. Br. Rizvi
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

82. Br. Aliyar Nazeer
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

83. Moulavi M. A. J. Mohamed Jazeel
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

84. Br. K. Ameenullah
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

85. Br. M. S. M. Ilham Sathar
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

86. Br. M. H. M. Najath
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

87. Br. Seiyadu Mohamed Ibrahim
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

88. Seen Mohamed Mohamed Haniffa
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

89. M. T. Mohamed Safras
    Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
    No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
    Colombo 02.

90. Br. S. M. A. Ansar Moulana
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

91. Br. Ayathubawa Riyas
Member, Sri Lanka Muslim Congress
No 51, Vauxhall Lane,
Colombo 02.

The 2nd to 91st Respondents above named all being members of the High Command of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress Dharussalam, No 51, Vauxhall Lane, Colombo 02.

92. Dammika Dissanayaka
Secretary General of Parliament
Parliamentary Complex,
Sri Jayawardenapura Kotte.

93. Nimal G. Punchihewa
Chairman, Election Commission
Election Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

94. S. B. Divaratne
Member Election Commission
Election Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

95. M. M. Mohamed
Member Election Commission
Election Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

96. A. P. P. Pathirana
Member Election Commission
Election Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

97. J. Thiyagarajah
Member Election Commission
Election Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

Before : P. PADMAN SURASENA, J
: S. THURAIRAJA PC, J
: MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

Counsel : Sanjeeva Jayawardena PC with Ruwantha Cooray, Rukshan Senadheera and Punyajith Dunusinghe for the Petitioner.

M. A. Sumanthiran PC with Viran Corea, Anne Kulanayagam and Divya Mascranghe for the 1st, 2nd, and 8th Respondents.

Dr. Romesh de Silva PC with Niran Anketel for the 17th and 21st Respondents.

Uditha Egalahewa PC with N. K. Ashokbharan for the 33rd Respondent.

Kuvera de Zoysa PC with Pasindu Bandara for the 41st, 42nd and 45th Respondents.

Indumini Randeny SC for the 92nd to 97th Respondents.

Argued on : 10.05.2023, 23.06.2023

Decided on : 06.10.2023

P Padman Surasena J

THE BACKGROUND

The Petitioner is a member of the 1st Respondent party, the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the 'SLMC'). The SLMC is a political party recognized under the Parliamentary Elections Act No. 01 of 1981 (as amended).

The 2nd Respondent and the 3rd Respondent in this case are respectively, the Leader and the Chairman of the SLMC and are also members of the SLMC's High Command. The High Command of the SLMC is the apex decision making body of the party.

According to the petition, the 4th-91st Respondents are also members of the High Command of the SLMC. The 92nd Respondent is the Secretary General of the SLMC and the 93rd Respondent is the Chairman of the Election Commission, while the 94th to the 97th Respondents are all members of the Elections Commission.

At the General Election conducted in the year 2020, the Petitioner was elected as a Member of Parliament from the SLMC and agreed to conduct himself as a member of the opposition in line with the electoral pact of the SLMC. The Petitioner along with the 6th, 16th and 24th Respondents had signed a document as members and representatives of the SLMC in parliament pledging their loyalty to the constitution, rules and regulations of the SLMC. The Petitioner himself has produced the said special pledge of loyalty to the constitution, rules and regulations marked 'P5' with his Petition. The facts relevant to the instant case revolves around the voting took place at the budget proposal (Appropriation Bill) for the year 2022 presented to the Parliament by the Hon. Minister of Finance on 12-11-2021. The second reading of the said Appropriation Bill had been fixed for 22-11-2021. The SLMC had then called an urgent meeting of the High Command to be held on 21-11-2022 which is the day prior to the said scheduled second reading. This was for the purpose of deciding how members of the SLMC should vote at the second reading of the said Appropriation Bill.

It is the position of the SLMC that its High Command had decided at that meeting not to vote in favour of the said Appropriation Bill in Parliament. The High Command had also decided that the SLMC members could either vote against the said Appropriation Bill or abstain from voting. The 1st Respondent has produced its decision marked '1R2'. It is the position of the SLMC that the Petitioner being aware of the aforesaid meeting and its unanimous decision taken on 21-11-2021 had nevertheless proceeded to vote in favour of the said Appropriation Bill on 22-11-2021 at its second reading, and at the third reading as well, in blatant violation of the said decision of the SLMC High Command. The SLMC has alleged that the Petitioner while holding a senior and substantial position in the party High Command has breached the party decision.

The Petitioner admits that he was aware of the said meeting which was to be held on 21-11-2022 to decide on the party position in the voting at the said second reading of the said Appropriation Bill which was scheduled on 22-11-2021. However, the petitioner states that upon being informed that the said meeting of the High Command was to be held on 21-11-2021 at the party headquarters, he had duly communicated to the Secretary of the SLMC of his inability to attend the said meeting and sought to be excused from the said meeting. It is the position of the Petitioner that he was not informed of any such decision taken at the meeting held on 21-11-2021 and therefore he had voted in favour of the aforesaid Appropriation Bill at its second reading held in Parliament on 22-11-2021.
It was in the above circumstances, that the SLMC has called for a written explanation from the Petitioner by the letter dated 27-11-2021 (produced marked "P9") signed by the 8th Respondent who is the Secretary of the SLMC. After the exchange of several other letters between the SLMC and the Petitioner which I will refer to later in this judgment, the SLMC by the letter dated 23-04-2022 produced marked P15, had communicated to the Petitioner about his expulsion from the party. Thus, it is in the above backdrop that the Petitioner has filed the Petition in the instant case in terms of Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution, praying in his Petition for an order from this court to set aside and invalidate the SLMC's decisions to expel him from the party as per letter P15 dated 23-04-2022.

JURISDICTION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

As the Petitioner has filed the Petition in this case under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution, let me at the outset reproduce that Article here.
Article 99 (13) (a)

> (13) (a) Where a Member of Parliament ceases, by resignation, expulsion or otherwise, to be a member of a recognized political party or independent group on whose nomination paper (hereinafter referred to as the "relevant nomination paper") his name appeared at the time of his becoming such Member of Parliament, his seat shall become vacant upon the expiration of a period of one month from the date of his ceasing to be such member:
>
> Provided that in the case of the expulsion of a Member of Parliament his seat shall not become vacant if prior to the expiration of the said period of one month he applies to the Supreme Court by petition in writing, and the Supreme Court upon such application determines that such expulsion was invalid. Such petition shall be inquired into by three Judges of the Supreme Court who shall make their determination within two months of the filing of such petition. Where the Supreme Court determines that the expulsion was valid the vacancy shall occur from the date of such determination.

As the Petitioner in the instant case has prayed in his Petition for an order from this court to set aside and invalidate the SLMC's decisions to expel him from the party, let me first clearly identify the nature of the jurisdiction this Court must exercise under the above constitutional provision over the impugned decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner from the SLMC. In doing so, let me at the very commencement of this discourse, refer to the previous decisions of this Court which had considered the nature of the jurisdiction this Court must exercise in such cases.

In the case of Gamini Dissanayake Vs M. C. M. Kaleel and others,[1] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Gamini Dissanayake's case), which this Court had decided on 03rd December 1991, eight members of the United National Party who were also Members of Parliament had filed eight petitions in terms of Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution challenging their expulsion from the Party.

Mr. H. L. de Silva, PC during the argument in Gamini Dissanayake's case, had cited many cases relating to social clubs, trade unions and voluntary associations in which decisions for the expulsion of their members had been struck down for want of a fair hearing. To the contrary, Mr. K. N. Choksy PC had contended in that case, inter alia that the right to a hearing is not an inveterate rule and depends on the facts and circumstances of the case and the grounds on which disciplinary action has been taken. It was the contention of Mr. Choksy PC in that case, that if the matter which the petitioner says he could have placed before the tribunal for consideration is a question of law or interpretation of statute or a rule or contract, all such matters are questions which this Court must decide and therefore, the lack of hearing does not vitiate the decision because the Court is in a position to adjudicate on them. Having considered those arguments, Kulatunga, J. in the majority judgment of this Court in Gamini Dissanayake's case, observed as follows:

[1] 1993 (2) Sri. L. R. 135.

> "The right of a MP to relief under Article 99 (13) (a) is a legal right and forms part of his constitutional rights as a MP."[2]

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, Fernando J in the minority judgment, stated the following on the above arguments:

> "Our jurisdiction under Article 99(13) (a) is not a form of judicial review, or even of appeal, but rather an original jurisdiction analogous to an action for a declaration,[3] though it is clearly not a re-hearing. Are we concerned only with the decision-making process, or must we also look at the decision itself? Article 99 (13) (a) requires us to decide whether the expulsion was valid or invalid, some consideration of the merits is obviously required. .."[4]

The case of Tilak Karunaratne Vs. Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike and others,[5] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Tilak Karunaratne's case), is a case this Court had decided on 27th April 1993. The Petitioner Tilak Karunaratne who filed that petition in terms of Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution challenging his expulsion from the Party was a Member of Parliament belonging to the Sri Lanka Freedom Party who was duly elected at the General Election held in 1989, to represent Kalutara District.

Mr. H. L. de Silva, PC who appeared for some of the respondents including the 1st respondent Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike in Tilak Karunaratne 's case, contended that the jurisdiction of this court does not extend to an examination of the merit worthiness of the expulsion as the decision to expel the petitioner in that case was a political decision and therefore the criteria adopted for expulsion may vary from case to case, person to person and time to time. Mr. H. L. de Silva, PC in that case further submitted that this court could interfere only if the decision of the expelling authority was unreasonable in the 'Wednesbury sense' (Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corporation)[6] that is, if the decision is so unreasonable

---

[2] At page 234.
[3] Emphasis is mine.
[4] At page 198.
[5] 1993 (2) SLR 90.
[6] [1947] 2 All ER 680; [1948] 1 KB 223.

as to be irrational. In that case, the learned counsel for the respondents relying on the cases Dawkins v. Antrobus;[7] Richardson - Gardner v. Freemantle;[8] Maclean v. Workers Union and others;[9] and Hopkinson v. Marquis of Exeter;[10] which were cases in relation to expulsion of members from voluntary associations, sought to argue that if exercise of the power of expulsion was made bona fide, this court should refrain from interfering with it. Mr. H. L. de Silva, PC in that case had reminded the Court of the words of caution of the great American Chief Justice, Marshall that 'judges should not enter the political thicket'.[11]
Rejecting the above argument, this Court in Tilak Karunaratne's case by its majority judgment, has identified the jurisdiction this Court must exercise under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution in the following paragraph which has been quoted from the majority judgment of Dheeraratne J.

> "The nature of the jurisdiction conferred on the Supreme Court in terms of the proviso to Article 99 (13) (a) is indeed unique in character; it calls for a determination that expulsion of a Member of Parliament from a recognized political party on whose nomination paper his name appeared at the time of his becoming such Member of Parliament, was valid or invalid. If the expulsion is determined to be valid, the seat of the Member of Parliament becomes vacant. It is this seriousness of the consequence of expulsion which has prompted the framers of the Constitution to invest that unique original jurisdiction in the highest court of the Island, so that a Member of Parliament may be amply shielded from being expelled from his own party unlawfully and/or capriciously. It is not disputed that this court's jurisdiction includes, an investigation into the requisite competence of the expelling authority; an investigation as to whether the expelling authority followed the procedure, if any, which was mandatory in nature; an investigation as to whether there was breach of principles of natural justice in the decision making process; and an investigation as to whether in the event of grounds of expulsion being specified by way of charges at a domestic

[7] (1879) 17 Ch D 615 [1881-51] All ER Rep. 126; (1881) 44 LT 557.

[8] (1870) 24 L.T. 81; 19 W.R. 56

[9] (1929) 141 Law Times 83 ; [1929] 1 Ch. 602.

[10] (1867) LR 5 Eq. 63 ; (1867) 37 LJ Ch. 173.

[11] At page 102.

> inquiry, the member was expelled on some other grounds which were not so specified. ….." [12]

Having held as above, Dheeraratne J in that case, cited with approval the views expressed by Fernando J in the minority judgment in Gamini Dissanayake's case with regard to the nature of jurisdiction of this Court under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution. Thus, Dheeraratne J in Tilak Karunaratne's case stated as follows:

> "… Our jurisdiction appears to be wider; it is an original jurisdiction on which no limitations have been placed by Article 99 (13) (a). As stated by Fernando J. in Dissanayake and others v. Kaleel and others, " Our own jurisdiction under Article 99 (13) (a) is not a form of judicial review, …" [13]

On 1st July 2005, a bench of five judges of this Court decided the case of Ameer Ali and others Vs. Sri Lanka Muslim Congress and others,[14] hereinafter sometimes referred to as Ameer Ali's case. All five judges of this Court were unanimous in their conclusion. In that case, three Petitioners who had contested the General Election held in April 2004, and returned as Members of Parliament had filed the petitions in that case in terms of Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution challenging their expulsion from the Party. The five Judge bench of this Court proceeded to examine the nature of the jurisdiction of this Court with regard to the petitions filed under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution. The said five-judge bench in the judgment of Court, also cited with approval (unanimously), the aforesaid views expressed by Kulatunga J in the majority judgment of this Court in Gamini Dissanayake's case, as well as the aforesaid views expressed by Dheeraratne J in the majority judgment of Tilak Karunaratne 's case, regarding the nature of the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution. Thus, in Ameer Ali's case, five judges of this Court have unanimously endorsed the aforesaid views.

In Sarath Amunugama and others Vs. Karu Jayasuriya Chairman UNP and others,[15] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Sarath Amunugama's case), which this Court had decided on 03rd February 2000, the five petitioners (whose cases were heard together) were Members of Parliament representing the United National Party which is a recognized political party. The petitioners in that case had filed applications in the Supreme Court in terms of

---

[12] At page 101.
[13] At page 102.
[14] 2006 1 SLR (at page 189).
[15] 2000 (1) Sri. L. R, 172.

Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution as they had been summarily expelled from the membership of the Party on a decision of the Working Committee of the Party. With regard to the nature of the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution, Amerasinghe J who was then Acting Chief Justice, in his judgment had cited and reproduced with approval, Fernando J's sentiments with regard to the said jurisdiction of this Court expressed in Gamini Dissanayake's case.

The Petitioner in Perumpulli Hewage Piyasena Vs. Illankai Thamil Arsukachchi and others,[16] had filed that application in terms of the proviso to Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution challenging his expulsion from the Ilankai Tamil Arasu Kadchi (ITAK), which is a recognized political party on whose nomination paper his name admittedly had appeared at the time of his election as a Member of Parliament for Digamadulla District at the April 2010 General Election. The learned President's Counsel for the 3rd Respondent in that case highlighted four specific allegations of suppressions and misrepresentations by the petitioner in that case in the course of his lengthy oral and written submissions before Court. The learned President's Counsel for the Petitioner in that case, too made detailed submissions to show firstly, that the Petitioner's conduct was bona fide and secondly, that it was in accordance with his obligations to Court in relation to uberrima fides.

In Perumpulli Hewage Piyasena's case, Saleem Marsoof J also cited with approval, the aforesaid views expressed by Dheeraratne J in the majority judgment of Tilak Karunaratne 's case, regarding the nature of jurisdiction this Court must exercise in cases of this nature filed under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution, and went on to state as follows:

> "The jurisdiction of this Court conferred by Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution is sui generis, original and exclusive, and does not confer any discretion to this Court to dismiss in limine an application filed there under merely on the ground of suppression or misrepresentation of material facts, as in cases involving injunctive relief or applications for prerogative writs.[17] As noted by Fernando, J. in Gamini Dissanayake v. Kaleel and Others [1993] 2 Sri LR 135 at 198, it is "not a form of judicial review, or even of appeal, but rather an original jurisdiction analogous to an action for a declaration, though it is clearly not a re-hearing." As Dheeraratne, J. observed in Tilak Karunaratne v. Sirimavo Bandaranaike [1993] 2 Sri LR 90 at 101".[18]

[16] SC Expulsion No. 03/ 2010 (decided on 08-02-2011).
[17] Emphasis is mine.
[18] Page 6 of that judgment.

Thus, this court in all the previous cases has consistently taken and maintained the position that the nature of the jurisdiction this Court conferred on it by Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution: is not a form of judicial review; is not even in the form of an appeal; is rather an original jurisdiction analogous to an action for a declaration; is not a re-hearing; is indeed unique in character and original in nature vested in the highest Court of the island; is a very wide jurisdiction; is an original jurisdiction on which no limitations have been placed by Article 99 (13) (a); is sui generis; is original and exclusive; is a jurisdiction to determine the validity or otherwise of an expulsion in terms of the proviso to Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution; is neither injunctive nor discretionary; is indeed unique in character. I agree with the above views consistently taken by this Court.

Thus, this Court is under a duty as empowered by Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution, to examine the merits of the decision of the SLMC expelling the Petitioner from the party as the Petitioner in the instant case has invoked the jurisdiction of this Court vested in it under Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution.

EFFECT OF BREACH OF THE RULES OF NATURAL JUSTICE IN EXPULSIONS

The next question I would consider is as to what would happen when there is some breach of the Rules of Natural Justice in particular, the Rule of Audi Alteram Partem. Let me refer to the previous instances where this Court had considered this aspect when it had exercised its jurisdiction under Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution.

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, Kulatunga J in delivering the majority judgment of this Court observed as follows:

> "The right of a M.P. to relief under Article 99 (13) (a) is a legal right and forms part of his constitutional rights as a M.P. If his complaint is that he has been expelled from the membership of his party in breach of the rules of natural justice, he will ordinarily be entitled to relief and this Court may not determine such expulsion to be valid unless there are overwhelming reasons warranting such decision.[19] Such decision would be competent only in the most exceptional circumstances permitted by law and in furtherance of the public good the need for which should be beyond doubt. ..."[20]

Kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case, had taken that view whilst being mindful of the fact that any expulsion of a member from the party will visit the same consequence as any declaration that his election to Parliament is void or subject to any of the disqualifications as are specified in the Constitution which would result in such member losing his seat in Parliament. Nevertheless, it was Kulatunga J's view that when there is a complaint that the relevant decision has been taken in breach of the rules of natural justice, even such decision would stand competent in the presence of overwhelming reasons warranting such decision. Such overwhelming reasons must be most exceptional circumstances permitted by law and in furtherance of the public good the need for which should be beyond doubt.

[19] Emphasis is mine.
[20] At page 234.

Even in the minority judgment in Gamini Dissanayake's case, Fernando J having considered all the relevant authorities before him, had recognized the fact that there are several cases in which decisions have been allowed to stand although such decisions had been taken without a hearing.[21] Fernando J in that case had listed some of the categories to which such cases belong: the instances where there is 'no legitimate expectation' of a hearing; the instances where a hearing becomes a 'useless formality'; the instances where there is 'no injustice or no real prejudice'; the instances where there is 'urgency' to take a decision; the instances where there is 'discretion' on the decision maker; the instances where there is a 'subsequent hearing also taking place after the impugned decision which 'is enough'; the instances where the person aggrieved by the decision could not have adduced any evidence even if an inquiry was held; the instances where the case is in the nature of "open and shut case" etc.

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, Fernando J having considered the above aspects, had proceeded to hold in respect of some of the petitioners in that case, that a hearing would not have been a useless hearing as those petitioners could have tendered an explanation to the issues raised. Having held as above, Fernando J then proceeded to consider the merits of the cases in respect of the other petitioners in that case and indeed held that the expulsion of the other petitioners in Gamini Dissanayake's case, (petitioners in SC Special No.s 05 and 08/ 1991) was valid for the reasons he had set out in his judgment. In doing so, Fernando J went on to say, in his judgment the following:

> "Had these proceedings been purely by way of judicial review, it may well be that we would have to shut our eyes to the merits of the decision, and look only at the defects in the decision-making process. But it is accepted that our jurisdiction is not restricted. The burden, if any, must be on the Respondents, for it is the denial of natural justice by them which has resulted in these proceedings. I have

[21] At page 186.

therefore to consider whether, on the merits the respondents have shown that the decision was a good one, thereby disentitling the petitioners to relief".[22]

The basis for Fernando J to hold that the expulsion of some of those petitioners to be valid in Gamini Dissanayake's case was because those petitioners had not tendered any explanation either in their affidavits or in the documents.

Thus, it could be seen that even Fernando J in his minority judgment, despite the breach of the Rules of Natural Justice by the respondents in that case, had proceeded to hold that the expulsion of some of those petitioners was valid. This goes on to show that our courts have recognized the availability of such a course of action in the course of the proceedings in this court, where a petitioner has invoked this Court's jurisdiction under Article 99 (1) (3) of the Constitution. This is because the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in this instance is not mere exercise of Judicial Review of the decision of the relevant party which has expelled the relevant member.

The set of cases I would cite next, would show that this Court has indeed consistently applied the above test in all the other cases as well, before it had decided to grant relief to the petitioners of those respective cases.

The petitioner in Rambukwella Vs. UNP and others,[23] being a Member of Parliament has filed that petition in terms of Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution, for a determination that his expulsion from the United National Party (UNP), is invalid. In that case also this court had held, that the expulsion of the petitioner in that case by the UNP was invalid. That was because the reasons such as: the cogent material pointing to the absence of jurisdiction of the body which had taken relevant disciplinary action against the petitioners; the denial of legal representation to the petitioner, which would have enabled the petitioner to show to the satisfaction of the body and to establish the absence of jurisdiction; the defects in the resolution of the national executive committee in that the said resolution had not been seconded by any person, or put to vote before national executive committee, i.e., because the resolution was ex facie defective since no person seconding it nor the matter being discussed or put to vote before the national executive committee; the fact that the petitioners conduct could not have possibly come within the ambit of Article 3.4(d) of the constitution of the United National Party under which the petitioner in that case was charged etc. were present in that case. Sarath N Silva CJ in that case, held as follows:

"Although membership of the Party has a concomitant liability to disciplinary action in terms of the Constitution of the Party as correctly submitted by Counsel for the

[22] Emphasis is mine.
[23] 2007 (2) SLR 329.

> respondents, in deciding on the validity of an expulsion, which has the further implication of the loss of the seat in Parliament, the overall conduct of the person subject to such action has to be taken into account".[24]

In Sarath Amunugama's case, the United National Party expelled five petitioners (five connected applications) from the membership of the party on a decision of the working committee of the party. The immediate ground of expulsion was that the petitioners had met then President Chandrika Bandaranaike Kumaratunga, and assured her of winning the Presidential Election 1999, when in fact the United National Party had nominated its leader Ranil Wickremesinghe as a candidate at that election. Two more allegations made especially against petitioner Sarath Amunugama, were,

1. Pronouncing to National media about formation of a national government without a mandate form the party and
2. The fact that he had told the BBC that he would leave the United National Party if the party failed to respond to his national government concept.

In that case, no explanations were called for from the petitioners; no charge sheets were served on petitioners; no inquiry was held against the petitioners, before the decision to expel them from the membership of the party. Acting Chief Justice Amerasinghe, in that case, stated that he was unable to accept the submissions of the learned counsel for respondents that a hearing would have been "useless" for several reasons. Some of those reasons were, that the matter could not have been described as an "open and shut case". Another reason Acting Chief Justice Amerasinghe had given was that a hearing would not have been a "useless formality" for the working committee had a choice of sanction.

Even in Sarath Amunugama's case, Acting Chief Justice Amerasinghe had cited the proposition of kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case which had recognized that in the presence of overwhelming reasons, the court, as it is exercising a sui generis jurisdiction under Article 99 (13) (a) of the constitution, can do what the court did in Gamini Dissanayake's case. It is apt to reproduce the relevant paragraph of Acting Chief Justice's judgment from Sarath Amunugama's case.

> "Kulatunga, J. (with whom Wadugodapitiya, J. agreed) stated at p. 242 that "since the petitioners had not been prepared to submit themselves to the party councils, then, there is no force in their complaint that the Working Committee had failed to give them a hearing. I hold that the Working Committee acted fairly and reasonably in taking disciplinary proceedings against the petitioners in the way it did.

[24] At page 334; emphasis is mine.

> Kulatunga, J. went into the merits of the case and concluded at p. 246 that "the remedy of expulsion befits the mischief unleashed by the petitioners".
> However, Kulatunga, J. seems to suggest that it is not in every case that the Court should go into the merits". ….[25]

Similarly, Acting Chief Justice Amerasinghe, in Sarath Amunugama's case had also cited Dheeraratne J's judgment in Tilak Karunaratne's case. The relevant paragraph from Acting Chief Justice's judgment is reproduced below,

> "In Tilak Karunanaratne v. Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike and others, the petitioner, a Member of Parliament, was expelled from his party on a decision of the Executive Committee of the party to which he refused to submit. He challenged his expulsion in terms of Article 99(13)(a) of the Constitution. Dheeraratne, J. at p. 115 stated that, in view of the conclusion His Lordship had reached, namely that "the petitioner's impugned statements are justified" in that he was exercising his Constitutional rights of freedom of speech and association, it was "unnecessary" to deal with certain questions, including a "failure to observe principles of natural justice in the decision making process." Dheeraratne, J. (Wijetunga, J. agreeing) held that the expulsion of the petitioner was invalid. Dheeraratne J. said at pp. 101-102 that Article 99(13)(a) conferred an original jurisdiction on the Court empowering it to go into the merits and shield Members of Parliament from being "unlawfully and/or capriciously" expelled from their parties. His Lordship did not accept the submission of learned counsel, Mr. H.L. de Silva, P.C., that investigations by the Court should be restricted to the question whether proper procedures had been followed,[26] lest judges might find themselves wandering into the "political thicket", and cited with approval the observations of Fernando, J. quoted above in Dissanayake on that question".[27]

In Ramamoorthy and Rameshwaran Vs. Douglas Devananda and others,[28] , G. P. S. de Silva CJ had quoted with approval, the observations of Kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayke's case (quoted above), and proceeded to hold that no "weighty considerations" like in Gamini Dissanayke's case were present in Ramamoorthy's case.

In Ameer Ali's case, three petitioners who had been expelled from the SLMC, had contended that they had serious differences of views in regard to the manner in which the members

---

[25] At page 199.
[26] Emphasis is mine.
[27] At page 200.
[28] 1998 (2) Sri. L. R. 278.

elected from the SLMC should conduct themselves, in Parliament as well as with the Leader of the party. They had refused to sign a pledge in the specimen form declaring loyalty and total allegiance to the party, to its Leader and to the High Command. They had written a joint letter informing the Leader of the party that they would extend their fullest support to the Government in its endeavor to find a lasting solution to the problems identified by them, which will benefit the Muslims in particular and the country at large in general. Shortly thereafter the three petitioners in that case were appointed as project ministers, they received letters from the party requiring them to show cause as to why disciplinary action should not be taken against them. The petitioners responded by letter requesting time to answer and were granted an additional 10 days and were required to be present at the meeting of the High Command, scheduled for 09-12-2004. The petitioners replied to charges by letter dated 07-12-2004 denying allegations and setting out most of the facts and circumstance included in the letter previously addressed to the Leader. By letter dated 20-12-2004, the Secretary General, disputed the contents of the reply and informed the Petitioners that they could present their case to the High Command and requested that a date be nominated in the month of January, on which date the matter would be heard at one of the Hotels that were specified. It appears that no further action was taken in the matter until March 2005, when letters dated 01-03-2005, was received by the Petitioners, signed by the Secretary General who informed them that the Polit bureau will go in to the show cause notice at a meeting on 12-03-2005 to be held at the Earls Court, Trans Asia Hotel at 5.00 p.m. The Petitioners were requested to be present. Another letter was received by the Petitioners bearing the same date sent by the Secretary General requesting the Petitioners to be present on Sunday 13th March at 5.00 p. m. at the same venue for a meeting of the High Command and at which meeting the High Command will go into the show cause notice that had been issued. The Petitioners replied by letters dated 11-03-2005, referring to the two sets of inquiries to be held by two bodies of the party and stated that they were puzzled as to how they have been summoned to face two disciplinary inquiries on two successive dates in respect of allegations set out in one show cause notice. The Petitioners sought specific clarification as to which particular body would seek to exercise disciplinary control. It was in such a background that the petitioners in that case had been notified of their expulsion from the party by letter dated 04-04-2005.

Indeed, it is noteworthy that in Ameer Ali's case the High Command of SLMC, after this Court had issued notices on the Respondents in that case, having taken into consideration the statements in the affidavits filed in Court and having taken into consideration the positions taken up by the petitioners that they were not afforded a hearing prior to adopting the extreme measure of expulsion, had decided to withdraw the expulsions communicated by letter dated 04-04-2005 in order to give them a further opportunity to present their position before the Party. Thus, in Ameer Ali's case, the relevant party (the SLMC) itself had conceded that it should have afforded the petitioners in that case, an opportunity to present their positions before the Party.

Even in Ameer Ali's case, the five-judge bench of this Court had cited the proposition of kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case that 'if the complaint is that the petitioner has been expelled from the membership of his party in breach of the rules of natural justice, he will ordinarily be entitled to relief and this Court may not determine such expulsion to be valid unless there are overwhelming reasons warranting such decision' when it decided the following:

> "To say the least, the Leader has thrown the principles of natural justice and fairness to the winds. The hostile comments made well before the commencement of any disciplinary action by itself establish the allegations of the Petitioners of malafides and of bias. To make matters worse, the Leader has precipitously stated that the Party will take action against the Petitioners in due course. Thereby he has assumed the authority to decide on the matter for the entire Party. This is far removed from the democratic process, which should characterize the action of a political party and the degree of fairness, being a sine qua non of any disciplinary action that may be validly taken by a political party in respect of any of its members.
>
> In this background the Court has to examine the impugned disciplinary process with a greater degree of caution to ascertain whether the initial stigma of bias and mala fides have been removed in the course of the disciplinary action allegedly taken".[29]

With regard to Ameer Ali's case, it would suffice for me to state here that such were the facts of Ameer Ali's case. Thus, the foregoing judicial precedence show in short that any breach of the Rules of Natural Justice alone cannot finally decide the validity of the expulsion of a petitioner in a petition filed under Article 99 (13) (a) of the constitution.

HAS THE ABSENCE OF A FORMAL INQUIRY VITIATED THE EXPULSION?

Let me now turn to the question whether the absence of a formal inquiry has vitiated the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner in the instant case. In doing so, let me first refer to the approach the following three English cases had taken on the above question. These would be relevant in that regard as Kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case, has adopted those principles.

[29] At page 197.

Let me first refer to the case of Gaiman Vs. National Association for Mental Health,[30] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Gaiman's case). The National Association for Mental health a highly reputable charitable body concerned with, inter alia, the preservation and development of mental health and the prevention and treatment of mental disorders. The Association had a council of management comprising the chairman, vice-chairman and honorary treasurer together with a number of ordinary members elected by the association. The Articles of Association provided, inter alia, that a member of the Association shall forthwith cease to be a member if such member has been requested by resolution of the Council to resign. It has further provided that a member so requested to resign may within seven days after such notice of resolution has been given, appeal against such resolution to the Association in a General Meeting and in the event of such appeal being successful, the resolution requesting the member to resign shall be void ab initio.

Let me now briefly state facts of Gaiman's case. For five years there had been a state of hostility between the Association and members of the 'Church of Scientology' and articles in a periodical published by the association had resulted in two actions by Scientologists against the Association for libel. The Scientologists had attacked the Association in various publications. In 1969, the rate of applications for membership of the Association had increased. Notice was given of the annual general meeting of the Association to be held on 12th November. The nominations included the nominations of the plaintiffs as chairman and ordinary members of the council. All nominees, proposers and seconders appeared to be Scientologists. On 10th November, the council, acting under the above provisions in its Articles of Association, expelled 302 members of the Association. Those expelled members sought a mandatory injunction from Courts, praying for an order on the Association to afford to the plaintiffs, until trial of the action, all rights of their membership.

Megarry J in Gaiman's case, refusing to grant the prayed mandatory injunction, held in his judgment inter alia, the following points:

i. There were no grounds for the court to intervene to prevent an alleged abuse of power by the council since the power to deprive a member of his membership was a direct power and the evidence did not disclose that it had been exercised otherwise than in good faith and in what were believed to be the best interests of the association and members as a whole.

[30] [1970] 2 All ER 362, 374, 376, 381.

ii. The principles of natural justice did not apply to the expulsion of members, so as to afford them a right to be heard before expulsion, because there were circumstances sufficient to prevent the application of the principles, in that the council owed the association a duty to exercise their powers bona fide in the interests of the association; this duty might require a power to be exercised at great speed (whereas natural justice might require delay); this in itself indicated that the council was intended to be able to exercise its powers unfettered by the principles of natural justice.

Megarry J in his judgment proceeded further to hold that the council had acted in the bona fide belief that it was in the best interests of the Association and that the council had exercised its power of deprivation of membership in good faith for the purpose for which it was conferred on it by the Articles of Association. Megarry J proceeded further to hold as follows:

> It is beyond question that Scientologists have for long been attacking the association in a variety of ways. The attacks have been virulent, and like the sentiments, the language, I think, speaks for itself. I need say no more about it than that much of it cannot be described as moderate and reasoned argument designed to convert those who hold what are conceived to be erroneous views".[31]

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, it was common ground that the petitioners have been expelled from the party without informing them of the charge or giving them an opportunity of being heard. Kulatunga J in its majority judgment having considered the question whether such a procedure could be justified, referred to and adopted the principle used by Megarry J, in Gaiman's case. Kulatunga J then proceeded to apply the same to the facts and circumstances in Gamini Dissanayake's case. The following paragraph quoted from Kulatunga J's judgment in Gamini Dissanayake's case would bear testimony to that.

> "As Megarry J. observed in Gaiman's case I am myself not concerned with " the merits of the views " held by the UNP and the petitioners, (described in the Press as "rebels"). I am concerned with the right of the Working Committee to have proceeded against the petitioners without a hearing. As in Gaiman's case here too the attacks have been " virulent " and " much of it cannot be described as being moderate and reasoned argument designed to convert those who hold what are conceived to be erroneous views." Mr. Choksy submitted that in Gaiman's case the Scientologists had been making representations for several years; here they launched a campaign without any prior discussion within the party. I would add that in Gaiman's case there was no threat to stable > government in the country; nor was there any campaign which was likely to confuse or inflame the public mind against the Head of a State, the government and the party in power. The interests involved in that case were those of the Mental Health Association whereas this case involves the interests of a party which has been voted into power by the electors and above all the interests of the public who are often the victims of such indisciplined controversy."

[31] At page 373 & 374.

Having stated the above, Kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case proceeded to hold as follows:

> "The point I make is that if the petitioners themselves were not prepared to submit to the party councils, then, there is no force in their complaint that the Working Committee had failed to give them a hearing. I hold that the Working Committee acted fairly and reasonably in taking disciplinary proceedings against the petitioners in the way it did".[32]

The second English case I would refer to, is the case of Glynn Vs. Keele University and another,[33]hereinafter sometimes referred to as Keele University's case. In that case, certain students had appeared naked in the area of the Students' Union on 19th June 1970 causing offence to many members and employees of the University, and residents on the campus. The offenders included the Plaintiff in that case and certain students due to graduate on the 1st July. The term ended on the 30th June and the Graduation Ceremony was on the 1st July. If a Disciplinary Panel had been convened it could not have met until after the end of term, by which time the graduation students would no longer have been within the disciplinary jurisdiction of the University. Thus, the vice-chancellor referring to the incident of 19th June and to his responsibility for maintaining good order, wrote to the plaintiff by letter dated 1st July, to the following effect:

> `.. I shall report to the Council at its meeting on the 7th July that you have been fined 10 pounds and excluded from residence in any residential accommodation on the University campus from today's date for the whole of the session of 1970/71 . . . If you wish to address any grievance in connection with the above to the Council . . . you should send it in writing to the Registrar to reach him not later than Tuesday, 7th July.'

The plaintiff replied to the Registrar by letter dated 3rd July stating that he wished to appeal; but having gone abroad for the long vacation, and having left no forwarding address he did not receive a letter giving him notice that the appeal was to be heard on 2nd September. As the plaintiff did not appear at the hearing of the appeal the vice-chancellor's decision stood. The plaintiff, sought from Courts, inter alia, an injunction against the University of Keele and the vice-chancellor of the university, restraining them from excluding him from residence on the campus of the university for the remainder of the academic year 1970/71.

---

[32] At page 242.
[33] [1971] 1 W L R 487, [1971] 2 All E R 89.

It must be stressed here that in Keele University's case, the Plaintiff had not made any formal admission that he was one of the undergraduates concerned in the offence; there was nowhere in his affidavits, or in the submissions of the counsel for him, any real suggestion that he was not one of the naked undergraduates on that occasion.

Pennycuick V-C in Keele University's case, having concluded the followings: the Vice Chancellor was under a duty to comply with the requirements of natural justice; the Vice Chancellor had not complied with the rules of natural justice; nevertheless, proceeded to decide as follows.

> I have, again after considerable hesitation, reached the conclusion that in this case I ought to exercise my discretion by not granting an injunction. I recognize that this particular discretion should be very sparingly exercised in that sense where there has been some failure in natural justice. On the other hand, it certainly should be exercised in that sense in an appropriate case, and I think this is such a case. There is no question of fact involved as I have already said. I must plainly proceed on the footing that the plaintiff was one of the individuals concerned. There is no doubt that the offence was one of a kind which merited a severe penalty according to any standards current even today. I have no doubt that the sentence of exclusion of residence in the campus was a proper penalty in respect of that offence. Nor has the plaintiff in his evidence put forward any specific justification for what he did. So the position would have been that if the vice-chancellor had accorded him a hearing before making his decision, all that he, or any one on his behalf could have done would have been to put forward some general plea by way of mitigation. I do not disregard the importance of such a plea in an appropriate case, but I do not think the mere fact that he was deprived of throwing himself on the mercy of the vice-chancellor in that particular way is sufficient to justify setting aside a decision which was intrinsically a perfectly proper one.
>
> In all the circumstances, I have come to the conclusion that the plaintiff has suffered no injustice, and that I ought not to accede to the present motion.[34]

[34] At page 97.

Kulatunga J in Gamini Dissanayake's case, relied on Keele University's case, to illustrate how the Court's approach is affected by the subject matter.

The third English case I would refer to, is the case of Cinnamond and others Vs. British Airports Authority,[35] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Cinnamond's case. In that case, six minicab drivers (the appellants in that case), had been prosecuted on numerous occasions by the British Airports Authority for loitering at an airport owned and operated by the Authority and touting there for passengers. They persistently refused to pay the fines and continued to loiter and tour for fares. Acting under a byelaw which empowered the Authority to prohibit any person from entering the airport except as a bona fide airline passenger, the Authority by notice prohibited the appellants from entering the airport until further notice. The Authority had not given any opportunity for the appellants to make any representations to the Authority before the ban was imposed. Thus, one of the grounds upon which the appellants sought a declaration from Courts that those notices were invalid was that there had been a breach of the Rules of Natural Justice.

Lord Denning, Shaw LJ and Brandon LJ though unanimous in their final conclusion in Cinnamond's case had considered the question whether there had been a breach of the rules of natural justice because the appellants had not been given an opportunity of making representations to the Authority before the ban was imposed and proceeded to comment on this aspect of the case in their separate judgments. Lord Denning in his judgment in Cinnamond's case held as follows:

> "Counsel for the plaintiffs urged us to say that this was such a case; that there ought to have been an opportunity given to these six car-hire drivers, so that they could be heard. They might give reasons on which the prohibition order might be modified; or they might be given a little time; or they might be ready to give an undertaking which might be acceptable: to behave properly in future. When it was said that a fair hearing would make no difference, counsel cited an important passage from Professor Wade's Administrative Law (4th Edn, 1977, P 455):
>
> > '... in the case of a discretionary administrative decision, such as the dismissal of a teacher or the expulsion of a student, hearing his case will often soften the heart of the authority and alter their decision, even though it is clear from the outset that punitive action would be justified.'

[35] [1980] 2 All ER 368.

I can see the force of that argument. But it only applies when there is a legitimate expectation of being heard. In cases where there is no legitimate expectation, there is no call for a hearing. We have given some illustrations in earlier cases. I ventured to give two in R v Gaming Board for Great Britain, ex parte Benaim [1970] 2 All ER 528 at 533, [1970] 2 QB 417 at 430. I instanced the Board of Trade when they granted industrial development certificates, or the television authorities when it awarded television programme contracts. In administrative decisions of that kind, a hearing does not have to be given to those who may be disappointed. Only recently in Norwest Holst Ltd v Department of Trade [1978] 3 All ER 280 at 292, [1978] Ch 201 at 224 I gave the instance of a police officer who is suspended for misconduct. Pending investigations, he is suspended on full pay. He is not given any notice of the charge at that stage, nor any opportunity of being heard. Likewise, the Stock Exchange may suspend dealings in a broker's shares. In none of these cases is it necessary to have a hearing.

Applying those principles, suppose that these car-hire drivers were of good character and had for years been coming into the airport under an implied license to do so. If in that case there was suddenly a prohibition order preventing them from entering, then it would seem only fair that they should be given a hearing and a chance to put their case. But that is not this case. These men have a long record of convictions. They have large fines outstanding. They are continuing to engage in conduct which they must know is unlawful and contrary to the byelaws. When they were summonsed for past offences, they put their case, no doubt, to the magistrates and to the Crown Court. Now when the patience of the authority is exhausted, it seems to me that the authority can properly suspend them until further notice, just like the police officer I mentioned. In the circumstances they had no legitimate expectation of being heard. It is not a necessary preliminary that they should have a hearing or be given a further chance to explain. Remembering always this: that it must have been apparent to them why the prohibition was ordered, and equally apparent that, if they had a change of heart and were ready to comply with the rules, no doubt the prohibition would be withdrawn. They could have made representations immediately, if they wished, in answer to the prohibition order. That they did not do.

The simple duty of the airport authority was to act fairly and reasonably. It seems to me that it has acted fairly and reasonably. I find nothing wrong in the course which it has taken. I find myself in substantial agreement with the judge, and I would dismiss the appeal."

Shaw LJ in his judgment in Cinnamond's case, while agreeing with Lord Denning, referring to the failure to give the six minicab drivers an opportunity of making representations to the Authority, stated as follows:

"As to the suggestion of unfairness in that the plaintiffs were not given an opportunity of making representations, it is clear on the history of this matter that the plaintiffs put themselves so far outside the limits of tolerable conduct as to disentitle themselves to expect that any further representations on their part could have any influence or relevance. The long history of contraventions, of flouting the regulations and of totally disregarding the penalties demonstrate that in this particular case there was no effective deterrent. The only way of dealing with the situation was by excluding them altogether.

It does not follow that the attitude of the authority may not change in the future if it can be persuaded by representations on behalf of the plaintiffs that they are minded in future to comply with those regulations.

The learned judge came to the right conclusion, and I too would dismiss the appeal".[36]

Brandon LJ in his judgment in Cinnamond's case while agreeing with Lord Denning, held as follows:

"The third question which was argued before us was that of natural justice. So far as that is concerned, I agree with what has been said by Lord Denning MR and Shaw LJ. I do not think that in the circumstances of this case there was any need to give the plaintiffs an opportunity to make representations to the authority before they issued the ban. The reason for the ban must have been well known when the letters were received. Any representations which were desired to be made could have been made immediately by letter. None were. The truth is that no representations other than representations which included satisfactory undertakings about future behaviour would have been of the slightest use.

If I am wrong in thinking that some opportunity should have been given, then it seems to me that no prejudice was suffered by the plaintiffs as a result of not being given that opportunity. It is quite evident that they were not prepared then, and are not even prepared now, to give any satisfactory undertakings about their future conduct. Only if they were would representations be of any use".[37]

[36] At page 375 & 376.

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, Kulatunga J in the majority judgment when considering the question whether such a procedure could be justified had referred to and adopted with approval, the approach Lord Denning had taken in Cinnamond's case.[38]That was to justify the common ground that the petitioners in Gamini Dissanayake's case, had been expelled from the party without informing them of the charge or giving them an opportunity of being heard. In Jayatillake and another Vs. Kaleel and others,[39] (hereinafter referred to as Jayatillake's case), two petitioners who are Members of Parliament filed petition in this Court invoking its jurisdiction under Article 99 (13) (a) of the Constitution challenging their expulsion from the United National Party (UNP). In that case, the Disciplinary Committee of the Party's Working Committee recommended on 3-12-1991 to take disciplinary action against the Petitioners on account of several matters. The Working Committee met at 7.00 p.m. on the same day and, having considered the Report of the Disciplinary Committee and the letters dated 9-10-1991 written by the Petitioners, decided that the General Secretary should write to these two members, requesting them to be present at a meeting of the Working Committee to be held on 06-12-1991 at 8.00 p.m. "for the purpose of discussing their conduct as members of the Party". No particulars were given to the petitioners. Admittedly, the petitioners had not received those letters on or before 06-12-1991. Assuming that the Petitioners had received notice, the Working Committee duly met on 06-12-1991, considered the relevant material and then resolved to expel the petitioners in that case from the Party, with immediate effect, for the reasons given in the letters dated 09-12-1991 and communicated to the petitioners of their expulsion. The petitioners before they received the letters from the party communicating their expulsion, had sent letters dated 09-12-1991 to the UNP to inform that they were not in receipt of letters informing them that the meeting of the Working Committee was to be held on 06-12-1991 at 8.00 p.m. However, neither Petitioner had requested another opportunity of appearing before the Working Committee. Nevertheless, the UNP had sent letters to the petitioners asking the petitioners to submit written observations stating their position with regard to the charges before 27-12-1991. The petitioners had received those letters on 23-12-1991 and they had replied. The Working Committee met on 30-12-1991; they considered the Petitioners' replies dated 26-12-1991. The Working Committee decided that the Petitioners had not adduced any facts or reasons to justify further inquiry and accordingly, decided not to reconsider or alter the decisions reached on 06-12-1991 which was then communicated to the petitioners the same day.

[37] At page 376 & 377.
[38] At page 236.
[39] 1994 (1) Sri. L.R. 319.

Although there are two judgments in Jayatillake's case, one by Fernando J and the other by Kulatunga J with which Wadugodapitiya J had agreed. Both judgments had considered the question whether there had been a breach of the Rules of Natural Justice in view of the fact that there was no formal hearing before making the decision to expel the petitioners in that case from the party. Both judgments had concluded that in the above circumstances, the UNP had sufficiently complied with the Rules of Natural Justice and therefore the expulsion was valid and proceeded to comment on this aspect in those separate judgments to which I would now turn.

Fernando J in Jayatillake's case, holding that in the context of all that happened in December 1991, the four days allowed to the petitioners (of which they needed only three) were sufficient to state their case and the manner in which they did so, had a direct bearing on the further question whether Natural Justice required an oral hearing and additional evidence to be placed in that case, proceeded to hold as follows:

> "Those were cases of re-hearing by the same authority. The principle that a failure of Natural Justice at the original hearing may sometimes be cured by a "full re-hearing" by another body was recognised by the Privy council in Pillai v. Singapore City Council. Having held that the rules of Natural Justice did not apply to the first tribunal, yet the Privy Council observed that even if they did apply, the subsequent proceedings cured the defect. Although they were by way of "appeal", those proceedings were in the nature of a re-hearing and evidence was called de nova. This was followed in Stringer v. Minister of Housing. In Calvin v Carr, the Privy Council dealing with an appeal from New South Wales, recognised that there was no absolute rule, either way, as to whether defects in Natural Justice at an original hearing can be cured through proceedings by way of appeal or re-hearing (at pp. 447-448); everything depends on whether after "examination of the hearing process, original and appeal as a whole", the Court is satisfied that "there has been a fair result, reached by fair methods"; whether "the appellant's case has received, overall, full and fair consideration", (pp. 448, 449, 452).
>
> Applying these principles, (a) the initial breach of Natural Justice was not deliberate; (b) action was not taken to enforce, or to make legal consequences flow from, the order of expulsion, and the fact that the Petitioners participated in the subsequent proceedings gave the Working Committee a locus poenitentiae; (c) the allegations were fairly and adequately, though not fully and precisely, communicated; and (d)

a fair opportunity was given to the Petitioners to state their case, and an oral hearing became unnecessary as the facts were " undisputed in consequence of their replies. I hold that the Petitioners, case had received - overall - full and fair consideration, and that there had been a fair result, reached by fair methods".[40]

Kulatunga J (Wadugodapitiya J agreeing) in Jayatillake's case, in his judgment rejecting the allegation that the expulsion of the petitioners was invalid for contravention of Rules of Natural Justice proceeded to hold as follows:

"I am of the view that the Working Committee had done everything possible to hold a full and fair hearing on the second occasion. The petitioners, however had defected from the Party and were irreconcilable. They were not interested in answering the allegations adequately and relied on mere jurisdictional grounds and bald denials. The learned President's Counsel for the petitioners told us that the petitioners were not bound to disclose their material or to disclose the reasons for their failure to attend Parliament on 10.10.91. If so, the petitioners are themselves to blame for their predicament. I have taken this view in the light of the following considerations:-

a) The rights of the petitioners to Party membership are contractual. At the time of their expulsion, they had repudiated the UNP and were de facto members of the DUNF; and their expulsion constituted nothing more than the severance of the formal link between them and the Party. It follows that if they wished to remain in the Party they should have taken the initiative and cooperated with the Party by making a full and frank disclosure of their defence. If they failed to do so, they must take the consequences.

b) In handling a crisis of the magnitude faced by the respondents and in dealing with men of the petitioners' calibre, a political party must be allowed a discretion to decide what sanctions are appropriate for violations of Party discipline; and if the Party decides, bona fide, to expel any member guilty of repudiating the Party, as the petitioners have done, this Court will not in the exercise of its constitutional jurisdiction impose such member on the Party. If that is done, Parliamentary Government based on the Political Party System will become unworkable.

I am satisfied that the disciplinary proceedings against the petitioners were, in all the circumstances, fair".[41]

---

[40] At page 357.
[41] At page 399.

Mr. Sumanthiran PC, appearing for the 1st, 2nd and 8th Respondents (i.e., the SLMC, its Leader, its Secretary respectively) conceded that the SLMC had not held a formal inquiry against the Petitioner before issuing P15. However, it was his submission that the Petitioner has failed first to show cause that he has a prima facie tenable explanation, which he is bound to tender in the first place, as response to P9.

Finally, Mr. Sumanthiran, PC, also submitted that the antecedent hearing that the Supreme Court has given to the Petitioner on the totality of the case would satisfy the compliance of Rules of Natural Justice (Principle of 'Audi Alteram Partem') as far as the validity of the Petitioner's expulsion from the party is concerned. It was therefore his submission that even on that ground the absence of a formal inquiry the instant case would not vitiate the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner.

Let me now consider whether the absence of a formal inquiry has vitiated the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner in the instant case. In order to consider this aspect of the case, let me first outline the sequence of events which had led to the High Command of the SLMC to unanimously resolve to expel the Petitioner from party membership with immediate effect. The SLMC has called for a written explanation from the Petitioner by the letter dated 27-11-2021 (produced marked P9) signed by the Respondent who is the Secretary of the SLMC. This letter is as follows,

> "As you are aware, the Party called for a high command meeting on 21.11.2021 at the Party headquarters "Dharussalam', to discuss and decide on the Party stand vis-a-vis the 2022 Budget (The Appropriation Bill).
>
> You are also aware that at this meeting, it was decided unanimously, that Members of Parliament being members of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress, shall not vote in favour of the budget at it's second reading vote on 22.11.2021 and shall not vote in favour at the third reading vote as well.
>
> You, however, on 22.11.2021 voted in favour of the said Budget at its second reading, in blatant violation of the said decision of the High Command.
>
> In doing so, you have acted in breach of the party decision while holding a senior and substantial position in the party high command namely, Deputy Leader.
>
> In the circumstances, the party leader, exercising his powers under the party constitution, has decided to suspend you from the High Command position held by you and to call for explanation on the said breach of the party decision.
>
> Therefore, as instructed by the Leader, I do hereby call for your explanation of your decision to vote in favour of the 2022 Budget in violation of the party decision.

Your explanation in writing in the form of an affidavit should reach me within fourteen days from the date of the receipt of this letter.

Failure to do so will compel the party to arrive at the conclusion that you have no cause to show against the said violation of the party decision by you."

Replying to P9 the Petitioner by letter dated 10-12-2021 (produced marked P10), had communicated to the SLMC stating the followings:

i. He could not attend the meeting of the High Command scheduled for 21-11-2021 at party headquarters, as it had been summoned at very short notice and hence, he was not able to attend the meeting due to reasons beyond his control which he had duly notified to the secretary of the SLMC.
ii. He did not receive any communication as to whether the meeting was held or postponed or any decision taken at the meeting.
iii. He requires a period of one month to furnish his response to the 'show cause letter' dated 27-11-2021, which he had received.
iv. He requests to let him know the relevant provisions in the party constitution under which the leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend him from the High Command position.
v. He also requests a copy of the party constitution.

The secretary of the SLMC by letter dated 22-12-2021 produced marked P11, has clearly allowed the further period of one month requested by the Petitioner to tender his response to the 'show cause letter'. The Petitioner himself in his petition has admitted that he had received P11 as a response to his letter dated 10-12-2021 (P10), from the secretary of the SLMC which had granted him a further period of one month to tender his response.[42] That is also the position of the SLMC and hence it is common ground that the SLMC has clearly allowed the further one-month period requested by the Petitioner to tender his response to P9, the 'show cause letter'.

Then the Petitioner has written the letter dated 04-01-2022 produced marked P12, thanking the SLMC for granting the further one-month period requested by him to tender his response to P9 while also repeating the same request again, namely, the request for a copy of the latest party constitution and the sections under which the Secretary of the SLMC had called for his explanation. P12 is a short three-line letter which is as follows:

[42] Paragraph 46 of the petition dated 20th May 2022.

"Thank you for your letter dated 22-12-2021 allowing a month's time for my response. Please send me a copy of the latest party Constitution & the sections under which you have called for my response at your earliest convenience."

The Secretary of the SLMC by letter dated 14-03-2022 (produced marked P13), had once again informed the Petitioner to submit his explanation by 15-04-2022. The Petitioner has admitted that he was in receipt of P13 which had extended the time to submit his explanation until 15-04-2022. Indeed, P13 is a document produced by the Petitioner himself. Reading of both P12 and P13 together would show that the SLMC had extended time until 15-04-2022 by P13 even without any request made in that regard by the Petitioner in P12. Indeed, the Petitioner in P12 had continued to maintain his silence on tendering his explanation.

Replying to P13, the Petitioner by the letter dated 07-04-2022 (produced marked P14), has repeated his request for a copy of the party constitution. It is worthwhile producing this letter P14 as it is. It is as follows,

"I am in receipt of your letter dated 14.03.2022

In my response letter to you dated 10.12.2021, I had explained as follows:

You also refer to a meeting of the High Command scheduled for 21.11.2021 at the party headquarters, which I could not attend. You are aware, the said High Command meeting had been summoned at very short notice and I was not able to attend the said meeting due to reasons beyond my control which I had duly notified to you. I did not receive any communication whether the meeting was held or postponed or of any decision taken at the meeting."

" Meanwhile please let me know the relevant provisions in the party Constitution under which the Leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend me from the High Command position together with a copy of the relevant Constitution."

You will note that you have not made available the relevant information and a copy of the relevant Constitution as yet. I shall therefore request you to furnish me with the relevant Information and a copy of the relevant Constitution which are undoubtedly available to you, at your earliest convenience, to enable me to furnish a more detailed response further to your request."

With the receipt of the letter P14 from the Petitioner, the SLMC by letter dated 23-04-2022 (produced marked P15), had communicated to the Petitioner the following,

*"Disciplinary Action - Expulsion from the Party (Sri Lanka Muslim Congress) Membership.

I received your letter dated 7th April 2022.

Your letter was placed before the High command of the party which met on 22.04.2022.

The High Command noted that you have not given any reason for violating the party decision taken at the High Command meeting held on 21.11.2021, except to plead your purported ignorance of the said decision.

High command noted that the said decision was not only conveyed to you by the leader but also it was given a huge publicity through the media.

The High Command also noted that;

1. you are well aware the said meeting on 2.11.2021 was summoned for the specific purpose of taking a decision as to the party's stance on the government's proposed Appropriation Bill for the year 2021/2022, as it was spelled out in the invitation SMS sent by the secretary.
2. You are also aware that the secretary has not sent any message, cancelling or postponing the meeting. On the contrary you have sent SMS to the secretary, excusing your attendance, which you have admitted in your letter,

Hence, the High Command proceeded to consider the action to be taken against you on the basis that you have no cause to show.

After due considerations of all these relevant matters the High Command has unanimously resolved to expel you from party membership with immediate effect. Accordingly, on the instructions of the party I do hereby communicate that your party membership from Sri Lanka Muslim Congress is duly terminated and as a result you have ceased to be a member of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress the political party from which you were elected to the present Parliament."

Let me digress a bit from the sequence of events at this stage to again refer to Gamini Dissanayake's case. In that case, Kulatunga J having considered many authorities cited before him, stated as follows:

> "I appreciate that it is not possible to come to a finding on the contentions advanced before us on a piece-meal approach with reference to this authority or the other. In my view our decision rests on an application of more than one principle, cumulatively, to the facts and circumstances of this case bearing also in mind the legal safeguards to which the petitioners are entitled".[43]

Thus, with that in mind let me further probe into the afore-stated sequence of events which took place before the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner from the party.

[43] at page 239.

It is Mr. Sumanthiran PC's position that since the Petitioner has failed to show any cause as to why he had breached the decision of the party and voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill (2022 Budget), the disciplinary authority is entitled to proceed on the basis that the Petitioner has no cause to show. Indeed, this is what P9 in its last line has stated. The relevant part is as follows:

> "…Your explanation in writing in the form of an affidavit should reach me within fourteen days from the date of the receipt of this letter.
>
> Failure to do so will compel the party to arrive at the conclusion that you have no cause to show against the said violation of the party decision by you…"

The letter P9 which called for a written explanation from the Petitioner is dated 27-11-2021. Time granted for the Petitioner for that purpose is fourteen days. It is important to note, that the first response by the Petitioner to P9, which is the letter P10 is dated 10-12-2021. That date is the 14th day since the date of P9. Therefore, as per P9, it is the last day of the deadline given for the Petitioner to submit his explanation.

In the meantime, the Petitioner having accepted the cabinet portfolio was appointed as the cabinet minister in charge of environment, on 28-04-2022. Although the Petitioner has stated in his petition that this appointment was made on 18-04-2022, the 1st, 2nd and 8th Respondents have brought to the notice of the Court that this appointment was in fact made on 28-04-2022. The relevant Gazette notification has been produced marked P14(a).

When the Petitioner received P9, he knew very well that an explanation in writing in the form of an affidavit must be tendered to the secretary of the SLMC within the time designated in that letter. Moreover, he was also aware of the consequences of any failure on his part to tender such explanation in the form of an affidavit within that time. This is because in the last paragraph of that letter, the secretary of the SLMC had clearly communicated to him that any failure on his part to tender such explanation will compel the party to arrive at the conclusion that he has no cause to show against the alleged violation of the party decision taken on 21-11-2021, not to vote in favour of the budget (the appropriation bill 2022) on 22-11-2021 and at the 3rd reading of that bill as well. In his response in P10 (which is the response of the Petitioner to P9) the only reason the Petitioner had adduced was that the Petitioner did not receive any communication as to whether the meeting was held or postponed, or any decision taken at the meeting. Having stated so, the Petitioner had requested a period of one month to furnish his response. He had also requested the relevant provisions in the party constitution under which the leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend him from the High Command together with a copy of the party constitution.

The SLMC had proceeded to grant the further period of one month requested by the Petitioner by P10 for which the Petitioner had even proceeded to thank the SLMC for accommodating his request for further time (by P12). Thus, the Petitioner does not allege any unfair refusal of his request by P10 for further time to tender his written explanation. Therefore, on that point we cannot hold that the SLMC had breached the Rules of Natural Justice.

The Petitioner writes P12 on 04-01-2022. The one-month time granted by P10 if calculated from the date of that letter i.e., 10-12-2021, must end on 10-01-2022. P12 is dated 04-01-2022 and it only requests a copy of the latest party constitution and sections under which the SLMC had called for the Petitioner's explanation. The Petitioner does not request for further time by P12 to tender his explanation. It is thereafter, that the SLMC by letter dated 14-03-2022 (produced marked P13) had communicated to the Petitioner, that the Petitioner must tender his explanation before 15-04-2022. The Petitioner replying to P13 by letter dated 07-04-2022 marked P14, had stated the following two things.

i. He did not receive any communication as to whether the meeting was held or postponed or any decision taken at the meeting.
ii. He requests to let him know the relevant provisions in the party constitution under which the leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend him from the High Command position. He also requests a copy of the party constitution.

The Petitioner himself has admitted that the above two things are a mere reproduction of the contents in P10. The Petitioner in the last paragraph of P14, had stated that the above would enable him to furnish a more detailed response. It is after consideration of P14 that the SLMC High Command had made the decision to expel the Petitioner which was communicated by P15.

The Petitioner does not challenge his expulsion before this Court on the basis that the SLMC had failed to tender to him a copy of the constitution or its provisions he had requested. Nevertheless, let me now consider whether the Petitioner has satisfied before this court, that he could not have tendered a full response without the SLMC complying with his request for the relevant provisions and a copy of the party constitution.

It is the Petitioner himself who had produced a copy of the SLMC constitution annexed to his Petition marked P1. This means either he was in possession of the SLMC constitution or he was capable of easily getting it procured for his use on his own rather than making repeated requests to the party. Admittedly, the Petitioner is an experienced politician, whose political career has spanned over 30 years and at the time of his expulsion form the SLMC, he had held the position of 'Deputy Leader I' of the High Command and the post of the 'Director of International Affairs', of the party.[44] In my view, such an attitude on the part of the Petitioner cannot be seen as a genuine request made by the Petitioner, the compliance of which by the SLMC should have been necessary as a pre-requisite to tendering the Petitioner's explanation. I am unable to accept that as aground which would vitiate the decision of the SLMC to expel him from the party.

The Petitioner has not challenged his expulsion before this court on the basis that the Leader of the SLMC had no power to suspend him from the High Command position he held. In any case, what the Petitioner had requested from SLMC is to let him know the relevant provisions of the SLMC constitution under which the Leader of the SLMC is empowered to suspend him from his position in the SLMC High Command. As has been already mentioned, the SLMC with or without powers under the SLMC constitution has suspended the petitioner by P9. The Petitioner does not seek to challenge P9 in this proceeding. Moreover, the jurisdiction conferred by Article 99 (13) (a) of Constitution does not empower this court to engage in such exercise of reviewing a decision to suspend a member form the party. The jurisdiction under Article 99 (13) (a) is clear in that it only confers jurisdiction on this court to decide whether the expulsion of a member from a political party is valid or not. That is what the Petitioner had exactly sought to do in this case. Therefore, I hold that the question whether the SLMC leader had power under SLMC constitution to suspend the Petitioner by P9 or the question whether the SLMC should have complied with the Petitioner's request to let him know the relevant provisions in the party constitution under which the Leader had suspended him from the High Command position, are irrelevant to decide on the validity of the expulsion of the petitioner which only had happened by P15 which is five months after the date in P9.

The above facts show clearly that the SLMC had tried its best to get an explanation form the Petitioner but the Petitioner had not cooperated. In the above circumstances, I am unable to hold that the SLMC had breached the Rules of Natural Justice in the instant case as it had granted ample opportunities for the Petitioner in the instant case to tender his written explanation as to why he had violated the party decision taken at the High Command meeting held on 21-11-2021.

The Petitioner knew very well that his failure to tender written explanation would result in the party concluding that he has no cause to show against the alleged violation of the party decision by him. Despite that, the Petitioner was determined to blatantly ignore the last two paragraphs of P9. Thus, the petitioner was determined not to submit himself to the disciplinary proceedings initiated by the party. In such a situation, as Kulatunga J held in

[44] Vide paragraph 12 of the Affidavit of the Petitioner dated 20-05-2022.

Gamini Dissanayake's case there is no force in the Petitioner's complaint that the party had failed to give him a hearing.

Moreover, as the Petitioner had determined not to submit himself to the disciplinary proceedings initiated by the party, he could not have had any legitimate expectation of any formal inquiry. Therefore, as Lord Denning held in Cinnamond's case, where there is no legitimate expectation, there is no call for a hearing.

For the foregoing reasons, I hold that the absence of a formal inquiry has not vitiated the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner under the circumstances of the instant case.

IS THE DECISION TO EXPEL THE PETITIONER JUSTIFIED?

Let me now consider whether the decision taken by the SLMC to expel the petitioner is justified on its merits. The main ground on which the Petitioner has sought to canvass his expulsion from the party is the fact that the SLMC did not conduct a formal inquiry according to the law.[45] For the reasons I have already set out above, I have held that the SLMC had not breached the Rules of Natural Justice in the instant case as it had granted ample opportunities for the Petitioner in the instant case to tender his written explanation as to why he had violated the party decision taken at the High Command meeting held on 21-11-2021. I have also held that the absence of a formal inquiry has not vitiated the decision of the SLMC to expel the Petitioner under the circumstances of the instant case. Therefore, the Petitioner is not entitled to succeed on this ground.

Let me now consider the other grounds urged by the Petitioner. The Petitioner in his petition, has stated that his expulsion is capricious, manifestly mala fide and is motivated purely by the clear resentment towards the Petitioner arising inter alia, from the Petitioner being appointed as a cabinet minister on 18-04-2022.[46]

Although the Petitioner has stated in some instances that his expulsion was done mala fide, the Petitioner has not sought to support any of those allegations with evidence.

Mr. Sanjeeva Jayawardena PC submitted that although it was not only the Petitioner who voted in favour of the aforesaid Appropriation Bill despite the party decision to vote against the same, it was only the Petitioner who was expelled from the party. Let me further probe in to this complaint.

[45] Paragraph 55 (c) and (d) of the petition dated 20th May 2022.

[46] Paragraph 55 of the petition dated 20th May 2022.

Four SLMC members namely, the 6th Respondent Hon. H.M.M. Harees, the 16th Respondent Hon. M.S.M. Thoufeek, the 24th Respondent Hon. Faizal Cassim and the Petitioner had voted in favour of the aforesaid Appropriation Bill 2022. Indeed, the SLMC had called for explanations from all of those who had voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022. It is in evidence that the other members involved in the voting had complied with the directive of the party and tendered their explanations to the SLMC.[47] This also explains as to why the High Command of the SLMC on 22-04-2022 had unanimously resolved (as per the extract from the minutes produced marked 1R1) to expel the Petitioner from the party membership with immediate effect and to suspend those three members from the party membership and to proceed to hold a formal inquiry against them. This goes on to show that those members had an explanation to be tendered and in fact they did so. However, unlike the other three members who had tendered their explanations, the Petitioner had determined not to submit himself to the disciplinary proceedings initiated by the party. In those circumstances, I cannot resist drawing the inference that the Petitioner in the instant case did not offer any explanation despite repeated requests from the party, solely because he did not have any explanation to be given as to why he had voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 despite the party decision to vote against P9.

Another complaint the Petitioner has made in his petition, is that his expulsion is capricious, manifestly mala fide and is motivated purely by the clear resentment toward the Petitioner arising inter alia, from the Petitioner being appointed as a cabinet minister on 18-04-2022. Even if the date of the Petitioner's appointment as the cabinet minister in charge of environment is taken as 18-04-2022 as stated by the Petitioner, the SLMC had called for a written explanation from the Petitioner by the letter P9 dated 27-11-2021. Thus, initiating the disciplinary proceedings against the Petitioner had well preceded the event of the Petitioner being appointed as a cabinet minister. It was only after the exchange of several other letters between the SLMC and the Petitioner that the SLMC by the letter P15 dated 23-04-2022, had communicated to the Petitioner about his expulsion from the party. The SLMC had extended the time for the Petitioner to tender his explanation until 15-04-2022 by P13. The Petitioner had replied P13 by his letter P14 dated 07-04-2022. Thus, the final deadline for the Petitioner to tender his explanation had ended on 15-04-2022.

On the above facts, I observe that the active part of the disciplinary proceeding against the Petitioner which had led to his expulsion from the party had come to an end well before the date 18-04-2022 on which he claims he was appointed as a cabinet minister.

[47] Paragraph 23(f)-(g) of the affidavit of the 2nd Respondent dated 29th September 2022.

The Petitioner's assertion that this appointment was made on 18-04-2022 is factually incorrect or not supported by evidence he has adduced. The relevant Gazette notification has been produced marked P14(a). This is the Gazette which the Petitioner relies on, to establish that this appointment was made on 18-04-2022. However, as pointed out by Mr. Sumanthiran PC, the relevant Gazette notification is dated 28-04-2022. Thus, The Petitioner has not established before this Court that this appointment was made on 18-04-2022 as claimed by him. The SLMC had communicated to the Petitioner that it has unanimously decided to expel him from the party by P15 which is dated 23-04-2022. Thus, in this sense, I observe that the whole of the disciplinary proceeding against the Petitioner which had led to his expulsion from the party had also come to an end well before the Petitioner was appointed as a cabinet minister. For those reasons, I am unable to accept the Petitioner's position that his expulsion is manifestly mala fide and is motivated purely by the clear resentment towards the Petitioner arising from the appointment of the Petitioner as a cabinet minister.

The Petitioner in his Petition,[48] has also stated that his expulsion is contrary to the provisions of the provisions of Clauses 8.12, 13.1, 13.2, 13.3 and 13.4 of the Constitution of the SLMC. The Petitioner had not sought to substantiate these allegations in any other means other than merely stating in his petition and affidavit that his expulsion is contrary to these clauses of the SLMC constitution. Nevertheless, let me first reproduce Clauses 13.1 and 13.2 of the Constitution of the SLMC.

> "13.1 Where the High Command of the party is in receipt of any information or complaint, that a member of the Party has committed an act or omission which in its opinion-
>
> a) amounts to a failure and /or a refusal to perform any one or more duties of a member or is in conflict with and /or inconsistent with any one or more duties of a member and /or,
>
> b) prejudicial to the interests and reputation of the Party or the collective responsibility of the Party.
>
> The member concerned is liable to be dismissed from the membership and expelled from the Party in terms of the Rules of the High Command in respect of Disciplinary actions."
>
> "13.2 The High Command shall exercise its summary jurisdiction as provided hereinbefore in respect of disciplinary action in respect of any of its members."

[48] At paragraph 55 (a) of the Petition.

Both of those Clauses in my view, are not in favour of the case advanced by the Petitioner that the SLMC had wrongly expelled him from the party. This is because any member violating those clauses have been made specifically liable to be expelled from the party. The Petitioner by voting in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 has breached his collective responsibility of the party which he has already willingly undertaken by virtue of signing P5. Then Clause 13.1 makes the Petitioner liable to be expelled from the party. The High Command of the party is empowered to exercise its summary jurisdiction in respect of such situation. The said summary jurisdiction is a reference to some earlier provisions in the SLMC constitution. Thus, Clause 8.12 of the SLMC constitution would be relevant in that regard. It is as follows:

> "Where a member of the Party is deemed to be guilty of misconduct and is liable to be dismissed from the membership and expelled from the party, the High Command in its absolute discretion shall be entitled to adopt any procedure it thinks fit and proper in the circumstances. However, the High Command shall observe the rules relating to the Principles of Natural Justice in exercising such powers."

This shows that the High Command has been given absolute discretion and powers under the SLMC constitution to adopt any procedure it thinks fit and proper in a given circumstance subject to the condition that it should observe rules of natural justice when exercising such powers. I have already set out above the circumstances prevailed in the instant case. I have also held above that the SLMC has not breached the Rules of Natural Justice. In those circumstances, the procedure adopted by the SLMC for its decision by the High Command to expel the Petitioner from the party, is a procedure well within the Clause 8.12. Clause 13.4 of the SLMC constitution does not apply to the instant case as the SLMC High Command had not delegated its disciplinary powers to a smaller committee.

For those reasons, I am unable to accept that the decision to expel the Petitioner from the SLMC has been done contrary to any of those provisions in the SLMC constitution.

It remains for me only to consider, whether there is merit in the position taken up by the Petitioner that he was not made aware regarding any decision taken by the High Command on 21-11-2021 that SLMC Members of Parliament shall not vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 at its second reading on 22-11-2021 and at the third reading as well. The 2nd Respondent (the Leader of the SLMC) in his affidavit has categorically asserted that in the morning of 22-11-2021, before the commencement of the proceedings in Parliament, a group meeting of SLMC Members of Parliament was held; the Petitioner was present at the said Group Meeting; the decision that SLMC Members of Parliament shall not vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 was re-iterated.[49] This factual position has been corroborated by the followings: the affidavit of the 3rd Respondent (the Secretary of the SLMC) produced marked 1R3; the Attendance Sheet of the Parliamentary Group Meeting of SLMC held on 22-11-2021 produced marked 1R4(a) where the Petitioners signature is found; the affidavit of the 16th Respondent produced marked 1R4(b); the affidavit of the 24th Respondent produced marked 1R4(c). The Petitioner was content with making only a bare denial of his presence at the Parliamentary Group Meeting of SLMC held on 22-11-2021 at the Parliament premises in his counter affidavit.[50]In the course of the oral submissions, the learned President's Counsel who appeared for the Petitioner submitted that the signature of the Petitioner found in 1R4(a) is a forged signature. However, I observe that the Petitioner had never taken up such a position in his Counter Affidavit. Thus, in my view, the Petitioner himself by taking up the above position which he cannot substantiate, has pushed his assertion that he was not present at the Parliament premises in the Group Meeting of SLMC held on 22-11-2021, beyond my belief. I hold that the Petitioner had in fact been present at the Parliament premises in the Group Meeting of SLMC held in the morning of 22-11-2021 at the Parliament when he was informed (at the Parliament) by the Leader about the decision of the SLMC that the SLMC Members of Parliament shall not vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022. I further hold that the Petitioner has not been truthful with regard to the position he has taken up before this Court in this proceeding.

Let me move further to highlight some of the Petitioner's obligations with regard to the decisions of the Party and his collective responsibility. The Petitioner who was elected to the Parliament at the General Election held on 05-08-2020, has signed P5 in which he has accepted inter alia the followings.

i. He has accepted that the provisions of the constitution, code of conduct and all decisions, resolutions and directives of the High Command, and of the Party would strictly bind him.

ii. He has accepted that any willful contravention or failure to comply with the provision of the constitution, code of conduct and /or decisions, directives or resolution of the High Command, and of the Party shall make him liable to be expelled from the membership of the Party.

---

[49] Paragraph 23(a)-(c) of the affidavit of the 2nd Respondent dated 29th September 2022.

[50] Paragraph 11(d) of the Counter Affidavit of the Petitioner dated 25th November 2022.

iii. He has accepted that any refusal to subscribe to the annual special pledge of loyalty shall make him guilty of gross misconduct upon which he shall be liable to be expelled from the membership of the party by the High Command.

iv. He has accepted that he will always vote in Parliament in accordance with the mandate of the Party.

v. He has accepted that he will conduct himself at meetings in Parliament with a sense of collective responsibility and also should on all occasions speak in one voice at such meetings as per the decisions of the Party.

vi. He has accepted that any violation of the accepted norms and general standards of party discipline shall make him liable to be expelled from the membership of the Party.

vii. He has accepted that leaving the island, or being unable to attend the meetings of the Parliament for any specific reason, he should get prior approval from the Leader and/or the Secretary of the Party and his failure to do so would result in disciplinary action being taken against him.

viii. He has accepted that it is his duty to consult the Party leadership, to ascertain the stand of the Party in respect of any matter before casting, abstaining or taking any step at the time of voting in the Parliament.

ix. He has accepted that he will not take a stand against and /or not in conformity and/or not consistent with the policy of the Party.

Moreover, chapter 5 of the constitution of SLMC under the title 'duties of members of the party' (chapter 5) states the followings:

"The following shall inter alia shall be the duties of every member of the Party.

a. Be loyal to the Party and shall recognise honour and submit to the authority of the hierarchy of the Party.
b. Abide by and honour the provisions of the Constitution, codes of conduct, decisions, rules, regulations, directives, policies and programmes of the Party as decided by the High Command,
c. Propagate and defend in public the policies and programmes of the Party.
d. Always conform to the standards laid down in the Code of Conduct of the Party.
e. Regularly attend meetings and sessions of the various bodies and committees set up and / or recognized by the High Command.
f. Be individually and collectively responsible for his conduct and shall also ensure that his conduct in no way affects the image or reputation of the Party."

As has already been mentioned earlier in this judgment, the Petitioner himself has admitted that he is an experienced politician whose political career has spanned over 'thirty long years'.[51] He held the position of Deputy Leader I of the party's High Command and Director of International Affairs of the SLMC at the time he was suspended from office by P9. I have to note that these are assertions made by the Petitioner himself.

In Paragraph 43 of the Petition, the Petitioner had made it clear, that the Petitioner was not informed of any decision taken at the meeting of the High Command held on 21-11-202. Thus, it is the position of the Petitioner that he had voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 at its second reading held in Parliament on 22-11-2021 as he was not informed of any such decision taken at the SLMC High Command meeting held on 21-11-2021.

The Petitioner had voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 at its second reading on 22-11-2021. I note that the first letter P9, sent to the Petitioner by the SLMC is dated 27-11-2021. In paragraph 44 of the Petition, the Petitioner has admitted the receipt of said letter. The Petitioner states that he was shocked and surprised to receive such a letter. The Petitioner would have stated so to convince Court that he did not know the existence of any decision taken at the SLMC High Command meeting held on 21-11-2021 not to vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022.

In signing P5 the Petitioner has undertaken/promised: to vote in Parliament in accordance with the mandate of the Party; to conduct himself at meetings in Parliament with a sense of collective responsibility; to speak on all occasions in one voice at meetings as per the decisions of the Party. He has also accepted that it is his duty to consult the Party leadership, to ascertain the stand of the Party in respect of any matter before casting, abstaining or taking any step at the time of voting in Parliament. It is the Petitioner himself who has produced P5. Despite the above acceptances and undertakings, the Petitioner has not adduced any reason as to why he had failed to consult the Party leadership, to ascertain the stand of the Party before voting in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 at its second reading in the Parliament.

I also note that the Petitioner had thereafter proceeded to vote at the third reading of the Appropriation Bill 2022 on 10-12-2021. Why did the Petitioner vote at the third reading? Was it because the Petitioner even by that time, did not know that there was a decision made by the SLMC High Command that its members should not vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022? The Petitioner is silent as to why he had voted at the third reading. He also has not adduced any basis as to why he had voted at the third reading.

[51] Vide paragraph 12 of the Affidavit of the Petitioner dated 20-05-2022.

It was on 10-12-2021 that the Petitioner had voted at the third reading of the Appropriation Bill 2022. The SLMC had first called for explanation from the Petitioner by letter P9, dated 27-11-2021. The Petitioner has admitted the receipt of P9. Then am I to take the unsupported bare averment in the affidavit of the Petitioner that he did not know of any such decision of SLMC High Command taken on 21-11-2021 to be truthful? The answer in the above circumstances, is clearly no. Thus, in my view, what the Petitioner has established according to his own documents before this Court is only the fact that he has not been truthful on this before this Court.

Although the Petitioner at some occasions had sought to challenge the authority of the SLMC to suspend or expel him from the party membership, I observe that by signing P5, the Petitioner has clearly accepted the authority of the SLMC and of the party High Command to suspend or expel him from the party membership. Thus, as far as the Petitioner is concerned, the authority of the SLMC is an admitted fact. Then why does he want to rely on the party constitution in that regard? In the same way in view of the undertakings/promises the Petitioner has made in P5 as shown before in this judgment, the Petitioner has not adduced any basis/reason as to why he would have wanted to rely on the party constitution in that regard.

In the above circumstances, what is the explanation he has tendered as to why he had voted in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022 at its second reading held in Parliament? I hold that the answer is none. It must be noted that the Petitioner's expulsion as per P15 had occurred after the lapse of approximately five months from the communication of P9 calling upon the Petitioner, to show cause. The SLMC had tried its best to get an explanation form the Petitioner but the Petitioner had not cooperated. For the foregoing reasons, I am unable to accept the Petitioners position that his expulsion is completely arbitrary, discriminatory and tainted with serious mala fides.

In Tilak Karunaratne's case, Dheeraratna J in the majority judgment of this Court referring to the violation of party discipline within a registered political party, has held as follows:

> "A political party is a voluntary association of individuals who have come together with the avowed object of securing political power on agreed policies and a leadership. Cohesion is a sine qua non of success and stability whether a political party is in power or in the opposition. To foster party cohesion discipline among its members becomes absolutely necessary. Party disintegration has to be arrested by firm disciplinary measures that include expulsion which Article 99 (13) (a) of our Constitution itself recognizes. The members of a party are bound together by a contract which is usually the party constitution, from which arises contractual obligations of the membership. These obligations are either express or implied" .[52]

In Gamini Dissanayake's case, Kulatunga J in the majority judgment of this Court having regard to the fact that the UNP Constitution has imposed on all its members obligations such as: the duty to harmonize with the policy and code of conduct of the party; the duty to be bound by the directions of the Leader or the Deputy Leader regarding matters in Parliament; the duty to vote in Parliament according to the Mandate of the Parliamentary Party conveyed through the party whip; observed as follows:

"I can see no illegality in these arrangements for group action. How can any government or opposition function without disruption if the conduct of M.P.s as a group cannot be regulated including in the matter of voting in the House and each M.P. is free to do whatever he pleases? How can the party fulfil its mandate given to it by the electors? Can an individual M.P. who has been elected on the party vote and policy be heard to say " from today I am a free man, the party and the group are secondary and are subordinate to me "? Can Parliamentary business be transacted without the party having some assurance as to how the M.P.s are going to vote? I see no evil in reasonable restrictions on the conduct of M.P.s in Parliament based on group action or in the obligation to harmonize with party policy or in the Whip system all of which have the effect of ensuring the smooth functioning of Parliament itself and peace, order and good government.

In this country the electors elect a government for six years after an election which is often bitterly fought and in recent times in conditions of turmoil and death. It is then the duty of both the opposition and the government, owed to the people, to ensure as far as possible, stable government. The Constitution has frozen party composition in the House for the duration of Parliament and made provision for vacation of seats where a Member of Parliament ceases by resignation, expulsion or otherwise to be a member of the recognized political party or independent group on whose nomination paper his name appeared at the time of his election to Parliament. It is not our function to examine the wisdom of these provisions the object of which, I believe, is to achieve stability of government. Group action, party discipline and the Whip system are complimentary. If we declare these arrangements to be invalid we would be making the Constitution unworkable and as Sir John Donaldson MR observed in Waltham Forest case (Supra) " We should..... be criticizing the system operating in Parliament itself."

[52] At page 111.

On the other hand, the Petitioner's challenge to his expulsion is not on the basis that he has a right to go against the decision of SLMC High Command made on 21-11-2021 that its members should not vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill 2022. Moreover, the Petitioner has pledged that he would be loyal to the Party; shall recognize honour and submit to the authority of the hierarchy of the Party; abide by and honour its decisions, rules, regulations, directives, policies of the Party as decided by the High Command. But the Petitioner has not only breached this solemn pledge but also has deliberately refrained from giving any explanation for his conduct. He has also determined not to submit himself to the authority of the Party. In those circumstances and for the foregoing reasons, I hold that the decision made by the SLMC to expel the Petitioner from the party by letter P15 dated 23.04.2022, is valid in law.

I proceed to dismiss this Petition.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

S. Thurairaja PC J

I agree,

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Samayawardhena J

The gravamen of the Petitioner's complaint is that the decision to expel him from the Party was taken without giving him a hearing in violation of the rules of natural justice – audi alteram partem. If it is correct, I accept that "the decision must be declared to be no decision". However, on the facts and circumstances of this case, I cannot subscribe to the assertion that the rules of natural justice were violated.

The Secretary of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress sent P9 to the Petitioner requiring him to show cause for his decision to vote in favour of the Appropriation Bill for 2022 (Budget) in violation of the decision of the Party High Command taken at the Meeting held on 21.11.2021. P9 dated 27.11.2021 reads as follows:

> As you are aware, the Party called for a High Command meeting on 21.11.2021 at the Party headquarters 'Dharussalam', to discuss and decide on the Party stand vis-à-vis the 2022 Budget (The Appropriation Bill).
>
> You are also aware that at this meeting, it was decided unanimously, that Members of Parliament being members of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress, shall not vote in favour of the Budget at its second reading vote on 22.11.2021 and shall not vote in favour at the third reading vote as well.
>
> You, however, on 22.11.2021 voted in favour of the said Budget at its second reading, in blatant violation of the said decision of the High Command.
>
> In doing so, you have acted in breach of the Party decision while holding a senior and substantial position in the Party High Command namely, Deputy Leader.
>
> In the circumstances, the Party Leader, exercising his powers under the Party Constitution, has decided to suspend you from the High Command position held by you and to call for explanation on the said breach of the Party decision.
>
> Therefore, as instructed by the Leader, I do hereby call for your explanation of your decision to vote in favour of the 2022 Budget in violation of the Party decision.
>
> Your explanation in writing in the form of an affidavit should reach me within fourteen days from the date of the receipt of this letter.
>
> Failure to do so will compel the Party to arrive at the conclusion that you have no cause to show against the said violation of the Party decision by you.

The Petitioner was the Deputy Leader of the party at that time. The Petitioner replied to P9 by P10 taking up an unusual position that he was unaware of the Party decision regarding how to vote at the Budget since he could not attend the said Meeting. P10 dated 10.12.2021 reads as follows:

> I am in receipt of your letter dated 27.11.2021 informing me that you have been requested by the SLMC Leader claiming to exercise powers under the Party Constitution, has decided to suspend me from the High Command position held by me and to call for my reasons for my voting in favour of the Budget on 22.11.2021.
>
> You also refer to a meeting of the High Command scheduled for 21.11.2021 at the Party headquarters, which I could not attend. You are aware, the said High Command meeting had been summoned at very short notice and I was not able to attend the said meeting due to reasons beyond my control which I had duly notified to you. I did not receive any communication whether the meeting was held or postponed or of any decision taken at the meeting.
>
> I wish to inform you that I require a period of one month to furnish my response to your queries due to pre-arranged programmes and would thank you to oblige. Meanwhile please let me know the relevant provisions in the Party Constitution under which the Leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend me from the High Command position together with a copy of the relevant Constitution.

When P10 is read contextually it is clear that the Petitioner was more concerned about his suspension from the post of the Deputy Leader of the Party than showing cause to the main allegation that he violated the decision of the Party High Command in relation to the voting for the Budget. His request in P10 for a copy of the Party Constitution is related to his removal from the High Command position and is irrelevant to the matter under consideration in this application, which is expulsion. By P10 he sought a period of one month to show cause.

There was some correspondence exchanged between the Petitioner and the Party during that time. He was granted extended time to show cause.

Nearly five months after P10 whereby the Petitioner sought a period of one month to show cause, the Petitioner wrote P14 to the Party Secretary. By P14, the Petitioner did not show cause, which he undertook to do by P10 but merely quoted the contents of P10 verbatim. He did not seek further time to show cause why he voted in favour of the Budget. P14 dated 07.04.2022 reads as follows:

> I am in receipt of your letter dated 14.03.2022.
>
> In my response letter to you dated 10.12.2021, I had explained as follows:
>
> "You also refer to a meeting of the High Command scheduled for 21.11.2021 at the party headquarters, which I could not attend. You are aware, the said High Command meeting had been summoned at very short notice and I was not able to attend the said meeting due to reasons beyond my control which I had duly notified to you. I did not receive any communication whether the meeting was held or postponed or of any decision taken at the meeting."
>
> "Meanwhile please let me know the relevant provisions in the party Constitution under which the Leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend me from the High Command position together with a copy of the relevant Constitution."
>
> You will note that you have not made available the relevant information and a copy of the relevant Constitution as yet. I shall therefore request you to furnish me with the relevant information and a copy of the relevant Constitution which are undoubtedly available to you, at your earliest convenience, to enable me to furnish a more detailed response further to your request.

As indicated in P10, the relevant information and a copy of the relevant Constitution refers to "the relevant provisions in the party Constitution under which the Leader is said to have exercised his powers to suspend [him] from the High Command position". As I understand the Petitioner requests "a copy of the relevant Constitution" because according to him the Constitution which is available does not have a provision which empowers the Party Leader to suspend him from the High Command position. As I have already stated, this Court is not concerned about suspension but only expulsion.

In my view, if he did not show cause in response to P9, there is no necessity to fix the matter for the formal inquiry. The Petitioner cannot now be heard to say that the failure to hold a formal inquiry is a violation of the rules of natural justice. The rules of natural justice are not written in stone; whether or not these rules have been violated must be determined based on the unique facts and circumstances of each individual case.

It is after receipt of P14 and "after due considerations of all these relevant matters" the High Command has unanimously resolved to expel the Petitioner from Party Membership with immediate effect "on the basis that you have no cause to show". This was informed to the Petitioner by P15 dated 23.04.2022, which reads as follows:

> Disciplinary Action – Expulsion from the Party (Sri Lanka Muslim Congress) Membership
>
> I received your letter dated 7th April 2022.
>
> Your letter was placed before the High Command of the Party which met on 22.04.2022.
>
> The High Command noted that you have not given any reason for violating the Party decision taken at the High Command meeting held on 21.11.2021, except to plead your purported ignorance of the said decision.
>
> High Command noted that the said decision was not only conveyed to you by the leader but also was given huge publicity through the media.
>
> The High Command also noted that,
>
> 1. You are well aware the said meeting on 21.11.2021 was summoned for the specific purpose of taking a decision as to the Party's stance on the government's proposed Appropriation Bill for the year 2021/2022, as it was spelled out in the invitation SMS sent by the Secretary.
>
> 2. You are also aware that the Secretary has not sent any message, cancelling or postponing the meeting. On the contrary you have sent SMS to the Secretary, excusing your attendance, which you have admitted in your letter.
>
> Hence, the High Command proceeded to consider the action to be taken against you on the basis that you have no cause to show.

After due considerations of all these relevant matters the High Command has unanimously resolved to expel you from Party Membership with immediate effect.

Accordingly, on the instructions of the Party I do hereby communicate that your Party Membership from Sri Lanka Muslim Congress is duly terminated and as a result you have ceased to be a Member of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress the political Party from which you were elected to the present Parliament.

The Petitioner was aware that the High Command Meeting on 21.11.2021 was to take a decision on how to vote at the Second and Third Readings of the Budget. The Petitioner who was the Deputy Leader of the Party opted not to attend this important Meeting. The First Reading of the Budget was on 22.11.2021 and there was a Parliamentary Group Meeting of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress held on the morning of 22.11.2021 in the Parliamentary premises just before the First Reading of the Budget. How can the Petitioner make a sweeping statement in P10 that "I did not receive any communication whether the meeting was held or postponed or of any decision taken at the meeting" and remain silent? He was not a Party supporter but the Deputy Leader of the Party.

Let me assume for a moment that he was unaware of the Party decision taken on 21.11.2021 before he voted in favour of the Budget on 22.11.2021. What about his voting in favour of the budget at the Third Reading, which happened on 10.12.2021, admittedly after he received P9 dated 27.11.2021 wherein it was specifically mentioned the Party decision that "Members of Parliament being members of the Sri Lanka Muslim Congress, shall not vote in favour of the budget at its second reading vote on 22.11.2021 and shall not vote in favour at the third reading vote as well*"?* The Petitioner cannot plead ignorance of the Party decision in respect of voting at the Third Reading of the Budget.

I see no reason to interfere with the decision of the Party as reflected in P15. The application of the Petitioner shall stand dismissed. No costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

A.M. Sanjaya Nayanaka Darshana,
"Riverside" Restaurant,
Daragala, Welimada.
Petitioner

SC/FR/38/2018

Vs

1. J.J. Chamila Indika Jayasinghe,
1A. M.M.K. Pushpakanthi,
1B. Suvineetha Gunasekara,
Divisional Secretary, Uvaparanagama,
Divisional Secretariat, Lunuwatta.
2. R.P.R. Rajapaksha,
2A. R.M.C.M. Herath,
G.D. Keerthi Gamage,
Land Commissioner General,
Land Commissioner General's Department,
"Mihikatha Madura",
No. 1200/6, Rajamal Waththa Road,
Battaramulla.
3. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.
Respondents

Before: S. Thurairaja, P.C., J.
E.A.G.R. Amarasekera, J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

Counsel: Uditha Egalahewa, P.C., with Vishva Vimukthi for the Petitioner.
Rajiv Goonetilleke, D.S.G., for the Respondents.

Argued on: 10.01.2023

Written submissions:

by the Petitioner on 02.07.2019 and 31.01.2023.
by the Respondents on 16.06.2021 and 15.02.2023.

Decided on: 28.06.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

The Petitioner was issued the Annual Permit (P8) under the State Lands Ordinance by the 1st Respondent Divisional Secretary of Uvaparanagama on 12.02.2013. The endorsements on this Permit show that the validity period of it has been extended on yearly basis for the years 2014, 2015 and 2016 ending on 31st of December each year. The Permit is for a portion of Lot 4 in extent of 10 perches in Final Village Plan No. 196 made by the Surveyor-General marked P1(a). The Petitioner has shaded on P1(a) the area he occupies, which is located immediately adjacent to the Doolgolle Oya. This is also made clear by Plan marked P11, another recent Plan prepared by the Surveyor-General. It may be observed that although the Annual Permit is for 10 perches, according to P11, the Petitioner is in occupation of a land in extent of 20 perches. The Petitioner has constructed a building on the Permit land and has been carrying on a business by the name of Riverside Restaurant. A liquor licence has also been obtained to the premises.

In 2016, he requested from the Divisional Secretary a long-term lease for this land instead of a yearly Permit. The Divisional Secretary has not flatly refused this request. As a prerequisite to the issuance of a long-term lease, the Divisional Secretary has taken steps to have a survey done through the Surveyor-General to ascertain whether the land falls within reservations of Doolgolle Oya and Road (vide R2). By R3 the Surveyor-General has informed the Divisional Secretary that, according to the List of the Lands (which appears to be a reference to the Tenement List), Lot 4 has been reserved for Doolgolle Oya and therefore new survey is unnecessary. It may be recalled that the Petitioner's Permit is in respect of part of Lot 4 in the Final Village Plan 196. The Tenement List marked P1(b) attached to the Final Village Plan 196 inter alia states that Lot 4 is "Reservation for Doolgolle Oya". According to P1(b), this remark has been made as far back as 1928, when the Plan was originally prepared. Hence the Divisional Secretary has informed the Petitioner by P13 dated 07.12.2017 that the Annual Permit cannot be renewed. He has further informed the Petitioner that steps have also been taken under the State Lands (Recovery of Possession) Act to recover possession of the adjoining lands. The Notice to Quit dated 12.01.2018 marked P15 has been issued to the Petitioner under the State Lands (Recovery of Possession) Act.

Without defending the action in the Magistrate's Court in terms of the State Lands (Recovery of Possession) Act if a case is filed against him or without invoking the writ jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal against the decisions of the Divisional Secretary as the law provides, the Petitioner filed this application on 24.01.2018 seeking declarations that his fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 12(1), 12(2) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution have been violated by the 1st to 5th Respondents (whereas there are only three Respondents – the Divisional Secretary, the Land Commissioner General and the Attorney-General), and that the Quit Notice P15 is null and void. He also sought six interim reliefs primarily preventing the Divisional Secretary from taking action to evict the Petitioner as initiated by the Quit Notice.

This Court has granted leave to proceed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution and an interim relief preventing the Respondents from making an application to the Magistrate's Court for an order of ejectment pending determination of this application.

Let me now consider the arguments presented on behalf of the Petitioner.

The first argument of the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioner is that, in view of condition 5 of the Permit, the Permit is personal to the Petitioner. Therefore, in terms of section 16 of the State Lands Ordinance, "all rights under such Permit or licence shall be finally determined by the death of such grantee." According to the learned President's Counsel, this means that the Petitioner is entitled to enjoy the land until his death, or in other words, the Permit is valid for life. Hence, he argues that, before the Divisional Secretary decides not to renew the Permit, the procedure laid down for cancellation of a Permit (section 17 of the State Lands Ordinance and sections 106-128 of the Land Development Ordinance) shall be followed. This argument is clearly misconceived in law.

The meaning of condition 5 of the Permit that the Permit is personal to the Permit holder can be understood by reading condition 6 which states that the Permit holder shall not sublet, mortgage or alienate his rights in the land during the time the Permit is in force.

This can also be understood by comparing section 11 with section 16. Section 11 of the State Lands Ordinance states "Where the rights under any instrument of disposition are not personal to the grantee but may be assigned by act inter vivos or may pass on his death to his heirs or devisees, the burden of any covenants or conditions inserted in such instrument shall run with the land and shall be binding upon the grantee and upon all persons claiming that land through, from or under the grantee."

What section 16 states is:

(1) Where it is provided in any Permit or licence that such Permit or licence is personal to the grantee thereof, all rights under such Permit or licence shall be finally determined by the death of such grantee.

(2) Where it is provided in any Permit or licence that such Permit or licence shall be personal to the grantee thereof, the land in respect of which such Permit or licence was issued and all improvements effected thereon shall, on the death of the grantee, be the property of the Crown; and no person claiming through, from or under the grantee shall have any interest in such land or be entitled to any compensation for any such improvements.

The procedure laid down in section 17 of the State Lands Ordinance and sections 106-128 of the Land Development Ordinance shall be followed in the cancellation of a Permit during its validity period. After the yearly Permit lapses due to effluxion of time, the question of cancellation does not arise. Hence those sections have no relevance in this context. The condition 1 of the Permit is very clear: unless renewed for one year at the discretion of the Divisional Secretary, the Permit shall lapse at the end of one year period.

The argument of learned President's Counsel for the Petitioner that "As a result of the statutory protection afforded by the aforesaid Ordinance to the Petitioner [section 17 of the State Lands Ordinance and sections 106-128 of the Land Development Ordinance], the Petitioner made improvements which amounting to 15 million rupees in the said land while carrying out business for 17 years. Every year, the Petitioner renewed his Permit and excise license after complying the conditions and making due payments. Therefore, the Petitioner had a legitimate expectation that his Permit would be renewed as he has not violated any conditions for the past 17 years while doing business." is unacceptable. As I explained earlier, there is no such statutory protection afforded to the Petitioner.

The condition 11 of the Permit expressly and unambiguously states that no compensation is payable for any improvements on the land and no damages are payable for any loss caused. Even in the case of cancellation of the Permit, section 18 of the State Lands Ordinance states that neither the grantee nor any other person shall be entitled to any compensation or damages whatsoever by reason of the cancellation of a Permit or licence under section 17, and no claim for compensation or damages shall in any such case be entertained by any Court.

On the facts and circumstances of this case, the decision of the 1st Respondent Divisional Secretary not to renew the Annual Permit when he was satisfied that the land is part of Doolgolle Oya reservation is not illegal. If he had done the opposite, it would have been an illegality. No legitimate expectation can be founded on or arise from illegality. The representation made by the public authority shall be intra vires as opposed to ultra vires to form a legitimate expectation enforceable in law. The principle of legality is a fundamental ingredient of the rule of law.

Wade in Administrative Law (11th Edition) page 454-455 state:

> An expectation whose fulfilment requires that a decision-maker should make an unlawful decision, cannot be a legitimate expectation. It is inherent in many of the decisions, and express in several, that the expectation must be within the power of the decision-maker before any question of protection arises. There are good reasons why this should be so: an official cannot be allowed in effect > to rewrite Acts of Parliament by making promises of unlawful conduct or adopting an unlawful practice.

People expect that the public authorities act within the scope of their powers in accordance with the law; if they fail to do so and people who place their trust in ultra vires representations act upon them, innocent representees are not without a remedy. Wade states at page 455 that such representees can seek compensation. This he states "not upholding an ultra vires representation but simply recognising that the undoubted fact of the representation may be an element in establishing that the compensation should be paid." However, Wade stresses: "The protection of the trust placed in an expectation is important; but it is not as important as upholding the rule of law."

De Smith's Judicial Review (8th Edition) pages 702-703 states:

> In R. v. Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food Ex p. Hamble (Offshore) Fisheries Ltd [1995] 2 All ER 714 at 731, Sedley J. said that to bind public bodies to an unlawful representation would have the "dual effect of unlawfully extending their statutory power and destroying the ultra vires doctrine by permitting the public bodies arbitrarily to extend their powers." On the other hand, to bind bodies to a promise to act outside the powers would in effect endorse an unlawful act. It must, on this view, be doubtful whether the expectation that a body will exceed its powers can be legitimate.

In C.W. Mackie & Co. Ltd. v. Hugh Moragoda, Commissioner-General of Inland Revenue and Others [1986] 1 Sri LR 300 at 309, Sharvananda C.J. stated:

> [T]he equal treatment guaranteed by Article 12 is equal treatment in the performance of a lawful act. Via Article 12, one cannot seek the execution of any illegal or invalid act. Fundamental to this postulate > of equal treatment is that it should be referable to the exercise of a valid right, founded in law in contradistinction to an illegal right which is invalid in law. … In the exercise of its powers under Article 126(4) of the Constitution this court can issue a direction to a public authority or official commanding him to do his duty in accordance with the law. It cannot issue a direction to act contrary to the provisions of the law or to do something which in law, would be in excess of his powers.

In the case of Nimalsiri v. Colonel P.P.J. Fernando and Others (SC/FR/256/2010, SC Minutes of 17.09.2015) Jayawardena J. held:

> An expectation the fulfilment of which results in the decision maker making an unlawful decision cannot be treated as a legitimate expectation. Therefore, the expectation must be within the powers of the decision-maker for it to be treated as a legitimate expectation case.

In the original petition, the Petitioner did not take up the position that the land in dispute is not part of reservation of Doolgolle Oya. The Petitioner was challenging the decision not to extend the yearly Permit for other reasons, the main of which was political victimization because his family had been involved in politics. This was not pursued at the argument. At the argument, one of the main contentions was that the land had not been identified as a reservation. As I stated earlier, relying on the Plans of the Surveyor-General, the Divisional Secretary has come to the finding that the land in dispute is within the Doolgolle Oya reservation. The Petitioner has not countered that position by tendering a different Plan. The Petitioner in his counter affidavit drawing attention of the Court to section 50 of the State Lands Ordinance which deals with reservations states that no regulations have been made prescribing the limits of reservation for public streams except for the Western Province.

Section 50 of the State Lands Ordinance states:

> Subject as hereinafter provided and without prejudice to the powers conferred by section 49, any Crown land which is immediately adjacent to a public stream and lies within a prescribed distance therefrom measured in such manner as may be prescribed shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, be deemed to be a Crown reservation constituted by Notification under section 49; and all the provisions of this Part shall apply accordingly to any such reservation:

At the argument, learned Deputy Solicitor General for the Respondents drew the attention of Court as well as learned President's Counsel for the Petitioner to the Gazette dated 15.10.1948 and paragraph 228 of the Land Manual that had been tendered to Court with the motion dated 29.10.2021, which addresses this issue.

By the Ceylon Government Gazette No. 9,912 dated 15.10.1948, Crown Lands Regulations have been published. In reference to section 50 of the State Lands Ordinance on the subject of Crown reservations for public streams, it states:

> 11. (1) The distance to be prescribed for the purpose of section 50 of the Ordinance-
>
> (a) in the case of any Crown land which is referred to in that section and is not marked, described or indicated as a stream reservation in any plan prepared by or under the authority of the Surveyor-General shall-
>
> > (i) where the width of the public stream does not extend fifteen feet, be one chain,
> >
> > (ii) where the width of such stream exceeds fifteen feet but does not exceed fifty feet, be two chains,

(iii) where the width of such stream exceeds fifty feet, be three chains …

In terms of section 81 of the Evidence Ordinance, the Court shall presume the genuineness of Gazettes. In terms of section 83 of the Evidence Ordinance, the Court shall presume that maps, plans, or surveys purporting to be signed by the Surveyor-General or officer acting on his behalf were duly made by his authority and are accurate.

In terms of section 49 of the State Lands Ordinance, the Minister in charge of the subject can by Notification published in the Gazette declare that any State land is considered a State reservation inter alia for the protection of the source, course or bed of any public stream, springs, tanks, reservoirs, lakes, ponds, lagoons, creeks, canals, aqueducts, elas, channels (whether natural or artificial), paddy fields and land suitable for paddy cultivation.

The submission of learned Deputy Solicitor General that, when the Surveyor-General has not specifically demarcated an area next to a public stream as a reservation, the deeming provision in section 50 of the State Lands Ordinance would apply to bring such areas within a reservation, is acceptable.

In any event, the Petitioner in this case does not seek a direction to the Divisional Secretary to issue a yearly Permit or a long-term lease to this land. He seeks a declaration that the Notice to Quit issued under the State Lands (Recovery of Possession) Act is a nullity. The Notice to Quit has been issued on the basis that the Petitioner is in unlawful occupation of a State land, not that the Petitioner is in unlawful occupation of a reservation for a public stream.

The Petitioner in his counter affidavit says "The 1st Respondent has not taken any steps to remove existing illegal constructions in Uwaparanagama which built along the river bed obstructing the water flow of Doolgolla Oya. Such illegal constructions show that the 1st Respondent has no genuine interest to remove the illegal constructions other than to politically victimize me and damage my family business and reputation." But he has not stated whether what is stated in paragraph two of P13 where the 1st Respondent states that eviction orders have already been obtained from Court against people who have made unauthorized constructions in the vicinity of the Petitioner's business premises is false. The Petitioner has tendered a number of photographs to show the danger to the riverbed by those constructions. But he had been careful not to attach a photograph of his business establishment for the Court to get an idea about the real location of his business establishment. In any event, two wrongs do not make a right, and on proof of the commission of one wrong the equal protection of the law cannot be invoked to obtain relief in the form of an order compelling commission of a second wrong (Gamaethige v. Siriwardena [1988] 1 Sri LR 384 at 404). Article 12 of the Constitution cannot be understood as requiring the authorities to act illegally in one case because they have acted illegally in other cases (Jayasekera v. Vipulasena [1988] 2 Sri LR 237). Article 12 of the Constitution guarantees equal protection of the law and not equal violation of the law. For a complaint of unequal treatment to succeed, the Petitioner must demonstrate unequal treatment in the performance of a lawful act (Seelavansa Thero v. Tennakoon, Additional Secretary, Public Service Commission [2004] 2 Sri LR 241 at 248).

On the facts and circumstances of this case, the decision of the 1st Respondent Divisional Secretary not to renew the Annual Permit for another year is not illegal.

I hold that there is no violation of Article 12(1) of the Constitution and there is no reason to declare that the Quit Notice P15 is a nullity. I dismiss the application of the Petitioner with costs.

As agreed at the argument, this decision would be binding on the connected case SCFR/14/2018.

Judge of the Supreme Court

S. Thurairaja, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

E.A.G.R. Amarasekera, J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application under Article 126 read with Article 17 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC (FR) Application No: 41/2017

1. H. Sarath Wickramasinghe, Dangahawila, Karandeniya.

2. T.D.K. Ariyawansa,
   No. 60/7, Sri Rathanapala Mawatha,
   Matara.

3. A.A. Chandrasiri
   No. 1/1, Medagama, Netolpitiya.

4. Ariyasena Narasinghe,
   'Sampath,' Palolpitiya, Thihagoda.

5. K.H. Piyasena,
   No. 21/5, Sri Sugathapala Mawatha, Karapitiya.

6. A.M.A. Chandra,
   'Rasangi,' Ganegama South, Baddegama.

7. H.P. Premadasa,
   Sathsara, Kongala, Hakmana.

PETITIONERS

vs.

1. The Governor
   Southern Province,
   Governor's Secretariat,
   Lower Dickson Road,
   Galle.

2. The Chairman,
Provincial Public Service Commission,
Sothern Province, 6th floor,
District Secretariat Building Complex,
Kaluwella, Galle.

3. K.K.G.J.K. Siriwardena

4. K.L.S. Marathons

5. Srimal Wijesekera

6. Samarapala Vithanage

2nd to 6th Respondents are members of the Provincial Public Service Commission,
Southern Province, 6th Floor,
District Secretariat Building,
Kaluwella, Galle.

7. The Secretary,
Provincial Public Service Commission,
Southern Province, 6th floor,
District Secretariat Building,
Kaluwella, Galle.

8. Commissioner of Cooperative
Development,
Cooperative Development Department of the Southern Provincial Council,
No. 147/3, Pettigalawatta, Galle.

9. Secretary,
Provincial Ministry of Food, Cooperative, Roads, Electricity, Alternative Energy and Trade, Galle.

10. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

Before: P. Padman Surasena, J
Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J
Arjuna Obeyesekere, J

Counsel: Pasindu Silva for the Petitioners

Rajitha Perera, Deputy Solicitor General for the Respondents

Argued on: 18th October 2021

Written Submissions: Tendered on behalf of the Petitioners on 23rd February 2021

Tendered on behalf of the Respondents on 4th September 2020

Decided on: 2nd August 2023

Obeyesekere, J

The issue that arises for the determination of this Court is whether the decision of the Provincial Public Service Commission of the Southern Province [the Provincial Public Service Commission] to cancel the promotions granted by it to each of the Petitioners to the posts of District Officer for Co-operative Development or Assistant Commissioner of Co-operative Development, is arbitrary and whether it amounts to an infringement of the fundamental rights of the Petitioners guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

Provisions of the Provincial Councils Act

In terms of Section 32(3) of the Provincial Councils Act, No. 42 of 1987, as amended, "The Governor shall provide for and determine all matters relating to officers of the provincial public service*, including the formulation of schemes of recruitment and codes of conduct for such officers, the principle to be followed in, making promotions and transfers, and the procedure for the exercise and the delegation of the powers of appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control of such officers. In formulating such schemes of recruitment and codes of conduct the Governor shall, as far as practicable, follow the schemes of recruitment prescribed for corresponding offices in the public service and the codes of conduct prescribed for officers holding corresponding offices in the public service*." [emphasis added]

While Section 32(1) provided that, "Subject to the provisions of any other law, the appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control of officers of the provincial public service of such Province is hereby vested in the Governor of that Province," this power may be delegated to the Provincial Public Service Commission in terms of Section 32(2) of the Act, which reads thus:

> "The Governor of a Province may, from time to time, delegate his powers of appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control of officers of the provincial public service to the Provincial Public Service Commission of that Province."

The above provisions can thus be summarised as follows:

(a) The Governor of a Province shall provide for and determine all matters relating to officers of the Provincial Public Service;

(b) The Governor of a Province has been vested with the power of appointment and the transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control of officers in the Provincial Public Service;

(c) The Provincial Public Service Commission can exercise such powers of appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control only upon its delegation by the Governor and to the extent to which such power has been delegated.

It is admitted that the 1st Respondent had delegated the powers of appointment, transfer, dismissal and disciplinary control to the Provincial Public Service Commission.

The Co-operative Service and Schemes of Recruitment

The Petitioners had been appointed as Co-operative Inspectors in the Department of Co-operative Development during the period 1983 to 1988. With the subject of co-operative development being devolved to the Provincial Councils pursuant to the 13th Amendment to the Constitution, the Petitioners had been appointed as Co-operative Inspectors by the Provincial Public Service Commission. The post of Co-operative Inspector had been re-designated as Co-operative Development Officer [CDO] in 2015, and as at the time of the filing of this application, the Petitioners were serving as CDOs.

The Scheme of Recruitment that prevailed at the time the Petitioners joined the service, as well as the Scheme of Recruitment that replaced the said Scheme in 1996, contained provisions relating to the promotion of Co-operative Inspectors to the posts of District Officer for Co-operative Development [DOCD] and Assistant Commissioner of Co-operative Development [ACCD], based on seniority and satisfactory service, with satisfactory service being determined on confidential assessment reports. In January 2015, with the concurrence of the Provincial Public Service Commission, the 1st Respondent. i.e., the Governor of the Southern Province, had introduced three separate Schemes of Recruitment for CDOs, DOCDs and ACCDs. As provided for therein, all Petitioners were absorbed into Grade I of the CDO service with effect from 19th January 2015.

Appointment of the Petitioners

The Provincial Public Service Commission had decided that vacancies that existed at the time the new Schemes of Recruitment were introduced in January 2015 should be filled under the 1996 Scheme of Recruitment, while vacancies that arose after January 2015 were to be filled in terms of the criteria specified in the newly introduced 2015 Schemes of Recruitment.

Accordingly, by letter dated 3rd March 2016, the Provincial Public Service Commission had directed the Commissioner of Co-operative Development to call for applications in terms of the 1996 Scheme of Recruitment to fill three vacancies in the post of DOCD that had arisen prior to 19th January 2015. Although the 1st, 2nd, 5th and 6th Petitioners had applied and thereafter been called for the interview, they were not successful, as selection under the 1996 Scheme of Recruitment was based on seniority and satisfactory service.

On the same date, i.e., 3rd March 2016, the Provincial Public Service Commission had also called for applications to fill a further five vacancies that had arisen in the post of DOCD after the introduction of the 2015 Scheme of Recruitment, for the filling of which vacancies the Scheme of Recruitment introduced in 2015 was to apply. The notice issued by the Provincial Public Service Commission contained the criteria that had to be fulfilled by all candidates, and specifically provided that all candidates must have successfully completed all three Efficiency Bar Examinations in the CDO service.

Further to the interviews that were held on 31st May 2016 and 7th June 2016, and based on the results thereof, the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 6th and 7th Petitioners were appointed to the post of DOCD by the Provincial Public Service Commission, soon thereafter.

In addition to the above, applications had also been called on 23rd February 2016 from those in the Supra Grade of the CDO service and those who had completed five years in Grade I in the CDO service to fill three vacancies in the post of ACCD that had arisen after the introduction of the 2015 Scheme of Recruitment. This notice too specified that CDOs in Grade I must have passed all three Efficiency Bar Examinations for CDOs. Pursuant to the conducting of interviews in June 2016, the 1st, 2nd, 5th and 6th Petitioners were appointed by the Provincial Public Service Commission to the post of ACCD.

Challenging the appointments

On 21st June 2016, eighteen persons holding the posts of either CDO or DOCD and who had also faced the above interviews to fill the vacancies in the posts of DOCD or ACCD that had arisen after January 2015 but were unsuccessful, challenged the said appointments of the Petitioners by invoking the jurisdiction of this Court in SC (FR) Application No. 211/2016. While the Petitioners in this application had been named as respondents in that application, the primary complaint of the petitioners in that application was that the marking scheme attached to the 2015 Schemes of Recruitment was arbitrary and contrary to their legitimate expectations in that it departed from the existing scheme of selection based on seniority and satisfactory service, and instead sought for the first time to confer thirty of the one hundred marks to candidates possessing additional educational qualifications (Bachelors Degrees or equivalent), and professional qualifications (local or foreign training). On 23rd September 2016, this Court had granted leave to proceed in SC (FR) Application No. 211/2016 in relation to the alleged infringement of the fundamental rights of those petitioners guaranteed under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution.

Cancellation of the appointments

The issue that culminated in this application arose when the Secretary to the Provincial Public Service Commission informed the Petitioners by his letter dated 19th December 2016 that the aforementioned promotion of the Petitioners had been cancelled pursuant to a directive dated 2nd December 2016 issued by the 1st Respondent. Aggrieved by the said decision, the Petitioners filed this application on 27th January 2017 complaining that neither the 1st Respondent nor the Provincial Public Service Commission had any legal authority to cancel the said appointments and hence the said decision was arbitrary and illegal as well as contrary to the rules of natural justice and hence was in violation of their fundamental right to equality before the law and the equal protection of the law, as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution. Leave to proceed in relation to the alleged infringement of Article 12(1) had been granted by this Court on 2nd August 2017. With the consent of all parties, both applications were taken up for argument together.

I shall now consider the reasons adduced by the Provincial Public Service Commission for the above decision to cancel the promotions granted to the Petitioners.

Requirement to complete the Efficiency Bar Examinations

The learned Deputy Solicitor General appearing for the Respondents submitted that Clause 8 of the 2015 Scheme of Recruitment for CDOs makes it mandatory for each CDO to complete three Efficiency Bar Examinations at the times specified therein, with the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination having to be completed within five years of being promoted to Grade I of the CDO service. Clause 7.4.2.5 of the 2015 Schemes of Recruitment for DOCDs and ACCDs stipulated further that an applicant must have passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination in order to be eligible for promotion to the post of DOCD or ACCD. It must be noted that paragraph 4 of the letter informing the Petitioners of their absorption to Grade I of the CDO service specifically provided that the Petitioners must pass all three Efficiency Bar Examinations in the CDO service to be eligible for promotion, thus placing the Petitioners on notice of that fact.

The learned Deputy Solicitor General submitted further that none of the Petitioners had passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination for CDOs and therefore were not eligible to be considered for promotion to the post of either DOCD or ACCD. Of course, one must bear in mind that this requirement to pass the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination was only introduced in the Scheme of Recruitment issued in January 2015 and that the said examination had not been held since the introduction of the 2015 Schemes of Recruitment, with the result that it was impossible for any of the CDOs in service at that time to be eligible for promotion to the posts of DOCD and ACCD.

Exemption from the requirement to pass the Efficiency Bar Examinations

The learned Deputy Solicitor General, while submitting that none of the three Schemes of Recruitment introduced in 2015 contained any transitional provisions addressing this issue, drew the attention of this Court to Paragraph 15 in each of the three Schemes of Recruitment of 2015 which reads as follows: "මෙම බදවා ගැනීමේ පටිපාටියේ විධිවිධාන සලසා නොමැති යම් කරුණක් වෙතොත් ඒ සම්බන්ධයෙන් දකුණු පළාත් රාජ්‍ය සේවා කොමිෂන් සභාව විමසා ආණ්ඩුකාරතුමා විසින් තීරනය කරනු ලැබේ."

It was therefore the position of the learned Deputy Solicitor General that in the absence of any of the applicants having passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination, it was imperative upon the Provincial Public Service Commission to have sought a decision from the 1st Respondent whether an exemption could be granted from the said requirement and/or whether appointments could be made in the aforementioned circumstances, taking into consideration that the said requirement had only been introduced in 2015 and that no examinations had yet been conducted.

Notwithstanding the fact that none of the CDOs had passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination, and without having obtained a decision of the 1st Respondent, the Provincial Public Service Commission had proceeded to call for applications to fill the vacancies, conducted the interviews and proceeded to appoint the Petitioners to the applicable posts in June/July 2016. The learned Deputy Solicitor General submitted that in the absence of any approval from the 1st Respondent, the Provincial Public Service Commission had no mandate to appoint the Petitioners to the posts of DOCD and ACCD, and hence, the actions of the Provincial Public Service Commission are ultra vires the powers delegated to it in terms of Section 32(2) of the Provincial Councils Act.

Reason for the cancellation of the promotions

This issue of the Petitioners not having passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination came to the forefront only after the filing of the aforementioned SC (FR) Application No. 211/2016, with the petitioners in that application claiming that the appointments of the Petitioners in this application were bad in law. By his letter dated 14th July 2016, the Commissioner of Co-operative Development (Southern Province) had sought the advice of the Secretary, Ministry of Co-operative Development (Southern Province) in this regard. The Secretary in turn had sought the advice of the Provincial Public Service Commission, which had confirmed by its letter dated 8th August 2016 that an exemption from the above requirement was granted by the Provincial Public Service Commission, taking into consideration the fact the Petitioners had already completed five years of service in Grade I of CDO and had duly earned all salary increments.

The aforementioned letter of the Provincial Public Service Commission does not disclose whether the said decision had been taken prior to the making of the appointments of the Petitioners to the posts of DOCD or ACCD. However, pursuant to further discussions between the Provincial Public Service Commission and the 1st Respondent, the Provincial Public Service Commission had decided to cancel the aforementioned promotions and to call for fresh applications to fill the vacancies that existed in the posts of DOCD and ACCD, as the 1st Respondent had not approved the granting of an exemption. This decision had been communicated to the 1st Respondent by letter dated 8th November 2016, and the approval of the 1st Respondent for such decision of the Provincial Public Service Commission had been granted by letter dated 2nd December 2016. It is only thereafter that the decision to cancel the promotions was duly communicated to the Petitioners by letter dated 19th December 2016.

Is the cancellation of the promotions arbitrary?

The learned Counsel for the Petitioners submitted that the power of promotion delegated to the Provincial Public Service Commission included the power to grant an exemption from the aforementioned requirement with regard to the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination and that the Provincial Public Service Commission has been pressurised into withdrawing the promotions granted to the Petitioners by those persons who filed SC (FR) Application No. 211/2016.

It was the position of the learned Deputy Solicitor General that even though the power of appointment of public officers and their promotion had been delegated to the Provincial Public Service Commission, the Commission did not have the power either in terms of the said delegation or in terms of the said Scheme of Recruitment to grant an exemption from the requirement to have passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination in order to be eligible for promotion. He submitted that this power had been conferred exclusively on the 1st Respondent by Section 32(3) of the Provincial Councils Act and that paragraph 15 in the 2015 Schemes of Recruitment stipulating that anything not provided for in the Scheme of Recruitment shall be decided by the 1st Respondent in consultation with the Provincial Public Service Commission, is a reflection of that power.

Having carefully considered the submissions of the learned Counsel for the Petitioners and the learned Deputy Solicitor General, I am of the view that the provisions of the 2015 Scheme of Recruitment must be strictly followed in making appointments to, and promotions within, the Provincial Public Service. This includes ensuring compliance with the requirement set out in Clause 7.4.2.5 of the said Schemes of Recruitment for both DOCDs and ACCDs stipulating that in order to be eligible for promotion to either of the posts of DOCD or ACCD, the candidate must have passed the 3rd Efficiency Bar Examination stipulated for CDOs. Although the power of the 1st Respondent that is delegated to the Provincial Public Service Commission in terms of Section 32(2) includes the power to appoint or promote officers, I am in agreement with the learned Deputy Solicitor General that in the absence of any provision in the Scheme of Recruitment that enables the Provincial Public Service Commission to grant exemptions from the requirements specified in the said Schemes, and in view of the fact that decisions in respect of matters not provided for in the Schemes of Recruitment have been reserved for the 1st Respondent, the Provincial Public Service Commission did not have the power to deviate from the Schemes of Recruitment in granting the promotions.

The Provincial Public Service Commission must take full responsibility for the plight of the Petitioners, for the reason that, having introduced the new Schemes of Recruitment which contained the above requirement to successfully complete all three Efficiency Bar Examinations in order to be eligible for promotion to the post of DOCD and ACCD in January 2015, and in spite of the Schemes of Recruitment clearly specifying that the examinations must be held at least once a year, the Provincial Public Service Commission has failed to conduct the said examinations prior to calling for applications. In fact, a time period of over one year had lapsed between the introduction of the 2015 Schemes of Recruitment and the calling of applications to fill the vacancies that had arisen. In the alternative, prior to making appointments, the Provincial Public Service Commission should have consulted the 1st Respondent, and sought the approval of the 1st Respondent to exempt those candidates from the said requirement, which the Provincial Public Service Commission had failed to do.

Conclusion

In the above circumstances, I am of the view that:

(a) the decision of the Provincial Public Service Commission to cancel the promotions granted to the Petitioners, and the subsequent approval granted by the 1st Respondent for the cancellation of the said promotions, are not arbitrary;

(b) the decision of the Provincial Public Service Commission and the 1st Respondent is reasonable and based on discernible grounds, and is consistent with the object of ensuring that those who are promoted have acquired the necessary qualifications stipulated in the Schemes of Recruitment, unless an exemption had been granted from the said requirement, taking into consideration the peculiar circumstances that had arisen;

(c) the fundamental rights of the Petitioners enshrined in Article 12(1) of the Constitution have not been violated by the 1st Respondent.

This application is accordingly dismissed, without costs.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

P. Padman Surasena, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Republic.

1. K. L. I. Amarasekera,
   No. 2,
   Kuruppu Mulla Road,
   Panadura.

2. Jayasumana Munasinghe,
   No. 315/6,
   Vidyala Mawatha,
   Makol-South,
   Makola.

3. E. M. Premaratne,
   673/21,
   Bluemendal Road,
   Colombo 15.

4. D. M. Anura Jayaweera,
   20B, Liyanage-wagura,
   Kandy.

5. K. U. R. Upali,
   Kanthi Niwasa,
   Aladeniya,
   Werellagala.

Supreme Court Application No:
S.C. (F/R) 52/2015

PETITIONERS

Vs.

1. Sri Lanka Ports Authority,
   No. 19,

Chaithya Road,
Colombo 01.

2. Dr. Lakdas Panagoda (Chairman)

3. Capt. Asitha Wijesekera (Vice Chairman)

4. Mr. Jagath P. Wijeweera (Director)

5. Mr. Saliya Senanayake (Director)

6. Suresh Edirisinghe (Director)

7. Mr. Athula Bandara Herath (Director)

8. Capt. Nihal Keppetipola (Managing Director)

   The 2nd to 8th Respondents of; Board of Director, Sri Lanka Ports Authority, No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

9. L. H. R. Sepala,
   Chief Human Resource Manager,
   Sri Lanka Ports Authority,
   Kochchikade,
   Colombo 13.

10. Hon. Attorney General,
    Attorney General's Department,
    Hulftsdorp,
    Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : PRIYANTHA JAYAWARDENA, PC., J.
VIJITH K. MALALGODA, PC., J.
K.KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.

COUNSEL : Pulasthi Hewamanna with Harini Jayawardhana instructed by Sanjeewa Kaluarachchi for the Petitioners.

Yuresha de Silva, SSC for the Respondents.

ARGUED ON : 24.11.2021

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS : Petitioners on 27.07.2021 and 08.12.2021
Respondents on 03.08.2021 and 13.01.2022

DECIDED ON : 27.09.2023

K. KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J.

This is an Application filed under Article 126(1) of the Constitution by the Petitioners seeking, inter alia, for a declaration that their fundamental rights to equality before the law and equal protection of the law as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution and freedom of occupation as guaranteed by Article 14(1)(g) have been violated, as a result of the arbitrary, capricious and/or irrational manner in which the Petitioners were deprived of their appointments to the rank of Assistant Security Officer, in contravention of established procedures and assurances of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority (hereinafter referred to as the 1st Respondent).

On 13.08.2015, having heard the Counsel for the Petitioners in support of this Application and the Learned DSG who appeared for the Respondents, this court granted leave to proceed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

The Petitioners, aged 53-56 years at the time of filing this Application, have joined the 1st Respondent between 1981 and 1986, as Security Guards. At the time of filing this Application, they were serving as Security Sergeants. They have been appointed to the said positions after a written examination and an interview.

The Petitioners have become aware of an internal notice dated 11.02.2013 calling applications for appointments of Assistant Security Officers, and have submitted the duly completed application forms as required, which have been then accepted by the 1st Respondent. The requisite application form at clause 11 specifically provided for applicants who were 50 years and above, to notify the 1st Respondent whether they would opt to sit for a written examination or not, to which all the Petitioners in their respective application forms opted not to face such written examination. The Petitioners state that the accepted practice at the 1st Respondent has been to permit applicants who are over 50 years of age who apply for internal appointments, to forego a written examination and have their internal appointments based solely on the interview process. They further state that approximately 30% of vacancies are, as a practice, set aside for such method of internal appointments. The Petitioners have later found out that such established practice is based on Circular 16/2003 dated 28.05.2002.

However, the Petitioners state that they were asked by the officers of the management of the 1st Respondent to nominally sit for the said written examination, with the assurance that their appointments would be solely based on their performances at the interview. Accordingly, the Petitioners have nominally sat for the said written examination on or around 13.03.2014 on the said verbal assurance that their performances at the written examination would not be a deciding factor in being chosen for the appointments.

The results of the said written examination were released in or around July 2014, according to which the Petitioners have obtained average marks between 50 to 62, as against the pass mark of 40. Soon after, the Petitioners except the 1st Petitioner have been summoned for interviews. The said Petitioners have attended the said interview and later, on or around 22.09.2014, they have become aware that approximately 46 individuals, a majority of whom are junior to the Petitioners, have been appointed as Assistant Security Officers based on their performances at the written examination and interview. However, none of the Petitioners were included amongst the said appointments. Thereafter, the Petitioners have made several representations to the management of the 1st Respondent enquiring as to the prospects of their appointments to the said position, to no avail.

The Petitioners state that the assurances made to them by the 1st Respondent and/or its officers that the Petitioners need only nominally sit for the written examination, and the results thereon would not be a deciding factor in being appointed to the rank of Assistant Security Officer gave rise to a legitimate expectation that they would be considered for appointments to the said positions, as the verbal assurances made to that effect were clear and unambiguous which were reasonable for the Petitioners to rely on. Moreover, they claim that the conduct and established practice of the said 1st Respondent of allocating 30% of vacancies to be filled by those above the age of 50 years, disregarding the written examination and based solely on the interview further engendered in them a legitimate expectation that such established practice would be followed in respect of the appointments of the Petitioners as well.

In the circumstances, the Petitioners plead that their fundamental rights guaranteed under Article 12(1) and Article 14(1)(g) of the Constitution have been violated by the Respondents for the reasons of acting contrary to publicly disclosed criteria as stipulated in Circular 16/2003 and established practice pertaining to appointments of persons above 50 years of age, failing to disclose the number of vacancies for the rank of Assistant Security Officer and such being done for a collateral purpose, appointing officers junior to the Petitioners to positions senior to the Petitioners in violation of published criteria and established practice, and in breach of the principles of natural justice and legitimate expectations of the Petitioners.

Accordingly, this Court granted leave to proceed for the alleged infringement of fundamental rights of the Petitioners as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

Thereafter, the Chairman of the 1st Respondent filed an affidavit dated 26.11.2015 and stated, inter alia, that the 3rd Petitioner was promoted to the post of Assistant Security Officer on 08.09.2015 with effect from 03.26.2015. He further stated that the application forms issued to some of the Petitioners, with the exception of the 5th Petitioner who had filled the correct application form, contained the option to indicate whether they opt to sit for a written examination or not. Such application forms were in fact old application forms, prepared based on the previous Scheme of Recruitment which was in place prior to the establishment of the presently applicable Scheme of Recruitment. Thus, he contended that Circular 16/2003 is no longer in force, in view of the notice calling for applications dated 11.02.2013, which is the presently applicable Scheme of Recruitment. The said notice calling for applications contains the requirement to sit for a written examination. As such, the Chairman of the 1st Respondent in his affidavit further stated that it had been an inadvertence on part of the officers who issued the application forms as well as the officers who accepted the duly filled application forms.

He further stated that the Petitioners secured 27.94, 33.91, 24.60, 29.33, and 31.62 marks respectively, at the written examination and the 1st Petitioner was in fact unsuccessful at the said written examination.

The Chairman of the 1st Respondent also stated that the relevant notice calling applications for the positions of Assistant Security Officers filed by the Petitioners is incomplete as it contains only two pages as opposed to the actual notice which contained three pages. Therefore, the Petitioners have deliberately/mistakenly left out the actual page two of the said notice which discloses the necessity to sit for a written examination. He further claimed that pages of the said notice have not been numbered properly as both the second and third pages of the said notice have been numbered as page 2.

Moreover, he stated that the said notice was published on 11.02.2013 and the Petitioners cannot now claim that they were unaware of the requirement to sit for a written examination, and if they were aggrieved by the said requirement, they could have taken appropriate measures soon after. He further stated that the 3rd Petitioner was informed of the requirement to sit for a written examination, to which all the Petitioners subsequently complied.

He has denied the remaining averments which are inconsistent with what is stated above and stated that the Respondents have not violated fundamental rights of the Petitioners, they are not entitled to any of the reliefs sought and the Application should accordingly be dismissed.

The Petitioners in their Counter Objections stated that the letter of appointment of the 3rd Respondent had been issued after the filing of the instant Application and the said letter of appointment, in any event, affected his seniority since others similarly circumstanced as the Petitioners have been so appointed with effect from at least 10.09.2014. Further, the Petitioners stated that the notice they have submitted to Court was the notice that was available to them at the time of filing this Application. As such, the notice calling for applications submitted by the Chairman of the 1st Respondent in his Affidavit, marked 2R2, was not the document available to the them. Moreover, the Petitioners claimed that the application forms that they submitted were in fact accepted by the 1st Respondent and they were never informed of any defect when the said applications were accepted.

The Petitioners stated that the Respondents acted contrary to the disclosed criteria in Circular 16/2003 and have failed to disclose any change in such criteria. Therefore, such criteria are still in force and as such, 2R2 is void ab initio.

The Respondents in their further written submissions stated that by a joint-motion dated 08.12.2021, the Letters of Promotion of the 1st, 2nd, 4th and 5th Petitioners to the rank of Assistant Security Officer were tendered as directed by the Court. The said promotions were granted based on a Notification issued in 2017, applications submitted by the said Petitioners and based on interviews held in 2018, pursuant to the filing of this Application and tendering of Objections on behalf of the Respondents. The Respondents further stated that the Petitioners have now retired from service and therefore, the only remaining issue is with regard to the effective date of promotions to the 1st, 2nd, 4th and 5th Petitioners to the said posts.

Accordingly, the Respondents have submitted that the 1st, 2nd, 4th and 5th Petitioners were promoted as Assistant Security Officers based on a process which commenced subsequent to the filing of this Application and they were not eligible to be promoted to the said posts based on the process which commenced in 2013. Therefore, the Respondents have not infringed upon the fundamental rights of the Petitioners as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

Before moving to determine the Application of the Petitioners upon its merits, I have to first consider the preliminary objection taken by the Respondents in their written submissions that the Petitioners Application is time barred and therefore, it should be dismissed as the Petitioners have failed to comply with the mandatory time limit requirement prescribed in Article 126(2) of the constitution.

Article 126(2) reads as follows;

"Where any person alleges that any such fundamental right or language right relating to such person has been infringed or is about to be infringed by executive or administrative action, he may himself or by an attorney-at-law on his behalf, within one month thereof, in accordance with such rules of court as may be in force, apply to the Supreme Court by way of petition in writing addressed to such Court praying for relief or redress in respect of such infringement…"

The effect of Article 126(2) as stipulated above is that a Petition alleging an infringement or imminent infringement of fundamental rights should be filed within a period of one month of such alleged infringement or imminent infringement and failure to comply with this requirement would render such Petition time barred and unmaintainable.

Accordingly, the Respondents contend in their written submissions that the Application of the Petitioners is time barred for the reason that it was preferred on 06.03.2015 challenging the purported new Scheme of Recruitment, marked 2R2, introduced on 11.02.2013.

This Court has time and again held that the time limit stipulated in Article 126(2) is a mandatory requirement.

In the case of Demuni Sriyani de Zoysa and others v. Dharmasena Dissanayake and others [SC (FR) 206/2008, SC Minutes of 09.12.2016], Prasanna Jayawardena, PC., J. observed that;

"The rule that, an application under Article 126 which has not been filed within one month of the occurrence of the alleged infringement will make that application unmaintainable, has been enunciated time and again from the time this Court exercised the Fundamental Rights jurisdiction conferred upon it by the 1978 Constitution. Thus, in EDIRISURIYA Vs. NAVARATNAM [1985 1 SLR 100 at p.105- 106], Ranasinghe J, as he then was, stated "This Court has consistently proceeded on the basis that the time limit of one month set out in Article 126 (2) of the Constitution is mandatory.".

In the above case, the Petitioners contended that failure of the Respondents to allocate marks in the selection process for Class II Grade II of the Sri Lanka Administrative Service for the period the Petitioners served on a supernumerary basis in the 'Supra Class' of the General Clerical Service and subsequently, in the Public Management Assistants' Service, amounted to a violation of their fundamental rights as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution. The said selection process was based on the Combined Services Circular No. 01/2007 issued on 05.02.2007 by the Secretary of the Ministry of Public Administration and Home Affairs. The Petitioners had been well aware that in terms of the said Circular they would not be allocated marks for their period of service on a supernumerary basis. Since the Petition was filed on 05.06.2008, 16 months after the said Circular was issued, the Respondents contended that the Application of the Petitioners was time barred. Prasanna Jayawardena, PC., J., upholding the said preliminary objection, elucidated that;

"Therefore, it is clear that, the alleged infringement occurred on or soon after 05th February 2007 when the Circular marked "P9" was issued and made known to the Petitioners."'

Therefore, it was held in the above case that;

"The Petition has been filed on 05th June 2008 which is more than 16 months after the day the Petitioners themselves state the alleged infringement occurred. Therefore, the Petition is time barred and liable to be dismissed unless the Petitioners can seek an extension of the time limit on grounds that, they were prevented from filing the Petition earlier."

The case of Dayaratne and others v. National Savings Bank [2002] 3 SLR 116 is also important in this regard, where Mark Fernando, J. observed that;

"The first limb of the respondents' preliminary objection is that after the lapse of one month the petitioners were not entitled to challenge the scheme of promotion. The 1st respondent was entitled, from time to time, and in the interests of the institution, to lay down the basis on which employees would be promoted, and that became part of the contract of employment. The scheme of promotion published on 12.02.2001 was directly and immediately applicable to the petitioners, and became part of the terms and conditions of their employment. If they did not consent to those terms and conditions, as being violative of their rights under Article 12, they should have complained to this Court within one month. They failed to do so. Instead, they acquiesced in those terms and conditions by applying for promotion without any protest. I, therefore, uphold the objection."

However, as held by Mark Fernando, J. in the case of Gamaethige v. Siriwardena [1988] 1 SLR 344, that in exceptional circumstances this Court has the discretion to entertain an application not made within the stipulated time limit.

"While the time limit is mandatory, in exceptional cases on the application of the principle lex non cogit ad impossibilia, if there is no lapse, fault or delay on the part of the petitioner, this Court has a discretion to entertain an application made out of time."

A similar view was enunciated by Aluwihare, PC., J. in the case of K.H.G. Kithsiri v. Hon. Faizer Musthapha MP, Minister of Provincial Councils and Local Government and others [SC (FR) 362/2017, SC Minutes of 10.01.2018], as well.

"This court, however, in exceptional circumstances where the Petitioner was prevented, by reason beyond his control, from taking measures which would enable the filing of a Petition within one month of the alleged infringement and if there had been no lapse on the part of the Petitioner, has exercised its discretion in entertaining fundamental rights applications and had not hesitated to apply the maxim lex non cogit ad impossibilia."

Aluwihare, PC., J. further went onto state in the same case that;

"… the time limit of one month prescribed by Article 126 of the Constitution to invoke the fundamental rights jurisdiction for an alleged violation is mandatory. In a fit case, however, an application made outside the time limit of one month stipulated in Article 126 could be entertained where the delay had resulted due to a reason or reasons as the case may be that are beyond the control of the Petitioner or where the court is satisfied that the circumstances prevailed at the time relevant, it would have been impossible for the Petitioner to have invoked the jurisdiction within 30 days and to be more precise where the Principle lex non cogit ad impossibllia would be applicable."

The contention of the Respondents in this case is that the Petitioners have preferred this Application on 06.03.2015 challenging the purported new Scheme of Recruitment introduced on 11.02.2013, and as such this Application is time barred. Further, the Respondents have also submitted that the Petitioners have failed to establish that the reason they were unable to comply with the said time limit requirement as stipulated in Article 126(2) was due to circumstances beyond their control and therefore, this Application should be dismissed.

However, the Petitioners claim that Circular No. 16/2003 is still in force and a valid rule within the Authority. As such, it must be followed until such time it is duly changed. It is their submission that the document marked 2R2, which the Respondents state as being the new Scheme of Recruitment, is an internal notice calling for applications and therefore, it does not have the power of overruling a Circular issued by the Chairman of the 1st Respondent.

Since the success of the preliminary objection taken by the Respondents is contingent on the submission that a change of rule has taken place in view of the document marked 2R2, I will firstly move to consider the contentions of parties pertaining to the presently applicable Scheme of Recruitment in respect of the Petitioners.

In examining the material placed before this Court, it is apparent that the document marked 2R2 is not numbered properly. Although the first page has been numbered correctly as page 1, both the second and third pages have been numbered as page 2. This was also accepted as such by the Respondents themselves. Further, the application forms received by four out of the five Petitioners, with the sole exception of the 5th Petitioner, contained the option to indicate their preference as to whether they are willing to sit for the written examination or not. Thus, as pleaded by the Petitioners, an 80% of application forms in the given instance can be deduced as being based on Circular 16/2003.

Although it is submitted by the Respondents that the said Circular is no longer in force, the duly completed said application forms of the Petitioners were in fact accepted by officers of the 1st Respondent. The Chairman of the 1st Respondent stated in his Affidavit that it had been an inadvertence on part of the officers who accepted the duly filled application forms. The Petitioners state that thereafter, the officers of the management of the 1st Respondent have given assurances to the Petitioners that they need only nominally sit for the said written examination. Further, the Petitioners were never informed of the purported change in the said Scheme of Recruitment until this matter was brought before this Court.

Moreover, the document marked 2R2, which the Respondents claim as being the presently applicable Scheme of Recruitment is a notice calling for applications signed by the Chief Human Resource Manager of the 1st Respondent as opposed to Circular 16/2003, which is signed by the then Chairman of the 1st Respondent.

Section 17(1)(a) of the Interpretation Ordinance of Sri Lanka, which I find as directly applicable and conclusive in this regard, provides the procedure for changing of rules as follows;

> (1) Where any enactment, whether passed before or after the commencement of this Ordinance, confers power on any authority to make rules, the following provisions shall, unless the contrary intention appears, have effect with reference to the making and operation of such rules: -
>
> (a) any rule may be amended, varied, rescinded, or revoked by the same authority in the same manner by and in which it was made;

Section 7(1)(e) of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act grants the 1st Respondent the power to "make rules in relation to the officers and servants of the Authority", including, inter alia, their appointments and promotions. Section 9 of the same Act holds the Chairman of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority as being responsible for the administration of the affairs of the said Authority.

Thus, I am of the opinion that Circular 16/2003, as a rule applicable to internal appointments issued in accordance with the aforesaid provisions will cease to have force, only if another Circular to that effect is issued by the Chairman of the said Authority himself, in light of Section 7(1)(e) and Section 9 of the Sri Lanka Ports Authority Act read together with Section 17(1)(a) of the Interpretation Ordinance of Sri Lanka.

Therefore, after careful consideration of the law and discrepancies inherent in the submissions of the Respondents, I reject the argument of the Respondents that Circular 16/2003 is no longer in force in view of the document marked 2R2, and hold that Circular 16/2003 is still in force and as such, it is the presently applicable Scheme of Recruitment in respect of the Petitioners.

Accordingly, I also reject the preliminary objection of Respondents that the instant Application is time barred as they have preferred the Application on 06.03.2015 while the purported new Scheme of Recruitment was introduced on 11.02.2013, as I have already held that Circular 16/2003 is still in force and has remained in force during the entirety of the time period concerned and is in fact the applicable Scheme of Recruitment to the Petitioners.

As leave to proceed was granted under Article 12(1) of the Constitution, it is now necessary to analyze the relevant facts and material submitted before this Court to ascertain whether the decision of the 1st Respondent to depart from Circular 16/2003 amounts to a violation of fundamental rights as aforesaid.

Article 12(1) of the Constitution reads as follows:

"All persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law."

The Respondents in their written submissions have brought forth the contention that they have acted in good faith and in terms of the Scheme of Recruitment marked 2R2. Thus, in order for the Petitioners to successfully plead that their right to equality as guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution has been violated, they must prove that they were in fact discriminated against other persons who were similarly circumstanced as them, which they were in fact not in the current situation at hand. However, the Petitioners, on the other hand, have contended that the concept of equality as guaranteed by Article 12(1) has since evolved and the violation of a rule laid down by an authority would also amount to an infringement of the right to equality, as the Court has in several Judgments, focused on the requirement of ensuring reasonableness as opposed to requiring arbitrariness to find an infringement of Article 12(1).

The former position taken up by the Respondents in respect of the right to equality was upheld in the case of Perera v. Jayawickrama [1985] 1 SLR 285 by a Full Bench of this Court. The majority opinion delivered by Sharvananda, CJ. held that;

"This Article is violated both by unequal treatment of the equals and equal treatment of the unequals. The aim of the article is to ensure that invidious distinction or arbitrary discrimination shall not be made by the State between a citizen and a citizen who answers the same though the concept of equality does not involve the idea of absolute equality among human beings. Hence, equality before the law does not mean that things which are different shall be treated as they were the same. Thus, the principle of equality enacted under Article 12 does not absolutely prevent the State from differentiating between persons and things. The State has the power of what is known an "classification" on a basis of rational distinction relevant to the particular subject dealt with. So long as all persons failing into the same class are treated alike there is no question of discrimination and there is no question of violating the equality clause. The discrimination which is prohibited is treatment in a manner prejudicial as compared to another person in similar circumstances. Discrimination is the essence of classification; so long as it rests on a reasonable basis there is no violation of the constitutional rights of equality."

However, the latter view taken up by the Petitioners was endorsed by Wimalaratne, J., who delivered a dissenting opinion in the same case:

"In order to establish discrimination, it is not necessary for the Petitioner to show that correct procedure was applied in the case of others and that he has been singled out for the adoption of a different procedure. Nor is it necessary for him to show that no others were victims of the wrong procedure now applied for the first time, perhaps in his case."

An identical stance to that of the Respondents was followed by Sharvananda, CJ. in the case of C.W. Mackie and Company Ltd. v. Hugh Molagoda, Commissioner General of Inland Revenue and others [1986] 1 SLR 300, where His Lordship held that;

"In order to sustain the plea of discrimination based upon Article 12(1) a party will have to satisfy the court about two things, namely (1) that he has been treated differently from others, and (2) that he has been differently treated from persons similarly circumstanced without any reasonable basis."

The requirement of proving unequal treatment was further emphasized by Dr. Shirani Bandaranayake, J., in the case of Farook v. Dharmaratne, Chairman, Provincial Public Service Commission and others [2005] 1 Sri LR 133, as follows;

"…. the petitioner quite clearly has sought to obtain relief on the basis of unequal treatment. When a person does not possess the required qualifications that is necessary for a particular position, would it be possible for him to obtain relief in terms of a violation of his fundamental rights on the basis of unequal treatment? If the answer to this question is in the affirmative, it would mean that Article 12(1) of the Constitution would be applicable even in a situation where there is no violation of the applicable legal procedure or the general practice. The application of Article 12(1) of the Constitution cannot be used for such situations as it provides to an aggrieved person only for the equal protection of the law where the authorities have acted illegally or incorrectly without giving due consideration to the applicable guidelines. Article 12(1) of the Constitution does not provide for any situation where the authorities will have to act illegally. The safeguard retained in Article 12(1) is for the performance of a lawful act and not to be directed to carry out an illegal function. In order to succeed the petitioner must be in a position to place material before this Court that there has been unequal treatment within the framework of a lawful act."

In the case of Thilak Lalitha Kumara v. S.S. Hewapathirana, Secretary, Ministry of Youth Affairs and Skills Development [SC (FR) 451/2011, SC Minutes of 17.09.2015], Anil Gooneratne, J. dismissing an application claiming a violation of fundamental rights as guaranteed by Article 12(1), also held that;

"To survive equal protection attack the different treatment of two classes of persons must be justified by a relevant difference between them."

Similarly, in the case of Wasantha Disanayake and others v. Secretary, Ministry of Public Administration and Home Affairs and others (SC (FR) 611/2012, SC Minutes of 10.09.2015), K. Sripavan, CJ. held that it is necessary to show unequal treatment and discriminatory action against the Petitioners in pleading a violation of right to equality;

"Article 12(1) of the Constitution contemplates the right to equality and states that, 'All persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law'. What is meant here is that equals should be treated equally and similar laws and regulations should be applicable to persons who are similarly circumstanced. In reference to Article 12(1) of the Constitution, it would be necessary to show that there had been unequal treatment, and therefore, there exist discriminatory action against the Petitioners."

Further, in the more recent Judgment of R.M. Premil Priyalath de. Silva and others v. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam (M.P), Hon. Minister of Education and others [SC (FR) 97/2015, SC Minutes of 20.02.2018], taking a similar stance, Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC., J. referring to the Judgment in the case of Samadi Suharshana Ferdinandis and another

V. S.S.K. Aviruppola, Principal, Visakha Vidyalaya and others [S.C. F.R. No. 117/2011] held that;

"As referred to above in this judgment, the Petitioners have failed to place before this court any material to establish that they were treated differently by any of the above Respondents when they decide not to admit the 3rd Petitioner to Dharmashoka Vidyalaya, Ambalangoda. In the said circumstances I hold that Petitioners have not been successful in establishing that their fundamental rights guaranteed in terms of Article 12 (1) of the Constitution had been violated by the Respondents."

However, the latter view taken up by the Petitioners with regards to right to equality is supported by the case of Jayasinghe v. Attorney General [1994] 2 SLR 74, where Mark Fernando, J. took the view that the Court must take judicial notice in instances where the fundamental requirements of justice and fair play were not followed. It was further stated in the same case by Mark Fernando, J. that the Full Bench decision in the case of Perera v. Jayawickrama is doubtful as to laying down an inflexible principle of universal application and that the facts of each case must be considered in perusing a violation of Article 12(1):

"I doubt whether that decision must be regarded as laying down an inflexible principle of universal application: the facts of each case must be considered. If an employee alleges a denial of equal protection because he was compelled to participate in a disciplinary inquiry without ever being told what the charges against him were, would a Court demand evidence to prove at least one other contrary instance? I think not. The Court must take judicial notice, that ordinarily - and not merely in a few instances - charges are disclosed prior to inquiry."

Further, in the case of Wickremasinghe v. Ceylon Petroleum Corporation [2001] 2 SLR 409, while holding that a decision of the Respondent Corporation to terminate the dealership of the Petitioner is violative of his right to equality guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution, Sarath N. Silva, CJ. took the view that;

"The case of Perera v. Jayawickrema demonstrates the ineffectiveness of the guarantee in Article 12(1) which results from the rigid application of the requirement to prove that persons similarly circumstanced as the Petitioner were differently treated. Such an application of the guarantee under Article 12(1) ignores the essence of the basic standard which is to ensure reasonableness as opposed to arbitrariness in the manner required by the basic standard."

This position was further strengthened by the recent Judgment in the case of Wijerathna v. Sri Lanka Ports Authority [SC (FR) 256/17, SC Minutes of 11.12.2020], where Yasantha Kodagoda, PC., J. held that;

"It is now well accepted that, the 'right to equality' covers a much wider area, aimed at preventing other 'injustices' too, that are recognized by law. Equality is now a right as opposed to a mere privilege or an entitlement, and in the context of Sri Lanka a 'Fundamental Right', conferred on the people by the Constitution, for the purpose of curing not only injustices taking the manifestation of discrimination, but a host of other maladies recognized by law."

At p. 17 of the said Judgment, His Lordship further elaborated that the Court has since moved on from the decision of Perera v. Jayawickrema towards a more progressive definition of the concept of equality;

"Of course, since the pronouncement of the majority judgment in Elmore Perera v. Major Montague Jayawickrema, Minister of Public Administration and Plantation Industries and Others*, the Supreme Court of Sri Lanka has somewhat distanced itself from the interpretations provided by Chief Justice S. Sharvananda to the concepts of 'equality' and 'discrimination', and provided an expansive and more progressive definition of the concept of equality, founded upon the concept of 'substantive equality', aimed at protecting persons from arbitrary, unreasonable, malicious and capricious executive and administrative action."*

The case of E.P. Royappa v. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1974 SC 555, from the Supreme Court of India, is enlightening in this regard, owing to the former Chief Justice of India P. N. Bhagwati's exceptional elucidation of the concept of equality;

"Now, what is the content and reach of this great equalizing principle? It is a founding faith, to use the words of Bose J, 'a way of life', and it must not to be subjected to a narrow pedantic or lexicographic approach. We cannot countenance any attempt to truncate its all-embracing scope and meaning, for to do so would be to violate its activist magnitude. Equality is a dynamic concept with many aspects and dimensions and it cannot be cribbed, cabined and confined within traditional doctrinal limits. From a positivistic point of view, equality is antithetic to arbitrariness. In fact, equality and arbitrariness are sworn enemies, one belongs to the rule of law in a republic, while the other, to the whim and caprice of an absolute monarch. Where an act is arbitrary, it is implicit in it that it is unequal both according to political logic and Constitutional law and is therefore violative of Article 14."

The Article 14 of the Constitution of India which recognizes equality before the law is remarkably similar to Article 12(1) of the Constitution of Sri Lanka and although it is ex-facie apparent that the latter Article is wider in scope compared to the former, whereas the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of India pertinent to petitions and appeals claiming infringements of fundamental rights is wider than that of the Supreme Court of Sri Lanka, such divergences, as very correctly expounded by Yasantha Kodagoda, PC., J. in the Judgment of Wijerathna v. Sri Lanka Ports Authority, at p. 18, "should not debar Sri Lankan justices from where appropriate, taking persuasive cognizance of Indian jurisprudence relating to the interpretation of the substantive legal concepts embodied in the 'right to equality'."

Therefore, after cautious perusal and contemplation of the law, the need for such law and the development of the concept of equality as discussed above, I am inclined to align myself with the interpretation that a Petitioner being discriminated against another person who was similarly circumstanced as the Petitioner is not the sole criterion for successfully pleading a violation of right to equality, as arbitrary, mala fide and unreasonable executive action is also seen as being inconsistent with the very concept of equality, thereby infringing upon the right to equality before the law as guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

Accordingly, I hold that the decision of the 1st Respondent to depart from the already established criteria for internal appointments in the form of Circular 16/2003 in this instance is arbitrary, mala fide and unreasonable, and thereby violated the fundamental rights of the Petitioners as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

I will now briefly examine whether the practice of the 1st Respondent of allocating 30% of vacancies to be filled by those above the age of 50 years, disregarding the written examination and based solely on the interview, and assurances made to the Petitioners by the 1st Respondent and/or its officers that the Petitioners need only nominally sit for the written examination and the results thereon would not be a deciding factor in selection for appointments, gave rise to a legitimate expectation.

In the case of Fernando v. Associated Newspapers of Ceylon Ltd. [2006] 3 Sri LR 141, Gamini Amaratunga, J. held that;

"The existence of a legitimate expectation, as opposed to a legally enforceable right, is a relevant factor in considering the just and equitable relief this Court may grant under Article 126 (4) of the Constitution when it is shown that the action of the executive which frustrates the legitimate expectation amounts to a denial of the right to equal protection of the law guaranteed by the Constitution."

Moreover, Priyantha Jayawardena, PC., J. in the case of Nimalsiri v. Fernando [SC (FR) 256/2010, SC Minutes of 17.09.2015], at p. 8, remarked on the Judgment of Dayaratne v. Minister of Health and Indigenous Medicine [1999] 1 SLR 393 by Justice Amarasinghe, as follows;

"In Dayaratne v. Minister of Health and Indigenous Medicine [1999] 1 SLR 393*, Amarasinghe J, held that destroying of a legitimate expectation is a ground for judicial review which amounted to a violation of equal protection guaranteed by Article 12 of the Constitution."*

However, in the aforesaid case, Priyantha Jayawardena, PC., J. after analyzing all the relevant facts and circumstances dismissed the said Application holding that the Petitioner did not have a legitimate expectation to be enlisted in the Sri Lanka Army for a third time.

Dr. Shirani Bandaranayake, J., in the case of Lancelot Perera v. National Police Commission and others [2007] 2 ALR 24, expounded on the concept of legitimate expectation as follows;

"Legitimate expectation, as was stated by me in Anushika Jayatileka and others v. University Grants Commission [S.C. (Application) No. 280/2001 – S.C. Minutes of 25.10.2004] derives from an undertaking given by someone in authority and such an undertaking may not even be expressed and would have to be known from the surrounding circumstances.

Priyantha Jayawardena, PC., J., in the aforesaid Judgment of Nimalsiri v. Fernando, also sheds light on the concept of legitimate expectation;

"The doctrine of legitimate expectation applies to situations to protect legitimate expectation. It arises from establishing an expectation believing an undertaking or promise given by a public official or establishing an expectation taking into consideration of established practices of an authority. However, the said criteria should not be considered as an exhaustive list as the doctrine of legitimate expectation has a potential to develop further. Legitimate expectation can be either based on procedural propriety or on substantive protection."

Therefore, the doctrine of legitimate expectation can be further divided into two aspects as procedural legitimate expectation and substantive legitimate expectation. Prasanna Jayawardena, PC., J. citing an extract from Prof. Paul

Craig's book Administrative Law 7th Edition in the case of M.R.C.C. Ariyarathne v. N.K. Illangakoon [SC (FR) 444/2012, SC Minutes of 30.07.2019], has explicated on the said two aspects as follows:

"The phrase 'procedural legitimate expectation' denotes the existence of some process right the applicant claims to possess as the result of a promise or behaviour by the public body that generates the expectation …. The phrase 'substantive legitimate expectation' captures the situation in which the applicant seeks a particular benefit of or commodity, such as a welfare benefit or a license, as the result of some promise, behaviour or representation made by the public body."

Moreover, as stated by Priyantha Jayawardena, PC. J., in the Judgment of Nimalsiri v. Fernando, the applicability of the doctrine of legitimate expectation depends on the facts and circumstances of each case;

"In order to seek redress under the doctrine of legitimate expectation a person should prove he had a legitimate expectation which was based on a promise or an established practice. Thus, the applicability of the said doctrine is based on the facts and circumstances of each case."

In the instant Application, the Petitioners argue that they had a procedural legitimate expectation based on the established procedure and practice of the 1st Respondent of allocating 30% of vacancies in internal appointments to be filled by those above the age of 50 years disregarding the written examination and based solely on the interview, as borne out by the Circular 16/2003. The Petitioners also argue that they had a substantive legitimate expectation in light of the substantive benefit of 30% of vacancies being set aside for such a method of internal appointments for those over 50 years of age in conformity with the same Circular.

The case of Lancelot Perera v. National Police Commission and others is important in this regard, where the Petitioner, a Senior Superintendent of Police, successfully claimed that the decision of the Respondents to not appoint him to the post of Deputy Inspector General of Police after being called for interviews and being placed third in order of merit out of 52 candidates, amounted to a violation of his fundamental rights as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution. Although the Police Commission had arbitrary decided not to allow the Petitioner to apply for further promotions, the Respondents had later decided to depart from the said position and directed the Petitioner to attend the said interview. Accordingly, the Petitioner claimed that the decision to call him for the said interview gave rise to a legitimate expectation on his behalf that he would be promoted to the post of Deputy Inspector General of Police if he becomes successful at the interview. Dr. Shirani Bandaranayake, J., after a thorough analysis of the interconnection between substantive legitimate expectations and the right to equality, held that;

"Considering all the circumstances, it is apparent that the application for the promotion and the invitation to attend the interview and by its successful completion the petitioner had a legitimate expectation that he would be promoted to the rank of Deputy Inspector General of Police."

Circular 16/2003 is unambiguous in respect of such practice and procedure, that 30% of vacancies will be allocated to applicants over 50 years of age who are excused from sitting for the written examination. The Respondents themselves have admitted in their Affidavit and written submissions that the past practice of the 1st Respondent was to have 30% of vacancies set aside in internal appointments for those over 50 years of age and to select such applications solely based on the interview process in accordance with the said Circular. I have already held that Circular 16/2003 is still in force, and has been in force throughout the concerned period and remains as the applicable Scheme of Recruitment in respect of the Petitioners.

Further, the officers of the management of the 1st Respondent have given assurances to the Petitioners that they need only nominally sit for the written examination and the results of the said examination would not be a deciding factor in their selection for appointments to the posts of Assistant

Security Officer. The said assurances can be construed as a promise made by the 1st Respondent to the effect that the established practice would be followed in the situation at hand as well and 30% of the vacancies would be allocated for the said method of appointment.

Moreover, the relevant applications issued to all the Petitioners, with the exception of the 5th Petitioner, contained the option to indicate whether they opt to sit for a written examination or not and they have all opted not to sit for such written examination. Subsequently, the duly completed application forms of Petitioners have been accepted by the 1st Respondent. Further, the 1st Respondent has neither informed the Petitioners nor brought to their attention that the said Circular is no longer in force and a change of policy has taken place until proceedings were instituted before this Court.

Therefore, after careful perusal of the aforementioned facts and circumstances, I am inclined to hold that the Petitioners had justifiable reasons to form a legitimate expectation, both in terms of a procedural legitimate expectation and substantive legitimate expectation, that the established procedure and practice of allocating 30% of available vacancies to the said method of appointment would be followed by the 1st Respondent. As such, a legitimate expectation was in fact accrued to the Petitioners to such extent, which was subsequently violated by the Respondents owing to their failure to follow the established procedure for internal appointments for those over 50 years of age and allocate the said percentage of 30% of vacancies to such method of appointment, in accordance with the Circular 16/2003.

Since it is established as aforesaid that destroying of a legitimate expectation is a ground for judicial review which amounted to an infringement of right to equality as guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution, in the circumstances, I am of the opinion that the fundamental rights of the Petitioners guaranteed under Article 12(1) have been violated by the 1st Respondent.

Having examined the facts of the case and material placed before this Court, I allow the Application of the Petitioners and hold that their fundamental rights as guaranteed by Article 12(1) have been infringed upon by the acts of the 1st Respondent, owing to the arbitrary, capricious and irrational manner in which the Petitioners were deprived of their appointments to the rank of Assistant Security Officer, in contravention of established procedures and assurances of the 1st Respondent.

Therefore, in accordance with the powers vested in this Court to make an appropriate, just, and equitable order under Article 126 of the Constitution when an aggrieved party establishes a violation of their fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution, and in consideration of the fact that the Petitioners have now retired from service, I direct the 1st Respondent to backdate the promotions of the Petitioners to the post of Assistant Security Officers with effect from 10.09.2014.

The 1st Respondent is further directed to pay back wages up until the date of retirement to each Petitioner.

Application Allowed without costs.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Priyantha Jayawardena, PC., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution

M.D.S.A. Perera,
No. 59, Pahala Kosgama,
Kosgama.

Petitioner

SC /FR/ Application No. 62/2020

Vs,

1. Dharmasena Dissanayake,
Chairman,
Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

1A. Jagath Balapatabendi
Chairman,

2. Prof. Hussain Ismail,
Member,

2A. Indrani Sugathadasa,
Member,

3. Dr. Prathap Ramanujam,
Member,

3A. V. Shivagnanasothy,
Member,

4. V. Jegarasasingam,
Member,

4A. Dr. T.R.C. Ruberu,
Member,

5. S. Ranugge,
Member,

5A. Ahamod Lebbe Mohamed Saleem,
Member,

6. D. Laksiri Mendis,
Member,

6A. Leelasena Liyanagama,
Member,

7. Sarath Jayathilaka,
Member,

7A. Dian Gomes,
Member,

8. Sudarma Karunarathna,
Member,

8A. Dilith Jayaweera,
Member,

9. G.S.A. De Silva P.C.,
Member,

9A. W.H. Piyadasa,
Member,

The 2nd to 9th Respondents all of;

Public Service Commission,
No. 122/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

10. M.A.B. Daya Senarath,
Secretary,
Public Service Commission,
No. 122/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

11. S. Hettiarachchi,
Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Home of Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

11A. J.J. Rathnasiri,
Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Home of Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

11B. M.P.K. Mayadunne,
Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Home of Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

12. Jagath D. Dias,
Director General,
Department of Pensions,
Maligawatta, Colombo 10.

13. W.D. Jayasinghe,
Secretary General,
National Procurement Commission,
No. 145, Main Street, Battaramulla.

14. Mayuri Perera,
Director Administration,
National Procurement Commission,
No. 145, Main Street, Battaramulla.

15. C.P.U. Hettiarachchi,
Senior Assistant Secretary,
(Internal Administration)
Ministry of Public Administration, Home of Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government, Independent Square, Colombo 07.

16. T. Murugeson,
Additional Secretary,
Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

17. Hon Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

Before: Justice Vijith K. Malalgoda PC,
Justice K. Kumudini Wickremasinghe,
Justice Mahinda Samayawardhena,

Counsel: Shantha Jayawardena with Hiranya Damunupola for the Petitioner
Sureka Almeda, SC, for the Respondents

Argued on: 12. 07.2023
Judgment on: 14.12.2023

Vijith K. Malalgoda PC J

The Petitioner M.D.S.A Perera of No. 59 Pahala Kosgama, Kosgama who was serving as a Grade I Accountant in the Sri Lanka Accountants Service, had complained of an illegally initiated disciplinary inquiry commenced a few days prior to his retirement upon completion of 60 years, which made him to retire under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension violating his Fundamental Right to equality guaranteed under Article 12 (1) of the Constitution.

This Court granted leave to proceed on the alleged violation of Article 12 (1) on 24th November 2021. As revealed before us, the Petitioner was served with a charge sheet by the Public Service Commission at the time of his retirement and another charge sheet was also issued to him subsequently.

1st Charge sheet against the Petitioner

The Petitioner was a resident of Kosgama, close to the Salawa Army Camp where the armory of the said camp exploded causing damage to the residents of the area. The Petitioner's house and personal vehicle were damaged due to the said explosion but the Petitioner was not happy with the compensation awarded to him. Whilst making inquiries, he got to know that the compensation paid to certain individuals is disproportionate to the damage caused and made a complaint to the Divisional Secretary informing his dissatisfaction. In the meantime, a Right to Information (hereinafter referred to as RTI) application was made to the office of the Cabinet of Ministers requesting copies of Cabinet Memorandums and Decisions in respect of the assessment and granting relief to Salawa victims. Once he received three Cabinet decisions as per the above request, he made several requests under the Right to Information Act to several authorities including;

1. The request made to information officer of the Ministry of Disaster Management dated 14.07.2017
2. The request made to Divisional Secretariat Seethawaka dated 28.08.2017
3. The request made to the Department of Valuation dated 30.08.2017
4. Appeal dated 21.09.2017 made to RTI Commission.

At the time the Petitioner made the above RTI applications, he was working as the Chief Accountant at the Ministry of Rural Economic Development, and in some of the Applications made, he placed his official stamp on the request application.

Whilst the above process was in progress, the Petitioner was informed of a complaint made by one Sudath Pushpakumara to the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration by letter dated 14.03.2018 against the Petitioner, and a preliminary investigation was held and a statement was recorded from the Petitioner.

The Petitioner has annexed marked P-15 a copy of the preliminary investigation report and brought to our attention to the following two passages one from the observations and the other from the recommendations of the inquiry officer.

> "එම්. ඩී. එම්. ඒ. පෙරේරා මහතා ආපදා කළමනාකරණ අමාත්‍යාංශයේ හා සීතාවක ප්‍රාදේශීය ලේකම් කාර්යාලයේ තොරතුරු නිලධාරී වෙතින් තොරතුරු ඉල්ලා යොමු කරන ලද ලිපි සඳහා සිය නිලනාමය හා මුද්‍රාව භාවිතා කර ඇති බව තහවුරු වුවද රාජ්‍ය සේවයේ නියුතු මාණ්ඩලික නිලධාරියකු වෙත නිකුත් කෙරෙන නිල මුද්‍රාව භාවිතා කල යුතු ආකාරය හෝ භාවිතයට අදාල සීමාවන් පිළිබඳව ආයතන සංග්‍රහයේ විධිවිධාන යටතේ හෝ රාජ්‍ය පරිපාලන චක්‍රලේඛ විධිවිධාන යටතේ සඳහන් නොවන හෙයින් ඔහු වරදක් සිදුකර නොමැති බව තහවුරු වන බව."

> "එම්. ඩී. එම්. ඒ. පෙරේරා මහතාට තොරතුරු පනත යටතේ සිය පෞද්ගලික අවශ්‍යතා සඳහා තොරතුරු ලබා ගැනීම හෝ යම් පාර්ශවයක් සම්බන්ධව පෞද්ගලික පැමිණිලි කිරීම සඳහා යන කාරණය සඳහා සිය රාජකාරී තනතුර හා නිල මුද්‍රාව භාවිත කිරීමෙන් වැලකී සිටින ලෙස අවවාද කිරීමට කටයුතු කිරීම."

Even though the said "preliminary investigation report" had only recommended, that the Petitioner be warned not to use his official seal for any personal purpose, no such warning was issued to the Petitioner by the disciplinary authority but, he received a letter dated 04.11.2019 from the 15th Respondent calling for explanation to the charge sheet dated 21.10.2019 issued by the 10th Respondent. The said charge sheet which is produced marked P-17 contained two charges and the count one refers to the charge of misusing his official stamp.

As submitted by the Petitioner, by letter dated 13.12.2019 his explanation was forwarded to the Ministry of Public Administration.

2nd Charge sheet against the Petitioner

The Petitioner had been appointed to the National Procurement Commission on an acting basis to the Post of Director (Procurement Investigation) by letter dated 07.11.2018 and while he was functioning in the above capacity it was revealed by the Audit Report dated 30.05.2019 published by National Audit Office, that there were financial irregularities pertaining to the official vehicle used by the 13th Respondent in violation of Public Administration Circulars 05 of 2016 and 14 of 2008.

The Petitioner brought this matter to the notice of the Chairman and the Members of the Commission and also forwarded letters dated 15.07.2019 to the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption and Secretary to the Public Service Commission complaining about the said irregularity.

By letter dated 03.09.2019, the Petitioner was transferred from the post of Director (Procurement Investigation) to the Ministry of Public Administration, Disaster Management and Livestock Development. The said decision to transfer the Petitioner was challenged by the Petitioner by way of a Fundamental Rights Application before the Supreme Court bearing No. 379/2019 but the Proceeding in the said matter was terminated since the Petitioner was granted a substantive position as the Chief Internal Auditor in the Ministry of Plantation Industries and Export Agriculture.

In the meantime, the Petitioner was served with a notice requesting him to be present at the National Procurement Commission on 31.10.2019 to record a statement with regard to an investigation conducted against him. The Petitioner made a statement to the investigating officer as requested and the Petitioner was served with a charge sheet dated 06.02.2020 by the 10th Respondent. The said charge sheet contained charges with regard to his conduct in making a complaint against the 13th and the 14th Respondents to the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption.

However prior to the second charge sheet dated 06.02.2020 being served on the Petitioner, by letter dated 23.01.2020 the Public Service Commission had informed the 11th Respondent that the explanation given by the Petitioner to the charge sheet dated 21.10.2019 is not acceptable to the Public Service Commission and therefore the Commission had decided to hold a formal disciplinary inquiry against the Petitioner and pending the said inquiry the Commission had decided to send the Petitioner on retirement from 07.02.2020 when he completed 60 years under the provisions of Section 12 of the Pension Minute.

It is the said decision of the Public Service Commission that is challenged before this Court under paragraphs 'e' and 'h' to the prayer of the petition along with several other reliefs to declare null and void the decisions by the Public Service Commission to hold formal inquires against the Petitioner.

It was also submitted on behalf of the Petitioner before this Court that, when the Public Service Commission had called for his explanation with regard to the charge sheet dated 21.10.2019, the charges were referred to the Secretary of Public Administration, for his observation and the Secretary of Public Administrtion having referred the charges to the Secretary to the Ministry of Mahaweli, Agriculture, Irrigation and Rural Development, the Ministry under which the Petitioner was serving at that time, had forwarded the observations of the Secretary to the Ministry of Mahaweli, Agriculture, Irrigation, and Rural Development where Petitioner had been recommended to be discharged. However, the said recommendation was rejected by the Public Service Commission. (P-38 or P-39)

Whilst submitting the above, the Petitioner who was a Senior Accountant in the Government Accountants Service had made an allegation which is personal in nature, against the 1st Respondent, namely Dharmasena Dissanayake, Chairman of Public Service Commission, of his involvement in deciding to hold a preliminary inquiry as well as a formal inquiry when the relevant authorities had recommended otherwise. It was alleged that the 1st Respondent in his capacity as the Chairman of Public Service Commission and previously as the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration had developed an animosity towards the Petitioner who was the Secretary to the Government Accountants Association who had made him the Respondent in several litigations before the Supreme Court. (P-4 or P-5)

Whilst resisting any relief being granted to the Petitioner, the incumbent Chairman of the Public Service Commission had submitted the following before this Court,

a) At the time the Petitioner reached his age of retirement, i.e., 60 years, the disciplinary action against him was pending on a complaint said to have been made against him by one W.V.D. Sudath Pushpakumara of No. 64/2B, Balika Vidyalaya Mawatha, Pahala Kosgama, Kosgama of misusing official powers and state property.
b) In the said circumstances, the Petitioner was sent on retirement under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension
c) The Petition referred to above was received against the Petitioner in March 2018 and on a directive made by the Public Service Commission, the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration appointed a two-member panel to conduct a preliminary investigation into the complaint

During the investigation, it was revealed that on 04.08.2016 when the officers of the Assistant Government Agents office Seethawaka were making preparations to pay compensation to the victims who suffered losses to their houses, the office had received a complaint from one M.D.S.A. Perera who had introduced himself as the Chief Accountant to the Ministry of Rural Development and also Deputy Director at Anti-Corruption Secretariat, complaining that, the relevant authorities have recommended Rs. 853,000 for the damages caused to the house of one W.D. Sudath Pushpakumara in excess of the real damage caused to him but the compensation recommended to the others, whose houses were damaged more than the house of Pushpakumara, were less than the amount recommended to Pushpakumara. The Petitioner had further requested to stop any payment until the matter is fully investigated.

The officials at the Assistant Government Agents office had taken note of the said complaint and the payment was re-considered through the Government valuer.

In addition to the above complaint the Petitioner made, he had submitted several RTI requests to various government institutions. The Petitioner identifying himself as the Chief Accountant Rural Development Ministry had submitted an RTI application on 14.07.2017 to the Ministry of Disaster Management requesting the details of;

a) As per Cabinet paper 23/2016, lists of 1794 beneficiaries who received compensation of less than one million each, 112 beneficiaries who received compensation over one million each, and the list of recipients who were recommended to receive compensation for damaged house hold items

b) As per Cabinet paper 18/2016, list of 2031 beneficiaries who received compensation ranging between 100,000/- and 1,000,000/-

c) As per Cabinet paper 14/2016, list of beneficiaries who were recommended to receive up to Rs. 10,000/- for the loss caused to them as self-employed people of the area including three-wheeler owners, shop owners, etc.

As some of the information he requested was considered confidential, several letters were exchanged between several government institutions including a letter written by the Secretary to the Ministry of Disaster Management to the Secretary of the Ministry of Rural Development Ministry inquiring whether the information called by its Accountant is required for an official purpose. This letter was replied to by the Additional Secretary to the Ministry of Rural Development informing that the requested information was not required for any official purpose. In the meantime, the Petitioner too had written another letter to the Ministry of Disaster Management requesting the registered number of his request, and in the said letter he had placed his official seal below his signature.

By letter dated 24.07.2017, the Petitioner had submitted a similar RTI request from the Seethawaka Pradeshiya Saba requesting information almost similar to his request made to the Ministry of Disaster Management with specific reference to the amounts they paid to each party with a full list under each category. In the request he made, he had placed the official rubber stamp below his signature. This request too was considered confidential and several letters were exchanged between several government agencies.

Making another RTI request from the Government Valuation Department by letter dated 30.08.2017 requesting the details of the valuations the Department made with regard to damage caused to houses, household equipment, and vehicles during the explosion that took place on 25.06.206 at the Army Camp Salawa-Kosgama.

However, the Petitioner was not successful in obtaining the said request either. The Petitioner was informed by the Valuation Department that there are matters pending before the Human Rights Commission and the Supreme Court on the matter referred to in the request and therefore refused to issue the information requested by him.

As against the orders made by the authorities refusing to issue the RTI requests made by the Petitioner, he submitted an appeal to the Right to Information Commission. It was further observed in the investigation report that the information requested by the Petitioner did not appear to be personal in nature but was general in nature and that was the main reason for the authorities to refuse the requests made by the Petitioner. It was further revealed that the Petitioner in addition to identifying his designation in the applications he made, had also placed his official stamp in those requests. The fact that the Petitioner was using his official status and the official stamp was quarried from him by the Additional Secretary to the Ministry of Rural Development, the Ministry Under which the Petitioner was working at that time by letter dated 30.01.2018. By letter dated 04.04.2018, the same officer had informed the Petitioner that there was material to establish him using his official status and official stamp for private matters. By letter dated 06.12.2018, the same officer had warned the Petitioner to refrain from using his official designation and the official stamp when obtaining information for private matters.

Whilst referring to the above information with regard to the report the inquiring officers submitted to the Public Service Commission, the incumbent Chairman of the Public Service Commission has taken up the position that, the purpose for requesting the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration to hold an inquiry was to ascertain whether the Petitioner had committed any misconduct, by misusing the official powers and government property.

With regard to the recommendation submitted by the inquiry officer, it was submitted that the Public Service Commission is not bound to act on those recommendations, but the Commission after considering the conduct of the Petitioner which was revealed from the inquiry report had decided to commence a formal inquiry against the Petitioner and therefore directed the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration to submit draft charges. On receipt of the draft charges the Public Service Commission by charge sheet dated 21.10.2019 (R-5) called for an explanation from the Petitioner and also requested the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Disaster Management and Livestock Development to submit their observations and recommendations to the above charge sheet.

The Public Service Commission has once again considered the explanation provided by the Petitioner and the observations of the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Disaster Management and Livestock Development, and was of the view that the Petitioner should face a formal Disciplinary Inquiry in terms of Section 15.9 of Chapter XLVIII of the Establishment Code. The above decision was reached by the Commission by order dated 23.01.2020 with a consequential decision to retire the Petitioner under Section 12 of the Minutes of Pension with effect from 02.07.2020.

The Formal Disciplinary Inquiry had proceeded against the Petitioner and the findings of the said inquiry to exonerate the Petitioner were submitted to the Public Service Commission but the Commission has considered the recommendations, the circumstances, and the nature of the allegations leveled against the Petitioner in the charge sheet, had found the Petitioner guilty of both charges and recommended to the Secretary to Ministry of Public Administration Provincial Council and Local Government to deduct 2% from his commuted pension as a punishment in terms of section 36.7.of Chapter XLVIII of the Establishment Code.

The Petitioner who was aggrieved by the said disciplinary order; had appealed to the Administrative Appeals Tribunal and the Petitioner was exonerated from all charges by the said tribunal by order dated 10.11.2022 and the said order had been given effect to by the Public Service Commission.

As already observed by me, there were recommendations by the investigating officer who conducted the preliminary investigation, the Secretary to the Ministry of Mahaweli, Agriculture, Irrigation and Rural Development, and the Inquiry officer who conducted the Formal Inquiry to discharge the Petitioner but the Public Service Commission had overruled the said recommendation and proceeded with the inquiry and found the Petitioner guilty of the two charges framed against him; until he was exonerated by the Administrative Appeals Tribunal.

Since a Complaint had been received against the Petitioner by the Public Service Commission, the Commission had directed the Secretary of Public Administration, Disaster Management to hold the preliminary investigation under the delegated powers identified in paragraphs 6:1 and 6:2 of the Establishment Code. (Chapter XLVIII)

Provisions in paragraphs 6:3, 13:1, and 13:12 of the Establishment Code refer to the provisions that need to be followed after a preliminary investigation carried out under paragraphs 6.1 and 6.2 of the Establishment Code as follows;

> 6:3 If a prima-facie case is disclosed against the officer by the preliminary investigation held in terms of sub-section 6:2 above, the relevant Disciplinary Authority should prepare a charge sheet and duly issue it to the officer. However, in the case of an officer in the Combined Services, the Head of the Department in which the officer works should forward, without delay, the draft charge sheet and other documents to the Director of Combined Services.

13:1 A preliminary investigation is that which is conducted by a Disciplinary Authority or Head of Institution or other Appropriate Authority or by an officer or a Committee of Officers duly authorized by the above authorities to find facts as are necessary to ascertain the truth of suspicion or information that an act of misconduct has been committed by an officer or several officers and to find out and report whether there are, prima-facie, sufficient material and evidence to prefer charges and take disciplinary action against the officer or officers under suspicion. The primary task of an officer or a Committee of Officers conducting a preliminary investigation is the recording of statements of relevant persons, examination of documents and records, obtaining of originals or certified copies thereof, physical verification of state-owned assets in the charge of the officer or officers subject to the investigation, examination of relevant premises, taking over of all articles and documents which are considered necessary and making their observations and recommendations on matters found out by them regarding the act of misconduct committed.

13:12 After the completion of the preliminary investigation, the officer conducting the investigation should forward the report of the preliminary investigation together with the statements obtained from relevant parties, documents, etc. taken into his custody and his observations and recommendations to the appropriate authority. The officer conducting the preliminary investigation should also prepare a draft charge sheet as per Appendix 5 of this Code and forward it to the relevant authority in the event that sufficient material is disclosed that calls for disciplinary action against the suspect officer or officers.

As per the provisions referred above, a responsibility is cast upon the investigating officer or the panel to submit observations and recommendations with the report to the disciplinary authority and to submit a draft charge sheet in the event sufficient material is disclosed against the suspect officer. However, the Establishment Code is silent in a situation where the disciplinary authority cannot agree with the recommendation of the inquiry officer.

In the case of Prof. Desmond Mallikarachci Vs. University of Peradeniya and Others SC Appeal 120/2010 SC minutes dated 25.04.2019 the purpose of a preliminary inquiry was identified as follows;

> "The purpose of a preliminary inquiry under the Government Establishments Code as set out in paragraph 13.1, Chapter XLVIII is "to find facts as are necessary to ascertain the truth of a suspicion or information that an act of misconduct has been committed by an officer or several officers, and to find out and report whether there are, prima-facie, sufficient material and evidence to prefer charges and take disciplinary action against the officer or officers under suspicion."

In the case of T.G.J.L. Amarasinghe Vs. Dr. N.C.D. Ariyarathne and others SC FR 15/2017 SC minutes dated 02.09.2019 Prasanne Jayawardena J observes the instance where the disciplinary authority could issue a charge sheet as follows;

> "In view of this fact, the scheme of the Establishments Code is that when a Disciplinary Authority is considering whether disciplinary action should be taken against a public officer, he should first ensure a 'preliminary investigation' is held to ascertain whether there is a prima-facie case which justifies taking disciplinary action against that public officer.

Thereafter, a Charge Sheet is to be issued only if that preliminary investigation discloses a prima facie case against the public officer. Needless to say, this is a safeguard put in place to ensure that disciplinary action against a public officer is commenced only where it is justified."

As submitted by the 1st Respondent, in the absence of a draft charge sheet, the commission had directed the Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration, Disaster Management and Livestock Development to submit the draft charge sheet to the commission in order to call for an explanation from the Petitioner. However, the relevant provisions of the Establishment Code do not provide the Secretary to the line ministry to draft a charge sheet but it is the duty of the investigating officer to submit the draft charge sheet along with his recommendation if the preliminary investigation discloses an offence committed by the public servant who was under investigation.

As revealed before us, the Public Service Commission had thereafter issued the charge sheet to the Petitioner calling for his explanation and acted on the advance copy of the explanation the commission received directly from the Petitioner without waiting for the proper documentation to come from the relevant ministry and acting under the provisions of paragraph 15:9 of Chapter XLVIII of the Establishment Code, decided to hold a formal disciplinary inquiry against the Petitioner. However, it is revealed from the material placed before this Court, that the formal documents received by the Public Service Commission contained a recommendation from the Secretary to the Ministry of Mahaweli, Agriculture, Irrigation and Rural Development recommending the discharge of the Petitioner. The decision to hold the Formal Disciplinary Inquiry was communicated by letter dated 23.01.2020 by the Public Service Commission and it was further decided to retire the Petitioner under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension with effect from 07.02.2020. The above conduct of the Public Service Commission, especially with regard to its decision to act on the advance copy of the explanation given by the Petitioner and to communicate its decision to hold the formal disciplinary inquiry reveals the interest the Public Service Commission had shown to commence a formal inquiry against the Petitioner before he reaches the retiring age on 07th February 2020.

The principle that there is no unfettered power in taking executive and/or administrative decisions, is recognized in the case of Marie Indira Fernandopulle and Another Vs. E.L. Senanayake, Minister of Land and Agriculture 79 NLR 115 at page 120 as follows;

> "Are the courts obliged to turn a deaf ear merely because some statutory officer is able to proclaim "I alone decide," "When I open my mouth let no dog bark?" If that be the position when rights of the subject are involved, then the court would have abdicated its powers necessary to safeguard the rights of the individual."

With regard to the allegation leveled against the 1st Respondent, Chairman Public Service Commission that he was biased against the Petitioner, and had taken a personal interest in penalizing him ignoring the recommendations to exonerate the Petitioner, I am not inclined to accept the said position taken up by the Petitioner for the following reason,

i. The Petitioner had failed to submit any concrete material to establish his complaint except for him being one of the Petitioners in two cases filed against several public officials, including the 1st Respondent.

ii. When the decision to overrule the recommendation by the Formal Inquiry and convict him on the two charges against him the Chairman of the Public Service Commission had been charged and the said decision had been taken by the incumbent chairman of the Public Service Commission.

It is also observed by this Court that, when the Petitioner was charge-sheeted by charge sheet dated 06.02.2020 for the second time with regard to his conduct at the National Procurement Commission, the Public Service Commission has considered the explanation submitted by the Petitioner, appointed an inquiry officer to conduct a Formal Disciplinary Inquiry but, decided to reject the conclusion of the inquiry officer when the inquiry officer had found him guilty of the charge sheet and decided that the charges have not been proven against the Petitioner and exonerated the Petitioner from the two charges leveled against him through the disciplinary order dated 30.08.2022.

It is also observed from the material placed before this Court that the second charge sheet based on the complainant made by the National Procurement Commission was also issued to the Petitioner on 06.02.2020, a day prior to his date of retirement, but the formal inquiry based on the said charge sheet was commenced on 24.07.2020 several months after his retirement and therefore the above decision had not influenced the decision to retire the Petitioner under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension.

The Complaint before this Court was made by the Petitioner at a time he was sent on retirement under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension and the Petitioner had prayed several reliefs with regard to the two disciplinary inquiries pending against him. As already referred to in this Judgment, the Petitioner had been exonerated from the 1st charge sheet by the order of the Administrative Appeal Tribunal and was exonerated from the 2nd charge sheet by the order dated 30.08.2022 of the Public Service Commission. When considering the material already discussed in this Judgment, especially with regard to the conduct of the Public Service Commission in sending the Petitioner on retirement under Section 12 of the Minutes on Pension, I am of the view that the Petitioner was successful in establishing the violation of his Fundamental Rights for the equal protection of law guaranteed under Article 12 (1) of the Constitution.

In the said circumstances, this Court holds that the 1st to 10th Respondents have acted in violation of the Fundamental Rights of the Petitioner guaranteed under Article 12 (1) of the Constitution.

We direct the state to pay as costs for litigation, a sum of Rupees 50,000/-

Application allowed with costs for litigation.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Justice K. Kumudini Wickremasinghe,

I agree,

Judge of the Supreme Court

Justice Mahinda Samayawardhena,

I agree,

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

S.C. (F/R) 63/2018

Darmaraja Nilithi Prasadi (Minor)

Appearing by her Next friend

Guardian ad litem

Perumal Darmaraja

Both of No.55, Walpitawatta,

Balgoda, Poddala.

PETITIONER

vs.

1. Ms. Sandhya Airani
   Pathiranawasam
   The principal,
   Southlands College,
   Galle.
2. Director of National Schools
   Ministry of Education,
   "Isurupaya", Battaramulla.

3. The Secretary,
   Ministry of Education,

"Isurupaya", Battaramulla.

4. C.C. Jayasinghe
   Parent/Guardian of N.N.
   Jayasinghe,
   No. 130/C, Hakkanawatha,
   Kumme Baddegama.

5. J.V.P. Darshana
   Parent/ Guadian of J.V. Rishadhi, Dinlini,
   No. 124/3, Elliot Road,
   Galle.

6. H.M.N. Dhilrukshi,
   Parent/ Guardian of H.T.S.
   Nethusara,
   Keenaduwa, Gonapura, Poddala.

7. K.M. Manimekala,
   Parent/ Guardian of Isil
   Nethusadhi,
   No 70/12, Sri Panyaloka Mawatha, Ginthota,
   Galle.

8. The Hon Attorney General,
   Attorney General's Department,
   Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : JAYANTHA JAYASURIYA, PC, CJ
B. P. ALUWIHARE, PC, J AND
S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J

COUNSEL : M. P. Ganeshwaran with P. A. J. Dilan Perera for the Petitioners.
Parinda Ranasinghe, PC, ASG with Ms. Nayomi Kahawita SC for the 1st, 2nd, 3rd an 8th Respondents.
Lakshan Dias with Ms. Maneesha Kumarasinghe for 5th and 7th Respondents instructed by Ms. Nayanathara Weerasinghe.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS : 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 8th Respondents on 20th May 2021.
5th and 7th Respondents on 09th May 2023.

ARGUED ON : 17th July 2019.

DECIDED ON : 3rd November 2023.

S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J.

The instant case pertains to an Application filed in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution by the Petitioner, namely Darmaraja Nilithi Prasadi, a minor appearing through her Next Friend, Guardian ad litem, namely Perumal Darmaraja (hereinafter referred to as the "Petitioner"). The Petitioner sought redress in connection with an alleged infringement of Fundamental Rights guaranteed under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(e) of the Constitution by one or more of the Respondents to this Application.

The Respondents in this matter comprise the 1st Respondent, the Principal of Southlands College, Galle; the 2nd Respondent, the Director of National Schools, Ministry of Education; the 3rd Respondent, the Secretary to the Ministry of Education; the 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th Respondents, who are Parents/Guardians of students admitted to Southlands College, Galle; and the 8th Respondent, the Attorney General, who has been included as a Respondent in accordance with constitutional requirements.

This matter was supported before this Court on 9th May 2018, and leave was granted under Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

Factual Matrix

The narrative of this case unfolds against the backdrop of the Petitioner's pursuit of admission by application dated 21st June 2017 to Grade One of Southlands College, Galle for the academic year commencing on 1st January 2018. This application was made on the grounds of the Petitioner's affiliation with the Christian faith and under the quota allocated for the admission of students belonging to said faith. The Petitioner's application was supported by a letter issued by Rev. A. Ravindra Kumar, the Superintendent Minister of Methodist Church, Galle Circuit, dated 23rd June 2017 (marked "P5b"), and a letter issued by the Cavalry Church dated 4th March 2017 (marked "P5c"), serving as evidence of the Petitioner and her family's Christian faith.

Subsequently, the Petitioner's father was invited to participate in an interview to appraise the qualifications of his daughter for admission to Grade One at Southlands College, Galle by letter dated 2nd August 2017 and issued by the 1st Respondent (marked "P6").

Following the interview, the Petitioner was informed that her application had received a total score of 75 marks. In particular, under clause 6.1(b)(iii) of the "Instructions regarding the Admission of Children to Grade One in Government Schools for the year 2018," issued by the Ministry of Education (hereinafter referred to as the "Instructions" and marked' "P4"), the admissions application had scored 45 out of a total of 50 marks under the "Proximity of Residence" category.

Thereafter, the Petitioner, through her father, appealed to the 1st Respondent by letter dated 20th November 2017 (marked "P10"). The grounds for the appeal were two-fold: firstly, the Petitioner asserted the provision of proof of residence in light of the fact that her elder sister was attending the same school, as per section 6.1(b)(ii) of the Instructions; secondly, the contention was raised that, within the administrative District of Galle, there were no schools apart from Southlands College that offered non-Roman Catholic Christianity, as per section 6.1(b)(iii) of the Instructions.

Furthermore, the Petitioner, through her father, submitted a letter of objection dated 30th November 2017 (marked as "P11") to the 1st Respondent regarding the children of the 5th, 6th, and 7th Respondents, who were ranked higher than the Petitioner in the provisional list of successful candidates. The Petitioner alleged the use of fraudulent letters and the ineligibility of these students to be classified as Christian candidates.

The Petitioner contended that the 1st Respondent did not provide a response to the Petitioner's appeal, as stipulated by the guidelines outlined in section 10 of the Instructions issued by the Ministry of Education in the year 2018. Instead, the Petitioner asserted that she was made aware of her unsuccessful candidacy only upon the display of the final list of successful candidates on the Notice Board of Southlands College, Galle by the 1st Respondent on 8th January 2018.

The Petitioner further averred that the 1st Respondent had failed to adhere to clause 3.2 of the Instructions, which mandates that schools vested in the government, in accordance with the provisions of the Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Special Provisions) Act No. 05 of 1960 and the Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Supplementary Provisions) Act No. 08 of 1961, maintain the original ratio of students belonging to different religious faiths at the time of the school's vesting in the government. In the case of Southlands College, Galle, the percentage of non-Roman Catholic Christian students was determined to be 6.9%, which would amount to 16 seats if a total of 240 students were to be admitted.

Thereby, the Petitioner posited that her non-admission to Grade One of Southlands College, Galle, is violative of Article 12, as the 1st Respondent failed to give regard to clauses 3.2 and 6.1 of the Instructions.

Conversely, the 1st Respondent averred that as per section 7.0 of the School Admission Circular No. 22/2017 (marked "R1"), 50% of the quota assigned for students of the Christian faith was to be selected from those applying under the "Proximity of Residence" category (comprising 8 students), and the remaining 50% was to be selected from other categories (also 8 students).

The 1st Respondent further asserted that, for the admissions cycle of 2018, only 4 students of the Christian faith applied under the other admission categories for Non-Catholic Christian students in terms of the Circular. Consequently, the remaining unutilised quota (4 seats) was made available to students of the Christian faith applying under the Proximity of Residence category, thereby increasing the total number of possible applicants from 8 to 12 students, under the said category.

According to the 1st Respondent, the deduction of 5 marks under the "Proximity of Residence" criteria from the Petitioner's application stemmed from the 1st Respondent's assumption that Christudeva Balika College, Galle, which also accepts students belonging to the Non-Roman Catholic Christian faith, was in closer proximity to the Petitioner's residence. Thereby, the application of the Petitioner scored below the cut-off mark (79.75 marks) for Grade One admissions in the year 2018.

In February 2020, during the course of these proceedings, the Court was informed of a vacancy on the list of successful candidates admitted to Grade One of Southlands College, Galle due to the 9th successful candidate leaving the school in Grade Five. The Petitioner, through her father and by letter dated 6th December 2022, requested for the admittance of the Petitioner to fill this vacancy under the quota assigned to non-Roman Catholic Christian students. The same had been refused by the school. The Additional Solicitor General maintained that admitting the Petitioner to Grade Six of Southlands College, Galle would transgress the provisions of the government Circular No. 17 of 2023, dated 25th April 2023, which regulates the entry of students from Grades Two to Eleven. This submission was made in light of the fact that the Petitioner had not obtained sufficient marks to pass the Grade Five scholarship examination.

Analysis

I observe that it is an undisputed fact that the mandated percentage of non-Roman Catholic Christian students to be admitted to Grade One at Southlands College, Galle stands at 6.9% as per the provisions of the Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Special Provisions Act) No. 05 of 1960, and the Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Supplementary Provisions) Act No. 08 of 1961.

In the present case, this is administered by Section 4.2 of Circular No. 22/2017 which states that:

> "1960 අංක 05 දරන උපකෘත පාඨශාලා සහ අභ්‍යාස විද්‍යාල (විශේෂ විධිවිධාන) හා 1961 අංක 08 දරන උපකෘත පාඨශාලා සහ අභ්‍යාස විද්‍යා (පරිපූරක විධිවිධාන) යන පනත් අනුව රජයට පවරා ගන්නා ලද පාසල්වල පුරප්පාඩු පිරවීමේ දී පවරා ගන්නා ලද අවස්ථාවේ තත් පාසලේ සිටි ආගමික සිසු අනුපාතය සැළකිල්ලට ගෙන පුරප්පාඩු සංඛ්‍යාව ආගම් අනුව හා එක් එක් ගණ අනුව බෙදා වෙන් කළ යුතු ය."

An approximate translation would read as follows:

> "In filling vacancies in schools vested to the government under the Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Special Provisions) Act No. 05 of 1960 and Assisted Schools and Training Schools (Supplementary provisions) Act No. 08 of 1961, the proportion of children belonging to different religions at the time of vesting the school to the government will be taken into consideration and the number of vacancies in the said school shall be divided proportionately among different religions and the categories."

The learned Counsel for the Petitioner relied on M.K. Wijethunga and others vs. The Principal Southlands College, Galle (SC/FR Application 612/2004, decided on 07.11.2005), wherein Shirani Bandaranayake J (as her Ladyship was then) observed that, in terms of the extracts of the proceedings of the Methodist Church Synod held in January 1969, there had been 53 Christian students out of the total of 760 students at Southlands College, Galle working out a percentage of 6.9%.

However, it is prudent to inquire whether or not this stipulated ratio is to be maintained beyond the conclusion of the admissions period. I will address this issue following the examination of the 1st Respondent's review of the admission applications.

The 1st Respondent conceded that the score allocated to the Petitioner was erroneous; it was explained to this Court that the 5-mark deduction suffered by the said application was grounded in the incorrect assumption that Christudeva Balika College, Galle, accepted a quota of 10% or more of non-Roman Catholic Christian students.

Pertaining to clause 7.2.3 of Circular No. 22/2017, it is explicitly delineated that the maximum marks under the "Proximity of Residence" category shall be awarded only if the applicant's place of residence is substantiated and no other Government schools with primary sections exist in closer proximity to the applicant's residence than the school to which they have applied. In instances where other Government schools with primary sections, suitable for the child's admission and in closer proximity to the place of residence than the chosen school, are present, marks shall be deducted at the rate of 05 marks for each such school.

The said clause further stipulates:

> "අදාළ දරුවාට ඇතුළත් වීමට හැකි ප්‍රාථමික අංශ සහිත වෙනත් රජයේ පාසලේ යනුවෙන් අදහස් කරන්නේ එම දරුවාට ඇතුළත්වීමට අවශ්‍ය ඉගෙනුම් මාධ්‍ය අය සහිත පාසලක් ද, තමන්ට අදාළ ගැහැණු හෝ පිරිමි පාසලක් ද, මිශ්‍ර පාසලක් ද යන්න සහ අදාළ ළමයා අයිති ආගම වෙනුවෙන් 10% හෝ ඊට වැඩි ප්‍රතිශතයක් ඇතුලත් කර ගන්නා රජයේ පාසල් වේ."

(Emphasis added)

An approximate translation of the above would read as follows:

> "Other Government primary schools that the child could be admitted implies a school that provides the learning medium the child has applied for, a girls', boys' or mixed school as appropriate for the child and a school that admits 10% or more children of the religion to which the child belongs*."*
>
> (Emphasis added)

In light of the above, it is evident that a 5-mark deduction under the "Proximity of Residence" category is applicable only if a school that admits 10% or more students belonging to the candidate's affiliated religion—in this instance, Christianity—is situated closer to the candidate's residence.

The 1st Respondent has admitted to erroneously deducting marks based on the incorrect assumption that Christudeva Balika College, Galle, accepted a quota of 10% or more of non-Roman Catholic Christian students. In fact, the actual figure of accepted Christian students at that institution stood at a mere 2%. However, the 1st Respondent has contended the reversal of this deduction, the cut-off mark would be raised to 82.5 marks, while the recalculated score of the application submitted by the Petitioner would amount to 80 marks, and thereby, the Petitioner would continue to rank below the successful applicants admitted to Grade One.

At this juncture, it is important to clarify that this Court does not intend to question nor intervene in the admission of the 12 successful candidates, based on the revised cut-off mark of 82.5 marks following the rectification of the erroneous 5-mark deduction.

Nonetheless, the Petitioner's application was unsuccessful due to the fact that it did not fulfil the requirements to be admitted. However, I observe that had the school authority properly inquired into the allegation made with regard to the admission of the children belonging to the 5th,6th and 7th Respondents, there would have been a high likelihood that those students would have disqualified for admission under the quota assigned to non-Roman Catholic Christian students, in which event the Petitioner's application and admittance would have been successful.

While I do not wish to delve extensively into the matter regarding the eligibility of the applications of the children belonging to the 5th, 6th and 7th Respondents to Southlands College, Galle, it is important to underscore that, notwithstanding the contentions of the 1st Respondent to the contrary, it is indeed the duty of the school administration to ensure the validity and accuracy of admissions applications and their accompanying documentation before admitting students. Nevertheless, this Court refrains from intervening in the ongoing education of the children of the 5th, 6th and 7th Respondents, and thus, no order shall be issued in this regard.

Under these circumstances, I am of the view that the Petitioner's fundamental rights to equality guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution have been violated. Therefore, I direct the 1st Respondent, or the incumbent holder of the office of the 1st Respondent, and the 3rd Respondent to admit the Petitioner in S.C. (F/R) 63/2018, namely, Darmaraja Nilithi Prasadi, to the appropriate corresponding Grade of Southlands College, Galle forthwith.

Application Allowed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JAYANTHA JAYASURIYA, PC, CJ

I agree.

CHIEF JUSTICE

B. P. ALUWIHARE, PC, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA.

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution read with Article 17 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

Wijewickrama Manamperig Leelawathi
Udahawatta,
Ulahitiyawa,
Middeniya.

Petitioner

S.C.(FR) Application No. 85/2015

Vs.

1. Priyantha Kulathunga,
   Police Sergeant (54471),
   Sooriyawewa Police Station,
   Sooriyawewa.
2. Chaminda Prabath,
   Police Constable (35079),
   Sooriyawewa Police Station,
   Sooriyawewa.
3. J. Chandana,
   Police Constable (38261),
   Sooriyawewa Police Station,
   Sooriyawewa.
4. Sunil Shantha,
   Police Constable (40720),
   Sooriyawewa Police Station,
   Sooriyawewa.
5. K.A.Sampath Peiris,
   Police Constable (39716),
   Sooriyawewa Police Station,

Sooriyawewa.

6. Sisira Padma Kumara,
Police Constable (61985),
Sooriyawewa Police Station,
Sooriyawewa.

7. N.K.Illangakoon
Inspector General of Police,
Police Headquarters,
Colombo 01.

8. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Hulftsdorp Street,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

****

BEFORE : L.T.B. DEHIDENIYA, J.
A.L. SHIRAN GOONERATNE, J.
ACHALA WENGAPPULI, J.

COUNSEL : Lakshan Dias with Maneesha Kumarasinghe for the Petitioner.
Anuja Premaratne P.C. with Naushalya Rajapaksha for the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents.
Dushantha Kularatne with Roshan Pathirana instructed by Iranga Wijegunawardena for the 4th and 5th Respondents.
Ms. Induni Punchihewa SC for the Hon. Attorney General.

ARGUED ON : 09th August, 2021

DECIDED ON : 12th January, 2023

ACHALA WENGAPPULI, J.

The Petitioner, one Wijewickrama Manamperige Leelawathi of Middeniya, invoked the jurisdiction conferred on this Court under Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution by her petition dated 13.03.2015, and sought a declaration that the fundamental rights guaranteed to her son Liyana Arachchige Samantha, under Articles 11, 12(1), 13(3),13(4) and 13(5), had been violated by the executive or administrative actions of the 1st to 6th Respondents on the allegation that he had died whilst being held under Police custody, after he was severely beaten with pipes, poles and sticks at the time of his arrest. It was averred by the Petitioner in her petition that 35-year old Liyana Arachchige Samantha is the third of her six children. He was living with one Kadukannage Sriyalatha at the time of his death and earned his living as a mason. He was known to his fellow villagers as Pallam Sudu Putha or Pallam Sudu Aiya.

When this application was supported on 09.01.2017, this Court granted Leave to Proceed for alleged infringement of Articles 11, 12(1) and 13(4) of the Constitution.

In describing the chain of events that culminated with the death of her son, the Petitioner stated that her son was arrested by two Police officers on 19.02.2015 between 4.00 – 5.00 p.m. while returning home on his motorcycle. Two Policemen had stopped Samantha near the 2nd sluice gate of the 4th bund of Viharagala Tank and questioned him about a hidden stock of illicit liquor. Thereupon, the Policemen removed his shirt and tied his hands with it. They had then questioned Samantha and demanded to reveal where he had kept his stock of illicit liquor concealed. The questioning by the two Policemen had turned violent, when they repeatedly assaulted Samantha with a hose pipe, which continued even after he had fallen on the ground. Samantha was initially crying out loud calling for help but started screaming murder as the assault had continued with heightened intensity. Upon hearing his screams, some of his fellow villagers have come near the place and saw the attack on Samantha. He was thereafter taken to his house, that had been lay abandoned after his wife deserted him few years back, and there too the assault continued. He was initially beaten with a black hose pipe by the two Policemen and when joined by another four, who were in uniform and had arrived there in two motorcycles, poles and sticks were also used. The reinforcements had arrived after one of the two Policemen gave a call to someone asking to come. One of the Policemen had emerged from the nearby abandoned house with a bottle in his hand and poured its contents into a 10 litre can, which the officers had brought along with them. Thereafter, the group of Policemen had left the scene, carrying Samantha with them, in one of their motorcycles.

The 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents have collectively filed their objections resisting the application of the Petitioner, whereas the 4th and 5th Respondents have filed their objections individually. Despite being represented by their respective Counsel, the 1st to 6th Respondents were unanimous in adopting their stance that the deceased Liyana Arachchige Samantha did not die in Police custody and his death had occurred whilst in the custody of Prison officers, who kept him under their detention, until he fulfilled his bail conditions. They also specifically deny having assaulted Samantha and assert that he did not disclose of any assault by 1st to 6th Respondents, either to the medical staff or to the Magistrate, who visited him at Hambantota Hospital.

According to the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents, they left their station at 8.30 a.m. on 19.02.2015, as they were to conduct preventive measures under the Excise Ordinance. Whilst on duty, the 2nd Respondent received information that a person possessing a quantity of illicit liquor was travelling near Viharagala junction. The officers decided to make a detection and have positioned themselves near Viharagala tank, awaiting the arrival of that person. Then they saw one person, matching with the description given by the informant, walking along the bund carrying a can. When they approached him, he started to run, leaving behind his can. After giving a chase, he was apprehended and the officers have identified him as Samantha alias Pallan Sudda, who by then had several prosecutions for illegally possessing illicit liquor. According to the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents, Samantha had sustained injuries due to a fall, after fleeing from them. They recovered 8250 ml of suspected illicit liquor from the possession of Samantha. None of the officers involved with the arrest did assault him. He was then produced at the Station at 6.48 p.m. along with the productions and his personal belongings, which included some cash and a hand phone.

In replying to the allegation of assault, the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents state that Samantha had sustained abrasions "on the back of his body" after being tripped over the protruding Margosa roots, while running away from them. They further state that, in the following morning it was found that Samantha had suffered injuries to his eyebrow, nostrils and cheek after a fall from a cement bench, whilst being kept in the cell of Sooriyawewa Police, subsequent to his arrest. The 1st to 6th Respondents tendered their notes of investigation along with their individual affidavits, in support of their respective positions.

The 4th Respondent takes up a preliminary objection in his objections as to the standing of the Petitioner to invoke jurisdiction of this Court and further claims that it was the 2nd and 6th Respondents, who made the arrest and he had merely gone to the place of arrest, having assumed duties just four days before. He makes an allegation that Samantha had been brutally assaulted by Prison guards, after he made a failed attempt to escape from their custody. The 4th Respondent challenges the accuracy of the out entry made by the 1st Respondent on 19.02.2015 at 8.30 a.m., which indicated that he (the 4th Respondent) too had left the station with other Respondents and thereby contradicting his claim that he went there only after the arrest was made.

The preliminary objection on the standing of the Petitioner was also taken up by the 5th Respondent. He too claims that Samantha was taken to the Station by the 1st Respondent in his motorcycle and despite the arrest was made by the 3rd Respondent, the 1st Respondent had made notes claiming responsibility to the arrest. The 5th Respondent also takes up the position that he had merely visited the place of arrest and Samantha had no visible injuries when the latter was handed over to the reservist. The 5th Respondent also alleged that it was the Prison guards, who have assaulted Samantha after his failed attempt to escape and as a result his "condition has got worsen". He further suspects foul play, in stating that Samantha had died after he was administered an injection by the medical staff at Hambantota Hospital.

At the hearing, the 4th and 5th Respondents did not pursue their preliminary objection, perhaps in view of the pronouncement made by this Court in rejecting a similar objection, in the Judgment of Lama Hewage Lal (Deceased), Rani Fernando (Wife of deceased Lal) and

Others v Officer in Charge - Minor offences, Seeduwa Police Station and Others (2005) 1 Sri L.R. 40, by observing thus;

> "It is therefore settled law that the lawful heirs and/or dependants of a person who is deceased as a result of an act of torture should be entitled to a declaration of the violation and compensation".

In this instant, the Petitioner is the mother of the deceased person and for that reason she is also one of the lawful heirs of her deceased son. Therefore, she has the necessary standing to invoke jurisdiction of this Court for violation of the fundamental rights of her son.

Now I proceed to consider the merits of her application.

It is the 1st to 6th Respondents' contention that the Petitioner had failed to establish her allegation of violation of fundamental rights that had been made against them to the required degree of proof, being a "high degree of certainty". The Respondents further contended that when the several discrepancies in the version of events, as narrated by the witnesses of the Petitioner, are considered along with the reason attributed by the deceased himself as to the cause of the injuries he had suffered to his face, the Petitioner has failed to prove that the fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 11, 12(1) and 13(4) of the Constitution had been infringed by them.

In Malinda Channa Pieris vs. AG. and Others 1994 1 Sri LR 1 it was stated that unless the petitioner had adduced sufficient evidence to satisfy the Court, he will fail to obtain a declaration of infringement of his fundamental rights. This has been the accepted norm in International Courts as in Fillkastre vs. Bolivia (HRC. 5.11.1991 - UN Committee on Human rights) the U.N. Committee on Human Rights had held that there was no violation because the allegations had not been substantiated or corroborated.

A series of decided cases Thadchanamoorthi v Attorney-General (1980) FRD 129, Goonewardene v Perera (1983) 1 Sri LR 305, Kapugeekiyana v Hettiarachchi (1984) 2 Sri LR 153, Channa Peiris & Others v Attorney-General (ibid) had clearly laid down the principle that the civil standard of persuasion would apply and a high degree of certainty would be required 'before the balance of probability might be said to tilt in favour of a petitioner' who has been attempting to discharge his burden in proving that his fundamental rights guaranteed in terms of Article 11 had been violated by the respondents, whereas the Judgments of Velumurugu v Attorney-General (1981) 1 Sri L.R. 406, Jeganathan v Attorney-General (1982) 1 Sri LR 294, Sasanasiritissa Thero and Others v P.A. de Silva, Chief Inspector – CID and Others (1989) 2 Sri L.R. 356, and Erandaka and Another v Hawlea, Officer in Charge – Hakmana and Others (2004) 1 Sri L.R. 268, speaks of "strict proof" of such allegations, in view of the seriousness of the consequences it would carry.

Clearly the Petitioner did not witness the alleged assault on her son but, in order to substantiate her allegation, she had relied on the contents of the sworn statements made by witnesses Kudakella Gamage Kusumawathie, Ratnayakage Niroshan, Ratnayakage Nandasena and Kadukannage Sriyalatha, tendered to Court along with her petition. Perusal of these sworn statements of the persons who claims to have witnessed the assault on the deceased Samantha reveal that none of them had individually identified any of the 1st to 6th Respondents, but they merely claim to have seen the assault on the deceased, which was initially started by two Police officers, who had their Police helmets on. The assault on Samantha had continued even after the joining of four other officers, who arrived at the scene subsequently. They were instructed to do so by the two officers, who were already there. Of the several witnesses, Kusumawahie had seen two persons assaulting another, who looked like Samantha with what appeared to her as a piece of black hose pipe. The person who was being assaulted pleaded with the two, not to assault him and screamed not to kill him. She then asked one of her neighbours, Niroshan to verify the identity of the victim, as she could not properly see him due to the distance. Niroshan had confirmed that it was Samantha who was being assaulted. This witness saw Samantha had no clothes on his upper body and his hands were tied in front with a shirt. He further described the manner of the assault on Samantha, comparing it with an instance of assaulting an animal. Kusumawathie left the place as she did not wish to witness the brutality of the assault. Nandasena, another witness, who happens to ride past the place, had seen Samantha lying on the ground bare bodied and his hands tied with a shirt. He also noted that one of the two Police officers, who was standing there, had phoned someone claiming that they made an arrest and asking the other person to come over.

In their objections, the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents admit the fact that they made the arrest and claim that there were altogether seven officers. The 4th Respondent, having denied the Petitioner's claim that four officers joined the other two, had not provided information as to the circumstances under which the arrest was made. This is understandable as the 4th Respondent admits that he had accompanied the 1st Respondent and he "merely" went to the place of arrest with the 1st Respondent and that too only after the arrest was made by the 2nd and 6th Respondents. The 5th Respondent also admits that he too had "merely" went to the place of arrest, but only after the 3rd Respondent had made the arrest. Thus, all of the 1st to 6th Respondents admit that they were present at the place where the deceased person was arrested, although the 4th and 5th Respondents claimed they have joined only after the arrest was made. In the circumstances, the identities of the officers who were involved with the circumstances relating to the arrest of the deceased, as alleged by the Petitioner through her witnesses, are established through their own admissions.

Since the Petitioner's primary allegation, that her son's right to freedom from torture, as guaranteed by Article 11 of the Constitution had been violated by the 1st to 6th Respondents, was specifically denied by these Respondents, I must then examine the available material, in order to determine whether she had established that particular allegation to the required degree of proof. In view of the description of the account on the attack, as contained in the sworn statements of the witnesses, Samantha was severely beaten with pipes, sticks and clubs by the officers who arrested him. In allegations of violation of the fundamental right to freedom from torture, ordinarily this Court would consider whether such allegations are supported by medical evidence.

One such witnesses, relied upon by the Petitioner in this regard was Sriyalatha. Witness Kadukannage Sriyalatha was left destitute when her husband decided to leave her with three children and she was living with Samantha at the time of his arrest, since his wife too had deserted him by then, also leaving their three children to him.

On 19.02.2015, at about 5.00 p.m., upon hearing Samantha was pleading with someone not to kill him, she too had rushed in to investigate. She then saw Samantha, lying on the ground with his hands tied and being beaten by six Police officers. She also saw them dragging him into an abandoned house and continuing with their assault using sticks and clubs. The officers were questioning Samantha as to the place where he kept his stock of illicit liquor hidden. After some time, one of the officers came out of the house and poured contents of a white bottle into a plastic can. Thereafter, the Police party left the scene, taking Samantha along with them. She was handed over the motorcycle, which belonged to Samantha along with its ignition key.

After the death of Samantha on 22.02.2015, Sriyalatha made a statement to Police as to what she had learnt from Samantha during her visit to see him on 20.02.2015 at Hambantota Hospital, where she had quoted him making an accusation against the Police officers that he was severely beaten with clubs ("මට හොඳටම පොලු වලින් ගැහුවා"). It is very relevant to note that she made this statement at 3.00 p.m., on 23.02.2015 and the autopsy on the body of Samantha was performed by Consultant JMO on the same day at 5.00.p.m. But she made her statements two hours before the commencement of the autopsy and had stated what she learnt from Samantha. Sriyalatha had no way of knowing the expert opinion of the Consultant JMO before making her statement to Police that Samantha's death was due to multiple deep contusions following assault with heavy cylindrical weapon like wooden clubs. Clearly, she had accurately narrated what she was told by Samantha on 23.02.2015, before she made the sworn statement on 11.03.2015, in support of the petition of the Petitioner.

The Petitioner, in order to substantiate her allegation of torture, has relied on the post-mortem report of the Consultant JMO of Hambantota Hospital. The post-mortem examination on the body of Samantha was conducted by Dr. A.S. Seneviratne on 23.02.2015, who confirms that the cause of death was due to multiple deep contusions over the head, back of the body and limbs. There were altogether 32 ante mortem injuries on the body. Of these injuries, injury No. 2 was found to be a contusion measuring 3X2 cm on the right eyebrow and injury No. 1 refers to a black eye due to haematoma. There was a laceration on the right lip while multiple contusions were observed on his tongue. These were the four injuries observed on his head by the consultant JMO.

Injury Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 18 were categorised as contusions, located on the anterior and posterior aspects of the length of his right arm whereas injury Nos. 16 and 17, termed as two contusions were also located on the posterior aspect of the left shoulder. There were five contusions (injury Nos. 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23) located on the back of the chest. Examination of the genitals had revealed two abraded contusions on both sides of the scrotum, referred to as injury Nos. 13 and 14, while injury No. 15 referred to a contusion on right foot and injury No. 26 was also a contusion deep into the underlying muscle, located on the back of the left upper thigh.

In addition to above, there were three contusions located on the buttocks (injury Nos. 23, 24 and 25) whereas contusions referred to as injury Nos. 26, 27, and 28, were seen on the back of the left thigh. Injury Nos. 29, 30, 31 and 32 were also contusions but located on the back of the right thigh. The Consultant JMO had also noted the contusions referred to as injury Nos. 27, 28, 29, 30, 31 and 32 were deep and extending into the underlying muscles, as in the case of injury No. 26.

Thus, the witnesses of the Petitioner have supported each other's version of what they saw on the assault on the deceased and corroborated by the findings of the autopsy. The witnesses were consistent with the number of officers who participated with the assault, the stages at which others have joined the initial two, the intensity of the assault, what they have used in the attack, the duration of assault and how Samantha cried out.

In view of the specific denial of any assault by the 1st to 6th Respondents, and particularly in view of the allegation of the 4th and 5th Respondents that the deceased had suffered injuries at the hands of the Prison officers, this Court must then examine the available material to conclude whether this is a probable proposition, as to the manner in which the deceased had suffered his injuries.

It is stated in the notes of investigation, in relation to the arrest of Samantha, indicated that he had suffered abrasions over back of his lumber region. These injuries were caused when he had tripped himself over protruding Margosa tree roots, whilst running away from the officers (1R3). However, when Samantha was handed over to the reservist PC 81754 Saman, there were no such external injuries noted by that officer. On the following morning, the reservist had seen Samantha lying on the cell floor, and upon inquiry, it was revealed that he had fallen off from the bench and had suffered injuries to his right eyebrow and was bleeding. The Officer-in-Charge was notified immediately of this development and Samantha was thereafter rushed to Sooriyawewa hospital, where he was initially admitted, before being transferred out to Hambantota Hospital, later in the same day.

Considering the relative probabilities of suffering abrasions over the lumber region of a person who falls being tripped over roots, while running away in order to escape from his captors, it is significant to note from the Health 1135A form, that Samantha did not have a single injury to justify such a proposition. There were no injuries seen on the knees of his legs or to his hands in the form of abrasions, which could reasonably be expected find in the limbs after such a fall, whilst running away from his pursuers. The contradictory positions of the notes of the 1st Respondent with that of the reservist further weakens the reliability of such a claim. After the death of Samantha, SI *Pannadas*a of Sooriyawewa Police had visited the place of arrest and was shown by a brother of Samantha. He had not observed any Margosa trees in the vicinity but saw only a Kumbuk tree. There was no indication of any protruding roots of that particular tree. He also noted that the house of the witness Kusumawathie is the closest to the place of arrest.

In the circumstances, the position of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 6th Respondents that Samantha had suffered injuries to his back after falling down, becomes a proposition on which one could not place any reliance, primarily due to its inherent improbabilities. The other instance in which the 1st to 6th Respondents claim that Samantha had sustained injuries was his fall from the bench in the following morning. The 1st to 6th Respondents relied on the inconsistent history given by Samantha as to the cause of those injuries. According to them, Samantha had claimed that he fell from a push bicycle at the time of his admission to Sooriyawewa Hospital and thereafter changed that position to indicate that he had a fall from the cement bench, on which he slept during the night. This factor must be probed further into by this Court.

It is correct that the BHT of Samantha (1R1) indicates that the admitting medical officer of Sooriyawewa Hospital, had recorded therein "patient was stating that he got injured after falling from a push bicycle on 19.02.2015." It is also evident that the word 'motorbike' was cut off from the text and instead, the words 'push bicycle' were inserted. Samantha was admitted to hospital by one Susantha of Sooriyawewa Police Station. The BHT indicates that the admission was made at 8.00 a.m. on 20.02.2015, and at that time the admitting medical officer had noted haematoma around right eye and blood clots in his nostrils.

On the same day, the Officer-in-Charge of Sooriyawewa Police Station, reported facts to Magistrate's Court of Hambantota under BR 177/15 (1R2) and requested the Magistrate to examine a suspect, who had suffered injuries due to a fall in the cell. The Magistrate had thereafter visited the Hospital at 4.30 p.m. on the same day and when questioned as to how he had sustained the injury, Samantha had replied "නින්ද ගියා වැටිලාද දන්නේ නෑ". This enquiry was made by the Magistrate, in the presence of the Police officer who described to the Judicial officer as to the nature of the accusation Samantha was arrested on. The Magistrate had thereafter decided to enlarge him on bail.

Then why did Samantha complain to the admitting medical officer of Sooriyawewa hospital at 8.00 a.m., that he fell off from his push bicycle and it was due to that fall his right eye was injured? If he actually fell off from the push bicycle, as he said to the medical officer, then why did he changed that story and replaced it with an obviously a facile version by stating "නින්ද ගියා වැටිලාද දන්නේ නෑ" to the Magistrate? These different and inconsistent versions as to the explanation of the injury on the right eye were highlighted by the 1st to 6th Respondents, in order to convince this Court that the reliability of the Petitioner's claim is at least questionable and therefore should not be acted upon.

The said answer by Samantha to the Magistrate would indeed run contrary to the claim of the Petitioner, which alleged that Samantha had suffered injuries due to the beating by the 1st to 6th Respondents. But there is an explanation to the said conduct of Samantha. When his partner did pay a visit to him at Hambantota Hospital on the same day and that too in the afternoon, she was told that he was severely beaten by the Police officers. He had described the manner in which they assaulted him by relating that they had severely beaten him, after asking him to kneel and then to lie down on the bund. Sriyalatha had then clarified from him as to the reason for not making that complaint to the medical staff or to the Magistrate. The reply she received was that he did not wish to antagonise them by making complaints against them. This is a reasonable explanation, coming from a person, who had been placed in a set of circumstances as Samantha was. This is not his very first encounter with the Police. He already had several prosecutions pending for committing similar type of offences. Clearly, Samantha, in view of his social standing and background, would have considered the probable consequences he might have to endure after making a formal complaint of the beating he received in the hands of the 1st to 6th Respondents of to a person in authority and decided against it.

In this regard, it is relevant to refer to a quotation contained in the dissenting Judgment of Sharvananda J (as he then was) in Velumurugu v Attorney-General & Another (1981) 1 Sri L.R. 406, where his Lordship had reproduced a passage from the Judgment of Greek Case, as reported in the Journal of Universal Human Rights, on the difficulties faced by litigants alleging that public officers had inflicted or instigated acts of torture, which included the following observation, and is very relevant to the issue at hand.

> " a victim or witness able to corroborate his story might hesitate to describe-or reveal all that has happened to him for fear of reprisals. upon himself or his family.

The above quoted observation is only a part of a long quotation, which included several other similar considerations, that had been reproduced in its entirety in the Judgment of Channa Peiris & Others v Attorney-General (supra).

After his admission to Sooriyawewa Hospital and until his custody was transferred to Prison officers, Samantha was under the watchful eye of Police officers. This was more evident from the proceedings in which the examination of Samantha by the Magistrate at Hambantota hospital are recorded. The Police officer had informed the Judicial officer of the circumstances under which Samantha was arrested and had sustained an injury. Thereafter, the Magistrate had questioned Samantha, in the presence of that Police officer, who repeated the version that had already been reported to Court. If Samantha were to reveal the manner in which he actually suffered that injury at that point of time, that would have had the effect of directly contradicting the version of events, as narrated by the Police. In such circumstances, it is reasonable to expect that Samantha would have not wanted to invite more trouble by making such serious accusation against the arresting officers, regarding the severe beating he had received at their hands.

The Courts, in assessing the reliability of such claims are mindful of such limitations faced by the victims, who are reluctant to make a very descriptive and truthful disclosure of what they have actually experienced during their arrest and detention. It is not uncommon, that persons who made such accusations were severely dealt with by the concerned officers, once his custody is returned back to them by the Magistrates, as revealed in the case of Somawardena v Superintendent of Prisons and Others (SC Application 494/93 (Spl) – decided on 22.03.1995). The observations of Atukorale J in Amal Sudath Silva v Kodituwakku, Inspector of Police & Others (1987) 2 Sri L.R. 119, aptly describe the approach this Court had adopted in such circumstances, on the assessment of the reliability of claims of torture to a medical officer or to a Judge, as revealed in the instant application;

> "It seems to me to be preposterous for any medical officer before whom a suspect is produced for a medical examination in the custody of a police officer to expect him to tell the officer in the very presence of that police officer that he bears injuries caused to him as a result of a police assault. This seems particularly so when the suspect is produced at the instance of the police themselves and not upon an order of Court."

The evasive nature of the answer given by Samantha to the Magistrate, in reply to the latter's query as to how he was injured, by stating "නින්ද ගියා වැටිලාද දන්නේ නෑ", and thereby pleading total ignorance as to the cause of his injuries, is indicative of this unfortunate reality.

Coming back to the issue of how the deceased Samantha had suffered 32 ante mortem injuries, the Petitioner asserts that the 1st to 6th Respondents have repeatedly beaten him with pipes, clubs and sticks. She also alleged that during this severe physical assault, Samantha was lying on the ground with his hand tied from his shirt to the front of his body. He was crying out loud, not to kill him. Injury Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 were on his anterior aspect of his right arm and only injury Nos. 11 and 12 were seen on dorsal aspect of his left hand and near root of the left thumb. This pattern of injuries indicates that one hand had suffered more injuries than the other and that too on the outer aspect. Except for six of his injuries, all other injuries were located on the back of his body and the injuries that were noted on the back of the thigs had extended deep into underlying muscles, indicating the degree of force used to inflict them.

It had already been referred to the fact that the Consultant JMO was of the opinion that the contusions and abrasions on the body of Samantha were compatible with blunt force trauma following assault with heavy cylindrical weapon like wooden clubs. Thus, the available medical evidence is not only consistent with the Petitioner's allegation of repeated assaults with pipes, clubs and sticks, but also corroborates that assertion. The death of Samantha was due to multiple contusions to head, back of the body and limbs. The claim of the 4th and 5th Respondents, that these injuries were caused to the deceased by the Prison guards after his unsuccessful escape attempt, too was effectively negated by the medical evidence as the Consultant JMO had opined that the injuries, he had seen on the body of the deceased were in the process of healing and therefore were 3 to 4 days old. The arrest of Samantha had taken place in the evening of 19.02.2015 after 4.00. p.m. and his death had occurred around 5.00 p.m. on 23.02. 2015, just short of less than one hour to complete the four-day duration. The 'witnesses' who had seen the escape attempt say it had happened on 21.02.2015, soon after midnight but no injuries were observed by the Consultant

JMO, matching with this claim. Therefore, I reject the 1st to 6th Respondents' contention that the injuries that resulted in the death of Samantha were caused to him while under the custody of the Prison officers and their denial of any responsibility owing to that reason.

It is not clear as to the reason to unleash such a sustained severe assault on Samantha at the time of his arrest. There is no material to suggest that he resisted the arrest, and if he had resisted the arrest, obviously the 1st to 6th Respondents would have sought to justify the 'minimum force' used to make the arrest. The Petitioner's contention was that Samantha was tortured by the 1st to 6th Respondents to extract information as to a stock of illicit liquor. Similarly, there is no material even to suggest that Samantha was assaulted during the time he was detained in the cell of Sooriyawewa Police. When he called Sriyalatha after he was put into a cell, he did not claim there too he was assaulted. In view of the consultant JMO's opinion, it is more probable that the black eye was a result of a deep contusion underlying beneath the injury No. 2 and it is not due to the 'fall' from the bench or due to the failed attempt to escape, as per the explanation offered by the 1st to 6th Respondents.

The allegation of the Petitioner that her son had died due to an act of assault by the arresting officers was presented to a person in authority at the first available opportunity. Samantha had died on 22.02.2105 and during the inquest proceedings conducted on the same day, the Petitioner had made the identical accusation to the Magistrate and when questioned on what material she makes such an accusation, she had replied that there are witnesses who saw the assault on her son and they will be produced.

In view of the above, it is my considered opinion that the Petitioner, by adducing credible and reliable eyewitness account as well as medical evidence, had sufficiently discharged her burden of proof on her complaint that her son's fundamental right to freedom from torture had been violated by executive and administrative actions of 1st to 6th Respondents, and thereby established her allegation against them.

The fact that Samantha was in possession of a significant quantity of illicit liquor (assuming the notes reflect the actual reason for the arrest) and having several prosecutions pending for similar offences, in any way would not justify the conduct of the 1st to 6th Respondents. Despite the fact that almost twenty-eight years ago to the date of arrest of Samantha, this Court had very forcefully stated in the Judgment of Amal Sudath Silva* vs. *Kodituwakku (1987) 2 Sri LR 119, that "Nothing shocks the conscience of a man so much as the cowardly act of a delinquent police officer who subjects a helpless suspect in his charge to depraved and barbarous methods of treatment ... Such action on the part of the police will only breed contempt for the law and will tend to make the public lose confidence in the ability of the police to maintain law and order. The petitioner may be a hard-core criminal whose tribe deserve no sympathy. But if constitutional guarantees are to have any meaning or value in our democratic set up, it is essential that he be riot denied the protection guaranteed by our Constitution". It is evident from complaints such as the instant application, that there are officers, who continue to employ "barbarous methods of treatment" on the suspects they happen to take charge and pay scant regard to the repeated and consistent emphasis by this Court on them to act within the Law.

The complaint of the Petitioner that the 1st to 6th Respondents have violated the fundamental right guaranteed to her son under Article 13(4) needed to be examined next.

Article 13 (4) of the Constitution reads as follows: -

> "No person shall be punished with death or imprisonment except by order of a competent Court, made in accordance with procedure established by law, and shall not be further held in custody, detained or deprived of personal liberty except upon and in terms of the order of such judge made in accordance with procedure established by law."

In Lama Hewage Lal (Deceased), Rani Fernando (Wife of the Deceased) & Others v Officer in Charge – Minor Offences, Police Station, Seeduwa & Others (2005) 1 Sri L.R. 40, this Court has held thus: -

> "A careful reading of Article 13 (4) of the Constitution clearly reveals that no person should be punished with death or imprisonment except by an order of a competent Court. Accordingly, if there is no order from such a Court no person should be punished with death and unless and otherwise such an order is made by a competent Court, any person has a right to live. Considering the contents of Article 13 (4) of the Constitution, Fernando, J. in Kotabadu Durage Sriyani Silva v Chanaka Iddamalgoda, Officer-in-Charge, Police Station Payagala (2003) 1 Sri L.R. 14, stated that, "expressed positively, that provision means that a person has a right to live, unless a Court orders otherwise".

It is clear from the PMR that Samantha's death had a causal nexus to the injuries caused to him by the 1st to 6th Respondents, during the former's arrest. Despite the fact that the death of Samantha had occurred during the period he was detained by the Prison officers, the cause of death is attributable to the injuries suffered during the arrest. Clearly the right to life of Samantha had been violated by the 1st to 6th Respondents by their collective actions, and thus the claim of infringement of the fundamental right guaranteed to Samantha under Article 13(4) by them too is established by the Petitioner.

Therefore, I hold that the 1st to 6th Respondents have violated fundamental rights of the deceased Liyana Archchige Samantha, guaranteed to him under Articles 11 and 13(4) of the Constitution and is entitled to such a declaration along with compensation awarded to his next of kin.

Learned State Counsel who represented the 8th Respondent, informs this Court that an inquiry under Establishment Code (reference No. S/DIG/SP/E/60/2015 was conducted by the Police Department against the 1st to 6th Respondents. After the said inquiry, promotions of the 2nd Respondent were deferred for a period of three years and the 1st, 3rd, 4th 6th Respondents were severely warned. The 5th Respondent was discharged after the said inquiry. She further informed Court that after conclusion of the non- summary inquiry, the 8th Respondent had taken a decision to forward an indictment against the 1st, 2nd 3rd and 6th Respondents under Section 296 of the Penal Code, in addition to charges under Section 2 of the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhumane or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Act No. 22 of 1994. The 4th and 5th Respondents were discharged from the said criminal prosecution, owing to the reason there was no admissible evidence revealed against them during the non-summary inquiry.

The attack on Samantha took place during a time duration of little over an hour. Despite the attack commenced by two officers, the other four had joined well before the party had returned to Station with Samantha. The material available before this Court does not provide a reasonable basis to apportion the individual responsibility in the infringement of Samantha's right to freedom from torture. Having considered all the attendant circumstances, I order each of the 1st to 6th Respondents to pay a sum of Rs. 100,000.00 as compensation from their personal funds. Since the 1st to 6th Respondents have infringed the fundamental rights of Samantha by torturing him, whilst acting in the colour of lawful authority of making an arrest under the provisions of the Excise Ordinance, I order the State to pay Rs. 300,000.00 as compensation.

The 1st to 6th and the 7th Respondent to deposit these amounts in the Registry of this Court within a period of three months from this Judgment. This award of compensation should not be a bar for any other Court from awarding compensation to the dependents of the deceased Samantha.

It is evident from the petition of the Petitioner that her son's three children were left in the lurch, without the care and protection of both their parents.

In the circumstances, the registered Attorney of the Petitioner is directed to tender the birth certificates of the three children of the deceased Samantha forthwith to the Registry of this Court. The Registrar of this Court thereupon will take steps to deposit Rs. 300,000.00 each, in the names of the three children in the Sooriyawewa branch of the National Savings Bank. The three of them are entitled to the principal sum deposited in their names, upon reaching 18 years of age.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

L.T.B. DEHIDENIYA, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

A.L. SHIRAN GOONERATNE, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

S.C (F.R) Application No. 90/2023

S.C (F.R) Application No 139/2023

1. Dr. Harini Amarasuriya,
Member of Parliament
No. 33B, Jantha Mawatha,
Mirihana,
Kotte.

2. Sunil Handunneththi
No. 92/3, Paasal Mawatha,
Rukmale,
Pannipitiya.

3. Dr. M.R Nihal Abeysinghe,
No. 134A, St. Saviour Road,
Ja-Ela

Petitioners

Vs.

1. K.M Mahinda Siriwardena,
Secretary to the Ministry of Finance,
Ministry of Finance,
Colombo 01

2. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department,

Colombo 12

(Named as a Respondent in terms of the First Proviso to Article 35(1) of the Constitution)

3.G.K.D Liyanage,

Government Printer,

Department of Government Printing,

No. 118, Dr. Danister De Silva Mawatha,

Colombo 08.

4. Inspector General of Police,

Police Headquarters,

Colombo 01

5. Neil Bandara Hapuhinna,

Secretary,

Minister of Public Administration,

Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and

Local Government,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07

6. Nimal Punchihewa,

Chairman,

The Election Commission,

Elections Secretariat,

Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

7. S.B Divarathne,

Member

8.M.M Mohammed

Member

9. K.P.P Pathirana,

Member

6th to 9th Respondents are all of:

The Election Commission,

Elections Secretariat,

Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

10. P.S.M Charles,

(Former Member of Election Commission)

1/8, Blue Ocean Apartments,

No. 05 Railway Avenue,

Nugegoda

11. Saman Sri Rathanayake,

Commissioner of General Of Elections,

Election Secretariat,

No. 02, Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

12. Director General of Government Information,

Department of Government Information,

163, Kirulapana Avenue,

Colombo 06

13. Tiran Alles,

Minister of Public Security,

14th Floor,

Suhurupaya,

Battaramulla

14. Dinesh Gunawardena,

Prime Minister and the Minister of Public Administration,

Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07

15. Nimal Siripala De Silva,

Minister of Ports, Shipping and Aviation

16. Susil Premajayantha,

Minister of Education

17. Pavithra Devi Wanniarachchi,

Minister of Wildlife and Forest Resources Conservation

18. Douglas Devananda,

Minister of Fisheries

19. Bandula Gunawardena,

Minister of Mass Media,

Minister of Transport and Highways

20. Keheliya Rambukwella,

Minister of Health

21. Mahinda Amaraweera,

Minister of Agriculture

22. Wijedasa Rajapaksa,

Minister of Justice, Prison Affairs and Constitutional Reforms

23. Harin Fernando,

Minister of Tourism and Lands

24. Ramesh Pathirana,

Minister of Industries, Minister of Plantation Industries

25. Prasanna Ranatunga,

Minister of Urban Development and Housing,

26. Ali Sabry,

Minister of Foreign Affairs,

27. Vidura Wickramanayake,

Minister of Buddhasasana, Religious and Cultural Affairs

28. Kanchana Wijesekara,

Minister of Power and Energy

29. Naseer Ahamed,

Minister of Environment

30. Roshan Ranasinghe,

Minister of Sports and Youth Affairs,

31. Manusha Nanayakkara,

Minister of Labour and Foreign Employment,

32. Nalin Fernando,

Minister of Trade, Commerce and Food Security

33. Jeevan Thondaman,

Minister of Water Supply and Estate Infrastructure

(15th to 33rd Respondents are the Cabinet Ministers of Sri Lanka)

34. Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers,

Office of the Cabinet of Ministers,

Republic Building,

Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,

Colombo 01

35. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 12

(Named as a Respondent in terms of Article 134(1) of the Constitution and Rule 44(1)(b) of the Supreme Court Rules)

Respondents

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare PC, J.

Priyantha Jayawardena, PC, J

Vijith Malalgoda PC, J.

Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC, J

E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J

Counsel: Nigel Hatch. PC, with Shantha Jayawardena, Sunil Watagala, Ms. S, Illangage and Hiranya Damunupola for the Petitioners instructed by Ms. Shanika Silva.

Priyantha Nawana, PC, SASG, with Ms. Sabrina Ahamed, SC, for the, 1st - 3rd, 13th,15th-33rd,34th, and 355th Respondents.

Faisz Musthapha, with Ms. Faisza Marker, Hafeel Faris and Bishran Iqbal for the 14th Respondent.

Argued: 09.06.2023

Decided: 27. 06.2023

Order

Aluwihare PC, J

The court heard the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General in support of the motion filed on behalf of the Respondents dated 23rd March 2023. Raising a preliminary objection, the learned Senior ASG contended that the failure on the part of the Petitioners to cite the Election Commission, which the Learned Senior ASG submitted, was 'a necessary party' as a respondent to this application has rendered the Petition to this Application fatally defective and is therefore misconceived in law. It was pointed out that the lapse referred to, amounts to a breach of Rule 44(1)(b) of the Supreme Court Rules and on that basis, invited this court to make order dismissing the Petition of the Petitioners, in limine.

The learned Senior ASG raised the same preliminary objection in SCFR Application No.139/2023 as well. As such, parties in both the applications were heard and this order would be applicable to both the Applications. [SCFR 90/2023 and SCFR 139/2023]

The contention of the learned Senior ASG was that Chapter XIV A of the Constitution is applicable to the Election Commission and that, as far as powers, functions and duties are concerned, all provisions therein refer to a "Commission", thus, there is constitutional recognition of a "body" named the Election Commission and that the members of the 'Election Commission' and the 'Commission' cannot be used interchangeably.

The learned Senior ASG argued that there is a distinction between the acts of the Election Commission [hereinafter the 'Commission'] and acts of the members of the Commission and this Court necessarily will have to consider, whose acts had led to the violation of the fundamental rights of the Petitioners, in the event this court holds that the Petitioner's rights have in fact been violated. The learned Senior ASG relying on the case of Ghany vs. Dayananda Dissanayake and Others 2004 1 SLR 17 submitted that the Supreme Court in Ghany's case [supra] clearly made a distinction between powers exercised by the Commission itself as opposed to the exercise of powers of the Commission, by any other person.

The learned Senior ASG also submitted that there are in existence, entities that though not strictly legal personae, still enjoy the attributes of corporate personality. Referring to Law of Contract by C.G Weeramantry, it was submitted that these entities are recognised as 'Quasi Corporations.' It was his contention that the law invests the holders of certain offices with all such attributes of a corporation sole, as are necessary for the proper discharge of their functions and the Election Commission is one such body.

Responding to the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the Respondents, the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioners in SC FR 90/2023 drew the attention of court to Article 41(A) of the Constitution. Mr. Hatch PC contended that, of the seven Commissions referred to in Schedule 1 of the said Article, save for the Human Rights Commission, none of the Commissions is given independent corporate status. Mr. Hatch PC also referred to the articles in Chapter XIV A of the Constitution, in particular to Articles 104(A),104(G) and 104(H) and contended that Article 104(A) has preserved the rights under Article 126 (1). The learned President's Counsel argued that Article 104(H) has no application whatsoever to the issue raised by the learned senior ASG as the said Article only refers to removal of the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal. The learned President's Counsel further argued that the definition of the term "person" in the Interpretation Ordinance does not advance the argument of the State and contended that one cannot attribute independent status to the Election Commission. The Election Commission, he argued, was akin to 'Cabinet of Ministers' recognised by Articles 43 and 44 of the Constitution. He contended that individual members of the cabinet have to be cited when it comes to litigation and not the "cabinet of Ministers" as a separate and independent party, due to the fact that "cabinet of Ministers' does not enjoy juristic personality.

Mr. Asthika Devendra, the learned counsel for the Petitioners in SCFR Application No.139/2023, in response, submitted that there is no merit in the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the Respondents and as such, the same should be dismissed. He contended that one can take before the court only two types of persons, natural persons, and juristic persons. It was the submission of Mr. Devendra that the Election Commission is not a juristic person and as such, the question of making the Election Commission a party to these proceedings does not arise. It was pointed out that the Chairman and the members of the Commission had been made parties to the application and that is sufficient compliance with Rule 44(1) (b) of the Supreme Court Rules.

In the light of the preliminary issue raised as to the maintainability of the application resulting from the alleged 'non-compliance' on the part of the Petitioner, two issues arise for the consideration of the court;

(a) Is there non-compliance with Rule 44(1) (b) of the SC Rules on the part of the Petitioner, as alleged by the State.

(b) Even assuming that there is non-compliance on the part of the Petitioner, whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

(a) Is there non-compliance with Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules?

As referred to earlier, the position of the Hon. Attorney General is that the Petitioner is required in compliance with Rule 44(1)(b), to name as respondents all necessary parties to prosecute this application and the Election Commission is one such Party, the petitioner, ought necessarily have to make the Election Commission a respondent.

What Rule 44(1)(b) requires is that the petitioner must name as respondents, the person, or persons who have infringed or are about to infringe the fundamental rights alleged.

There is no question that any party that invokes the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is required to comply with the applicable Rules which are salutary.

The position of the Petitioners, in both the applications, was that the Election Commission was not cited as a respondent for the reason that it does not enjoy the status of a juristic person. It was also contended that this being an application for infringement of fundamental rights, a right which the petitioners possess against the State itself and not against any individual either in their private or official capacity. It was contended that in compliance with Rule 44(1)(a) the petitions clearly and distinctly set out the facts and circumstances relating to the infringements alleged and the persons responsible for the alleged infringements, thus the Petitioners have complied with Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules.

This court observes that in both petitions [SCFR90/2023 and SCFR139/2023], the averments are clearly set out the case for the Petitioners and it appears that the persons against whom the substantive relief/interim relief is sought have been made parties. It was common ground that the Election Commission does not enjoy the status of a 'juristic person'. However, the contention of the Senior ASG, as referred to earlier, was that the Commission has constitutional recognition and should be treated as a 'quasi-Corporation'. Justice Weeramantry in his work referred to above; citing Patron on Jurisprudence 2nd Ed, page 341, states 'many unincorporated associations are capable of a continuous existence in spite of periodical changes in their composition, although the state does not confer on them the gift of legal personality. [Emphasis added]. Although the Election Commission is capable of having a continuous existence, I hold that it is one such body that the state had not conferred with legal personality.

In considering the above, I am of the view that the Petitioners are not in breach of Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules for not citing the Election Commission as a respondent to these applications as it is not a body that enjoys legal personality and accordingly, the preliminary objection raised by the State is overruled.

(b) Whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

Although, in view of the opinion expressed above, this court can rest in relation to the objection raised by the learned Senior ASG, nonetheless we would venture to express our views on the second aspect of the issue, i.e., even assuming that there is non-compliance on the part of the Petitioners, whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

The question that arises is whether a petition should be dismissed in limine due to a defect in the pleadings, if the defect does not affect the root of the Application nor an impediment to prosecuting the same. It would be pertinent to consider the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and its role in fundamental rights applications. There certainly is a distinction in the exercise of the fundamental rights jurisdiction by this court as opposed to the exercise of the appellate and other jurisdictions conferred on the Supreme Court. In the exercise of the fundamental rights jurisdiction, this court should neither ignore nor lose sight of Articles 3 and 4 of the Constitution which deals with sovereignty and the exercise of sovereignty of the people. Article 3 reads: - "In the Republic of Sri Lanka sovereignty is in the people and is inalienable. Sovereignty includes the powers of government, fundamental rights and the franchise." [emphasis added], Article 4(d) of the Constitution ordained that the fundamental rights which are by the Constitution declared and recognized shall be respected, secured, and advanced by all the organs of government, and shall not be abridged, restricted, or denied, save in the manner and to the extent provided under the Constitution.

In order to achieve the aspirations of the constitutional provisions, the Supreme Court is vested with wide powers in the exercise of its fundamental rights jurisdiction, and it has the power to grant just and equitable relief. In this context I am in agreement with the observation made by his Lordship Justice Sharvananda [as he was then] in the case of Velmurugu 1981 1 SLR 406 at p. 422;

> "Under the constitution, the Supreme court is the court charged with the duty of safeguarding the fundamental rights and liberties of the people, by the grant of speedy and efficacious remedy under article 126, for the enforcement of such rights. The importance and the beneficial effect of this jurisdiction cannot be overestimated. This court has been constituted the protector and guarantor of Fundamental rights against infringement by state action of such rights. In view of the vital nature of this constitutional remedy it is in accord with the aspirations of the Constitution that this court should take a liberal view of the provisions of Article 126 so that a subject's right to the remedy in no manner constricted by finely spun distinctions concerning the precise scope of the authority of state officers and the incidental liability of the state.

At this juncture it would be germane to examine the jurisprudence laid down by this court on this issue and the dicta of His Lordship Justice A.R.B Amarasinghe in the case of Samanthilka vs. Vs. Ernest Perera and Others 1990 1 SLR 318 sheds light. In the case of Samanthilka [supra] the question of failure to name respondents responsible for the infringement of rights, came up in issue.

His lordship Justice Amerasinghe observed that "….in the exercise of its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution, the Court is determining whether those rights of individuals which have been declared and guaranteed by the Constitution have been denied by a failure on the part of the State to discharge its complimentary obligations. [At page 323-324]

Drawing the distinction between the requirement to cite parties in connection with the ordinary civil litigation vis -a vis invoking of jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution for infringement of fundamental rights, his Lordship observed; "…. The person who has infringed or is likely to infringe a fundamental or language right is not a necessary party in the sense in which that phrase is used in connection with ordinary civil litigation. The failure to make a person who is alleged to have violated or is likely to violate a fundamental or language right a respondent in a petition for relief under Article 126 of the Constitution is not, in my view, a fatal defect". [Page 325] (Emphasis added)

In the case of Samanthilka [supra], his Lordship Justice Amarasinghe made the distinction of the obligation to cite necessary parties in normal litigation as opposed to adhering to the said requirement in fundamental rights applications. His Lordship stated,

"Respondents to an ordinary civil appeal are adversarial parties whose competing claims are determined by the Court and, understandably, in terms of section 756 of the Civil Procedure Code, notice of appeal ought to be furnished to them. Respondents to a petition for relief or redress in respect of the infringement or imminent infringement of a fundamental right or language right stand on a different footing. The Court is not, in such a matter, adjudicating upon the disputed rights and conflicting interests of the petitioner and respondents. It is, in such a matter, exercising its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution to determine whether there is an infringement or imminent infringement by executive or administrative action of any fundamental right or language right declared and recognized by Chapter III or Chapter IV of the Constitution. The decisions of this Court make it abundantly clear that in the exercise of its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution, the Court is determining whether those rights of individuals which have been declared and guaranteed by the Constitution have been denied by a failure on the part of the State to discharge its complementary obligations.

In the case before us, the fact that the Election Commission has not been named by the Petitioners in their Petition is of no consequence with regard to the question of establishing executive or administrative action, since the Chairman and the members of the Commission have been made Respondents.

For the reasons set out above, even if it is assumed that the Petitioners have failed to strictly comply with Rule 44 (1) (b) of the SC Rules, the preliminary objection raised by the Senior ASG cannot be upheld.

The learned President's Counsel for the 14th Respondent submitted that the issue/matter that the Petitioners have called upon this court to adjudicate is now before the parliament and as such this court has no jurisdiction to hear this matter.

Mr. Mustapha PC drew the attention of this court to the document P21 filed by the Petitioners. It was pointed out that by a communique dated 24.02.2023, the Commissioner General of Elections has announced that the Election Commission has made a request to the Hon. Speaker of the Parliament to intervene in order to obtain necessary finances from the treasury, to perform its statutory duties. Citing an article carried by the newspaper, Daily News [P20(a)] Mr. Mustapha PC referred to a speech made by the Hon. President in Parliament, relating holding of local Government elections where the President has referred to "a request made by the Parliament to appoint a select committee on this matter".

It was the contention of the learned President's Counsel that this court should not go into these matters as the court has no jurisdiction to do so, in view of Section 3 of the Parliament (Powers and Privileges) Act No 21 of 1953 as amended.

Section 3 of the Act reads thus;

"There shall be freedom of speech, debate and proceeding in Parliament and such freedom of speech, debate or proceedings shall not be liable to be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Parliament."

Apart from the references made by the learned President's Counsel to the two documents referred to above [P20(a) and P 21] there is no other material before this court to say that the consideration of the petitions before this court would amount to questioning of any proceedings before Parliament.

In response to the objection raised by Mr. Mustapha PC., the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioners submitted that according to the instructions received from the 1st Petitioner in SCFR 90/2023, who is a parliamentarian, a select committee has not been appointed to go into any of the issues raised in both these Petitions.

In the circumstances I see no merit in the objection raised on behalf of the 14th Respondent, and accordingly the second preliminary objection is also overruled.

We wish to note that after the submissions were concluded, a motion on behalf of the 14th Respondent dated the 22nd June 2023 had been filed in the registry, barely two working days before the due date of this order. As we felt that it would be unethical and against the rules of natural justice to consider any fresh material without affording an opportunity to other parties to respond, the motion was not considered in arriving at the conclusions.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Murdu Fernando, PC J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

E.A.G.R Amarasekara, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

S.C (F.R) Application No. 90/2023

S.C (F.R) Application No 139/2023

1. Dr. Harini Amarasuriya,
Member of Parliament
No. 33B, Jantha Mawatha,
Mirihana,
Kotte.

2. Sunil Handunneththi
No. 92/3, Paasal Mawatha,
Rukmale,
Pannipitiya.

3. Dr. M.R Nihal Abeysinghe,
No. 134A, St. Saviour Road,
Ja-Ela

Petitioners

Vs.

1. K.M Mahinda Siriwardena,
Secretary to the Ministry of Finance,
Ministry of Finance,
Colombo 01

2. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department,

Colombo 12

(Named as a Respondent in terms of the First Proviso to Article 35(1) of the Constitution)

3.G.K.D Liyanage,

Government Printer,

Department of Government Printing,

No. 118, Dr. Danister De Silva Mawatha,

Colombo 08.

4. Inspector General of Police,

Police Headquarters,

Colombo 01

5. Neil Bandara Hapuhinna,

Secretary,

Minister of Public Administration,

Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and

Local Government,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07

6. Nimal Punchihewa,

Chairman,

The Election Commission,

Elections Secretariat,

Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

7. S.B Divarathne,

Member

8.M.M Mohammed

Member

9. K.P.P Pathirana,

Member

6th to 9th Respondents are all of:

The Election Commission,

Elections Secretariat,

Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

10. P.S.M Charles,

(Former Member of Election Commission)

1/8, Blue Ocean Apartments,

No. 05 Railway Avenue,

Nugegoda

11. Saman Sri Rathanayake,

Commissioner of General Of Elections,

Election Secretariat,

No. 02, Sarana Mawatha,

Rajagiriya

12. Director General of Government Information,

Department of Government Information,

163, Kirulapana Avenue,

Colombo 06

13. Tiran Alles,

Minister of Public Security,

14th Floor,

Suhurupaya,

Battaramulla

14. Dinesh Gunawardena,

Prime Minister and the Minister of Public Administration,

Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,

Independence Square,

Colombo 07

15. Nimal Siripala De Silva,

Minister of Ports, Shipping and Aviation

16. Susil Premajayantha,

Minister of Education

17. Pavithra Devi Wanniarachchi,

Minister of Wildlife and Forest Resources Conservation

18. Douglas Devananda,

Minister of Fisheries

19. Bandula Gunawardena,

Minister of Mass Media,

Minister of Transport and Highways

20. Keheliya Rambukwella,

Minister of Health

21. Mahinda Amaraweera,

Minister of Agriculture

22. Wijedasa Rajapaksa,

Minister of Justice, Prison Affairs and Constitutional Reforms

23. Harin Fernando,

Minister of Tourism and Lands

24. Ramesh Pathirana,

Minister of Industries, Minister of Plantation Industries

25. Prasanna Ranatunga,

Minister of Urban Development and Housing,

26. Ali Sabry,

Minister of Foreign Affairs,

27. Vidura Wickramanayake,

Minister of Buddhasasana, Religious and Cultural Affairs

28. Kanchana Wijesekara,

Minister of Power and Energy

29. Naseer Ahamed,

Minister of Environment

30. Roshan Ranasinghe,

Minister of Sports and Youth Affairs,

31. Manusha Nanayakkara,

Minister of Labour and Foreign Employment,

32. Nalin Fernando,

Minister of Trade, Commerce and Food Security

33. Jeevan Thondaman,

Minister of Water Supply and Estate Infrastructure

(15th to 33rd Respondents are the Cabinet Ministers of Sri Lanka)

34. Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers,

Office of the Cabinet of Ministers,

Republic Building,

Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,

Colombo 01

35. Hon. Attorney General,

Attorney General's Department

Colombo 12

(Named as a Respondent in terms of Article 134(1) of the Constitution and Rule 44(1)(b) of the Supreme Court Rules)

Respondents

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare PC, J.

Priyantha Jayawardena, PC, J

Vijith Malalgoda PC, J.

Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC, J

E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J

Counsel: Nigel Hatch. PC, with Shantha Jayawardena, Sunil Watagala, Ms. S, Illangage and Hiranya Damunupola for the Petitioners instructed by Ms. Shanika Silva.

Priyantha Nawana, PC, SASG, with Ms. Sabrina Ahamed, SC, for the, 1st - 3rd, 13th,15th-33rd,34th, and 355th Respondents.

Faisz Musthapha, with Ms. Faisza Marker, Hafeel Faris and Bishran Iqbal for the 14th Respondent.

Argued: 09.06.2023

Decided: 27. 06.2023

Order

Aluwihare PC, J

The court heard the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General in support of the motion filed on behalf of the Respondents dated 23rd March 2023. Raising a preliminary objection, the learned Senior ASG contended that the failure on the part of the Petitioners to cite the Election Commission, which the Learned Senior ASG submitted, was 'a necessary party' as a respondent to this application has rendered the Petition to this Application fatally defective and is therefore misconceived in law. It was pointed out that the lapse referred to, amounts to a breach of Rule 44(1)(b) of the Supreme Court Rules and on that basis, invited this court to make order dismissing the Petition of the Petitioners, in limine.

The learned Senior ASG raised the same preliminary objection in SCFR Application No.139/2023 as well. As such, parties in both the applications were heard and this order would be applicable to both the Applications. [SCFR 90/2023 and SCFR 139/2023]

The contention of the learned Senior ASG was that Chapter XIV A of the Constitution is applicable to the Election Commission and that, as far as powers, functions and duties are concerned, all provisions therein refer to a "Commission", thus, there is constitutional recognition of a "body" named the Election Commission and that the members of the 'Election Commission' and the 'Commission' cannot be used interchangeably.

The learned Senior ASG argued that there is a distinction between the acts of the Election Commission [hereinafter the 'Commission'] and acts of the members of the Commission and this Court necessarily will have to consider, whose acts had led to the violation of the fundamental rights of the Petitioners, in the event this court holds that the Petitioner's rights have in fact been violated. The learned Senior ASG relying on the case of Ghany vs. Dayananda Dissanayake and Others 2004 1 SLR 17 submitted that the Supreme Court in Ghany's case [supra] clearly made a distinction between powers exercised by the Commission itself as opposed to the exercise of powers of the Commission, by any other person.

The learned Senior ASG also submitted that there are in existence, entities that though not strictly legal personae, still enjoy the attributes of corporate personality. Referring to Law of Contract by C.G Weeramantry, it was submitted that these entities are recognised as 'Quasi Corporations.' It was his contention that the law invests the holders of certain offices with all such attributes of a corporation sole, as are necessary for the proper discharge of their functions and the Election Commission is one such body.

Responding to the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the Respondents, the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioners in SC FR 90/2023 drew the attention of court to Article 41(A) of the Constitution. Mr. Hatch PC contended that, of the seven Commissions referred to in Schedule 1 of the said Article, save for the Human Rights Commission, none of the Commissions is given independent corporate status. Mr. Hatch PC also referred to the articles in Chapter XIV A of the Constitution, in particular to Articles 104(A),104(G) and 104(H) and contended that Article 104(A) has preserved the rights under Article 126 (1). The learned President's Counsel argued that Article 104(H) has no application whatsoever to the issue raised by the learned senior ASG as the said Article only refers to removal of the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal. The learned President's Counsel further argued that the definition of the term "person" in the Interpretation Ordinance does not advance the argument of the State and contended that one cannot attribute independent status to the Election Commission. The Election Commission, he argued, was akin to 'Cabinet of Ministers' recognised by Articles 43 and 44 of the Constitution. He contended that individual members of the cabinet have to be cited when it comes to litigation and not the "cabinet of Ministers" as a separate and independent party, due to the fact that "cabinet of Ministers' does not enjoy juristic personality.

Mr. Asthika Devendra, the learned counsel for the Petitioners in SCFR Application No.139/2023, in response, submitted that there is no merit in the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the Respondents and as such, the same should be dismissed. He contended that one can take before the court only two types of persons, natural persons, and juristic persons. It was the submission of Mr. Devendra that the Election Commission is not a juristic person and as such, the question of making the Election Commission a party to these proceedings does not arise. It was pointed out that the Chairman and the members of the Commission had been made parties to the application and that is sufficient compliance with Rule 44(1) (b) of the Supreme Court Rules.

In the light of the preliminary issue raised as to the maintainability of the application resulting from the alleged 'non-compliance' on the part of the Petitioner, two issues arise for the consideration of the court;

(a) Is there non-compliance with Rule 44(1) (b) of the SC Rules on the part of the Petitioner, as alleged by the State.

(b) Even assuming that there is non-compliance on the part of the Petitioner, whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

(a) Is there non-compliance with Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules?

As referred to earlier, the position of the Hon. Attorney General is that the Petitioner is required in compliance with Rule 44(1)(b), to name as respondents all necessary parties to prosecute this application and the Election Commission is one such Party, the petitioner, ought necessarily have to make the Election Commission a respondent.

What Rule 44(1)(b) requires is that the petitioner must name as respondents, the person, or persons who have infringed or are about to infringe the fundamental rights alleged.

There is no question that any party that invokes the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is required to comply with the applicable Rules which are salutary.

The position of the Petitioners, in both the applications, was that the Election Commission was not cited as a respondent for the reason that it does not enjoy the status of a juristic person. It was also contended that this being an application for infringement of fundamental rights, a right which the petitioners possess against the State itself and not against any individual either in their private or official capacity. It was contended that in compliance with Rule 44(1)(a) the petitions clearly and distinctly set out the facts and circumstances relating to the infringements alleged and the persons responsible for the alleged infringements, thus the Petitioners have complied with Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules.

This court observes that in both petitions [SCFR90/2023 and SCFR139/2023], the averments are clearly set out the case for the Petitioners and it appears that the persons against whom the substantive relief/interim relief is sought have been made parties. It was common ground that the Election Commission does not enjoy the status of a 'juristic person'. However, the contention of the Senior ASG, as referred to earlier, was that the Commission has constitutional recognition and should be treated as a 'quasi-Corporation'. Justice Weeramantry in his work referred to above; citing Patron on Jurisprudence 2nd Ed, page 341, states 'many unincorporated associations are capable of a continuous existence in spite of periodical changes in their composition, although the state does not confer on them the gift of legal personality. [Emphasis added]. Although the Election Commission is capable of having a continuous existence, I hold that it is one such body that the state had not conferred with legal personality.

In considering the above, I am of the view that the Petitioners are not in breach of Rule 44(1)(b) of the SC Rules for not citing the Election Commission as a respondent to these applications as it is not a body that enjoys legal personality and accordingly, the preliminary objection raised by the State is overruled.

(b) Whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

Although, in view of the opinion expressed above, this court can rest in relation to the objection raised by the learned Senior ASG, nonetheless we would venture to express our views on the second aspect of the issue, i.e., even assuming that there is non-compliance on the part of the Petitioners, whether the alleged non-compliance is fatal to the maintainability of this application.

The question that arises is whether a petition should be dismissed in limine due to a defect in the pleadings, if the defect does not affect the root of the Application nor an impediment to prosecuting the same. It would be pertinent to consider the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and its role in fundamental rights applications. There certainly is a distinction in the exercise of the fundamental rights jurisdiction by this court as opposed to the exercise of the appellate and other jurisdictions conferred on the Supreme Court. In the exercise of the fundamental rights jurisdiction, this court should neither ignore nor lose sight of Articles 3 and 4 of the Constitution which deals with sovereignty and the exercise of sovereignty of the people. Article 3 reads: - "In the Republic of Sri Lanka sovereignty is in the people and is inalienable. Sovereignty includes the powers of government, fundamental rights and the franchise." [emphasis added], Article 4(d) of the Constitution ordained that the fundamental rights which are by the Constitution declared and recognized shall be respected, secured, and advanced by all the organs of government, and shall not be abridged, restricted, or denied, save in the manner and to the extent provided under the Constitution.

In order to achieve the aspirations of the constitutional provisions, the Supreme Court is vested with wide powers in the exercise of its fundamental rights jurisdiction, and it has the power to grant just and equitable relief. In this context I am in agreement with the observation made by his Lordship Justice Sharvananda [as he was then] in the case of Velmurugu 1981 1 SLR 406 at p. 422;

> "Under the constitution, the Supreme court is the court charged with the duty of safeguarding the fundamental rights and liberties of the people, by the grant of speedy and efficacious remedy under article 126, for the enforcement of such rights. The importance and the beneficial effect of this jurisdiction cannot be overestimated. This court has been constituted the protector and guarantor of Fundamental rights against infringement by state action of such rights. In view of the vital nature of this constitutional remedy it is in accord with the aspirations of the Constitution that this court should take a liberal view of the provisions of Article 126 so that a subject's right to the remedy in no manner constricted by finely spun distinctions concerning the precise scope of the authority of state officers and the incidental liability of the state.

At this juncture it would be germane to examine the jurisprudence laid down by this court on this issue and the dicta of His Lordship Justice A.R.B Amarasinghe in the case of Samanthilka vs. Vs. Ernest Perera and Others 1990 1 SLR 318 sheds light. In the case of Samanthilka [supra] the question of failure to name respondents responsible for the infringement of rights, came up in issue.

His lordship Justice Amerasinghe observed that "….in the exercise of its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution, the Court is determining whether those rights of individuals which have been declared and guaranteed by the Constitution have been denied by a failure on the part of the State to discharge its complimentary obligations. [At page 323-324]

Drawing the distinction between the requirement to cite parties in connection with the ordinary civil litigation vis -a vis invoking of jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution for infringement of fundamental rights, his Lordship observed; "…. The person who has infringed or is likely to infringe a fundamental or language right is not a necessary party in the sense in which that phrase is used in connection with ordinary civil litigation. The failure to make a person who is alleged to have violated or is likely to violate a fundamental or language right a respondent in a petition for relief under Article 126 of the Constitution is not, in my view, a fatal defect". [Page 325] (Emphasis added)

In the case of Samanthilka [supra], his Lordship Justice Amarasinghe made the distinction of the obligation to cite necessary parties in normal litigation as opposed to adhering to the said requirement in fundamental rights applications. His Lordship stated,

"Respondents to an ordinary civil appeal are adversarial parties whose competing claims are determined by the Court and, understandably, in terms of section 756 of the Civil Procedure Code, notice of appeal ought to be furnished to them. Respondents to a petition for relief or redress in respect of the infringement or imminent infringement of a fundamental right or language right stand on a different footing. The Court is not, in such a matter, adjudicating upon the disputed rights and conflicting interests of the petitioner and respondents. It is, in such a matter, exercising its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution to determine whether there is an infringement or imminent infringement by executive or administrative action of any fundamental right or language right declared and recognized by Chapter III or Chapter IV of the Constitution. The decisions of this Court make it abundantly clear that in the exercise of its jurisdiction in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution, the Court is determining whether those rights of individuals which have been declared and guaranteed by the Constitution have been denied by a failure on the part of the State to discharge its complementary obligations.

In the case before us, the fact that the Election Commission has not been named by the Petitioners in their Petition is of no consequence with regard to the question of establishing executive or administrative action, since the Chairman and the members of the Commission have been made Respondents.

For the reasons set out above, even if it is assumed that the Petitioners have failed to strictly comply with Rule 44 (1) (b) of the SC Rules, the preliminary objection raised by the Senior ASG cannot be upheld.

The learned President's Counsel for the 14th Respondent submitted that the issue/matter that the Petitioners have called upon this court to adjudicate is now before the parliament and as such this court has no jurisdiction to hear this matter.

Mr. Mustapha PC drew the attention of this court to the document P21 filed by the Petitioners. It was pointed out that by a communique dated 24.02.2023, the Commissioner General of Elections has announced that the Election Commission has made a request to the Hon. Speaker of the Parliament to intervene in order to obtain necessary finances from the treasury, to perform its statutory duties. Citing an article carried by the newspaper, Daily News [P20(a)] Mr. Mustapha PC referred to a speech made by the Hon. President in Parliament, relating holding of local Government elections where the President has referred to "a request made by the Parliament to appoint a select committee on this matter".

It was the contention of the learned President's Counsel that this court should not go into these matters as the court has no jurisdiction to do so, in view of Section 3 of the Parliament (Powers and Privileges) Act No 21 of 1953 as amended.

Section 3 of the Act reads thus;

"There shall be freedom of speech, debate and proceeding in Parliament and such freedom of speech, debate or proceedings shall not be liable to be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Parliament."

Apart from the references made by the learned President's Counsel to the two documents referred to above [P20(a) and P 21] there is no other material before this court to say that the consideration of the petitions before this court would amount to questioning of any proceedings before Parliament.

In response to the objection raised by Mr. Mustapha PC., the learned President's Counsel for the Petitioners submitted that according to the instructions received from the 1st Petitioner in SCFR 90/2023, who is a parliamentarian, a select committee has not been appointed to go into any of the issues raised in both these Petitions.

In the circumstances I see no merit in the objection raised on behalf of the 14th Respondent, and accordingly the second preliminary objection is also overruled.

We wish to note that after the submissions were concluded, a motion on behalf of the 14th Respondent dated the 22nd June 2023 had been filed in the registry, barely two working days before the due date of this order. As we felt that it would be unethical and against the rules of natural justice to consider any fresh material without affording an opportunity to other parties to respond, the motion was not considered in arriving at the conclusions.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Murdu Fernando, PC J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

E.A.G.R Amarasekara, J.

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE
DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

SC/FR/Application No: 90/2023

In the matter of an Application under and in terms of Article 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

1. Dr. Harini Amarasuriya
   Member of Parliament,
   No. 33B, Janatha
   Mawatha,
   Kotte

2. Sunil Handunneththi,
   No. 92/3, Paasal Mawatha,
   Rukmale,
   Pannipitiya.

3. Dr. M.R. Nihal Abeysinghe
   No. 134A, St. Saviour Road,
   Ja-Ela.

PETITIONERS

Vs.

1. K. M. Mahinda Siriwardena
   Secretary to the Ministry of Finance
   Ministry of Finance
   Colombo-01.

2. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney General's Department
   Colombo 12.

(Named as a Respondent in terms of the First Proviso to Article 35(1) of the Constitution)

3. G. K. D. Liyanage
   Government Printer
   Department of Government Printing
   No. 118, Dr Danister De Silva Mawatha,
   Colombo 08

4. Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01.

5. Neil Bandara Hapuhinna
   Secretary
   Minister of Public Administration
   Home Affairs
   Provincial Councils and Local Government
   Independence Square
   Colombo 07.

6. Nimal Punchihewa
   Chairman,
   The Election Commission,
   Elections Secretariat,
   Sarana Mawatha,
   Rajagiriya.

7. S. B. Divarathne
   Member

8. M. M. Mohammed
   Member

9. K. P. P PAthirana
   Member

6th to 9th Respondents are all of:
The Election Commission,
Elections Secretariat,
Sarana Mawatha,
Rajagiriya

10. P. S. M. Charles
(Former Member of the Election Commission)
1/8, Blue Ocean Apartments,
No. 5, Railway Avenue,
Nugegoda.

11. Saman Sri Rathnayake
Commissioner of General of Elections, Elections Secretariat
No. 02, Sarana Mawatha,
Rajagiriya

12. Director General of Government Information
Department of Government Information
163, Kirulapana Avenue,
Colombo 06.

13. Tiran Alles
Minister of Public Security
14th Floor,
Suhurupaya,
Battaramulla

14. Dinesh Gunawardena,
Prime Minister and the Minister of Public Administration, Home Affairs Provincial Council and Local Government,
Independence Square,
Colombo 07.

15. Nimal Siriplala De Silva
Minister of Ports,
Shipping
and Aviation,
No. 19, Chaithya Road,
Colombo 01.

16. Susil Premajayantha,
Minister of Education
Isurupaya,
Battaramulla

17. Pavithra Devi Wanniarachchi
Minister of Wildlife and Forest
Resource Conservation,
No. 1090,
Sri Jayawardenapura
Mawatha, Rajagiriya

18. Douglas Devananda
Minister of Fisheries
New Secretariat
Maligawatta, Colombo 10.

19. Bandula Gunawardena
Minister of Mass Media
Minister of Transport and Highways
9th Floor,
"Maganeguma Medura"
Denzil kobaddkaduwa
Mawatha,
Koswatta, Battaramulla.

20. Keheliya Rambukwella
Minister of Health
"Suwasiripaya"
No. 385,
Baddegama
Wimalawansa
Thero Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

21. Mahinda Amaraweera
Minister of Agriculture
No.80/5,
"GovijanaMandiraya",
Rajamalwatta road
Battaramulla

22. Wijeyedasa Rajapaksa
Minister of Justice, Prison Affairs and Constitutional Reforms,
No.19, Sri Sangarja
Mawatha, Colombo 10.

23. Harin Fernando,
Minister of Tourism and Lands,
2nd Floor, Assets Arcade
Building,
51/2/1, York street
Colombo 1.

24. Ramesh Pathirana
Minister of Industries,
Minister of Plantation
Industries,
11th Floor, Stage II,
"Sethsiripaya",
Battaramulla.

25. Prasanna Ranatunga,
Minster of Urban Development and Housing
17th Floor,
"Suhurupaya",
Sri Subhuthipura road,
Battaramulla.

26. Ali Sabry,
Minister of Foreign Affairs
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka
Mawatha, Colombo 01.

27. Vidura Wickramanayake,
Minister
Buddhasasana,
Religious and Cultural Affairs,
No.135,
SrimathAnagarika
Dharmapala Mawatha,
Colombo 07

28. Kanchana Wijesekara,
Minister of Power and Energy,
No. 437,
Galle road,
Colombo 03

29. Nazeer Ahamed,
Minister of Environment,
No. 416/C/1,
"SobadamPiyasa",
Robert Gunawardena
Mawatha,
Battaramulla

30. Roshan Ranasinghe,
Minister of Sports and
Youth Affairs,
Minister of Irrigation,
No.500,
10th Floor,
T B Jaya Mawatha,
Colombo 10

31. Manusha Nanayakkara,
Minister of Labour and Foreign Employment,
6th Floor,
"Mehewara Piyasa",
Narehenpita, Colombo 05

32. Nalin Fernando,
Minister of Trade,
Commerce and Food,

Security,
No.492,
L H Piyasena Building
R A De Mel Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

33. Jeevan Thondaman,
Minister of Water Supply and Estate Infrastructure Development,
No.35,
"LakdayaMedura",
New Parliament Road,
Pelawatta,
Battaramulla

34, Secretary to the cabinet of Ministers
Office of the Cabinet of Ministers,
Republic building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

35. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

AND

1. People's Action for Free and Fair Elections (PAFFREL)
No. 16, Byrde Place,
Off Pamankada Road,
Colombo 06.

2. Rohana Nishantha Hettiarachchi
Executive Director

SC/FR/Application No: 139/23

People's Action for Free and Fair Elections (PAFFREL)
No. 16, Byrde Place,
Off Pamankada Road,
Colombo 06.

PETITIONERS

Vs.

3. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney General's Department
   Colombo 12.

4. Hon. Dinesh Gunawardena
   Hon. Prime Minister and Minister of Public Administration,
   Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government
   Prime Minister's Office,
   No. 58, Sir Ernest De Silva
   Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

3. Hon. Nimal Siripala De Silva, Minister of Ports, Shipping
   and Aviation

4. Hon. (Mrs.) Pavithra Devi
   Wanniarachchi
   Minister of Wildlife & Forest
   Resources conservation.

5. Hon. Douglas Davananda
   Minister of Fisheries

6. Hon. Susil Premajayantha
   Minister of Education

7. Hon. (Dr.) Bandula Gunawardena
   Minister of Transport and Highways and
   Minister of Mass Media

8. Hon. Keheliya Rambukwella
   Minister of Health

9. Hon. Mahinda Amaraweera
   Minister of Agriculture

10. Hon. (Dr.) Wijayedasa Rajapaka, PC
    Minister of Justice, Prison Affairs and Constitutional Reforms

11. Hon. Harin Fernando
    Minister of Tourism and Lands.

12. Hon. (Dr.) Ramesh Pathirana Minister of Plantation Industries and Minister of Industries.

13. Hon. Prasanna Ranatunga
    Minister of Urban Development and Housing.

14. Hon. Ali Sabry, PC
    Minister of Foreign Affairs

15. Hon. Vidura Wickramanayaka
    Minister of Buddhasasana, Religious and Cultural Affairs.

16. Hon. Kanchana Wijesekara
    Minister of Power and Energy

17. Hon. Nazeer Ahamed
    Minister of Environment

18. Hon. Roshan Ranasinghe
    Minister of Irrigation and Minister of Sports and
    Youth Affairs

19. Hon. Manusha Nanayakkara
    Minister of Labour and
    Foreign Employment

20. Hon. Tiran Alles
    Minister of Public Security

21. Hon. Nalin Fernando Minister of Trade, Commerce and Food Security

22. Hon. Jeevan Thonaman
    Minister of Water Supply and Estate Infrastructure
    Development

    All of the above 3rd to 22nd Respondents are of:

    Office of Secretary to the Cabinet of Minister,
    Lloyd's Building,
    Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
    Colombo 01.

23. Mr. W. M. D. J. Fernando
    Office of Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers,
    Lloyd's Building,
    Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
    Colombo 01.

24. Mr. K. M. Mahinda Siriwardana

Secretary to the Treasury and
Secretary to the Ministry of Finance, Economic Stabilization and National Policy,
Ministry of Finance,
The Secretariat, Colombo 01.

25. Mr. Neel Bandara
Hapuhinne
Secretary to the Ministry of Public Administration,
Home Affairs,
Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Independence Square,
Colombo 07.

26. Mr. P. V. Gunatillake
Secretary to the Ministry of Public Security,
14th Floor, "Suhurupaya",
Battaramulla.

27. Mrs. G. K. D. Liyanage
Government Printer,
Department of Government
Printing,
No 118, Dr. Danister de Silva
Mawatha,
Colombo 08.

28. Mr. C. D. Wickramaratne
Inspector General of Police,
Police Headquarters,
Colombo 01.

29. S.R. W. M. R. P. Sathkumara
Postmaster General
Post Head Quarters,
No. 310, D. R. Wijewardana
Mawatha, Colombo 01.

30. Nimal G. Punchihewa
Chairman-Election Commission

31. S. B. Divaratne

32. M. M. Mohamed

33. K. P. P. Pathirana

the 31st to 33rd Respondents, Members of the Election Commission

34. Saman Sri Ratnayake
Commissioner- General of Elections

the 30th to 34th Respondents are of:
Elections Secretariat, Sarana Mawatha, Rajagiriya

RESPONDENTS

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare PC, J
Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J
Vijith Malalgoda PC, J
Murdu N.B. Fernando PC, J
E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J

Counsel: Nigel Hatch PC with Shantha Jayawardena, Sunil Watagala, Ms. S. Illangage and Hiranya Damunupola for the Petitioners in SC/FR/90/2023

Priyantha Nawana PC, SASG, with Ms. Sabrina Ahamed, SC for the, 1st - 3rd, 13th, 15th, 33rd, 34th and 35th Respondents in SC/FR/90/2023 and for the 1st, 2nd, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 27th and 28th Respondents in SC/FR/139/2023

Faisz Musthapha PC with Ms. Faisza Marker, Hafeel Faris and Bishran Iqbal for the 14th Respondent in SC/FR/90/2023

Asthika Devendra with Kaneel Maddumage and Wasantha Sandaruwan for the Petitioners in SC/FR/139/2023

Argued: 9th June, 2023

Decided: 27th June, 2023

Priyantha Jayawardena PC, J

I have considered the draft Order of the aforementioned applications prepared by Justice Buwaneka Aluwihare PC and;

(i) I agree with the conclusion of the said Order with regard to the preliminary objection raised by the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General in the above applications,

(ii) However, I am afraid I am not in agreement with the reasoning and the conclusion in respect of the preliminary objection raised by the learned President's Counsel for the 14th respondent in SC/FR/90/2023 with regard to the jurisdiction of this court.

Hence, my reasoning and the decision on the said preliminary objections are stated below.

These applications were filed by the petitioners, alleging that their Fundamental Rights have been violated by not holding the Local Authorities Elections on the 9th of March, 2023 as scheduled by the Election Commission.

The learned Senior Additional Solicitor General who appears for the 1st, 2nd, 22nd, 23rd, 27th and 28th respondents in SC/FR/139/2023 and the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 13th, 15th to 33rd, 34th and 35th respondents in SC/FR/90/2023 raised the following preliminary objection:

'the petitioners have failed to name a necessary party to the instant applications. Particularly, though the Chairman and the members of the Election Commission > are named in the petitions as respondents, the petitioners have failed to name the Election Commission as a party to the petitions. Thus, the said applications should be dismissed in limine'

He submitted that there is a clear distinction between the Election Commission and its members, and therefore, the activities of the members of the commission cannot be considered as actions of the said commission. Thus, the Election Commission is a necessary party to any litigation filed in respect of matters relating to the said commission.

The learned Senior Additional Solicitor General further submitted that, though the Constitution does not specifically state that the Election Commission has a legal personality, the Constitution has given a legal status to the Election Commission by implication. Therefore, the Election Commission is a necessary party to the instant application. In this regard, the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General drew the attention of court to section 2(s) of the Interpretation Ordinance, which states;

> "Person" includes any body of persons corporate or unincorporate"

Further, he cited The Law of Contracts by C.G. Weeramantry at page 529, where it stated;

> "Quasi Corporations. There are in existence many entities, which, though not corporations or legal personae strictly so called, still enjoy many of the attributes of corporate personality. Thus, many unincorporated associations are capable of a continuous existence in spite of periodical changes in their composition, although the state does not confer on them the gifts of legal personality."

In the circumstances, he submitted that the Election Commission should be considered as an institution that has acquired legal status, and therefore, it must be named as a party to the instant applications. Thus, the failure to name the Election Commission as a party to the instant application is fatal, and thus, the application should be dismissed in limine.

The learned President's Counsel appearing for the petitioners in SC/FR Application No. 90/2023 and the counsel appearing in SC/FR Application No. 135/2023 submitted that the independent commissions have been created by or under the Constitution. In this regard, they drew the attention of court to the Public Service Commission, National Police Commission, etc. and submitted that the said commissions have no independent legal status, and therefore, the cases are filed against the members of those commissions.

Furthermore, as the Election Commission does not have a legal personality, it cannot be made a party to a case filed in court. Thus, the petitioners have made the members of the Election Commission parties to the instant applications. Hence, they submitted that the said preliminary objection should be overruled.

In addition to the above preliminary objection, the learned President's Counsel appearing for the 14th respondent in application No. SC/FR /90/2023 raised the following preliminary objection;

'The Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction to hear the said applications'

In this regard, he submitted that the allegations averred in the petition are before Parliament, and therefore, the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the said application. He drew the attention of court to paragraph 32 of the petition, the newspaper article annexed and produced as P20(a), the press release marked and produced as P21 and the Hansard dated 23rd of February, 2023 filed by the petitioner in application No. SC/FR/90/2023. Thus, he moved for a dismissal of the said application in limine.

Responding to the above objection, the learned President's Counsel for the petitioner in SC/FR/ 90/2023 submitted that the subject matter of the petition is not before the Parliament and therefore, the Supreme Court can proceed with the instant application. He further submitted that, in any event, there is no legal impediment for the court to consider a matter that is pending before Parliament and cited the instance where, while the impeachment proceeding was taking place to impeach the former Chief Justice Shirani Bandaranayaka, the Supreme Court heard the cases that were filed challenging the said impeachment proceedings. In this regard, he cited the judgment delivered by Justice Saleem Marsoof PC in S.C. Application No. 665/2012 (FR), S.C. Application No. 666/2012 (FR), S.C. Application No. 667/2012 (FR)and S.C. Application No. 672/ 2012 (FR).

Is the Election Commission a necessary party to the petition

Rule 44 Supreme Court Rules inter alia states;

> "44. (1) Where any person applies to the Supreme Court by a petition in writing, under and in terms of Article 126(2) of the Constitution, for relief or redress in respect of an infringement or an imminent infringement, or any fundamental right or language right, by executive or administrative action, he shall –

(a) set out in his petition a plain and concise statement of the facts and circumstances relating to such right and the infringement or imminent infringement thereof, including particulars of the executive or administrative action whereby such right has been, or is about to be, infringed; where more than one right has been, or is about to be, infringed, the facts and circumstances relating to each such right and the infringement, or imminent infringement thereof shall be clearly and distinctly set out. He shall, also refer to the specific provisions or the Constitution under which any such right is claimed.

(b) name as respondents the Attorney-General and the person or persons who have infringed, or are about to infringe, such right;

[emphasis added]

Hence, Rule 44(1)(b) of the Supreme Court Rules requires to name the persons who infringed or are about to infringe the Fundamental Rights, in petitions filed under Article 126(2) of the Constitution. Thus, it needs to be considered whether the Election Commission is a necessary party to the above applications.

Establishment of the Election Commission

The Election Commission was established by Article 103 of the Constitution. Article 103 of the Constitution, inter alia, states; "There shall be an Election Commission (in this Chapter referred to as the "Commission") consisting of five members appointed by the President……..."

Further, Article 104B(1), inter alia, states that the Commission shall exercise, perform and discharge all such powers, duties and functions conferred or imposed on or assigned to the Commission; or to the Commissioner-General of Elections, by the Constitution, and by the law.

(a) Does the Election Commission have a legal personality

The law recognises natural persons and legal persons. A legal person is a fiction created by the law. Further, a legal fiction that has legal status can be created only by an Act of Parliament or under a law passed by Parliament. However, the courts have no power to create a legal personality by reading words into a provision in the law.

Moreover, a legal person created by law is distinct from the natural persons who are its members. The powers of a legal person are conferred by law at the time it is created. e.g. the power to sue and be sued. Further, no legal proceedings can be instituted against a non-incorporated body, as the law has not conferred power to sue or be sued by such a body. A similar view was also expressed in Divisional Forest Officer v Sirisena [1990] 1 SLR 44 at page 49, where it was held;

> "The other ground on which the Appellant relied was that the Defendant to this action was not a legal person and that the action could, therefore, not have been maintained against the Defendant named in the plaint. As is evident from the plaint, the Defendant has been described as the Divisional Forest Officer, Southern Division, Galle. It is submitted that the Defendant so described is not a statutory functionary who could be sued as a Corporation Sole. In The Land Commissioner v. Ladamuttu Pillai it has been held by the Privy Council that Land Commissioner is not a Corporation Sole. So also, in Singho Mahatmaya v. The Land Commissioner the Supreme Court has held that the Land Commissioner cannot be regarded as a Corporation Sole and, therefore, cannot be sued nominee officii."
>
> [emphasis added]

(b) Interpretation of Article 103 of the Constitution

The constitutional provisions should always be interpreted to protect the rights enshrined in the Constitution and not to deny them by applying a narrow interpretation. A similar view was expressed in Ramadhari Mandal v Nilmoni Das AIR 1952 Cal 184, where it was held;

> "Constitutional provisions are not to be interpreted and crippled by narrow technicalities but as embodying the working principles for practical Government. The Constitution is not the home for legal curiosities."
>
> [emphasis added]

Further, in Edirisuriya v Navaratnam [1985] 1 SLR 100 at page 106, the Supreme Court held;

> "A solemn and sacred duty has been imposed by the Constitution upon this Court, as the highest Court of the Republic, to safeguard the fundamental rights which have been assured by the Constitution to the citizens of the Republic as part of their intangible heritage. It, therefore, behooves this Court to see that the full and free exercise of such rights is not impeded by any flimsy and unrealistic considerations."

In Velupillai v The Chairman, Urban District Council* 39 NLR 464, Abrahams CJ held;

"This is a court of Justice, it is not an Academy of Law."

Further, the aforementioned objection raised by the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General should be considered in light of the established principles of interpretation of Constitutions whilst giving effect to the Fundamental Rights of the people enshrined in the Constitution and the curses curie est lex curiae.

The Constitution has established the Election Commission, the Public Service Commission, the National Police Commission, the Audit Service Commission, the Finance Commission, the Delimitation Commission, and the National Procurement Commission.

However, it is pertinent to note that the Constitution has not established the Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption. On the contrary, it has made provision for the Parliament to enact legislation to establish a Commission to Investigate Allegations of Bribery or Corruption.

Upon a careful reading of Article 103 of the Constitution, it is evident that the Election Commission has not been created as a Corporate Sole by the legislature, nor is it stated that it may sue or be sued in a corporate name. Furthermore, Article 103 does not seem to reveal any intention of the legislature to incorporate the Election Commission as a legal person. When applying the literal interpretation to interpret a provision in law, the court should give full effect to the language used by the legislature. If the language of the legislature is clear and unambiguous, the court cannot read words into the Act in interpreting the same. Further, where the language is plain, the task of interpretation will not arise.

A similar view was expressed in Somawathie v Weerasinghe* [1990] 2 SLR 121 at page 124, where it was held;

"How should the words of this provision of the Constitution be construed? It should be construed according to the intent of the makers of the Constitution. Where, as in the Article before us, the words are in themselves precise and unambiguous and there is no absurdity, repugnance or inconsistency with the rest of the Constitution, the words themselves do best declare that intention. No more can be necessary than to expound those words in their plain, natural, ordinary, grammatical and literal sense."

(c) Cursus curiae est lex curiae (The practice of the court is the law of the court)

As the Public Service Commission, the National Police Commission, etc. were not created as legal persons that can sue and be sued, a curses curie est lex curiae has been developed in Sri Lankan courts that legal proceedings can be instituted against the members of such commissions. In this regard, it is pertinent to note that it has been the practice of this court to entertain not only the Fundamental Rights Applications filed against the members of the Election Commission but also to entertain Writ Applications filed against the members of some of the said commissions under the Constitution.

Broom's Legal Maxims (10th Edition) at page 82 states;

"Every Court is the guardian of its own records and master of its own practice'; and where a practice had existed it is convenient, except in cases of extreme urgency and necessity to adhere to it, because it is the practice, even though no reason can be assigned for it; for an inveterate practice in the law generally stands upon principles that are founded in justice and convenience."

Further, in Jeyraj Fernandopulle v De Silva and Others [1999] 1 SLR 83, Amerasinghe, J held;

"Cursus curiae est lex curiae. The practice of the court is the law of the Court. Wessels, J in Wayland v Transvaal Government, held that it is no argument to say that there was no actual contested case in which this procedure has been laid down; for a course of procedure may be adopted and hold good even though there has been no decision on the point. However, in Sri Lanka the practice of the Court has been recognized in judgments of the Court.

The practice of the Court in these matters is in accordance with the conventions of judicial comity."

Thus, for the reasons stated above, I am of the opinion that the petitioners are entitled to name the members of the Election Commission as respondents by following the cursus curiae of the court.

(d) Applicability of the Interpretation Ordinance to Constitutional Interpretation

The Constitution states that it is the Supreme Law of the Republic. Thus, other laws cannot be used to interpret the provisions of the Constitution, as they are subordinate to the Constitution. On the contrary, the other laws should be interpreted to be consistent with the provisions of the Constitution.

In SC Reference 01/2014, it was observed; "…… the rules pertaining to Constitutional interpretation are different to those of statutory interpretation. In this context, it is relevant to quote His Lordship Justice Sharvananda CJ in his publication on Fundamental Rights in Sri Lanka (Arnold's International Printing House), 1993 at page 43, in the following terms;

> "Though the Interpretation Ordinance does not apply to the Interpretation of the provisions of the Constitution, as the Constitution was enacted in the exercise of Constitutional power and not in the exercise of legislative power of Parliament and hence is not written law within the meaning of section 2 of the Interpretation Ordinance, it may legitimately be referred to, to appreciate the concept of 'person' in our law."'
>
> [emphasis added]

(e) Applicability of the principals in other laws to Constitutional Interpretation

Further, as stated above, since the Constitution is the supreme law of the country, it is not possible to apply the principles of interpretation of other laws to interpret the Constitution. A similar view was expressed in Julliard v Greenman 10 US 421 at page 439, where it was held;

> "A Constitution ……. is not to be interpreted with the strictness of private contract. The Constitution of the United States, by apt words of designation or general description, marks the outlines of the powers granted to the national legislature; but it does not undertake, with the precision and detail of a Code of laws, to enumerate the sub-division of those powers, or to specify all the means by which they may be carried into execution."

[emphasis added]

Therefore, I am not inclined to agree that the Election Commission has been conferred with legal status directly or by necessary implication. Hence, I hold that the Election Commission is not a corporate sole. Further, the petitioners are not in breach of Rule 44 of the Supreme Court Rules as the Election Commission does not have an independent legal status from its members. Therefore, the aforesaid preliminary objection raised by the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General is overruled.

DOES THE COURT LACK JURISDICTION TO HEAR THE APPLICATION

The learned President's Counsel appearing for the 14th respondent in SC/FR/90/2023 drew the attention of court to paragraph 32 of the petition filed in SC/FR/90/2023, the press release dated 24th of February, 2023 produced marked as 'P21' and the Hansard dated 23rd of February, 2023 marked and produced as 'P20(b)' and submitted that the subject matter of the said application is now before the Parliament and therefore, this court has no jurisdiction to hear the said application.

The said paragraph 32 states;

> "The petitioners state that on 24.02.2023 the Election Commission released a press release informing of two decisions made by the Election Commission at its meeting held on 24.02.2023, namely (l) that for reasons beyond the control of the Election Commission the local authorities election will not be held on 09.03.2023 and a fresh date for the election would be notified on 03.03.2023 and (2) that to make a request to the Speaker of Parliament to intervene to obtain finances from the Treasury for the conduct of the election.
>
> A true copy of the said press release dated 24.02.2023 was annexed to the petition marked as P21 and pleaded as part and parcel hereof."

The said press release stated inter alia as follows;

"2023.02.24 දින රැස් වූ මැතිවරණ කොමිෂන් සභාව මතු දැක්වෙන තීරණ ගෙන ඇති බව මෙයින් නිවේදනය කරනු ලැබේ

2023.03.09 දිනට පැවැත්වීමට නියමිත පළාත් පාලන ආයතන ඡන්ද විමසීම සම්බන්ධව මැතිවරණ කොමිෂන් සභාව විසින් ව්‍යවස්ථාපිතව සිදුකළ කාර්යයන් පිළිබඳව තොරතුරු ඇතුලත් වාර්තාවක් සමඟ ඡන්ද විමසීම සඳහා අවශ්‍ය මුද්‍රල් ප්‍රතිපාදන භාණ්ඩාගාරය වෙතින් ලබා ගැනීම සඳහා මැදිහත් වන ලෙස ඉල්ලීමක් ශ්‍රී ලංකා පාර්ලිමේන්තුවේ ගරු කථානායකතුමා වෙත ඉදිරිපත් කිරීම;

මැතිවරණ කොමිෂන් සභාවේ පාලනයෙන් බැහැරව පැන නැඟී ඇති කරුණු හේතුවෙන් 2023.03.09 දිනට පැවැත්වීට නියමිත පළාත් පාලන ආයතන ඡන්ද විමසීම එදිනට නොපැවැත්වෙන අතර, එම ඡන්ද විමසීම පැවැත්වෙන දිනය පිළිබඳව 2023.03.03 දින ප්‍රකාශයට පත් කිරීම;

මැතිවරණ කොමිෂන් සභාවේ නියමය පරිදි"

[emphasis added]

Further, the learned President's Counsel referred to the newspaper article dated 24th of February, 2023 marked and produced as P20(a), which inter alia stated as follows;

> "The Parliament has asked to appoint a select committee on this matter. So I request to appoint it, record all and take the report to the Supreme Court. According to section 4 of the Constitution, the financial power is vested in the Parliament. After the 1688 Revolution according to the Magna Carter Agreement, all monetary powers vested in Parliament. Therefore, given that report to Supreme Court through a select committee."

Further, after the Order on the preliminary objection was reserved by court, the Instructing Attorney for the said 14th respondent filed a motion dated 22nd of June, 2023 and furnished a copy of the "ADDENDUM TO THE ORDER BOOK No. 1 OF PARLIAMENT" issued on the 15th of February, 2023 which contained, inter alia, the following;

"ADDENDUM TO THE ORDER BOOK No. 1

OF

PARLIAMENT

Issued on Wednesday, February 15, 2023

NOTICE OF MOTIONS FOR WHICH NO DATES HAVE BEEN FIXED

And whereas the Election Commission is responsible to Parliament under Article 104B (3) of the Constitution;

And whereas by Article 30(4) of the Twenty First Amendment to the Constitution the members of the Commission have ceased to hold office and are exercising and discharging of powers and functions of the transitionary members;

And whereas on 18th January 2023 the Election Commission purported to call nominations for the Local Authorities Elections;

And whereas two members of the Commission decided to fix 09tg March 2023 as the date of polling and claimed to have obtained the consent of the other three members;

And whereas the Secretary to the Ministry of Finance, Economic Stabilization and National Policies has filed an Affidavit in Court stating that it would be challenging to find funds for holding such an election in March 2023;

And whereas there is a question of whether the Commission itself is satisfied that all preconditions for holding such an election are fulfilled;

And whereas on 25th January 2023 Ms. P. S. M. Charles member of the Commission tendered her resignation to the President;

And whereas the Commission has failed to report. to Parliament which is responsible for public finance on issues that have arisen on Local Authorities Elections:

And whereas if the privileges of the Members of Parliament and of the Parliament have been infringed, it should be investigated into and suitable recommendations in that regard should be made;

This Parliament resolves that a Select Committee of Parliament be appointed to investigate into the matters relating to the Election Commission in respect of the incidents of infringement of privileges of the Members of Parliament and of the Parliament and to make suitable recommendations in that regard.

2. ……

3. ……..

4. ……”

I have considered the aforementioned preliminary objection raised by the learned President’s Counsel for the 14th respondent in SC/FR/90/2023 and the submissions made by the learned President’s Counsel who is appearing for the petitioners in SC/FR/90/2023, and I am of the view that if the subject matter of a court case is pending before the Parliament, the courts have no jurisdiction to hear and determine such a case in terms of section 3 of the Parliamentary (Powers and Privileges) Act read with Article 67 of the Constitution. A similar view was expressed by Justice Marsoof PC in the aforementioned Fundamental Rights Applications. However, there are no sufficient materials before this court to consider the merits of the said preliminary objection. Further, the said preliminary objection should be considered after hearing all the parties in the application. Thus, I am not inclined to uphold the said preliminary objection. However, the said respondent has the liberty to raise the said objection if leave is granted by court after hearing the merits of the said application.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

1. Centre for Policy Alternatives,
   No. 6/5, Layards Road,
   Colombo 05.
2. Dr. Paikiasoothy Saravanamuttu,
   No. 3, Ascot Avenue,
   Colombo 05.
   Petitioners in SC/FR/91/2021

Sithara Shreen Abdul Saroor,
No. 202, W.A. Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 06.
Petitioner in SC/FR/106/2021

Ambika Satkunanathan,
No. 27, Rudra Mawatha,
Colombo 06.
Petitioner in SC/FR/107/2021

SC/FR/91/2021
SC/FR/106/2021
SC/FR/107/2021

Vs.

1. Hon. Attorney General,
   Attorney General's Department,
   Colombo 12.

2. Major General (retd) G.D.H. Kamal Gunaratne,
   Secretary, Ministry of Defence,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.
3. C.D. Wickramaratne,
   Inspector General of Police,
   Police Headquarters, Colombo 1.
4. Major General Dharshana Hettiarachchi,
   Commissioner General of Rehabilitation,
   Bureau of Commissioner General of Rehabilitation,
   No. 462/2, Kaduwela Road,
   Ganahena, Battaramulla.
   Respondents

1. Dr. Malkanthi Hettiarachchi,
   7A, De Soyza Mawatha,
   Mt. Lavania.
2. Al Haj Abdul Jawad Alim
   Ualiyallah Trust & Maulavee
   K.R.M. Sahlan Rabbane,
   B.J.M. Road, Kattankudy 05.
   Intervenient-Respondents

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare, P.C., J.
Murdu N.B. Fernando P.C., J.
Mahinda Samayawardhena, J.

Counsel: Viran Corea with Luwie Ganeshathasan, Khyati Wikramanayake and Thilini Vidanagamage for the Petitioners in SC/FR/91/2021.

Suren Fernando with Khyati Wikramanayake for the Petitioners in SC/FR/106/2021.

Pulasthi Hewamanna with Harini Jayawardhana, Fadhila Fairoze and Githmi Wijenarayana for the Petitioners in SC/FR/107/2021.

Nerin Pulle, P.C., Additional Solicitor General, with Dr. Avanti Perera, Deputy Solicitor General for the Respondents.

Suren Gnanaraj with Rashmi Dias Goonewardena for the 1st Intervenient-Respondent.

Shehan De Silva with Naveen Maha Arachchige for the 2nd Intervenient-Respondent.

Argued on: 21.03.2022, 13.05.2022, 18.05.2023, 05.06.2023, 28.06.2023

Written Submissions:

By the Petitioners in SC/FR/91/2021 on 09.08.2022 and 03.08.2023

By the Petitioners in SC/FR/106/2021 on 15.03.2022 and 26.07.2023

By the Petitioners in SC/FR/107/2021 on 15.03.2022 and 31.07.2023

By the Respondents on 19.07.2023

By the 2nd Intervenient-Respondent on 14.03.2022 and 15.08.2023

By the 1st Intervenient-Respondent on 15.03.2022 and 23.10.2023

Decided on: 13.11.2023

Samayawardhena, J.

Introduction

The petitioners filed these fundamental rights applications (SC/FR/91/2021, SC/FR/106/2021 and SC/FR/107/2021) in their own right and in the public interest on the basis that several fundamental rights guaranteed under Chapter 3 of the Constitution are violated by the Prevention of Terrorism (De-radicalization from holding violent extremist religious ideology) Regulations No. 1 of 2021 published in the Extraordinary Gazette No. 2218/68 dated 12.03.2021.

All three applications were supported together and the Court granted leave to proceed to the petitioners on the alleged violation of Articles 10, 12(1) and 13 of the Constitution. The Court also made an interim order suspending the operation of the said Regulations until the final determination of these applications.

Two petitioners were allowed to intervene. They are opposing the applications of the petitioners.

Arguments were taken up together and parties agreed to abide by a single judgment.

As stated in the Gazette, these Regulations were made by the President under section 27 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 read with paragraph (b) of Article 4 of the Constitution.

The learned Additional Solicitor General appearing for the respondents submitted to Court that the primary purpose of promulgating these Regulations was the de-radicalization and rehabilitation of the misguided youth who either surrendered or were arrested following the horrific Easter Sunday attacks on 21.04.2019, driven by a violent extremist religious ideology.

While these fundamental rights applications were pending, the Bureau of Rehabilitation Bill was placed on the Order Paper of Parliament on 23.09.2022. This Bill was subsequently challenged in this Court for its constitutionality. On 04.10.2022, in SC/SD/54-61/2022, this Court ruled that the Bill as a whole was inconsistent with Article 12(1) of the Constitution and suggested ways to address the inconsistencies. Following this determination, the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act No. 2 of 2023 was enacted.

As section 3 of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act states "The objective of the Bureau shall be to rehabilitate drug dependent persons or any other person as may be identified by law as a person who requires rehabilitation and which may include treatment and adoption of various therapies in order to ensure effective reintegration and reconciliation, through developing socio-economic standards." This Act contains extensive provisions related to rehabilitation. I find that several Regulations overlap or conflict with the provisions of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act because the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act was non-existent when these impugned Regulations were promulgated. If these impugned Regulations had been promulgated after the determination of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Bill and the enactment of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act, it would have saved more judicial time.

The learned Additional Solicitor General submits that the Act provides for the rehabilitation framework, while these Regulations provide for the procedure for sending individuals for rehabilitation.

All parties unequivocally endorse the idea of rehabilitation and acknowledge that restorative justice is better than retributive justice. Retributive justice is based on the punishment of offenders whereas restorative justice is based on repairing harm and reconciling parties. Nevertheless, the petitioners assert that the impugned Regulations will not achieve this goal. They contend that the rehabilitation contemplated in the impugned Regulations is tantamount to pre-trial punishment.

Locus standi

The learned Additional Solicitor General raised a preliminary objection regarding the locus standi of the petitioners to file these applications. He reiterates this objection in his post-argument written submissions as well. His argument is that although the petitioners state that they invoke the fundamental rights jurisdiction in public interest, they have failed to present at least a single affidavit of an arrestee or surrendee who has expressed a view that he or she does not wish to take part in the process of rehabilitation in lieu of prosecution as envisaged by the impugned Regulations. I do not think that the Court should adopt such a strict attitude in the invocation and exercise of the fundamental rights jurisdiction.

All the petitioners (except the 1st petitioner in SC/FR/91/2021 which is a company) are citizens of Sri Lanka.

In SC/FR/91/2021 there are two petitioners. The 1st petitioner is a company incorporated under the Laws in Sri Lanka whose one of the primary objectives is to contribute to public accountability in governance through the strengthening of awareness in society of all aspects of public and policy implementation. The 2nd petitioner is the executive director of the 1st petitioner company.

The petitioner in SC/FR/106/2021 is reportedly a human rights activist working as a member of the Mannar Women's Development Federation and Women's Action Network that work with women directly affected by armed conflict in Sri Lanka.

The petitioner in SC/FR/107/2021 was a member of the Human Rights Commission in Sri Lanka and is involved in rehabilitation processes in different capacities.

The literal reading of Article 126(2) of the Constitution indicates that the fundamental rights jurisdiction of this Court can be invoked by a person whose rights have been infringed or are about to be infringed by executive or administrative action. However, the contextual reading of the Constitution as a cohesive whole and the jurisprudential dimension reveal that the invocation of fundamental rights jurisdiction is not circumscribed by rigid boundaries or limited by isolated provisions. Instead, it is intended to be a flexible and dynamic instrument for safeguarding the rights and liberties of the People.

The Preamble of the Constitution itself recognises the fundamental human rights, amongst others, as an intangible heritage that guarantees the dignity and well-being of the people of Sri Lanka.

According to Article 3 of the Constitution, sovereignty is in the People and sovereignty includes the fundamental rights. Article 4(d) states that the fundamental rights shall be respected, secured and advanced by all the organs of government and shall not be abridged, restricted or denied, except in the manner and to the extent provided for in the Constitution.

According to Article 17, every person shall be entitled to apply to the Supreme Court, as provided by Article 126, in respect of the infringement or imminent infringement by executive or administrative action, of a fundamental right to which such person is entitled under the provisions of Chapter 3 of the Constitution.

In accordance with Article 27(2)(a), the State is committed to establishing a democratic socialist society with one of its objectives being "the full realization of the fundamental rights and freedoms of all persons".

Article 28(a) states that the exercise and enjoyment of rights and freedoms are inseparable from the performance of duties and obligations and accordingly it is the duty of every person in Sri Lanka to uphold and defend the Constitution and the law.

The contours of fundamental rights jurisdiction have expanded over the years, and public interest litigation in response to violations and imminent violations of fundamental rights is no longer a new phenomenon in the global arena.

In the seminal case of Bulankulama and Others v. Secretary of Ministry of Industrial Development and Others [2000] 3 Sri LR 243 at 258, Justice Amerasinghe observed:

> [T]he Supreme Court has "sole and exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine any question relating to the infringement or imminent infringement by executive or administrative action of any fundamental right…" The Court is neither assuming a role as "trustee" nor usurping the powers of any other organ of Government. It is discharging a duty which has in the clearest terms been entrusted to this Court, and this Court alone, by Article 126(1) of the Constitution.

> Learned counsel for the 5th and 7th respondents submitted that, being an alleged "public interest litigation" matter, it should not be entertained under provisions of the Constitution and should be rejected. I must confess surprise, for the question of 'public interest litigation' really involves questions of standing and not whether there is a certain kind of recognized cause of action. The Court is concerned in the instant case with the complaints of individual petitioners. On the question of standing, in my view, the petitioners, as individual citizens, have a Constitutional right given by Article 17 read with Articles 12 and 14 and Article 126 to be before this Court. They are not disqualified because it so happens that their rights are linked to the collective rights of the citizenry of Sri Lanka – rights they share with the people of Sri Lanka. Moreover, in the circumstances of the instant case, such collective rights provide the context in which the alleged infringement or imminent infringement of the petitioners' fundamental rights ought to be considered. It is in that connection that the confident expectation (trust) that the Executive will act in accordance with the law and accountably, in the best interests of the people of Sri Lanka, including the petitioners, and future generations of Sri Lankans, becomes relevant.

In Sugathapala Mendis and Another v. Chandrika Kumaratunga and Others [2008] 2 Sri LR 339 at 356, Justice Thillakawardane endorsed this view in the following manner:

> With respect to the submission of standing, or locus standi, we concur with the opinion of the learned Judge in Bulankulama (supra), namely that petitioner in such public interest litigation have a constitutional right, given by Article 17, read with Articles 12 and 126, to bring forward their claims. Petitioners to such litigation cannot be disqualified on the basis that their rights happen to be > ones that extend to the collective citizenry of Sri Lanka. The very notion that the organs of government are expected to act in accordance with the best interests of the People of Sri Lanka, necessitates a determination that any one of the People of Sri Lanka may seek redress in instances where a violation is believed to have occurred. To hold otherwise would deprive the citizenry from seeking accountability of the institutions to which it has conferred great power and to allow injustice to be left unchecked solely because of technical shortcomings. This position is consistent with several instances where this Court has held standing to be adequate.

The petitioners in the instant applications have the locus standi to file these applications.

I will now consider the impugned Regulations separately to determine whether they violate Articles 10, 12(1), and 13 of the Constitution, as alleged by the petitioners.

The purpose of the Regulations

Regulation 1 provides the title of the Regulations. It captures the purpose of the Regulations and sets the tone for the rest.

> These Regulations may be cited as the Prevention of Terrorism (De-radicalization from holding violent extremist religious ideology) Regulations No. 01 of 2021.

Article 10 of the Constitution reads as follows:

> Every person is entitled to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, including the freedom to have or to adopt a religion or belief of his choice.

Article 10 is a non-derogable and an entrenched provision. No restrictions can be placed on this Article. To amend Article 10, Article 83 requires a 2/3 majority in Parliament and approval through a referendum.

The freedom of thought, as enshrined in our fundamental rights, stands out as a cornerstone of democracy. The freedom of thought ensures that a person's mind remains beyond scrutiny. To infringe upon the freedom of thought is to undermine the very essence of a democratic society, for it is within the realm of individual thought that the roots of self-expression, personal liberty, human dignity and the flourishing of all other fundamental rights are nurtured.

The definition of "extremist religious ideology" presents inherent difficulties as religious beliefs may vary widely among individuals, with one person's religious ideology potentially appearing extreme to another. In the absence of clarity, there is a risk of arbitrary decisions being made where certain attitudes, behaviors, attire etc. can also be deemed as signs of extremist religious ideologies.

According to Article 10, the State cannot prevent a person from thinking or believing in some religious ideology on the basis that such thinking or belief is irrational or extreme. As I have already stated, Article 10 sets an absolute bar against such infringements. Nevertheless, if such person manifests his thinking or belief, freedom of thought can be restricted as permitted by Article 15 of the Constitution.

Whilst Article 10 guarantees freedom of thought to every person, Article 14(1)(a) guarantees freedom of expression of his thinking to every citizen. Article 14(1)(a) states "Every citizen is entitled to the freedom of speech and expression including publication". In Fernando v. The Sri Lanka Broadcasting Corporation [1996] 1 Sri LR 157 at 179, Justice Mark Fernando stated that "Article 10 denies government the power to control men's minds, while Article 14(1)(a) excludes the power to curb their tongues."

Unlike freedom of thought, the freedom of speech and expression is not absolute. The full enjoyment of freedom of speech and expression is circumscribed by Article 15(2):

> The exercise and operation of the fundamental right declared and recognized by Article 14(1)(a) shall be subject to such restrictions as may be prescribed by law in the interests of racial and religious harmony or in relation to parliamentary privilege, contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence.

According to Article 170, "law" means "any Act of Parliament and any law enacted by any legislature at any time prior to the commencement of the Constitution and includes an Order in Council". This means the freedom of speech and expression can be limited by an Act of Parliament.

The manifestation of one's religion or belief is a fundamental right. Article 14(e) states:

> Every citizen is entitled to the freedom, either by himself or in association with others, and either in public or in private, to manifest his religion or belief in worship, observance, practice and teaching.

Freedom to manifest one's religion or belief is also subject to restrictions. Article 15(7) imposes restrictions on the manifestation of religion or belief.

> The exercise and operation of all the fundamental rights declared and recognized by Articles 12, 13(1), 13(2) and 14 shall be subject to such restrictions as may be prescribed by law in the interests of national security, public order and the protection of public health or morality, or for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others, or of meeting the just requirements of the general welfare of a democratic society. For the purposes of this paragraph "law" includes regulations made under the law for the time being relating to public security.

For the purpose of Article 15(7), "law" includes not only Acts of parliament but also regulations made under the law for the time being relating to public security.

While Article 10 is theoretically absolute and untouchable, practically, it may not be so. It seems that learned counsel for the petitioners accept this.

Learned counsel for the petitioner in SC/FR/106/2021 says "The role of the State, to be exercised in terms of the Constitution and the law, is limited to stepping in, in the event that imminent harm is to be caused to another. Even in the event that a person is prone to violence, the powers given to the State to prevent such harm do not extend to the power to brainwash, or to change the thoughts, conscience or religion of a person."

Learned counsel in SC/FR/91/2021 states "the petitioners are not against the notion of de-radicalization and rehabilitation of persons holding violent extremist views. To the contrary, the petitioners strongly believe that rehabilitation is an essential pre-requisite of any progressive criminal justice system and when done properly and with due regard to the rights of persons, is the most appropriate way to deal with many persons who have violent extremist views."

In Premalal Perera v. Weerasuriya [1985] 2 Sri LR 177 at 192 Justice Ranasinghe (as His Lordship then was) stated that "a religious belief need not be logical, acceptable, consistent or comprehensible in order to be protected that unless where the claim is so bizarre, so clearly non-religious in motivation, it is not within the judicial function and judicial competence to inquire whether the person seeking protection has correctly perceived the commands of his particular faith". That means, if the religious belief is "so bizarre, so clearly non-religious in motivation", the protection under Article 10 is not available.

But the question is how to draw the line between "a religious belief need not be logical, acceptable, consistent or comprehensible in order to be protected" and "the claim is so bizarre, so clearly non-religious in motivation"? What is the yardstick to decide that the religious belief is "so bizarre, so clearly non-religious in motivation"? People cannot be prosecuted, nay persecuted, for merely "holding religious ideology" which the State thinks to be "violent and extremist".

All seem to be in agreement that when there is an imminent threat in pursuit of "violent extremist religious ideology", the State can step in to prevent the harm for the greater benefit of all others. However, prevention of harm cannot be the pretext for arbitrary use of power to curb the rights of the People.

Although no issue of a legal nature arises from the title of a statute, the unqualified concept contained in the title of the impugned Regulations is inconsistent with Article 10 of the Constitution. This has been exacerbated by the fact that no definition has been provided for the term "violent extremist religious ideology" in the Regulations.

I must also note that in the Sinhala version of these Regulations, the word "violent" is not included in the title of the Regulations.

The objective of the Regulations

Regulation 2 deals with the objectives of the Regulations. However, a contextual reading of these objectives reveals that there is no nexus between the theme of the Regulations as manifested in the title and the objectives of the Regulations. Regulation 2 is inherently illogical and irrational. It reads thus:

> The objective of these regulations shall be to ensure, that any person who surrenders or is taken into custody on suspicion of being a person who by words either spoken or intended to be read or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, causes or intends to cause commission of acts of violence or religious, racial or communal disharmony or feelings of ill will or hostility between different communities or racial or religious groups after the coming into operation of these regulations is dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the Act, and that persons who have surrendered or have been taken into custody in terms of any emergency regulation which was in force at any time prior to coming into operation of these regulations, continue in terms of these regulations, to enjoy the same care and protection which they were previously enjoying.

According to Regulation 2, the objective of these Regulations is not de-radicalization and rehabilitation of individuals holding violent extremist religious ideology. Regulation 2 does not expressly state such an objective.

Regulation 2 outlines two-fold objectives:

The first objective is "to ensure that any person who surrenders or is taken into custody on suspicion of being a person who by words either spoken or intended to be read or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise, causes or intends to cause commission of acts of violence or religious, racial or communal disharmony or feelings of ill will or hostility between different communities or racial or religious groups after the coming into operation of these regulations is dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the Act" (and not in accordance with the provisions of the impugned Regulations).

According to Regulation 9, "Act" means the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979.

I find it hard to understand this objective. Let me explain.

According to section 2(1)(h) of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act, a person who "by words either spoken or intended to be read or by signs or by visible representations or otherwise causes or intends to cause commission of acts of violence or religious, racial or communal disharmony or feelings of ill-will or hostility between different communities or racial or religious groups" shall be guilty of an offence under that Act. These are the very same words used in Regulation 2 quoted above. The Act also includes provisions for individuals who are arrested on suspicion of engaging in the aforementioned acts. In this backdrop, it appears incongruous when Regulation 2 says after the coming into operation of the Regulations such persons are dealt with in accordance with the provisions of "the Act". The Act does not provide for rehabilitation.

The second objective is "that persons who have surrendered or have been taken into custody in terms of any emergency regulation which was in force at any time prior to coming into operation of these regulations, continue in terms of these regulations, to enjoy the same care and protection which they were previously enjoying." If the care and protection provided to those individuals remain the same even after these Regulations, I fail to see any significance in this objective.

Alternative interpretations of these objectives may be possible but this shows the inherent vagueness, ambiguity, and obscurity in Regulation 2. If the stated objective of the Regulations is not clear, how can their impact and applicability be properly assessed or understood? The existence of such real uncertainties within legal provisions may give rise to subjective interpretation and arbitrary enforcement of the law, which may undermine the rule of law and legal predictability. This violates Article 12(1) of the Constitution which states "All persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law."

Who can be referred to rehabilitation?

Who can be referred to rehabilitation is set out in Regulations 3 and 5. Regulation 3 reads as follows:

> Any person who, in connection with any offence under the provisions of,
>
> (a) the Act, or the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 published in the Gazette Extraordinary No. 2123/3 of May 13, 2019, surrenders or has surrendered to, or is taken or has been taken into custody by; or
>
> (b) the Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulation, No. 1 of 2019 published in the Gazette Extraordinary No. 2120/5 of April 22, 2019, has surrendered to or has been taken into custody by, > any police officer, or any member of the armed forces, or to any public officer or any other person or body of persons authorized by the President by Order, may be referred to a rehabilitation programme in terms of the provisions of these regulations.
>

Regulation 3 delineates three distinct categories of individuals who may be directed to rehabilitation. They are:

A person who is in connection with any offence under the provisions of:

(1) the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979
(2) the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019
(3) the Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulations No. 1 of 2019

The term "connected with any offence" has not been defined in the impugned Regulations. Such a broad term permits the inclusion of virtually anyone under its scope, based on the subjective criteria of those authorised to arrest individuals under the impugned Regulations.

The Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulations No. 1 of 2019, which were made under section 5 of the Public Security Ordinance No. 25 of 1947 as amended, have since lapsed. Consequently, persons cannot now be taken into custody under the aforesaid third category.

The Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 were made under section 27 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979.

People can still be taken into custody under the first and second categories because the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 and the Regulations made thereunder are still in force.

Who can arrest individuals?

According to Regulation 3 of the impugned Regulations, persons in connection with any offence under the provisions of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 and the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 can be taken into custody by

(1) any police officer,
(2) any member of the armed forces,
(3) any public officer,
(4) any other person or
(5) body of persons authorized by the President by Order.

There is no provision in the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 and the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 which confers the President or the Minister to exercise such power.

The words used in Regulation 3(a) are "Any person who…surrenders or has surrendered to, or is taken or has been taken into custody" thereby covering not only past acts but also future acts. The plain reading of Regulation 3 confirms that this is applicable to the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979, the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 and the Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulations No. 1 of 2019. Regulation 3, when read in conjunction with Regulation 9, confers a sui generis power of arrest.

The argument of the learned Additional Solicitor General that "Regulation 3 does not in any way confer power on any authority to arrest a person under these Regulations, but makes reference to persons whose surrender or custody is in terms of other laws/Regulations" is unacceptable.

Similarly, the argument of learned counsel for the intervenient respondents that "Prevention of Terrorism (De-radicalization from holding violent extremist religious ideology) Regulations No. 01 of 2021) does not envisage nor empower the arrest or taking into custody of persons thereunder and only applies to those who are arrested or taken into custody under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No.

48 of 1979 as amended, Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 and the Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulation No. 1 of 2019 and refers to categories of persons entitled to arrest thereunder" is also unacceptable.

Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 do not provide for arrest. Hence, before the impugned Regulations were made, arrest had to be done under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979.

The Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 identifies categories of persons who can arrest individuals. According to this Act, far from 'any person', even 'any police officer' cannot arrest individuals under the said Act. In terms of section 6(1) of the Act, "any police officer not below the rank of Superintendent or any other police officer not below the rank of Sub-Inspector authorized in writing by him in that behalf may, without a warrant and with or without assistance and notwithstanding anything in any other law to the contrary arrest any person".

Can Regulations override the principal Act?

Regulations made under the principal Act cannot override the principal Act unless it is expressly provided. The Regulations are expected to be consistent with and subordinate to the enabling Act. What cannot be done through an amendment to the principal Act cannot be done through Regulations made under the same Act. The principal Act passed by the legislature cannot be changed by the executive by Regulations.

According to section 17(1)(c) of the Interpretation Ordinance No. 21 of 1901 as amended, where any enactment confers power on any authority to make rules, "no rule shall be inconsistent with the provisions of any enactment". Section 17(2) enacts that "In this section the expression "rules" includes rules and regulations, regulations, and by-laws."

Section 27(1) of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979, which invests the Minister with his rule-making power enacts "The Minister may make regulations under this Act for the purpose of carrying out or giving effect to the principles and provisions of this Act." This does not permit the Minister to unilaterally extend or modify the enabling Act passed by Parliament. Such actions would constitute an encroachment on legislative power by the executive, which is contrary to the fundamental principles of democratic governance.

According to section 28 of the of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979, "The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything contained in any other written law and accordingly in the event of any conflict or inconsistency between the provisions of this Act and such other written law, the provisions of this Act shall prevail." Article 170 of the Constitution includes "Regulations" into the definition of "written law". This itself indicates that Regulations made under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act cannot take precedence over the Act.

In the case of The Attorney General of Ceylon v. W.M. Fernando, Honorary Secretary, Galle Gymkhana Club (1977) 79(1) NLR 39 at 42-43, Justice Sharvananda (as His Lordship then was) stated:

> A clear distinction has to be drawn between an Act of Parliament and subordinate legislation, even though the latter is contained in a resolution passed by the House of Representatives, a limb of the Legislature. A Court has no jurisdiction to declare invalid an Act of Parliament, but has jurisdiction to declare subordinate legislation to be invalid if it is satisfied that in making the subordinate legislation, > the rule-making authority has acted outside the legislative powers conferred on it by the Act of Parliament under which such legislation is purported to be made. (…) The doctrine that subordinate legislation is invalid if it is ultra vires, is based on the principle that a subordinate agency has no power to legislate other than such as may have expressly been conferred by the supreme Legislature. Subordinate legislation is fundamentally of a derivatory nature and must be exercised within the periphery of the power conferred by the enabling Act. If a subordinate law-making authority goes outside the powers conferred on it by the enabling statute, such legislation will ipso facto be ultra vires.

In Ram Banda v. The River Valleys Development Board (1968) 71 NLR 25, the Minister, purporting to act under the rule-making powers conferred on him by certain sections of the Industrial Disputes Act, made Regulation 16 of the Industrial Disputes Regulations, 1958. Regulation 16 provided that "every application under paragraph (a) or (b) of section 31B(1) of the Industrial Disputes Act in respect of any workman shall be made within three months of the date of termination of the services of that workman". The appellant workman's application was rejected by the Labour Tribunal on the ground that the date of dismissal was more than three months anterior to the application. On appeal, the Supreme Court held:

> Regulation 16 is ultra vires the rule-making powers conferred on the Minister by sections 31A(2), 39(1)(a), 39(1)(b), 39(1)(ff) and 39(1)(h) of the Industrial Disputes Act inasmuch as it in effect takes away from the workman, on the expiry of the stated period of three months, the right given to him by the legislature to apply to a Labour Tribunal for relief, and to that extent nullifies or repeals the principal enactment.

Section 39(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act provides that every Regulation made by the Minister should be placed before Parliament for approval and that on such approval and publication in the Gazette, it shall be "as valid and effectual as though it were herein enacted". Justice Weeramantry took the view that such approval does not confer validity on a Regulation which is outside the scope of the enabling powers. His Lordship stated at page 38:

> The mere passage of such regulation through Parliament does not give it the imprimatur in such a way as to remove it, through the operation of section 39(2), from the purview of the courts. The duty of interpreting the regulation and the parent Act in order to see whether the former falls within the scope allowed by the latter devolves on the courts alone.
>
> Against such a background, to view section 39(2) as a clock of validity which may be thrown around rules which in fact are ultra vires would be to erode rather than protect the supreme authority of Parliament. Regulations clearly outside the scope of the enabling powers and passing unnoticed in the heat and pressure of parliamentary business may then survive unquestioned and unquestionable; and functionaries manifestly exceeding their powers would thereby be able to arrogate to themselves a de facto legislative authority which de jure belongs to parliament alone.
>
> For the foregoing reasons I cannot subscribe to the view that the mere passage of a regulation through Parliament gives it the imprimatur of the legislature in such a way as to remove it from the purview of the courts through the operation of section 39(2).
>
> The duty of interpreting the regulation and the parent Act in order to see whether the former falls within the scope allowed by the latter devolves on the courts alone. It is a principle that has often been asserted, and bears reassertion, that just as the making of the laws is exclusively the province and function of Parliament, so is their interpretation the province and function exclusively of the courts. In the total and exclusive commitment of this function to the care of the courts, tradition, law and reason all combine; nor is any organ of the State so-well equipped in fact or so amply authorised by law to discharge this function. It is self-evident that Parliament is not nor ever can be the authority for the interpretation of the laws which it enacts.

In the view stated above, the courts as the sole interpreters of the law are committed to the duty, despite section 39(2), to consider whether a regulation travels beyond the powers conferred on its maker. Any other view of the law seems fraught with danger to the subject for it would free the acts of creatures of the legislature from the checks and scrutinies which alone are effective in ensuring that the delegated authority while operating to the uttermost limits of its powers does not travel beyond.

I thus reach the conclusion that it is within the competence of this court to subject such regulations to the ultra vires test despite section 39(2) and for the reasons earlier set out, I hold the rule in question to be ultra vires.

In River Valleys Development Board v. Sheriff (1971) 74 NLR 505 the majority did not agree with the above judgment. However, River Valleys Development Board v. Sheriff was overruled in The Ceylon Workers' Congress v. The Superintendent, Beragala Estate (1973) 76 NLR 1, which held that Ram Banda v. The River Valleys Development Board had been correctly decided. The dicta of Justice Weeramantry in Ram Banda v. The River Valleys Development Board was followed by a series of subsequent decisions. Those decisions include Wickremasekera v. Ganegoda (1973) 76 NLR 452, Rahuman v. Trustees of the Mohideen Jumma Mosque [2004] 2 Sri LR 250 and Rathnakumara and Others v. The Postgraduate Institute of Medicine (SC/APPEAL/16/2014, SC Minutes of 30.03.2016).

In the instant case, only the making of the Regulations and their publication in the Gazette in terms of section 27(1) and (2) of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 have taken place, and not the approval by Parliament.

Regulation 3 is ultra vires the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979. It also constitutes an affront to Article 12(1) of the Constitution.

This also violates Article 13(1) of the Constitution which states "No person shall be arrested except according to procedure established by law. Any person arrested shall be informed of the reason for his arrest."

Who determines rehabilitation under regulation 3?

Regulation 3 provides for the arrest. Then the next question is who decides to send such persons having some "connection with any offence" under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act No. 48 of 1979 or the Prevention of Terrorism (Proscription of Extremist Organizations) Regulations No. 1 of 2019 or the Emergency (Miscellaneous Provisions and Powers) Regulations No.1 of 2019 to rehabilitation. The impugned Regulations do not provide for it. It is important to bear in mind that this category of persons is different from those who fall into the category described in Regulation 5. Regulation 3 is clearly vague.

According to Regulation 3, such arrestees "may be referred to a rehabilitation programme in terms of the provisions of these regulations", not in terms of the provisions of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act No. 2 of 2023, which became law after these Regulations. This leads to a further confusion whether there are two regimes governing rehabilitation.

Article 13(5) declares "Every person shall be presumed innocent until he is proved guilty".

Regulation 3 violates Articles 12(1), 13(1) and 13(5) of the Constitution.

Reintegration Centres

Regulation 4 provides for setting up of Reintegration Centres:

> The Secretary to the Ministry of the Minister shall, from time to time approve Centres to be known as "Reintegration Centres" (hereinafter referred to as the "Centre") for the purpose of rehabilitating the surrendees and detainees. Upon such approval the Commissioner General of Rehabilitation shall by order published in the Gazette specify the category and the place of the Centres approved by the Secretary.

According to Regulation 9, "Minister" means the Minister of Defence.

This Regulation is in direct contradiction to the framework established by the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act No. 2 of 2023.

In brief, under the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act, there are no Reintegration Centres but Rehabilitation Centers established by the Minister in charge of the subject of rehabilitation, not by the Minister of Defence or Secretary to the Ministry of Defence or Commissioner General of Rehabilitation. The administration, management and control of the affairs of the Bureau of Rehabilitation is vested in the Governing Council.

After the enactment of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act, impugned Regulation 4 is no longer valid or sustainable. Regulation 4 cannot be given effect to over the provisions of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act. The overlap between the provisions of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act and Regulation 4 leads to ambiguity.

Regulation 4 violates Article 12(1).

Detention orders

Regulation 5 has four sub sections: 5(1) and 5(2) are standalone sections. They deal with distinct matters. 5(3) and 5(4) together deal with a separate matter.

Several questions arise out of this Regulation.

Regulation 5(1) reads as follows:

> Any person other than a police officer to whom a person surrenders or who takes a person into custody in terms of regulation 3 shall hand over such surrendee or person taken into custody, to the Officer in Charge of the nearest police station within twenty four hours of such surrender or taking into custody.

There is no ambiguity that Regulation 5(1) refers to first two categories of Regulation 3 mentioned above because this Regulation does not refer to past acts. It says any person other than a police officer to whom a person "surrenders or who takes a person into custody" shall hand over such person to the officer in charge of the nearest police station within twenty four hours. As I mentioned previously, individuals cannot be arrested in such a manner by "any person other than a police officer". Regulation 5(1) violates Articles 12(1) and 13(1).

Regulation 5(2) reads as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of regulation 3, where there is reasonable cause to suspect that a surrendee or detainee has committed an offence specified in regulation 3, the Officer in Charge of the police station in which such surrendee or detainee is held in custody shall submit a report to the Minister for consideration whether such surrendee or detainee shall be detained in terms of section 9 of the Act, for the purpose of conducting an investigation.

This Regulation clears the doubt that a reference to rehabilitation in terms of Regulation 3 is done where there is not even a reasonable cause to suspect that the arrestee has committed an offence specified in Regulation 3. Reference to rehabilitation under Regulation 3 is not voluntary. This shows the illegality of rehabilitation under Regulation 3.

According to Regulation 5(2), where there is reasonable cause to suspect that a detainee has committed an offence specified in Regulation 3, the officer in charge of the police station shall submit a report to the Minister of Defence for consideration whether such person shall be detained in terms of section 9 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act for further investigation. This goes to show that the procedure in the impugned Regulations is sui generis. Otherwise, there is no reason to reiterate this within this Regulation.

Role of the Attorney General

Regulation 5(3) reads as follows:

> Where in the course of such investigation it is disclosed that such surrendee or detainee has committed an offence specified in regulation 3 the matter shall be referred to the Attorney-General for appropriate action in terms of the law.

According to this Regulation, during the course of an investigation (prior to its conclusion), if the police decide that the detainee has committed an offence specified in Regulation 3, the matter shall be referred to the Attorney General. It is important to note that this decision is made unilaterally by the police.

Regulation 5(4) states:

> Where the Attorney-General is of the opinion that according to the nature of the offence committed a surrendee or detainee shall be rehabilitated at a Centre in lieu of instituting criminal proceedings against him, such surrendee or detainee shall be produced before a Magistrate with the written approval of the Attorney-General. The Magistrate may make order, having taking into consideration whether such surrendee or detainee has committed any other offence other than offences specified in regulation 3, referring him for rehabilitation for a period not exceeding one year at a Centre.

This marks the second occasion where a unilateral decision is taken against the detainee that he committed the offence. The Attorney General can unilaterally decide that the detainee shall be rehabilitated at a Centre in lieu of instituting criminal proceedings. With the written approval of the Attorney General, the detainee is then produced before a Magistrate.

Under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act, the Magistrate has no authority to release individuals on bail without the sanction of the Attorney General. In practical terms, with the written approval of the Attorney General for rehabilitation, the Magistrate has to make a perfunctory order for rehabilitation. That is the reality. This the Magistrate does, without a charge sheet, without trial, without conviction and without passing a sentence. The sentence for committing an unknown and undisclosed offence is rehabilitation. Notably, there is no provision for a hearing to be given to the detainee before sending him for rehabilitation. The detainee can even be produced to the Magistrate at his residence with the written approval of the Attorney General for rehabilitation to get the formal order.

A careful reading of Regulation 5(4) confirms that the only matter the Magistrate can take into account is whether the detainee has committed any offence other than those specified in Regulation 3. If I may repeat, what it says is "The Magistrate may make order, having taking into consideration whether such surrendee or detainee has committed any other offence other than offences specified in regulation 3, referring him for rehabilitation for a period not exceeding one year at a Centre." It does not say that the Magistrate may, having taken into consideration inter alia whether such surrendee or detainee has committed any offence other than the offences specified in regulation 3, refer such person to a Centre for rehabilitation for a period not exceeding one year. Here an individual is sent for rehabilitation without his informed consent. It remains unclear whether the alleged commission of other offences is considered in favor of rehabilitation or against it. The absence of proper judicial oversight throughout this entire process renders it inherently arbitrary.

Article 13(3) enacts that "Any person charged with an offence shall be entitled to be heard, in person or by an attorney-at-law, at a fair trial by a competent court." Article 13(3) does not fall under any of the restrictions recognised under Article 15. This Article is interrelated with Article 13(5), which upholds the presumption of innocence until proven guilty as a fundamental right. Article 13(3) cannot be rendered nugatory by denying a trial, as these Regulations do. The principle of fairness is not limited to the trial proper. It begins before the trial and continues after the trial in the event of a conviction.

Regulation 5 violates the fundamental rights guaranteed under Article 12(1) and 13(5).

The argument that all these decisions are reviewable and therefore no prejudice is caused to the rehabilitant is unacceptable. Litigation is time-consuming and costly. It is the duty of the State to take all precautionary steps to safeguard the fundamental rights of the subjects.

Revocation of the rehabilitation order

Regulation 6 deals with the subject of revocation of the rehabilitation order.

> 6(1) Where any surrendee or detainee who is referred to for rehabilitation by an order of a Magistrate under sub regulation (4) of regulation 5 acts in a manner that is disruptive to the rehabilitation programme or detrimental to the interests of the other surrendees or detainees who are under rehabilitation at the Centre, the Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation shall inform in that regard in writing to the Officer in Charge of the police station who applied to the Magistrate for rehabilitation of such surrendee or detainee.
>
> (2) Upon receipt of information from the Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation under sub regulation (1) of this regulation, the Officer in Charge of the police station who applied to the Magistrate for rehabilitation of such surrendee or detainee shall apply to the Magistrate to revoke the order for rehabilitation and refer the matter to the Attorney-General to consider whether such person shall be indicted in lieu of rehabilitation.

The term “disruptive” can be interpreted in many ways; for instance, complaints against the condition of the Center can be considered as disruptive. According to this Regulation, the revocation of a rehabilitation order is effected without any inquiry or hearing being afforded to the rehabilitant. Absence of due process infringes upon the principles of natural justice and fairness, thereby constituting a violation of Article 12(1).

It seems to me that this is a matter that should be addressed through the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act and not by way of Regulations made under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act.

Section 26 of the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act provides for obstructions of the rehabilitation programme.

> Any person who unlawfully obstructs or attempts to unlawfully obstruct any person employed in any Centre for Rehabilitation in the performance of his lawful duties under this Act, commits an offence under this Act and shall be liable on conviction after summary trial by a Magistrate to a fine not exceeding fifty thousand rupees or to imprisonment of either description for a period not exceeding six months or to both such fine and imprisonment.

As previously mentioned, this is a consequence of these Regulations having been promulgated before the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act came into existence.

Extension of rehabilitation period

Regulation 7 deals with the extension of the rehabilitation period.

> 7(1) At the end of the period of rehabilitation specified in respect of a surrendee or detainee in the order made by the Magistrate under sub Regulation (4) of regulation 5, the Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation shall, having regard to the nature and progress of the rehabilitation of such surrendee or detainee, consider whether it is appropriate for the surrendee or detainee to be released or be subject to a further the period of rehabilitation, shall forthwith submit his recommendation to the Secretary to the Ministry of the Minister. The Secretary shall forthwith forward such report to the Minister.

(2) The Minister may, after perusal of the report submitted to him under sub regulation (1) of this regulation,

(a) order the release of such surrendee or detainee; or

(b) extend the period of rehabilitation for a period of six months at a time, so however that the aggregate period of such extensions shall not exceed a further twelve months. Each such extension shall be made on the recommendation of the Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation.

(3) The surrendee or detainee shall, at the end of the extended period of rehabilitation, be released.

This Regulation is ultra vires in several respects.

After obtaining an order for rehabilitation from a Magistrate for a maximum period of one year and after the completion of that one-year of rehabilitation, it is not within the purview of a Regulation to grant the Minister of Defence the authority to unilaterally extend the rehabilitation period for an additional year without the intervention of the Magistrate. This amounts to a usurpation of judicial power by the executive in violation of Article 3 read with Article 4(c) of the Constitution.

This is also done unilaterally without giving a hearing to the detainee.

This Regulation also violates Articles 12(1), 13(2) and 13(4).

Extension of the period of rehabilitation also seems to be a matter to be dealt with through the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act and not by way of Regulations made under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act.

According to the impugned Regulations, the Minister acts according to the recommendations of the Commissioner General of Rehabilitation. However, under the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act, the Commissioner General of Rehabilitation is the Chief Administrative Officer and the substantive decisions are taken by the Council which consists of eminent professionals in the relevant fields including rehabilitation and social integration.

The rehabilitation programme

Regulation 8 addresses the content of the program, the progress of the individuals undergoing rehabilitation, and some aspect of their welfare.

> 8(1) The Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation shall provide a surrendee or detainee with psycho social assistance and vocational and other training during the period of his rehabilitation to ensure that such person is integrated back to the community and to the society.
>
> (2) The Commissioner-General of Rehabilitation shall every three months from the date of handing over a surrendee or detainee for rehabilitation, forward to the Secretary to the Ministry of the Minister, a report on the nature and the progress of the rehabilitation programme carried out in respect of such person. The Secretary shall submit such report to the Minister.
>
> (3) A surrendee or a detainee referred for rehabilitation to a Centre may with the permission of the officer in charge of the Centre be entitled to meet his parents, relations or guardian as the case may be, once in every two weeks.

These provisions are completely redundant. I reiterate that these issues must be addressed through the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act, not through the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act. It seems that these issues have already been addressed in the Bureau of Rehabilitation Act.

Lawful restriction of fundamental rights

Notwithstanding that the fundamental rights have been given the utmost recognition in our Constitution making it part of sovereignty which is inalienable, as I have already stated, Article 15 recognises permissible restrictions to fundamental rights. However, proportionality is inherent in Article 15. The restriction must be rational and commensurate with the objective to be achieved.

I must state at the outset that the learned Additional Solicitor General did not take up the position that the restrictions are within the constitutionally permissible limits. The State took up an unusual position that no restrictions were placed by the impugned Regulations.

For the purpose of the present applications, the relevant Articles are Articles 10, 12(1) and 13 because the Court granted leave to proceed only on alleged violations of these Articles.

I have already dealt with Article 10, which cannot be subject to any such restrictions.

Article 15(1) stipulates that the fundamental rights guaranteed by Articles 13(5) and 13(6) shall be subject only to such restrictions as may be prescribed by law in the interests of national security.

According to Article 15(7), the fundamental rights recognised by Articles 12, 13(1) and 13(2) shall be subject to such restrictions as may be prescribed by law in the interests of national security, public order and the protection of public health or morality, or for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others, or of meeting the just requirements of the general welfare of a democratic society.

Article 170 defines "law" to encompass any Act of Parliament, laws enacted by any legislature before the commencement of the Constitution, and also includes an Order in Council.

Both 15(1) and 15(7) state that for the purposes of those two paragraphs, "law" includes regulations made under the law for the time being relating to public security.

Learned counsel for the petitioners especially relying on Thavaneethan v. Attorney General [2003] 1 Sri LR 74 argue that "regulations made under the law for the time being relating to public security" means "Regulations made under the law for the time being relating to the Public Security Ordinance" and therefore the restrictions placed on the fundamental rights by the Regulations made under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act are against the Constitution and the rule of law.

The learned Additional Solicitor General, for reasons best known to him, avoided addressing this argument by asserting that "the impugned Regulations do not restrict any fundamental rights of the petitioner or any other persons. As such, the respondents do not seek to engage in the redundant exercise of relying on the applicability of Article 15(7) of the Constitution and thereby attempt to interpret the said Regulations as "law" within the meaning of that provision." It is rather naive to submit that the impugned regulations do not restrict any fundamental rights when they obviously do.

Nonetheless, as the Court did not have the full benefit of the argument of the State on that important point of law (namely, whether the term "the law for the time being relating to public security" should be construed as "the law for the time being relating to Public Security Ordinance") and also in view of the conclusion I have already reached, there is no necessity to make a ruling on this point in the instant application. This matter can be fully considered in a suitable future case.

Learned counsel for the petitioners further argue that, as the impugned Regulations have been promulgated not by the Minister of Defence but by the President, as evident from the Gazette, they should be deemed null and void. In terms of section 27 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act, it is the Minister of Defence, not the President, who can make Regulations under the Act. Although the impugned Regulations have been signed by the President, it seems that, at the relevant time, the President had been functioning as the Defence Minister as well. In light of the conclusion I have already arrived at on the merits of this application, there is no need to make a ruling on this important point as well.

Conclusion

The Prevention of Terrorism (De-radicalization from holding violent extremist religious ideology) Regulations No. 1 of 2021 are in violation of the fundamental rights of the petitioners guaranteed under Articles 10, 12(1) and 13 of the Constitution. It is not practically possible for this Court to suggest amendments to rectify the Regulations to align with all fundamental rights due to their inherent flaws. The Court also makes the declaration that the impugned Regulations are null and void. The State shall pay a sum of Rs. 25,000 to each petitioner as costs of the application.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Buwaneka Aluwihare, P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Murdu N.B. Fernando P.C., J.
I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 17 and Article 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC FR Application No. 91/2018

1. W.A.A.S. Darmasiri,
   No. 266/2,
   Kosgahagoda,
   Boralu Wewa.

2. H. R. Suranjith,
   No. 97 ½, Brukkwaththa,
   Hewagama,
   Kaduwela.

3. M.M.U. Maduranga,
   "Sellika", Godauda,
   Kottegoda.

Petitioners

-Vs-

1. Thusitha Kularathna,
   Chairman,
   Western Province Provincial Road
   Passenger Transport Authority,
   No, 89, "Ranmagapaya",
   Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

1A. Prasanna Sanjeewa,
   Chairman,
   Western Province Provincial Road
   Passenger Transport Authority,
   No, 89, "Ranmagapaya",
   Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

2. Prasanna Kumara Madawala,
   Acting Deputy General Manager
   (Finance),

Western Province Provincial Road
Passenger Transport Authority,
No. 89, "Ranmagapaya",
Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

3. Jagath Perera,
General Manager,
Western Province Provincial Road
Passenger Transport Authority,
No. 89, "Ranmagapaya",
Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

4. Western Province Provincial Road
Passenger Transport Authority,
No. 89, "Ranmagapaya",
Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

5. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

Before: Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC., J.
E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J.
Janak De Silva, J.

Counsel: Shantha Jayawardena with Hirannya Damunupola for the Petitioners.
Kuwera de Zoysa, President's Counsel with Ameer Maharoof and Ms. U. Abeyrathne for the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th Respondents.
Ms. Indumini Randeny, State Counsel for the Hon. Attorney General.

Written Submissions: 12.03.2021, 15.03.2021 and 03. 01.2022

Argued on: 01.11.2021.

Decided on: 24.10.2023.

Judgement

Aluwihare, P.C, J.

1) On 11th March 2018, this court granted leave to proceed in this matter for the alleged violation of Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution. Before addressing the actions alleged to be violative of the said Articles, I wish to set out the factual background of this case.

2) On 15th November 2017, the Western Province Provincial Road Passenger Authority (hereinafter referred to as the 4th Respondent) published a newspaper advertisement (marked as 'P3') inviting tenders for passenger service permits for 102 routes within the western province. In response, the Petitioners, who were interested in Item no. 92 (the Kadawatha-Moratuwa route permit for luxury buses via the Southern Expressway) paid the required deposits as stipulated in the notice and procured tender forms and applicable guidelines (marked as 'P4'). According to the advertisement the minimum bid for the mentioned route permit was set at Rs.800,000/= and 4 slots were available for the route.

3) Thereafter, the Petitioners placed bids for the mentioned route within the stipulated time in the following amounts:
   1st petitioner – Rs. 7,500,000
   2nd petitioner – Rs. 7,000,000
   2nd petitioner – Rs. 6,500,000
   3rd petitioner - Rs. 6,000,000

4) When the bids were opened on 7th December 2017 at around 1.30 p.m. the Petitioners became aware of the placement of the highest bid of Rs. 8,500,000 for the same route by one N. D. B. Vitharana (marked 'P9'). The Acting General Manager of the 4th Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the 2nd respondent) informed said Vitharana, by a letter dated 22nd December 2017 (marked 'P10'), that the Procurement Committee had decided to award him a permit for the said bus route and that he is required to pay the full bid amount of Rs.

8,500,000 or a minimum of 50% of the said amount, in terms of Clause 14.1 of the Guidelines on or before 3rd January 2018.

5) Clause 14.1 of the Guidelines denotes that a person who has been awarded a tender has to make an initial payment of 50% of the total bid price within 7 days. The above guideline is also presented as a Condition of Tender in Condition No. 09 of the Tender Form, where it is provided that any bidder who tenders his respective bid agrees to comply with Clause 14.1 of the Guidelines. Other relevant clauses of the Guidelines are as follows; As per Clause 4.2.9, when there are two or more vacant slots for the same bus route, the highest successful bidder is awarded the first permit and the second, third and other bidders (if any) would be awarded the permit for the bidding price of the 'highest successful bidder'. As per Clause 4.2.3, if a selected bidder fails to pay 50% of the price within 7 days, the bid is considered invalid. It is also settled that as per Clause 4.2.3, the tender is 'awarded' after the payment of 50% of the price. Clause 4.26 states that where the selected highest bidder withdraws/is removed, the Procurement Committee may award the tender to the second highest bidder within 3 months of the award of tender for the amount tendered by the former highest bidder who had either withdrawn or removed. As per Clause 4.2.7, where the second highest bidder does not consent to the permit charge of the former highest bidder, and the Procurement Committee is satisfied that the permit charge as per the former highest bidder is 'excessively high', the Procurement Committee may set an appropriate permit charge.

6) The 1st and 2nd Petitioners were informed by the 2nd Respondent that the Procurement Committee had decided to award the 1st Petitioner one route permit and the 2nd Petitioner two route permits for the highest price of Rs. 8,500,000 each, and that they were required to make payments before 3rd March 2018 (letters marked 'P11, P12, P13' respectively). Thereafter, the 3rd Petitioner received, on the 14th February 2018, a letter dated 9th February 2018 informing him that it had been decided to award him a route permit for the same route for Rs. 8,500,000. The 3rd Petitioner accepted the tender by paying 50% of 8,500,000 on 21st February 2018. It is important to note at this instance that there were only 4 route permits available for awarding. Upon inquiry, the Petitioners become aware on or about the 14th February 2018 that N.D.B. Vitharana had not accepted the award of tender as he had purportedly not made the payment in terms of the Guidelines nor had a route permit been issued to him. The Procurement Committee had decided to grant the 3rd Petitioner a route permit consequent to Vitharana's failure to make the initial payment of the bid price.

7) It is the submission of the Petitioners that according to the Guidelines and Condition mentioned above, the non-payment of 50% of the bid price within 7 days by Vitharana renders his bid of Rs. 8,500,000 invalid and that as a result, his bid of Rs. 8,500,000 was not 'the highest bid price', and treating such invalid bid as a valid one and quoting such price for the procurement of a route permit to the Petitioners by the Respondents was unreasonable, irrational, arbitrary and illegal and amounts to an infringement of the Petitioner's Fundamental Rights guaranteed by Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution. It was further submitted that the aforementioned acts frustrated the legitimate expectation of the Petitioners that the route permits would be awarded in accordance with the guidelines issued by the 4th Respondent.

8) The submissions of the Respondents are primarily two-fold. First, that 1st and 2nd Petitioners unconditionally accepted the bid price of Rs. 8,500,000 as the permit charge by paying 50% of the price as required by Clauses 11.1 and 1.4 of the Guidelines, and as such their fundamental rights were not infringed. Secondly, that there is no provision in the Tender Guidelines for the automatic reduction of the route permit charge in the event that the highest bidder fails to make the initial payment, and therefore, the Respondents did not, in any event, have the power to reduce the permit charge once it was unconditionally accepted by a bidder by making an initial payment, and the Petitioners could not therefore, complain of the violation of their fundamental rights. Additionally, the Respondents also submit that they had acted in good faith, within the scope of powers entrusted to them by Clauses 4.2.6 and 4.2.7 of the Guidelines to determine the Highest Bid Price.

Was there a violation of Article 12(1) and/or Article 14(1)(g)?

9) The Petitioners contend that the payment of 50% of the bid price within 7 days is a 'condition precedent' to the acceptance of the offer made by the respective bid, in accordance with Clause 14.1 of the Guidelines and the letter issued to N.D.B. Vitharana by the Respondents. The letter states that the tender will be issued once the initial payment has been made. There can be no doubt therefore, that the N.D.B. Vitharana's tender bid was, in fact, invalid. The questions which remain then, are whether the 'highest bid price' could be that of an invalid bid and whether the setting of the bid price for the Petitioners at the price of an invalid bid is contrary to the Tender Guidelines and in violation of Article 12(1) regardless of whether the Petitioners had 'unconditionally accepted' the bid price of Rs. 8,500,000 by paying the initial payment of 50%.

10) I shall first deal with the contention by the Respondents that the Petitioners cannot complain of the violation of Fundamental Rights after making the initial payment of 50% and 'unconditionally accepting' the bid price. If the court were to find in favour of this contention, any bid, regardless of the authenticity of such bid would be considered valid and could thereby be construed as the 'highest bid'. Put simply, any unrealistically bloated bid aimed at escalating tender prices would be set as the price for each succeeding bidder regardless of whether such bid proves successful. That would, in my opinion, defeat the purpose of the tender process. Furthermore, to address the argument of the Respondents that the Petitioners could have prevented themselves from 'unconditionally accepting' the bid by not making the initial payment of 50% of the bid price, I find that it simply cannot be incumbent upon the bidders to determine the authenticity of the highest bidder prior to making the initial payment. The petitioners were not made aware of N.D.B Vitharana's failure to make the initial payment by the Respondent Authority and therefore acted under the information supplied at the time to make their bids. In fact, as pointed out by the learned counsel for the Petitioners at the hearing of this petition, the fact that the Petitioners immediately paid 50% of the highest bid price upon being informed of the highest bid price by the Respondents reveals the bona fides of the Petitioners as they would only have been able to withdraw from the tender process if they were colluding. However, regardless of the corresponding arguments, the absurdity noted above could be avoided by the Procurement Committee considering the reasonability of setting an unsuccessful highest bidding price as the permit charge under Clause 4.2.6 read with Clause 4.2.7 of the Tender Guidelines.

11) While it is true that the Guidelines do not contain any provision for the reduction of price in the event of the highest bid proving unsuccessful, Clause 4.2.7 provides that where the successive bidders do not consent to paying the former permit charge and the Procurement Committee is of the opinion that the highest bid is excessively high, they may grant the route permit at a bid price deemed appropriate. The Petitioners submit that the Respondents had in a similar situation, in respect of the Nittambuwa-Moratuwa bus route, acted under this clause to consider the second highest successful bidder as the highest successful bidder after the former highest bidder did not make the payment within the stipulated time. In light of the Respondent's decision to reduce the bid price in that instance, and failure to do so in the present case, the Petitioners allege that they have been discriminated and such treatment violates equal protection guaranteed to them by Article 12(1).

12) The Respondents, in response, submit that the reason for the such consideration in the grant of route permits for the Nittambuwa-Moratuwa is that the highest bidder's price (Rs. 8,600,000) was 129% higher than the second highest bidder's bid price (Rs. 3,755,500). In that instance, the Procurement Committee, upon being informed by the successive bidders that the permit charge was excessively high and being requested that the permit price be offered at the second highest bid price, decided the amount to be excessively high. The meeting minutes of the Procurement Committee (marked 'R15') reflect the above reasoning. The Respondents submit that in the present case, the highest bidder's price (Rs.8,500,000) was only 13.33% higher than the second highest bidder's price (Rs. 7,500,000). The Respondents submit that the Procurement Committee did not consider this disparity 'excessively high'.

13) The Petitioners have produced no material before this court which indicates mala fides on the part of the Procurement Committee and the Respondent Authority. Neither have the Petitioners adduced any material substantiating the claim that the Respondents exercised their discretion in a manner that is abusive of such power, or contrary to law. It must be stated that although discretion should be exercised equitably, discretion itself is subjective in that every decision is subject to related circumstances and facts. The Right to Equality enshrined in Article 12(1) is violated in administrative matters where procedural fairness is deprived. His Lordship Justice Raja Fernando succinctly stated this court's view on the application of Administrative Guidelines and their relation to fairness and equality in Samaraweera v. The People's Bank and Others [2007] 2 SLR 362.

"It is my view that all circulars and other guidelines must be applied fairly and equally to all persons to whom they apply." [p. 370]

14) The Procurement Committee's adherence to the Tender Guidelines must therefore be assessed bearing in mind the discretion the Guidelines themselves confer upon the Committee to determine the Tender Charge. It is not reasonable nor equitable that the Procurement Committee be expected to dole out the same treatment in every Tender process without regard or care for the fact that it has been vested with the discretion to vary its procedure depending on the specific circumstances, taking into account the financial effect that such uniform treatment may bear on the authority and bidders. A variation in the manner in which discretion is exercised cannot, by itself, translate to discriminatory treatment in violation of Article 12(1) as 'discretion' inherently embodies the dependence of decision making on circumstance.

"It is a Fundamental Rule for the exercise of discretionary power that discretion must be brought to bear on every case: each one must be considered on its own merits and decided as the public interest requires at the time." [Wade & Forsyth, Administrative Law, 10th Edition, Ox ford University press, p. 271]

His Lordship Justice Kodagoda, P.C., in SC. FR. Application No. 256/17 (S.C Minutes of 11.12.2020) between one W.P.S Wijerathne and the Sri Lanka Ports Authority stated the following regarding matters where discretion is exercised for matters of 'selection':

"…it is of critical importance that, discretionary authority is exercised by Executive and by administrative authorities in public trust, only for the purpose of securing the purpose for which such power had been conferred, for the best interests of the organization concerned, for the best interests of the State, and in overall public interest. Not adhering to these vital norms, can certainly result in an infringement of Article 12 of the Constitution…" [p. 23]

15) The Petitioners have resorted to a technical difference between an 'invalid' bid and a 'withdrawn' bid to substantiate their claim that the Respondent Authority could not have exercised their discretion under Clause 4.2.7, claiming that Clause 4.2.7 only pertains to 'withdrawn' bids. However, it is evident upon perusal of the Guidelines that Clauses 4.2.6 and 4.2.7 also apply to bids 'removed'. It appears to me that an 'invalid' bid, invalidated by the Bidder's failure to make initial payment, once removed from the bidding process would most certainly fall within the ambit of Clauses 4.2.6 and 4.2.7. The Respondents have submitted the vast numerical differentiation between 129% and 13.33% as the basis for differed treatment in the separate bidding processes and also noted that the Authority is duty-bound to consider inter alia the highest financial return from the bidding process. At no stage in the proceedings have the Petitioners impugned that the Guidelines themselves, or more specifically, Clauses 4.2.6 and 4.2.7 of the Guidelines to be violative of their Fundamental Rights. I cannot find any instance in which the Respondent Authority violated the above-quoted tenets. In my opinion, the discretion vested with the Procurement Committee was exercised within the scope of powers intended by the guidelines of the Tender Process, in a reasonable, indiscriminate manner not violative of the Right to Equality enshrined in Article 12(1) or the Right to engage in a lawful occupation enshrined in Article 14(1)(g) of the Constitution.

Were the Petitioners' Legitimate Expectations breached?

16) Whether an expectation is legitimate or not is a question of fact [vide Harshani S. Siriwardena v Secretary, Ministry of Health and Indigenous 31 Medicine (S.C.(Application) (FR) 589/2009 S.C. Minutes of 10-03-2011)]. In examining the existence of any legitimate expectation on the part of the Petitioners, I find the widely known opinion of Lord Diplock J., in the case of Council of Civil Service Unions and others v Minister for the Civil Service [1984] 3 All ER 935; [1985] AC 374 referred to as the 'GCHQ' case, instructive.

"…, the prima facie rule of 'procedural propriety' in public law, applicable to a case of legitimate expectations that a benefit ought not to be withdrawn until the reason for its proposed withdrawal has been communicated to the person who has theretofore enjoyed that benefit and that person has been given an opportunity to comment on the reason..."

17) From Lord Diplock's opinion, I find two aspects bearing relevance to the present case. First, that an expectation is legitimate wherein based on the relevant facts, the expectation rests on an assurance of past benefit or promise of future benefit. Secondly, that if one is to be denied a benefit or concession by an administrative body, the body may still be required to ensure a fair hearing where one would be permitted to explain why the benefit should not be withdrawn and why the discretion vested in the body should be exercised in one's favour. In the present case, Clause 4.2.6 read with Clause 4.27 of the Tender guidelines provides bidders an opportunity to raise a complaint against the setting of a permit charge based on a withdrawn or unsuccessful highest bid, and the Procurement Committee is vested with the discretion of determining whether the former highest bid is 'excessively high'. It is not argued before this court by the Petitioners that they were not provided with an opportunity to make their complaints about the bid charge known to the Procurement Committee. The submission of the Petitioners regarding Legitimate Expectations is that they had a legitimate expectation that the price of the route permit would be set 'in accordance with the Guidelines'. I cannot find any instance in which the Respondents acted contrary to the Guidelines. Therefore, no Legitimate Expectation of the Petitioners had been frustrated.

Conclusion

In the circumstances, for the reasons set out above, I am of the view that the Petitioners have failed to establish a violation of their fundamental rights under either of the Articles of the Constitution (Article 12(1) and Article 14(1)(g)) under which leave to proceed was granted. Accordingly, the application is dismissed. I make no order as to costs.

Application dismissed.

Judge of the Supreme Court

E.A.G.R. Amarasekara, J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Janak De Silva, J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

The matter of an application under and in terms of Article 126 read together with Article 17 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

Major Wengappuli Arachchige Samantha,
No. 644,
Thambiliyana,
Kuruwita.

SC/FR Application No. 100/2016

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Inspector Ranjan Samarasinghe
   Officer-in-Charge,
   Opanayake Police Station,
   Opanayake.

2. Hon. Duminda Mudunkotuwa
   Magistrate,
   Magistrate's Court,
   Balangoda,

3. Inspector General of Police,
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

4. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney General's Department,
   Colombo 12.

Respondents

Before : Murdu N. B. Fernando, PC. J
Janak De Silva, J
K. Priyantha Fernando, J

Counsel	:	Saliya Pieris, PC with Anjana Rathnasiri with Sarinda Jayawardene for the Petitioner Sajith Bandara, SC for the 1st and the 4th Respondents
Argued on	:	13.06.2023
Decided on	:	11.08.2023

K. PRIYANTHA FERNANDO, J

1. The petitioner in this case is a Major serving in the Sri Lanka Army. He alleges that, the actions of the 1st respondent in arresting him without any legal basis and the actions of the 2nd respondent Magistrate in remanding him, has infringed the fundamental rights guaranteed to him under Articles 12(1), 13(1) and 13(2) of the Constitution. This Court granted leave to proceed for the alleged violation of fundamental rights under Article 12(1) and Article 13(1) by the 1st respondent.

2. The Facts
According to the petitioner, on 18.02.2016 he has left the Naval Adi Army Camp at about 7.00 a.m. to reach the Boossa Army Camp in order to make an appointment to meet the Divisional Commander. The petitioner has been accompanied by the driver (Army Private 479243, R. A. J. U. Rathnakumara) and an escort (Army Private 480265, P. G. A. Chathuranga Wijeratne).

3. The petitioner has been seated on the front passenger seat of the Army Jeep (Toyota Land Cruiser Mark II) bearing Registration No. ශ.භ 5427. The escort Private has been seated behind the petitioner on the rear seat facing sideways. In the course of their journey, while they were on the Badulla-Colombo-Batticaloa A4 Highway heading from Balangoda towards Colombo, the Army Jeep has collided with a three-wheeler bearing Registration No. WP QL 7480 which was headed from Opanayake towards Balangoda driving in the correct lane (left lane). The collision has taken place on the Ratnapura-Balangoda road near the Uduwela Eerigasmulle area between the 132nd and the 133rd mile posts.

4. The petitioner stated that, he was awake throughout the entire journey and engaged in conversation with the driver of the Army Jeep for most part of the journey. At or about Uduwela, the petitioner has looked down at his phone to search for a contact number in order to place a phone call. While the petitioner was searching for the contact number, he has felt that the vehicle was moving slightly off its course. Within seconds of him instinctively raising his head, the Army Jeep has collided with the said three-wheeler causing the three-wheeler to be thrown off the road and over the culvert. As a result of the collision, the Army Jeep has also hit the culvert and come to a halt. Thereafter, the petitioner has got off the Army Jeep and rushed to the assistance of the injured persons, who were the passengers and the driver of the three-wheeler. The petitioner along with the assistance of the villagers that gathered around the scene of the accident, has rushed the injured persons to the Balangoda hospital in a Lorry. The driver of the Army Jeep was also taken to the hospital along with the escort Private in a separate vehicle. Thereafter, the petitioner has also got himself admitted in the hospital as he was suffering from a chest pain after being knocked against the dashboard.

5. The passengers in the three-wheeler have suffered extensive injuries, and a five-year-old girl who was also a passenger in the said three-wheeler succumbed to her injuries, upon being admitted to the hospital. At about 5:30 p.m. on the same day, a Police Sergeant has recorded a statement from the petitioner while he was in the hospital.

6. On the next day (19.02.2016) at about 8.00 a.m. the Ward Doctor has informed the petitioner that he could be discharged after the Judicial Medical Officer (JMO) examines him. Thereafter, at about 10.00 a.m., the same police sergeant who recorded the first statement from the petitioner has recorded a further statement from him. At about 12.00 p.m. the JMO has examined the petitioner and he has been discharged. Subsequently, the petitioner has been informed by the Police Sergeant and the Inspector of Police that the Magistrate would be coming to the hospital to record a statement from the petitioner and the driver of the Army Jeep. The Magistrate has arrived at about 3:00 p.m. and recorded statements and made notes.

7. Thereafter, the Inspector of Police has informed the petitioner that according to the order of the Magistrate, he would be remanded till

23.02.2016 for aiding and abetting the driver of the said Army Jeep to cause the motor traffic accident. Then, the petitioner has been taken to the Balangoda Prison. The petitioner spent the night in prison.

8. On 20.02.2016, at about 12.00 p.m. the petitioner has been taken to the Kuruwita Prison and was admitted to the prison hospital, where he remained until 23.02.2016. Thereafter, on 23.02.2016 the petitioner has been produced before the Magistrate in the Balangoda Magistrate Court under case No. B/135/2016. Upon being produced before the Magistrate Court, the petitioner was released on a personal bond of Rs. 250,000 and was ordered to appear again on 01.03.2016 upon which it was fixed again on 14.06.2016.

9. The summary of the B-Report No. 135/2016 [P-5A] filed by the 1st Respondent on 19/02/2016 is as follows,

   The Army Jeep bearing Registration No. ශ.ඇ 5427collided with a three-wheeler bearing Registration No. WP QL 7480 head-on in the Badulla-Colombo-Batticaloa A4 highway, between the 131st and 132nd mile posts at the 132/4 km culvert, near the Eeriyagasmulle amuna having failed to take the left turn properly, causing the three-wheeler to be thrown off the culvert (page 2 of the B-Report).

   The passengers of the three-wheeler were, the driver of the three-wheeler, his 5-year-old daughter, his 3-and-a-half-year-old son, and his mother-in-law. They received injuries from the accident, and the 5-year-old daughter died upon admission to the Balangoda hospital (page 2 of the B-report).

   The two suspects have been produced before the Magistrate for committing offences punishable under the sections 298, 329,328 of the Penal Code and sections 149(1), 151(2), 151(3) and 234 of the Motor Traffic Act and sections 298 read with section 102 of the Penal Code (page 3 of the B-Report).

10. A summary of the statements of the witnesses and the observations of the police officer were also submitted with the B-Report, stating that, further statements of witnesses were to be recorded and that owing to this incident, there has been an unrest among the residents of the Opanayake area. Thereby, in order to maintain the peace in the area, the Officer in Charge has requested the Magistrate to remand the two suspects (the driver of the Army Jeep and the petitioner) till 01.03.2016.

11. Upon the two suspects being produced before the Magistrate Court, the learned Magistrate has remanded the first suspect (the driver of the Army Jeep) till 01.03.2016 and the second suspect (the petitioner) till 23.02.2016. [P-5B]

12. In these circumstances, the petitioner alleges that, the actions of the respondents infringed Article 12(1) of the Constitution, which guarantees equality before the law and equal protection of the law and Article 13(1) of the Constitution, which guarantees freedom from being arrested except according to the procedure established by law.

13. Alleged violation of Article 13(1)
In his written submissions, the learned President's Counsel for the petitioner submitted that, the first requisite of Article 13(1) of the Constitution is that, an arrest must be made in accordance with the procedure laid down by law. Section 32(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act and section 63 of the Police Ordinance relates to arrests without warrant. Therefore, the learned Presidents Counsel submits that, an arrest cannot be made on vague suspicion of an offence being committed.

14. The learned President's Counsel submitted that, it is another important requisite of Article 13(1) that, every person arrested shall be informed of the reason for arrest. However, at no point in the process of the investigation was the petitioner informed or made known that he has been arrested or given the reason for such arrest.

15. The learned President's Counsel further submitted that, the attempt by the 1st respondent to justify the illegal arrest of the petitioner by relying on section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act is futile. The said section has no applicability in this instance, as it only relates to 'motor tricycle, van or motor coach or lorry' and the vehicle driven by the driver which was a 'Land Cruiser Mark II', does not fall within the description of any of the aforementioned types of vehicles according to the interpretations set out in section 240 of the Motor Traffic Act. Therefore, the requirement of sufficient rest to be given to the driver emphasized in section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act was not violated.

16. It was further submitted that, although the 1st respondent has relied on section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act in his affidavit, the 1st respondent has not even mentioned section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act in the documents annexed by him to his affidavit or in the B-Reports that were filed. Therefore, it is submitted by the learned President's Counsel that it is a fabricated reason to justify the arrest of the petitioner.

17. It was submitted by the learned President's Counsel that, the petitioner in this case was not arrested for the purported violation of section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act, but was arrested for aiding and abetting the driver of the Army Jeep in causing the fatal accident and injuries thereon. The petitioner states that, there was no material whatsoever before the police to show that the petitioner either instigated, conspired, or intentionally aided the driver of the vehicle in causing the said accident. The petitioner further states that, neither the Penal Code nor the Motor Traffic Act casts a legal duty upon the passengers to prevent an accident or to be vigilant while travelling.

18. It was further submitted by the learned President's Counsel that, the arrest of the petitioner by the 1st respondent cannot be justified by stating that there was an imminent threat to the petitioner's life. A person cannot be arrested for his or her own protection. Instead, the respondent should have eliminated the threat by providing protection and apprehending the perpetrators responsible for such threats. It is further submitted that, when the accident took place, the public in the area were very cooperative and assisted them in managing the crisis and there was no sign of acting in a negative or detrimental nature, nor was there any unpleasant or repulsive behaviour shown towards the petitioner by any of the friends or relations who visited the injured passengers of the three-wheeler. Therefore, it is submitted that the arrest of petitioner is against the procedure established by law, illegal, unreasonable, unfair, and violative of the fundamental rights guaranteed to the petitioner.

19. The learned State Counsel for the 1st respondent in his written submissions stated that, although the petitioner was not informed the reason for his arrest during the process of the investigation, the 1st respondent informed the petitioner the reason for arrest consequent to the investigation that was made by the police and therefore, the arrest of the petitioner would not be arbitrary. The learned State Counsel relied on the case of Joseph Perera Alias Bruten Perera v. AG [1992] 1 Sri.L.R. 199 and stated that for an arrest, a mere reasonable suspicion or a reasonable complaint of the commission of the offence would suffice. And as this has been satisfied in the present case, there is no violation of Article 13(1) of the Constitution.

20. The 1st respondent in his affidavit dated 28.06.2017, in paragraph 12.3 stated that, as per section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act, it explicitly requires that after every 4 ½ hours of driving, a driver should get a break of ½ an hour. It was stated that this provision has been violated by the petitioner at the time of the accident.

    Further, at the hearing of this application, the learned State Counsel contended that, the driver of the Army Jeep has not been provided adequate rest, and this violates section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act.

21. The learned State Counsel for the respondent further submitted that, as the mother of the deceased child was a doctor attached to the Balangoda hospital to which the dead body of the child had been brought, and as there had been a chaotic situation in and around the hospital, the petitioner was arrested by the 1st respondent on the directions of his superior officers to ensure the security of the petitioner. Further, the 1st respondent in paragraph 12.7 of his affidavit also stated that, in the circumstances, he considered there to be an imminent threat to the lives of the petitioner and the driver.

22. In considering whether the fundamental rights guaranteed to the petitioner under section 13(1) of the Constitution have been violated, I will first consider the position of the respondent which attempts to justify the arrest of the petitioner based on abetment.

23. According to the B-Report filed by the 1st respondent [P5A], the petitioner in this case has been arrested by the 1st respondent for aiding and abetting the driver of the Army Jeep in causing the fatal accident and injuries thereon. In order to consider whether there existed reasonable suspicion to arrest the petitioner for the offence of abetment, one must first establish that, what the petitioner did or omitted to do is capable of being captured within the realm of the offence of abetment.
    Section 100 of the Penal Code defines abetment as;
    "A person abets the doing of a thing who-

Firstly- Instigates any person to do that thing; or Secondly- Engages in any conspiracy for the doing of that thing; or Thirdly- Intentionally aids, by any act or illegal omission, the doing of that thing."

When considering the above provision of the Penal Code, it is clear that, to be guilty of the offence of abetment, a person abetting the doing of a thing must either instigate, conspire, or intentionally aid by way of an act or illegal omission.

24. In case of The King v. Marshall 51 N.L.R. 157-159 it was held that,

"It will, therefore, be seen that mere presence with the intention of giving aid to the principal offender is not enough. There must also be the doing of something, or the illegal omission to do something… "

It was held further,

"The aid given by an abettor must be intentional aid"

25. The case at hand is concerning a situation where the driver of the Army Jeep was arrested for causing a fatal accident and injuries, and consequently the petitioner (a passenger) was also arrested for aiding and abetting the driver of the Army Jeep in causing the said fatal accident and injuries as per the B-Report [P-5A]. According to the case Marshall (supra), the mere presence of the petitioner when the offence was committed, in the absence of an act or omission is not sufficient to constitute abetment. There is no evidence of any act by the petitioner in this case, and since there is no duty imposed on a passenger of a vehicle to be vigilant while travelling or to avoid accidents that may be caused by a driver of a vehicle, an omission on the part of the petitioner is also absent.

26. The case of Ago Singhe, Appellant and De Alwis 46 N.L.R. 154, was concerning a situation where a conductor of an omnibus was charged for overloading it, and the driver of the said omnibus was charged with aiding and abetting the conductor in the commission of that offence. It was held that, the driver, by his act of driving the omnibus, could not be said to have facilitated the commission of the offence and was, therefore, not guilty of abetment, in the absence of evidence of instigation or conspiracy.

In Ago Singhe(supra) it was held that,

> "…the mere knowledge on the part of the driver that the omnibus is overcrowded cannot, in my opinion, make him liable for abetting the offence, for he has in no way facilitated the commission of the offence."

27. Therefore, even in the presence of an act or omission, if the evidence of the existence of one of the three alternative requirements of instigation, conspiracy, or intention to aid are absent, it would not constitute abetment. In the circumstances of this case, there seems to be no abetment whatsoever by the petitioner as there is no evidence of an act or omission, nor is there any instigation, conspiracy, or anything to say that the petitioner intentionally aided the driver of the Army Jeep in causing the accident. Further, there is no possibility for the petitioner to have knowledge that the said accident would occur and even if he did have such knowledge, according to Ago Singhe (supra) it would not suffice. I bear in mind that a police officer is not expected to go into the material particulars of an offence or the ingredients of the offence in order to arrest a suspect. However, to arrest a person and to move for incarceration where there exists no reason whatsoever to even suspect of the commission of an offence would be arbitrary. Hence, as there is no evidence to state that the petitioner abetted the driver of the Army Jeep in causing the accident in any of the notes or observations [1R1, 1R2, 1R3] or in the statements that were recorded, there seems to be no legal basis for the arrest of the petitioner by the 1st respondent.

28. Secondly, I will consider the position of the 1st respondent in his affidavit. His position was that, the arrest was carried out due to non-compliance with the requirement of sufficient rest set out in section169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act. When analyzing this position, one must first look into the provision itself.

Section 169

> "(1) No person shall drive, or cause or permit any person employed by him or subject to his orders to drive, any motor tricycle van or motor coach or lorry*-*
>
> (a) for any continuous period of more than four and a half hours; or
>
> (b) so that the driver has not at least ten consecutive hours for rest in any period of twenty-four hours calculated from the commencement of any period of driving."

[Emphasis mine]

29. As clearly set out in the above provision, the application of section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act is limited to 'motor tricycle van or motor coach or lorry'. However, the vehicle driven by the driver which was a 'Land Cruiser Mark II', does not fall within the description of any of the aforementioned types of vehicles according to the interpretations set out in section 240 of the Motor Traffic Act.

Section 240

"motor tricycle van" means a motor vehicle designed to travel on three wheels, and having a tare which does not exceed four hundred and fifty kilograms, and which is constructed or adapted wholly or mainly for the carriage of goods;

"motor coach" means a motor vehicle, not being a motor ambulance or motor hearse, constructed or adapted for the carriage of more than nine persons (including the driver) and their effects, and includes a trailer so constructed or adapted;

"lorry" means a motor vehicle constructed or adapted wholly or mainly for the carriage of goods and includes a trailer so constructed or adapted and a tractor but does not include a land vehicle or a motor tricycle van;

30. Therefore, the position that the arrest of the petitioner was carried out by relying on section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act is also futile. The said section has no applicability in this instance as it only relates to 'motor tricycle, van or motor coach or lorry'. Thus, the arrest carried out is contrary to Article 13(1) of the Constitution as it was not carried out according to a procedure established by law. It is also pertinent to note that, although the 1st respondent has relied on section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act in his affidavit stating that a proper break was not given, in the written submissions filed on behalf of the 1st respondent, this position (the violation of section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act) has not been relied on.

31. Further, when perusing the statement made by the driver of the Army Jeep to the police [1R1] it is clear that the driver of the Army Jeep has had an entire night's rest as his duties ended at around 7:30 p.m. on 17.02.2016 and the journey started at around 7:00 a.m. on 18.02.2016. The vehicle has also been stopped passing Bandarawela for utility purposes. Further, the vehicle was once again stopped for tea. Therefore, even if the Army Jeep did fall under the types of vehicles specified in section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act, it is clear that the driver of the Army Jeep has had sufficient rest. Thus, the arrest of the petitioner based on non-compliance of the requirement of sufficient rest cannot be relied upon by the 1st respondent and therefore, the arrest of the petitioner cannot be justified on that basis. It is also noteworthy that, as the 1st respondent has not even mentioned section 169(1)(a) of the Motor Traffic Act in the documents annexed by him to his affidavit or in the B-Reports filed, this clearly seems to be an afterthought in order to justify the arrest of the petitioner.

32. Thirdly, I will consider the position of the 1st respondent in attempting to justify that the petitioner was arrested for the petitioner's own safety and security. The circumstances following the accident as portrayed by the 1st respondent were such that, the mother of the deceased child was a doctor of the Balangoda hospital to which the dead body of the child had been brought. It was also stated that there had been a chaotic situation in and around the hospital. The 1st respondent alleges that it was in these circumstances that the petitioner was arrested by him on the directions of his superior officers to ensure the security of the petitioner as he considered there to be an imminent threat to the lives of the petitioner and the driver.

33. Although the petitioner stated that there was no unpleasant or repulsive behaviour shown towards him by anyone of the friends or relations who visited the injured party, it is certainly plausible that, in the pretext of a fatal accident such as this, where the victims were severely injured and which caused the death of a 5-year-old child solely due to the negligence of the driver of the Army Jeep and the 5-year-old child who succumbed to the injuries being the daughter of a doctor attached to the hospital to which the body was brought, it is probable that there would have been a public outcry. In a pretext such as this, it is plausible that there may have been an imminent threat to the life of the petitioner. In such a situation, the respondent would be allowed to act in order to render protection to the petitioner.

34. However, it must be noted that, arresting the petitioner in order to provide him protection is a notion that is extremely absurd and far-fetched. The arrest of the petitioner without any evidence or reasonable suspicion cannot be justified by stating that there was an imminent threat to his life. A person cannot be arrested for his or her own protection. A position such as this would seriously transgress the fundamental rights guaranteed by the constitution opening doors to violations of fundamental rights to take place.

35. It is also questionable as to why a remand order has been requested from the Magistrate Court if the 1st respondent was merely arresting the petitioner for his own safety. Further, the B-Report also does not contain anything relating to this contention by the 1st respondent. It can also be noted that there is no evidence available in the notes nor is there any mention about a superior officer authourising the arrest of the petitioner in the B-Report. Therefore, it is clear that this position that the petitioner was arrested for his own safety is simply an afterthought and portrays malice on the part of the respondent.

36. At this juncture, it must be pointed out that a Magistrate in the exercise of his judicial power, should consider the facts of each case carefully before making an order of remand where there exists no evidence whatsoever to even suspect that a person has committed an offence.

37. A Magistrate should not make orders merely upon the application of investigators. Before acting on an application, the Magistrate must be satisfied that the application is justified. Observations to this effect were also made in case of Dayananda v. Weerasinghe and Others [1983] 2 Sri.L.R. 84 at 92 where His Lordship Ratwatte, J stated,

> "It must be remembered that when a person is remanded he is deprived of his personal liberty during the duration of the rem and period and a person who is remanded is entitled to know the reasons why he is so remanded. Magistrates should be more vigilant and comply with the requirements of the law when making remand orders and not act as mere rubber stamps."

38. In case of Mahanama Tilakaratne v. Bandula Wickramasinghe [1999] 1 Sri. L.R. 372 at 382 (S.C/FR No. 595/98) where the Magistrate issued a warrant without sufficient grounds, His Lordship Dheeraratne, J said that,

"Issuing a warrant is a judicial act involving the liberty of an individual and no warrant of arrest should be lightly issued by a Magistrate simply because a prosecutor or an investigator thinks it is necessary. It must be issued, as the law requires, when a Magistrate is satisfied that he should do so, on the evidence taken before him on oath. It must not be issued by a Magistrate to satisfy the sardonic pleasure of an opinionated investigator or a prosecutor."

39. Finally, I will consider the legality of the arrest that was carried out by the 1st respondent based on suspicion.

    Article 13(1) of the Constitution sets out that, "No person shall be arrested except according to procedure established by law, any person arrested shall be informed of the reason for his arrest."

40. Article 13(1) consists of two limbs. First, when an arrest is made, it must only be carried out according to the procedure established by law. Second, any person subject to arrest shall be informed the reason for his arrest.

41. According to the first limb under Article 13(1) an arrest must be made according to the procedure established by law. The learned President's Counsel relied upon what was held by this court in case of Ponsuge Sanjeewa Tisera and another v. Singappulige Deeptha Rajitha Jayantha and Others SC/FR Application No. 368/2016 decided on 30.05.2023, in light of arrest that is made on reasonable suspicion.

42. In case of Joseph Perera alias Bruten Perera v. The Attorney General and Others [1992] 1 Sri.L.R. 199 it was stated that, for an arrest, there need not be clear and sufficient proof regarding the commission of the alleged offence. A reasonable suspicion based on an objective standard would be sufficient to show that the respondents have acted in good faith if they had reasons to suspect that the petitioners have committed the alleged offence.

    Their Lordships further referred to the provisions of the U.K. law which reflects the interpretation of the above position has been duly explained by citing what Lord Scott L. J stated in the case of Dumbell v. Roberts [1944] 1 ALL ER 326

    "the constable shall before arresting satisfy himself that there do in fact exist reasonable grounds for suspicion of guilt. That requirement is very limited. The police are not called upon before acting to have anything like a prima facie case for convicting ... The duty of the police ... is, no doubt, to be quick to see the possibility of crime, but equally they ought to be anxious to avoid mistaking the innocent for the guilty ... The police are required to be observant, receptive and open-minded and to notice any relevant circumstance which points either way, either to innocence or guilt. They may have to act on the spur of the moment and have no time to reflect and be bound, therefore, to arrest to prevent escape; but where there is no danger of the person who has ex hypothesi aroused their suspicion ... (escaping) ... they should make all presently practicable enquiries from persons present or immediately accessible who are likely to be able to answer their enquiries. I am not suggesting a duty on the police to try to prove innocence; that is not their function; but they should act on the assumption that their prima facie suspicion may be ill founded."

43. In Ponsuge Sanjeewa Tisera and another (supra) it was held,

"In light of the 'reasonable suspicion to arrest', I do concede that a certain degree of discretion must necessarily be awarded to the police for the due performance of their duties and maintenance of public order. However, allowing the police to arrest on suspicion where it is not reasonable would create room for violations of liberty to take place. Therefore, the discretion granted should not extend to the extent where it would amount to an arbitrary violation of liberty and should be strictly where there exist reasonable grounds for such arrest. Even in such a situation, the police must always be mindful that their assumptions may be incorrect."

44. Thus, an arrest can be made on suspicion, provided that such suspicion is reasonable. It cannot be based on mere vague suspicion. In this case, when perusing the facts submitted before court and the statements of the witnesses included in the B-Reports that were filed [P-5A] and [P-5C], there exists no evidence to show that there was reasonable suspicion to arrest the petitioner. Further, not even the statement by the accused (driver) disclose any evidence that would give rise to a reasonable suspicion to arrest the petitioner.

45. Citing the case of Joseph Perera (supra) the learned State Counsel has submitted that for an arrest, a mere reasonable suspicion, or the mere reasonable complaint of the commission of an offence would suffice. As it is explained in detail above, for the respondent to arrest the petitioner or to request for the remand of the petitioner, there existed no material to form a reasonable suspicion of committing any offence by the petitioner. Further, neither was there any complaint made against the petitioner.

46. At the hearing of this application, the case of Channa Pieris and Others v. Attorney-General and others (Ratawesi Peramuna Case) [1994] 1 Sri.L.R. 1 was brought to the attention of the Court by the learned State Counsel for the respondent.

In Channa Pieris (supra) at pages 44,45,46 it was said that;

> "…Suspicion can take into account matters that could not be put in evidence at all. Suspicion can take into account also matters which, though admissible, could not form part of a prima facie case. … What the officer making the arrest, needs to have are reasonable grounds for suspecting the persons to be concerned in or to be committing or to have committed the offence. …
>
> A reasonable suspicion may be based either upon matters within the officer's knowledge or upon credible information furnished to him, or upon a combination of both sources."

47. The above case refers to an instance where the petitioners were arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to overthrow the government. The police officers who carried on the arrest had overheard the petitioners engaging in such conspiracy. The facts and circumstances of this case are completely different and has no relevance to the case at hand.

48. Thus, when considering the facts and circumstances of this case, it is my view that the arrest of the petitioner is against the procedure established by law, illegal, unreasonable, unfair, and violative of the fundamental rights guaranteed to the petitioner under section 13(1) of the Constitution.

49. Alleged violation of Article 12(1)
The petitioner states that, he believes that the motivation of the police in having him arrested and remanded was to appease what the police perceived to be a disgruntled public at the expense of the Petitioners rights guaranteed under the constitution.

50. The petitioner further states that he verily believes that he was deliberately targeted by the police since he was an army officer.

51. The petitioner alleges that his arrest and remand is grossly unreasonable and unfair and exposes every passenger of a vehicle to the danger of being arrested, remanded, and charged in the event of a road traffic accident.

52. The learned State Counsel for the respondent in his written submissions stated that, Article 12(1) of the constitution was not infringed by the activities of the respondents in relation to the arrest carried out by the 1st respondent as he conducted the investigations lawfully. The 1st respondent in paragraph 13 of his affidavit, states that, at all times material to this case he performed his duties impartially and to the best of his ability and therefore, did not infringe the rights of the petitioner.

53. Article 12(1) sets out that "all persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law."
While it remains probable that the petitioner was deliberately targeted by the police as he was an Army Officer, the same could also be probable if it is stated that the petitioner was deliberately targeted as the mother of the deceased child was doctor in the same hospital to which the body of the child was brought. However, nothing in the evidence or the facts and circumstances of this case suggests that the petitioner has been deliberately targeted by virtue of his office as an Army Officer. Therefore, this position should not be acted upon.

54. However, it must be noted that the 1st respondent, by arresting the petitioner who was simply a passenger, for aiding and abetting the driver of the Army Jeep, without reasonable suspicion, thereafter causing the remand of the petitioner and acting maliciously on afterthoughts, has violated Article 13(1) of the constitution. This has been discussed above in detail. While a violation of Article 13(1) of the Constitution does not automatically make it a violation of Article 12(1) in every instance, in the circumstances of this case, the manner in which Article 13(1) has been violated has also deprived the petitioner of the 'equal protection of the law' as guaranteed by section 12(1) of the Constitution.

55. Thus, in light of the observations made above, it is my view that the arrest of the petitioner was not made on reasonable suspicion as required by law, and therefore is unlawful, arbitrary and in violation of the fundamental rights that have been guaranteed to the petitioners under Articles 13(1) and 12(1) of the Constitution.

56. Declarations and Compensation

In the above premise, I declare that the fundamental rights that have been guaranteed to the petitioner under Articles 13(1) and 12(1) of the Constitution has been violated. As per Article 126(4) of the Constitution, the Supreme Court is empowered to grant such relief as it may deem just and equitable in the circumstances in respect of any petition referred to it under Article 126(2). Therefore, in the circumstances of this case, considering the suffering which the petitioner had to undergo due to the arbitrary acts of the 1st respondent, I order the 1st respondent to pay a sum of Rs.100,000/- as compensation to the petitioner out of his personal funds.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE MURDU N. B. FERNANDO, PC.

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE JANAK DE SILVA

I agree

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

SC/FR/100/2022

Rannula Sugath Mohana Mendis,

Puwakwatta Road,

Kithulampititya,

Uluwitike,

Galle.

PETITIONER

vs.

1. D. K. A. Sanath Kumara,
   Assistant Superintendent of Police, Embilipitiya.

2. M. N. S. Mendis,
   Senior Superintendent of Police,
   Embilipitiya.

3. J. S. Wirasekara,

Deputy Inspector General of Police,
Rathnapura.

4. Mahinda Gunarathna,
   Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police,
   Sabaragamuwa Province.

5. C. D. Wickramaratne,
   Inspector General of Police,
   Sri Lanka Police,
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

6. Justice Jagath Balapatabendi,
   Chairman,

7. Indrani Sugathadasa, Member,

8. Dr. T. R. C. Ruberu, Member,

9. Ahamod Lebbe Mohamed Saleem, Member,

10. Leelasena Liyanagama, Member,

11. Dian Gomes, Member,

12. Dilith Jayaweera, Member,

13. W. H. Piyadasa, Member,

14. Suntharam Arumainayaham,
    Member,

15. M. A. B Daya Senarath, Secretary,

    The 7th to 15th respondents: all of:
    Public Service Commission,
    1200/9, Rajamalwatha Road,
    Battaramulla.

16. Major General (retd). Jagath Alwis,
    Secretary to the Ministry of Public
    Security, Ministry of Public
    Security,
    14th Floor "Suhurupaya",
    Battaramulla.

17. Hon. Attorney General
    Attorney General's Department,
    Hulftsdorp, Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : PRIYANTHA JAYAWARDENA, PC, J
S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J AND
MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

COUNSEL : Viran Corea with Thilini Vidanagamage instructed by Lilanthi De Silva for the Petitioner

Suharshie Herath, DSG for all Respondents

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS : Petitioner on 14th September 2022

ARGUED ON : 12th December 2022

DECIDED ON : 06th October 2023

S. THURAIRAJA, PC, J.

The Petitioner, namely Rannulu Sugath Mohana Mendis, (hereinafter referred to as the "Petitioner") filed an application in the Supreme Court of Sri Lanka on the 23rd of March, 2022 against the Respondents, for alleged violation of fundamental rights enshrined under Articles 12(1) and 14 (1)(g) of the Constitution, and prayed inter alia for his salary to be paid until the final determination of this Application.

When the matter was taken up on the 18th of May, 2022, upon hearing both Counsel, the Court granted Leave to Proceed against the 1st – 14th Respondents under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution. The facts and circumstances of the instant case are set out in brief below.

The Petitioner is a Police Officer of the Sri Lankan Police and he had joined the Sri Lanka Police on the 01st of July, 1995 as a Police Constable. He was promoted to a Police Sergeant with effect from the 01st of May, 2007, and as a Sub-Inspector of Police with effect from the 31st of May, 2018.

The Petitioner had served for more than twenty-five (25) years in the service of the Police Force and at the time of filing the instant application, he was 52 years of age. The Petitioner also claimed that his wife and three younger children depend on him.

Further, on or about the 01st of August, 2020, while discharging his duties as a Sub Inspector of Police at the Embilipitiya Police Station, a 'Message Form' had been sent from the Colombo Crimes Division, which the Petitioner received on or about the 2nd of August, 2020. Whereby, the Petitioner was asked to give a statement pertaining to a suspect named Naligamage Dileepa Asanka Naligama who was arrested upon a statement made by I.P. Wilwala Arachchi dated 11th of March, 2014.

Thereafter, the Petitioner was arrested on the 03rd of August, 2020 and produced at the Gampaha Magistrate's Court with a B-report bearing No. 1536/20/CDD on purported allegations that the suspect had falsely introduced certain weapons that fell within the ambit of the Offensive Weapons Act No. 18 of 1966, Firearms Ordinance No. 33 of 1916 as amended by Act No. 22 of 1996 and the Explosives Act No. 21 of 1956 as amended by Act No. 33 of 1969. The B-report also alleged that the suspect had fabricated evidence to frame and arrest the former Deputy Inspector General Police, namely Vass Gunawardena. However, the investigations relating to the said B-Report were pending in Court as at the date of filing the instant application.

Subsequently, the 1st Respondent, namely the Assistant Superintendent of Police, Embilipitiya (hereinafter referred to as the "1st Respondent"), issued a purported letter of interdiction dated the 07th of August, 2020 (Ref: EM/ASP I/2416/2020), placing the Petitioner on interdiction without pay.

According to the said letter, the Petitioner was alleged to have caused one or more acts of misconduct set out in section 31:1 of Chapter XLVIII of the Establishment Code (Volume II).

Section 31:1 of Chapter XLVIII of the Establishment Code (Volume II) reads as follows:

> "31. Interdiction and Compulsory Leave
>
> 31:1 Where it is disclosed, prima facie, that a public officer has committed either one or some or all of the following acts of misconduct, the relevant

Disciplinary Authority, or the relevant Secretary to the Ministry of Head of Department not holding disciplinary authority, may forthwith interdict the officer concerned subject to the covering approval of the Disciplinary Authority should be informed sending also a copy of such letter to the purpose of obtaining covering approval.

31:1:1 Non-allegiance to the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

31:1:2 Act or cause to act in such a manner as to bring the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka into disrepute.

31:1:3 Being prosecuted in a Court of Law on anti-government, terrorist or criminal charges.

31:1:4 Being prosecuted in a Court of Law on bribery or corruption charges.

31:1:5 Being drunk or smelling of liquor within duty hours or within Government premises.

31:1:6 Use or be in possession of narcotic drugs within duty hours or within Government premises.

31:1:7 Misappropriate or cause another to misappropriate government funds.

31:1:8 Misappropriate government resources or cause such misappropriation, or cause destruction or depreciation of government resources willfully or negligently.

31:1:9 Act or cause to act negligently or inadvertently or willfully in such manner as to harm government interests.

31:1:10 Act in such a manner to as to bring the public service into disrepute.

31:1:11 Divulge information that may harm the State, the State Service or any other State Institution or make available or cause to make available State documents or copies thereof to outside parties without the permission of an appropriate authority.

31:1:12 Alter, distort, destroy or fudge State documents.

31:1:13 Conduct oneself or act in such manner as to obstruct a public officer in the discharge of his duties, or insult, or cause or threaten to cause bodily harm to a public officer.

31:1:14 Refuse or neglect to carry out lawful orders given by a Senior officer, or insubordination.

31:1:15 Where it is considered that allowing an officer to perform his duties is harmful or imprudent so far as the public service is concerned."

The Petitioner stated that prior to receiving the purported letter of interdiction, he had an unblemished career in the Police Force. Further, the Attorney General in his letter dated 19th of October, 2011 (P3(a)), commended the Petitioner who was part of the investigating team, stating "high commendation in solving a gruesome crime," for his contribution in resolving the murder of two young suspects while in police custody (in the High Court Trial-at-Bar Case 5247/2010). Another letter issued by the Additional Solicitor General, Jayantha Jayasuriya, P.C. (as he was then) dated 08th of July 2014 (P3(l)) commended the "meticulous and diligent conduct" of the investigation into the Royal Park Murder Case, of which the Petitioner was an investigator and that letter was forwarded to the Attorney General who sent another letter commending the Petitioner's work by letter dated 09th of July, 2014 (P3(m)). Apart from those, many commendations, special increments and awards have been awarded to the Petitioner by the Police Department.

However, as per the submissions of the counsel for the Petitioner, he was not served with an indictment nor a charge sheet from the 2nd of August, 2020 until to date. Furthermore, no preliminary investigation was carried out prior to issuing the letter of interdiction.

Once the purported letter of interdiction was received, the Petitioner's wife filed a complaint on his behalf in the Human Rights Commission, dated the 2nd of September, 2020 (HRC/1906/20) which is currently pending before the said Commission.

Numerous applications made on behalf of the Petitioner to obtain bail were rejected by the learned High Court Judge of Gampaha. In or about February 2021, the Petitioner's wife filed an application for revision in the Court of Appeal to revise the order given by the learned High Court Judge. Consequently, the Petitioner was enlarged on bail by the Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal in its judgement observed the following;

> "It is my view that on account of the unusual and extraordinary delay in lodging the first complaint despite every ability to do so demonstrates very strongly that the allegations against the suspect Rannulu Sugath Mendis are a result of falsification and embellishment and a creature of after-thought. On account of the said unusual and extraordinary delay, the complaint has not only lost the benefit of the advantage of spontaneity, but also smacks of the introduction of a fabricated, false version and an exaggerated account or concocted story involving a set of collaborators or conspirators, to unduly cause prejudice and harm to the suspect Rannulu Sugath Mendis, for collateral purposes*. Not only that the said delay has not been* satisfactorily or credibly explained. It is crystal clear that the statements given by the said witnesses in 2020 are contradictory to statements given by them in 2014.

Upon the statements of apparent backers and supporters or collaborators of the convicted murders, purported facts have been reported in B/1536/20 to the Learned Magistrate's Court of Gampaha against the suspect, in a blatant attempt to frame allegations through fabrication of false evidence pertaining to purported commission of offences under the Penal Code and for the purported possession of a cache of firearms, explosives and ammunition in a manner that constitutes offence under the Offensive Weapons and the Explosives Act. However, no credible evidence had been brought to the attention of the Court to substantiate this position or credibly establish a semblance of a prima facie case*."*

(Page 8-9 of the Judgement in Case CA (Rev.) Application No. CA/CPA/19/2021)

(Emphasis added)

The learned Judges of the Court of Appeal further observed that with regard to the purported possession of firearms under the Offensive Weapons Act No. 18 of 1966 and the Explosives Act No. 21 of 1956 as amended by Act No. 33 of 1969, it follows

"no credible evidence had been brought to the attention of the Court to substantiate this position or credibly establish a semblance of a prima facie case."

The Petitioner further stated that he remained without his salary until the Supreme Court made an interim order directing to pay his salary. The Petitioner stated that such treatment is a continuing infringement of his fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 12(1) and 14 (1)(g) of the Constitution.

The Petitioner claims that the actions of the Respondents have violated his rights under Article 12(1) and Article 14(1)(g) of the Constitution.

Article 12(1) of the Constitution provides as follows;

> "All persons are equal before the law and are entitled to the equal protection of the law."

Article 14(1)(g) of the Constitution provides as follows;

> "Every citizen is entitled to the freedom to engage by himself or in association with others in any lawful occupation, profession, trade, business or enterprise."

In light of the facts and circumstances of the instant case, there are two issues which are required to be answered. Firstly, whether the Respondents are empowered by law to take action against the Petitioner, and secondly, whether the actions of the Respondents violate the rights of the Petitioner guaranteed by Article 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution.

In addressing the first question of law, it must be considered whether the Respondents have the authority to interdict the Petitioner in the manner stated above. As per Article 57(1) of the Constitution, the Public Service Commission (PSC) has delegated its powers to the Assistant Superintendent of Police (ASP) under the Extraordinary Gazette No. 2202/24 dated 20th of November, 2020. Thereby, the 1st Respondent being the ASP has the necessary powers with regard to interdiction within the purview of respective administrative area.

The Petitioner's contention is that there was no preliminary investigation conducted prior to interdicting him from the service or up to the time of the hearing of this appeal and no specific reasons were given for his interdiction.

Section 31:3 of the Establishments Code provides for the manner in which notice of interdiction should be conveyed to a Public Officer. Accordingly, the said section provides that,

> "an authority who decides to interdict a public officer in terms of subsection 31:1 above should note clearly and specifically in the relevant file the reasons on which such a decision was based."
>
> (Emphasis added)

Section 31:4 of the Establishments Code states as follows:

> "Normally a public officer should be interdicted on matters relating disclosed in a preliminary investigation held into the charges against him."
>
> (Emphasis added)

However, the letter of interdiction dated 7th of August 2020 sent by the 1st Respondent and received by the Petitioner states as follows:

> "ඒ අනුව ඔබ ශ්‍රී ලංකා ප්‍රජාතාන්ත්‍රික සමාජවාදී ජනරජයේ ආයතන සංග්‍රහයේ II වන කාණ්ඩයේ XLVIII වන පරිච්ඡේදයේ 31.1 අනුව වීෂමාචාරයන් එකක් හෝ කිපයක් හෝ සියල්ලම හෝ සිදුකර ඇති බව බැලූ බැල්මට පෙනී යන බැවින්... මූලික විමර්ශණයකට යටත්ව වහාම ක්‍රියාත්මක වන පරිදි 2020.08.03 වන දින සිට ඔබගේ වැඩ තහනමට ලක්කරමි. වැටුප් හා දීමනා කිසිවක් හිමි නොවේ."

The unofficial translation of the above is provided below;

> "Accordingly, as it appears prima facie that you have committed one or more or all of the violations in accordance with Chapter XLVIII, Volume II, Establishments Code of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka... subject to preliminary investigation, your work will be suspended with immediate effect from 03.08.2020 and will not be entitled to any remuneration and other benefits."

It must be noted that the letter does not "clearly and specifically" state the reasons for the interdiction of the Petitioner, as required under section 31:3 as cited above.

In terms of section 31:4 of the Establishment Code, a public officer should be interdicted on matters disclosed during the Preliminary Investigation. It is pertinent to note that well over two years since the interdiction, no such preliminary investigation have been conducted. This is a blatant disregard of the disciplinary power vested on the 1st Respondent as well as a grave injustice done to the Petitioner.

However, as per section 31:5:3 of the Establishment Code, a relevant authority can interdict a public officer even without holding a preliminary investigation where Court proceedings have been instituted against a public officer in terms of section 27 of the Establishment Code. In such a scenario, at the very least, action should be taken to hold a preliminary investigation as required under section 31:7 of the said Code. For the purposes of the aforementioned provisions, the Respondent would constitute a "relevant authority".

Section 27 of the Establishment Code provides the procedure followed when a Court of Law or Statutory Authority proceeds with a case filed against a Public Officer such as the Petitioner, whereby section 27:1 of the Code provides that it must be reported to the necessary authority to take action against the said officer.

Under such circumstances, under section 27:9 of the Establishments Code the Petitioner should have been reinstated if the Disciplinary Authority determined that "his reinstatement will not adversely affect the interests of the public service", taking into consideration the observation made by the learned Judges of the Court of Appeal who granted the bail, and stated in his judgement that "no credible evidence has been brought to the attention of the Court to substantiate this position or credibly establish a semblance of a prima facie case". However, no steps had been taken to reinstate the Petitioner in his post.

Section 27:10 of Chapter XLVIII of Volume II of the Establishments Code, as amended by the Public Administration Circular 06/2004 dated 15th of December, 2004 now reads as provided below:

> "the Disciplinary Authority/ Administrative Authority should conduct a preliminary investigation against such Officer within a period not more than 02 months*. The respective preliminary investigation report should be submitted to the Public Service Commission by the Disciplinary Authority/ Administrative Authority and* if the Public Service Commission determines that the reinstatement of the Officer concerned is not detrimental to the interests of the Public Service according to facts revealed by such report, such an Officer may be reinstated in service*."*
>
> [Emphasis added]

However, under the above section, if it is decided that the reinstatement would be detrimental to the interests of the Public Service, then as per section 27:10:1, the Petitioner's interdiction will remain in force pending the final outcome of the case. However, this section also provides that if the delivery of the Judgement exceeds the timeframe of a year, then the Disciplinary Authority may authorise the payment of salary not exceeding half thereof to the officer concerned. In the instant case, even two years after the Petitioner was interdicted, no preliminary investigation was begun, nor was he given his salary due to him. The Respondents have committed a grave error in keeping the Petitioner on interdiction for a long period of time. There were numerous opportunities to rectify their wrongs before this case was taken up in the Supreme Court, but they have not done so.

The Petitioner has submitted letters to the Chairman of the National Police Commission dated 1st of July, 2022, the Chairman of the Human Rights Commission Sri Lanka, the Director of Police Ombudsman Division, and the Deputy Inspector General of Police through the relevant chain of command, and requested for his reinstatement. The Petitioner is yet to receive reasons as to why he was interdicted from service.

If this Court were to criticise the actions of the Police Force, it need not look further than the police motto itself; "ධම්මෝ හවේ රක්ඛති ධම්මචාරී" which states "those who live by the Dhamma are protected by the Dhamma". One would expect that the Police force of Sri Lanka would follow this motto when carrying out their duties, without mala fide. However, we observe, they have failed to stick to the basics of their code of conduct and the principles of natural justice.

It is pertinent to note that when this matter came up in Court on the 18th of May, 2022, Court made an interim order and fixed this application for hearing on the 21st of September, 2022. Further, the Court made the following order:

"Objections, counter objections, written submissions in terms of the rules."

On the 5th of August 2022, the Instructing Attorney for the Petitioner filed a motion informing the Court that the Respondents have not complied with directions given by the Court as well as not complied with the rules of the Supreme Court. He also informed the Court that the interim order was not complied with. On the 14th of September, 2022, the listing Judge-in Chambers made an order to support this motion on the 21st of September, 2022, in Open Court, i.e. the date fixed for the hearing of this application.

On the 21st of September, 2022, the said Attorney filed another motion stating that the Respondents have not complied with order made by the Court as well as the rules of the Supreme Court. Further, the Respondents have not sought or obtained any further time for filing of objections and written submissions. Moreover, the Petitioner has filed written submissions and objected for any time being granted for Respondents to file objections.

When the matter was listed for hearing on the 21st of September, 2022, the learned Deputy Solicitor General had sought permission to file counter objections or further material in relation to the motion dated 5th of August, 2022 and Court granted time until the 22nd of September, 2022. However, the Respondents did not file any objections or any material to counter the facts stated in the said motion.

In the meantime, on the 14th of September, 2022, the Attorney-at-Law for the Petitioner filed a motion and tendered the written submissions on behalf of the Petitioner. In the motion, she categorically stated that the Respondents have not filed any objections and therefore, they are objecting for filing of any objections and/or written submissions.

On the 22nd of September, 2022, the 4th Respondent filed an Affidavit through his Registered Attorney. Paragraph 6 and 7 of the Affidavit states as follows:

> "I state that an administrative difficulty as to the payment in full of the salary to an officer serving an interdiction arose in making the payment in full of the salary to an officer under interdiction and necessitated the Head of the Department to be kept informed."
>
> Vide Paragraph 6
>
> "I state that, in the circumstances, I brought the matter to the attention of the Inspector General of Police (IGP)."
>
> Vide Paragraph 7

This is a completely different stance taken by the DSG before this Court on the 21st of September, 2022. When the application came up in Court, on the 23rd of September, 2022, the Court observed that the DSG has not filed any counters or any other materials other than the Affidavit of the 4th Respondent dated 22nd of September, 2022.

The Petitioner supported the motion dated 14th of September, 2022 and moved Court to make an order. As the learned DSG neither filed objections, nor sought permission for further time to file the same, as per the Supreme Court Rules, Court allowed the motion filed by the Petitioner and refused to grant a date to file objections of the Respondents. Thereafter, the application was fixed for argument for the 16th of November 2022.

On the 10th of October 2022, the 5th Respondent, had filed an Affidavit dated 7th of October, 2022. In the said Affidavit, it was stated that the Petitioner had been reinstated in service on the 23rd of September, 2022, and is currently serving at the Hikkaduwa Police Station and arrears of his salary had been paid.

Further, it is stated that the reinstatement was:

I. subject to Court orders and

II. subject to disciplinary action related to the incident (especially Establishments Code Volume II Section 27:10).

This reinstatement is proof to show that the Respondents themselves have accepted that their previous decision to interdict the Petitioner was wrong. Looking at the hardships that the Petitioner has been subject to, in the words of Fernando, ACJ, in Range Bandara v. Gen. Anuruddha Ratwatte and Another (1997) 3 Sri LR 360, this treatment was > "not the result of a mistake or error of judgment, but of a misuse of those powers, of a kind which demoralises and demotivates the victim, and indirectly the entire service"

When any State authority or the Sri Lankan Police arrive at a decision, that decision should be supported by materials available to them. Further, the authority must be able to defend the decision, if it is questioned before a Court of Law or a Tribunal. Whether the Court decides to accept or disregard such evidence, they should be able to submit such evidence before the Court. In this application, the Respondents did not file objections within the time given by Court. Hence, the averments in the Petition filed by the Petitioner are not challenged. Accordingly, the Court is required by law to act on the averments in the Petition and that did not happen, and were they unable to defend their decision to interdict the Petitioner.

In a government service, the government servants should be able to work independently without fear or favour. If the relevant authorities are unable to provide such an environment, it will lead to corruption, which ends up in weak or poor government service.

Decision

After careful consideration of the facts and circumstances outlined above, I hold that the Petitioner's rights, as guaranteed by Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(g) of the Constitution, have been violated by the Respondents.

Therefore, I direct the State to pay as compensation, Rupees One Million (Rs. 1,000,000) to the Petitioner within 3 months from the date of this judgment.

Furthermore, I direct the Respondents to retrospectively grant all salary increments, benefits, and promotions to the Petitioner, extending up to the date of his retirement from the Police Service if he has already retired from the service.

Application Allowed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

PRIYANTHA JAYAWARDENA, PC, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

MAHINDA SAMAYAWARDHENA, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 126 read with Article 17 of the Constitution of The Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka

Peduru Arachchige Tiuska Pushpa Weerasinghe,
No. 107/A, Kanatta Road,
Mirihana,
Nugegoda.

SC/FR Application No. 120/2019

PETITIONER

-Vs-

1. Sirimewan Dias,
   Chairman,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

1a. Nilantha Wijesinghe,
   Chairman,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

2. K.AK. Ranjith Dharmapala,
   Acting Chairman,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

3. P.B. Ruwan Pathirana,
   Executive Director,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

3a. Pathmika Mahanama Thilakarathne,
   Executive Director,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

4. R.M.C.M Herath,
   Director General,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

4a. W.M.W Weerakoon,
   Director General,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

5. K.D.R Olga,
   Director General,
   Finance Department,
   Land Reform Commission,
   No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
   Battaramulla.

6. U.G Rathnasiri,
   Additional Secretary,
   Ministry of National Policies and Economic Affairs, 1st Floor,
   "Miloda"

Bristol Street, Colombo 01.

7. W.M.W Weerakoon,
Director General-Agriculture,
Department of Agriculture,
P.O. Box 1,
Peradeniya.

7a. Dr. S.H.S.A De Silva,
Director General-Agriculture,
Department of Agriculture,
P.O. Box 1,
Peradeniya.

8. W.M.M.B Weerasekara,
Commissioner General-Agrarian
Development,
No. 42,
Sir Marcus Fernando Mawatha,
P.O. Box 537,
Colombo 07.

9. B.L.A.J Dharmakeerthi,
Additional Secretary (Development),
Ministry of Plantation Industries,
11th Floor,
Sethsiripaya 2nd Stage,
Battaramulla.

10. R.W Nalaka Rajasekera,
Commission Member,
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

10a. R.M.U.K Wijeratna,
Commission Member,

Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

11. D.P Karunarathna,
Assistant Director,
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

12. A. A Ishara Abeysinghe,
Secretary/Director – Control
(Covering),
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

13. G.H.N Shyamali Rathnayake,
Assistant Director,
Income Department,
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

14. P.B.M Thisera,
Assistant Director,
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

15. E.A Pradeep Kumara,
Assistant Director,
Project Division,
Land Reform Commission,
No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
Battaramulla.

16. T.S Wadduwage,
    Project Division,
    Land Reform Commission,
    No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
    Battaramulla.

17. A.H Kumudu Dharmapriya,
    Assistant Director,
    Land Ceiling Section,
    Land Reform Commission,
    No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
    Battaramulla.

18. W.M Sunil Bandara,
    Assistant Director,
    Land Reform Commission,
    No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
    Battaramulla.

19. Nandasena Wanniarachchi,
    Assistant Director,
    Land Reform Commission,
    No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
    Battaramulla.

20. T. Narendranadan,
    Internal Auditor,
    Land Reform Commission,
    No. 475, Kaduwela Road,
    Battaramulla.

21. Hon. Attorney General,
    Attorney General's Department,
    Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE: Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J.
Kumudini Wickremasinghe, J.
Achala Wengappuli, J.

COUNSEL: Niranjan de Silva for the Petitioner.
Gihan Liyanage instructed by Mallawaarachchi Associates for the 1A, 11th, 12th, 13th, 15th, 16th & 17th Respondents.
Rajitha Perera SSC for the Hon. Attorney General.

ARGUED ON: 23.11.2022.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: 09th December 2022 for the Petitioner.
16th December 2022 for the 1A, 11th, 12th, 13th, 15th, 16th & 17th Respondents.

DECIDED ON: 24.10.2023.

Judgement

Aluwihare, PC, J,

This is a Fundamental Rights Application concerning the alleged non-promotion of an employee attached to the Land Reform Commission. In the Petition of the Petitioner has alleged that her Fundamental Rights guaranteed by Article 12(1) and Article 14(1)(g) of the Constitution had been violated by the 1st to 10th Respondents or any one or more of them. The Petitioner asserts that the 1st to 10th Respondents had consistently denied her a promotion by failing to appoint her to the post of 'Deputy Director - Legal' of the Land Reform Commission (hereinafter referred to as the 'LRC'), and they had, by this omission violated her fundamental rights. This Court granted leave to proceed on the alleged infringement under Article 12(1) of the Constitution. Only the 1A, 11th, 12th, 13th, 15th, 16th and 17th Respondents have made representations before this Court, and they will hereinafter be referred to as 'the Respondents'.

I wish to succinctly state the facts of this case before delving into the relevant legal considerations.

The Facts

The Petitioner is an Attorney-at-Law who holds a Bachelor of Laws Degree. She was initially employed as a 'Legal Assistant – Grade V' on a contractual basis at the LRC from 23rd July 2007, subject to a six-month probation period (vide 'P3', the letter of appointment dated 16.11.2017). The Petitioner's service contract was renewed for further year on 24.01.2008 till 23.01.2009. The Petitioner was also confirmed in employment with effect from 01.02.2008 by letter dated 29.01.2008.

The Petitioner claims to have been promised recruitment as a 'Legal Officer – Grade III' in accordance with the Scheme of Recruitment of 1979, prior to her recruitment as a 'Legal Assistant – Grade V'. The Petitioner also claims to have been continuously harassed at the LRC while not receiving due promotions. The Respondents made no specific averments in this regard besides noting that the Petitioner was not promoted to due to her 'poor performance' (vide Written Submission of the Respondents dated 16th December 2022).

Pursuant to repeated appeals and letters of complaint to the 1st Respondent's predecessor as the Chairman of the LRC ('P7', 'P7(b)', 'P7(c)') as well as a complaint to the Labour Commissioner (Colombo General), the Petitioner had been promoted to the managerial level as the 'Assistant Director – Grade II' of the LRC with effect from 03.10.2012 by letter dated 29.01.2014 ('P9').

Per the minutes of the LRC dated 26.02.2019, 10 Assistant Directors (11th to 20th Respondents) who were appointed alongside the Petitioner on 03.10.2012, had been promoted as Deputy Directors of the LRC.

Submissions

The Petitioner alleges that her omission from the promotion to the post of 'Deputy Director' is particularly concerning as the Petitioner is an Attorney-at-law with 18 years of experience and she possesses educational qualifications above and beyond any qualifications possessed by those who were promoted.

Furthermore, the Petitioner noted that the operational scheme of recruitment of the LRC dated 03.10.2012, in Section 6.1.2 sets out that for promotion to the position of Deputy Director of the LRC requires 6 years of continuous service in Grade II and all due annual salary increments. The Petitioner claims to have fulfilled the elements so required.

The Respondents are in agreement with the Petitioner as to the applicability of the scheme of recruitment of the LRC dated 03.10.2012 ('P10'). However, they argue that the Petitioner was not eligible for the said promotion as she had not completed the necessary requirements per the scheme.

Section 6.1.2 of the Scheme of Recruitment is reproduced below for convenience.

6.1.2 සුවිශේෂී කාර්ය සාධනය පෙන්නුම් කරන්නන්

(අ) පූර්ව අවශ්‍යතා

i) පත්වීම ස්ථිර කර නිබීම

ii) සේවා ගණයේ II ශ්‍රේණියේ අවම වශයෙන් වසර (06) ක අඛණ්ඩ සේවා කාලයක් සම්පූර්ණ කර නිබීම සහ අදාල කාලයට නියමිත වැටුප් වර්ධක සියල්ල උපාය ගෙන නිබීම.

iii) අනුමත කාර්ය සාධන ඇගයීමේ පරිපාටිය අනුව පූර්වසන්නතම වසර (06) තුලම සුවිශේෂී කාර්යසාධනයක් පෙන්නුම් කර නිබීම.

iv) උසස් වීම දිනට පූර්වාසන්නම වසර (05) තුල සතුටුදායක සේවා කාලයක් සම්පූර්ණ කර නිබීම.

v) අදාළ කාර්යක්ෂමතා කඩඉම් පරීක්ෂණ නියමිත දිනයේදී සමත් වී නිබීම.

vi) අදාල වෘත්තියේ දෙවන රාජ්‍ය භාෂා ප්‍රවීණතාවය ලබා ගෙන නිබීම

Of the aforementioned requirements of the scheme, the Respondents claim that the Petitioner has failed to fulfil requirements no. ii) and vi). Specifically, they argue that the Petitioner has not received her salary increments per requirement no. ii) and that she is not proficient, neither has she adduced proof of proficiency of a 2nd National Language per requirement no. vi). The Respondents also added that the Petitioner has failed to indicate that she has performed 'exceptionally well' ("සුවිශේෂී කායර්සාධනයක්") in service during the immediate 6 years prior to the year of application for promotion as per requirement no. iii).

The Petitioner makes no averment regarding requirements iii) and vi) besides noting that she is an Attorney-at-Law and that she has, in the course of her work, executed a considerable number of Deeds and instruments. Regarding requirement no. ii), the Petitioner has produced a letter from the Secretary, Director (Administration) of the LRC ('Z) and dated 08.12.2022 (subsequent to the filing of the Petition) which affirms that she has, in fact, in received all her due salary increments. The letter also states that it is issued at the Petitioner's request.

Were the Petitioner's Fundamental Rights violated?

It appears to me that the Court has been placed in a peculiar setting for the adjudication of this matter. On the one hand, the Petitioner argues that she has been consistently and deliberately denied promotion within the LRC, which she argues violated her Fundamental Right to equal protection of the Law and equality before the Law under Article 12(1) of the Constitution. On the other hand, the LRC argues that the Petitioner was denied the promotion of concern due to her consistent failure to perform at the required standards in the execution of her duties, as well as her failure to fulfil the requirements which would make her eligible for the promotion.

The issue of ineligibility can be dealt with directly by the application of the scheme of recruitment (P10). The Respondents submitted that the Petitioner has not received her salary increments per requirement no. ii) and that she is not proficient, neither has she adduced proof of proficiency of a 2nd National Language per requirement no. vi), and that the Petitioner has failed to indicate that she has performed 'exceptionally well' ("සුවිශේෂී කායර්සාධනයක්") in service during the immediate 6 years prior to the year of application for promotion as per requirement no. iii) of Clause 6.1.2 of the Scheme. The Petitioner's response was that she is an Attorney-at-Law who has, in the course of her work, executed many Deeds and instruments. The Petitioner also produced a letter from the Secretary, Director (Administration) of the LRC ('Z) and dated 08.12.2022 which affirms that she received all her due salary increments.

Notably, the Petitioner has failed to adduce any evidence (such as certificate to her character or performance) to controvert the Respondents claim that she has performed her duties exceptionally well. The petitioner also failed to produce any material which indicates that she is proficient in a 2nd National Language.

I do not think it necessary to engage in an etymological pursuit to understand what is meant by the words "exceptionally well' in Clause 6.1.2 iii) of the scheme of recruitment (P10). Such a project would only delay the inevitable conclusion that per the scheme of recruitment, in order to be considered eligible for promotion to the post of Deputy Director, the applicant must have performed exceptionally well in the execution of their duties. It logically follows that such an exceptional performance may be evidenced by a certificate or reference from a superior affirming such notion.

I wish to further state that most schemes of promotion and recruitment for officers require a degree of merit in the performance of duties. In most cases, considerable weightage is given to this requirement as it is perhaps the most potent evidence of the history of a person's performance.

I find it prudent at this stage to make reference to the sage words of Justice Fernando in Perera v. Cyril Ranatunga, Secretary Defence and others [1993] 1 SLR 39 (at page 43).

"The plain meaning of "merit" is the quality of deserving well, excellence, or worth; it is derived from the Latin "mereri", meaning to earn, or to deserve. In my opinion, 'merit" must be considered in relation to the individual officer, as well as the requirements of the post to which he seeks promotion. In relation to the individual officer, there is a negative and a positive aspect: whether there is demerit, e.g. incompetence and poor performance in his present post, and whether there is "positive" merit, such as a high degree of competence and excellent performance. It would also be legitimate to consider the suitability of the officer for the post, having regard to the aptitudes and skills required for the efficient discharge of the functions of that post, and the service to be rendered."

It is evident that in the present case, having considered the application of the Petitioner, the Respondents were of the opinion that the Petitioner did not merit a promotion due to her poor performance. Not only is that [performance] a consideration an employer is generally entitled to consider in the context of advancement of their employees, in the present case, the Respondents were required to consider the Petitioner's performance per the scheme of recruitment. Therefore, it appears to me that the Respondents had not acted arbitrarily, unreasonably, or unlawfully by denying the Petitioner the promotion to the post of Deputy Director. The Respondents had relied on the applicable scheme of promotion and the assessment of the Petitioner's superiors to determine that she was not eligible for promotion. Even after the filing of this application and being confronted with the submission of the Respondents regarding her failure to fulfil the aforesaid requirements, the Petitioner did not produce any material to her benefit in that regard. This court cannot brush aside lightly the assertions made by the Respondents which indicates that the Petitioner had had a history of underperforming.

In my view, the material before this court falls short of the required threshold of proof to conclude that the Respondents had violated the Petitioner's fundamental rights guaranteed under Article 12(1). The position in our jurisprudence regarding the violation of a person's fundamental right to equal protection of the law and equality before the law has evolved through the decades. Presently, the success of an application alleging a violation of Article 12(1) rests on the ability of a Petitioner to establish any unlawfulness, arbitrary action/inaction, unreasonable conduct or manifest unfairness (vide Rajavarothiam Sampanthan & Others v. The Attorney General & Others, SC FR 351-361/2018, S.C Minutes of 13.12.2018; W.P.S. Wijerathna v. SLPA & Others, S.C F.R Application No. 256/2017, S.C Minutes of 11.12.2020). The Petitioner has failed to establish any of the aforementioned elements in this application.

I find it prudent at this stage to recall observations made by me in a prior judgement where uncertainty and a lacuna in factual narratives submitted by parties compelled the Court to determine the standard of proof required to establish a fundamental rights violation.
"In proceedings of this nature, the court has very limited avenues to test the veracity of these assertions and necessarily have to depend on the affidavits and other documents filed. In the circumstances, in arriving at a just and equitable decision in the realm of the fundamental rights jurisdiction, the court necessarily has to apply the test of probability to the factual matters placed before us." [in Arangallage Samantha v. OIC, Police Station, Biyagama & Others, S.C. F.R Application No. 458/2012, S.C Minutes of 28. 01. 2020, at page 8]

My observations forecited were formed in light of the astute observations of Wanasundera J in the case of Velmurugu v The Attorney General and Others 1981 1 SLR 406 and Soza J. in Vivienne Goonewardene v Hector Perera 1983 SLR 1 V 305. In Velmurugu, his Lordship Justice Wanasundera stated that the test applicable for the standard of proof required to establish a violation of fundamental rights is a "preponderance of probability", as adopted in civil cases. His Lordship further stated that although the standard is not as high as that which is required in criminal cases, there can be different standards of probability within that standard and the degree applicable would depend on the subject-matter of the case concerned. In Vivienne Goonewardene's case, Soza J held that "The degree of probability required should be commensurate with the gravity of the allegation sought to be proved...The conscience of the court must be satisfied that there has been an infringement."

In my view, the aforementioned dicta succinctly capture the standard of proof for an alleged infringement of fundamental rights in an application under Article 126. Accordingly, although the Petitioner was not required to expel all doubt in the Court's mind that the Respondents had unlawfully, arbitrarily, unreasonably, or unjustly denied her the promotion concerned, the Petitioner was required to produce compelling material which would satisfy the court's conscience on a preponderance of probabilities that the Respondents had engaged in such conduct. In this most essential requirement, the Petitioner has failed.

For the aforementioned reasons, I hold that Petitioner has failed to establish to the satisfaction of this court that the Petitioner's Fundamental Rights guaranteed in terms of Article 12(1) of the Constitution had been violated, and in the circumstances, we hold that the Petitioner is not entitled to the relief prayed.

Application Dismissed.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

KUMUDINI WICKREMASINGHE, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

ACHALA WENGAPPULI, J

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALISTREPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 17 & 126 of the Constitution.

Case No: SC/FR/126/2022

1. Jayaweerage Sumedha Jayaweera,
Principal's Bungalow,
St Paul's Girls' School,
Milagiriya,
Colombo 05.

PETITIONER

Vs.

1. Dinesh Gunawardana,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

1. Ramesh Pathirana,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

1(B). Hon. Susil Premajayantha,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

2. Prof. K. Kapila C.K. Perera
The Secretary Ministry of Education,
Ministry of Education,

Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

2(A). M.N. Ranasingha,
The Secretary Ministry of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

3. W.M.N.J. Pushpakumara,
Additional Secretary Education Services,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

4. R.A.A.K. Ranawaka
Secretary Ministry of Lands,
Ministry of Lands,
"Mihikatha Madura", Land Secretariat,
No. 1200/6,
Rajamalwatha Rd, Battaramulla.

5. E.W.L.K. Egodawela,
Additional Secretary (School Affairs),
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla.

The 2nd, 4th and 5th Respondents, Members of Interview Panel.

6. H.M.C.K. Seneviratne
11/3, Samagi Mawatha,
Depanama, Pannipitiya.

7. Hon. Jagath Balapatabendi
Retired Judge of the Supreme Court,
(Chairman)
Public Service Commission.

8. Indrani Sugathadasa,
(Member)

9. Dr. T.R.C. Ruberu
(Member)

10. Ahamod Lebbe Mohamed Saleem
(Member)

11. Leelasena Liyanagama
(Member)

12. Dian Gomes
(Member)

13. Dilith Jayaweera
(Member)

14. W.H. Piyadasa
(Member)

15. Sundaram Arumainayagam
(Member)

All Members of the Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

16. M.A.B. Daya Senarath
(Secretary)
Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

17. Mr. G.S. Withanage
Chairman – Education Service Committee,
Public Service Commission.

18. Dr. Mrs. Damitha de Zoysa
(Member)

19. Mr. S.U. Wijerathna
(Member)

Members of the Education Service Committee
Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

20. Mr. A.W.R. Wimalaweera
Secretary-Public Service Commission,
No. 1200/9, Rajamalwatta Road,
Battaramulla.

21. Hon. Attorney General
Attorney Generals Department,
Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE : BUWANEKA ALUWIHARE, PC. J
P. PADMAN SURASENA, J
JANAK DE SILVA, J

COUNSEL : Ikram Mohamed PC with R. Hettiarachchi and Anuradha Abeysekere for the Petitioner.

Sanjeewa Jayawardena PC with Charitha Rupasinghe and Ms. Ridmi Beneragama for the 6th Respondent

Kanishka de Silva Balapatabendi DSG. With R. Gooneratne, SC for all the Respondents except the 6th Respondent.

ARGUED ON : 13-09-2023

DECIDED ON: 20-09-2023

Order relating to preliminary objection

Both the Petitioner and the 6th Respondent had applied for the post of Principal (Sri Lanka Education Administrative Service Grade I) responding to the notice produced marked F1 by which the Secretary of the Ministry of Education had called for applications from suitable candidates to fill thirty-one vacancies which existed at thirty-one National Schools in the year 2021. Subsequent to the selection process, the 6th Respondent has been appointed as principal of Visaka Vidyalaya Colombo with effect from 24-01-2022. The Petitioner having failed to secure that appointment from the said selection process, has challenged in this application the appointment of the 6th Respondent to the post of Principal of Visaka Vidyalaya Colombo. The Petitioner in her petition has prayed for four main reliefs:

1. A declaration that the marking scheme of Sri Lanka Education Administrative Service class I officers to Grade I schools – 2021 produced marked F3 has violated the Petitioner's fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution,
2. A declaration that the Petitioners fundamental rights guaranteed by Article 12(1) of the Constitution has been violated by the appointment of the 6th Respondent to the post of Principal Visaka Vidyalaya with effect from 18-01-2022 and/or by not awarding the Petitioner more marks than the 6th Respondent and/or by not appointing the Petitioner to the said post,
3. A declaration that the appointment of the 6th Respondent to the post of Principal Visaka Vidyalaya is null and void in law and to make an order directing the Respondents to appoint the Petitioner to the post of Principal Visaka Vidyalaya with effect from 18-01-2022.

At the outset, both the learned Presidents' Counsel who appeared for the 6th Respondent and the learned Deputy Solicitor General who appeared for all the other Respondents (other than the 6th Respondent), raised a preliminary objection that the Petitioner has filed this Petition after the 01-month period permitted by Article 126(2) of the Constitution and therefore the application is out of time. The Court proceeded to hear the submissions of all parties and reserved its order.

According to the Respondents, it is the marking scheme of Sri Lanka Education Administrative Service class I officers to Grade I schools - 2021 produced marked F3 which the Petitioner has complained as having violated her fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution. The Petitioner herself has applied responding to the notice calling for application (F1). The list of vacancies expected to be filled through this appointment process has been produced marked F2. The marking scheme relied on to award marks to the candidates has also been produced marked F3. Admittedly, the marking sheet F3 has been published right from the beginning in the website. The closing date for the submission of the application was 12-10-2021. Petitioner has filed this application on 05-04-2022. There is no dispute that the Petitioner was aware of the said published marking scheme (F3) at the time she had forwarded her application for this post. Thus, the Petitioner has filed the instant application more than six months after the aforesaid alleged act of infringement.

The Petitioner has stated that she had made a complaint to the Human Rights Commission and therefore her application cannot be out of time as per Section 13 (1) of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act No. 21 of 1996 which reads as follows:

> "Where a complaint is made by an aggrieved party in terms of section 14, to the Commission, within one month of the alleged infringement or imminent infringement of a fundamental right by executive or administrative action, the period within which the inquiry into such complaint is pending before the Commission, shall not be taken into account in computing the period of one month within which an application may be made to the Supreme Court by such person in terms of Article 126 (2) of the Constitution."

Mr. Sanjeewa Jayawardena PC who appeared for the 6th Respondent argued that the Petitioner has failed to prove that the inquiry into her complaint is pending before the Human Rights Commission. However, we do not need to go that far because Section 13 (1) of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act requires the Petitioner to pass a more preliminary threshold. That is the requirement for the Petitioner to have made her complaint to the Human Rights Commission within one month of the alleged infringement. According to the receipt issued by the Human Rights Commission produced by the Petitioner marked O-1, the Petitioner had made the complaint to the Human Rights Commission on 15-02-2022. Therefore, it is clear that the Petitioner had made her complaint to the Human Rights Commission very much after the one-month time allowed by Section 13 (1) of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act No. 21 of 1996. Therefore, irrespective of the fact that the inquiry into the Petitioner's complaint is pending before the Human Rights Commission or not, the Petitioner's case cannot come under Section 13 (1) of the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka Act for the purpose of computing the period of one month referred to in Article 126 (2) of the Constitution.

Therefore, we hold that the Petitioner's application in so far as the challenge made to the marking scheme F3 is out of time.

However, Mr. Ikram Mohommed PC submitted before us that he has sought other relief which are not out of time as per Article 126(2) of the Constitution. He complained that , in certain instances the Petitioner has been deprived of the marks which are legally due to her. Let us proceed to consider that aspect of the case.

According to the marking scheme F3, marks to the candidates have been awarded under nine categories. They are as follows:

1. Service experience
2. Educational qualifications
3. English language proficiency
4. Computer literacy
5. Service evaluation
6. Research and publication relevant to education
7. Presentation
8. Case study
9. Overall skills and personality at interview

Mr. Ikram Mohommed PC, contended that the Petitioner's complaint is that she has not been awarded marks to the qualifications and experience she had possessed in respect of the first four categories (i.e., Service experience; Educational qualifications; English language proficiency; Computer literacy) because the Marking Scheme has no such provision to entertain and award marks to those qualifications. In particular, the Petitioner complains that unlike the 2015 marking scheme, the marking scheme F3, used in this instance does not permit award of marks to the qualifications and experience she had possessed in respect of the third and fourth categories (i.e., English language proficiency; Computer literacy) because the present Marking Scheme has no such provision to entertain and award such marks to those qualifications. Thus, in effect, it is clear that the Petitioner is challenging the Marking Scheme (F3) in respect of the award of marks under those four categories. Therefore, the Petitioner's complaint in respect of the first four categories (i.e., Service experience; Educational qualifications; English language proficiency; Computer literacy) is also out of time.

In respect of the marks awarded under the 7th, 8th and 9th categories, (i.e., presentation, case study and overall skills and personality at the interview), it is the complaint of the Petitioner that she had performed better than the 6th Respondent in relation to the performance under those three categories and therefore she should have been awarded more marks than she has been awarded. We are of the view that we cannot get into the shoes of the panelists who evaluated the applicants and proceed to consider and evaluate afresh, the performance of the candidates by us. Therefore, we are unable to entertain the said complaint made in relation to 7th, 8th and 9th categories.

What remains to be considered are the complaints made by the Petitioner in relation to the 5th category service evaluation, and the 6th category research and publication relevant to education.

The complaint of the Petitioner with regard to service evaluation is that the Respondents could not, in any event, have appointed the 6th Respondent according to the eligibility criteria referred to in the Service Minute (produced marked Q) with the counter affidavit of the Petitioner dated 28-11-2022. According to the table at page 13A of the Gazette No. 1928/28 dated 21st August 2015, for any applicant to be eligible to be appointed for the post of Principal, he/she should be an officer in Grade I/II/III of the S.L.E.A.S. (General Cadre). While the Petitioner claims that she is an officer in General Cadre, she asserts that the 6th Respondent was not in General Cadre but in Special Cadre. However, as pointed out by both Mr. Sanjeewa Jayawardena, PC and Mrs. Kanishka Balapatabendi DSG, at page 2A of the same Gazette in clause 6.1 all Grade I officers must necessarily be in General Cadre. This is because all officers in Grade I are classified under 'General cadre' and there is no 'Special Cadre' in Grade 1. Therefore, the 6th Respondent who is a Grade I officer must necessarily belong to the General Cadre. Thus, we see no merit in this argument either.

With regard to the 6th category i.e., research and publication relevant to education, it is the position of the Petitioner that the Respondents had arbitrarily deprived her of due marks while arbitrarily awarding undue marks to the 6th Respondent. In this regard we observe that both the Petitioner and the 6th Respondent had been awarded three marks each (identical marks) under this category. The total marks obtained by the Petitioner is 60 marks; the total marks obtained by the 6th Respondent is 67 marks. Thus, the difference in total marks obtained by the Petitioner and the 6th Respondent is seven marks;. The maximum mark any applicant could obtain under this category (Research and publication relevant to education) is 05 marks. Therefore, even if the Petitioner's argument that the Respondents had arbitrarily deprived her of due marks is accepted, the Petitioner can only score 02 more marks which will make her total only 62 marks. Similarly, even if the argument of the Petitioner that the Respondents had arbitrarily awarded undue marks to the 6th Respondent is accepted, the 6th Respondent's marks can be reduced only by 03 marks making the 6th Respondent's total marks 64. Thus, we observe that the Petitioner cannot succeed on this ground as well because the 6th Respondent is still ahead of the Petitioner.

For the foregoing reasons Leave to Proceed is refused and the Petition is dismissed without costs.

BUWANEKA ALUWIHARE PC, J

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

P. PADMAN SURASENA, J

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JANAK DE SILVA, J

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an Application under and in terms of Article 126 read with Article 17 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

Mohamed Razik Mohamed Ramzy
No. 594/3, Polgasdeniya,
Katugastota

Acting in terms of Article 126(2) of the Constitution, the above-named petitioned the Supreme Court by his Attorney-at-Law
Musthafa Kamal Bacha Ramzeen,
No. 42, Norris Canal Road,
Colombo 10.

Petitioner

SC / FR Application No. 135/2020

Vs.

1. B.M.A.S.K. Senaratne
   Chief Inspector of Police
   Officer-in-Charge
   Computer and Forensic Training Unit,
   Criminal Investigation Department,
   Colombo 1.

2. W. Thilakaratne
   Senior Superintendent of Police
   Director,
   Criminal Investigation Department,
   Colombo 1.

2A. A.R.P.J. Alwis
Senior Superintendent of Police
Director,
Criminal Investigation Department,
Colombo 1.

2B. Kavinda Piyasekera
Senior Superintendent of Police
Director,
Criminal Investigation Department,
Colombo 1.

3. M.G.L.S. Hemachandra
Military Service Assistant of the Defence Secretary,
Ministry of Defence,
Colombo 1.

4. Major General Kamal Gunaratne
Secretary of the Ministry of Defence,
Ministry of Defence,
Colombo 1.

5. C.D. Wickremaratne
Inspector General of Police
Sri Lanka Police Headquarters,
Colombo 1.

6. Honourable Attorney General
Attorney General's Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

Before:	B.P. Aluwihare, P.C., J. Yasantha Kodagoda, P.C., J. Janak De Silva, J.
Counsel:	Mr. Nuwan Bopage with Mr. Chathura Weththasinghe instructed by Mr. Ramzi Bacha for the Petitioner. Ms. Induni Punchihewa, State Counsel for the 1st and 3rd to 6th Respondents.
Argued on:	29th March 2023
Written Submissions:	For the Petitioner - Filed on 2nd February and 6th June, 2023. For the Respondents – Not filed.
Decided on:	14th November, 2023

Yasantha Kodagoda, P.C., J.

This judgment relates to an Application filed under Article 126(2) of the Constitution by Attorney-at-Law Musthafa Kamal Bacha Ramzeen (hereinafter referred to as "the petitioner") on behalf of one Mohamed Razik Mohamed Ramzy (hereinafter referred to as "the virtual petitioner"). The virtual petitioner had been in remand custody at the time of filing this Application. The petitioner has claimed that due to the COVID – 19 pandemic that prevailed at the time of preferring the Application, the virtual petitioner had been unable to directly move this Court and invoke the jurisdiction vested in it under and in terms of Article 126 read with Article 17 of the Constitution. Thus, he has explained why this Application was filed by him in his capacity as an Attorney-at-Law.

On 17th June 2020, when this matter was supported, the Court had granted leave to proceed for alleged violations of fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner guaranteed by Articles 12(1), 13(1), 13(2) and 14(1)(a) of the Constitution. The record reveals that when the Application was supported for leave to proceed learned counsel for the petitioner had withdrawn the three prayers of the petition seeking interim relief.

Case of the Virtual Petitioner

The virtual petitioner who is a citizen of Sri Lanka of Muslim ethnicity and Islamic religious faith, had been a public servant and had served as an Interpreter in a public sector institution. Due to a health condition, he had retired prematurely. Since December 2009, he has maintained a Facebook profile. According to "A1(i)", at the time of the incident referred to in this judgment, the virtual petitioner had 1,212 'Followers' and 3,497 'Friends'. He has been active on Facebook, and has been regularly posting his views on it regarding socio-cultural, religious and political issues. The virtual petitioner claims that he is a strong opponent of racism, religious extremism, communal violence and a believer of a peaceful society filled with tranquility and harmony among all ethnic groups. He further claims that his Facebook posts have been aimed at promoting ethnic harmony, reconciliation, equality, and justice.

On 2nd April 2020 at approximately 1.30 pm, founded upon his belief that an incorrect, vicious and unfair campaign was afoot against the Muslim community of this country, that they were responsible for spreading the Corona (COVID-19) pandemic, the virtual petitioner had using the Sinhala language, posted on Facebook the following content:

> "ශ්‍රී ලාංකික මුස්ලිම් සමාජය චින්තන යුද්ධයකට ideological war මුහුණ පා ඇත. රට තුළ ක්‍රියාත්මක වන ජාතිවාදී කල්ලි ඉතාමත් සූක්ෂම ආකාරයට දියත් කරනු ලබන මෙම චිනතන යුද්ධයට මුහුණ දීමට නොහැකි ආකාරයට මුස්ලිම්වරු හතරවටින්ම වටකරනු ලැබ ඇත. දියත්වන ප්‍රබල බුද්ධි ප්‍රහාරයට එරෙහිව කිසිත් කල නොහැකිව මුස්ලිම් සමාජය ඒ දෙස තුෂ්ණිම්භූතව බලා සිටී.
>
> ජාතිවාදී සතුරන් සාර්ථකව ඔවුන්ගේ අරමුණ කරා ළඟා වෙමින් සිටී. මේ ප්‍රබල බුද්ධි ප්‍රහාරය හමුවේ මුස්ලිම්වරු පරාජය වෙමින් සිටී.
>
> මුස්ලිම්වරු වහාම චින්තන ජිහාදයකට (මතවාදී අරගලය) සූදානම් විය යුතුය. එය මුලු මහත් ශ්‍රී ලාංකික පොදු සමාජය වෙනුවෙන් ඔවුන්ගේ කරමත පටවා තිබෙන ආගමික වගකීමකි. රට සහ එහි සියලු පුරවැසියන් වෙනුවෙන් පෑන සහ කී-බෝඩය අවියක් කරගනිමින් චින්තන ජිහාදයක (මතවාදී අරගලය) ට සූදානම් වීමට කාලයයි මේ. රටේ තවත් ජනකොටසක් වන මුස්ලිම්වරුන්ට එරෙහිව ගෙනයන වෛරී ප්‍රචාරණයට මුහුණ දීමට ප්‍රධාන මාධ්‍ය සහ සමාජ මාධ්‍ය ඇතුළු පවතින සෑම අවකාශයක්ම යොදාගනිමින් ගනිමින් මතවාදී අරගලයක් මගින් ජනතාවට සත්‍ය වටහාදීම පිලිබඳව මේ අවස්ථාවේ මුස්ලිම්වරු වඩාත් අවදානය යොමුකල යුතුය.
>
> නොහැක්කක් නොමැත."

[Emphasis added.]

In my view, when translated into English, the following is its meaning:

> "The Sri Lankan Muslim community has faced an ideological war. The Muslim community has been encircled from all sides by racist groups who are operating in the country and are waging this ideological war in a subtle manner., and thus, the Muslim community is unable to face it. Unable to do anything against this intellectual assault, the Muslim community is watching it and waiting in shock. Racist enemies are gradually getting closer to their goal. In the face of this ideological war, Muslims are facing defeat. Muslims should immediately get ready for an ideological jihad (ideological struggle). On behalf of all Sri Lankans, that is a religious responsibility thrust upon the shoulders of all of them. On behalf of the country and all its citizens, this is the time to take up the pen and the keyboard as arms, and get ready for an ideological war. For the purpose of confronting the vicious campaign being carried out against the Muslims who are a group of people of this country, for the purpose of creating awareness in the people about the truth, Muslims should pay attention to the need to carry out an ideological Jihad (ideological war) by using the mainstream media, social media and all other space. Nothing is impossible."

In response to this post, the virtual petitioner had received on his Facebook profile page a large number of replies which the petitioner has presented to this Court. Some of those responses included death threats and calls for his arrest. Consequently, on 3rd April the virtual petitioner announced through another Facebook post that he was enforcing a self-censorship and that he will not post any more content relating to politics or national problems in Sinhala language, as he does not want to endanger the lives of his children.

On 9th April 2020 at 11.04 am, the virtual petitioner has presented through electronic mail a complaint to the Inspector General of Police regarding the death threats he had received. In the said complaint, the virtual petitioner has made reference to the names of persons and websites that had made threats to him.

On 9th April 2020, the virtual petitioner was arrested by the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) and thereafter produced before the Magistrate's Court with a Report under the hand of the 1st respondent - Chief Inspector Senaratne, the OIC of the Computer Forensics Laboratory and Training Unit of the CID. The Report contained allegations that the virtual petitioner had committed offences under the Penal Code, the International Convention on Civil and Political Rights Act (hereinafter referred to as "the ICCPR Act" and the Computer Crime Act. In the light of the allegation that the virtual petitioner had committed an offence under the ICCPR Act, the learned Magistrate had placed the virtual petitioner in remand custody. Accordingly, since 9th April, he had been detained in remand custody.

It is in this backdrop that, while the virtual petitioner was being held in remand custody, the petitioner filed this Application on behalf of the virtual petitioner. The petitioner alleged that the virtual petitioner had not committed any offence and therefore there was no justification for arresting him. The petitioner claimed that the conduct of the 1st respondent in arresting, holding in custody and having the virtual petitioner remanded, infringed the virtual petitioner's fundamental rights.

Position of the Respondents

Filing an affidavit, the 1st respondent stated that information pertaining to the virtual petitioner was first received by the CID from the Ministry of Defence. Consequently, an investigation has commenced. Investigations revealed that the statements published by the virtual petitioner on Facebook had given rise to racial and or religious hatred, which could lead to disharmony and violence. Therefore, the virtual petitioner's activities on the Facebook were kept under surveillance and steps were taken to analyze such activities. The Facebook post published by him on 2nd April 2020 propagating an 'ideological war' had given rise to 75 shares and 499 comments. This post spurred a wave of racially hostile sentiments among those who had seen the post. Investigations conducted revealed that the said post had incited feelings of anger and hostility among those who had seen it. Therefore, it was probable that such sentiments may lead to violence amongst religious groups.

Therefore, the virtual petitioner was produced before the Chief Magistrate of Colombo in MC action No. B 31673/01/20 on allegations that he had committed offences under section 120 of the Penal Code, section 6 of the Computer Crime Act and section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act. Accordingly, the virtual petitioner was placed in remand custody by the Chief Magistrate.

In the circumstances, the 1st respondent denied that he had infringed the fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner.

Submissions of learned counsel

The very essence of the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner was that the publication of the Facebook post in issue was a clear instance of the virtual petitioner having exercised his fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression including publication, which is guaranteed by Article 14(1)(a) of the Constitution. His position was that by arresting the virtual petitioner, holding him in custody and producing before the learned Magistrate which resulted in his being placed in remand custody without bail, the respondents had infringed the fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner. He submitted that the conduct of the respondents amounted to punishing the virtual petitioner for having exercised his fundamental rights.

The essence of the submission made by learned State Counsel who appeared for the respondents was that, by publishing the afore-stated Facebook post, the virtual petitioner had committed certain offences (and emphasized only that the virtual petitioner had committed an offence under section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act) and therefore, it was well within the legal authority and responsibility of the 1st respondent to have arrested the virtual petitioner, held him in police custody, initiated criminal proceedings in the Magistrate's Court, and move the learned Magistrate to place him in remand custody. Learned State Counsel submitted that the virtual petitioner was arrested only after a lawful investigation was conducted by the 1st respondent. She drew the attention of this Court to the fact that the original information regarding the publication of the Facebook post had been provided to the CID by the Ministry of Defence. During the course of the investigation, the CID had recorded the statement of one Shashika Pieris, whose statement justified the arrest of the virtual petitioner for having committed an offence under section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act.

In view of the positions taken up by the petitioner and the 1st respondent, as well as the submissions made by learned counsel, the adjudication of this matter would rest primarily on the finding of this Court pertaining to one particular action of the virtual petitioner. That being, the statement posted by him on the Facebook on 2nd April 2020, which has been reproduced above, verbatim. This Court must determine the following:

(i) whether the virtual petitioner exercised his fundamental right to free speech, expression including publication when he posted the afore-stated statement on Facebook, and

(ii) whether the response of the 1st respondent and the state to the publication of that post on Facebook was within the purview of restrictions that may be imposed on the exercise of the fundamental right to free speech, expression including publication and carried out in a lawful manner.

Speech and expression including publication

For the purpose of assimilating and disseminating information, views and ideas, civilized human beings regularly use spoken and written forms of language. This process is referred to as 'communication'. In most forms and manifestations of communication, there exists a dynamic and constant exchange of human interaction between those near and far. Communication mostly involves bi and multidirectional flow of information, thoughts, ideas and opinion. Some forms of speech and expression involve one-way flow of information and expression of views, and are aimed at conveying information, ideas, views, feelings and may be for the purpose of shaping public opinion. Both these forms of speech and expression are essential for living and necessary for both individual and collective realization of the true potential of life, and personal and social development. The use of speech, other forms of expression and their publication is a sine qua non of being born human, to a free country and is an essential prerequisite of any civilized and organized society.

Humans use communication through speech, other forms of expression and publication not only to fulfill basic and essential requirements of living. Communication involving the exercise of speech and other forms of expression and their publication is used for higher and advanced requirements of individuals and the society, such as (i) education, learning and training, (ii) professional, occupational, trade, business, financial and commercial activities, (iii) learning, practice, manifestation and propagation of religion, beliefs and other spiritual activities, (iv) socio-cultural and aesthetic activities, (v) propagation of information, vision, ideology, theory, and for engaging in advocacy, and (vi) for political activities. Particularly in contemporary society, speech and other forms of expression and their publication are essential for the meaningful and collective exercise of sovereignty and for the individual exercise of franchise. For the efficacious functioning of a representative democracy, which is the hallmark of Sri Lanka's republican representative democracy, the ability to freely and in a lawful manner exercise the fundamental right to free speech, expression including publication is a sine qua non. These are all key features embedded in Sri Lanka's second Republican (present) Constitution.

In addition to the use of spoken and written forms of language, for expression of thoughts, ideas, experiences and views, humans also use other forms of communication, some of which are creative, such as signs, sound, photographs, art, music, drama, cinema, video, and sculpture. Even an action such as demonstrating and picketing, making sound, wearing apparel or an accessary of a particular colour and shape or containing particular words, symbol or design, burning an effigy, and attendance or boycotting the attendance at an event may amount to forms of expression, and are manifestations of communication. Thus, in communication, the determinant is the intention (what is sought to be achieved by the disseminator) and attendant circumstances including how it is perceived and what is understood by the intended recipients, as opposed to the form in which communication is carried out.

Communication is primarily twofold - private communication and mass communication. Mass communication involves the use of media such as books, newspapers, television and cinema.

Digital channels and platforms for free speech

In today's context, modes of communication would include digital channels and platforms which are used for both private and mass communication, and for widespread dissemination of speech and other forms of expression. Such digital forms of communication include the use of the World Wide Web – Internet, and specialized cites on the internet such as the popular platform 'Facebook' which is referred to in this judgment. Further, there are other well-known channels such as Instagram, Twitter and digital connectivity channels such as Skype, Viber, WhatsApp, Signal, and Telegram, which the companies hosting such services claim are secure channels of communication with point-to-point encryption. Collectively, they are referred to as the social media, the existence of which has transformed the arena of mass communication and media. These digital platforms and channels are relatively new and still going through evolution. Due to the prevalence and convenience of use, these digital channels of communication have now become part of routine daily lives of people. The impact of websites and digital social media is significant, not only because of a captivating global audience, but also because of its ability to attract the attention of people who never solicited the information contained in the message being disseminated, and happens to merely pass-by and then read and view the contents of the message. Drawn into and attracted to it, curiosity awakened, and finally influenced by the content, some of them understandably choose to believe the contents, accept views, and influenced thereby, conduct themselves in a particular manner.

These new digitized avenues have not only caused a revolutionary change in private and mass communication, they have created new vistas for the exercise of the fundamental right to free speech and expression including publication. Their prevalence and use have rapidly overtaken conventional channels of communication and thus have become most effective and indispensable. Therefore, such access to digital channels and platforms and the ability of the people to use them, have now become constituent ingredients of the fundamental right to free speech and expression including publication.

However, the availability of these digital modes of communication, their ability to reach an unprecedented audience, and the convenience at which such new channels of communication could be used, have also given rise to serious concerns regarding the nature of regulation and restrictions and their enforcement that may be justifiably required for the protection of greater public and national good. Slander and defamation, contempt, unlawful intrusion into privacy, criminal or sexual intimidation, fraud, malicious spreading of false or scurrilous information and material, incitement to violence, perpetration of fraud and other criminal offences, causing ethno-social and religious hatred through the dissemination of hate speech, advocating disharmony, discrimination and hostility among communities, threats and attacks on national security and manipulative and unethical tack-ticks to influence public thinking, are some and not all the evils of abuse of modern means of digital communication.

Fundamental Right to free speech and expression including publication

Article 14 of the Constitution which has been codenamed 'the Charter of Liberty' personifies what it means to be born human, the freedom to lawfully use the cognitive faculties of being an intellectual being as opposed to being a non-human, and in particular the ability to reap the full benefits of being a citizen of Sri Lanka. Article 14 provides for the freedom (a) of speech and expression including publication; (b) of peaceful assembly; (c) of association; (d) to form and join a trade union; (e) to manifest either by oneself or in association with others, religion or belief in worship, observance, practice and teaching in public or in private; (f) to enjoy and promote one's own culture and to use his own language; (g) to engage in any lawful occupation, profession, trade, business or enterprise; (h) of movement and of choosing his residence within Sri Lanka; and (i) to return to Sri Lanka. Thus, it would be seen that Article 14 contains rights which are so fundamental to an individual's spiritual, holistic, educational, professional or occupational, economic, and social development and well-being. Article 14 is seen as an external manifestation of the exercise of Article 10, which guarantees freedom of thought, conscience and religion, including the freedom to have or to adopt a religion or belief of his choice. The opportunity to exercise these fundamental rights contained in Article 14 enables the achievement of individual, social and community development, resulting in the country as a whole, developing and reaping the yields of prosperity. As Chief Justice Sharvananda has said in Joseph Perera alias Bruten Perera vs. The Attorney-General and Others[1], Article 14 contains great and basic rights which are recognized and guaranteed as the natural rights inherent in the status of a citizen of a free country.

It is the synergy created through the fundamental rights contained in Articles 10 and 14, coupled with the fundamental rights contained in Articles 11 and 13 guaranteeing protection, security and physical freedom, and the status of equality conferred by Article 12, which cumulatively vests freedom, independence, liberty, protection and dignity in the true and comprehensive sense of those words to the People of Sri Lanka, and confers on them the opportunity and meaningfulness to collectively be the sovereigns of this Republic. Therefore, recognizing, promoting and protecting the fundamental rights guaranteed by Articles 10 to 14 are of critical importance and the solemn responsibility of the state. It is the bounden constitutional duty of the state, which has been created by the Constitution to serve the sovereign People, both collectively and through the three organs of the state. Therefore, the state shall not infringe such fundamental rights. It may however regulate and or restrict the exercise of such fundamental rights through law, to the extent and in the manner authorized by the Constitution, when doing so is necessary for the protection of wider public and national interests.

An in-depth and philosophical comprehension of the Constitution of Sri Lanka reveals that the objectives of governance and in contemporary perspectives achieving the goals of ethno-social and religious harmony, social cohesion between and within communities and between communities and the state, protection of national security and achieving rapid and sustainable economic growth and development including the millennium development goals cannot be realized, unless citizens of this country are not only permitted, but facilitated and encouraged as well, to exercise their fundamental rights guaranteed by Article 14.

Long-term suppression of the fundamental rights contained in Article 14, coupled with systematic and widespread erosion of the rule of law guaranteed by Article 12, supplemented by gross infringements of Articles 11 and 13 rights, augmented by the inability to meaningfully and effectively exercise the right to information recognized by Article 14A, is a recipe for the eruption of serious consequences.

Some of the consequences may be summarized as follows:

(i) individual and collective frustration;

[1] [(1992) 1 Sri L.R. 199]

(ii) unconstitutional and illegal revolt through both organized and disorganized stratagem to cause internal strife and armed conflict which may be aimed at -
(a) change of the constitutional structures of governance,
(b) change of government, and
(c) unseating of key government officials, through undemocratic and unconstitutional means, all of which often result in violence, death and destruction of property; and

(iii) stagnation and even depredation of the economy.

All of these disastrous consequences can in the long-term result in the fragmentation of the country and the destruction of the state. The ignominious outcome of systematic and widespread infringement of such fundamental rights would be the country becoming a failed state.

Suppression and infringement of fundamental rights with the short-term aim of strengthening authoritarianism, accumulation of executive power, suppression of dissent, and creating a totalitarian state, which are the antithesis to republican and democratic norms and principles of law enshrined in Sri Lanka's Constitution, will only result in long-term destruction of the very same authorities who seek to strengthen their power beyond what is permitted by the rule of law and those who may seek to govern without respecting alternate views, dissent and lawful means of democratic opposition.

For the right to speech and expression to be meaningful and effective, citizens must have the right to free speech, expression and their publication unshackled by dictatorialism, totalitarianism, authoritarianism, majoritarianism, and tyrannical oligarchism. These anti-democratic and unconstitutional forms of governance are generally associated with (a) rejection of constitutionalism and the rule of law, (b) disrespect for the doctrine of separation of powers and the co-equal status of the three organs of the state, (c) contempt and disregard for the independence of the judiciary, (d) disrespect for human rights, (e) intolerance of political dissent, (f) disregard for the rights of minorities and vulnerable communities and their discrimination, (g) widespread infringement of human rights and (h) arbitrary or unreasonable exercise of executive power such as overbroad and unnecessary censorship, and abusive enforcement of criminal justice measures amounting to persecution.

The importance of protecting free speech does not permeate only at national level. It is of global significance, as absence of free speech not only has domestic repercussions, but, global effects on the well-being of human kind, stability of nation states and on international and regional peace and security, as well.

Thus, the justification for the recognition of the right to free speech and expression is not as a mere legal right, but also as an internationally recognized human right under international human rights law.

Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1948, provides that everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression, and that this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference, and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.

Article 19(2) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) adopted in 1966 and acceded to by Sri Lanka in 1980, provides as follows:

> "Everyone shall have the right to freedom of expression; this right shall include freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas of all kinds, regardless of frontiers, either orally, in writing or in print, in the form of art, or through any other media of his choice."

In recognition of such international human rights standards, Article 14(1)(a) of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka provides the fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression including publication.

The exercise of this fundamental right can be restricted only through constitutionally recognized limited legislative means, which may be enforced only by legal authority in the wider public and national interest.

Both the Preamble and Article 1 of the Constitution denote, that the Republic of Sri Lanka is a democracy. Democracy is the form of governance recognized by the Constitution. In out Republic, as provided in Article 3, the People are sovereign. Article 4(d) confers on the People franchise as an element of their sovereignty in addition to their fundamental rights [Article 4(e)], which are directly and individually exercised by the People. The other three elements of People's sovereignty, namely, the executive, legislative and judicial power of the People, are to be exercised in the manner provided in Articles 4(a), 4(b) and 4(c) of the Constitution. The electoral system for the exercise of franchise and thereby for election of the President, Members of Parliament, Members of Provincial Councils and Local Authorities as provided for in the Constitution and other applicable laws, enable people's sovereignty to be exercised collectively and through their elected representatives, in a manner that would give rise to a functioning representative democracy. That would be by election of representatives of the people as head of the executive (the President), and as members of the legislature (Members of Parliament), Provincial legislatures (Members of Provincial Councils) and as members of Local Authorities, who shall serve the nation for the good of the public, in terms of the mandate they have received from the People and according to law, that the sovereignty of the People can be respected.

The efficacious functioning of these institutions according to the Constitution and other applicable laws with periodically renewed mandates from the People through the regular holding of elections in the manner prescribed by law, is essential for People's sovereignty to reign. The right to free speech, expression including publication is essential, for people to choose the manner in which they should exercise franchise, elect such representatives and confer on them mandates. That is primarily because the exercise of free speech, expression and publication is the manner in which information, principles, ideology, views and ideas may be disseminated and propagated, explained and criticized, assimilated and internalized, discussed, debated, and agreed or disagreed upon. Therefore, for the functioning of the form of governance provided for in the Constitution, the vibrant exercise of the fundamental right to free speech, expression and publication is of utmost importance. The only caveat being the need to exercise this fundamental right in a lawful manner which would include respecting the rights of others.

As Justice Mark Fernando has held in Deshapriya v. Municipal Council, Nuwaraeliya[2], "the right to support or criticize governments and political parties, policies and programmes is fundamental to the democratic way of life …". As Justice Dr. A.R.B. Amerasinghe has observed in Channa Pieris and Others v. Attorney General and Others[3], "the unfettered interchange of ideas from diverse and antagonistic sources, however unorthodox or controversial, however shocking or offensive or disturbing they may be to the elected representatives of the people or to any sector of the population, however hateful to the prevailing climate of opinion, even ideas which at the time a vast majority of the people and their elected representatives believe to be false and fraught with evil consequences, must be protected and must not be abridged, if the truth is to prevail."

Perusal of judgments of this Court during the past 50 years reveal that, a considerable number of Applications filed in Court relating to alleged instances of infringement of

[2] [(1995) 1 Sri L.R. 362]
[3] [(1994) 1 Sri L.R. 134]

Article 14(1)(a) has been connected with speech and publications containing politically sensitive content critical of the government. In this regard, the following views of Chief Justice Sharvananda in Joseph Perera alias Bruten Perera vs. Attorney-General and Others[4], are of significance:

> "… criticism of Government, however unpalatable it be, cannot be restricted or penalized unless, it is intended or has a tendency to undermine the security of the State or public order or to incite the commission of an offence. Debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust and wide open and that may well include vehement, caustic and sometimes unpleasant sharp attacks on Government. Such debate is not calculated and does not bring Government into hatred or contempt."

Thus, it would be seen that the infringement of the fundamental right to free speech and expression including publication has direct implications to the operation of the Constitution and to the manner in which the sovereignty of the People is to be given effect to. Therefore, as the upper guardian of the Constitution, these are additional reasons as to why this Court needs to pay special attention to the adjudication of Applications in which it is alleged that the fundamental right to free speech, expression and publication has been infringed or is attempted to be infringed. That constitutional duty in my view should be performed, by conferring on the fundamental right guaranteed by Article 14(1)(a) (which may be termed 'the facilitator of democracy') a pre-eminent position only second to the right to equality (which may be termed 'the custodian of the rule of law') guaranteed by Article 12 of the Constitution.

Free Speech, duties and responsibilities, and restrictions

As Dr. Jayampathy Wickremaratne, PC in his monumental treatise "Fundamental Rights in Sri Lanka"[5] has explained, "freedom of speech and expression means the absence of restraint upon the ability of individuals or groups of individuals to communicate their ideas and experiences to others. In doing so, they cannot however, compel others to pay them attention, nor are they entitled to invade other rights that are essential to human dignity. Freedom of expression is one of the essential foundations of a civilized and truly democratic society. It is one of the conditions essential for the development of the human personality. …" [Emphasis added.]

In Dissanayake v. University of Sri Jayawardenapura and Two Others[6], Chief Justice Sharvananda has observed that absolute and unrestricted individual rights do not and

[4] [(1992) 1 Sri L.R. 199]
[5] 3rd Edition – 2021, p.772
[6] [(1986) 2 Sri L.R. 254] at 263

cannot exist in a modern state. Social control is needed to preserve the very liberty guaranteed. All rights are only relative and not absolute. The principle, on which the power of the State to impose restriction is based on the principle that, all individual rights of a person are held subject to such reasonable limitations and regulations as may be necessary and expedient for the protection of the general welfare of the society. Thus, it is important to note that the guarantee of freedom of speech, recognized by Article 14(1)(a) of the Constitution, does not give an absolute protection for every utterance. The exercise of the rights conferred by this Article must not result in the violation of the rights of others.

The exercise of uninhibited free speech and other forms of expression by one person can have a bearing on the rights and interests of other individuals, the wellbeing and the welfare of the society as a whole, and the security of the State. That would be particularly important in instances where the right to free speech and expression is sought to be exercised without due regard to the rights of others and duties and responsibilities towards others in society, which the law requires to be adhered to.

Therefore, while the fundamental right to free speech and expression should be protected, in wider public good, certain restrictions may have to be imposed.

Dr. Jayampathy Wickremaratne, PC[7] points out that "a Constitution that declares fundamental rights and freedoms lays down permissible restrictions in order to maintain a balance between individual rights and freedoms on the one hand and the interests of the society on the other. While the rights and freedoms represent the claims of the individual, the permissible restrictions represent the claims of the society. … it would be useful to remind oneself that the rights which the citizens cherish deeply are fundamental – it is not the restrictions that are fundamental."

Restrictions that are recognized and permissible with regard to the exercise of the human right to free speech are contained in international human rights instruments such as the ICCPR. Article 19(2) of the ICCPR provides as follows:

> "The exercise of the rights provided for in paragraph 2 of this article carries with it special duties and responsibilities. It may therefore be subject to certain restrictions, but these shall only be such as are provided by law and are necessary: (a) for respect of the rights or reputations of others; (b) for the protection of national security or of public order, or of public health or morals."

[7] ibid, at p. 129

Furthermore, Article 20 of the ICCPR provides that, "any propaganda for war shall be prohibited by law", and "any advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence shall be prohibited by law".

Therefore, while the fundamental right to free speech and expression is recognized on the one hand, certain lawful restrictions that may be stipulated and imposed on the exercise of that fundamental right, can be recognized and enforced on the other hand. However, restrictions on free speech and expression should be stipulated and enforced within the framework provided for by law, and for the purpose of not mere curtailment of free speech, but for the purposes for which the Constitution stipulates that such restrictions may be imposed. Fundamentally, restrictions must be stipulated by law and enforced through lawful means, in larger public good. According to the Constitution, restrictions that may by law be imposed are contained in Articles 15(2), 15(7) and 15(8) of the Constitution.

The constitutional provisions empower restrictions to be prescribed by law –

(i) (a) in the interests of racial and religious harmony, or
(b) in relation to parliamentary privileges, contempt of court, defamation, and incitement to an offence,
[Article 15(2)]

(ii) (a) in the interests of national security, public order and the protection of public health or morality,
(b) for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others, or
(c) for meeting the just requirements of the general welfare of a democratic society,
[Article 15(7)]
and

(iii) in the interests of the proper discharge of their duties and the maintenance of discipline among members of the Armed Forces, Police Force and other Forces charged with the maintenance of public order, be subject to them. [Article 15(8)]

Later in this judgment, I shall revert to the applicability of the restrictions relied upon by the respondents with regard to the exercise of free speech and its publication by the virtual petitioner.

In my opinion, for the purpose of judicial adjudication of the complaint by the petitioner that the virtual petitioner's fundamental rights were infringed by the respondents, the following questions need to be answered:

(i) When the virtual petitioner published his Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, did he exercise his fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression including publication?
(ii) By the publication of the Facebook post on 2nd April 2020, did the virtual petitioner commit offences under section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act and section 6 of the Computer Crime Act?
(iii) Were the measures imposed by the respondents on the virtual petitioner lawful and within the scope of permissible restrictions as recognized by the Constitution?

In search of answers to these three questions, it is necessary to revert to the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner, of 2nd April 2020.

According to the virtual petitioner, founded upon his belief that there was afoot a vicious and unfair campaign against the Muslim community that they were responsible for spreading the COVID-19 pandemic (a claim which the respondents have not assertively denied or countered, save the customary blanket denial), on 2nd April 2020, the virtual petitioner posted on Facebook, certain views. He did so, using his true identity, without in any manner seeking to disguise himself. It is not known whether the message went viral[8] and was therefore seen by a very large number of persons. However, according to the 1st respondent, the post had been shared by 75 Facebook users (which would may have resulted in onward transmission of the post to other users) and had generated 499 comments.

In the virtual petitioner's post of 2nd April 2020, he says that in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, there is an ideological war being subtly waged by racist groups against the Sri Lankan Muslim community. The Muslim community encircled by all sides is shocked by these developments, is unable to face it, and the enemies (a possible reference to the afore-stated racist groups) are on the verge of gaining victory. Muslims should respond to these attacks through the waging of an ideological jihad. Muslims should confront the vicious campaign by taking-up arms, which should be in the form of using the pen and the keyboard, and respond to the attacks against the Muslim community. This should be done using the mainstream media, social media and available other space. He says that it should be for the purpose of establishing the truth.

[8] A contemporary and new term in English language, which means fast spreading of textual and or audio-visual content over the internet and related digital media, resulting in the content reaching a large group of persons both directly and through onward forwarding by recipients.

The learned counsel for the Petitioner took pains at attempting to explain to this Court that the term 'Jihad' does not mean 'a holy war waged by those who profess the Islamic faith against those who do not profess the Islamic faith, for the purpose of defending Islam'. He advanced the view that it means only a 'struggle' though often according to him misunderstood to mean 'warfare' or 'terrorism'. Following persistent inquiry by Court, learned counsel for the petitioner did admit that certain manifestations of this 'struggle' may take the form of unleashing of violence. Learned State Counsel did not counter this view by presenting any alternate authoritative material or expert opinion on what a 'Jihad' actually means. However, I shall not express any view in that regard, as doing so is unnecessary for the determination of this matter.

Be that as it may, learned counsel for the petitioner insisted that an 'ideological jihad' does not amount to the use of any violence, inciting the perpetration of any violence or doing anything that is illegal. He submitted that it is essentially a peaceful and non-violent process, comprising of organized strategy using means of communication for the purpose of countering attacks on Islam. He further submitted that, basically, that an 'ideological jihad' is a campaign using communication strategy. In fact, in that regard, learned State Counsel did not submit anything to the contrary. She did not expound an alternate meaning to the term 'ideological Jihad'. The 1st respondent in his affidavit filed in this Court has not insisted that by the Facebook post, the virtual petitioner had called upon the Muslim community to engage in an armed struggle against its enemies (the allegedly racist elements referred to in the post) or engage in any violent conduct.

Material placed before this Court reveals that the Facebook post of 2nd April has generated a considerable reaction and a dialogue on Facebook. While a few have agreed with the virtual petitioner, a majority of others have not. While some have reacted to the contents of the virtual petitioner's post using strong language, others have used language which is unprintable. In the wake of adverse reactions to the virtual petitioner's post, at one stage in response to a person (using the profile name Moho Rizan, purportedly of the Muslim community) warning the virtual petitioner that he should not have used the term 'jihad', the virtual petitioner has clarified through another brief Facebook post that he intentionally used the term 'ideological jihad', and that he did not thereby mean taking a sword and attacking enemies. This response of the virtual petitioner coupled with his reference to using the "pen and the keyboard" as weapons, seems to clearly suggest that the virtual petitioner believed in the metaphorical, prudent and legendary proverb that 'the pen is mightier than the sword'.

On the following day (3rd April) the virtual petitioner has posted on Facebook another message, stating that his post of 2nd April referring to an 'ideological jihad' had provoked and angered 'nationalists' and 'patriots'. He has further stated that he is continuously receiving deaths threats from them. He had reiterated that what he called for was an 'ideological struggle' using the 'pen and the key-board' to counter the organized anti-Muslim propaganda. He claims that upon seeing the threats leveled at him, his daughter has got shocked. Therefore, he had decided to not to post any further messages on Facebook in Sinhala language regarding political and national problems. He has also stated that, those who attack him alleging that he is a racist, should examine and tell him whether any of the Facebook posts published by him during the previous 10 years amount to racist hate speech. In fact, the examination of his previous Facebook posts in no way indicates that the virtual petitioner had engaged in spreading inflammatory rhetoric or that he possessed racist, extremist, fanatical, or radical religious ideology.

According to the 1st respondent's affidavit presented to this Court, certain 'information' relating to the virtual petitioner had been referred to the 2nd Respondent – Director of the CID by the Ministry of Defence. In the Report submitted to the Magistrate's Court when the virtual petitioner was produced before the learned Magistrate (produced by the petitioner marked "A5"), the 1st respondent has stated that this information was provided by 3rd respondent - M.G.L.S. Hemachandra, the Military Services Assistant to the Secretary to the Ministry of Defence - 4th respondent. In fact, according to this B Report, M.G.L.S. Hemachandra was the 'complainant' whose complaint to the CID dated 6th April 2020 had given rise to the commencement of the investigation against the virtual petitioner. The 1st respondent did not produce before this Court a copy of the said complaint. Further, the 3rd respondent (complainant) has not filed an affidavit in response to the Application of the petitioner. Therefore, this Court does not have any basis to take into consideration the contents of the complaint said to have been made by the 3rd respondent against the virtual petitioner.

However, the 1st respondent claims in his affidavit that the information received by the CID revealed that the 'posts' published on Facebook by the virtual petitioner gave rise to 'sentiments of racial or religious hatred' which could lead to 'disharmony and violence'.

In the afore-stated B Report, the 1st respondent has reported to the learned Magistrate that, an analysis of the Facebook postings of the virtual petitioner revealed that the virtual petitioner has in addition to the post of 2nd April, posted other content as well. The 1st respondent has reported to the learned Chief Magistrate that through these 'news items' the virtual petitioner has sought to generate 'revolutionary ideas and activities' among the Muslim community. However, the 1st respondent has not presented to this Court and the learned State Counsel did not draw our attention to any such 'news items' which the virtual petitioner is alleged to have published on Facebook. Whereas, the virtual petitioner has placed before this Court Facebook posts he published from 17th November 2019. Learned State Counsel who appeared on behalf of the respondents did not draw the attention of this Court to any of those posts and allege that either one or more of them amounted to hate speech and/or the publication of otherwise prohibited content. The 2nd respondent – Director of the CID, the 3rd respondent – Military Services Assistant to the Secretary to the Ministry of Defence, and the 4th respondent – Secretary to the Ministry of Defence have also not presented to this Court any affidavit or other material clarifying this aspect. Therefore, I must conclude that the 1st respondent has when reporting facts to the learned Chief Magistrate, uttered falsehood and thereby misled the learned Magistrate by portraying that the virtual petitioner had previously too incited the Muslim community to engage in the perpetration of violence.

Furthermore, in the afore-stated B – Report, the 1st respondent has reported to the learned Chief Magistrate that following the original posting of 2nd April, on 3rd April the virtual petitioner had edited the original posting. In the affidavit of the 1st respondent, he has made no reference to that allegation. Nor did the learned State Counsel in her oral submissions cite any evidence in proof of such allegation that the original Facebook post had been edited. In the circumstances, I am compelled to infer that this is yet another instance where the 1st respondent has misled the learned Magistrate.

The 1st respondent claims that the Facebook post of 2nd April stirred a wave of 'racially hostile sentiments' among Facebook users who commented on the post. In the circumstances, the 1st respondent claims to have formed the view that the 'communications (of the virtual petitioner) should be further investigated in view of the material disclosed therein'. Accordingly, he had conducted further investigations. The 1st respondent has not explained in detail the nature of the 'further investigations' conducted by him. He has stated that he recorded the statement of one Shashika Piiris and he has produced a copy of his purported statement said to have been recorded on 9th April 2020 ("1R2"). The 1st respondent has not explained the circumstances under which he came into contact with Shashika Piiris. According to "1R2", which is an extract of the purported statement said to have been made by Shashika Pieris to the 1st respondent on 9th April 20202 at 2.05pm, it appears that Shashika Pieris is said to be a security guard of the Civil Aviation Authority working at the Bandaranaike International Airport. He claims to be a user of the Facebook and is said to have seen the post of the virtual petitioner of 2nd April. He has explained that the virtual petitioner has called for the waging of a Jihad and that this term is a reference to a 'war'. He has said that particularly in view of the events of the 'Easter Sunday terrorist attacks by Muslim terrorists' people known to him have got very angry about the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner, and therefore were mulling to 'do something before they could commit another attack'. In his statement, he claims that he came to the CID having told those who had got angry, that he will take necessary steps with regard to the virtual petitioner's Facebook post.

It is possibly on the strength of this statement of Shashika Pieris that the 1st respondent claims that further investigations conducted by him revealed that the post of 2nd April of the virtual petitioner had 'incited feelings of anger and hostility among those who had seen it'. The 1st respondent does not explain the nature of any further investigations he conducted in order to have formed that opinion. The 1st respondent further claims that 'it was probable that such sentiments may lead to violence amongst religious groups'. Thus, the statement said to have been made by Shashika Pieris is of vital importance.

In that regard, it is noted that the afore-stated B Report ("A5") which had been produced to the learned Chief Magistrate at the time the virtual petitioner was produced, makes no reference to the 1st respondent having recorded the statement of Shashika Pieris. In the affidavit of the 1st respondent, he does not explain why a reference to Shashika Pieris's statement being recorded was not included in the B Report. Thus, a doubt arises as to whether in fact the 1st respondent had recorded the purported statement of Shahsika Pieris.

In the B Report, the 1st respondent has alleged that the virtual Petitioner was arrested because he was spreading gross extremist ideology. That appears to be the subjective opinion of the 1st respondent. Neither in the said B Report nor in his affidavit has he cited instances where the virtual petitioner has spread extremist ideology.

The 1st respondent says that he 'produced the virtual petitioner before the learned Chief Magistrate' with allegations that the virtual petitioner had committed offences under section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, and section 6 of the Computer Crime Act. In the affidavit of the 1st respondent, he has avoided admitting that he arrested the virtual petitioner. However, in the afore-mentioned B Report, he has stated that he arrested the virtual petitioner on 9th April 2020, on suspicion that the virtual petitioner had using the Internet published information which affect reconciliation among communities (more accurately, the 1st respondent seems to be referring to cohesion among communities). The 1st respondent has reported to the Magistrate's Court that he took charge of the virtual petitioner's mobile telephone, as the said devise had been used by the virtual petitioner to access the internet.

Conclusion - Upon a consideration of the totality of the evidence and other material placed before this Court, I conclude that the very essence of the virtual petitioner's post of 2nd April, is that the ideological and communication-based campaign being allegedly carried out against the Muslim community of Sri Lanka by certain allegedly racist groups, should be countered through a similar campaign by the Muslim community through Facebook posts, other publications using the digital media, newspaper articles, and the like. Towards that objective, those countering the campaign against the Muslim community should use written forms of communication. This conclusion has been arrived at notwithstanding the virtual petitioner having used the understandably alarming term 'Jihad'. I see nothing inflammatory or obnoxious to the law and in particular any attempt to incite the feelings of either the Muslim community or any other community or incite others to perpetrate violence, particularly because the term 'Jihad' had been prefaced by the term 'ideological' coupled with the weapons the virtual petitioner called upon others to use, namely the 'pen and the keyboard'.

In arriving at this conclusion, I have also taken into consideration (a) that no evidence has been placed before this Court that the virtual petitioner had previously engaged in any violence or other illegal activity, (b) the absence of even a report prepared by an intelligence agency (though not 'evidence') that the virtual petitioner had previously been engaged in any form of terrorism including religious extremist violence or any other illegal activity, (c) the content of previous posts on Facebook of the virtual petitioner (none of which amount to inciting people to engage in any violence and in fact advocates peace), (d) the literal meaning of the contents of the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner of 2nd April, (e) the apparent doubts relating to the adequacy, integrity and lawfulness of the criminal investigation conducted by the CID and more particularly by the 1st respondent, (f) the fact that the respondents do not allege that the virtual petitioner intended to unleash violence by either the Muslim community or any other community, and (g) the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner and the respondents.

Response of the Respondents and enforcement of criminal justice measures

I shall now consider the response of the respondents to the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner and the enforcement of criminal justice measures against him, such as (a) the arrest of the virtual petitioner on the footing that he had committed three offences, (b) holding the virtual petitioner in police custody, (c) initiation of criminal proceedings in the Magistrate's Court against the virtual petitioner, (d) objecting to the virtual petitioner being enlarged on bail and thereby causing him to be detained in remand custody.

In this regard, it is necessary to consider whether there was a lawful basis to cause the arrest of the virtual petitioner on 9th April 2020 on the footing that he had committed the offences contained in (i) section 120 of the Penal Code, (ii) section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, and (iii) section 6 of the Computer Crime Act. I shall take each offence separately and consider whether there was a valid basis to conclude that the virtual petitioner had committed each of these offences.

However, prior to doing so, it is necessary to make the following observations. As stated earlier in this judgment, the exercise of the fundamental right to free speech, expression including publication by a citizen of this country can be restricted only on the basis of a restriction imposed by law, which is provided for in Articles 15(2), 15(7) and 15(8) of the Constitution. Article 15(8) relates to restrictions that may be imposed on members of the armed forces, etc., and hence has no relevance to this matter. The restrictions which come within the scope of Articles 15(2) and 15(7) are limited strictly for the purposes set out in those Articles. It is trite law that those restrictions must be narrowly interpreted and applied strictly for the purposes set-out in the respective Articles. The position of the respondents as advanced by the learned State Counsel is that the impugned measures of criminal justice (such as the arrest of the virtual petitioner) taken by the respondents arise out of the fact that the virtual petitioner had in the guise of exercising his fundamental right to free speech, committed certain offences, and therefore the respondents were lawfully entitled to take the measures they took. Therefore, theoretically, a question would arise whether the prohibitions which correspond to the three offences in issue come within the purview of permissible restrictions to free speech as provided in Articles 15(2) and 15(7) of the Constitution.

However, the Constitution does not provide for post-enactment judicial review of legislation. Furthermore, the Penal Code had been enacted in 1883 and thus well-before the present Constitution came into operation. Therefore, Article 16(1) would be of relevance, which provides that all existing written and unwritten law will be valid and operative notwithstanding any inconsistency with the preceding provisions of Chapter III of the Constitution which contains fundamental rights. Though the Computer Crime Act, No. 24 of 2007 and the ICCPR Act, No. 56 of 2007 were enacted after the present Constitution came into operation, Article 80(3) of the Constitution prevents this Court from inquiring into or commenting upon or in any manner calling into question the validity of these two Acts on any ground whatsoever. Therefore, it would not be possible for this Court to examine and rule upon whether the prohibitions contained in section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, and section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act come within permissible restrictions under Articles 15(2) and 15(7) of the Constitution. Be that as it may, there is certainly no bar on this Court dealing with and concluding on the manner in which the prohibitions contained in section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act and section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act were sought to be enforced by the Executive against the virtual petitioner.

Offence under section 120 of the Penal Code

In this part of the judgment, I propose to determine whether by publishing the Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, the virtual petitioner had committed the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code.

The offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code named 'Exciting or attempting to excite disaffection' is worded in the following manner:

> "Whoever by words, either spoken or intended to be read*, or by signs; or by visible representations, or otherwise, excites or attempts to excite feelings of disaffection to the President or to the Government of the Republic, or excites or attempts to excite hatred to or contempt of the administration of justice, or excites or attempts to excite the People of Sri Lanka to procure, otherwise than by lawful means, the alteration of any matter by law established, or* attempts to raise discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka, or to promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People*, shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years."* [Emphasis added to highlight ingredients of the offence relevant to the facts of this case.]

The original section 120 of 'The Ceylon Penal Code' contained in Ordinance No. 2 of 1883, is slightly different to the above reproduction, for the following reasons:

(i) The term 'Queen' in the original Ordinance has been substituted by the term 'President'.

(ii) The term 'Government established by the law in Ceylon' in the original Ordinance has been substituted by the term 'Government of the Republic'.

(iii) The term 'Queen's subjects' in the original Ordinance has been substituted by the term 'People of Sri Lanka'.

(iv) The term 'attempts' which was not found in the original Ordinance immediately before the term 'to raise discontent or disaffection' has been added.

The Penal Code of Ceylon[9] is a virtual carbon copy of the Indian Penal Code of 1860. It is well known that the Act drafted by the first Law Commission of India chaired by Thomas Babington Macaulay is primarily a codification of the English substantive criminal law of that era. Thus, the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code of this country (parallel, yet broader than section 124A which is the comparable section of the Indian Penal Code) is directly linked to the British colonial legacy of both India and this country. The offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code is a codification of the English common law offence of 'Sedition' originating from the 16th century. The offence of sedition had been created primarily to protect the sovereign monarchy from any rhetorical advocacy aimed at creating disaffection against it and its subordinate creations including the government headed by the monarch, the administration of justice and also for the purpose of dealing with persons who may attempt to create alterations to the monarchical form of governance.

In view of the foregoing, it would be quite useful to derive a further understanding of the common law offence of Sedition. In Regina v. Alexander Martin Sullivan and Regina v. Richard Pigott[10] Fitzgerald, J. has given the following very clear description of the offence of Sedition.

> "Sedition is a crime against society, nearly allied to that of treason, and it frequently precedes treason by a short interval. Sedition in itself is a comprehensive term, and it embraces all those practices, whether by word, deed, or writing, which are calculated to disturb the tranquility of the State, and lead ignorant persons to endeavour to subvert the Government and the laws of the empire. The objects of sedition generally are to induce discontent and insurrection, and stir up opposition to the Government, and bring the administration of justice into contempt; and the very tendency of sedition is to incite the people to insurrection and rebellion. Sedition has been described as disloyalty in action, and the law considers as sedition all those practices which have for their object to excite discontent or disaffection, to create public disturbance, or to lead to civil war; to bring into hatred or contempt the Sovereign or the Government, the laws or constitution of the realm, and generally all endeavours to promote public disorder. Sedition, being inconsistent with the safety of the State, is regarded as a high misdemeanor, and, as such, punishable with fine and imprisonment; and it has been truly said that it is the duty of the Government, acting for the protection of society, to resist and extinguish it at the earliest moment. …

[9] Ordinance No. 2 of 1883

[10] Both reported together in (1868) 11 Cox C.C. 44 at 45

Words may be of a seditious character, but they might arise from sudden heat, be heard only by a few, create no lasting impression, and differ in malignity and permanent effect from writings. …"

[Emphasis added by me to highlight the fact that embedded in the offence of sedition is a mens rea which most jurists refer to as 'seditious intent'.]

Sir James Fitzjames Stephen in 'A Digest of the Criminal Law (Crimes and Punishments)'[11] explains that seditious intent is a constituent ingredient of the offence of sedition, and explains such intention in the following manner:

"A seditious intention is an intention to bring into hatred or contempt, or to excite disaffection against the person of Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or the government and constitution of the United Kingdom, as by law established, or either House of Parliament, or the administration of justice, or to excite Her Majesty's subjects to attempt otherwise than by lawful means, the alteration of any matter in Church or State by law established, or to incite any person to commit any crime in disturbance of the peace, or to raise discontent or disaffection amongst Her Majesty's subjects, or to promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such subjects."

This reference to the English common law offence of sedition would be incomplete unless I place on record the fact that by the enactment of the Coroners and Justice Act of 2009 (section 73 thereof), the common law offence of sedition has been abolished in the United Kingdom.

If one were to dissect the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code into its constituent ingredients, it would in my view appear as follows:

Whoever,

(i) by words, either spoken or intended to be read*, or by signs, or by visible representations, or otherwise -*

(ii) (a) excites or attempts to excite feelings of disaffection to the President or to the Government of the Republic, or

(b) excites or attempts to excite hatred to or contempt of the administration of justice, or

(c) excites or attempts to excite the People of Sri Lanka to procure, otherwise than by lawful means, the alteration of any matter by law established, or

(d) attempts to -

(i) raise discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka, or to

(ii) promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People*,* shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years.

[11] 5th Edition (1894) at pages 70 – 71

It was by the 'Ordinance to amend the Ceylon Penal Code' (No. 7 of 1915), that the term 'attempts' (printed in italics and underlined above) was added to limb '(d)' (in the above illustration of the dissection of the offence) of the original section 120 contained in the Penal Code Ordinance, No. 2 of 1883. According to the proceedings of the Legislative Council[12] recorded in the Hansard[13] on 17th March 1915 introducing the Bill, ex-officio member of the Council - the then Attorney-General Anton Bertram, K.C.[14] has submitted that this particular amendment to add the term 'attempts' to section 120 of the Penal Code was being introduced to rectify "an obvious omission in the drafting of the original clause". The corresponding 'Statement of Objects and Reasons' appended to the corresponding Bill supports this proposition that the amendment was aimed at introducing "a word necessary to complete the sense which appear to have been omitted by accident".[15]

Be that as it may, when one attributes the literal meaning to the term 'attempts', it is clear that by the addition of that term to section 120, the legislature has widened the scope of the 4th limb of the section, to include not only actual instances of incitement, but attempts at incitement as well. Nevertheless, the term 'attempts' highlights the need for the prosecutor to establish a seditious intention by the alleged offender, as an attempt to commit an act cannot occur, unless the offender intended to cause a corresponding outcome.

A clear exposition of the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code can be gathered by the following excerpt of the speech of the then Attorney-General made to the Legislative Council on 6th August 1915[16]. According to the Attorney-General, the intention of the colonial government of the day was to constitute a special tribunal to hear cases against persons accused of having committed 'sedition' under the applicable law of Ceylon (the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code) and under English common law. Attorney-General Anton Bertram, K.C. has further explained as follows:

---

[12] A predecessor body of the present Parliament, which had been vested with legislative authority.

[13] My research officers were kindly given access to by the authorities of the Colombo National Museum to this volume of the Hansard.

[14] He was soon afterwards appointed the 22nd Chief Justice of Ceylon.

[15] On 24th March 1915, the amendment proposed by the Attorney-General was unanimously adopted by the Legislative Council.

[16] This was on the occasion when Attorney General Bertram moved the Legislative Council to enact an amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code (1898) by introducing section 440A. This amendment resulted in the creation of a new mode of conducting criminal trials, namely trials without a jury by three judges of the Supreme Court nomenclated "trials before the Supreme Court at Bar by three Judges without a jury", which term is commonly referred to nowadays in a truncated manner, as a 'trial-at-bar'. This was during an era when the Supreme Court was vested with original criminal jurisdiction to try persons indicted for having committed serious offences. According to the speech of the Attorney-General, the exact purpose of introducing this new mode of trial, was to dispense with Courts Martial hearing cases against civilians under Martial law, which had been introduced on 6th June 1915 to quell the riots that had erupted on 28th May 1915.

> "… sedition according to the principles of English law, which are embodied to a very great extent in Section 120 of our Penal Code, is of two sorts: it may be sedition against the State, or it may be what I may describe as sedition within the State. That is to say, it may be directed against the Government and the measures of Government, the authority of Government and the administration of the courts which exercise justice in the name of the Sovereign, or it may be calculated or designed to stir up ill-feeling between different classes of the King's subjects*."*[17]

It would thus be seen that, the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code has essentially two components, which have been succinctly described by the then Attorney-General. Another noteworthy feature is the classical formulation of the manner in which the offence could be committed (the actus reus of the offence), that being by words, either spoken or intended to be read, or by signs, or by visible representations, or otherwise. There is no doubt that the posting of a statement on Facebook (as alleged to have been done by the virtual petitioner and admitted by him) constitute such a manner provided by section 120.

The definition of the offence also contains the causal effect of the afore-described conduct of the offender, which serves as an extension of the actus reus. It is that causal effect which the legislature has sought to prevent by prohibiting and criminalizing the harmful conduct. By the inclusion of the word 'attempts', the legislature has not insisted upon the stipulated result (intended by the offender) occurring. Criminal culpability and penal sanctions are attracted no sooner an attempt is made to cause the stipulated harm. The actual occurrence of harm is only a possible consequence of the offence having been committed and not an ingredient of the offence. Of the several possible causal effects contained in section 120 of the Penal Code, what is relevant to the present matter is to determine whether the virtual petitioner by his Facebook post of 2nd April, attempted to promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People, which the former Attorney-General has described as "… calculated or designed to stir up ill-feelings between different classes …".[18]

The Explanation to section 120 of the Penal Code, provides as follows:

> "It is not an offence under this section by intending to show that the President or the Government of the Republic have been misled or mistaken in measures or to point out errors of defects in the Government or any part of it, or in the administration of justice, with a view to the reformation of such alleged errors or defects, or to excite the People of Sri Lanka to attempt to procure by lawful means the alteration of any matter by law established, or to point out in order to their removal matters which are producing

[17] Hansard, Proceedings of the Legislative Council, 6th August 1915.

[18] Attorney-General Bertram ostensibly had in his mind the category of persons whom he intended to prosecute before the new tribunals of the Supreme Court he established by enacting section 440A of the Criminal Procedure Code, namely those who during the 1915 riots are alleged to have instigated or incited others to engage in violent crime against members of different ethnic communities.

or have a tendency to produce feelings of hatred or ill-will between different classes of the People of Sri Lanka." [Emphasis added.]

As per Abu Bakr v. The Queen[19], the term 'classes' is a reference to groups of persons who are well-defined, stable and numerous and therefore, ethnic and religious groups would amount to 'classes' of people.

It will be observed that the offence contained in section 120 (in its present wording), serves the purpose of deterring anyone from causing the following harmful outcomes, and also enables penal sanctions to be imposed on persons who violate the several prohibitions contained in the offence:

(i) Feelings of disaffection to the President or to the Government of the Republic;
(ii) Hatred to or contempt of the administration of justice;
(iii) People of Sri Lanka procuring, otherwise than by lawful means, the alteration of any matter by law established;
(iv) Discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka;
(v) Feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of People.

In Sisira Kumara Wahalathanthri and Another v. Jayantha Wickramaratne and Others[20], Justice Anil Gooneratne has observed that the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of speech and expression would not be negated by section 120 of the Penal Code. Justice Gooneratne has further observed that provisions of section 120 and the explanation contained therein guarantee freedom of expression and speech, and that the explanation no doubt fortifies this position in great measure.

Though not being the ratio of the judgment, in Abu Bakr v. The Queen, the court had considered the evidence, and held that the court was unable to say that it was not reasonably open to the jury, upon a proper direction, to hold that the appellant intended to promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of the People of Sri Lanka. This observation lends support to the contention that even in terms of Sri Lankan law, 'intention' is clearly an implied constituent ingredient of the offence contained in section 120.

It must be borne in mind that notwithstanding the original purposes for which the common law offence of sedition had been created (which as I have pointed out above was primarily to protect the monarchy, the monarchical form of governance and institutions of the monarch's government), section 120 of the Penal Code must now be enforced bearing in mind that Sri Lanka is a Republic, and it is the People who are sovereign, and fundamental rights is an inalienable ingredient of such sovereignty.

[19] 54 NLR 566
[20] SC/FR Application No. 768/2009, SC Minutes of 5th November 2015

Therefore, the question that needs to be answered is, whether the virtual petitioner committed the offence contained in section 120, and in particular, whether in the absence of any evidence of any disruption of peace and tranquility having occurred, it can be alleged that by the publication of the Facebook post, that he intended to cause any of the harmful outcomes contained in section 120. Did the virtual petitioner intend by his Facebook post to either raise discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka or promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People? In my view, the virtual petitioner's intentions were clear. He wanted to encourage others of the Muslim community to resort to the use of the pen and the keyboard and counter the propaganda which he claims was being unleashed against the interests of the Muslim community that they were responsible for the spread of COVID-19. He wanted others of his own community to counter that propaganda through suitable forms of counter advocacy using written forms of language-based communication and publishing the content of such advocacy on social media such as Facebook and other digital media, in newspapers and other similar space. Basically, that counter propaganda would have been two-fold: I would assume that would be by denying the allegations being made against the Muslim community and providing scientific and empirical evidence as to the actual reasons for the spread of COVID-19.

Furthermore, as alleged by the virtual petitioner, if in fact there was an organized stratagem in place to portray the Muslim community as being responsible for the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic (a position though taken up by the petitioner, not emphatically denied or otherwise countered by the respondents), and if such campaign gathered momentum, there could easily have been feelings of hatred and ill-will by members of other communities towards the Muslim community. Therefore, the communication strategy advocated by the virtual petitioner of engaging in an 'ideological Jihad' using the 'pen and the keyboard' was one way in which he sought to counter the earlier mentioned campaign against the Muslim community. This is by posting the message in Sinhala, so as to captivate the attention of the Muslim community to also propagate the countering campaign in Sinhala, so that such advocacy would reach the Sinhala community. Thus, it is my view that, the virtual petitioner's Facebook post of 2nd April comes within the scope of the Explanation to section 120, as it amounts to pointing out and ensuring the removal of matters which are producing or have a tendency to produce feelings of hatred or ill-will between different classes of the People of Sri Lanka. That is an additional reason as to why the conduct of the virtual petitioner would not attract culpability under section 120.

Therefore, I must, for the reasons enumerated earlier in this judgment conclude that the virtual petitioner has not attempted to either raise discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka or promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People.

However, I must note that, particularly in the aftermath of the Easter Sunday terrorist attacks of 2019, undoubtedly and quite understandably, the non-Muslim users of the Facebook who saw the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner of 2nd April, may have been somewhat alarmed when they read the term 'Jihad'. That term as submitted by the learned State Counsel would to an ordinary non-Muslim reader mean the waging of a 'holy war' by those of the Islamic faith against those of all other faiths, and would be associated with unleashing of violence towards those who are not of the Islamic faith. Nevertheless, though a superficial reading of the post could have given rise to such alarm, no user of the Facebook particularly if he got alarmed, would have stopped following a mere superficial reading of the post. A word-to-word or careful reading of the post, would have clearly revealed that the virtual petitioner was advocating the launch of an 'ideological jihad' with the use of the 'pen and the keyboard' and not any form of perpetration of violence. He also did not incite others to unleash any form of violence. Thus, no reasonable and prudent user of the Facebook would have concluded that the virtual petitioner was attempting to incite the perpetration of violence by members of the Muslim community against members of non-Muslim communities. Therefore, it would be wholly unreasonable and incorrect to conclude that the virtual petitioner attempted to raise discontent or disaffection amongst the People of Sri Lanka, or promote feelings of ill-will and hostility between different classes of such People. Thus, the ideology of the virtual petitioner is evidently opposite to the ideology of a fanatical terrorist suicide bomber who is a radicalized, intolerant, exclusivist, and hence is committed towards the elimination of persons of all other faiths. The virtual petitioner does not fall into that dangerous category.

In view of the foregoing, I hold that, unless there is reliable and clear evidence that the impugned utterances of the alleged offender (in this instance the virtual petitioner) –

(i) were unequivocally intended at causing one of the outcomes contained in section 120, or

(ii) had given rise to one or more of the outcomes referred to in section 120 (in which event the intention may be reasonably inferred), no person can be arrested or prosecuted in terms of the law for having allegedly committed the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code.

A careful and objective consideration is required prior to a decision being taken to arrest a person for having allegedly committed the offence contained in section 120 of the Penal Code and initiate criminal proceedings against him. This should not be understood as requiring the police to remain inactive and to await the destruction that is sought to be prevented by section 120, having to occur. It is noteworthy that section 127 of the Penal Code provides that no prosecution shall be instituted under Chapter VI of the Penal Code (containing 'offences against the state') except by or with the written authority of the Attorney-General. (Section 120 is contained within Chapter VI.) The term 'prosecution shall be instituted' is a reference to the institution of criminal proceedings either under section 136(1)(b) of the CCPA (resulting in the accused being tried in the Magistrate's Court) or under section 393 of the CCPA (resulting in the prosecution of the accused in the High Court). Be that as it may, section 127 ensures that prior to the institution of criminal proceedings (as opposed to initiation of criminal proceedings by the filing of a report in the Magistrate's Court either under section 115 or 116 of the CCPA) the Attorney-General would consider the investigative material collected by the police and determine whether there exists a basis in law and fact to prosecute the alleged offender.

Due to the reasons stated above, I conclude that there was no basis in law or fact to take criminal justice measures on the premise that the virtual petitioner had by the publication of the Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, committed an offence under section 120 of the Penal Code.

Offence under section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act

I will now consider whether by having published the Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, the virtual petitioner had committed the offence contained in section 3(1) of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) Act, No. 56 of 2007.

As previously stated in this judgment, the fundamental right to free speech and expression is not an absolute right, and therefore can be subjected to certain restrictions provided by law. Before I venture to comment on the position of the domestic law on this matter, a brief narration of the position of the international law would be appropriate.

Article 7 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) provides inter-alia that all persons shall be entitled to equal protection against discrimination and incitement to discrimination in violation of the Declaration. Article 20(2) of the ICCPR (1966) stipulates that any advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence shall be prohibited by law. Article 4(a) of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (CERD) (1965), requires states parties to declare an offence punishable by law all dissemination of ideas based on racial superiority or hatred, incitement to racial discrimination, as well as all acts of violence or incitement to such acts against any race or group of persons of another colour or ethnic origin, and also the provision of any assistance to racist activities, including the financing thereof. Therefore, it is evident that international law requires states to prohibit certain forms of speech and expression which have a direct impact on the rights of others and in particular certain vulnerable groups.

The long-title of the ICCPR Act provides that, it has been enacted to give effect to certain Articles in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) relating to human rights which have not been given recognition through legislative measures, and to provide for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. It would be seen that section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act has been enacted to give domestic legal effect to Article 20 of the ICCPR. Articles 7 of the UDHR and Article 4(a) of the CERD, provides additional justification for the prohibition contained in the ICCPR Act.

Section 3(1) of the Act provides as follows:

> "No person shall propagate war or advocate national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence." [Emphasis added.]

Section 3(3) of the ICCPR Act provides that a person found guilty of committing an offence under subsection (1) shall on conviction by the High Court, be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years.

It would be seen that section 3(1) contains two prohibitions. Those being, (i) propagation of war, and (ii) advocacy which takes the form of national, racial or religious hatred which assumes the high threshold of incitement to (a) discrimination, (b) hostility, or (c) violence. In lay language, speech which violates the prohibitions contained in section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act is referred to as 'Hate Speech'. However, it is worthwhile to note that not all forms of hate speech come within the purview of section 3(1). What has been prohibited is not mere advocacy which takes the form of national, racial or religious hatred or unacceptably harsh and derogatory rhetoric against groups of persons with distinct common identities, but advocacy which amounts to incitement to engage in discrimination, acts of hostility and perpetration of violence. That is a high threshold.

To the extent relevant to this matter, what has to be decided is whether the virtual petitioner by publishing the Facebook post of 2nd April, engaged in advocacy of racial or religious hatred which constituted incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence.

It would be pertinent to note that, according to the affidavit filed in this Court by the 1st respondent, investigations conducted by him had revealed that "the Facebook posts of the virtual petitioner had given rise to sentiments of racial and / or religious hatred, which could lead to disharmony or violence". Further, the 1st respondent claims that investigations into the Facebook post of 2nd April had given rise to the finding that "the said post had incited feelings of anger and hostility among those who had seen it". The 1st respondent claims that "such sentiments may lead to violence amongst religious groups". The 1st respondent has further averred that the "the Facebook posts shared by Ramzy Razeek were identified to constitute speech and/or material, which fall within the ambit of section 3 of the said Act". In contemporary language relating to digital communication media (also referred to as 'social media') such as Facebook, 'sharing' is generally understood as a means of spreading Facebook content by posting the content posted by another user in your own Facebook profile. In this matter, no evidence has been placed before this Court that the virtual petitioner had 'shared' any material on Facebook which had been received or seen by him to others, which fall within the ambit of section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act.

According to the 1st respondent, the Human Rights Commission has published certain guidelines pertaining to the application of section 3 of the ICCPR Act. The position of the 1st respondent is that, when he took measures against the virtual petitioner, he acted in terms of these guidelines.

What the 1st respondent has referred to as 'guidelines' (produced marked "X") has in fact been captioned as a "Legal Analysis of the scope of section 3 of the ICCPR Act, No. 56 of 2007 and Attendant Recommendations". Learned counsel for the petitioner did not challenge the authenticity of document marked "X".

This legal analysis is worthy of reproduction in some detail. To the extent relevant to this matter, the following are the key features of this analysis of section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, issued by the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka:

(i) Section 3 gives domestic effect to Article 20 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR).

(ii) Article 20 of the ICCPR should be read in conjunction with Article 19 which recognizes the freedom of expression.

(iii) Article 20(2) embodies two significant elements:
  (a) Advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred and
  (b) Incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence.

(iv) Advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred is permissible until it constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence.

(v) Not all forms of incitement are prohibited under Article 20.

(vi) A crucial element of incitement as recognized under Article 20 is intention.

(vii) The offender must through his incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence intend not to merely share his opinion with others, but also compel others to commit certain actions based on his views.

(viii) In order to arrive at a conclusion regarding the intent, consideration must be given to the content and form of the speech in issue, the extent of advocacy and the imminence of harm which is prohibited.

(ix) The state has an obligation to protect individuals from incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence by third parties as well as to refrain from engaging in such acts in order to protect rights and ensure equal protection of the law for all.

(x) Where there is reasonable suspicion that a person is committing a section 3 offence, and public officers with the power to set the procedure under the ICCPR Act in motion fail or omit to enforce the law, such omission shall amount to state inaction which gives rise to a fundamental rights violation [Article 12(1)] as a tacit state approval of hate speech.

I find no reason to disagree with any of these features of the analysis of section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act issued by the Human Rights Commission of Sri Lanka.

It would be seen that, while Article 14(1)(a) recognizes the fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression including publication, Article 15(2) recognizes that the exercise and operation of this fundamental right shall be subject to such restrictions as may be prescribed by law, which includes restrictions that may be prescribed in the interests of racial and religious harmony and to prevent incitement to commit an offence. Section 3(1) should be seen in the context of these restrictions. Therefore, while Article 14(1)(a) of the Constitution confers on the people the fundamental rights to free speech, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act restricts such fundamental right to the extent of what is prohibited under that section. When the exercise of a fundamental right is restricted by law, in my view such law must be strictly interpreted (as some jurists claim, be narrowly interpreted) so as to give recognition to the exact purpose for which the Parliament enacted the restriction, and for no other reason.

The legalistic purpose for which section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act has been enacted is evident. That is to give domestic recognition and justiciability to Article 20 of the Covenant. The public interest purpose for which section 3(1) has been enacted is to be intrinsically assimilated from the content of the section, those being to protect the people of Sri Lanka and other nationals from (i) the dastardly consequences of war, and (ii) the serious and far reaching consequences to national, ethnic and religious communities (both within and outside Sri Lanka) which would include members of ethnic and religious minorities and other vulnerable communities, from possible harm emanating from the expression of hatred which assumes the manifestation of incitement to discrimination, hostility, and violence.

From a national perspective, what is sought to be protected is clear. That being harm being inflicted through discrimination, hostility and violence perpetrated on ethnic or religious lines against members of such communities. It should not be understood as criminalizing blasphemy.

In a multi-ethnic and multi-religious society such as that of Sri Lanka, particularly given historical, socio-economic and political factors, the maintenance of peace and tranquility among communities, ensuring parity of status, affording equality to all citizens, maintaining public order, and facilitating cohesion between communities, are of utmost importance to national unity, recovery and reconciliation from conflict and tensions, and to achieve social progression and prosperity. Sovereignty of the people which is the key principle recognized by the Constitution cannot have any meaningful effect, unless these protective measures are found in society. Permitting the sowing of hatred through rhetorical advocacy which is aimed at causing incitement to discrimination, hostility and violence, would seriously erode and impinge upon sovereignty of the people and in particular vulnerable and minority communities. The impact of such hate speech has on the exercise of fundamental rights and franchise (which are components of sovereignty that can be exercised individually) by members of vulnerable and minority groups can be very serious and have far reaching implications. Thus, quite rightly and justifiably, incitement to discrimination, hostility and violence must be prohibited and prevented. It is against public policy to permit such forms of incitement in the guise of the exercise of the fundamental right to free speech. If any person is found to have violated that prohibition (which in terms of section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act is an offence), it is well within the authority of the Executive and a legal duty as well, to enforce the law against the offender. Such action would take the manifestation of criminal justice measures, such as the arrest of the suspect, initiation of criminal proceedings, and his subsequent prosecution. However, the adoption of such measures should be diligently and objectively carried out. Using such criminal justice measures against a person who is not culpable for having committed an offence in terms of section 3(1), would amount to infringement of that person's fundamental rights and would tantamount to persecution.

In a situation where a law enforcement officer such as a police officer or a prosecutor is to determine whether a speech or other expression of ideas made by a person amounts to the commission of an offence contained in section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, he should in my opinion consider the following factors:

(i) Whether the content of the speech as a whole with specific reference to the impugned words, amounts to advocacy that takes the form of national, racial or religious hatred which assumes the manifestation of incitement to (a) discrimination, (b) hostility, or (c) violence;

(ii) Attendant circumstances including the context in which it was made;
(iii) Associated conduct of the person concerned, including his previous and subsequent conduct (including utterances made by him) which have a causal link to the impugned utterances.;
(iv) Relationship between the person concerned and his target group (listeners / readers). Given the relationship between the two parties (the power or the influence the person concerned yielded over the target group), was it likely that the target group would be susceptible or amenable to incitement offered by the person concerned through his rhetoric.;
(v) Overall motive and the specific intention of the person, i.e. whether the person concerned intended to incite others to engage in national racial or religious discrimination, hostility or violence;
(vi) Whether in the aftermath of the impugned speech of other expression, racial or religious discrimination, hostility or violence occurred, and if so whether there was a causal relationship between the impugned utterance and the occurrence of such racial or religious discrimination, hostility or violence;
(vii) Even if in the aftermath of the impugned speech, racial discrimination, hostility or violence did not occur, whether there was an imminent danger in the impugned utterances of the person concerned resulting such consequence.

I shall not engage in a detailed analysis of the content of the Facebook post of the virtual petitioner, as I have already done so. What remains to be done is to reiterate what I have already found, that being there was no basis to conclude that the virtual petitioner intended to cause any incitement to any form of harm to the society. What he advocated was the launching of a counter-campaign by the Muslim community against the campaign of vilification which he claims to have been launched against the Muslim community, that they were responsible for the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic. He called upon members of the Muslim community to use the "pen and the keyboard" and engage in an "ideological Jihad". He did not advocate incitement of discrimination, hostility or violence on ethnic or social lines.

Therefore, I conclude that there was no basis in fact or law to allege that the virtual petitioner by his Facebook publication of 2nd April, violated the prohibition contained in section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act. Therefore, there was no basis to take action against the virtual petitioner on the footing that he had committed the offence contained in section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act.

Offence under section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act –

Section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act, No. 24 of 2007 provides as follows:

> "Any person who intentionally causes a computer to perform any function, knowing or having reason to believe that such function will result in danger or imminent danger to –
> (a) national security;
> (b) the national economy; or
> (c) public order, > shall be guilty of an offence and shall on conviction be punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term not exceeding five years." [Emphasis added.]

During the hearing of this Application, learned State Counsel did not press that the virtual petitioner was responsible for having committed this offence. However, I shall briefly though, consider his culpability.

To the extent relevant to this Application, section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act provides that whoever intentionally causes a computer to perform any function, knowing or having reason to believe that such function will result in danger or imminent danger to public order, commits an offence. First, there is no basis to conclude that the virtual petitioner when uploading his Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, knew or had reason to believe that his post would result in danger or imminent danger to public order. Second, there is no evidence that the said post endangered imminently endangered public order. Therefore, there is no basis in the allegation that the virtual petitioner committed the offence contained in section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act.

Therefore, for the reasons stated above, I conclude that the virtual petitioner had by the publication of the Facebook post of 2nd April 2020, not committed an offence under section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act.

Arrest of the virtual petitioner

The petitioner alleges that the arrest of the virtual petitioner was contrary to law and hence is an infringement of the virtual petitioner's fundamental right guaranteed by Article 13(1) of the Constitution.

In the petitioner's affidavit, he states that the virtual petitioner 'was arrested by the Criminal Investigation Department on 9th April 2020'. The 1st respondent in his affidavit has not admitted that he arrested the virtual petitioner. Nor does he state who of the Criminal Investigation Department arrested the virtual petitioner. However, "A5"[21] contains a reference to the fact that 'the suspect is being produced consequent to his being arrested on suspicion'. Thus, I must proceed on the footing that the virtual petitioner had been arrested by the 1st respondent purportedly under section 32(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act (CCPA).[22]

The 1st respondent in his affidavit has stated that 'it was subsequent to the said preliminary investigation that the petitioner was produced before the learned Chief Magistrate of Colombo in Case No. B 31673/01/20 under section 120 of the Penal Code, section 6 of the Computer Crime Act No. 24 of 2007 and section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act No. 56 of 2007'. The afore-stated provisions of law do not provide for a suspect to be 'produced before a Magistrate'. They contain offences in respect of which the 1st respondent claims that the virtual petitioner was arrested. In the circumstances, I must proceed on the footing that the afore-stated references to the provisions under which the 1st respondent produced the virtual petitioner before the learned Chief Magistrate is erroneous, and that the virtual petitioner had in fact been produced before the learned Chief Magistrate under section 115(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act. In fact, "A5" contains inter-alia a reference to section 115(1) of the CCPA as one of the provisions under which the report is being presented.

Section 32(1) of the CCPA to the extent relevant to the arrest of the virtual petitioner, is as follows:

> "Any peace officer may without an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant arrest any person –
>
> (a) …
>
> (b) who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or credible information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned;
>
> (c) …
>
> (d) …
>
> (e) …
>
> (f) …
>
> (g) …

[21] "A5" which has been signed by the 1st respondent and has been filed of record in Magistrate's Court Case No. B 31673/01/20, had been tendered to the Chief Magistrate when the 1st respondent produced the virtual petitioner before the learned Chief Magistrate.

[22] Section 32(1)(b) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act is the general provision of law which authorizes a police officer to arrest without warrant, a person in relation to the commission of a cognizable offence.

(h) …
(i) … ."
[Emphasis added by me.]

It is not in dispute that the offences contained in sections 120 of the Penal Code, 3(1) of the ICCPR Act and 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act are cognizable offences, and thus fall into the category of offences in respect of which the offender may be arrested without a warrant of arrest.

When separated into its constituent ingredients, section 32(1)(b) can be depicted in the following manner:

Any peace officer may without an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant arrest any person
(a) who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or
(b) against whom
(i) a reasonable complaint has been made
or
(ii) credible information has been received or
(iii) a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned.

Therefore, for a peace officer[23] to be authorized by law to arrest a person (suspect) for having committed a cognizable offence, one of the following should have occurred -

(i) the peace officer should have by himself formed an objective opinion that the suspect has been concerned in the commission of a cognizable offence;
(ii) the peace officer should have either directly received a complaint or must be aware that a complaint has been made against the suspect, and he should have formed the objective opinion that such complaint against the suspect (that he has been concerned in committing a cognizable offence) is reasonable;
(iii) the peace officer should have either directly received information or should be aware that information has been received against the suspect, and he should have formed the objective opinion that such information is credible and gives

[23] The term 'peace officer' would in terms of the interpretation of that term contained in section 2 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act, includes a police officer such as the 1st respondent.

rise to the allegation that the suspect has been concerned in the commission of a cognizable office; or

(iv) the peace officer should have developed reasonable suspicion that the suspect has been concerned in the commission of a cognizable offence.

It would be seen that, a condition precedent for the arrest of a person under any one of the four situations referred to above, is the (a) commission of an offence, and (b) a factual and situational connection between the commission of that offence and the person being arrested. In other words, before causing the arrest of a person, the peace officer who seeks to arrest that person must be satisfied founded upon reasonable grounds that the impugned conduct constitutes an offence and that one of the four situational and factual connections between the commission of that offence and the person being arrested, exists. This should not be understood as insistence that the arresting officer should possess strict proof that the suspect had committed an offence. Thus, unless, it can be established that an offence recognized by the laws of Sri Lanka has been committed, the law would not permit the arrest of a person for the conduct attributed to him.

In fact, a criminal justice measure[24] in the nature of the arrest of the suspected offender can be taken, only if the impugned conduct constitutes an offence. In this regard, it is necessary to note that the entire spectrum of criminal justice measures is those that have a bearing on the liberty of the person against whom such measures are taken. Thus, both procedurally and substantively, it is necessary to take such measures strictly in accordance with the law. It is the commission of an offence that triggers the commencement of the range of criminal justice responses against the person responsible for the commission of such offence, including the arrest of the perpetrator of the offence.

In view of the analysis contained in this judgment, it would be seen that by posting the impugned message dated 2nd April 2020 on Facebook, the virtual petitioner did not commit an offence either under section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act or section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act. In the circumstances, there was no lawful basis to have arrested the virtual petitioner. Therefore, I conclude that the arrest of the virtual petitioner was contrary to the procedure established by law and thus unlawful.

[24] Such criminal justice measures would include (i) arrest of the suspect, (ii) holding the arrested person in police custody, (iii) initiation of criminal proceedings against the arrested person, (iv) holding the arrested suspect in remand custody or the grant of bail to him, (v) institution of criminal proceedings against the alleged offender (accused), and his prosecution.

Article 13(1) of the Constitution provides as follows:

> No person shall be arrested except according to procedure established by law. Any person arrested shall be informed of the reason for his arrest.

It would thus be seen that Article 13(1) contains the following two fundamental rights, they being:
(i) the arrest to be according to the procedure established by law; and
(ii) the arrested person to be informed of the reason for his arrest.
The petitioner complains of only the infringement of the first of these two fundamental rights.

As described above, for an arrest to be lawful under section 32(1)(b) of the CCPA, the arrest must be consequential to the commission of an offence. If an offence has not been committed, the law does not authorize a person to be arrested. As it would be seen from the above analysis, in the instant matter, the 1st respondent could not have even entertained a reasonable doubt that the virtual petitioner had committed any of the offences which he alleges. In the circumstances, the arrest of the virtual petitioner has not been carried out according to the procedure established by law, as a condition prerequisite for his arrest (namely the commission of an offence) has not been satisfied. In the circumstances, I conclude that the arrest of the virtual petitioner was contrary to procedure established by law, and thus, his fundamental right guaranteed by Article 13(1) of the Constitution had been infringed.

Police and remand custody of the virtual petitioner
As explained previously, following the arrest of the virtual petitioner on 9th April 2020, he had been produced in police custody before the learned Chief Magistrate, who had placed the suspect in remand custody. Consequently, the virtual petitioner's remand had been extended from time to time. Multiple requests made on his behalf that he be enlarged on bail had been refused by the learned Magistrate. An examination of the case record relating to B 31673/01/20 reveals that the complainant (1st respondent) had objected to the suspect being enlarged on bail.

The learned Magistrate had having called upon the 1st respondent to produced previous Facebook posts of the virtual petitioner, pointed out that in view of an allegation having been made against the suspect (virtual petitioner) that he had committed an offence under section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, she does not have jurisdiction to grant bail and thus has denied granted bail. Following a prolonged period of remand custody, consequent to an Application made to the High Court on behalf of the virtual petitioner (High Court Bail Application No. HCBA 224/2020), on 17th September 2020, he had been enlarged on bail.

Therefore, the period the virtual petitioner had been deprived of liberty can be divided into two segments, those being (i) the period of police custody following the arrest, and (ii) the period of remand custody. The duration of police custody at the CID seems to have been less than 24 hours, and the period of remand custody had been 5 months, 1 week and 1 day.

In Channa Pieris and Others v. Attorney-General and Others[25], Justice Amerasinghe has observed that the right not to be deprived of personal liberty except according to procedure established by law, is enshrined in Article 13(1) of the Constitution and not in Article 13(2). Justice Amerasinghe has observed that Article 13(1) prohibits not only the taking into custody (arrest) except according to procedure established by law, but also the keeping of persons in a state of arrest by imprisonment or other physical restraint except according to procedure established by law. Therefore, in addition to the 'arrest' of the virtual petitioner, his subsequent police custody and the period of remand custody need to be examined from both from the perspectives of Articles 13(1) and 13(2) of the Constitution. That is with the view to determining whether the deprivation of personal liberty has been according to procedure established by law.

Police custody

Following the lawful arrest of a person, pending his production before a Magistrate, he may be held in the custody of the police. Police custody is a mechanism to keep an arrested person under arrest for the purpose of facilitating the conduct of further investigations. In terms of section 37 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act, the period of police custody should not exceed 24 hours. The period of police custody is an extension of the status quo which emerges from the arrest of the person, and it amounts to a continuation of the deprivation of liberty arising out of the arrest. Therefore, the lawfulness of the arrested person being held in police custody is founded upon the lawfulness of the arrest. Therefore, if the arrest of a suspect has not been carried out according to the procedure prescribed by law, necessarily, holding him in the custody of the police becomes unlawful.

[25] [1994] 1 Sri L.R. 1 at 30]

As pointed out earlier, at the very core of the arrest of the virtual petitioner is an incurable flaw. That is because the virtual petitioner had been arrested, notwithstanding his not having committed an offence. Therefore, the period of police custody is also tainted with that fundamental flaw relating to the arrest of the virtual petitioner. Thus, not only is the arrest of the virtual petitioner unlawful, the subsequent period of police custody is equally unlawful. In the circumstances, I conclude that the holding of the virtual petitioner in the custody of the CID has amounted to an infringement of Article 13(1).

Remand custody

Article 13(2) of the Constitution provides as follows:

> Every person held in custody, detained or otherwise deprived of personal liberty shall be brought before the judge of the nearest competent court according to procedure established by law and shall not be further held in custody, detained or deprived of personal liberty except upon and in terms of the order of such judge made in accordance with procedure established by law.

In Channa Pieris and Others v. Attorney-General and Others, Justice Amerasinghe has observed that the purpose of Article 13(2) is to enable a person arrested without a warrant by a non-judicial authority to be able to make representations to a judge who may apply his "judicial mind" to the circumstances before him and make a neutral determination on what course of action is appropriate in relation to his detention and further custody, which would amount to deprivation of personal liberty. Similar views have been expressed by Justice Amerasinghe in Farook v Raymond and others[26].

It would be observed that, couched within Article 13(2) are two specific and inter-related fundamental rights. They are, that every person held in custody, detained or otherwise deprived of personal liberty –

(i) shall be brought before the judge of the nearest competent court according to procedure established by law; and

(ii) shall not be further held in custody, detained or deprived of personal liberty except upon and in terms of an order of such judge made in accordance with procedure established by law.

Thus, I shall now examine whether the virtual petitioner was brought before the judge of the nearest competent court according to procedure established by law.

[26] [(1996) 1 Sri.LR 217]

Section 115(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act[27] provides as follows:

> Whenever an investigation under this Chapter cannot be completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 37, and there are grounds for believing that further investigation is necessary the officer in charge of the police station or the inquirer shall forthwith forward the suspect to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case and shall at the same time transmit to such Magistrate a report of the case*, together with* a summary of the statements*, if any made by each of the witnesses examined in the course of such investigation relating to the case.*

It is necessary to note that filing a report in terms of section 115(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act signifies an important step in the criminal justice response to the commission of an offence, namely the initiation of criminal proceedings in respect of the commission of such offence by an identified person, who is produced before a Magistrate along with the report.

It is seen that, according to section 115(1), the documentation that the law requires to be submitted include –
(i) a report of the case, and
(ii) a summary of the statements if any, recorded during the course of the investigation that has thus far been conducted.
Both the report of the case and the summary of the statements recorded are to serve a purpose which is of critical importance. It is noteworthy that there is nothing in section 115(1) that prevents both these requirements being incorporated into a single document, such as "A5", which is routinely referred to as a "B Report".[28] That being material based upon which the Magistrate having to determine whether or not the suspect being [27] Section 115(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act has been amended by section 4 of Act No. 52 of 1980.

[28] It is a matter of interest that there is nothing in the Code of Criminal Procedure Act which suggests that the report under and in terms of section 115(1) may be referred to using the nomenclature 'B Report'. This terminology stems from Police Departmental Order "C1" promulgated under section 56 of the Police Ordinance, thus having the force of law. "C1" is titled 'Crime Investigation, Prosecution of offenders, Reports on accused persons, etc.' provides for four types of forms and reports to be prepared by the police and submitted to the Magistrates Court, namely (i) Form A, (ii) Form B, (iii) Report under section 126 and (iv) Complaints in terms of section 148(i)(b) of the Criminal Procedure Code, Ordinance No. 15 of 1898 (old Code). Form B is to be used for reporting of cognizable offences in accordance with sections 121(2), 126A and 131 of the said Code. Section 126A of the old Criminal Procedure Code (introduced by Ordinance No. 31 of 1919) is comparable with section 115(1) of the present Code of Criminal Procedure Act, and relates to investigations pertaining to the commission of cognizable offences, which cannot be completed within 24 hours of the arrest of the suspect. Thus, this in my view is the root the term 'B Report' which has survived long-term usage and has got entrenched into the vocabulary of Magistrates, State Counsel and criminal defence Attorneys.

produced by the officer-in-charge of the police station should be placed in remand custody and/or enlarged on bail. Section 115(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act provides that "The Magistrate before whom a suspect is forwarded under this section, if he is satisfied that it is expedient to detain the suspect in custody pending further investigation, may after recording his reasons, by warrant addressed to the superintendent of any prison authorise the detention of the suspect …".

To enable the Magistrate to determine whether criminal proceedings against the suspect should be initiated and whether it would be expedient to detain the suspect in remand custody, the Report submitted under section 115(1) should contain one or more specific allegations that the suspect being produced has committed one or more offences, and the report along with the summary of statements must contain material based upon which the Magistrate can determine whether it is expedient to detain the suspect. If the officer in charge of the police station on whom the statutory duty is cast to submit the report along with the summary of statements is to move the Magistrate to consider placing the suspect in remand custody, he must place before the Magistrate sufficient material to substantiate the allegation contained in the report that the suspect has committed one or more offences.

Therefore, at the stage of the suspect being produced and upon a consideration of the material contained in the report and the summary of statements recorded submitted under section 115(1), the Magistrate must judicially consider the material contained in the report and the summary, and determine whether it is expedient to place the suspect in remand custody. If I am to borrow terminology used by Justice Ratwatte in Dayananda v. Weerasinghe and Others,[29] the Magistrate should not be a mere 'rubber stamp' of the request of the police. He must judicially consider the request of the police in the light of the material placed before him in both the report and the summary of statements recorded. As opposed to the exercise of judicial discretion, a mere perfunctory endorsement of the Application of the police to place the suspect in remand custody, would make the ensuing order of the Magistrate placing the suspect in remand, devoid of requirements of the law, injudicious and a mockery of the justice system. This is of considerable significance, and a decision to place the suspect in remand custody amounts to deprivation of his liberty, as in terms of Article 13(2) of the Constitution, a suspect shall not be further held in custody, detained or deprived of personal liberty except upon and in terms of the order of such judge made in accordance with procedure established by law.

[29] [(1983) 2 Sri L.R.84]

In the instant case, placing sufficient material before the learned Magistrate to substantiate the allegations against the virtual petitioner that he had committed three offences, namely offences under (i) section 120 of the Penal Code, (ii) section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act, and (iii) section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act, is of even greater importance. That is because section 3(4) of the ICCPR Act provides that offences under sections 3(1) and 3(2) of the Act shall be cognizable and non-bailable, and that no person suspected or accused of such an offence shall be enlarged on bail, except by the High Court in exceptional circumstances. Thus, when it is alleged that the suspect has committed an offence under either section 3(1) or 3(2) of the ICCPR Act, it effectively takes away the judicial discretion otherwise conferred on the Magistrate in terms of section 115(2) to consider whether or not to place the suspect in remand custody and or whether or not to enlarge him on bail under and in terms of the Bail Act, No. 70 of 2007. Therefore, this is an additional reason as to why the officer in charge of the police station should place sufficient material in the 'B Report' to substantiate the allegation that the suspect has committed a particular offence.

A consideration of the afore-stated B Report ("A5") contains the following two deficiencies which are of significance before the eyes of the law:

(a) The Report does not contain a summary of statements recorded in the course of the investigation up to the time at which the Report was prepared. (Such summary should include the statement of the suspect.)

(b) The Report does not indicate the manner in which investigational findings (including the information contained in the statements recorded up to the point at which the Report was prepared) lend support to the allegations (those being offences alleged to have been committed by the suspect) being substantiated by investigational findings.

I have also noted that the afore-stated B Report contains the following caption:

> "Producing to court a suspect and reporting facts pertaining to spreading of information which has the tendency of breaching harmony between ethnic communities by calling for the waging of a jihadist war".

It would thus be seen that, using the term 'jihadist war' as opposed to 'an ideological jihad using the pen and the keyboard', the 1st respondent has made a conscious attempt to mislead the learned Magistrate by portraying that the virtual petitioner had called for the waging of an armed struggle. He has supplemented his attempt at misleading the learned Magistrate by not incorporating into the body of the 'Report on the case' a reference to the fact that what the virtual petitioner had called for was an 'ideological jihad using the pen and the keyboard'. In his Report, he has further misled the learned Magistrate by stating that the virtual petitioner had been spreading news with the view to causing in the minds of Muslims, revolutionary ideas and encouraging them to engage in such activities. The 1st respondent has also given the impression to the learned Magistrate that the virtual petitioner had attempted to hide his true identity, whereas, it is apparent that the Facebook profile of the virtual petitioner contains his correct name and it is undisputed that his profile photograph correctly depicts him.

Notwithstanding the learned Magistrate not being possessed with jurisdiction to grant bail to the virtual petitioner (in view of the allegation that he has committed an offence under section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act), an Application has been made to the learned Magistrate on his behalf, on the footing that there exists no basis in facts or in law to level an allegation that the virtual petitioner has committed such offence. By an order dated 28th May 2020, the learned Chief Magistrate has refused that Application. I have noted with a degree of relief that, pursuant to an Application seeking bail on behalf of the virtual petitioner from the High Court, following a consideration of submissions made by President's Counsel representing the virtual petitioner and Senior State Counsel representing the Honourable Attorney General, the learned Judge of the High Court making a well-considered order has, on 17th September 2020, granted bail to the virtual petitioner on the footing that there was no basis to allege that the virtual petitioner had committed an offence under section 3(1) of the ICPPR Act. It is unfortunate that by the time the order for bail was made, the virtual petitioner had spent five months and one week in remand custody.

An examination of the original case record of Magistrates Court Colombo case No. B 31673/01/20 revealed that the Honourable Attorney-General has by his letter dated 8th September 2023 informed the Director of the Criminal Investigation Department learned (with a copy to the learned Magistrate) that he does not intend to take any further action in terms of the law against the virtual petitioner. Consequently, by order dated 25th September 2023, the learned Magistrate has discharged the virtual petitioner, thus bringing an end to his ordeal of three years and five and a half months.

In view of the foregoing, I hold that the 1st respondent has at the time he produced the virtual petitioner before the learned Chief Magistrate failed to tender to such Magistrate a Report prepared in terms of 115(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure Act. He has thereby infringed the fundamental right of the virtual petitioner guaranteed by Article 13(2) of the Constitution, by his failure to produce the virtual petitioner before the learned Chief Magistrate according to procedure established by law.

Examination of compliance with the fundamental right guaranteed by Article 13(2) (that the suspect shall not be further held in custody, detained or deprived of personal liberty except upon and in terms of the order of such judge made in accordance with procedure established by law) would necessitate this Court to consider the lawfulness of the order made by the learned Chief Magistrate on 10th April 2020 placing the virtual petitioner in remand custody and the several subsequent orders made extending remand custody and the order made on 28th May 2020 refusing to grant bail. As such orders are judicial orders, the jurisdiction vested in this Court by Article 17 read with Article 126 of the Constitution would preclude this Court from examining whether the making of such judicial orders have amounted to an infringement of the fundamental right guaranteed by Article 13(2) of the Constitution. Thus, I shall not deal with that aspect of this case.

Observations by Court

Police officers must bear in mind the fact that arrest, initiation of criminal proceedings and causing a suspect to be placed in remand custody are by themselves criminal justice measures which have a penal character and a direct bearing on the liberty of persons. The adoption and enforcement of such measures in a manner that infringes the fundamental rights of persons can have a chilling effect on other persons too, who wish to enjoy the exercise of their inalienable fundamental rights. Therefore, such criminal justice measures must be carried out with due diligence, independently, objectively, with great caution and strictly in the manner provided by law.

Some degree of laxity can be shown by this Court, if a decision on whether or not to arrest a suspect alleged to have committed a cognizable offence had to be taken in the field at the spur of the moment, where the arresting officer was required in the circumstances of the situation to take a decision spontaneously and without any access to guidance or direction from a senior officer or legal advice. The instant case is not like that. The 1st respondent had sufficient time to consider, if necessary, to consult senior officers and to obtain legal advice from the Honourable Attorney General, and thereafter decide on whether or not to arrest the virtual petitioner.

Instead of acting as a dutiful law enforcement officer, the 1st respondent has used section 120 of the Penal Code, section 3(1) of the ICCPR Act and section 6(1) of the Computer Crime Act as weapons, and has taken action which amounts to punishment, by arresting the virtual petitioner, holding him in police custody, and thereafter having placed him in remand custody for 5 months and 1 week.

This Court must take judicial note of the fact that the Criminal Investigation Department is an established, well-organized, structured and a specialized Department of the Sri Lanka Police, with direct access to the Department of the Attorney General. Therefore, the 1st respondent had access to multiple tiers of senior officers of the CID and to legal advisors of the state who are officers of the Department of the Attorney General.

The 1st respondent does not claim in his affidavit filed in this matter, that he acted on the instructions of his superior officers. Nor does he state that he obtained and acted on legal advice. Therefore, the 1st respondent must take primary responsibility for the infringement of the virtual petitioner's fundamental rights. The responsibility for the infringement of the fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner does not end with the 1st respondent, though it begins with his conduct of arresting the virtual petitioner.

Most unfortunately, it has now become common place for this Court to receive Applications alleging the arrest of persons without sufficient cause and in a manner that infringes their fundamental rights. Such arrests are often followed by periods of remand which are also contrary to law. A careful consideration of most such unlawful arrests reveal instances where police officers have not been permitted to exercise discretionary authority conferred on them, and been persuaded by persons in authority to act in a particular manner.

The evidence placed before this Court suggests such a situation pointing towards the direction of certain persons in authority, though due to the paucity of evidence placed by the petitioner and the position taken-up by the 1st respondent, it is not possible to arrive at an exact finding to that effect.

It is necessary for me to observe that it is the responsibility of those who yield political and administrative authority over police officers or is placed in a hierarchically superior position, to unconditionally refrain from giving case or person-specific instructions to police officers, unless they have been specifically authorized by law to give such instructions. Law enforcement officers such as police officers must have the freedom to conduct their duties independently, impartially and neutrally, and take steps and act in terms of the law, exercising their own inherent discretionary authority in a lawful manner.

Declarations and Orders of Court

(i) It is declared that the 1st respondent has infringed the fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner guaranteed by Articles 12(1), 13(1), 13(2) and 14(1)(a) of the Constitution.

(ii) The 1st respondent has when infringing the afore-stated fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner, acted under the colour of his office, as a police officer and as an officer of the Criminal Investigation Department. Thus, the 2nd respondent – Director of the Criminal Investigation Department and the state must take responsibility for the afore-stated infringement of the fundamental rights of the virtual petitioner by the 1st respondent.

The responsibility of the state arises out of the fact that the state shall be responsible for the actions of all the actions of its servants committed using the colour of their office, unless it is established that the state had taken all necessary measures to prevent the infringement in issue.

(iii) The 1st respondent shall within one month of this judgment pay a sum of Rs. 30,000/= to the virtual petitioner, using his personal funds.

(iv) The 2nd respondent shall pay a sum of Rs. 30,000/= to the virtual petitioner, using his personal funds.

(v) The state shall pay such sum of Rs. 1 million to the virtual petitioner.

(vii) The 6th Respondent shall within one month from the delivery of this judgement issue to the Inspector General of Police a summation of the principles contained in this judgment, which the latter shall issue to all police officers in the form of instructions, requiring such police officers to strictly comply with.

In view of the foregoing, this Application is allowed.

The state shall pay to the petitioner the cost incurred by him to prosecute this Application.

Judge of the Supreme Court

B.P. Aluwihare, P.C., J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

Janak De Silva, J.

I agree.

Judge of the Supreme Court

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application made in terms of Articles 17 and 126 of the Constitution of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka.

Maligawa Tours and Exports (PVT) Ltd.
No. 19, Race Course Avenue,
Colombo 07.

PETITIONER

SC APPLICATION NO.
SC (FR) 158/2013

Vs.

1. The Land Reform Commission
   No. C82, Hector Kobbekaduwa Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

2. L.R.Sumanasena,
   Director,
   District Land Reform Board,
   I.R.D.P. Building,
   Udapussella Road,
   Nuwaraeliya.

3. Hon. Attorney General,
   Attorney General's Department,
   Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

BEFORE: Hon. Buwaneka Aluwihare, PC, J.
Hon. Vijith K. Malalgoda, PC, J.
Hon. Janak De Silva, J.

COUNSEL: Uditha Egalahewa, PC with Amaranath Fernando for the Petitioner.
Dr. Sunil Cooray with Sudarshani Cooray for the 1st and 2nd Respondent.
Ms. Indumini Radeny, SC for the Hon. Attorney-General.

ARGUED ON: 07.09.2022.

WRITTEN SUBMISSIONS: 07.06.2017
05.06.2017

DECIDED ON: 03.08.2023

Judgement

Aluwihare, PC, J.,

In this matter, the court granted leave to proceed for the alleged violation of the Petitioner's fundamental right enshrined in Article 12(1) of the Constitution. In addition to a declaration that the Petitioner's fundamental rights guaranteed under the said Article had been violated by the Respondents, Petitioners also sought by way of further relief, that the letter issued by the Chairman Land Reform Commission dated 22nd April 2013[X5] be declared null and void and to quash the letter dated 29.04.2013, issued by the Director of the District Land Reform Board (Nuwara Eliya) [X7].

Background facts

The Petitioner contends that the Petitioner is the lawful owner of two parcels of land called 'Madalanda Estate' and 'Keenagaskebella'.

On 22nd April 2013, the Chairman of the Land Reform Commission, the 1st Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the 'LRC'), by way of a letter (marked and produced as 'X5') requested Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere to handover several lands to the LRC. Listed among the properties were 'Medalanda Estate in the Colombo District' [listed under 'c'] and 'Keenagaskebella in Nuwara-Eliya [listed under 'e']. The ownership of these two lands, however, had been transferred to the Petitioner [Maligawa Tours and Export (PVT) Ltd] way back in 1982 and 1972 respectively. In the case of the land Keenagaskebella, the transfer had been made more than 41 years before the letter X5. It was submitted that the Petitioner has enjoyed both the ownership, and possession and further, utilised the two properties for various purposes since. It was revealed that, prior to receiving the letter X5, Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere also had received several letters relating to some of her other properties, from the LRC, and had tendered an appeal to the 2nd Respondent [Director, District Land Reform Board, Nuwara-Eliya]. This letter of appeal (marked 'X6') had been copied to the then Legal Consultant for the LRC, Mahanama Thilekaratne.

Having been made aware of the attempts to take over the said properties, Chantal Obeyesekere (daughter of Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere and as well as a Director of the Petitioner company) had met with Mahanama Thilekaratne to inquire about the matter and voice its grievance over the attempted takeover of lands which were lawfully conveyed over 30 years before. When the file pertaining to the lands was called for, it was observed that the file (bearing No. 2293) bore the endorsement "file closed". Having been apprised of the situation, Mahanama Thilekaratne had made an endorsement and directed the conduct of an inquiry. The letter marked X6 contains the hand-written endorsement and directions dated 03.04.2013; and reads thus: "I have studied the files pertaining to this and the Director has no right or authority to intimidate persons like this. I recommend to have a full inquiry into this matter. Inform the Director not to take any action until the most essential inquiry is over."

Despite the directions of the legal Consultant Tillakaratne made on the 3rd April 2013, no inquiry was conducted, X5 was issued on the 22nd April (when for the first time the lands 'Medalanda' and 'Keenagaskebella' was included) and on the 29th April 2013, the 2nd Respondent informed Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere by letter (marked 'X7') that she is required to handover the said lands, failing which, the lands will be taken over. Thereafter, fearing an imminent infringement of its Fundamental Rights guaranteed by Article 12(1), the Petitioner invoked the jurisdiction of this court. When this matter was supported on 7th September 2022, this Court, in addition to granting leave to proceed as referred to earlier, granted Interim relief, prohibiting the Respondents from taking any further action in pursuance of re-possessing the lands which form the subject of the dispute, as directed by the letter dated 29th April 2013 ('X7'). What follows is a narration of the facts in detail, as they relate to each property.

The two parcels of land

(i) The Medalanda Estate

The Medalanda Estate, more fully described in Plan No. 5453/L.R.C. CO 2317 dated 20th January 1980 was vested in the 1st Respondent by the operation of the Land Reform Law. Thereafter, the LRC [the 1st Respondent] transferred the estate to Chantal Hiranthi Obeyesekere (daughter of Mr. J.P. Obeysekera) by Deed bearing No. 5619 dated 6th October 1982. [X2(a)] This transfer was done for the purpose of 'agriculture or animal husbandry' by and under virtue of Section 22(1)(a) of the Land Reform Law. Subsequently, the Petitioner company obtained ownership of the estate when Chantal Hiranthi Obeyesekere transferred ownership to the Petitioner company by way of Deed bearing No. 5744 dated 17th June 1983. The Respondents, however, contend that this transfer was bad in law as it is an alienation deemed null and void as per Section 13 of the Land Reform Law.

On 22nd April 2013, more than 30 years after the conveyance, the Chairman of the LRC by the letter ('X5') had written to Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere (widow of the late Mr. J.P. Obeyesekere) stating inter alia that "some land which has to be handed over to the LRC, has not been handed over yet". Among the lands listed for handover is the "Medalanda Estate at Colombo District" of extent 22A.0R.22P.

(ii) Keenagaskebella

Keenagaskebella, also known as 'Keena House' is located in the Nuwara Eliya District and was initially owned by the late J. P Obeysekera. By way of Deed of Transfer bearing No. 403 dated 5th February 1972, J.P. Obeysekera transferred the land to the Petitioner for shares of the Petitioner Company being the consideration. The Petitioner contends that this land was not declared as agricultural land since it was used by the company for tourism purposes, as a hotel project. A letter from the Ceylon Tourist Board addressed to the Director of the Petitioner company dated 12th October 1973 confirms the existence of a 'Guesthouse' at premises known as 'Keena House' in Nuwara Eliya, and therefore buttresses the above contention. As with Medalanda, Keenagaskebella is also not mentioned in any of the correspondence between the parties involved prior to the letter requesting handover on 22nd April 2013 [X5] which states that "Keenagaskebella Nuwaraeliya District Plan No. 4568 Lot A" of extent 7A.1R.08P must be handed over to the LRC. What is significant is that J.P. Obeyesekere by a letter dated 20th November 1972, put the LRC on notice that he would not be declaring two properties in Form (1) [presumably the prescribed declaration form in terms of the Land Reform Law] as they do not constitute Agricultural Land. One is premises No.19, Race Course Avenue and the other is Keena House Hotel and Premises which had received project approval from the Tourist Board [X8]. It appears that for a period of over 30 years the LRC had not disputed the position taken by J.P. Obeyesekere.

Violation of Article 12(1)

1) It is now settled in our Fundamental Rights Jurisprudence that Article 12(1) protects persons from any unlawful, arbitrary or mala fide executive or administrative actions or omissions and guarantees natural justice and legitimate expectations [vide Sampanthan vs. Hon. Attorney General and Others SC. FR 351/2018]. Thus, in order to determine whether there has been a violation and/or an imminent infringement, the submissions made by learned Counsel for the respective parties along with the facts and the applicable legal provisions, required to be analysed under each of the impugned actions, in relation to the procedures and remedies prescribed by law as they relate to each property and the interests of the Petitioner.

2) The Land Reform Law of 1972 was introduced with the aim of addressing longstanding inequalities in land ownership and use, in the country. Prior to the introduction of the law, the majority of agricultural land in Sri Lanka was owned by a small number of wealthy individuals and corporations, while the majority of the population lived in poverty and had limited access to land. The law sought to redistribute land ownership and promote a more equitable distribution of land by placing a limit on the amount of land that individuals and corporations could own. It also established a system for the acquisition and redistribution of excess land to landless peasants and small farmers and sought to promote more sustainable land use practices by encouraging the cultivation of crops. Section 2 of the Land Reform Law states that Purposes of the law are:

"(a) to ensure that no person shall own agricultural land in excess of the ceiling; and

(b) to take over agricultural land owned by any person in excess of the ceiling and to utilize such land in a manner which will result in an increase in its productivity and in the employment generated from such land."

3) Among the powers assigned to the LRC by Section 44 of the Land Reform Law are the powers to "(a) acquire, hold, take or give on lease or hire, exchange, mortgage, pledge, sell or otherwise dispose of, any movable or immovable property", "(b) carry out investigations, surveys and record data concerning and relating to any agricultural land and call for returns in the prescribed form concerning and relating to agricultural land; and encourage aspects of land" and "(f) call for and receive such documents relating to title, valuation, surveys and plans of agricultural land as may be necessary for carrying out such objects". Broadly, it is acts committed in the pursuance of these powers which are challenged in these proceedings.

4) It must first be mentioned that all correspondence relating to the handover of the said lands has been addressed to Deshamanya Siva Obeysekera, and not to the Petitioner company. The Petitioner company canvassed this application to prevent the possession or seizure of lands owned by the Petitioner, which are namely Medalanda and Keenagaskebella.

5) With regard to the Medalanda Estate, the final correspondence appears to be the Appeal made [in terms of Section 13(3) of the LR Law] to the Minister, by J. P. Obeyesekere way back in 1974, against an order made under Section 13(2) of the said Law[X5(a) dated 5th July 1974]. The appeal states that 'Medalanda' situated in the Nittambuwa Division in Colombo in extent 22A.0R.02P, which had been transferred to Maligawa Tours & Exports Ltd in 1972 was declared null and void by the LRC. No subsequent document, order or letter refers to the Estate, and there is no indication of the consideration of J.P Obeyesekere's appeal until 22nd April 2013. There is no material whatsoever to indicate that the appeal had been considered when, more than 30 years after the conveyance, and almost 30 years after the appeal was made, the Chairman of the LRC by way of letter ('X5') written to Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere, requested the handover of the Estate.

6) It seems to me that any dispute over the ownership of Medalanda predating the sale by the LRC [1st Respondent] to Chantal Hiranthi Obeysekera in 1982 is irrelevant for the purposes of determining the vires of the impugned acts, as the Obeyesekere's and the Petitioner company accepted the LRC's claim of ownership when they each purchased the land. It is the Respondents' submission that the subsequent transfer of ownership of Medalanda to the Petitioner is illegal as it was executed in violation of Section 22(1)(a) of the Land Reform Law. They contend that as Medalanda was initially sold to Chantal Hiranthi Obeysekera under Section 22(1)(a) for the purposes of 'agriculture or animal husbandry', the subsequent sale of Medalanda to the Petitioner; a company which does not engage in agriculture or animal husbandry, is illegal. Section 24(2) of the Land Reform Law provides the LRC with the authority to cancel such initial alienation where "any term or condition subject to which agricultural land is alienated to any person by the Commission is not complied with."

7) Section 24(2) prescribes the process of cancellation of such alienation as follows: "the Commission may by endorsement on a certified copy of the instrument of alienation, cancel such alienation, and thereupon such alienation shall be determined accordingly, and such agricultural land shall re-vest in the Commission…". The letter addressed to Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere requesting the handover of these lands [X5] notes that the alienation of Medalanda is null and void by virtue of Section 13. Section 13(1) requires persons alienating land held in excess of the ceiling (50 acres) on or after 29th May 1971 to report such alienation to the Commission. Contrary to the written submissions dated 5th June 2017, Section 13 does not require alienors to seek the LRC's "permission". Instead, Section 13(2) states that if the transfers appear to have been made for the purpose of 'defeating the purposes' of the Land Reform Law, the "…Commission may by order made under its hand declare that such alienation is null and void. Every such order shall be sent by registered post to the alienor and alienee of the agricultural land to which that order relates."

8) Accordingly, if the alienation of Medalanda to Maligawa Tours was contrary to the terms of the initial alienation to Chantal H. Obeyesekere (as contended by the Respondents), the LRC ought to have acted under Section 24(2) of the Land Reform Law, in the manner prescribed therein. There is no material before this court which suggests that such a course of action was taken. Accordingly, it can be concluded that the alienation has not been cancelled as per Section 24(2). The only mention of Medalanda after 1983 is in the LRC's letter in 2013, and that too denotes the alienation of Medalanda to be "Sec 13 null and void". It is evident, therefore, that the only appropriate remedy for an alienation made contrary to terms of transfers made under Section 22(1)(a) of the Land Reform Law, which is an 'order of cancellation' as prescribed by Section 24(2) of the said Law, which course of action the LRC has not carried out for over 30 years.

9) It is possible that the conflation arose from the Appeal made to the Minister by J. P. Obeyesekere against an order made under Section 13(2) of the Land Reform Law in 1974 (X5(a)). However, as stated before, the LRC cannot claim the vires of its actions based on this document as the LRC itself transferred the estate to Chantal Hiranthi Obeysekera (daughter of J.P. Obeysekera) by Deed bearing No. 5619 dated 6th October 1982. Therefore, in failing to resort to the appropriate remedy over three decades, and subsequently attempting to possess the lands now owned by the Petitioner, the LRC has not acted within the confines of the procedures prescribed by the Land Reform Law.

10) The Petitioner acquired ownership of Keenagaskebella by virtue of Deed No. 403 dated 5th February 1972, wherein J. P. Obeyesekere transferred the property to the Petitioner. The Petitioner submits that the Petitioner was not obliged to declare the land as it was not agricultural land and was used for tourist projects. Additionally, the Petitioner notes that the fact that the land is being used entirely for tourist projects was informed to the LRC as far back as 1972 (letter marked 'X8'). Furthermore, the letter from the Ceylon Tourist Board addressed to the Director of the Petitioner company dated 12th October 1973 (marked 'X9') confirms the existence of a 'Guesthouse at premises known as 'Keena House' in Nuwara Eliya, and therefore affirms the above contention. Finally, the Petitioner notes that the appeal tendered by Mr. J. P. in 1974 (marked and produced as 'X5(a)'), dated 5th July 1974, does not list 'Keenagaskebella' as a land whose alienation was ordered null and void as per Section 13, and contends that this is further evidence of the fact that there was no dispute with regards to the legality of the alienation of Keenagaskebella. I also wish to observe that the factual inaccuracy of the letter X5. X5 refers to Keenagaskebella as; "Keenagaskebella Nuwaraeliya District Plan No. 4568 Lot A". As per the Deed of Transfer (X3(a)) in its Schedule the said land is described as a land depicted in Plan No. 4565. There is no mention of a 'Plan No. 4568' in any of the related documents submitted to court besides X5. It would appear therefore that the X5 was erroneous in fact too, as it relates to Keenagaskebella.

11) It was the submission of the Respondents' that land holders cannot be the arbiter of whether or not the lands held by them are agricultural lands. And that determination has to be made by the LRC alone. Accordingly, they contend that not declaring all lands held in excess of the ceiling would be an offence as per Section 18(5) of the Land Reform Law [hereinafter referred to as 'the Law"]. They further submit that the letters marked 'X8' and 'X9' which the Petitioner relies on to substantiate the contention that Keenagaskebella is used for tourism purposes cannot be taken to confirm the position that Keenagaskebella should not have been declared because it was not used for agricultural purposes as "the Land Reform Law does not in any way grant lands for hotel projects" (vide written submission dated 5th June 2017).

12) It appears to me that the submissions of the parties address a fundamental question regarding the Land Reform Law; whether all lands held in excess of the ceiling must be declared, and whether the LRC is permitted by law from considering utilization all such lands for the purposes of the Land Reform Law, even if the said lands bear no relevance or use to agriculture. To that effect, it was submitted by the Respondents [written submission dated 5th June 2017] that "All lands over 50 acres comes by operation of law to the LRC. Whether it is agricultural or not is a decision to be taken by the LRC and not by an individual". It would be pertinent, at this stage, to examine the process by which owners of agricultural land may be allowed to retain certain portions of such land. As per Section 3(2) of the Land Reform Law, upon the law coming into force, by operation of Law, any agricultural land owned by any person in excess of the ceiling was deemed to vest in the LRC and such person is deemed to be a statutory lessee of the LRC. This deeming provision is followed by Section 18, which mandates that such person should make a "statutory declaration", in the prescribed form of the total extent of the agricultural land so held by him on such lease. Finally, as per Section 19, the LRC may make a "statutory determination", specifying the portion or portions of the agricultural land owned by the statutory lessee which he shall be allowed to retain, and publish such determination in the Gazette. It is crucial to note that Section 3(2) only contemplates the declaration of agricultural land held in excess of the ceiling. The Petitioner's contention rests on the argument that Keenagaskebella, also known as Keena Cottage, is not agricultural land, and therefore does not have to be declared as per Section 18 because it did not initially vest in the LRC. The Petitioner contends that 'Keena Cottage' is found in the Nuwara Eliya Town, within the Municipal Council limits and has been used, and continues to be used for the operation of a Tourist Hotel, and that accordingly, the land cannot be used for agricultural purposes.

13) To determine what constitutes agricultural land, I have reproduced the interpretation provided in Section 66 of the Land Reform Law:

"agricultural land" means land used or capable of being used for agriculture within the meaning given in this Law and shall include private lands, lands alienated under the Land Development Ordinance or the State Lands Ordinance or any other enactment and includes also things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth but shall exclude

(a) any cultivated agricultural land owned or possessed by a public company on May 29, 1971, so long and so long only as such land continues to be so owned or possessed by such company;

(b) any such land which was viharagam or devalagam land on May 29, 1971, so long and so long only as such land continues to be so owned or possessed;

(c) any such land which was owned or possessed by a religious institution on May 29, 1971, so long and so long only as such land continues to be so owned or possessed by such religious institution;

(d) any such land which on May 29, 1971, constituted a charitable trust as defined in the Trusts Ordinance or a Muslim charitable trust or wakf as defined in the Muslim Mosques and Charitable Trusts or Wakfs Act, so long and so long only as such land continues to be so owned or possessed as such trust;

(e) any such land held in trust on May 29, 1971, under the Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance so long and so long only as such land is held in trust under that Ordinance

It is evident that none of the exclusions apply in this case. What is of vital relevance in the above interpretation is the phrase "means land used or capable of being used for agriculture". This interpretation lends credence to the contention that only land which could be used for agricultural purposes is required to be declared by the owners. The Petitioner, in its written submission dated 7th June 2017 drew reference to the interpretation provided for the word 'agriculture' in Section 66 of the Land Reform Law.

" agriculture " includes

(i) the growing of rice, all field crops, spices and condiments, industrial crops, vegetables, fruits, flowers, pasture and fodder;
(ii) dairy farming, livestock-rearing and breeding;
(iii) plant and fruit nurseries

14) Accordingly, it would be a misconception to state that the Land Reform Law requires owners to make a declaration in relation to all lands held in excess of the ceiling. One must be conscious of the fact that the drafters of this law, in their wisdom, provided a comprehensive interpretation of what may be identified as 'agricultural land' and laid the process of Land Reform in a manner that requires owners of land to make declarations as per that interpretation. Where landowners fail to act per the interpretation in an attempt to defeat the Law, the drafters provided the LRC with the authority to take remedial action under Section 18(5) of the Law, – which holds non-declaration of agricultural land to be an offence read with Section 63 of the Law, which provides the procedure for conviction upon commission of the offence. While I find it hard to agree with the Petitioner's contention that the land cannot be used for the growing of any crops or farming or planting, the submissions of the Respondents warrant questioning as to why the realization that the said land in question could be used for agricultural purposes did not arise for over 30 years. The Respondents have provided no reason for their inaction from 1972 to 2013, or as to why they are attempting to take over and possess lands alienated by transactions which were allegedly known to have been 'improper' 30 years ago.

15) It appears that the LRC had only got activated after all these years, because of the petitions received, criticising the LRC for their inaction on their part. In a letter [X4(h)] addressed to Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere, the Chairman of the LRC states "there are ample petitions against you stating that you are enjoying an extent more than approved by the Commission…" and the letter goes on to state; "…The Commission also under strong criticism for not taking legal action against you…". Any action on the part of the LRC should be based on the law and merely not on public petitions. The LRC is free to take action based on such complaints only after the proper inquiries are conducted and action is merited under the Land Reform Law, which does not appear to be the case in this instance.

16) Furthermore, the Respondents did not afford the Petitioner any opportunity to be heard and voice its grievances even after repeatedly being informed by Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere that the Petitioner company was the lawful owner of the said lands. It must also be noted that the Legal Consultant to the LRC, Mahanama Thilekaratne directed the LRC to conduct an inquiry into the matter after observing that the particular file, which had been 'closed' for over 30 years was re-opened and action was pursued under it. This is evident in the letter marked X6. Neglecting the said direction and its subsequent conduct therefore wholly contravenes Principles of Natural Justice. It is regrettable that an agency charged with an administrative task as significant as the vesting and conveying of private property is seemingly negligent, indifferent and unwilling to abide by the principle of audi alteram partem , a core tenet of administrative law.

17) As stated before, Article 12(1) protects all persons from arbitrary executive or administrative action. The petitioner company, being a duly incorporated entity, is a juristic person who may claim the protection of this court .[vide Sunway International (Pvt) Ltd & Another vs. Airport & Aviation Services (Sri Lanka) Limited & Others*, SC. FR 147/2017]. A person's Fundamental Right to equal protection of the law is infringed when public authorities fail to treat such person as mandated by law. It is apparent that the Respondents have failed to treat the Petitioner as mandated by the law and are now attempting to indirectly seize or possess Petitioner's lands (vide letter marked 'X5') without following the remedies prescribed by law or basic procedures which ensure administrative justice. In conclusion, I hold that the 1st Respondent would violate the Petitioner's Fundamental Right to Equal Protection of the Law guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution if it acted upon listings (c) and (e) of the letter marked 'X5' dated 22nd April 2013.

18) Additionally, I wish to note that while it does not bear relevance to the principal merits of this case, it would be reasonable, upon examination of the correspondence between the 2nd Respondent and Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere (letters marked 'X4(a) to 'X4(g)), to draw the conclusion that the LRC exhibited manifest refusal to consider the merits of Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere's plea relating to the impugned actions, and an utter lack of professionalism. In some consecutive letters, certain paragraphs appear to have been reproduced and replicated without consideration of the matters pleaded in the prior correspondence. Such conduct by officers holding public office, exercising powers and responsibilities conferred on them by law for the benefit of the People, warrants serious note.

19) The present Application by the Petitioner, Maligawa Tours and Exports (PVT) Ltd is in relation to the lands referred to in listings (c) and (e) of the letter dated 22nd April 2013 addressed to Deshamanya Siva Obeyesekere [X5] by the Chairman LRC.

Conclusions by the Court

For the reasons enumerated above, I declare that an imminent infringement of the Fundamental Rights of the Petitioner guaranteed under Article 12(1) of the Constitution has been established by the Petitioner. Until such time an inquiry is held affording an opportunity to the Petitioner to make representations, the 1st Respondent is directed not to resort to appropriate procedures laid down in the Land Reform

Law in relation to listings (c) and (e) referred to, under paragraph 10, on page 2 of the said letter marked 'X5' dated 22nd April 2013 [which are impugned in these proceedings]. The said listings ['c' and 'e'] are reproduced below;

(c) Medalanda Estate at Colombo District - 22A.0R.22P

(e) Keenagaskebella Nuwaraeliya District Plan No 4568 Lot A -7A 1R 08P

In the circumstances of this case, I order no costs.

Application allowed

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE VIJITH MALAGODA PC

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

JUSTICE JANAK DE SILVA

I agree.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DEMOCRATIC SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF SRI LANKA

In the matter of an application under and in terms of Article 126 of the Constitution.

SC FR 163/2019

Janath S. Vidanage
No. 37, W.A.D.Ramanayake Mawatha,
Colombo 02.

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Pujith Jayasundara
   Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01.

2. Hemasiri Fernando
   Secretary,
   Ministry of Defence
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

   New Address:

   No. 11A, Sri Saranankara Road
   Pamankada East, Dehiwala.

3. Priyalal Dasanayake
   Deputy Inspector General of Police
   Special Security Division
   440A, Dr. Colvin R.de Silva Mawatha
   Colombo 02.

4. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney Generals' Department,
   Colombo 12.

Respondents

SC FR 165/2019

Nagananda Kodithuwakku
Public Interest Litigation Activist
No. 99 Subhadrarama Road
Nugegoda.

Petitioner

Vs

1. Hon. Maithripala Sirisena
   The Minister of Defence
   Ministry of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

2. Hon. Ranil Wickremesinghe
   The Prime Minister of Sri Lanka
   The Prime Minister's Office
   58, Sir Earnest de Silva Mawatha
   Colombo 07.

3. Hon. Mahinda Rajapakshe
   The Leader of the Opposition
   Opposition Leader's Office
   117, Wijerama Mawatha
   Colombo 07.

4 Hemasiri Fernando
   Former Secretary of Defence
   Saranankara Mawatha
   Pamankada, Kirulapana.

5. The Secretary of Defence
   Ministry of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

6. Pujith Jayasundara
   Former Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01

6a. C.D. Wickremeratne
   Acting Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01

7. Hon. Attorney General
   Hon.Attorney Generals' Department,
   Colombo 12.

7a. Hon. Maithripala Sirisena
Hon. Former President and the former Minister of Defence of Sri Lanka
No. 61, Malalasekera Mawatha,
Colombo 7

Respondents

SC FR 166/2019

Saman Nandana Sirimanne
No.37/1C, Ranasura Mawatha
Wennawatte, Wellampitiya.

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Pujith Jayasundara
   Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01.

2. Hemasiri Fernando
   Secretary,
   Ministry of Defence
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

3. Priyalal Dasanayake
   Deputy Inspector General of Police
   Special Security Division
   440A, Dr. Colvin R.de Silva Mawatha
   Colombo 02.

4. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney Generals' Department,
   Colombo 12.

Respondents

SCFR 184/2019

1. Jude Dinuke Laknath Perera
   Unit No. 5C, No. 03, De Alwis Avenue (Off De Seram Road), Mount Lavinia.

2. Christine Bianca Shivanthi Perera
27/1, Andarawatte Road
Polhengoda, Colombo 05

3. Mathes Hewage Nimal Karunasiri
130/15A, Samanala Place,
Nawinna, Maharagama.

4. Lincolon Ramkumar Ramiah
32B, Central Gardens, Ekala.

Petitioners

Vs.

1. Maithreepala Sirisena
His Excellency the President/Hon. Minister of Defence, Ministry of Defence
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

1(a) Gotabaya Rajapakse
His Excellency the President
Presidential Secretariat
Galle Face, Colombo 01.

2. Ranil Wickremesinghe
Hon. Prime Minister and Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement and Rehabilitation, Northern Province Development and Youth Affairs.

2(a) Mahinda Rajapakse
Hon. Prime Minister and Minister of Economy & Policy Development and Buddhasasana, Cultural and Religious Affairs and Urban Development and Water Supplies & Housing Facilities.

3. Rishad Bathiudeen, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons, Co-operative Development and Vocational Training and Skills Development.

4. Rauff Hakeem
Hon. Minister of City Planning , Water Supply and Higher Education.

5. M.H.A. Haleem M.P.
Hon. Minister of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs.

6. Kabeer Hasheem M.P.
Hon. Minister of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development.

7. Harin Fernando, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports.

8. John Amarathunga M.P.
Hon. Minister of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs.

9. Gamini Jayawickrema Perera, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Buddhasasana & Wayamba Development.

10. Mangala Samaraweera, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Finance.

11. Lakshman Kiriella, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Public Enterprises, Kandyan Heritage and Development.

12. Thilak Marapana, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Foreign Affairs.

13. (Dr) Rajitha Senaratne, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Health, Nutrition and indigenous medicine.

14. Ravi Karunanayake, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Power, Energy and Business Development.

15. Vajira Abeywardane, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government.

16. Patali Champika Ranawaka M.P.
Hon. Minister of Mega Police and Western Development.

17. Navin Dissanayake M.P.
Hon. Minister of Plantation Industries.

18. P. Harison M.P.
Hon. Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affair, Livestock Development, Irrigation & Fisheries & Aquatic Resources Development.

19. Ranjith Madduma Bandara M.P.
Hon. Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management.

20. Gayantha Karunathileke, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms.

21. Sajith Premedasa, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Housing, Construction and Cultural Affairs.

22. Arjuna Ranathunga M.P.
Hon. Minister of Transport and Aviation.

23. U. Palani Digambaram. M.P.
Hon. Minister of Hill Country New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development.

24. (Mrs) Chandrani Bandara, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development.

25. (Mrs) Thalatha Athukorala M.P.
Hon. Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms.

26. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Education.

27. Sagala Ratnayake, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Ports & Shipping & Southern Development.

28. Mano Ganeshan, M.P.
Official Languages, Social Progress and Hindu Religious Affairs.

29. Daya Gamage, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment.

30. Malik Samarawickrema, M.P.
Hon. Minister of Development Strategies and International Trade.

2nd to 30th above , All c/o
Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers
Houses of Parliament
Sri Jayewardenepura Kotte.

31. Ruwan Wijewardene
Hon. State Minister of Defence
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

31(a) Chamal Rajapakse
Hon. State Minister of Defence
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

32. Hemasiri Fernando
Former Secretary of the Ministry of Defence.
No. 11/3, Saranankara Road, Dehiwala.

32(a) Major General (Ret.d) G.D.H. Kamal Gunaratne
Secretary of the Ministry of Defence.
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

33. Pujith Jayasundara
Inspector General of Police
Department of Sri Lanka
Head Office, Colombo 01.

34. Hon. Attorney General
Attorney Generals' Department,
Colombo 12.

35. Nimal Siripala de Silva
Hon. Minister of Justice Human Rights and Legal Reforms.

36. Arumugam Thondaman
Hon. Minister of Community Empowerment & Estate Infrastructure Development.

37. Dinesh Gunawardana
Hon. Minister of Foreign Relations and Skills Development, Employment and Labour Relations.

38. Douglas Devananda
Hon. Minister of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources.

39. Pavithra Devi Wanniarachchi
Hon. Minister of Women & Child Affairs & Social Security and Healthcare & Indigenous Medical Services.

40. Bandula Gunawardene
Hon. Minister of Information & Communication Technology and Higher Education , Technology & Innovation.

41. Janaka Bandara Tennakoon.
Hon. Minister of Public Administration Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government.

42. Chamal Rajapakse
Hon. Minister of Mahaweli, Agriculture, Irrigation and Rural Development and Internal Trade, Food Security and Consumer Welfare.

43. Dullus Alahapperuma
Hon. Minister of Education and Sports and Youth Affairs.

44. Johnston Fernando
Hon. Minister of Roads & Highways and Ports & Shipping.

45. Wimal Weerawansa
Hon. Minister Small and Medium Business and Enterprise Development and Industries and Supply Chain Management.

46. Mahinda Amaraweera
Hon. Minister of Passenger Transport Management and Power and Energy.

47. S.M. Chandrasena
Hon. Minister of Environment and Wildlife Resources and Lands &Land Development.

48. Ramesh Pathirana
Hon. Minister of Plantation Industries and Export Agriculture.

49. Prasanna Ranathunga
Hon. Minister of Industrial Export & Investment Promotion and Tourism & Civil Aviation.

35th to 49th above , All C/0.
Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers
Houses of Parliament
Sri Jayewardenepura Kotte.

Respondents

SCFR 188/2019

P.K.A.D. Sunil Perera
No. 9 B, Iddamal Place
Sirimal Uyana, Ratmalana.

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Attorney General
Attorney Generals' Department,
Colombo 12.
(On behalf of)
Maithripala Sirisena
President and Minister of Defence
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.
(as per the 19th Amendment)

2. Ranil Wickremesinghe
   Prime Minister
   Prime Minister's Office
   58, Sir Earnest de Silva Mawatha
   Colombo 07.

3. Hemasiri Fernando
   Former Defence Secretary
   Saranankara Mawatha
   Pamankada, Kirulapana.

4. General Shantha Kottegoda
   Secretary of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

5. Pujith Jayasundara
   Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   York Street, Colombo 01.

6. C.D. Wickremeratne
   Acting Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   York Street, Colombo 01.

7. Thilak Marapana, M.P.
   Minister of Foreign Affairs.
   National Security Council
   Ministry of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

8. Mangala Samaraweera, M.P.
   Minister of Finance.
   National Security Council
   Ministry of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

9. Ravinath Ariyasinghe
   Secretary for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
   National Security Council
   Ministry of Defence
   15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

10.R.H.S. Samaratunga
Secretary for the Ministry of Finance
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

11. Ravindra Wijegunaratne
Chief of the Defence Staff
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

12. Mahesh Senanayake
Commander of the Army
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

13. Piyal de Silva
Commander of the Navy
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

14. Kapila Jayampathi
Commander of the Air Force
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

15. Nilantha Jayawardane
Head of Intelligence Services
SIS Director
National Security Council
Ministry of Defence
15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha
Colombo 03.

16. Hon. Attorney General
Attorney Generals' Department,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

SCFR 191/2019

1. Rev. Fr. Galgana Mestrige Don Henry Marian Ashok Stephen
   281, Deans Road, Colombo.

2. Rev. Fr. Benedict Tennison
   Sarath Iddamalgoda, 'Tulana', Kohalwila Road, Gonawala, Kelaniya.

3.Rev. Fr. W.B.Paul Eventius Sherard Fernando Jayawardana Samata Sarana, Aluthmawatha Road,
   Modera, Mattakkuliya.

Petitioners

Vs.

1. Hemasiri Fernando
   Former Secretary to the Ministry of Defence
   C/o the Ministry of Defence
   Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

2. Lt. General Shantha Kottegoda
   Secretary, Ministry of Defence
   C/o the Ministry of Defence
   Baladaksha Mawatha
   Colombo 03.

3. Mr. Pujith Jayasundara
   Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01.

4. C.D. Wickremeratne
   Acting Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters
   Colombo 01.

5. Mr. Udaya Seneviratne
   Secretary to His Excellency the President
   Presidential Secretariat
   Colombo 1.

6. Hon. Ranil Wickremesinghe
   Prime Minister, Temple Trees., Colombo 3.

7. Admiral Ravindra Wijegunaratne
   Chief of Defence Staff
   Office of the CDS, Navy Headquarters
   SLNS, Parakrama , Flagstaff Street, Colombo 1.

8. Lt. General Mahesh Senanayake
   Commander of the Sri Lanka Army
   Army Headquarters, Colombo 1.

9. Vice Admiral Piyal de Silva
   Commander of the Sri Lanka Navy
   Naval Headquarters
   SLNS Parakrama , Flagstaff Street, Colombo 1.

10. Air Marshal Kapila Jayampathi
    Commander of the Sri Lanka Air Force
    Air Force Headquarters, Kumararatnam Road,
    Colombo 2.

11. Nilantha Jayawardane
    Senior Inspector General of Police and the Head of State Intelligence Service (SIS) No. 32, Malalasekera Mawatha, Colombo 08.

12. Priyalal Dasanayake
    Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police
    (Ministerial Security Division)
    440A, Dr. Colvin R.de Silva Mawatha
    Colombo 02.

13. Hon. Attorney General
    Attorney Generals' Department,
    Colombo 12.

Respondents

SCFR 193/2019

Hilmy Ahamed
716/2, D.P. Wijesinghe Mawatha, Pelawatte, Battaramulla.

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Hon. Attorney General
   Attorney Generals' Department,
   Colombo 12.

1A. Mithripala Sirisena
(Former President of Sri Lanka)
No. 61, Malalasekera Mawatha, Colombo 7.

2. Hon. Ranil Wickremesinghe
Prime Minister's office, Sir Earnest De Silva Mawatha, Colombo 7.

3. Thilak Marapana,
Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building, Sir Baron Jayathilleke Mawatha, Colombo 1.

4. Mangala Samaraweera, M.P.
Minister of Finance.
Ministry of Finance
The Secretariat, Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

5. Hemasiri Fernando
Former Secretary of Defence

6. Ravinatha Aryasinha
Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Republic Building, Sir Baron Jayathilleke Mawatha, Colombo 1.

7. R.H.S. Samaratunga
Permanent Secretary for the Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Finance
The Secretariat, Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

8. Ravindra Wijegunaratne
Chief of Defence Staff,
Block No. 5, BMICH
Bauddaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

9. Mahesh Senanayake
Commander of the Army
Army Headquarters, Directorate of Media, 4th Floor, Premier Pacific Building, 28. R.A. De Mel Mawatha, Colombo 4.

10. Piyal de Silva
Commander of the Navy, P.O. Box 593
Navy Headquarters Colombo 1.

11. Kapila Jayampathi
Commander of the Air Force
Sri Lanka Air Force Headquarters,
Kumararatnam Road, Colombo 2.

12. Pujith Jayasundara
Inspector General of Police
Sri Lanka Police Headquarters
Church Street, Colombo 13.

13. Nilantha Jayawardane
Sri Lanka Police State Intelligence Service
Director, Sri Lanka Police Headquarters
Church Street, Colombo 13.

Respondents

SC.FR 195/2019

1. Mr. Kalinga N. Indatissa,
President's Counsel,
The President,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 20, 1st Lane,
Epitamulle Road,
Pitakotte.

Mr. Saliya Pieris,
President's Counsel,
The President,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of
No. 79/3, Kuruppu Road,
Colombo 8.

SUBSTITUTED 1ST PETITIONER

2. Mr. W.J. Shavindra Fernando,
President's Counsel,
Deputy President,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,

No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 4/3, Sri Sumangala Mawatha, Ratmalana.

Mr. Anura Meddegoda
President's Counsel,
Deputy President,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 195/21, Royal Court,
Koswatte Road, Nawala.
SUBSTITUTED 2ND PETITIONER

3. Mr. Kaushalya Nawaratne,
Attorney-at-Law and Secretary,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 8B, 1st Lane,
Pagoda Road,
Nugegoda.

Mr. Rajeev Amarasuriya,
The Secretary,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 8/2, Coniston Place,
Colombo 7.

SUBSTITUTED 3RD PETITIONER

4. Mr. A.W. Nalin Chandika De Silva,
Attorney-at-Law,

The Treasurer,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 321/15a, Rankethyaya Road,
Makola South,
Makola.
Mr. Rajindh Perera,
Attorney-at-Law,
The Treasurer,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 457/14A, Nawala Road,
Rajagiriya.

SUBSTITUTED 4TH PETITIONER

5. Mr. V. De Livera Tennekoon,
Attorney-at-Law,
The Assistant Secretary,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 74/5, Jaya Road,
Udahamulla,
Nugegoda.

Mr. T.M.S. Pasindu Silva
Attorney-at-Law,
The Assistant Secretary,
Bar Association of Sri Lanka,
No. 153, Mihindu Mawatha,
Colombo 12.

And also of

No. 6/1, Watarappola Road,
Mt. Lavinia.
SUBSTITUTED 5TH PETITIONER

PETITIONERS

Vs.

1. Gen. S.H.S. Kottegoda (Retd.)
   Secretary,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

2. Hemasiri Fernando,
   Former Secretary,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

3. Pujitha Jayasundera,
   Inspector General of Police,
   (Presently on compulsory leave),
   Police Headquarters,
   Church Street,
   Colombo 01.

4. C.D. Wickramaratne,
   Acting Inspector General of Police,
   Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police,
   Police Headquarters,
   Church Street,
   Colombo 01.

5. Hon. Ruwan Wijewardana,
   State Minister of Defense,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5,
   Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

6. N.K.G.K. Nemmawatta,
   Secretary,
   State Minister of Defense,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

7. A.N. Sisira Mendis,
   Chief of National Intelligence,
   Office of the Chief of National Intelligence,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5,
   Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

8. Hon. Ranil Wickramasinghe,
   Prime Minister of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka, Prime Minister's Office,
   No. 58,
   Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

   And also

   Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement & Rehabilitation, Northern Province Development and Youth Affairs, Ministry of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement & Rehabilitation, Northern Province Development and Youth Affairs, Miloda (Old Times Building),
   1st Floor, Bristol Street,
   Colombo 01.

9. Hon. Mangala Samaraweera,
   Minister of Finance and Mass Media,
   Ministry of Finance and Mass Media,
   Administration Building, 2nd Floor, New Building, The Secretariat,
   Colombo 01.

10. Hon. Tilak Marapana,
    Minister of Foreign Affairs,
    Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
    Republic Building,
    Colombo 01.

11. Hon. John Amarathunga,
    Minister of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Affairs,
    Ministry of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Affairs, Office of the Minister, 7th Floor, No. 78, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

12. Hon. Gamini Jayawickrama Perera,
Minister of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
Ministry of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
No. 35, Sreemath Anagarika Dharmapala Mawatha, Colombo 07.

13. Hon. Lakshman Kiriella,
Minister of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
Ministry of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
Level 36, East Tower, World Trade Center,
Echelon Square, Colombo 01.

14.Hon Rauff Hakeem,
Minister of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Ministry of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Lakdiya Medura, No. 35, New Parliament Road,
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

15.Hon. Dr. Rajitha Seneratne,
Minister of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
Ministry of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
No. 385, Rev. Baddegama Wimalawansa Thero Mawatha, Colombo 10.

16. Hon Vajira Abeywardena,
Minister of Internal and Home Affairs, and Provincial Councils, and Local Government,
Ministry of Internal and Home Affairs, and Provincial Councils, and Local Government,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

17.Hon Rishad Bathiudeen,
Minister of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
Ministry of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
P.O. Box 570, No. 73/1, Galle Road,
Colombo 03.

18.Hon. Patali Champika Ranawaka,
Minister of Megapolis and Western Development,
Ministry of Megapolis and Western Development,
17th and 18th Floor, "SUHURUPAYA",
Subhuthipura Road, Battaramulla.

19. Hon Ravi Karunanayake,
Minister of Power and Renewable Energy,
Ministry of Power and Renewable Energy,
No. 72, Ananda Coomaraswamy Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

20. Hon. Thalatha Athukorala,
Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Ministry of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Superior Court Complex, Colombo 12.

21. Hon. P. Harrison,
Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resource Development,
Ministry of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resource Development,
No. 288, Sri Jayawardenapura Mawatha,
Sri Jayawardenapura Kotte.

22. Hon. Kabir Hashim,
Minister of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
Ministry of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
Maganeguma Mahagedara,
No. 126, Denzil Kobbekaduwa Mawatha,
Koswatta, Battaramulla.

23. Hon. Gayantha Karunathilaka,
Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Ministry of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
"Mihikatha Medura", Land Secretariat,
No. 1200/6, Rajamalwatta, Avenue,
Battaramulla.

24. Hon. Sajith Premadasa,
Minister of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
Ministry of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
2nd Floor, Sethsiripaya, Battaramulla.

25. Hon. Arjuna Ranatunga,
Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation,
Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation,
No. 01, Wijewardena Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

26. Hon. U. Palani Digambaram,
Minister of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development, Ministry of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
No. 45, St. Michael's Street, Colombo 03.

27. Hon. Chandrani Bandara,
Minister of Women and Child Affairs, and Dry Zone Development,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs, and Dry Zone Development, Sethsiripaya, (Stage II) 5th Floor, Battaramulla.

28. Hon. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

29. Hon. H.A. Haleem,
Minister of Posts, Postal Services, and Muslim Affairs,
Ministry of Posts, Postal Services, and Muslim Affairs,
6th and 8th Floor,
Postal Headquarters Building,
No. 310, D.R. Wijewardana Road,
Colombo 10.

30. Hon. Sagala Ratnayake,
Minister of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
Ministry of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

31. Hon Harin Fernando,
    Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
    Ministry of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
    No. 79/1, 5th Lane, Colombo 03.

32. Hon. Mano Ganesan,
    Minister of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
    Ministry of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
    No. 40, Buthgamuwa Road, Rajagiriya,
    P.O. Box 1566, Colombo.

33. Hon. Daya Gamage,
    Minister of Labour, Trade Unions Relations, and Social Empowerment,
    Ministry of Labour, Trade Unions Relations, and Social Empowerment, 2nd Floor, Land Secretariat, Colombo 05.

34. Hon. Ranjith Maddumabandara,
    Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
    Ministry of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
    Independence Square, Colombo 07.

35. Hon. Navin Dissanayake,
    Minister of Plantation Industries,
    Ministry of Plantation Industries,
    11th Floor, Sethsiripaya (Stage II),
    Battaramulla.

36. Hon. Malik Samarawickrama,
    Minister of Development Strategies and Internal Trade,
    Ministry of Development Strategies and Internal Trade, 6th Floor, West Tower, World Trade Centre,
    Echelon Square, Colombo 01.

37. Sumith Abeysinghe,
    Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers,
    Office of the Cabinet of Ministers,
    Republic Building,

Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha, Colombo 01.

38. Udaya Seneviratne,
Secretary to the President,
Presidential Secretariat,
Galle Face, Colombo 01.

39. Saman Ekanayake,
Secretary to the Prime Minister,
Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58, Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

40. Admiral Ravindra Wijegunaratne,
Chief of Defense Staff,
Office of Chief of Defense Staff,
Block No. 5, BMICH,
Bauddhaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

41. Lieutenant General Shavendra Silva,
Commander of the Army,
4th Floor, Premier Pacific Building,
No. 28, R.A. De Mel Mawatha,
Colombo 04.

42. Vice Admiral K.K.V.P.H. De Silva,
Commander of the Navy,
Naval Head Quarters, Colombo.

43. Air Marshal Kapila Jayampathy,
Commander of the Air Force,
Sri Lanka Air Force Headquarters,
No. 594, Colombo 02.

44. Ravinatha Aryasinha,
Secretary,
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilake Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

45. Dr. R.H.S. Samarathunga,
Secretary, Ministry of Finance,
The Secretariat,
Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

46. D.W.R.D. Seneviratne,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Crimes Investigation Division and Terrorism
Investigation Division,
P.O. Box 537, New Secretariat Complex,
Colombo 01.

47. M.R. Latif,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police,
The Commandant of the Special Task Force,

Headquarters of the Special Task Force,
Bauddhaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

48. D.G.N. Jayawardana,
Senior Deputy General of Police – State
Intelligence Service,
No. 10, Cambridge Place, Colombo 07.

49. Nandana Munasinghe,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Western Province,
Police Headquarters, Church Street,
Colombo 01.

50. H.D.K.S. Jayasekara,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Eastern Province,
Office of the Senior Deputy Inspector
General of Police,
Lady Manning Road, Batticaloa.

51. Jagath Abeysiriwardana,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
North Central Province and North Western Province,
Senior DIG's Office of North Central
Province,
Meththa Mawatha, Air Force Camp Road,
Anuradhapura.

And also of
Senior DIG Office of North Western Province, Kurunegala.

52. K.E.R.L. Fernando,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Sabaragamuwa Province,
Senior DIG's Office of Sabaragamuwa
Province,

Pothgulvihara Mawatha,
Muvagama, Rathnapura.

53.S.M. Wickramasinghe,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police
of the Central Province and Uva Province,
Senior DIG's Office of Central Province,
No. 2, Pushpadana Mawatha, Kandy.

And also of
Senior DIG's Office of Uva Province,
No. 161/1, Mahiyangana Road,
Badulla.

54. K.E.R.L. Fernando,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Southern Province,
Senior DIG's Office of Southern Province,
Nuper, Matara.

55.Y.W.R. Wijegunawardana,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Northern Province,
Senior DIG's Office of Northern Province,
Palali Road, Kankasanthurai.

56. Priyalal Dissanayake,
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
Special Security Division,
Police Headquarters, Church Street,
Colombo 01.

57. The Archbishop of Colombo,
Archdiocese of Colombo,
Archbishop's House,
Borella, Colombo 08.

58. The Incorporated Trustees of Church of Ceylon,
No. 368/3a, Bauddhaloka Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

59. Bishop of Colombo,
Diocese of Colombo,
Church of Ceylon,
No. 368/3a,
Bauddhaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

60. Bishop of Kurunegala,
Diocese of Kurunegala,

Church of Ceylon,
Bishop's Office, Kandy Road,
Kurunegala.

61. M.L.A.M. Hizbulla,
Governor's Secretariat,
Lower Road, Orr's Hill,
Trincomalee.

62. Venerable Athuraliye Rathana Thero,
Sadaham Sewana,
Gothami Uyana,
Obesekarapura, Rajagiriya.

63. N.P. Illangakoon,
Advisor to the Ministry of Defence,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

64. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney General's Office,
Colombo 12.

65. Ven. Mawarale Bhaddiya Thero,
Arya Nekethanaya,
No. 16B,
Sri Seelalankara Mawatha,
Habarakada, Athurugiriya.

66A. Hon. Maithripala Sirisena
Former President of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka,
No. 02, Mahagama Sekara Mawatha,
Colombo 05.

ADDED 66A RESPONDENT

67A. Maj. Gen. Jagath Alwis,
Chief of National Intelligence
Office of the Chief of National Intelligence
Ministry of Defense,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

ADDED 67A RESPONDENT

68A. S. Amarasekara,
Secretary to the Cabinet of Ministers,
Officer of the Cabinet of Ministers,

Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

ADDED 68A RESPONDENT

69A. Dr. P.B. Jayasundara,
Secretary to the President,
Presidential Secretariat,
Galle Face, Colombo 01.

ADDED 69A RESPONDENT

70A. Gamini Senarath,
Secretary to the Prime Minister,
Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58, Sir Earnest de Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

ADDED 70A RESPONDENT

71A. Maj. Gen. (Retd) Kamal Gunaratne,
Secretary,
Ministry of Defense,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

ADDED 71A RESPONDENT

72A. S.R. Attygalle,
Secretary,
Ministry of Finance,
The Secretariat,
Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

ADDED 72A RESPONDENT

73A. Brigadier Suresh Sallay,
Senior Deputy General of Police – State Intelligence Service,
No. 10, Cambridge Place,
Colombo 07.

ADDED 73A RESPONDENT

74A. Hon. Mahinda Rajapaksa,
Prime Minister of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka,

Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58, Sir Earnest de Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

And also of

Minister of Finance, Economy and Policy Development, Buddhasasana, Cultural and Religious Affairs, Urban Development, Water Supply and Housing Facilities, Ministry of Finance, The Secretariat,
Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

ADDED 74A RESPONDENT

75A. Hon. Nimal Siripala De Silva,
Minister of Justice, Human Rights, and Legal Reforms,
Ministry of Justice, Human Resources, and Legal Reforms, Superior Courts Complex, Colombo 12.

ADDED 75A RESPONDENT

76A. Hon. Arumugam Thondaman,
Minister of Community Empowerment & Estate Infrastructure Development,
Ministry of Community Empowerment & Estate Infrastructure,
No. 53, St. Michaels Road,
Colombo 03.

ADDED 76A RESPONDENT

77A. Hon. Dinesh Gunawardana,
Minister of Foreign Affairs, Skills Development, Employment, Labour Relations, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Skills Development, Employment, Labour Relations,
Republic Building,
Sir Barron Jayathilake Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

ADDED 77A RESPONDENT

78A. Hon. Douglas Theevanantha,
Minister of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources,
Ministry of Fisheries and Aquatic Resources,
Maligawatte Road, Colombo 01.

ADDED 78A RESPONDENT

79A. Hon. Pavithra Wanniarachchi,
Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Social Security, Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs and Social Security, Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services,
No. 115/2, Kotte – Bope Road,
Battaramulla.

ADDED 79A RESPONDENT

80A. Hon. Bandula Gunawardana,
Minister of Information and Communication Technology, Higher Education, Technology & Innovation, Ministry of Information Technology, Higher Education, Technology & Innovation, Miloda Building, Bristol Street, Colombo 01.

ADDED 80A RESPONDENT

81A. Hon. Janaka Bandara Tennakoon,
Minister of Public Administration, Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Ministry of Public Administration, Home Affairs, Provincial Councils and Local Government, Independence Square, Colombo 07.

ADDED 81A RESPONDENT

82A. Hon. Chamal Rajapaksa,
State Minister of Defense,
Ministry of Defense,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

And also

Minister of Mahaweli, Agriculture,
Irrigation and Rural Development,
Internal Trade, Food Security and
Consumer Welfare,
Ministry of Mahaweli, Agriculture,
Irrigation and Rural Development,
Internal Trade, Food Security and
Consumer Welfare, Sobadam Piyasa,
No. 416/C/1, Robert Gunawardana
Mawatha, Battaramulla.

ADDED 82A RESPONDENT

83A. Hon. Dulas Alahapperuma,
Minister of Education, Sports and Youth,
Ministry of Education, Sports, and Youth,
Isurupaya, Battaramulla – Pannipitiya
Road,
Battaramulla.

ADDED 83A RESPONDENT

84A. Hon. Johnston Fernando, Minister of Roads & Highways, Ports &
Shipping,
Ministry of Roads & Highways, Ports &
Shipping,
No. 27, Bristol Street, Colombo 01.

ADDED 84A RESPONDENT

85A. Hon. Wimal Weerawansa,
Minister of Small and Medium Business and Enterprise Development, Industries
and Supply Chain Management,
Ministry of Small and Medium Business
and Enterprise Development, Industries
and Supply Chain Management,
07th Floor, West Tower and, 36th Floor,
East Tower, World Trade Centre,
Echelon Square, Colombo 01.

ADDED 85A RESPONDENT

86A. Hon. Mahinda Amaraweera,
Minister of Passenger Transport Management,
Power & Energy,

Ministry of Passenger Transport Management,
Power & Energy,
7th Floor, Sethsiripaya, Stage II,
Battaramulla.

ADDED 86A RESPONDENT

87A. Hon. S.M. Chandrasena,
Minister of Environment, Wildlife
Resources, Land & Land Development,
Ministry of Environment, Wildlife
Resources, Land & Land Development,
Sobadam Piyasa, No. 416/C/1,
Robert Gunawardana Mawatha,
Battaramulla.

ADDED 87A RESPONDENT

88A. Hon. Ramesh Pathirana,
Minister of Plantation Industries, &
Export Agriculture,
Ministry of Plantations Industries, &
Export Agriculture,
11th Floor, Sethsiripaya, 2nd Stage,
Battaramulla.

ADDED 88A RESPONDENT

89A. Hon. Prasanna Ranatunga,
Minister of Industrial Exports and Investment
Promotions, Tourism, & Aviation,
Ministry of Industrial Exports and Investment
Promotions, Tourism, & Aviation,
3, 73/1, Galle Road, Colombo 3.

ADDED 89A RESPONDENT

90A. Ven. Bengamuwe Nalaka Thero,
Sri Pagnanda Dharmayathanaya,
Gamunu Mawatha, Station Road, Kelaniya.

ADDED 90A RESPONDENT

91A. Ven. Angulugalle Siri Jinananda Thero,
Sri Vimalaramaya, Isurupura, Malabe

ADDED 91A RESPONDENT

92A. Ven. Ratnapure Seevali Thero,
Samadi Viharaya,
Edirisinghe Road, Gangodawila,
Nugegoda.

ADDED 92A RESPONDENT

93A. Ven. Madille Pangyaloka Thero,
Samadi Viharaya, Edirisinghe Road,
Gangodawila, Nugegoda.

ADDED 93A RESPONDENT

94A. Alhaj Abdul Jawaaldhalim Walliyyullah
Trust, Baduriya Jumma Mosque Road, Kattankudi.

ADDED 94A RESPONDENT

RESPONDENTS

SCFR 196/2019

Seerangan Sumithra
No.120/107, Sangamitta Mawatha,
Kotahena,
Colombo 13.
Petitioner

Vs.

1. Mr. Ranil Wickremesinghe
Hon. Prime Minister of the Republic
Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement and Rehabilitation
Northern Province Development and
Youth Affairs,
Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58, Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

2. Mr. Thilak Marapana,
Minister of Foreign Affairs
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

3. Mr. Mangala Samaraweera
   Minister of Finance and Mass Media
   Ministry of Finance & Mass Media,
   The Secretariat, Lotus Road,
   Colombo 01.

4. Mr. Ravinatha Aryasinha
   Secretary to Ministry of Foreign Affairs
   Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
   Republic Building,
   Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
   Colombo 01.

5. Dr. R.H.S.Samaratunga
   Secretary to the treasury and Ministry of Finance,
   Ministry of Finance,
   The Secretariat, Lotus Road,
   Colombo 01.

6. Mr. Hemasiri Fernando
   Former Secretary to Ministry of Defence
   C/O of Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
   Ministry of Defence,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

7. Mr. Pujith Jayasundara
   Inspector General of Police
   C/O Acting Inspector General of Police
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

8. Mr. Nilantha Jayawardena
   Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police-State Intelligence Service
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

9. Admiral Ravindra C. Wijegunaratne
   Chief of Defence Staff,
   Office of Chief of Defence Staff,
   Block No. 05, BMICH,
   Bauddhaloka Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

10. Lt. General Mahesh Senanayake
    Commander of Sri Lanka Army
    Army Headquarters,
    Colombo 03.

11. Vice Admiral Piyal De Silva,
    Commander of Sri Lanka Navy
    Naval Headquarters,
    Colombo 01.

12. Marshal Kapila Jayampathy
    Commander of Sri Lanka Air Force
    Air Force Headquarters,
    Colombo 02.

13. Mr. Ruwan Wijewardene
    Hon. State Minister of Defence and Non-Cabinet Minister of Mass Media
    Ministry of Defence,
    No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
    Colombo 03.

14. Mr. Udaya Ranjith Seneviratne
    Secretary of His Excellency the President
    Presidential Secretariat,
    Galle Face, Colombo 01.

15. General S.H.S. Kottegoda
    Secretary to Ministry of Defence
    Ministry of Defence,
    No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
    Colombo 03.

16. Mr. C.D.Wickramaratne
    Acting Inspector General of Police,
    Senior Deputy Inspector of Police,
    Police Headquarters, Colombo 01.

17. Mr. Priyalal Dasanayake
    Deputy Inspector of Police –Special Security
    Office of Deputy Inspector of Police-Special Security,
    No. 440A, Dr. Colvin R. De Silva Mawatha, Colombo 02.

18. Mr. Johan Amarathunga
    Minister of Tourism Development,
    Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs
    Ministry of Tourism Development,
    Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
    6th Floor, Rakshana Mandiriya ,
    No. 21, Vaushall Street, Colombo 02.

19. Mr. Gamini Jayawickrema Perera,
    Minister of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development
    Ministry of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
    No. 135, Sreemath Anagarika Dharmapala Mawatha, Colombo 07.

20. Mr. Laxman Kiriella
    Minister of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development
    Ministry of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
    36th Floor, West Tower,
    World Trade Centre, Echelon Square,
    Colombo 01.

21. Mr. Rauff Hakeem
    Minister of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education
    Ministry of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education
    Lakdiya Medura,
    No. 35, New Parliament Road,
    Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

22. Dr. Rajitha Senaratne
    Minister of Health Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine
    Ministry of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
    "Suwasiripaya", Rev. Baddegama Wimalawansa Thero Mawatha, Colombo 10.

23. Mr. Ravi Karunanayake
    Minister of Power, Energy and Business Development
    Ministry of Power, Energy and Business Development,
    No. 72, Ananda Coomaraswamy Mawatha, Colombo 07.

24. Mr. Vajira Abeywardena
    Minister of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government

Ministry of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,
No. 330, Union Place,
Colombo 02.

25. Mr. Rishad Bathiudeen
Minister of Industry and Commerce,
Resettlement of Protracted Displaced
Persons ad Co-operative Development
Ministry of Industry and Commerce,
Resettlement of Protracted Displaced
Persons and Co-operative Development,
No. 73/1, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

26. Mr. Patali Champika Ranawaka
Minister of Megapolis and Western Development
Ministry of Megapolis and Western Development,
17th and 18th Floors, ''SUHURUPAYA"
Subhuthipura Road, Battaramulla.

27.Mr. Navin Dissanayake,
Minister of Plantation Industries
Ministry of Plantation Industries,
08th Floor, "Sethsiripaya", 2nd Stage,
Battaramulla.

28.Mr. P.Harison
Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development,
Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic
Resources Development
Ministry of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development,
Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic
Resources Development,
8th Floor, No. 288,
Sri Jayawardhanepura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

29.Mr. Kabir Hashim
Minister of Highways and Road
Development and Petroleum Resources Development, Ministry of Highways and Road, Development and Petroleum
Resources Development, 9th Floor,
Maganeduma Mahamedura,Denszil
Kobbemaduwa Mawatha,

Koswatta, Battaramulla.

30.Mr. Ranjith Madduma Bandara
Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Ministry of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

31.Mr. Gayantha Karunathilaka
Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Ministry of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms Stage 11, Sethsiripaya,
Battaramulla.

32.Mr. Sajith Premadasa
Minister of Housing, Construction and Cultural Affairs,
Ministry of Housing, Construction and Cultural Affairs,
02nd Floor, Sethsiripaya,
Battaramulla.

33.Mr. Arjuna Ranatunga
Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation
Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation,
07th Floor, Sethsiripaya, Stage 11,
Battaramulla.

34.Mr. U. Palani Digambaram
Minister of Hill Country New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
Ministry of Hill Country New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
No. 45, St. Michaels Road,
Colombo 03.

35.Ms. Chandrani Bandara
Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,06th Floor, Sethsiripaya, Stage 11, Battaramulla.

36. Ms. Thalatha Atukorala
Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms
Ministry of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Superior Court Complex, Colombo 12.

37. Mr. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
"Isurupaya", Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

38. Mr. M.H.A. Haleem,
Minister of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Ministry of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Postal Headquarters Building,
No. 310, D.R. Wijewardana Road,
Colombo 10.

39. Mr. Sagala Ratnayake
Minister of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
Ministry of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

40. Mr. Harin Fernando
Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports
Ministry of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
No.437, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

41. Mr. Mano Ganesan
Minister of National Integration, Official Languages, Socialist Progress and Hindu Religious Affairs,
Ministry of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress and Hindu Religious Affairs,
No.40, Buthgamuwa Road, Rajagiriya.

42. Mr. Daya Gamage
Minister of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment, Ministry of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment, 1st Floor, Stage 11, "Sethsiripaya",
Battaramulla.

43. Mr. Malik Samarawickrema
Minister of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Ministry of Development Strategies and International Trade, Level 30, West Tower, World Trade Centre, Colombo 01.

44. Hon. Attorney General,
Department of the Attorney General,
Colombo 12.

44A. Mr. Maithripala Serisena
Hon. Former President of Sri Lanka
No. 61, Mahagamasekara Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

Respondents

Dr. Visakesa Chandrasekaram,
No. 62/3, Mayura Place,
Colombo 06.

SC FR Application No. 197/19

Petitioner

Vs

1. Mr. Ranil Wickramasinghe,
Hon. Prime Minister of the Republic, Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement and Rehabilitation,
Northern Province Development and Youth Affairs,
Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58, Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

2. Mr. Tilak Marapana,
Minister of Foreign Affairs,
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

3. Mr. Mangala Samaraweera,
Minister of Finance and Mass Media,
Ministry of Finance and Mass Media,
The Secretariat, Lotus Road,
Colombo 01.

4. Mr. Ravinatha Aryasinha,
   Secretary to Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
   Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
   Republic Building,
   Sir Baron Jayathilake Mawatha,
   Colombo 01.

5. Dr. R.H.S. Samarathunga,
   Secretary to the Treasury and Ministry of Finance,
   Ministry of Finance,
   The Secretariat,
   Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

6. Mr. Hemasiri Fernando,
   Former Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
   C/O of Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5,
   Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

7. Mr. Pujith Jayasundera,
   Inspector General of Police,
   C/O Acting Inspector General of Police,
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

8. Mr. Nilantha Jayawardena
   Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police – State Intelligence Service,
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

9. Admiral Ravindra C. Wijegunaratne,
   Chief of Defense Staff,
   Office of Chief of Defense Staff,
   Block No. 5, BMICH,
   Bauddhaloka Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

10. Lt. General Mahesh Senanayake,
    Commander of Sri Lanka Army,
    Army Headquarters,
    Colombo 03

11. Vice Admiral Piyal De Silva,
    Commander of Sri Lanka Navy,
    Naval Head Quarters,
    Colombo 01.

12. Marshal Kapila Jayampathy,
    Commander of Sri Lanka Air Force,
    Air Force Headquarters,
    Colombo 02.

13. Mr. Ruwan Wijewardana,
    Hon. State Minister of Defense and Non Cabinet Minister of Mass Media,
    Ministry of Defense,
    No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
    Colombo 03.

14. Mr. Udaya Ranjith Seneviratne,
    Secretary to His Excellency the President,
    Presidential Secretariat,
    Galle Face,
    Colombo 01.

15. General S.H.S. Kottegoda
    Secretary to Ministry of Defense,
    Ministry of Defense,
    No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
    Colombo 03.

16. Mr. C.D. Wickramaratne,
    Acting Inspector General of Police,
    Senior Deputy Inspector of Police,
    Police Headquarters,
    Colombo 01.

17. Mr. Priyalal Dassanayake,
    Deputy Inspector of Police – Special Security,
    Office of Deputy Inspector of Police – Special Security,
    No. 440A, Dr. Colvin R. De Silva Mawatha,
    Colombo 02

18. Mr. John Amarathunga,
    Minister of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
    Ministry of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
    6th Floor,
    Rakshana Mandiraya,
    No. 21, Vaushall Street,
    Colombo 02.

.

19. Mr. Gamini Jayawickrama Perera,
Minister of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
Ministry of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
No. 135, Sreemath Anagarika Dharmapala Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

20 Mr. Laxman Kiriella,
Minister of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
Ministry of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
36th Floor, West Tower, World Trade Center,
Echelon Square, Colombo 01.

21. Mr. Rauff Hakeem,
Minister of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Ministry of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Lakdiya Medura,
No. 35, New Parliament Road,
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

22. Dr. Rajitha Senaratne,
Minister of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
Ministry of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
"Suwasiripaya",
Rev. Baddegama Wimalawansa Thero Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

23. Mr. Ravi Karunanayake,
Minister of Power, Energy and Business Development,
Ministry of Power, Energy and Business Development,
No. 72, Ananda Coomaraswamy Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

24. Mr. Vajira Abeywardena,
Minister of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,
Ministry of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,
No. 330, Union Place, Colombo 02.

25. Mr. Rishad Bathiudeen,
Minister of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
Ministry of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development, No. 73/1, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

26. Mr. Patali Champika Ranawaka,
Minister of Megapolis and Western Development,
Ministry of Megapolis and Western Development,
17th and 18th Floors,
"SUHURUPAYA",
Subhuthipura Road, Battaramulla.

27. Mr. Navin Dissanayake,
Minister of Plantation Industries,
Ministry of Plantation Industries,
08th Floor, "Sethsiripaya",
2nd Stage,
Battaramulla.

28. Mr. P. Harrison,
Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
Ministry of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
8th Floor, No. 288, Sri Jayawardenapura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

29. Mr. Kabir Hashim,
Minister of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
Ministry of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
9th Floor, Maganeguma Mahamedura,
Denzil Kobbekaduwa Mawatha,
Koswatta, Battaramulla.

30. Mr. Ranjith Madduma Bandara,
Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Ministry of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Independence Square,
Colombo 07.

31. Mr. Gayantha Karunathilaka,
Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Ministry of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Stage II, Sethsiripaya,
Battaramulla.

32. Mr. Sajith Premadasa,
Minister of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
Ministry of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
2nd Floor, Sethsiripaya,
Battaramulla.

33. Mr. Arjuna Ranatunga,
Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation,
Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation,
7th Floor,
Sethsiripaya, Stage II,
Battaramulla.

34. Mr. U. Palani Digambaram,
Minister of Hill Country, New Villages,
Infrastructure and Community Development,
Ministry of Hill Country, New Villages,
Infrastructure and Community Development,
No. 45, St. Michael's Street,
Colombo 03.

35. Ms. Chandrani Bandara,
Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
6th Floor,
Sethsiripaya, (Stage II)
Battaramulla.

36. Ms. Thalatha Athukorala,
Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Ministry of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Superior Court Complex,
Colombo 12.

37. Mr. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
"Isurupaya",
Pelawatta,
Battaramulla.

38. Mr. M.H.A. Haleem,
Minister of Postal Services, and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Ministry of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Postal Headquarters Building,
No. 310, D.R. Wijewardana Road,
Colombo 10.

39. Mr. Sagala Ratnayake,
Minister of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
Ministry of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

40. Mr. Harin Fernando,
Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
Ministry of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
No. 437, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

41. Mr. Mano Ganesan,
Minister of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
Ministry of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
No. 40, Buthgamuwa Road, Rajagiriya,

42. Mr. Daya Gamage,
Minister of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
Ministry of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
1st Floor, Stage II, "Sethsiripaya",
Battaramulla.

43. Mr. Malik Samarawickrema,
Minister of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Ministry of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Level 30, West Tower,
World Trade Centre,
Colombo 01.

44. Hon. Attorney General,
Department of the Attorney General,
Colombo 12.

44A. Mr. Maithripala Sirisena,
Hon. Former President of Sri Lanka,
No. 61, Mahagamasekara Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

Respondents

SC FR 198/2019

Pussewela Kankanamge Kasun Amila Pussewela

No. 36, Thalgahahena Lane,

Bataganvila,

Galle,

Petitioner

Vs

1. Mr. Ranil Wickramasinghe,
Hon. Prime Minister of the Republic, Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement and Rehabilitation,
Northern Province Development and Youth Affairs,
Prime Minister's Office,
No. 58,
Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha, Colombo 07.

2. Mr. Tilak Marapana,
Minister of Foreign Affairs,
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

3. Mr. Mangala Samaraweera,
Minister of Finance and Mass Media,
Ministry of Finance and Mass Media,
The Secretariat, Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

4. Mr. Ravinatha Aryasinha,
Secretary to Ministry of Foreign Affairs,

Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilake Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

5. Dr. R.H.S. Samaratunga,
Secretary to the Treasury and Ministry of Finance,
Ministry of Finance,
The Secretariat,
Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

6. Mr. Hemasiri Fernando,
Former Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
C/O of Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
Ministry of Defence,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

7. Mr. Pujith Jayasundara,
Inspector General of Police,
C/O Acting Inspector General of Police,
Police Headquarters, Colombo 01.

8. Mr. Nilantha Jayawardena
Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police – State Intelligence Service,
Police Headquarters, Colombo 01.

9. Admiral Ravindra C. Wijegunaratne,
Chief of Defense Staff,
Office of Chief of Defense Staff,
Block No. 5, BMICH,
Bauddhaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

10. Lt. General Mahesh Senanayake,
Commander of Sri Lanka Army,
Army Headquarters, Colombo 03

11. Vice Admiral Piyal De Silva,
Commander of Sri Lanka Navy,
Naval Head Quarters, Colombo 01.

12. Marshal Kapila Jayampathy,
Commander of Sri Lanka Air Force,

Air Force Headquarters, Colombo 02.

13. Mr. Ruwan Wijewardene,
Hon. State Minister of Defense and Non Cabinet Minister of Mass Media,
Ministry of Defence,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

14. Mr. Udaya Ranjith Seneviratne,
Secretary to His Excellency the President,
Presidential Secretariat,
Galle Face, Colombo 01.

15. General S.H.S. Kottegoda
Secretary to Ministry of Defence,
Ministry of Defence,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

16. Mr. C.D. Wickramaratne,
Acting Inspector General of Police,
Senior Deputy Inspector of Police,
Police Headquarters,
Colombo 01.

17. Mr. Priyalal Dassanayake,
Deputy Inspector of Police – Special Security,
Office of Deputy Inspector of Police – Special Security,
No. 440A, Dr. Colvin R. De Silva Mawatha,
Colombo 02

18. Mr. John Amarathunga,
Minister of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
Ministry of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
6th Floor,
Rakshana Mandiraya,
No. 21, Vaushall Street, Colombo 02.
.

19. Mr. Gamini Jayawickrama Perera,
Minister of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
Ministry of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
No. 135, Sreemath Anagarika Dharmapala Mawatha, Colombo 07.

20. Mr. Laxman Kiriella,
Minister of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
Ministry of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
36th Floor, West Tower,
World Trade Center, Echelon Square,Colombo 01.

21. Mr. Rauff Hakeem,
Minister of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Ministry of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Lakdiya Medura,
No. 35, New Parliament Road,
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

22. Dr. Rajitha Senaratne,
Minister of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
Ministry of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
"Suwasiripaya",
Rev. Baddegama Wimalawansa Thero Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

23. Mr. Ravi Karunanayake,
Minister of Power, Energy and Business Development,
Ministry of Power, Energy and Business Development,
No. 72, Ananda Coomaraswamy Mawatha,
Colombo 07.

24. Mr. Vajira Abeywardena,
Minister of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,

Ministry of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,
No. 330, Union Place, Colombo 02.

25. Mr. Rishad Bathiudeen,
Minister of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
Ministry of Industry and Commerce, Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
No. 73/1, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

26. Mr. Patali Champika Ranawaka,
Minister of Megapolis and Western Development,
Ministry of Megapolis and Western Development,
17th and 18th Floors,
"SUHURUPAYA",
Subhuthipura Road, Battaramulla.

27. Mr. Navin Dissanayake,
Minister of Plantation Industries,
Ministry of Plantation Industries,
08th Floor, "Sethsiripaya",
2nd Stage,
Battaramulla.

28. Mr. P. Harrison,
Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
Ministry of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
8th Floor,
No. 288, Sri Jayawardenapura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

29. Mr. Kabir Hashim,
Minister of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
Ministry of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
9th Floor, Maganeguma Mahamedura,

Denzil Kobbekaduwa Mawatha,
Koswatta, Battaramulla.

30. Mr. Ranjith Madduma Bandara,
Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Ministry of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

31. Mr. Gayantha Karunathilaka,
Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Ministry of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Stage II,
Sethsiripaya, Battaramulla.

32. Mr. Sajith Premadasa,
Minister of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
Ministry of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
2nd Floor, Sethsiripaya, Battaramulla.

33. Mr. Arjuna Ranatunga,
Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation,
Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation,
7th Floor, Sethsiripaya, Stage II, Battaramulla.

34. Mr. U. Palani Digambaram,
Minister of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
Ministry of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
No. 45, St. Michael's Road, Colombo 03.

35. Ms. Chandrani Bandara,
Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
6th Floor,
Sethsiripaya, (Stage II)
Battaramulla.

36. Ms. Thalatha Athukorala,
Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Ministry of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Superior Court Complex, Colombo 12.

37. Mr. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
"Isurupaya",
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

38. Mr. M.H.A. Haleem,
Minister of Postal Services, and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Ministry of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Postal Headquarters Building,
No. 310,
D.R. Wijewardana Road, Colombo 10.

39. Mr. Sagala Ratnayake,
Minister of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
Ministry of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

40. Mr. Harin Fernando,
Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
Ministry of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
No. 437, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

41. Mr. Mano Ganesan,
Minister of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
Ministry of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
No. 40, Buthgamuwa Road,
Rajagiriya,

42. Mr. Daya Gamage,
Minister of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
Ministry of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
1st Floor, Stage II,
"Sethsiripaya", Battaramulla.

43. Mr. Malik Samarawickrema,
Minister of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Ministry of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Level 30, West Tower,
World Trade Centre, Colombo 01.

44. Hon. Attorney General,
Department of the Attorney General,
Colombo 12.

Respondents

SCFR 293/2019

Moditha Tikiri Bandara Ekanayake,
Attorney-at-Law
No. 574, Muththettugoda Road,
Thalangama North,
Thalangama.

Petitioner

Vs.

1. Hemasiri Fernando,
Former Secretary to Ministry of Defense,
C/O of Secretary to Ministry of Defense,
Ministry of Defense,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

2. Pujitha Jayasundera,
Inspector General of Police,
C/O Acting Inspector General of Police,

Police Headquarters,
Colombo 01.

3. Nilantha Jayawardena
   Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police –
   State Intelligence Service,
   Police Headquarters,
   Colombo 01.

4. Priyalal Dasanayake,
   Deputy Inspector of Police – Special Security Office of Deputy Inspector of Police - Special Security,
   No. 440A, Dr. Colvin R. De Silva Mawatha,
   Colombo 02.

5. Hon. Ruwan Wijewardana,
   Hon. State Minister of Defense and Non - Cabinet Minister of Mass Media,
   Ministry of Defense,
   No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
   Colombo 03.

6. Ranil Wickramasinghe,
   Hon. Prime Minister of the Republic
   Minister of National Policies, Economic Affairs, Resettlement and Rehabilitation,
   Northern Province Development and Youth
   Affairs,
   Prime Minister's Office,
   No. 58, Sir Ernest de Silva Mawatha,
   Colombo 07.

7. Tilak Marapana,
   Minister of Foreign Affairs,
   Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
   Republic Building,
   Sir Baron Jayathilaka Mawatha,
   Colombo 01.

8. Mangala Samaraweera,
   Minister of Finance and Mass Media,
   Ministry of Finance and Mass Media,
   The Secretariat,
   Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

9. John Amarathunga,
   Minister of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,

Ministry of Tourism Development, Wildlife and Christian Religious Affairs,
6th Floor,
Rakshana Mandiraya,
No. 21, Vaushall Street, Colombo 02.

10. Gamini Jayawickrama Perera,
Minister of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
Ministry of Buddhasasana and Wayamba Development,
No. 135, Sreemath Anagarika Dharmapala Mawatha, Colombo 07.

11. Lakshman Kiriella,
Minister of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
Ministry of Public Enterprise, Kandyan Heritage and Kandy Development,
36th Floor, West Tower, World Trade Center,
Echelon Square, Colombo 01.

12. Rauff Hakeem,
Minister of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Ministry of City Planning, Water Supply and Higher Education,
Lakdiya Medura,
No. 35, New Parliament Road,
Pelawatta, Battaramulla.
13. Rajitha Senaratne,
Minister of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
Ministry of Health, Nutrition and Indigenous Medicine,
"Suwasiripaya",
Rev. Baddegama Wimalawansa Thero Mawatha,
Colombo 10.

14. Ravi Karunanayake,
Minister of Power, Energy and Business Development,
Ministry of Power, Energy and Business Development, No. 72, Ananda Coomaraswamy Mawatha, Colombo 07.

15. Vajira Abeywardena,
Minister of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,

Ministry of Internal and Home Affairs and Provincial Councils and Local Government,
No. 330, Union Place,
Colombo 02.

16. Rishad Bathiudeen,
Minister of Industry and Commerce,
Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
Ministry of Industry and Commerce,
Resettlement of Protracted Displaced Persons and Co-operative Development,
No. 73/1, Galle Road,
Colombo 03.

17. Patali Champika Ranawaka,
Minister of Megapolis and Western Development,
Ministry of Megapolis and Western Development,
17th and 18th Floors, "SUHURUPAYA",
Subhuthipura Road, Battaramulla.

18. Navin Dissanayake,
Minister of Plantation Industries,
Ministry of Plantation Industries,
08th Floor, "Sethsiripaya",
2nd Stage, Battaramulla.

19. P. Harrison,
Minister of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
Ministry of Agriculture, Rural Economic Affairs, Livestock Development, Irrigation and Fisheries and Aquatic Resources Development,
8th Floor,
No. 288, Sri Jayawardenapura Mawatha,
Rajagiriya.

20. Kabir Hashim,
Minister of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
Ministry of Highways and Road Development and Petroleum Resources Development,
9th Floor, Maganeguma Mahamedura,

Denzil Kobbekaduwa Mawatha,
Koswatta, Battaramulla.

21. Ranjith Madduma Bandara,
Minister of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Ministry of Public Administration and Disaster Management,
Independence Square, Colombo 07.

22. Gayantha Karunathilaka,
Minister of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Ministry of Lands and Parliamentary Reforms,
Stage II,
Sethsiripaya, Battaramulla.

23. Sajith Premadasa,
Minister of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
Ministry of Housing, Construction, and Cultural Affairs,
2nd Floor, Sethsiripaya, Battaramulla.

24. Arjuna Ranatunga,
Minister of Transport and Civil Aviation,
Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation,
7th Floor,
Sethsiripaya, Stage II,
Battaramulla.

25. U. Palani Digambaram,
Minister of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development, Ministry of Hill Country, New Villages, Infrastructure and Community Development,
No. 45, St. Michael's Street, Colombo 03.

26. Chandrani Bandara,
Minister of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
Ministry of Women and Child Affairs and Dry Zone Development,
6th Floor, Sethsiripaya, (Stage II)
Battaramulla.

27. Thalatha Athukorala,
Minister of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Ministry of Justice and Prison Reforms,
Superior Court Complex,
Colombo 12.

28. Akila Viraj Kariyawasam,
Minister of Education,
Ministry of Education,
Isurupaya, Pelawatta, Battaramulla.

29. M.H.A. Haleem,
Minister of Postal Services, and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Ministry of Postal Services and Muslim Religious Affairs,
Postal Headquarters Building,
No. 310, D.R. Wijewardana Road,
Colombo 10.

30. Sagala Ratnayake,
Minister of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
Ministry of Ports and Shipping and Southern Development,
No. 19, Chaithya Road, Colombo 01.

31. Harin Fernando,
Minister of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
Ministry of Telecommunication, Foreign Employment and Sports,
No. 437, Galle Road, Colombo 03.

32. Mano Ganesan,
Minister of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
Ministry of National Integration, Official Languages, Social Progress, and Hindu Religious Affairs,
No. 40, Buthgamuwa Road, Rajagiriya,

33. Daya Gamage,
Minister of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
Ministry of Primary Industries and Social Empowerment,
1st Floor, Stage II, "Sethsiripaya",
Battaramulla.

34. Malik Samarawickrema,
Minister of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Ministry of Development Strategies and International Trade,
Level 30, West Tower,
World Trade Centre, Colombo 01.

35. Ravinatha Aryasinha,
Secretary to Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Republic Building,
Sir Baron Jayathilake Mawatha,
Colombo 01.

36. R.H.S. Samarathunga,
Secretary to the Treasury and Ministry of Finance,
Ministry of Finance,
The Secretariat,
Lotus Road, Colombo 01.

37. Admiral Ravindra C. Wijegunaratne,
Chief of Defense Staff,
Office of Chief of Defense Staff,
Block No. 5, BMICH,
Bauddhaloka Mawatha, Colombo 07.

38. Lt. General Mahesh Senanayake,
Commander of Sri Lanka Army,
Army Headquarters, Colombo 03.

39. Vice Admiral Piyal De Silva,
Commander of Sri Lanka Navy,
Naval Head Quarters, Colombo 01.

40. Marshal Kapila Jayampathy,
Commander of Sri Lanka Air Force,
Air Force Headquarters, Colombo 02.

41. General S.H.S. Kottegoda
Secretary to Ministry of Defense,
Ministry of Defense,
No. 15/5, Baladaksha Mawatha,
Colombo 03.

42. Mr. C.D. Wickramaratne,
Acting Inspector General of Police,

Senior Deputy Inspector of Police,
Police Headquarters,
Colombo 01.

43. Mahamood Lebbe Alim Mohomed
Hizbulla,
Governor's Secretariat,
Lower Road,
Hill,
Trincomalee.

AND NOW
No. 10/18, Lake Drive, Colombo 08.

44. Hon. Attorney General,
Attorney Generals Department,
Colombo 12.

RESPONDENTS

Before : Jayantha Jayasuriya, PC, CJ

B.P. Aluwihare, PC,J

L.T.B.Dehideniya, J

Murdu N.B. Fernando, PC,J

S. Thurairaja, PC,J.

A.H.M.D.Nawaz, J .

A.L. Shiran Gooneratne, J

Counsel : Gamini Perera with Ishara Gunawardana, Leel Gunawardana , Ravindra Dabare and Wijitha Salpitikorala for the Petitioners in SCFR No. 163/19 & 166/19.

Dharshana Weraduwage with Dhanushi Kalupahana and Ushani Atapattu for the Petitioner in SCFR 165/2019.

Wardani Karunaratne for the Petitioner in SC.FR.No.184/19.

Lakshan Dias with Maneesha Kumarasinghe and Dayani Panditharathne for the Petitioner in SCFR 188/19.

Saliya Peiris, PC with Thanuka Nandasiri for the Petitioners in SCFR 191/19.

Rushdhie Habeeb with Samadhi Lokuwaduge, Riswan Uwiz and Azad Mustapha for the Petitioner in SC.FR.No.193/19.

Sanjeewa Jayawardena, PC with Ms. Dilumi de Alwis, Charitha Rupasinghe, Ms. Lakmini Warunwithana, Niranjan Arulpragasan, Milhan Mohammed, Ms. Ridmi Benaragama and Gimhani , Arthanayaka, Ms. Ranmali Meepagala & Eranga Tilekeratne for the Petitioner in SC.FR.No.195/19.

Nuwan Bopage for the Petitioner in SCFR No. 196/19.

Kameel Maddumage for the Petitioner in SCFR No. 197/19.

Janaka Basuriya for the Petitioner in SC.FR. 198/19.

Manohara de Silva, PC with Mrs. Nadeeshani Lankatileka for the Petitioner in SC.FR. 293/19.

Priyantha Nawana, PC, SASG with Nerin Pulle, PC, ASG, Dileepa Peiris, DSG, Dr. Avanthi Perera, SSC, Sureka Ahmed, SC and Induni Punchihewa, SC for the 3rd 4th Respondents in SCFR 163/19 & 166/19. 6A & 7th Respondent in SCFR 165/19. 34th Respondent in SCFR 184/19. 6th , 9th 15th and 16th Respondents in SCFR 188/19. 4th, 11th,12th and 13th Respondents in SCFR 191/19. 1st, 6th & 13th Respondents in SCFR 193/19. 4th, 44th, 48th, 52nd , 54th, 55th, 56th, 77A, 78A, and 64th Respondents in SCFR 195/19. 4th, 8th, 16th, 17th & 44th Respondents in 196/19, 197/19 , and 198/19. 3rd, 4th, 35th, 42nd and 44th Respondents in SCFR 293/19.

Faizer Musthapa , PC with Shaheeda Barrie, Pulasthi Rupasinghe, Amila Perera, Ashan Bandara, Dhananjaya Perera and Ms. Nilma Abeysooriya for the 1st Respondent in SCFR 165/19, 184/19 & 1A Respondent in 193/19, for 44A Respondent in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 & 198/19, for 66A Respondent in SCFR/195/19.

Anuja Premaratna, PC. with Tarangee Mutucumarana for 45th, 46th, 49th and 52nd Respondents in SCFR 195/19.

Mohan Weerakoon PC with Mr. Prabuddha Hettiarachchi and Nuwan de Alwis for 2nd Respondent in SCFR 163/19,and 195/19.4th Respondent in SCFR 165/19. 2nd Respondent in SCFR 166/19. 3rd Respondent in SCFR 188/19, for 1st Respondent in SCFR 191/19 and 293/19, for 5th Respondent in SCFR 193/19, for 6th Respondent in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 and 198/19, and for 32nd Respondent in SCFR 184/19.

Shamil Perera, PC with Duthika Perera, Varuna Senadeera and Avinda Silva for the 57th Respondent in SCFR 195/19.

Dulindra Weerasuriya PC with Chamith Marapana and Saman Malinga for the 12th Respondent in SCFR 184/19, 7th Respondent in SCFR 188/19 and 293/19, 10th Respondent in SCFR 195/19, 3rd Respondent in SCFR 193/19 and 2nd Respondent in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 & 198/19.

Viran Corea with Niran Anketel, Dushinka Nelson and Thilini Vidanagamage for the 1st Respondent in SCFR163/19 &166/19, for the 2nd Respondent in SCFR 293/19, for 3rd Respondent in SCFR 191/19 &195/19, for 5th Respondent in SCFR 188/19, for 6th Respondent in SCFR 165/19, for 7th Respondent in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 & 198/19, for 12th Respondent in SCFR 193/19 and for 33rd Respondent in SCFR 184/19.

Suren Fernando with Sanjith Dias for the 2nd Respondent in SCFR No.165/19, 184/19, 188/19 & 193/19, for 6th Respondent in SCFR 191/19 & 293/19, for 8th Respondent in SCFR 195/19 and for the 1st Respondent in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 &198/19. 6th Respondent in SCFR 293/19.

Sudarshana Gunawardana for the 10th Responded in SCFR 188/19, 38th and 45th Respondent in SCFR 193/19, 5th and 14th Respondents in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 and 198/19. 36th Respondent in SCFR 293/19, 38th, and 45th Respondents in SCFR 195/19.

K.V.S. Ganesharajan with Sri Ranganathan Ragul and Nasikethan for the 94A Respondent in SCFR 195/19.

Harsha Fernando with Chamith Senanayake, Ruvan Weerasinghe and Yohan Coorey for the 11th and 13th Respondents in SCFR 188/19, 7th and 9th Respondents in SCFR 191/19, 8th and 10th Respondents in SCFR 193/19, 40th and 42nd Respondents in 195/19, 9th and 11th Respondents in SCFR 196/19, 197/19 and 198/19. 37th and 39th Respondents in SCFR 293/19.
J.M. Wijebandara with Chamodi Dayananda, Lakshika Hettiarachchi for the 49th Respondent in SCFR 195/19

Shantha Jayawardana with Ms. Azra Basheer for the 69th Respondent in SCFR 195/19.

Argued on : 14.03.2022, 15.03.2022, 16.03.2022, 18.03.2022 29.03.2022 06.06.2022, 07.06.2022, 08.06.2022, 09.06.2022, 10.06.2022 ,

20.07.2022, 26.07.2022, 27.07.2022, 02.08.2022, 29.09.2022, 04.10.2022 and 05.10.2022.

Decided on : 12.01.2023

On the ill-fated day of 21st of April 2019, this island home was awoken rudely to witness one of its most tragic events in the annuls of its history and in a series of bomb explosions that sent the nation reeling in shock and disbelief, scores of innocent worshippers at several churches as well as citizens in several locations were plucked away from their loved ones in the most macabre and dastardly acts of terrorism that this country has ever seen. In what has now come to be known as the Easter Sunday Attack or the Easter Sunday Tragedy in its melancholy sense, there was desolation and despair all-round the country and it may not be denied that it took a long while for this country to limp back to normalcy from the ravages of this tragedy. The trail of destruction and dislocation that the Easter Sunday Attack has left in its wake is a memory that this country will long live with and this Court is not spared its reverberations.

Several Petitioners have moved this Court in its fundamental rights jurisdiction invoking just and equitable remedies against some of the Respondents for what they plead as circumstances of inaction. It is only when the executive or administrative action or inaction gives rise to an infringement of a fundamental right, liability is predicated under Article 126 of the Constitution and the range of Respondents against whom declarations of infringement of fundamental rights are sought includes Maithripala Sirisena who held the office of the President in 2019, Hemasiri Fernando, the then Secretary to the Ministry of Defence, Pujith Jayasundera, the then Inspector General of Police (IGP), Sisira Mendis, the Chief of National Intelligence (CNI) and Nilantha Jayawardena [the then Director, State Intelligence Service (SIS)], to name but a few.

The Petitioners who allege inaction against these Respondents and attribute the Easter Sunday Blasts to the Respondents range from the President, Bar Association of Sri Lanka and 4 others (SC/FR/ Application No.195/2019), to several others who have filed similar public interest litigation and some who have suffered personal tragedies themselves. The Petitioners include an Attorney-at-law who sustained grievous injuries in the blast and a father who lost his children, while they were engaged in their religious worship at St. Anthony's Church, Kochchikade. This judgment will uniformly apply to all these applications namely SC/FR/163/19,SC/FR/165/19,

SC/FR/166/19, SC/FR/184/19, SC/FR/188/19, SC/FR/191/19,SC/FR/193/19, SC/FR/195/19, SC/FR/196/19, SC/FR/197/19, SC/FR/198/19, and SC/FR/293/19.

These applications deal with the aftermath of the Easter Sunday attacks that took place on the 21st of April 2019. Easter Sunday is a sacred day in the annals of the Christian Church. Easter Sunday is really a climax of a holy period, signalling a sacrificial period. The Easter Sunday service commemorates the most significant importance of the Resurrection of the Christ in the calendar of the Christians and Roman Catholics when churches are packed to capacity on this day. It is on such a day that these acts of terrorism were planned to be perpetrated on innocent worshippers and as a result more than 200 people died and several grievously injured. The terrorists set off their horrendous atrocities, not only on churches but also on hotels of the country, killing several people including overseas visitors and causing gruesome injuries on those who happened to be present at the places.

The petitions before us narrate harrowing tales of woe and seek redress from this Court by virtue of its sole and exclusive jurisdiction under Article 126 of the Constitution, which could afford just and equitable relief for action or inaction on the part of the Executive branch of the country. Some of the allegations of violations of Fundamental Rights engage the following articles of the Constitution- Article 12(1) (equal protection of the law), Article 14(1)(b) (the freedom of peaceful assembly), Article 14(1)(e) (the freedom either by himself or in association with others, and either in public or in private, to manifest his religion or belief in worship, observance, practice and teaching), Article 14(1)(g) (the freedom to engage by himself or in association with others in any lawful occupation, profession, trade, business or enterprise) and Article 10 (every person is entitled to the freedom of thought, conscience and religion, including the freedom to have or to adapt the religion or belief of his choice).

In a conspectus the applications allege that these guarantees recognized by the Constitution have been infringed by some of the Respondents by their not acting with due care and attention so as to ensure the personal liberty and national security of this country.

The applications contain revelations of reckless failure on the part of the Executive Branch of the government and the Petitioners allege that these illegal omissions effectively betray the people and public trust by recklessly failing to take cognizance and accord due priority to intelligence information received regarding the premeditation of the attacks which could have been prevented if proactive and timely response had been taken. The Petitioners also submit that procrastination in proscribing the terrorist groups and non-declaration of a state of emergency as a vital pre-emptive strike, contributed in no small measure to the growing menace of terrorism resulting in the most gruesome bomb blast and massacres that this country witnessed on the 21st of April 2019. The Petitioners further allege that no supporting structures were put in place in order to deal with an event of such magnitude that shocked this nation on the 21st of April 2019.

The Court will presently deal with the allegations which are relevant to the articles in which leave to proceed was granted-Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(e).

Thus, it becomes necessary to look at the powers, functions and duties of the state functionaries and ascertain as to how any breach of the obligations or omissions to discharge those obligations has resulted in deprivation of Fundamental Rights as alleged by the petitioners.

In order to indulge in this task, this Court will look at the constitutional, statutory and common law duties and functions entrusted to the Executive Branch and collate the facts and law in order to arrive at our conclusions.

We begin with a subordinate legislation that had been promulgated from time to time setting out the duties and functions of the President who was the Minister of Defence at all times material to the matter in issue.

By virtue of the Gazette bearing No. 2103/33 and dated 28th December 2018, Former President Maithripala Sirisena acting in terms of Article 43(1) and Article 46(1)(a) of the Constitution had issued a notification pertaining to the allocation of duties, functions, subjects, departments and instructions to Ministers and the responsibilities of such Ministers to implement specific laws of Parliament. This was the prevailing gazette at the time of the Easter Sunday attack.

Immediately at the end of the introductory paragraph of the said Gazette, one finds in bold letters numbered (1), the words "Minister of Defence". The Schedule pertaining to the Minister of Defence is divided into three columns.

Column I of the Gazette deals with duties and functions of the Minister of Defence. Whilst Column II deals with departments, statutory institutions and public corporations, Column III contains the laws and ordinances to be implemented by the Ministry of Defence. Item No.1 under Column I titled duties and functions contains the following as those of the Minister:

(i) Formulation of policies, programmes and projects; implementation, monitoring and evaluation in relation to the subject of Defence*, and those subjects that come under the purview of Departments, Statutory Institutions and Public Corporations listed in Column II.*

Apart from Sri Lanka Army, Navy and Air Force, some of the departments specified in Column II are Department of Civil Security, State Intelligence Service, Department of Police etc. In item No.2 in Column I, a duty to ensure the defence of the country by facilitation of the functions of the defence services is cast upon the Minister of Defence. In Item No.3, the Minister of Defence is tasked with the maintenance of internal security. The maintenance of defence and internal security related intelligence services, is another duty devolving on the Minister of Defence in terms of Item No.4. In Column III, the following laws inter alia are specified to be within the purview of the Minister of Defence:

- Prevention of Terrorism Act, No. 48 of 1979
- Public Security Ordinance, No 25 of 1947
- Suppression of Terrorist Bombings Act, No. 11 of 1999

In the last item of Column III, a residual power is vested in the Minister of Defence in the following tenor:

> All other legislations pertaining to the subjects specified in Column I and II, and not specifically brought under the purview of any other Minister.

It is pertinent to observe at this stage that State Intelligence Service (SIS) and the Department of Police are two separate departments existing respectively as items No. 11 and 15 in the Gazette. A comparison of the previous Gazette notifications namely, Gazettes bearing No. 1897/15 dated 18th January 2015, No. 1933/13 dated 21st September 2015 and No.2906/17 of 5th November 2018 vis a vis the Gazette bearing No. 2103/03 of 28th December 2018, shows a recognizable and increasing spectrum of powers assigned to the Minister of Defence over all aspects of public security, internal security, law enforcement and intelligence agencies as well as the relevant Acts of Parliament. For instance, whilst the Gazette Extraordinary bearing No.1897/15 listed out only 14 items of duties and functions of the Minister of Defence, the second Gazette issued in 2015 namely No.1933/13 dated 21st September 2015 set out 15 duties and functions. The first Gazette in the year 2018 bearing No.2096/17 contained 22 duties. The second gazette issued in the year 2018 namely Gazette Extraordinary bearing No.2103/33 and dated 28th of December 2018 bestowed on the President 23 duties as a Minister of Defence.

Thus, there was an increase of duties vested in the Minister. As for the departments, statutory institutions and public corporations, initially there were only 14 departments that were brought under the Minister of Defence in the year 2015 but come the year 2018, the number of departments rose to 17 in the first Gazette and ended at 21 in the second Gazette. The Department of Police itself was never there under the Minister of Defence in 2015 until it was brought under his purview in the year 2018. It has to be pointed out that the State Intelligence Service (SIS) continued to be vested in the charge of the Minister of Defence from the year 2015. One can thus observe that an exponential range of powers over security continued to be bestowed on Minister of Defence as the years rolled by and it cannot be gainsaid that the Minister of Defence was the repository of the national security of the country.

In other words, it could be said that the custody of personal liberty and security of the nation were enshrined in this long list of duties and functions and bestowed in the hands of the Minister of Defence. Around the fateful day of the Easter Sunday Attack namely 21st of April 2019, the source of specific duties and functions of the then President with regard to national security of the country had all been set down in the aforesaid Gazette notification bearing No. 2103/03 and dated 28th December 2018.

These are the duties and functions which the President had assigned to himself in terms of Article 44(2) of the Constitution.

If one may take a look at the Constitution, Article 4(b) of the Constitution pinpointedly declares that the executive power of the people, including the defence of Sri Lanka, shall be exercised by the President of the Republic elected by the people. Article 30(1) of the Constitution states that there shall be a President of the Republic of Sri Lanka, who is the Head of the State, Head of the Executive and of the government and the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. Article 52(2) of the Constitution vests with the Minister of Defence the power of direction and control of the Secretary to the Ministry of Defence. Put in a nutshell, the Minister himself is enjoined to personally direct and exercise control over the Secretary as regards supervision over the departments and other institutions in charge of the Minister. As was stated before, it has to be kept in mind that the duties and functions enumerated in the relevant Gazette on the day of the disaster (Gazette No 2103 of 28th December 2018) had brought under the purview of the Minister of Defence, two different pivotal departments of national security namely the State Intelligence Service (SIS) and the Department of Police.

The Constitution casts upon the Minister of Defence, a duty to give directions and exercise control as regards the supervision of these departments. A conjoint reading of the constitutional imperatives such as Articles 4(b), 30(1), 44(2) and 52(2) makes it patently clear that the Minister of Defence is placed under a charter of duties and obligations from which he cannot resile as regards national security and internal security of the country. It is often said that national security and liberty of individuals stand out as two sides of a coin which binds the state to a strong commitment. On the day in question, to wit the 21st of April 2019, the President of the country who was also the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces had undertaken these obligations, which our Constitution, domestic laws and regulations, amply declare aloud demanding allegiance to the commitment of maintaining defence and security of the nation.

The Magna Carta of 1215 was the earliest example of such an undertaking to protect the liberty and security of the citizen given by King John of England.

Just as the declarations in the Magna Carta, solemnly executed by the King and the barons on 15 June 1215 at Runnymede, in the meadows outside Windsor, proclaim the underpinnings of the age old fundamental rights and the rule of law, so does our Constitution have their modern articulations writ large in 1978, and with the people of the country solidly behind it appealing to the venerable undertakings in our Charter to be respected, upheld and advanced by all arms of the government viz the legislature, executive and the judiciary.

As this Court said at the outset, the gravamen of the serious allegations of infractions made in the several petitions would boil down to an assertion of inaction, that is made actionable at the instance of an aggrieved party under Article 126 of the Constitution. The Petitioners allege in unison that when the tragedy struck this country on 21 April 2019 and innocent lives were taken away and property damaged and razed to the ground, there had been indications that a disaster would be a long time coming. The Petitioners further contend that the executive branch of the government chose to ignore the semaphore signals and turned a Nelsonian eye to an obvious catastrophe. This would appear to be the nub of the Petitions and this Court would proceed to assay and appraise the facts which are either uncontested or common denominators among the parties.

The allegation of executive inaction springs from security warnings, intelligence messages, concept papers and correspondence that took place among some principal protagonists of the executive branch i.e Nilantha Jayawardena (the then Director, SIS), Sisira Mendis (the then Chief of National Intelligence, CNI), Pujith Jayasundera (the then Inspector General of Police) and Hemasiri Fernando (the then Secretary to the Ministry of Defence). The Petitioners make the pinpointed allegation of executive inertia against the then President Maithripala Sirisena for not taking steps to avert the bizarre mayhem and destruction and they contend that it was within his powers to have ensured the personal liberty and security of the people and prevented the precarious slide into anarchy.

After having indulged in an analysis of what we would call notorious facts and other collateral facts, we propose to deal with individual aspects of liability under Article 126 of the Constitution. These facts indicate the extent of the gravity of a threat that had snowballed into an alarming incubus and we must state that coming events had cast their shadows long prior to 2019 - the annus horribilis. The prior events foretold the incalculable disaster that was about to unfold and we point out that the pleadings and accompanying documents are rife with warnings and danger signals that had existed since 2015. There were visible signs of a growing menace of extremism and an open warrant had long been issued against Zahran Hassim-the enfant terrible of this extremist outfit. The writing on the wall notwithstanding, this purveyor of terrorism and his cohorts were allowed to remain at large and there was inadequate and inadvertent response to an obvious risk. The above would constitute the pith and substance of the cumulative submissions of all learned Counsel for the Petitioners.

We would, albeit the danger signals emanating from 2015, focus on the more immediate red flags on the eve of the disaster, which principally form the fulcrum of the complaints of the Petitioners. We would begin from 4th April 2019 - a few hoots away from the tragic events of 21st April 2019. In this process we would make the preliminary observation that there were different proceedings at different times in relation to the tragic events of 21st April 2019 before several fora and some Respondents have appended to their statements of objections the Minutes of Evidence before the Select Committee of Parliament that had been appointed to look into and report to Parliament on the Terrorist Attacks of 21st April 2019. Some of the Respondents before this Court had given evidence before the Parliamentary Select Committee (PSC) and those minutes of evidence pertaining to their evidence are before this Court. Some of the Petitioners rely on the prior evidence given by the Respondents before the PSC and seek to juxtapose the later statements before this Court vis a vis the previous out of Court statements of the Respondents. We bear in mind that Section 57 (4) of the Evidence Ordinance which states that the Court shall take judicial notice of the course of proceedings of Parliament and of the legislature of Ceylon. Section 2 of the Parliament (Powers and Privileges) Act, No 21 of 1953 as amended defines Parliament to mean the Parliament of Sri Lanka, and to include a committee. In the case of S.N. Kodakan Pillai v P.B. Mudunayake[1] the Privy Council declared that judicial notice may be taken of such matters as the reports of Parliamentary Commissions and of such other facts as must be assumed to have been within the contemplation of the legislature where the Citizenship Act and the Parliamentary Elections Amendment Act were passed. The use of the words "such matters", in our view, would include a previous statement made by a witness who subsequently becomes a Respondent in judicial review proceedings such as under Article 126 of the Constitution.

The Indian Supreme Court repeated the same dictum as in Kodakan Pillai v P.B. Mudunayake in Additional Commissioner of Income Tax (C.I.T) v Surat Art Silk etc.[2] Thus it is open to this Court to test the veracity of the statements made before this Court vis-à-vis a previous statement made by a Respondent in his evidence before the Parliamentary Select Committee (PSC). Both Section 57 (4) of the Evidence Ordinance and the case law permit this Court to take judicial notice of the proceedings before the Parliamentary Select Committee, more particularly when such proceedings have been brought to the notice of this Court. In fact, no serious objection as to the admissibility of the evidence given by some of the Respondents before the PSC was ever raised before this Court.

[1] (1953), 54 N.L.R 433
[2] A.I.R. (1980) S.C.387.

We now turn to some of the facts that are germane to the issue before us namely whether the conduct of the Respondents was so serious an omission that in the end caused the destruction and desolation and thereby infringed the fundamental rights of the Petitioners.

Nilantha Jayawardena Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police, the then Director, State Intelligence Service (SIS) who figures as a Respondent in SC/FR/188/19,SC/FR/191/19, SC/FR/193/19, SC/FR/195/19, SC/FR/196/19, SC/FR/197/19, SC/FR/198/19 and SC/FR/293/19 sets out a chronology of these factual matters in a final affidavit filed before this Court on 15th November 2019. The Court will be making its observations thereto as and when it deems it appropriate.

On 04.04.2019, Nilantha Jayawardena personally received information from a highly delicate source (via WhatsApp), to the effect that the National Thawheeth Jama'ath (NTJ) leader and his associates were planning to carry out a suicide terror attack on important churches. The source also indicated that the attackers had conducted a reconnaissance of the Indian High Commission. On receipt of the same, a report was called for from the Deputy Director, Counter Terrorism and the Assistant Director of the SIS. The information received through WhatsApp on 04.04.2019 was subsequently confirmed in writing on 05. 04.2019 at 0900 hours. On the same day, a similar information was received in writing from another delicate source at 12.15 hours.

Nilantha Jayawardena goes on to state that immediate action was taken by him to instruct responsible officers to transform the above information into intelligence in order to establish the true identities of persons. After an initial briefing on the 6th April 2019, he wrote to the then Chief of National Intelligence (CNI) seeking instructions, and had informed the then Secretary, Defence Hemasiri Fernando on the evening of 6th April 2019.

Nilantha Jayawardena does not elaborate on the exact nature of the initial briefing on 6th April 2019. As to why he characterizes the information he received via WhatsApp on 04.04.2019 as just an input which does not amount to intelligence is also not explained in his affidavit. If that vital information needed transformation into intelligence, the rationale for the entertainment of such a view has not been put forth in the affidavit of Nilantha Jayawardena given the fact that the targeted entities for attack were churches and the Indian High Commission. If the provider of the vital information was believed to be a highly delicate source as described by Nilantha

Jayawardena, the reason for the Director of SIS to treat the information as a mere input and not intelligence must have been set forth and explained in the affidavit, leave alone his omission to refer to his source in his communications. There is ample material placed before this Court that the miscreants of this brand of terrorism had long been identified and having regard to the fact that the police had been keeping a tab on them since 2015, it strikes this Court as more than passing strange as to why the true identities of persons have to be established as the identities of these extremist elements had long been established.

Come 4th April 2019, it is undeniable that Nilantha Jayawardena himself was too well equipped with a large volume of material on the likely assassins to plead ignorance of their identities and in these circumstances, Nilantha Jayawardena cannot put forward a facile argument that the intelligence received on 04.04.2019 was nothing more than mere information.

According to the final affidavit tendered by Nilantha Jayawardena, he had submitted to Pujith Jayasundara - the IGP, a number of reports during the period 20.04.2016 to 29.04.2019 relating to ISIS and Radicalization, including information about Zahran Hashim and his network. The summary of reports titled "Reports sent to IGP on ISIS & Radicalization in Sri Lanka (including Sahran's network from 20th April 2016 to 30th April 2019" shows a grand total of 97 reports, whilst reports sent to Secretary, Defence from 1st November 2018 to 25 April 2019 number around 11.

This testimony before this Court demonstrates that Nilantha Jayawardena, and Pujith Jayasundara were both aware of the potential threats by Zahran, his cohorts and the NTJ long prior to the Easter Sunday attacks. Even the Secretary, Defence cannot plead ignorance of the radicalization of Zahran and his complicit partners as he had continued to receive reports regarding this from November 2018.

The list provided by Nilantha Jayawardena, State Intelligence Service (SIS) to the IGP on the 31st of October 2017 shows that 94 individuals had been radicalized. Another list given on 31st January 2019 contains the name of 129 persons. It was three months thereafter that the Easter Sunday tragedy shook this country and sent unbearable tremors of fright and agony around the country.

Both these two lists invariably contained the names of one and the same persons. For instance, a person called Jameel was on top of each list, and they also contained the names of Zahran, Rilwan (the brother of Zahran) and Milhan – the names that were mentioned by the Indian counterpart in its message to Nilantha Jayawardena on the 4th of April 2019. Therefore, these likely attackers were far too notorious to be overlooked by the security brass of this country including the IGP and the Secretary, Defence. The likes of Zahran had long been known in the interlocking network of intelligence of this country, and when Nilantha Jayawardena received the message from India on the 4th of April 2019 naming the very same individuals, it is fatuous of Nilantha Jayawardena to contend before this Court that it was mere information and not intelligence.

In the circumstances, it cannot be accepted that Nilantha Jayawardena needed time to transform the so-called information into intelligence. In these circumstances it is too simplistic for him to aver in his affidavit that he needed to establish the true identities of the attackers, as the very names mentioned in the so-called information of 4th of April 2019, and the places they had been frequenting were far too entrenched in the knowledge and domain of national security mechanisms set up by the Ministry of Defence.

It has to be pointed out that in the reports sent to both the IGP and the Secretary, Defence, Nilantha Jayawardena had already identified the likely members of the imminent attack namely Mohamed Cassim Mohamed Zaharan, Mohamed Mufaisil Mohamed Milhan and Mohamedu Cassim Mohamedu Rilwan as those who had been disseminating ISIS ideology.

It is relevant to note that though there was a reference to planned attacks on some important churches, there is nary a narration of any consequential actions Nilantha Jayawardena took in regard to his own strategic intelligence and analysis of the degree of threat facing the churches. Easter Sunday was just a few weeks away when the heads-up about the imminent attack came from India, but there is little alertness or perceptiveness shown by officials to carry out any measures to safeguard any of the churches in the country.

The want of attention on the part of the important players heading the security apparatus of this country is unpardonable. There is evidence before this Court that in April 2018, a full one year before the Easter Sunday attacks, the Director, SIS had requested the IGP in April 2018 a closure of investigations by others into Zahran, which resulted in the SIS becoming the sole investigator into Zahran. This casts upon Nilantha Jayawardena a greater burden and responsibility.

Except for the fact that Nilantha Jayawardena dispatched this warning to CNI who in turn communicated it to Secretary, Ministry of Defence, the final affidavit of Nilantha Jayawardena offers little assistance in the way of any evidence of an immediate launch of investigation and preventive action in light of the fact the Easter Sunday celebrations at all churches were in the offing.

Thus, this Court cannot get away from an irresistible conclusion that the churches lay vulnerable and exposed to imminent attacks. No evidence of consequential counter-measures taken to prevent the attack has been placed before this Court. This stark reality assumes greater importance when Nilantha Jayawardena himself avers in his final affidavit that "as stated above, due to the importance of the information received in this regard, the Original Information was sent to Chief of National Intelligence (CNI) seeking instructions…".

Just three days after the receipt of the all-important initial information on the 4th April 2019, the first person to whom the Director, SIS transmitted the news was the CNI informing him of the alleged plan of attack. This was on the 7th of April 2019 where the letter carrying the logo "top secret" contains the following as its contents:

1. As per an input, Sri Lanka based Zahran Hasmi of National Towheed Jamaat and his associates are planning to carry out suicide terror attack in Sri Lanka shortly. They are planning to target some important churches. It is further learned that they have conducted reconnaissance of the Indian high commission and it is one of the targets of the planned attack.

2. The input indicates that the terrorists may adopt any of the following modes of attack.

a) Suicide attack
b) weapon attack
c) knife attack
d) the truck attack

3. It is also learned that the following are the likely team members of the planned suicide terror attack.
    i. Zahran Hashmi
    ii. Jal Al Quithal
    iii. Rilwan
    iv. Sajid Moulavi
    v. Shahid
    vi. Milhan and Others

4. The input may kindly be enquired into on priority and a feedback given to us."

Thus, there was specificity, exactitude and clarity as to the likely attackers, modes of attack and their targets. Upon receipt of the above, Sisira Mendis the CNI, communicated it to the IGP Pujith Jayasundera on the 9th April 2019 by way of a letter. That letter too discloses the identities of the attackers as revealed in Nilantha Jayawardena's document.

As is evident from the affidavit of the CNI, he is expected to have an "Intelligence Coordinating meeting" on every Monday prior to the main "Weekly Intelligence Coordinating Conference" (ICM) on Tuesday. Accordingly, the CNI had scheduled an Intelligence Coordinating Meeting (ICM) for the 9th of April 2019. Nilantha Jayawardena states in his affidavit that at this ICM held on the 9th of April 2019, he was not questioned regarding the information that he had provided to the CNI by way of his letter dated 7th of April 2019, nor was he instructed to provide further reports. But the agenda of the meeting on 9.04.2019 had an item titled "Current Security/Intelligent update" at which Director, SIS had to brief the participants. The fact remains that Nilantha Jayawardena provides no evidence that at this particular Intelligence Coordinating Meeting he alerted the participants to the looming likelihood of attacks on churches, except for a bare assertion to the following effect:

> When I entered the meeting, the CNI showed me the Information Sheet that I had annexed to my letter dated 07.04.2019 addressed to him, and I requested him to take immediate action as it is important. On being questioned by Mr. Hemasiri Fernando regarding the action I was to take pertaining to the information sheet attached to my letter dated 07.04.2019 sent to the CNI, I informed Mr. Hemasiri Fernando, that I will be submitting a special report to IGP and CID on the same evening, which I did. Having checked from the relevant sources and records, and being satisfied that the said information was "probably true", I sent the initial report to the IGP and CID on the 9th April 2019.

The agendas of the weekly Intelligence Coordinating Meetings (ICM) furnished to this Court reveal that National Security was a priority on the agendas and whilst, just one month prior to the attack in March 2019, the activities of Mohamed Cassim Mohamed Zahran had taken centre stage at ICMs, it is surprising that we hear nothing of any briefing by Nilantha Jayawardena at the meeting held on the 9th of April 2019 on an all-important and vital intelligence that he had received on the 4th of April 2019. Sisira Mendis, CNI in his affidavit dated 8th November 2019 is quite specific that the Director, SIS presented a briefing on several matters other than the vital intelligence referred to in his letter dated 7th April 2019.

The Chief of National Intelligence (CNI) is quite emphatic that Nilantha Jayawardena did not conduct a briefing on the information he had received on the 4th April 2019. This is not expressly contradicted by Nilantha Jayawardena himself in his affidavit. By recourse to Section 114 (e) of the Evidence Ordinance the learned Senior Additional Solicitor General sought to buttress his argument that common course of business may have been followed on the 9th April 2019. He invited this Court to draw the presumption in favor of Nilantha Jayawardena that he had raised the vital issue of the likely attack in the presence of all the participants at the meeting, but the facts do not lend themselves amenable to such a presumption being drawn. Though Nilantha Jayawardena's briefing figures prominently as one of the important items of the agenda for the meeting on 9th April 2019, there is no record provided to this Court that he addressed the specific security threat at the briefing.

In this regard, paragraph 36 of the affidavit of Sisira Mendis CNI, is as follows:

"I state that I discussed the contents of the letter sent by Director SIS with former Defence Secretary on the 8th April who directed that SIS presents the matter at the weekly intelligence meeting on the 9th April. I state that as a matter of practice that the Director of SIS is required to address the intelligence meeting first however Director SIS did not address the meeting on this issue although the meeting presented an ideal forum to alert the participants which included the commanders of the tri forces…"

What is asserted in the affidavit of Nilantha Jayawardena to some extent proves the veracity of what the CNI says had actually happened on the 9th April 2019. Except for a briefing by the Director SIS on the general situation in the country, it is clear that there had been no formal discussion or briefing by Nilantha Jayawardena on the intelligence that he had received on the 4th of April 2019.

Here is a Director of the State Intelligence Service who had given extensive briefing on the 13th of March 2019 on Zahran and his associates and by 9th April 2019, he had already written to the CNI about the delicate information from India. He had also personally briefed the Inspector General of Police via phone on the aforesaid intelligence information on the 7th April 2019. When he went for the ICM on 9th April 2019, there were ominous warnings of an impending disaster but he chose not to discuss the matter in his briefing, except for an informal discussion among himself, Sisira Mendis (CNI) and Secretary, Defence Hemasiri Fernando. This only shows that Nilantha Jayawardena attached little weight to the intelligence provided by the foreign counterpart. In view of the enormity of the intelligence gatherings, meetings, reports and events which had preceded the intelligence received on 04.04.2019, it is idle to contend that the information received was not actionable. It was of national interest that the Director, SIS should have brought this matter up at the ICM. In fact, he should have alerted and informed the Secretary to the President but he failed to do so.

We heard arguments that he maintained no close nexus to the President and this has been his consistent position in his affidavit. We will advert to this assertion sooner but the fact is glaring that nowhere does he assert that he sent a security report as regards the intelligence that he had received, to Secretary, Defence, who he says was his superior in the Ministry of Defence. The Director, SIS also does not take the position that he was seeking assistance from other agencies such as the Army, STF, CID and TID with regard to the intelligence given to him on 4th April 2019.

Though the accounts of Hemasiri Fernando, Secretary of Defence, Nilantha Jayawardena, Director SIS, and Sisira Mendis, CNI differ on the actual events of the Intelligence Coordinating Meeting, there is convergence among all three that the intelligence received from the foreign counterpart was not discussed at the meeting. The IGP had been present at that meeting on the 9th April 2019, and here was a Director, SIS who did not volunteer to speak when there was a duty to speak formally at the meeting. There was no impediment to refer specifically to the intelligence in the course of his general briefing and this omission is quite blatant and egregious having regard to the fact that there were instances where the Director, SIS had previously briefed the participants of the ICM about Zahran Hashim.

All this signifies a lackadaisical approach and it is clear that it does not befit the office of Director, SIS. One cannot assert that one was actively engaged in collecting and collating intelligence, whilst the activity undertaken in the end was not anything but serving as a mere conduit for passing information. Nilantha Jayawardena was not a mere cog in the wheel but an indispensable adjunct to the wheels of counter terrorism caravan which had to move with lightning speed and dispatch. But its wheels were grinding not only unsurely but slowly.

The chronology of events unmistakably points to an indifferent approach to an obvious risk lurking in the corner and it is on this plinth that the Petitioners have rested their case.

All this shows that there was so much information that was available before Nilantha Jayawardena betokening doom and but it cannot be said that Nilantha Jayawardena acted with alacrity and promptitude. He never sent the information of the 4th April 2019 by way of a report to his constitutionally appointed supervisor, Secretary to the Ministry of Defence. He was quite content transmitting the so-called input only to the CNI. He was given the floor to apprise the participants of the meeting on 9th April 2019 but he never chose to share the information with those present at the meeting.

The Agenda of the ICM meeting on 9th April 2019 indicates items pertaining to National Security to be addressed by the CNI, CDS, Tri-Service Commanders and IGP. With such a powerful contingent in attendance it was incumbent on the Director, SIS to have briefed them on the vital intelligence he had received. This failure to speak becomes all the more culpable in the light of Nilantha Jayawardena's own admission in his affidavit pertaining to the meeting on 9th April 2019 to wit "… However, or the intelligence agencies were aware of the activities of Zahran Hashim, and its desire to kill "non-believers", which was common knowledge amongst the attendees of the said conference…".

If tri-service commanders who were aware of the propensities of Zahran had been present at the meeting, why was it that the Director, SIS kept them in the dark about the vital information that he had received? By this time, Nilantha Jayawardena had reliable information that Zahran Hashim and Shahid had been hiding in Oluvil, Akkaraipattu. Rilvan-the brother of Zahran was also holed up in Oluvil and he was surfacing only in the nights to go to visit his family in Ariyampathy. By maintaining an air of confidentiality over these matters which were within his knowledge, the Director, SIS committed unpardonable lapses quite unbecoming of a super sleuth who should be heading such a powerful department under the Ministry of Defence. At this stage one must remember the duty of the CNI as well, By the 9th April 2019, he was fully acquainted with the facts of intelligence from India. If the Director, SIS kept quiet about this at the meeting, is it consonant with the requirements of CNI's duties not to broach the subject himself? As we have pointed out, there was an item on the agenda for both him and the Secretary, Defence to speak but both turned out to be mute bystanders. In summation all three of them, Hemasiri Fernando, Sisra Mendis and Nilantha Jayawardena kept the information to themselves and never bothered to edify those present at the meeting on the 9th April, 2019.

Post-meeting of the 9th April 2019, it has to be noted that Nilantha Jayawardena, Director SIS, wrote a letter to Pujith Jayasundara, IGP on the same day setting out in detail the activities of Zahran, Shahid and Rilwan and stated in the letter that Zahran was in a hideout at a place called Oluvil, Akkaraipattu. This letter in Sinhala also contains the logo "Top Secret".

At the end of the letter, Nilantha Jayawardena states that he was carrying out his secret investigation. If one were to recap, the IGP had two letters by 9th April 2019-one letter had arrived from the CNI whilst the other had come from Director SIS. The IGP then sent both these letters to SDIG (Western Province and Traffic), SDIG (Crimes and STF), DIG (Special Protection Range) and Director, CTID with a note "F.N.A.".

One could see a notable failure. The intelligence information received must have been shared with the DIG, Eastern Province. It was the bounden duty of the IGP, as the head of the police to have taken steps to keep his subordinates acquainted. We take the view that the IGP should have shared the intelligence information received with senior DIGs and other relevant parties in the police service. One conspicuous failure is to inform the DIG, Eastern Province, of the intelligence information received having regard to the fact that there was a dry run on 16.04.2019 in the Eastern Province namely in Palmunai, Kattankudy.

This failure to notify his men in the provinces is quite a flagrant violation of his police duties and we take the view that the IGP as the head of the police service should have taken all necessary steps to keep the police and also the political leadership informed. The IGP also had ample opportunities to do this.

In the backdrop of all this, an important question arises. If the whereabouts of Zahran and his guilty associates were known to the security echelons of the country, the question looms large- why were these men on the prowl not apprehended before they could unleash their reign of terror? The State had the wherewithal to trace Zahran and arrest him because he had been around for too long a time for any police officer to feign ignorance. It is a question that goes a-begging. It is also a question that begs an answer from the IGP.

It has to be noted that despite the availability of intelligence information indicating a potential attack, no meeting of the ICM was held on the 16th April 2019-the week following 9th April 2019 and if the Director, SIS had been more outspoken about the impending attack or had even demanded or requested a constant gathering of the top brass, the importance of having a follow up meeting would not have passed muster. Let us also point out that no National Security Council Meeting (NSC) was summoned between the receipt of intelligence on the 4th April 2019 and the Easter Sunday Attack on the 21st April 2019. We will comment on the absence of this mechanism later in the judgment.

This Court is also apprised of a meeting that took place between the former President (the Minister of Defence) and some senior police officers on 8th April 2019. Udaya Seneviratne, the Secretary to the former President states in his affidavit dated 23rd July 2019 that the IGP, Senior DIGs from the CID and TID were all present at this meeting along with Nilantha Jayawardena- the Director, SIS. The President was never notified of the intelligence relating to the threat of a terrorist attack by Zahran Hashim and his associates. The President was due to visit Batticaloa on 12th April 2019-a city situated in close proximity to Kattankudy-the hometown of Zahran but the Director, SIS did not proffer any threat assessment of the situation to the President. This shows that Nilantha Jayawardena never gave any credence to the intelligence he had received from his foreign counterpart on the 4th April 2019. The intelligence was a foreboding of what was to follow but its weight was lost on the Director, SIS except for the fact that he had been investigating the information with his team fanning out to the East. Nilantha Jayawardena never wrote directly to his supervisor Hemasiri Fernando-the Secretary to the Defence for reasons best known to himself.

As the head of State Intelligence, could Nilantha Jayawardena have remained tight-lipped with his topmost executive in the Ministry -the Minister who was also the President?

It is not as though Nilantha Jayawardena had not maintained direct communication with the President of the country though Nilantha Jayawardena and the former President discount before this Court any such communication between them on intelligence matters. We will deal with this aspect after having dealt with the developments subsequent to the 9th April 2019 meeting.

There was information that was initially available to Nilantha Jayawardena and later transmitted to CNI and passed on to Hemasiri Fernando. Information and Intelligence received subsequent to the ICM on 9th April 2019 were quite ominous and required immediate action. This was on the eve of the bomb explosions on 21st April 2019. In the final affidavit dated 15.11.2019, Nilantha Jayawardena alludes to what he classifies as the most vital, specific and reliable intelligence which was received by him on 20.04.2019 at 16.12 hours - a day prior to the day of carnage. This message, received from a source via WhatsApp gave him a telling heads-up that Zahran Hashim of NTJ and his associates had planned to carry out the attack on or before 21.04.2019 and that they had reportedly selected 8 places including a Church and a Hotel. The source further revealed that they had conducted a dry run and caused a blast with an explosive laden motorcycle at Palamunai near Kattankudy on 16.04.2019.

On 20th April 2019, at 16.12 the foreign counterpart sent the following WhatsApp message:

> "As per a reliable input, Zaharan Hasim of National Towheed Jamath of Sri Lanka and his associates have hatched a plan to carry out an Istishhad attack in Sri Lanka. It is further learnt that they have conducted a dry run and caused a blast with explosives laden Motorcycle at Palamunai near Kattankudy in Sri Lanka on 16.4.2019 as part of their plan.

The copies of WhatsApp messages have been appended to the affidavit of Director, SIS and another response goes as follows.

> "It is learnt that they are likely to carry out their attack in Sri Lanka at any time on or before 21.04.2019. they have reportedly selected eight places including a church and a hotel where Indians inhabit in large numbers. Further details awaited"

According to the Director, SIS, he briefed the following officers accordingly via SMS and WhatsApp.

a) Secretary Defence (1653 hrs) - WhatsApp
b) SDIG / CID (1654 hrs) - WhatsApp
c) CNI (1702 hrs) - SMS.
d) IGP (1707 hrs) - SMS

The Director, SIS states before this Court that apart from sending information by WhatsApp and SMS, he personally briefed the following officers over the phone of the impending threat on 20th April 2019.

a) Secretary, Defence (1802 hrs)
b) IGP (1703 hrs)
c) SDIG/WP (1755 hrs)
d) SDIG/CID (1657 hrs)
e) SDIG/STF (1927 hrs, 2009 hrs)
f) DIG Colombo (1909 hrs, 2124 hrs)

One can immediately see an omission to transmit this message to DIG, Eastern Province where a dry run had been executed by Zahran and Company on 16.04.2019 - a fact which was peculiarly within the knowledge of the Director, SIS. In view of the fact that Zion Church in Batticaloa suffered its worst suicide attack on 21st April 2019 where 31 deaths occurred of which the majority were children, it is a serious omission on the part of Director, SIS to have kept the DIG, Eastern Province in the dark.

Eventually the Director SIS gives an account of the disappointing tale of not receiving any assistance, instructions or feedback from the Ministry of Defence, police or any other investigative agency and notwithstanding the negative response, the Director, SIS asserts that he carried on regardless gathering, sharing, briefing and debriefing of intelligence continuously.

That is how his account is told and retold as to how he had discharged his duties but despite such a declaration of fealty to his duties, the conclusion is inescapable. The intelligence received proved true but the mobilization of counter terrorism measures or its facilitation through an effective dissemination of forebodings to stem the impending disaster was totally absent and this clearly shows how security mechanisms in the country remained fragile and in shambles. Sri Lanka experienced it worst moment in history when bombs began to explode at churches and hotels causing destruction and devastation.

The toll of destruction and decimation is a story of unspeakable grief, unbearable pain and agonizing loss of lives and Sri Lanka came to a standstill frozen in time seeing its people and foreigners who had visited this country getting snuffed away in bizarre tragedy. One of the Petitioners before this Court is an attorney at law who suffered irreparable injuries which have debilitated him. The Public Interest Litigations that the Petitioners have mounted testify to the gravity and enormity of the tragic events.

The unsuspecting faithful members of the Catholic community, children and families took a heavy brunt of this dastardly act of the terrorists for no fault of theirs. St. Sebastian's Church, Katuwapitiya, St. Anthony's Church, Kochchikade and Zion Church, Batticaloa as well as Kingsbury Hotel, Shangri-La Hotel and Cinnamon Grand Hotel, remain etched in memories and will remind the people of the country of the carnage of 21st April 2019 for a long time to come.

Some of the applications before this Court are motivated by public interest litigations and as we have said, all the applications urge that if not for the soft approach and lackadaisical treatment of warnings and signals adopted by the Respondents specifically referred to above, these consequences which put this country and its people asunder would not have occurred. The liability is sought to be cast on the police officers including the IGP and the President of the country based on illegal omissions and inaction. Before we proceed to determine the liability on the common denominators that we have enumerated above, certain preliminary observations have to be made.

If one were to look at the facts and circumstances pertaining to the Director, SIS, it is true that the warning signals all arrived at his doorstep. Did he carry out his duties in all earnest? or he infringed the fundamental rights of these Petitioners. We are compelled to observe that he undoubtedly presents the piteous story of a lonely boy on the burning deck with no one coming to his assistance.

As the head of State Intelligence Service - an indispensable component of the Defence mechanisms in the country, did he present before this Court a genuine story of commitment to national security? Can he declare to this Court that he was not bound to report to the President? Can the President justifiably support him in this defence? Can this Court give credence to his assertion that he had a dissociative nexus with the President of the country?

A salient feature of the affidavit of Nilantha Jayawardena is the overtly explicit attempt to disassociate himself from the then President of the country, Maithripala Sirisena who was holding the portfolio of the Ministry of Defence at the relevant time. Some of the averments in his affidavit seek to proclaim a distant relationship he had allegedly maintained with the Minister of Defence. This cautious approach is also adopted by the former President in his stolid acceptance of Nilantha Jayawardene's assertion that he was not required to report to the President. There is a studious choice in both affidavits to treat each other's functions as distinct and discrete. Both affidavits seek to make out that there existed between the Minister and a head of a Department under the Ministry a relationship as though they were dealing with each other at arm's length. Nilantha Jayawardena's account on a hands-off way of handling security in the country is put forth in two declarations by him in his affidavit which are to the following effect:

> I state that I have not been instructed or directed, nor am I expected to report directly to His Excellency the President and /or the Prime Minister, or share directly with His Excellency the President and /or the Prime Minister, on actionable information relating to security.
>
> As such, I state that I am not duty bound or expected to share with His Excellency the President and the Prime Minister, nor did I communicate to them the actionable information I had gathered and had already forwarded to the Inspector General of Police and the then Chief of National Intelligence, in regard to the possible bomb attacks, that eventually took place on 21st of April 2019.

We take the view that this is an impermissible attempt to disengage himself from any ministerial supervision and control. Both the affidavit of Nilantha Jayawardena and the former President echo the same language as regards Nilantha Jayawardena's accountability to his Minister. It has to be remembered that Nilantha Jayawardena was occupying the position of a head of a separate department under the Ministry of Defence. The three Gazettes where the former President allocated powers and functions to himself with regard to national security, make it quite clear that State Intelligence Service (SIS) has always remained a distinct and separate department under the Minister of Defence. The Department of Police was brought under the Ministry of Defence only in November 2018 by Gazette Notification bearing No. 2096/17. It was only in November 2018 that the Department of Police was brought within the purview of the Ministry of Defence, whereas the State Intelligence Service had remained with the former President at all times since 2015. It is crystal clear that though Nilantha Jayawardena was a Senior Deputy Inspector General of Police, he continued to function as the head of a distinct and separate department called the State Intelligence Service, whereas Pujith Jayasundara-the IGP continued to remain as the Head of the Department of Police.

In a nutshell, State Intelligence Service and Department of Police were described as separate and distinct departments under the Ministry of Defence – see items 12 and 14 of the Gazettes bearing Nos. 2096/17 and 2103/33.

This bifurcation of State Intelligence Service and Department of Police make it patently clear that no one institution was above another, and this parity of status puts paid to any argument of a hierarchical distinction that can be made between two separate and different departments under the same portfolio – the Ministry of Defence. While not gainsaying the importance of a close nexus and coordination they must maintain between the two departments, it can in no way be argued that the IGP stands as primus inter pares vis a vis the Director, State Intelligence Service. Whilst serving the same cause of national security of the country, both the IGP and Director, SIS have one Minister who would have the same degree of oversight over the two departments. There is one Secretary to the Ministry who shall, subject to the direction and control of the Minister of Defence, exercise supervision over the departments of government or other institutions in the charge of his Minister – Article 52(2) of the Constitution.

This constitutional provision places the Minister at the apex of the hierarchy under whose charge the distinct and separate departments of his Ministry lie. In the circumstances, it is contrary to constitutional principle for the former President to make a distinction between SIS and the Department of Police. When Maithripala Sirisena, the former President contends in his affidavit that only the IGP and the Secretary, Defence are bound to report to him and not the Director, SIS, it goes against the constitutional grain.

When the Constitution itself places the several departments coming under the Ministry on a co-ordinate and parallel plane, it goes contrary to the constitutional scheme for the former President to put forward a preposterous position that a particular Head of his department is not bound to report to him. The proclivity to exclude the Director, SIS and only include the IGP and the Secretary, Defence under his ken is quite surprising and unconstitutional given that it amounts to an unequal and illegal treatment of two heads of his departments. In the same breath, it cannot lie in the mouth of Nilantha Jayawardena to say that he was not bound to report to the President who was the Minister of Defence at the relevant time.

We hold that Nilantha Jayawardena was under an obligation to report to the Minister of Defence who was the President of the country. Therefore, the assertions in the affidavits of both Maithripala Sirisena and Nilantha Jayawardena are misstatements of the long held constitutional principle that the departments and institutions in his charge under a Minister are equidistant and co-ordinate. Therefore, the fictitious distinctions that both the former President and Director, SIS are making in their affidavits are artificial and have no legal or constitutional basis. The distinction is selectively made for reasons best known to the deponents of the two affidavits.

An identical attempt was sought to be made to perpetuate this misconception by the contention advanced by the Senior Additional Solicitor General that the Carltona doctrine would apply only in the case of the Secretary of Defence, whilst there was a total absence of any reference of the applicability of this principle in the case of Director, SIS or the IGP. The distilled essence of the Carltona principle is that it applies equally to all the responsible officers of a Ministry and thus it applies to Nilantha Jayawardena with the same vigor as it does to Hemasiri Fernando and Pujith Jayasundera.

The general constitutional principle enunciated by Lord Greene in Carltona Ltd v Commissioner of Works[3] has the effect that acts done by officials in the exercise of Ministerial functions are to be treated as the Minister's own acts regardless of whether these acts are done personally by the Minister himself or by a Junior Minister or departmental officials. The Carltona doctrine does not involve any question of agency or delegation but rather the idea of the official as alter ego of the Minister; the official's decision is seen to be the Minister's decision.

The application of the aforesaid constitutional principle to the facts of the case would boil down to just this proposition. The former President had assigned to himself a number of duties and functions by way of the Gazette notification and had also named departments to perform those duties and functions. The Carltona is to the effect that he need not personally perform those functions and duties. There is an implied delegation that his responsible officials heading the Departments can perform those functions and duties on his behalf. Thus the Secretary, Defence, Chief of National Intelligence, Inspector General of Police and Director, SIS can perform those functions on his behalf and they are not treated as agents but rather they are conceived as his alter ego. In other words, the performance of these officials is treated as the performance of the Minister. It does not mean that these officials, particularly senior officials and heads of departments in the case, can choose not to perform the functions and duties because Article 52 (2) of the Constitution places the supervision of performance on the Secretary subject to the direction and control of the Minister. The common law constitutional principle is added on by the accretion of the constitutional supervision imposed on both the Minister and the Secretary, Defence who is vested with national security not only by the Constitution but also by subordinate legislation published in the Gazette. The alter egos are obligated to perform and if they perform the acts, they are akin to performance of the acts by the Minister.

[3] (1943) 2 All ER 560

This aspect of performance subject to supervision therefore introduces the obligation of consulting the Minister in cases of extreme importance and the officials cannot get away with the argument that they cannot have direct access to the Minister who becomes answerable to Parliament if he has not properly exercised oversight and supervision. The Minister cannot absolve himself from his non-supervision by putting forward an argument that an officer concerned did not give him information or he is not bound to report to him.

The Minister remains the constant watchdog of his departments and any failure of supervision that results in a violation of fundamental rights will amount to a dereliction of duty on the part of the Minister. There is case law which imposes the requirement of personal attention to be paid by the Minister. For instance, orders drastically affecting the liberty of the person – e.g. deportation orders,[4] detention orders made under wartime security regulations[5] and perhaps discretionary orders for the rendition of fugitive offenders[6] require the personal attention of the minister.[7] The above jurisprudence emphasizes the imperative requirement of consultation and personal attention by the Minister with his responsible officials and briefings of the Minister to be done by those officials necessarily take pride of place.

[4] R v Chiswick Police Station Superintendent Ex p. Sacksteder [1918] 1 K.B. 578 at 585-586, 591-592 (dicta). The decision has in fact been taken by the Home Secretary personally (Cmnd 3387 (1967),16). In Oladehinde v Secretary of State for the Home Department [1991] 1 A.C. 254, which concerned the provisional decision to deport, the HL appeared to accept that the final decision to deport had to be taken by the Secretary of State personally or by a junior Home Office minister if he was unavailable. R v Secretary of State for the Home Department ex p. Mensah [1996] Imm. A.R. 223.

Just as much the Minister states that the Secretary, Defence and the IGP were bound to report to him, so was the Director, SIS placed under a constitutional duty to access his Minister and keep him abreast of the impediments and problems he was confronted with. That places the Minister under an obligation to treat his officials equally and not keep them disengaged and distant because non-performance of any of his duties and functions is bound to infringe the fundamental rights of those whom the Minister is sworn to serve, and as such he must take guard and exercise supervisory guardianship over the guardians of national security. Given the fact the Constitution accords Defence of the Nation to him, the President is obligated by the Constitution, subordinate legislation and common law (Carltona) to consult his officials. He has to set up his mechanisms and structures where there is a free flow of discussion.

The heads of the Department and responsible officers remain liable for the infractions of not performing their duties assigned to them to safeguard the security and integrity of the nation. The Minister becomes liable when he fails in his constitutional and common law duties to have robust systems and mechanisms to protect and promote national security. It is for this reason that there has to be constant supervision and control of his officials. There must be structures and mechanisms which facilitate transparent exchange of intelligence and information. A proper mechanism to acquaint himself with intelligence and information would serve the Minister proper notice of intelligence and information and such an absence of supervisory mechanism will expose the Minister to allegations of failure of his constitutional, statutory and common law duties.

Assessed with this yardstick and benchmark, we take the view that given the knowledge of warnings, caveats and intelligence information, there were several duties cast upon the Secretary, Defence, Chief of National Intelligence, Director, SIS and the Inspector General Police. From the chronology of the factual matrix that we have set out above, each one of them assigned with

---

[5] Liversidge v Anderson [1942] A.C.206 at 223-224, 265, 281; Point of Ayr [1943] 2 All E.R. 546 at 548 (dicta).

[6] R v Brixton Prison Governor Ex p. Enaharo [1963] 2 Q.B. 455 at 466.

[7] See D. Lanham, "Delegation and the Alter Ego Principle" (1984) 100 L.Q.R. 587, 592-594 (who argues that where life or personal liberty are at stake, the alter ego principle may not apply).

constitutional and statutory duties to police the nation and prevent mayhem and disaster was derelict in their duties and had they exercised the duty of care that was mandatorily expected of them, this nation would not have been impaled in the horrible murders and destruction that followed the bomb explosions on 21st April 2019.

The assertion of no access is given the lie to by Nilantha Jayawardena himself as is evident on the facts.

There is a total misappreciation of Carltona doctrine in the way it was advanced in the arguments on behalf of the two Respondents against whom infringements of fundamental rights have been alleged namely Nilantha Jayawardena and the former President. Though Nilantha Jayawardena asserted in his affidavit that he had not been reporting to the President or he had no access except through the Secretary to the President, his statements before the Parliamentary Select Committee (PSC) show that if he wished to contact the President, there was no impediment at all. The minutes of evidence before the PSC have been appended to the affidavit of Hemasiri Fernando and at pages 879 and 880 of the minutes of evidence (Volume 2) we could see the prior statements made by Nilantha Jayawardena.

Q: Have you ever spoken to His Excellency the President? Have you ever spoken to him?
Nilantha Jayawardena: On what?

Q: On anything?

Nilantha Jayawardena: If he calls me and asks various things – so many people are going and giving him information and sometimes he calls me and asks, "Find this for me." Then I look back to see whether it comes under my purview. Then I speak to him and say that. I do not speak to him over his mobile; never.
(This response of Director, SIS before the PSC shows that the President had called him)

Q: So, it has so happened - that he asks you for information, you get back to him on that. That has happened.

Nilantha Jayawardena: Yes.

Q: Then that happens directly? Direct communication between you and the President –

Nilantha Jayawardena: That is up to His Excellency to decide. Sometimes he sends messages through the Secretary. Secretary calls me and says, "මේක බලල කියන්න කිව්වා කියලා;" then sometimes when he is outside and something like that or not in office. He does not call me directly. He always comes through certain exchange or something like that. So, he has asked certain things from me. So, whatever he asks from me directly, I directly talk to him. If he asks whatever through the Secretary, I talk to the Secretary.

Q: In the evidence laid before this Committee, it transpired that you have direct access to the President on matters of serious security that you brief the President directly.

Nilantha Jayawardena: Sir, this is the same answer, I have to give. When others have not done their job, they cannot say I expected him to do it. So, I do not brief the President on information every day. It is not my practice. If somebody is telling that I am briefing the President on information, that is not correct. That is not correct because-the same answer, I have to give you if he calls me and ask certain things because people go and tell him this thing, I will reply, but I don't talk to him and say, "Sir, there is a thing like this or there is a thing like that." No, it is not my practice. It is not done by me-not the Director-State intelligence. But I brief them at the Security Council.

The above shows without an iota of doubt that there were occasions when Director, SIS had briefed the President. There were occasions where he had briefed them at Security Council meetings. There were several opportunities that he had without any kind of impediment to reach the President. Given that law imposes an obligation to keep the President acquainted with intelligence and information, this Court entertains no doubt that he failed in his duty to keep his Minister informed. In the same may he admits that he had briefed the National Security Council meetings and that imputes knowledge of preceding events and threats posed by Zahran to the President. Given this background, had the supervision, either through himself or National Security Council meetings, been continued, the President ought to have been put on notice of the impending disaster. The President had been remiss in this duty of keeping abreast of the latest information on Zahran and his associates.

As the English cases cited above unmistakably point out, there is a reciprocal duty of consultation and briefings particularly when national security is bestowed on the Minister.

If the Director, SIS was confronting obstacles in the way of implementing the safety and security of the people, it was his obligation to have sought out his Minister and briefed him and he cannot take refuge under a tattered veil of a self-imposed restraint. By virtue of his previous evidence before the PSC, he has himself lifted the veil behind what had gone on as regards his communications with the President and in the same way it does not lie in the mouth of both Hemasiri Fernando and the IGP that they had been disabled by their own minister. They had opportunities to liaise with the Minister of Defence. The opportunity presented itself when they met the President to wish him for the Sinhala and Tamil New Year on 14th April 2019 and in view of the intelligence both of them were possessed of, they could have collectively appealed to their Minister to exercise his powers under both the Constitution and others statutes such as the Public Security Ordinance. It was an egregious omission on their part even if the President had grown alienated from them.

As for the President it is his obligation to have had a constant vigil over his ministerial functions, as National Security was his portfolio and he should have exercised his supervision over his Departmental Heads regardless of personal predilections for particular officers. When it was within the competence of the Director, SIS, he had not provided any information to the President, which fact is corroborated by the President. But that does not relieve the President from his constitutional obligation of ensuring the national security of the country by remaining engaged with the responsible officials of his Ministry given the fact that Article 4 (b) of the Constitution declares that the executive power of defence of Sri Lanka lies with him.

Based on the narrative of inaction and omissions on the part of Nilantha Jayawardena – Director, SIS we hold that Nilantha Jayawardena is liable for having violated the fundamental rights specified under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(e) of the Constitution.

Having arrived at that finding, we now proceed to look at the lapses on the part of Hemasiri Fernando-the Secretary, Defence.

Hemasiri Fernando-Secretary, Defence

Under Article 52(1) of the Constitution a secretary is appointed for each Ministry by the President. Article 52(2) provides that "The Secretary to the Ministry Shall, subject to the direction and control of his Minister, exercise supervision over the Departments of Government or other institutions in the charge of his Minister".

On 30th October 2018, the President acting in terms of Article 52(1) had appointed Hemasiri Fernando who has been cited as a respondent in all these applications. He had been entrusted with the responsibility of steering and / or conducting the affairs of the government departments and other establishments on the direction and control of the Minister to whom such departments and establishments are assigned.[8] Fernando has served in this capacity until he resigned on 25th of April, 2019.

In December 2018, the President acting in terms of Article 44(1)(a) had allocated inter alia Sri Lanka Army, Sri Lanka Navy, Sri Lanka Air Force, State Intelligence Service and Police Department to the Minister of Defence. It is also pertinent to observe that Public Security Ordinance, Prevention of Terrorism Act No 48 of 1979 and Suppression of Terrorist Bombings Act No 11 of 1999 are three laws among others that are to be implemented by the Ministry of Defence.

In the afternoon of Monday, 08th April 2019, the Chief of National Intelligence had brought to the attention of Hemasiri Fernando, the contents of the communication he had received from the Director State Intelligence Services on the same day. Upon receipt of this information, the former secretary, defence had discussed with the CNI its content and wanted the matter to be raised and discussed at the weekly intelligence coordinating meeting that was already scheduled for the following day (09 April 2019). As we said before, on 9th April 2019, the former secretary, defence had chaired the ICM but surprisingly, the former Secretary Defence under whose supervision the State Intelligence Service was placed did not take any initiative to open a discussion on this vital piece of intelligence. In our view the former secretary had failed in his duty as the supervisory authority of the State Intelligence Service as he remained silent without raising this issue at the meeting.

The failure on the part of the Director SIS to brief the audience as well as the failure on the former Secretary, Defence to raise it with the Director SIS in the presence of other attendees, including the tri-force commanders, Heads of Intelligence units of tri-forces and the IGP resulted in the loss of an opportunity to strategize a proper plan of action with the collaboration of all important defence establishments to prevent any possible attack as had been forecast in the said intelligence report. However, Hemasiri Fernando himself having recognized the importance of taking precautionary measures at that initial stage itself later on instructed the CNI to share that information with the IGP. It is difficult to comprehend the reason for the failure to raise this matter at the Weekly Intelligence meeting, the first earliest opportunity that arose. The failure on the part of the Director SIS and the former Secretary Defence in this regard resulted in the tri-force commanders being completely kept in the dark on any possible threat to security as revealed in the information, until the attacks took place twelve days later. The Secretary himself admitted in his affidavit before this Court that "if the said matters adverted to in the said letter was discussed at the said weekly intelligence meeting, all those present at the said meeting would have been adequately apprised of the matters adverted to therein".

[8] 2R3 in SC FR 195/19.

Hemasiri Fernando has placed the full responsibility on the Director SIS for the failure to raise this matter at the Weekly Intelligence Meeting. Furthermore, he attributes the responsibility to the Director SIS for the failure to draw his personal attention to the information and the omission to highlight what counter-measures should be adopted to neutralize the threat of any attack and claims that the Director SIS had acted in complete dereliction of duty.

As we have already observed, the responsibility for the failure to raise this matter at the Weekly Intelligence Meeting rests not only on the Director, SIS but also the Secretary, Defence. Additionally, the CNI could have coordinated the initiation of the discussion. The Secretary cannot absolve himself from this responsibility by shifting it to the Director, SIS, because his supervisory role mandates him to raise it himself. Hemasiri Fernando claims that he could have "put in motion a coordinated security plan with the assistance / participation of the different law enforcement agencies, including the Police and Armed Forces with the concurrence of the political leadership of the country".

In fact the CNI on the 09th April 2019, after the weekly intelligence meeting, had conveyed to the IGP the intelligence information he had received from the Director, SIS highlighting the importance to alert Law Enforcement Agencies to be vigilant concerning the information. The CNI signed this communication on behalf of the Secretary, Defence. However, the Secretary, Defence thereafter took no steps on his own or through the CNI to seek any verifications or reports either from the Director, SIS or from the IGP on any further developments relating to the information on the planned attacks.

There had been complete silence on the part of the Secretary on this matter until he received a text message from the Director, SIS. The said message was delivered to Hemasiri Fernando's phone at 16.53 on 20th April 2019. According to Hemasiri Fernando, he read this message only after Director SIS called him and drew his attention. At 18.23 Hemasiri Fernando replied "well received". Hemasiri Fernando claims that he was not in the habit of perusing WhatsApp messages as he did not consider it a secure mode of communication. However, at 21.10, on the same day he had sent another message to the Director SIS saying "Discussed with IGP on your advice".

Has Hemasiri Fernando paid necessary attention and taken sufficient measures consequent to the receipt of the aforesaid text message? The said message not only discloses the dry run explosion that took place in Palamunai, Kattankudi on the 16th April 2019 but proceeds to warn of the likelihood of an attack anytime on or before 21st April 2019 targeting eight places including a church and a hotel. Having himself procliamed his ability that he had the capacity to put in place a coordinated security plan with the participation of law enforcement agencies with the concurrence of the political leadership of the country, did he take reasonable measures in response to the reported threat? According to his own version, he had not taken any steps other than having a discussion with the IGP. Did he not have a duty to apprise the Defence Minister who was the President and seek his directions in this situation? It is undisputed that Hemasiri Fernando did not apprise the Minister nor did he make any attempt to do so at any time from the time he came to know of the intelligence information on the possible attack. It is his position that the President himself had informed him that the Director SIS briefed him on all matters pertaining to intelligence and the need for the Secretary, Defence to apprise him on such matters did not arise. However, Hemasiri Fernando at no stage takes up the position that there was no need for the President to have been briefed regarding the intelligence information on the possible attack.

In our view it is the duty of the Secretary under whose supervision the State Intelligence Service was placed to take necessary measures to brief the President by himself or through any other source. Hemasiri Fernando at no stage inquired from the Director, SIS whether he took necessary steps to brief the President on the situation. It remained his responsibility to ensure that the President was briefed given the gravity of the situation at least after the information he received in the evening of the 20th April. Furthermore, at no stage he notified the Secretary to the President on this matter. Considering all the circumstances relating to the matters under consideration, in our view the Secretary, Defence failed to exercise his duties with due diligence. He was derelict in his duties by failing to take necessary measures in the given situation and his inaction contributed to the violation of the right to equal protection of the law guaranteed to all persons including petitioners. There was a constitutional duty imposed on the Secretary to exercise control over the departments but in the circumstances, there had been a flagrant dereliction of the duty. Thus, there has been inaction on the part of the Secretary resulting in the infringement of the fundamental rights of the citizens under Article 12(1) and 14(1)(e) of the Constitution.

Sisira Mendis-Chief of National Intelligence

In his affidavit dated 8th November 2019, he speaks of the scope of his duties and functions. He was appointed to the position with effect from 10TH April 2015. The position of the Chief of National intelligence (CNI) had been established in order to ensure coordination between intelligence agencies. This would appear to be the pivotal role of the CNI.

Despite an absence of a list of duties specifically assigned to him, he had been signing letters and reports on behalf of the Secretary, Defence. Upon a perusal of documents appended to his affidavit, this Court observes that he had forwarded a concept paper to Secretary, Defence on 20th July 2016 titled "Countering the threat posed by the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria" (ISIS). Emphasizing the need for capacity building training, he states in the concept paper "it is vital that officials are provided training on the United Nations Security Council Resolution 2178 to ensure a foundational understanding of countering violent extremism (CVE). He also lists out threats to Sri Lanka and states that the most visible efforts to count of the ISIS threat are in the areas of Law, Policing and Intelligence. In November 2017, he sends a report on the same topic to Inspector General of Police drawing attention to the United Nations Security Resolution 2253 of 2015 (UN SCR 2253), to come to the activities of ISIS. In fact, it is worth quoting the UN SCR 2253;

> "terrorism in all forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever, wherever, and by whomsoever committed, and reiterating its unequivocal condemnation of the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIS, also known as Da'esh), Al-Qaida and associated individuals, groups, undertakings and entities for ongoing and multiple criminal terrorist acts aimed at causing the deaths of innocent civilians and other victims, destruction of property, and greatly undermining stability…"

Even in March, 2019 - one month away from the attack, this Court finds Sisira Mendis distributing to Chief of Defence Staff, Commander of the Army, Commander of the Navy, Commander of the Air Force, Director, State Intelligence Service and Director, Military Intelligence a document titled "Matters discussed at the weekly intelligence coordinating meeting." One of the items that had been discussed at the meeting was pertaining to the activities of Mohammed Cassim Mohammed Saharan.

All this shows that he had been sensitive to the ideology of Zahran and cohorts since 2016. Even on 4th April 2019, he had collated information on Zahran and distributed it.

But subsequent events clearly show that he falls short of his duties. It is the CNI to whom the Director, SIS first passed his intelligence he had received on 4th April 2019. The CNI received this information on the 7th and passed it on to the Secretary, Defence on the 8th April. He forwarded it to the IGP. Other than for bringing it to the attention of IGP and Secretary, Defence, there was no one whom he informed.

Then the ICM took place on 9th April 2019 where the IGP himself was a participant. There is no evidence before us whether he checked with the IGP as to the counter measures taken by Police having regard to the intelligence received. Submissions were made that a large number of officials worked under the CNI. There is no evidence that he took immediate steps to have the intelligence information verified by his own staff apart from his failure to share it with all other relevant officials.

The facts established before this Court clearly show that he fell short of his primary duty of sharing intelligence. It is in evidence that he omitted to ensure that the intelligence received on 4 April 2019 was disseminated to other intelligence agencies, for instance Director of Military Intelligence. This becomes critical given that the largest force of intelligence officials is with the DMI.

At the crucial ICM on 9 April 2019, he complains that the Director, SIS did not take the opportunity to discuss the intelligence that he was possessed of. But this failure does not relieve the CNI from his obligation to raise this issue as his primary duty was one of coordinating intelligence among agencies of the state and moreover the item No 3 of the agenda for the 9th meeting shows clearly that he was entrusted with a duty to brief the participants on National Security.

AGENDA FOR THE WEEKLY INTELLIGENCE MEETING 19 MARCH 2019

1. Opening Statement by the Secretary Defence.
2. Current Security/Intelligence Update
    a. Briefing by Director/ State Intelligence Service
    b. Briefing by Director Military Intelligence
3. Any other matters pertaining to the National Security – to be taken by CNI, CDS, Tri-Services Commanders and IGP.
    a. Activities of Mohammed Cassim Mohammed Saharan – Leader of National Thowheeth Jama'ath (NTJ)
    b. Usage of pro LTTE symbols at the School Sports Meet in North.
    c. Poaching by Indian fishermen in territorial waters of Sri Lanka.
    d. ISIS returnees to Sri Lanka
    e. 40th session of the United Nations Human Rights Council (25 February – 22 March 2019).
4. Any other intelligence related matters – to be briefed by Naval and Air Intelligence Directors.

Closing Remarks

His failure to share Nilantha Jaywardena's information created a lack of awareness among crucial intelligence officials and had that duty been discharged by the CNI, a well-coordinated plan to locate and apprehend the dangerous outfit of terrorists could have been launched. By virtue of his office, the CNI Sisira Mendis had known the extent of infiltration of destructive ideologies having regard to the fact he himself produced reports on them and he ought to have realized the threat brought to light by the intelligence.

But the CNI failed in his duties by turning a blind eye to the onerous responsibilities attendant upon his office. In the circumstances this Court is of the view that Sisira Mendis stands liable for infringement of fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(e) of the Constitution.

Pujith Jayasundera-Inspector General of Police

It could be said that it is in the same way that the IGP has committed his own omissions, when there were obvious risks to which he paid no attention. His inadvertence to those obvious risks amounts to a violation of his statutory duties which he owes the citizenry and there is a clear infraction of his duty to implement the provisions of the legislation guaranteeing national security and integrity to every citizen in the country. One need not trawl through a whole host of duties enjoined upon the IGP. The IGP is bound by the Police Ordinance and it cannot be denied that it is the Inspector General of Police, who had the statutory authority, and the machinery under him, to act.

Section 56 of the Police Ordinance on the duties and liabilities of police officer states:

> Every police Officer shall for all purposes in this Ordinance be considered to be always on duty, and shall have the powers of a police officer in every part of Sri Lanka. It shall be his duty (a) to use his best endeavors and ability to prevent all crimes, offenses, and public nuisances; (b) to preserve the peace….. (f) promptly to obey and execute all orders and warrants lawfully issued and directed to him by any competent authority.

It is quite clear from the above that each policeman is notionally equal as being answerable to the law alone, and being obliged to enforce it.

The main objective of police is to apprehend offenders, to investigate crimes and to prosecute them before the Courts and also to prevent commission of crime and above all to ensure law and order to protect the citizens life and property. It is unfortunate that these objectives have remained unfulfilled in this case. Even if the President had become estranged with the IGP, the IGP had the statutory authority to seek out and apprehend Zahran and his associates. There could have been a well coordinated network put in motion by the IGP to go after and stake out Zahran as he was an absconder and his whereabouts were well known. Urgent and accurate Indian warnings elicited a tardy and confused response and it does not augur well for the Police Department to let go of a fugitive from justice to flee from town to town and allow him to let loose his trail of devastation.

If one may list out some of the other omissions on the part of the IGP, so glaring are the following:

The IGP had been briefed of the intelligence by 8th April 2019 when he attended the meeting with the President. The obvious question arises-why is it that he did not apprise the President at this meeting? We have already referred to his limited dissemination of intelligence to a few subordinates on the 9th April 2019. The IGP never took steps to inform the President, Prime Minister and the relevant security personnel. Even if he had been alienated by the President, the IGP did meet the President and the closer association of the head of another department with the President is no ground for refusing to broach intelligence related matters with the Minister. Though he was notified of the dry run in Palamunai, this vital intelligence was not shared by him with a wide spectrum of personnel.

He had also not given sufficient instructions to his subordinates as to the measures that should be taken at the ground level. Statutorily enjoined as he was, more could have been done to either prevent or at the very least mitigate the attacks if the IGP had taken robust and speedy measures and given clear instructions for preparations on the ground. Churches could have been informed and there could have been a public alert.

What earthly use did the IGP make of the periodical reports that the Director, SIS had sent him? These reports constantly refer to Zahran's preaching and extremist views. We have seen efforts made by the IGP to take some proactive action in regard to extremism but several factors indicate that his responses were inadequate and are not emblematic of the head of the Police Force.

The fact that he signed some of the reports with notations such as F.N.A and Report Back show that he acquired knowledge of the magnitude of the rising extremism. In light of these reports provided by the SIS, was he not put on notice? Did not this mass of information trigger a response so as to activate the TID and CID to arrest Zaharan, Rilwan et al from their hideouts? If there was a failure to arrest these aberrant fugitives on the run, why did not that failure engage his attention and gnaw at his conscience? Did he remain engaged with all the SDIGs from the 9 provinces? Why did not he hold a face-to-face conference with the highest police officials from the provinces ex abundanti cautela? Did he seek responses with the 4 senior police officers to whom he had copied the intelligence?

What was the strategic counter measure which he devised in the face of the mounting intelligence? These questions remain unanswered. The dry run explosion on 16th April 2019 in Kattankudy indicated the magnitude of the danger facing the nation but it does not appear that the IGP took any step further than putting minutes to the effect- "for necessary action".

In view of the voluminous nature of information and intelligence the IGP had in his possession (for instance 97 reports between 20.04.2016 and 29.04.2019 and subsequent information and intelligence), the IGP had a duty of care towards the nation and we do not feel satisfied that the IGP took all steps necessary to avert the likelihood of the disaster. Despite the most proximate relationship that both the Secretary, Defence and IGP say Nilantha Jayawardena was having with the then President, it was incumbent on both of them to have also raised these matters of national interest with the President. The mere assumption that Nilantha Jayawardena would convey the information to the Minister of Defence is an omission on their part as they were both aware of the serious consequences of the intelligence and they should have ascertained whether extra steps should be taken or they should have acted over and above their call of duty. Even if the President had been averse to the information being provided by them, the rest of the political leadership including the Prime Minister should have been informed.

What takes the cake is what the IGP did on 21st April 2019. There is evidence before this Court that though Nilantha Jayawardena had submitted reports to the IGP on the 18th, 19th and 20th April 2019, the IGP made an endorsement on the report only on 21st April 2019 calling upon Nilantha Jayawardena to submit further reports on 5th May 2019. If one may elaborate on these reports, the report on the 18th April 2019 was delivered to the IGP indicating the findings of the State Intelligence Service with regard to the dry run explosion in Kattankudy on 16th April 2019, which was attributed to Mohamed Cassim Mohamed Zahran and NTJ. The report requested the IGP to alert all police stations about another motorcycle which had been purchased by the outfit. The report sent to the IGP on 19th April 2019 provided details of additional persons suspected to be behind the explosion of the motorcycle on 16th April 2019 and requested the IGP to conduct inquiries into the explosion in order to thwart future plans of Zahran Hashim. On 20 April 2019, another report had been delivered to SDIG/CID with a copy to the IGP indicating the closest network of Zahran Hashim. This report revealed the names of 14 persons out of which 06 died in the Easter Sunday Explosions. Undoubtedly this Court finds a quick frequency with which the Director, SIS kept the other officers including the IGP informed but we must make the observation that the same degree of enthusiasm was not displayed by the Director, SIS at an anterior point of time, when he had received tell-tale signs of the impending disaster by way of information and intelligence. The enthusiasm to inform the other officers including the CID appears to have assumed greater proportions only when the danger was right round the corner.

Be that as it may, what this Court observes is a total lack of attention of the IGP to these reports. On all these 3 reports the IGP appended his endorsements only on 21st April 2019, long after the destruction and desolation had been wrought upon the country by the terrorists and as if this dereliction was not glaring enough, the IGP proceeded to call for a report from the Director, SIS by 5th May 2019.

Nothing is more lackadaisical than this approach and it is indubitable that the IGP acted with a serious want of care and devotion towards his duties and functions.

These omissions on the part of the IGP exposes him to infringements of fundamental rights the Petitioners have alleged against him and we conclude that by his inaction and omissions he has committed the infringement of the fundamental rights under Articles 12(1) and 14(1)(e).

Next, we turn to the Minister of Defence for his accountability in regard to the tragedy that engulfed this nation on 21st April 2019 and we must observe that we have already alluded to his constitutional, statutory and common law duties and functions elsewhere in the judgment.

Maithripala Sirisena-Former President/Minister of Defence

We have made some preliminary observations before on the executive powers which the President enjoy under the Constitution. We also look to case law to ascertain the extent of his powers. We would advert to them briefly.

Article 4(b) of the Constitution directs that the executive power of the People including the defence of Sri Lanka shall be exercised by the President of the Republic elected by the People. We have already adverted to Articles 30 (1), 44 (2) and 52 (2) of the Constitution. We have already alluded to his duties and functions assigned to him under the Gazette bearing No. 2103/33 and dated 28th December 2018.

In Re Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution (Special determination 04/2015 to 10/2015, 14/2015 to 17/2015 & 19 of 2015) the Supreme Court declared as follows:

> "…The President must be in a position to monitor or to give directions to others who derive authority from the President in relation to the exercise of his executive power. Failure to do so would lead to a prejudicial impact on the sovereignty of the people…."

The above observation puts it beyond doubt that the President has to exercise constant supervision and monitoring of his subordinates and there is no warrant for the former President's assertion that certain heads of departments are not under an obligation to report to him, while others are. An absence of such a monitoring mechanism on his part leads to a prejudicial impact on the sovereignty of the people and we certainly see a failure in this regard on the part of the then President Sirisena.

The Supreme Court had occasion to make its pronouncement on the nature and extent of the powers of the Minister of Defence in a reference sought by the then President Chandrika Bandaranaike in terms of Article 129 (1) of the Constitution. The Supreme Court observed in that determination (SC Reference No 2/2003) that the plenary executive power including the defence of Sri Lanka is vested and reposed in the President of the Republic of Sri Lanka and that the Minister appointed in respect of the subject of defence has to function within the purview of the plenary power thus vested and reposed in the President.

The following observations of the Supreme Court bears repeating:

> We have to express our opinion in accordance with the constitutional determination made by a bench of 7 Judges of this Court that the executive power being a component of the sovereignty of the people, including the Defence of Sri Lanka, is reposed in and exercised by the President and any transfer, relinquishment or removal of such power from the President would be an alienation of sovereignty which is inconsistent with the Constitution.
>
> A balance is struck in relation to the executive power thus vested in the President by Article 42 which provides as:
>
> the President shall be responsible to Parliament for the due exercise, performance and discharge of his powers, duties and functions under the Constitution and any written law related to public security…."

Apart from the above, the scope and ambit of the executive power exercised by the President are delineated and expatiated by the several notifications that appear from time to time and such notifications were published in Gazettes extraordinary No 1896/28 as amended by No 1897/15 dated 18th January 2015 and No 1933/13 of 21st September 2015. At the relevant time the Gazette bearing No. 2103/33 and dated 28th December 2018 governed the scope and ambit of the presidential powers under the Ministry of Defence.

Prior to 4th April 2019, the National Security Council (NSC) had been in existence for several years and it would appear that it had functioned without any legal framework. It was given statutory recognition under the Public Security Ordinance in terms of Emergency (National Security Council) Regulation No 1 of 1999 published in Gazette Extraordinary No 1081/19 and dated 27th May 1999. This subordinate legislation established an NSC with the President as its head, tasked with the maintenance of national security with authority to direct security operations and matters incidental to it.

This Court heard submissions that prior to January 2015, the NSC used to meet every week on Wednesdays under the chairmanship of the President, before which an intelligence coordination meeting was held on Tuesdays presided over by the Secretary, Defence. This arrangement paved the way for many an aspect of national security to be thrashed out at these meetings and intelligence and other useful information used to be freely exchanged at these meetings. It is how the executive was kept apprised of the national security situation in the country and that facilitated the discussion of all matters pertaining to national security.

It would appear that under the presidency of the former President Sirisena the NSC meetings were sporadic and not regular. If one were to formulate policies with regard to national security and exercise supervision over the security echelons of the Government, the NSC was a useful tool in the hands of the President but a notorious misappreciation of the duties and functions of the Minister of Defence has led to an appalling lack of appreciation of the importance of the National Security Council. The dangers posed by Zahran and his terrorist outfit could have been effectively appreciated and dealt with had this mechanism been in place but its efficacy had been lost on the then President.

The Court finds that there was no meeting summoned for of either ICM or NSC after 9 April 2019 and in our view, it is a serious lapse having regard to the nature of intelligence information received and following the 16 April 2019 dry run explosion. It would appear that despite the 1999 Gazette which provided for the Constitution of the NSC, the attendance at the NSC had been determined solely by the President with no reasons given for the exclusion of key members who should have been an indispensable part of security and intelligence briefings such as the Prime Minister, State Minister for Defence and the IGP. There was extensive submission that the Prime Minister was kept out of the NSC and was not provided with any information.

All this is a stark reality that strikes this Court as a serious omission on the part of the then President. In 2019 there had been only two NSC meetings convened by him. One was on 14th January before the discovery of the Wanathawilluwa explosives and arms cache and the next on 19th February. This was one of the largest discoveries of explosives after the end of the war in 2009. It cannot be gainsaid that the former President Sirisena was made aware of these discoveries at Wanathawilluwa. In these circumstances it was obligatory on the part of the former President Sirisena to have convened the NSC every week and put in place a mechanism to address the threat posed by Zahran and his cohorts. This was never done much to the discomfiture and dislocation of the security apparatus. It has to be pointed out that only after the bombs ripped through the nooks and crannies of this country, wisdom dawned upon the importance of NSC meetings.

This dismal failure on the part of the former President Sirisena resulted in disastrous consequences for this country and not only lives were lost and properties destroyed but inter racial tension and inter-ethnic hatred began to raise their ugly heads causing the very fabric of this nation to be broken and become fragile. There were fear psychosis, apprehension and inter-ethnic alienation that were palpable through the length and breadth of the country. The due care with which the Minister of Defence must have exercised his wide powers in the greater good of the country was totally non-existent having regard to the evidence that has been placed before this Court. The consistent declaration of this Court that "Public Trust" doctrine is not a mere matter of contract bears particular repetition at this stage.

> "We are not concerned with contractual rights, but with the safeguards based on the Rule of Law which Article 12 provides against the arbitrary and unreasonable exercise of discretionary powers. Discretionary powers can never be treated and unfettered unless there is compelling language; when reposed in public functionaries, such powers are held in trust, to be used for the benefit of the public, and for the purpose for which they have been conferred-not at the whim and fancy of officials, for political advantage or personal gain."-see Pryangani v Nanayakkara[9]

Given the constitutional, statutory and common law duties as expounded by Carltona, other case law both domestic and overseas and SC determination in regard to national security, it was the bounden duty of the former President Sirisena to have supervised his departments. The then

[9] (1996) 1 Sri.LR 399 at 404-405.

President Sirisena presided over several of the NSC meetings until he terminated the mechanism and he cannot deny that he was fed with a large volume of information on Zahran and his destructive tendencies. If he was not informed by the Secretary, Defence, IGP or even Director, SIS as he puts an unconstitutional and illegal muzzle on this officer for reasons best known to himself, the question arises as to how he was getting his information regarding national security, which is constitutionally vested in him. As we have pointed out, his personal attention is required in extreme cases of emergency and it is for this reason Public Security Ordinance clothes him with awesome powers. The citizenry is entitled to the protection that the Constitution and laws accord them.

In a nutshell the importance of not only the NSC, but other established structures and practices enjoined by case law and determinations of this Court appear to have been shelved aside by the President and his own Secretary, Defence and IGP have not been directed to share information and though this Court does not look at the conduct of the officials themselves with favor, it strikes us that this non communicative and distant style of handling the all-important Ministry of Defence has caused fissures in the national security mechanisms of the country and thus there was a collapse of the structures and practices that should be in place to strengthen and ensure the efficient and effective security apparatus.

We conclude that the former President Sirisena has been lax in affording the protection and guarantees enjoined under the Constitution and other laws and he has breached his duty to protect. Thus we hold that he has infringed the fundamental rights enshrined under Article 12(1) and 14(1)(e) of the Constitution.

Further on the question of liability the learned President's Counsel in SC/FR /293/2019 submitted that the cabinet of ministers must also be held liable on the strength of Section 12 of the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings Act 1999 which reads as follows:

> The Government of Sri Lanka shall take appropriate measures to prevent any person or group of persons from committing or encouraging, instigating, organizing or knowingly financing the commission of, an offence under this Act, or of an offence specified in the Schedule to this Act, whether in or outside Sri Lanka.

The learned President's Counsel relied on Section 2 (bb) of the Interpretation which goes as follows:

"the Government" where no other meaning is indicated by any descriptive or qualifying words or by the context, and the "the Ceylon Government" or the "Government of Ceylon" or "the Government of this Island" or the "Government of the Island of Ceylon", shall notwithstanding any provisions of written law to the contrary, mean the Cabinet of Ministers appointed under the Ceylon (Constitution and Independence) Orders in Council, 1946 and 1947:

Though the Constitution does not define the term 'government", the interpretation offered by the Interpretation Ordinance does not serve as a useful guide, as it deals with a cabinet of a bygone era and such interpretation will be inappropriate in the context when the executive power of the people, including the defence of Sri Lanka is to be exercised by the President. In any event leave to proceed in these applications was given only against some respondents and not all members of the Cabinet. In the circumstances we do not subscribe to the argument of the learned President's Counsel that the Cabinet must be imputed with liability as the facts and circumstances prove otherwise. The specific assignment and supervision of Defence in the President will militate against any member of the Cabinet being fixed with liability when there is no evidence before this Court that none of them was invested with intelligence with reference to the impending attack. Some of the members of the Cabinet including the Prime Minister were kept out of what appears to be a jealously guarded intelligence and in the circumstances it is inequitable to hold them liable as they are not similarly circumstanced as the respondents we have found liable.

Having dealt with the accountability and liability of the respondents we have identified as culpable, we now turn to set down the general principles that guide us in arriving at the accountability of the State and the Respondents we have referred to above.

It is often the case that today the Courts do take cognizance of tortious or delictual principles in the adjudication of fundamental rights violations and who can deny the intrusion of private law principles into public law domain?

Do the Courts of Sri Lanka have to sit idly by when several jurisdictions abroad have embraced the concept of constitutional torts in human rights law adjudications? Our Constitution states in Article 126 that the Supreme Court has the exclusive jurisdiction to deal with cases involving infringement of fundamental rights. Indeed, in Vivien Gunawardena v Hector Perera[10] Soza J stated that the Constitution of 1978 provided a special forum and machinery for enforcement of fundamental rights but that "old remedies co-exist with the new". Even in Saman v Leeladasa[11] Justice Mark Fernando proceeded to link the constitutional remedy and the delict remedy. He went on to hold that the delictual liability provides a basis for awarding compensation against the State according to the ordinary common law principles of vicarious liability in delict. He drew on the concept of vicarious liability in delict to determine the liability of the State under the Constitution to pay compensation to the victim of a violation. Justice Fernando famously said[12]

[10] (1983) 1 Sri LR 305 at 320.

> "The principles whereby an employer or principal is to be made responsible for the act of his employee or agent have not been laid down by the Constitution and there must be determined by reference to other (statutory or common law) principles of law.."

It is apparent that Justice Mark Fernando had in mind constitutional delicts and this Court agrees that such principles (statutory or common law) could be engrafted onto public law remedies to determine liability.

A constitutional tort is a violation of the fundamental rights of a person or citizen by the State or any of its agencies or instrumentalities, as distinct from tortious injuries caused by private person or entity. The development of this judicial device was predominantly informed by the need to hold a government vicariously liable for the acts of its agencies or employees. One of the ways in which a constitutional tort action differs from a tort action is that the former is a public law remedy for violation of fundamental rights in which the Supreme Court awards compensation- see Chairman, Railway Board v Chandrima Das[13]. For a recent pronouncement by the Indian Supreme Court on constitutional torts, see Kaushal Kishor v State of UP[14]

There are other relevant factors that determine the standard of care of the individual respondents in regard to omission liability. The Courts will take into account all the circumstances of the case. This will possibly involve consideration of a number of other relevant factors including

- the magnitude of the risk
- the cost and practicability of precautions
- the social value of the respondent's activities
- what reasonable man would have foreseen.

[11] (1989) 1 Sri.LR 1
[12] Ibid at p 25.
[13] (2000) 2 SCC 465.
[14] Writ Petition 113/2016 decided on 3rd January 2023.

The magnitude of the risk is determined by the likelihood of the risk occurring and the seriousness of the potential injury. In Blyth v Birmingham Waterworks[15] Alderson B defined breach of duty of care as > the omission to do something which a reasonable man guided upon those considerations which ordinarily regulate the conduct human affairs would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do.

It is quite clear that that the enormity of the risk was so great and the potential injury was so serious that a reasonable man placed in the position of the respondents whose omissions we have referred to above would have acted but the respondents did not. So even on the basis of delictual principles infusing Article 126 adjudication, the respondents we have alluded to become liable for infringement of the fundamental rights of the Petitioners.

Comparative jurisprudence reminds us that the Petitioners in these applications would not be shut out from pursuing their claims in most of the world's leading jurisdictions. In Canada Courts have acknowledged the existence of these types of claims against public service notably police: Doe v Board of Commissioners of Police for Metropolitan Toronto[16] ; Jane Doe v Board of Commissioners of Police for Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto[17] ; Jane Doe v Board of Commissioners of Police for Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto[18]; Odhavji Estate v Woodhouse and others[19].

Similarly, in South Africa the Constitutional Court did not follow the negative approach of the English Courts that had been adopted in the well known case of Hill v Chief constable of Yorkshire[20]. For the fresh winds of change in South Africa see the groundbreaking decision of its Constitutional Court in Carmichele v Minister of Safety and Security[21]; Hamilton v Minister of Safety and Security[22].

---

[15] (1856) 11 Exch 781.
[16] (1989) 58 DL (4th) 396
[17] (1990) 72 DLR (4th) 580
[18] (1998) 168 DLR (4th) 697
[19] (2003) 3 SCR 263.
[20] (1983) AC 53.
[21] (2001) 12 BHRC 60.
[22] (2003) (7) BCLR723 (c)

In Carmichele, the Constitutional Court of South Africa held that "in some circumstances" the guarantees in the Bill of Rights ought to be read to include "a positive component which obliges the state and its organs to provide appropriate protection to everyone through laws and structures designed to afford such protection."

Our understanding of German law, derived from Professor Sir Basil Markensinis's magisterial work on the German Law of Torts[23] leads this Court to think that the German Courts, relying on Article 14 of the Constitution and Section 839 of the BGB, would find the public service liable for infractions of rights based on the facts before us. It would be necessary to show fault, understood in a broad way, and clearly demonstrable on the facts, and also, importantly, a duty owed to the individual and not only to the public at large. Fairness and justice are held to require the state to be held liable to the individual, except where the duty is owed to the public at large.

Jurisprudence Across the Palk Strait

In Kamla Devi v Government of NCT,[24] Uday Singh died in a terrorist related incident. Kamla Devi-the widow moved the Delhi High Court which famously held:

> Apart from the general inability to tackle the volatile situation, in this case, the State agencies failed in their duty to prevent terrorists from entering Delhi. It was their responsibility to see that dangerous explosives such as RDX were not available to criminals and terrorists. The incident occurred as there was a failure on the part of state to prevent it. There was failure of intelligences they did not pick up the movement of this known and dangerous terrorist. So, it would be extremely difficult even to suggest that the State did not fail in its duty towards the late Uday Singh and his family.

The Court went on to state

> A crime has been committed. A wrong has been done and a citizen has lost his life because the State was not vigilant enough. A fundamental right has been violated. But, mere declarations such as these will not provide any succour to the petitioner.

[23] 4th edn (Hart Publishing, 202), pp 893-899.
[24] 114 (2004) DLT 57.

She needs to be compensated. It is too late in the day to now suggest, that in a situation such as this, the petitioner should be relegated to the ordinary civil Courts to seek her tort law remedy.

The learned single judge of the Delhi High Court Justice Badar Durrez Ahmed while invoking the power under Article 226 of the Constitution directed the government of NCT of Delhi to pay compensation to the petitioner who was a victim of a bomb blast due to a terrorist attack. The learned single judge also laid down the following principles which would govern the award of compensation:

The principles which emerge from this case can be summarized as follows:-

1. Whenever an innocent citizen is killed as a result of a crime, particularly when it is an act of terror or communal violence or a case of custodial death, the State would have failed in its public duty to ensure the guarantee enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution.
2. The modern trend and the international norm is to focus on the victims of crime (and their families) by, inter alia, ensuring that they are promptly compensated by the State in adequate measure under a well-laid out scheme.
3. In India, there is no such criminal injury compensation scheme in place and the private law remedies of damages and compensation are grossly inadequate. Legislation on this aspect is not forthcoming.
4. In such a situation the High Court, in exercise of its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution can and ought to direct the State to compensate the crime victim and/or his family.
5. The compensation to be awarded by the Courts, based on international norms and previous decisions of the Supreme Court, comprises of two parts:-
   (a) 'Standard compensation' or the so-called 'conventional amount' (or sum) for non-pecuniary losses such as loss of consortium, loss of parent, pain and suffering and loss of amenities; and
   (b) Compensation for pecuniary loss of dependency.
6. The 'standard compensation' or the 'conventional amount has to be revised from time to time to counter inflation and the consequent erosion of the value of the rupee. Keeping this in mind, in case of death, the standard compensation in 1996 is worked out at Rs. 97,700. This needs to be updated for subsequent years on the basis of the Consumer Price

Index for Industrial Workers (CPI-IW) brought out by the Labor Bureau, Government of India.

7. Compensation for pecuniary loss of dependency is to be computed on the basis of loss of earnings for which the multiplier method is to be employed. The table given in Schedule II of the MV Act, 1988 cannot be relied upon; however, the appropriate multiplier can be taken therefrom. The multiplicand is the yearly income of the deceased less the amount he would have spent upon himself. This is calculated by dividing the family into units – 2 for each adult member, and 1 for each minor. The yearly income is then to be divided by the total number of units to get the value of each unit. The annual dependency loss is then calculated by multiplying the value of each unit by the number of units excluding the two units for the deceased adult member. This becomes the multiplicand and is multiplied by the appropriate multiplier to arrive at the figure for compensation of pecuniary loss of dependency.
8. The total amount paid under 6 and 7 above is to be awarded by the Court along with simple interest thereon calculated on the basis of the inflation rate based on the Consumer Price as disclosed by the Government of India for the period commencing from the date of death of the deceased till the date of payment by the State.
9. The amount paid by the State as indicated above would be liable to be adjusted against any amount which may be awarded to the claimants by way of damages in a civil suit or compensation under the Criminal Procedure Code."

It has to be noted that some of the criterial that the Delhi High Court refers to above find no parallels in Sri Lanka and it is only a persuasive guide for law reform in this country on computation of compensation.

Ashwini Gupta v Government of India[25] was a case where the Petitioner aged about 19 years suffered 90 per cent disabilities of permanent nature as a result of a bomb blast. The incident had completely derailed his life and drastically affected his earning capacity and potential for a job. He had been granted only an ex-gratia payment of Rs 25,000. The Petitioner pleaded the issue of monetary compensation as the respondents had refused to pay anything more than Rs 25,000.

[25] ILR (2005) 1 DELHI 7.

The Delhi High Court held:

> In a civic society, there is not only to be a punishment for the crime of violation of the laws of the society, but also compensation to the victim of the crime. The very object of creating a State giving a governor for governance of the society to adhere to the norms itself imposes a responsibility on the Governors. The inability to protect life and limb of the citizen must result in a consequential remedy for the citizen to be paid by the Governors…"

If a member of the public whom public service exists to serve suffers irreparable injury or loss though the culpable fault or reprehensible failure of that service to act as it should have, is it not consistent with ethical and, perhaps, democratic principle that the many, responsible for discharging that service in public trust, shall bear the cost of compensating the victim? This Court cannot leave that as a rhetorical question, and stand as mute bystanders, as we are confident that our own answer on the law and facts is as clear as a pikestaff.

